Congress rules in Rockwell's favor on contract

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rockwell International Corp., with the approval from a 12-year resident government contracting officer, will be able to claim $128,000 for an item listed as worth $10, testimony before Congress revealed Wednesday.

Rockwell, the nation's No. 2 military contractor, rejected the allegation as untrue, and blamed the discrepancy on misinterpretation by government auditors.

Rep. Bill Nichols, D-Ala., chairman of the House Armed Services investigations subcommittee, said 14 auditors were asked to check the records of Rockwell and six other major defense contractors during an investigation into claims of incorrect billings.

Of $3.6 billion in billings review, Nichols said, $109.7 million was questioned.

OVERALL, Nichols said, the auditors questioned $12.3 million in billings from Rockwell, $15.3 million for General Dynamics Corp., $31 million for McDonnell Douglas Corp., $29 million for Boeing, $9.9 million for Sperry Corp., $7.1 million for Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., and $4.9 million for Textron Corp. (Bell Helicopter).

Williston Cofer, a committee staff member speaking for the auditors from the Defense Contract Audit Agency and General Accounting Office, said they were hampered by a lack of cooperation from both contractors and contracting officers, who are government employees.

Cofer said in 1984 Rockwell sought to account for computer items at a "fair market value" of $128,000. Contract officer Sam Stover, a government employee who has worked with Rockwell for a dozen years, approved the request "without the benefit of an audit. During a DCAA audit it was disclosed that the bill of sale covering these computer items showed a cost of $10," Cofer said.

"DCAA HAS BEEN denied access to the accounting treatment of this transaction. Given the contracting officer's approval, and absent audit access to the accounting records, the contractor will be able to claim $128,000 rather than the bill of sale amount of $10," he said.

Cofer said Stover refused to release the material.

Rockwell said it provided "full access" to records, and Stover, who works at Rockwell's El Segundo, Calif., office, said, "DCAA is never denied access to data they should have."

"The fact is that the company established to the satisfaction of the con-

Cronin's tactics annoy parents

By James Hintzen
Staff Writer

Superintendent of Iowa City Schools David Cronin came under fire from angry parents at the Tuesday night school board meeting for allegedly trying to "ramrod a decision to the school board."

About 40 parents protested against a study timeline proposed by Cronin because they say it allows an inadequate amount of time to study and reach conclusions concerning the merger of Horn and Roosevelt schools.

The timeline reads as follows:

May 14 — Board approves the timeline.

May 15 — Position statement regarding merging Horn/Roosevelt schools. This was scheduled to be sent home with students, mailed to parents and mailed to presidents of each of the area Parent Teacher Organizations.

May 20 — The first public hearing.

June 11 — Response to questions and concerns of the public.

June 17 — The second public hearing.

June 21 — Administration recommendation.

June 25 — Board consideration of the proposal.

For a number of years, the two school districts have had enrollment problems because of the "open admission" policy at Horn School, combined with the westward expansion of Iowa City housing developments.

This expansion has added enrollment pressures for Horn and Roosevelt by increasing attendance at Horn, and has forced some students who live near the schools to be bused to Coralville Central School.

Charlotte Fallon, a member of the audience, said the study proposal was "a very ineffective method" and the "length of this timeline is absolutely ridiculous."

"When we elected you, what did we ask you to do?" another parent asked the board. "We asked you to represent us. Well I haven't heard one parent here that's asked you to do (Cronin's) study, and I'm very disappointed in all of you."

BOARD MEMBER Randy Jordison said the board "wanted to get the information to the public," but they "just didn't do a good job." He promised it would be a high priority in the future.

"I feel comfortable with the timeline," Jordison said, adding he "expects the administration to make recommendations, even strong ones. But that doesn't mean I'm committed to vote for those recommendations."

One parent accused Cronin of trying to "ramrod a decision to the school board" and to "focus entirely on one school would be unfair" to the schools, parents and the community.

After more than two hours of board discussion and public input, the board made minor concessions in the timeline.

The board renamed the designated "Parent Meetings" "Public Hearings." In addition, the board changed the second topic for discussion at the meeting, "Discussing the merger concept" to "Discussing alternatives."

Also, the board provided for the Parent Teacher Organizations in each of the schools to appoint three parents to act on an advisory committee to help conduct the study and to research the effects of the proposed merger.

The second public hearing date was also changed to June 18 from June 17 to accommodate board member Lynne Cannon.

"THEIR RELEASE is up to your action to persuade your governments to pressure them to ask their agents in Kuwait to release all our brothers who are jailed there," said a typewritten statement to the men's relatives.

"For the last time, we warn you that any contact between you and your kidnapped relatives will be cut and that the punishment will be a horrible disaster in case you do not act seriously in this respect and pressure your governments to intervene and set (our brothers) free," the statement said.

"Our brothers" apparently was a reference to three Lebanese Shiites and seven Iraqis jailed in Kuwait for a series of bombings against French and U.S. targets that killed six people and wounded dozens more on Dec. 12, 1983.

The newspaper said it first mistakenly identified Buckley, 56, as missing Briton Alec Collett, 63. Collett, kidnapped in March, works for the U.N. Relief and Works Agency for Palestinian refugees in Lebanon, Walsh's employer.

No mention was made of a fifth American missing in Lebanon. Peter Kilburn, a 60-year-old librarian at the American University of Beirut. He vanished from his west Beirut apartment in November.

An Nahar said there was no way to confirm the identity of all six men beyond any doubt. Nothing in the pictures indicated when they were taken.

EACH PHOTOGRAPH showed a kidnap victim standing alone against a wall, the newspaper said.

Western intelligence officials have suggested that Islamic Jihad is a code word or umbrella organization for several Lebanese Shiite groups with ties to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's fundamentalist, anti-American government in Iran. The group is believed to have carried out several attacks against Westerners in Lebanon.

In a second note, Islamic Jihad urged the American people to "raise your voices against the criminal America and help us in releasing our brothers in Kuwait and we will release the detainees in our custody and if you do not do that there will be no more dialogue between us."

The last statement was addressed to Jesse Jackson and started with the words "to the American reverend who is anxious for power in the United States." It stressed that Islamic Jihad is made up of several Moslem sects.

Jackson paid for several full-page advertisements in Beirut newspapers last month addressed to the Shiite community, calling for the release of all kidnapped foreigners as a sign of good faith.

MEANWHILE, MARONITE Christians and Moslem militiamen fired mortars, machine guns and grenades at each other in the heart of Beirut, killing five people and wounding 11 in fighting that shattered a brief period of calm.

Police said rival militiamen battled all along the Green Line, the three-mile-long battle zone cutting through the center of the city, dividing mainly

Kafer leaves chamber position after 33 years

By Dawn Ummel
Chief Reporter

After 33 years of watching the community grow while running the show at the Greater Iowa City Chamber of Commerce, Keith Kafer has decided to step down as the chamber's executive vice president.

"When I came to Iowa City there was little or no industry here," Kafer said about his arrival in 1952 after three years as executive vice president of the chamber of commerce in Audubon, Iowa.

"We've gone from that point to where you see a nice alignment of industries," including Procter & Gamble

Keith Kafer:
Private industry should tap into the UI's research abilities.

Manufacturing Co., Owens Brush Co. and Sheller-Globe Corp., he said.

Kafer noted that during the course of development, Iowa City has retained the atmosphere of a university community.

"The thing I feel best about is that we've created a lot of improvements without really changing the character of the community ... We tried to maintain that balance and maintain the kind of community that we felt a university community should be."

Kafer, 63, will retire Dec. 31. He will serve as a consultant to the chamber with major projects during that time.

WHEN KAFER TOOK THE REINS at the chamber, administering the policy adopted by the chamber's board of directors, he was working with an annual budget of $17,000 and a membership of 200. Today that budget exceeds $200,000 and membership has grown to more than 600 business people and professionals.

He credits growth to increased economic development and the business community's willingness to invest in the chamber.

"A lot of people think the chamber is an arm of the city and the city provides the funds," he said. "But, in effect, the chamber is made up of business and professional people and all the money we spend comes from investments from business and professional people."

Looking to the future of business in Iowa City, Kafer said he hopes private industry cultivates its relationship with the UI, tapping into the UI's research abilities.

"At our state institutions we have the capabilities to develop products and we have the research to help industries who need research capabilities," he said. "If we can attract this sort of thing to our area we'll not only maintain the flavor of the community, but we'll be able to grow."

FIRST CAPITOL Development Inc., a spin-off of the chamber that was created last fall, has been working to attract industry to Iowa City. Development officials claim the impact of the UI on Iowa City will decline with decreasing student enrollment, but the UI is still one of the city's assets that First Capitol uses to draw new industry.

"People used to say, 'Gee, we don't want to do this (bring in new business) because we don't want to be another Chicago,'" Kafer noted. "I don't think we have to worry about that. I think what we need to worry about is to maintain what we have and hopefully move ahead in the future."

Kafer said he will miss the day-to-day contact with business leaders that he has been familiar with at the chamber's office for the past 33 years.

"When you're involved with people for that long it would be kind of ridiculous to say you're not going to miss it at all," he said.

Bill Bywater, chamber president, said a chamber committee will conduct a nationwide search for Kafer's successor. The committee hopes to find a replacement by the end of the summer. Bywater said no specific job descriptions have been formulated, but he expects to keep an annual salary of $35,000 to $40,000 for the new executive vice president.

Indonesian official sentenced

JAKARTA, Indonesia — An Indonesian court sentenced a former Cabinet minister, Mohammed Sanusi, to 19 years in jail Wednesday, climaxing four months of controversial public trials of Moslem militants.

The sentencing of Sanusi for subversion and conspiring to plant three time-bombs in Jakarta's Chinatown Oct. 4, was seen by local political analysts and diplomats as a sign that authorities were taking a hard line against Islamic extremism in Indonesia.

Honduras offers concession

PANAMA CITY, Panama — Honduras will dismantle anti-Sandinista Contra rebel camps along the Nicaraguan border if all Central American nations, including Nicaragua, agree to a Contadora peace plan, a Honduran official said Tuesday.

"We are requesting that these installations be dismantled and no longer used to end the facility of logistical and operational support for the irregular insurgent forces," Jorge Ramon Hernandez told United Press International.

Senate approves foreign aid

WASHINGTON — The Senate Wednesday night passed a compromise $12.8 billion foreign aid bill that speeds emergency economic assistance to Israel and retains a ban on military aid to the anti-Sandinista rebels in Nicaragua.

The measure passed 75-19 without any crippling amendments after a "tenuous truce" was reached between the Republican and Democratic leadership in an effort to produce the Senate's first comprehensive foreign assistance bill since 1981.

U.S. willing to kill innocents

WASHINGTON — Key Pentagon and State Department officials told Congress Wednesday that the United States is prepared to make armed "counterterrorist" attacks on terrorists even if it means the loss of innocent lives.

The willingness to accept such loss of lives was expressed at Senate hearings by Under Secretary of Defense Fred Ikeda and by Robert Oakley, director of the State Department's Office of Counterterrorism and Emergency Planning.

Block announces trade plan

WASHINGTON — Agriculture Secretary John Block, fighting to restore lost foreign markets for U.S. farm products, Wednesday announced a $2 billion effort to subsidize farm exports with government-owned commodities.

It is aimed partially at competing for foreign markets against the European Economic Community, which subsidizes its exports. Block and budget director David Stockman negotiated the program last week to win votes of farm state senators for the overall deficit-reducing budget package.

U.S., Israel deny allegations

WASHINGTON — The State Department denied Wednesday the United States has asked to inspect Israel's nuclear facilities to check whether U.S.-made timing devices were used for atomic bomb triggers or sent to a third country.

Amid reports that the devices — called krytrons — may have been illegally shipped out of the United States, Israeli sources in Washington said the United States may ask that any unused devices be returned.

Prime drops to 10 percent

NEW YORK — Bankers Trust New York Corp. Wednesday reduced its prime lending rate to 10 percent from 10 and a half percent, the first move down in the key rate since January and the lowest in more than six years.

It was the first time since October, 1978, that the prime has been at 10 percent. During that time it rose to more than 20 percent two times.

Haug will show off CADSI's products

Material from the Computer Aided Design Software Inc. on the UI's Oakdale campus will be traveling with an area engineering expert to the Bayside Exposure Center in Boston June 3 to 5.

UI Mechanical Engineering Professor Edward Haug, a member of CADSI's board of directors, will attend the Eastern Design Engineering Show to discuss the computer software package the company is offering for the analysis of machinery and other mechanical systems.

Haug will join exhibitors from 28 states and three Canadian provinces to demonstrate the design of materials and components used in making finished products.

Also to be exhibited will be such things as an electronic toothbrush that brushes up-and-down and side-to-side, an electric bandage that speeds the healing of wounds, and an exercise machine with a memory to measure and control workouts.

Brush your tongue!

If you brush your teeth, but not your tongue, your mouth might not be getting as clean as it could be, says a UI dentistry professor.

Brushing and flossing your teeth are only part of good oral hygiene, says Howard Field, a professor in the UI College of Dentistry. Good oral hygiene involves cleaning your entire mouth — including your tongue.

The tongue's rough and porous surface can harbor plaque-causing bacteria, Field notes. Plaque is a bacterial film caused when food particles collect on teeth, promoting tooth decay. One pass of an unbrushed tongue over freshly brushed teeth can replace the bacteria just removed by brushing and flossing, he says.

One possible solution to this problem is the use of a soft-bristled toothbrush in good condition. Brushing your tongue can remove bacteria, Field says.

Another possible solution is the use of a tongue scraper. Tongue scrapers are handheld devices, usually with serrated edges, designed to remove bacteria from the tongue.

While a tongue scraper might be useful to remove bacteria, a soft-bristled toothbrush in good condition is all you really need, Field says.

There is no scientific research to show that tongue scrapers clean your tongue better than a toothbrush, he says.

Tongue brushing should be done in the same gentle, thorough manner you use when brushing your teeth. Cleaning your tongue only takes a few extra seconds, and can help reduce bad breath, plaque build-up and tooth decay, Field says.

Chemists have been trying for years to synthesize molecules in the shape of knots, he said.

Simon get $800,00 grant

Jonathon Simon, UI professor of mathematics, has been granted $800,000 to conduct a three-year study of the phenomenon of topological stereoisomerism.

The study, funded by the U.S. Office of Naval Research, is part of a $1.5 million cooperative research project between the UI and the University of Colorado.

Mathematicians and chemists will join forces in an attempt to use mathematics to better describe and, in some cases, to create chemicals with heretofore unknown properties.

The phenomenon of two molecules that are internally the same, yet shaped so differently in space that one cannot be moved around so that it looks exactly like the other, is called by chemists "stereoisomerism." The distinction between a right-handed and a left-handed screw is an example of topological stereoisomerism, Simon said.

Simon said that one of the more interesting applications of topology to chemistry has occurred over the last 25 years, since the first catenanes were synthesized. A catenane, he explained, is a molecule made up of linked rings of atoms which can be linked in any number of mathematically interesting ways, all of them producing molecules with properties different from one another.

Simon, despite the fact that he is trying to assist in the creation of new chemicals having novel properties, asserts that he is not a chemist. He points out that he is a mathematician who is working with chemists in the hope that members of the two disciplines will learn to talk to one another.

Chemists have been trying for years to synthesize molecules in the shape of knots, he said.

Referrals keep UI tech center in contact with corporate world

By Amy Boone
Staff Writer

Although the Technology Innovation Center is a UI program, TIC Director Bruce Wheaton asserts the center's services reach far beyond university borders.

TIC's referral network service maintains a computer listing of the research capabilities of UI faculty members. Wheaton uses the list to introduce innovators to UI professors who volunteer their expertise.

"The main way people in the business world contact researchers at the university is through personal or professional contacts," Wheaton said. "What we do at the center is fill in when people don't already have established contacts at the UI."

He said although the referral network is not a "substitute" for personal contacts, it is a good way for people in business to initiate working relationships with the UI.

Wheaton also emphasized the importance of quality research at the UI and its link to the TIC referral network.

"Obviously, the Innovation Center is of precious little use without sustained top-notch research at the university," he said.

Wheaton continued, "It's important that companies in the area, state and nation know what's going on with the university as far as research goes. The UI is a leader in many fields of academia and scientific research. People on the outside are more than casually interested in what happens here."

This is the last article in a three-part series concerning the UI Technology Innovation Center.

THE FREE REFERRAL network is only one of the services offered by TIC. Other services include access to equipment and computing facilities, issuance of seed grants, shared office help and business advice from both the Capital Advisory Committee and the UI Small Business Development Center.

The referral service is an important part of TIC, but we rarely get more than three or so calls a week about it. We don't just sit at a hot line and answer phone after phone after phone concerning the service," Wheaton said.

He added, "Although calls aren't coming in every day concerning the referral network, we still have to keep up-to-date on research going on at the UI. We have to know what's happening so we can answer whatever question might come in next."

Salary hikes disappoint

By Charlene Lee
Staff Writer

The presidents of the two councils representing UI faculty and professional and scientific employees are expressing disappointment with recently appropriated salary increases.

The state budget has appropriated a 2 percent salary increase this July for the two classifications of employees and a 5.5 percent raise in July 1986.

According to UI Associate Vice President for Finance Mary Jo Small, the 2 percent raise would cost the state $2,250,000 but the Iowa Legislature appropriated only $1,850,000 to cover the increase. The difference, Small said, will have to come from other university resources.

SMALL SAID, "the indication we are getting" in her office predicts most other Big Ten universities will be giving their faculty and staff substantially higher salary increases by percentage than the UI. This, according to newly-elected UI Faculty Council President Richard Sjolund, will set the UI back in salary rankings, and it already rates in the bottom half of the Big Ten.

UI Staff Council President Pat Piper echoed Sjolund's dissatisfaction with the raises. "It's extremely low and it's not anywhere near the cost-of-living raise," she said.

Piper said she is disappointed, but understands the state's economic predicament. She added she is "heartened" by next year's expected 5.5 percent salary increase — a possible indication of more substantial raises at the end of the biennium.

BUT CURRENTLY, the increases are "totally inadequate to meet the needs of the faculty," Sjolund said, noting that faculty members are already suffering from a diminishing standard of living due to inadequate raises. This, he said, is "decimating faculty morale for everyone."

Sjolund said the actual spending powers of some professors have declined when compared to their starting salaries, because they have failed to keep up with the inflation rate every year.

Because of the failure to maintain standards of living with the salary increases of recent years, the UI has been finding it more difficult to retain the best faculty members, as well as attract the best new ones, Sjolund said.

But Sjolund added the current salary situation could have been alleviated if the state had granted higher employee raises when it could have afforded it during better economic conditions. "For very many years, the state has been doing well and the faculty hasn't."

UI Associate Vice President for Academic Affairs Kenneth Moll said it is obvious that lagging salary increases have affected faculty resignations. No methods, however, exist to measure or predict their effect, he said.

Merchants wary of bad checks

By Jerry Duncan
Staff Writer

So UI students will leave more than memories behind when they depart from Iowa City Friday.

Many local businesses have already been duped by worthless checks from UI students who continue to draw on empty bank accounts before leaving town, forcing several firms to refuse all but local checks until UI students leave.

The six Iowa City QuikTrip convenience stores will refuse checks written by UI students until May 19 as part of a policy that began May 9, said Mike Meroney, vice president of the Des Moines-based QuikTrip corporation.

Last year, local QuikTrips were "just flooded with worthless checks" to the tune of "thousands of dollars" in uncollectable revenue in Iowa City alone, Meroney said.

To avoid the recurrence of "extraordinary losses in bad checks," QuikTrip has imposed "a policy for the last three weeks of school that we would not accept checks from students," he said.

"It's a sad situation when reputable, forthright students suffer as a result of such a policy," Meroney said, but added, "If we're not able to impose reasonable controls over our check-cashing policy, the next step is to eliminate checks entirely."

"If we're not able to impose reasonable controls over our check-cashing policy, the next step is to eliminate checks entirely," says Mike Meroney, vice president of the QuikTrip corporation.

THE HOLIDAY INN, 210 S. Dubuque, is currently refusing some checks as a result of a reportedly large loss of revenue from bounced checks. An employee of Chauncey's Bar in the hotel said she was informed in a memo that as of March 19 the hotel had accumulated $1,141 in "uncollectable checks." The employee said the decision to refuse checks was made because the number of bad ones "just kept mounting."

Bob Bray, manager of the hotel, declined to comment.

Other businesses have also been forced to implement restrictive check policies.

Sharon Larson, manager of People's Drug, 121 E. Washington St., said the store's checks policy is "a little more strict" than usual during the end of the semester, and the store is requiring three forms of identification before accepting personal checks.

Larson said, however, the incidence of "bounced" checks at People's Drug is "no more than normal" this year, adding it "always picks up at the end of the school year but it's not astronomical."

Vito's, 118 E. College St., does not accept checks for the last two weeks of classes "to avoid bad checks," said Aziz Longou, assistant manager of the restaurant and bar.

LONGOU SAID the policy is the result of those UI students who are leaving for the summer or graduating closing their bank accounts, then passing bad checks that may be uncollectable.

"Maybe they (the students) never come back again," Longou said.

Although local banks reported many students are closing their accounts, bank officials said this semester's crop of "rubber" checks is not exceptional.

"I don't see an unusual rash of bad checks," said Les Baumbach, assistant vice president of Hawkeye State Bank, but he added it won't be until June or July that the bank will know how many checks will be uncollectable.

Because many students open short-term accounts, however, Hawkeye State Bank seldom covers student checks written from accounts with insufficient funds. The bank is more inclined to pay overdrafts for local, established clients, Baumbach said.

First National Bank Senior Vice President Jim Sangster said because of precautions taken by that bank — such as "memo posting" an account when it dwindles to less than $50 — the bank is rarely hurt by bounced checks.

"A store that takes a check doesn't have that ability," Sangster said.

As a result of this annual trend, one bank official said, "This whole town is pretty wary and leery of" end-of-the-year student checks.

UNIVERSITY OMBUDSPERSON

Nominations and applications are invited for this important new position. The Search Committee for the University Ombudsman is seeking nominations from members of the University community for an outstanding individual to serve as University Ombudsman. This individual will serve as a resource for all those in the University community who require information or help in resolving a problem. This person shall serve an informational and a conciliatory role, and shall be impartial toward all groups that make up the University. It is essential that the individual be widely viewed as informed, helpful, and fair in his/her efforts to resolve problems. The Ombudsman should not be a current member of the administration or of the faculty or staff leadership, and should serve as an arbitrator rather than as a judge or final authority. While experience as a faculty member would be of very significant value to the University Ombudsman, the possibility that an experienced member of the staff could serve in such a capacity is not foreclosed.

The Ombudsman should be knowledgeable about the University of Iowa and have an outstanding reputation. More specifically, this individual should be:

- (a) A senior or emeritus faculty or staff member at the University of Iowa who has been active in University affairs;
- (b) Knowledgeable about the administrative structure, procedures, rules and regulations at the University of Iowa;
- (c) Widely respected as a good listener, a rational, fair-minded person and a problem-solver.

The Ombudsman will serve at least half-time for a nonrenewable term of four years. It is hoped that the individual selected will be able to take office during the 1985-1986 academic year.

Letters of nomination or application should include the candidate's name and department, and briefly outline the candidate's qualifications. Direct such letters to:

Businesses keep sophisticated eye on shoplifters

By Carol McAlpine
Special to The Daily Iowan

When the National Coalition to Prevent Shoplifting announced in 1981 the cost of shoplifting to businessmen had risen to $24 billion annually, Iowa City retailers listened.

Improved security methods, willingness to prosecute shoplifters and advanced research on shoplifting are paying off for the city's merchants. Iowa City Police Department statistics indicate complaints of larceny, which includes shoplifting and related crimes, have decreased 12.4 percent since 1982.

The loss prevention supervisor at Younkers in Iowa City said the decrease is due in part to "an emphasis on prevention rather than apprehension."

The supervisor, who asked not to be named, said 75 percent of the store's merchandise is protected by a sensormatic tagging system. The sensor is a white, plastic tag which is attached to the seam or label of an article of clothing. Alarms at every door are triggered by items which are still tagged.

DAVID RODMAN, manager of the JC Penney store in the Old Capitol Center, said the most effective method of preventing theft in his store is "customer awareness by the selling associate." Penneys also employs two-way mirrors to observe customers' activities.

Rodman said the majority of the shoplifting in his store takes place in the dressing rooms. His goal is to achieve "better fitting room control" by keeping track of the items going in and out of these areas.

Mark Copeland, shift manager of the Coralville Hy-Vee, said his store uses two-way mirrors and closed circuit TV cameras to prevent shoplifting.

Copeland said Hy-Vee emphasizes security because the store does not pass on the cost of shoplifting to its customers. "We lose the whole thing ourselves," he said.

Tim Montgomery, loss prevention manager at the Coralville K-Mart, said his store relies heavily on having enough employees on the selling floor to properly observe customer activity.

MONTGOMERY SAID K-Mart's most common areas affected by shoplifting are the sporting goods and automotive departments. Items in these two areas are small enough to conceal and cost more than similar sized merchandise, such as cosmetics, he said.

Montgomery noted K-Mart has seen a decrease in shoplifting in recent years.

K-Mart's policy is not to apprehend shoplifters until they've had "the last opportunity to pay." This means shoplifters aren't stopped until they're outside the door, he said.

Jeff Barr, the assistant manager at Osco in the Old Capitol Mall, was reluctant to discuss the methods his store uses to detect shoplifters. "If we do speak about this, it gives the shoplifter a better advantage," he said.

Barr said that being located in a university town affects the rate of shoplifting because of increased traffic and the use of backpacks to conceal merchandise.

Detective Sgt. Craig Lih of the Iowa City Police Department said a majority of those arrested for shoplifting are junior high, high school or university students. The most common type of merchandise stolen is "nickel and dime stuff," he said.

Lih said that shoplifting is defined as a misdemeanor and the probable punishment for a first offender would be a fine, which is normally five times the amount of the stolen merchandise plus court costs.

Shoplifters Anonymous, a non-profit organization, offers counseling for shoplifters. It services court systems around the country and provides a home study program for individuals who realize they have a shoplifting problem, said the program's Director Larry Conner Jr.

"Our goal is to convert shoplifters into honest consumers," Conner said.

Shoplifters Anonymous advises preventative measures such as sewing pockets shut and carrying see-through shopping bags to reduce the temptation to steal. It also advises shoplifters to "bite the bullet," or return stolen merchandise to the store anonymously.

Research done in 1982 by University of Northern Iowa faculty member Dr. Jim Burrow showed that 29.6 percent of the retailers in Iowa prosecuted less than 4 percent of the shoplifters they apprehended.

Locally, however, Younkers, JC Penney, Hy-Vee and Osco prosecute all offenders regardless of the amount of merchandise taken and the age of the offender.

Bill curbs freedom of information

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Senate Judiciary subcommittee Wednesday approved legislation to curb the Freedom of Information Act by limiting access to certain law enforcement, business and personal files.

The panel approved the bill, identical to one the Senate adopted last year, on a 4-1 vote.

Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., a former journalist, was the only member of the subcommittee on the Constitution to object to the proposed change of the 1966 law designed to give the press and public access to all but the most sensitive government files.

Several media groups, including the American Society of Newspaper Editors, the American Newspaper Publishers Association, Radio and Television News Directors Association and the Society of Professional Journalists object to the bill in its current form.

THE BILL would broaden the list of law enforcement records that are exempt from Freedom of Information Act requests and permits the attorney general, at his or her discretion, to seal the files of organized crime investigations for up to eight years.

It also adds new exemptions to protect business trade secrets and sensitive technical data and institutes additional fees that members of the public can be charged for the research and duplication of requested information.

Richard Schmidt, an attorney representing the American Society of Newspaper Editors, said the bill is an improvement over the administration's original proposal, but there are still problems, including such broad language in the law enforcement provision that "they could keep almost anything" secret.

ALTHOUGH THE MEDIA is exempt from the fees charged for researching and duplicating the requested information, Schmidt said it is not right to the public to allow "only those who can afford it" to take advantage of the act.

Subcommittee chairman Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, promised there would be further hearings on the issue before the full Judiciary Committee acts on the bill.

"We're willing to work with them," Schmidt told United Press International.

In a separate action, the subcommittee voted 4-1 for an anti-busing bill that would forbid "inferior" federal courts — those below the U.S. Supreme Court — from ordering mandatory school busing as a remedy in federal litigation. However, state courts and the Supreme Court would retain that power.

Contracts

tracting officer the true value of the equipment to be $128,000," Rockwell said. "The equipment was acquired in a settlement of litigation which set a nominal value of $10, a fact which was misinterpreted by the auditors."

Other problem billings cited by the auditors included:

- Contracting officers allowed $800,000 of $1.3 million in cafeteria and barber shop losses submitted by Newport News, General Dynamics, Rockwell and Textron.

- Rockwell charged $12,333 for two season tickets to the Los Angeles Forum sports arena.

- General Dynamics billed $1 million for air shows and promotions and $11,736 for entertainment and business conferences.

- McDonnell Douglas billed $62,000 in public relations work after a company plane crashed; $480 for University of Nebraska football tickets; and $1,170 for Washington Redskins season tickets.

- Boeing billed $1,328 for lodging, meals and travel for a senior executive to watch the signing of the Camp David Egyptian-Israeli peace accords.

Arguing for legislation before the panel to tighten controls, Cofer said current system for settling costs takes an average of five years.

"It is clearly impossible for the government's auditors to review each item in the company submission," Cofer said. "There are no penalties and even if the item is disallowed, it costs the company nothing."

Kidnap

Moslem west Beirut and the Christian eastern section of the capital.

An army spokesman said at least two soldiers, a Moslem and a Christian, were killed during the clashes and official Beirut radio reported that sniper fire and shelling in east Beirut killed three civilians.

The radio also said 11 people were injured on both sides of the Green Line by bullets and shrapnel. The latest bloodshed brought the total casualty toll in 18 days of violence to 95 dead and 483 wounded, police sources said.

With no end in sight to the conflict, pressure appeared to be building for direct Syrian military intervention.

Two former Christian Maronite presidents, Camille Chamoun and Suleiman Franjeh, appealed the day before for a more active Syrian role.

In Damascus, efforts to end the fighting included talks between Lebanese Moslem militia leaders and Syrian Vice President Abdel Halim Khaddam, the architect of Syria's Lebanon policy.

President Amin Gemayel's chief adviser, Michel Samaha, also was in Damascus and was expected to hold talks with two Moslem opposition leaders on the political and military deadlock.

National acts bring blues to area

By Tom Hogg
Arts Entertainment Editor

THOSE FOLKS who are just finishing up with finals and are looking for someplace to drink and dance off the semester before heading into the summer will have a couple of good opportunities tonight and Friday as two national acts bring their blues stylings into Iowa City.

Tonight it will be the Dynatones at the Copper Dollar. The Dynatones are a San Francisco-based sextet whose debut album, Tough to Shake, appeared on Rounder Records earlier this year.

Night life

The record has invited comparisons with another San Francisco act, Huey Lewis and the News, but the group's live show is apparently much more oriented towards party-time soul music and R & B. The band is known for practically living on the road and has built up big followings, especially in Utah and Nebraska.

The Dynatones were formed five years ago by Toledo, Ohio, native "Big Walter" Salwitz, who has been playing his "drums of thunder" for 25 years behind such artists as Big Joe Turner, Lightnin' Slim and Mary Wells. Rico Tee, founder of the respected reissue label, Solid Smoke, signed up as manager, and he and Salwitz have since headed up a rotating series of Dynatone personnel. The current line-up includes lead vocalist Chip "C.C." Miller, a Miami native; San Diego bassist "Rockin' Randy" McDonald; keyboardist and songwriter "Jersey" James Page; Casper, Wyo., guitarist Larry Dunn; and Detroit saxophonist Tony Perez-Banuet.

ON FRIDAY NIGHT, New Orleans

blues singer Spencer Bohren will host a "crawfish fiesta" at Gabe's Oasis.

Before hitting the road, Bohren opened shows in New Orleans for folks like Professor Longhair, Gatemouth Brown and zydeco master Clifton Chenier, and sat in on gigs with Dr. John and the Neville Brothers. Dr. John was even featured on a few tracks on an album Bohren recently completed, as was blues guitarist John Mooney. Bohren's music incorporates folk, Cajun and rock sounds to produce what he calls "new blues." Doors will open at 7 p.m. for Bohren's Friday performance, with the show starting at 8.

Springsteen reception held at club

LAKE OSWEGO, Ore. (UPI) — Rock star Bruce Springsteen and his bride dined and danced into the wee hours at a private wedding reception Wednesday before beginning their honeymoon at an undisclosed location, family members said.

About 80 guests partied with Springsteen, 35, and actress-model Julianne Phillips Springsteen, 25, after the newlyweds showed up at Oswego Lake Country Club at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday, said Marlene Najdek, a secretary at the club.

A band played "low-key rock" during the cocktail dinner party, which lasted until 1 a.m., Najdek said.

"Everyone appeared to be enjoying themselves immensely," she added.

Lake Oswego police, hired for the occasion, patrolled outside the club, keeping onlookers and potential party-crashers out of sight.

"Everything went quite well," said Police Chief Thomas Webster. He said Springsteen's management firm would be billed for the extra security and that the amount was being tallied.

"It was excellent security, very professionally done," Najdek said.

Ann Phillips, Springsteen's new mother-in-law, said the couple was now on their honeymoon in Oregon and would be heading to California in the next few days. She said a larger wedding reception was planned "down the line."

SPRINGSTEEN, 35, and his bride had a brief Catholic wedding, with no mass, before 50 guests early Monday at Our Lady of the Lake Catholic Church in Lake Oswego, an affluent suburb south of Portland.

They sneaked into the church, giving the slip to an army of reporters camped out at the Phillips home. Even more surprising to the reporters and fans who descended on the community when word of the wedding leaked out last week were revelations that Springsteen had been staying at the Phillips home since last Thursday.

He joined family members on secret forays to the nearby Firestone Inn tavern and a rowing excursion on the lake.

"We ... played pool for two hours with all my brothers, my dad and Bruce," David Phillips, one of the bride's four brothers, said. "Playing all his music on the jukebox and we were all singing and playing pool, and no one knew it was him."

Novotny's seeks RAGBRAI design theme

Novotny's Cycle Center is announcing a promotions contest in connection with the Des Moines Register's 13th Annual Great Bike Ride Across Iowa, in which the local bike shop is offering a $250 Schwinn Traveller Bicycle to the person who submits the best design theme for RAGBRAI.

Marty Novotny, owner of the Cycle Center, said that the contest is open to the general public. Persons wishing to submit a design idea should stop at the Cycle Center at 224 South Clinton, in Iowa City, to pick up the guidelines for the contest.

The winning design will be used on t-shirts and other items connected with RAGBRAI XIII, and will include the artist's signature. Entries must be in by June 15th.

Nelson, Keenan — Coaches of the year

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Don Nelson of the Milwaukee Bucks and Mike Keenan of the Philadelphia Flyers Wednesday were named coaches of the year in their respective leagues by The Sporting News.

Nelson, NBA coach of the year, also was named co-winner of executive of the year honors along with Vince Boryla, president of the Denver Nuggets. In a ballot of their peers, the sporting weekly said Nelson and Boryla each received seven votes.

Nelson, who serves as director of player personnel for the Bucks as well as head coach, saw his team win 10 straight home games at the season's outset.

Although supposedly in a rebuilding stage, Milwaukee never dipped below .500 in capturing its sixth consecutive division title with a 59-23 record.

Keenan received NHL coaching honors, and John Ferguson, vice president and general manager of the Winnipeg Jets, was selected NHL executive of the year in a poll of NHL executives.

In his rookie year of coaching, Keenan guided the Flyers to a 53-20-7 regular season mark, the best record in the league. Philadelphia finished first in the Patrick Division.

Ferguson's shrewd drafting was cited as the key for the Jets' 43-27-10 record and their emergence as one of the league's top teams.

Bulls may acquire Hoyas' Thompson

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Bulls have talked to Georgetown University basketball coach John Thompson about taking over the Bulls' coaching job, the Chicago Sun-Times reported Wednesday.

Thompson has said he has been contacted by three NBA teams, and reports say they are Chicago, Seattle and one other team.

According to the Sun-Times story, Bulls' new owner Jerry Reinsdorf "refused to deny rumors that the Bulls have contacted John Thompson about the team's head coaching job which is now tenuously held by Kevin Loughery."

"I'm not going to have anything to say about the coaching situation until we make a decision," Reinsdorf said. "I imagine there will be all kinds of speculation. But we'll make a decision when we make a decision."

Krause admitted he has talked to Thompson but not necessarily about the coaching job.

"Have I talked to John Thompson?" Krause said. "Yes, I talked to him about Billy Martin. John Thompson is an old friend of mine."

Cubs' Dunston demoted to farm team

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Chicago Cubs announced rookie shortstop Shawon Dunston has been sent to their Triple-A Iowa farm club.

Cubs manager Jim Frey said after the Cubs' 8-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday night the erratic hitting and fielding shortstop was farmed out and outfielder Brian Dayett was recalled.

Dunston, who did not play in the victory over Fernando Valenzuela, said before the game: "I don't want to go. I can't benefit by going to the minor leagues."

"I can't benefit from sitting on the bench. I'm not hitting. Nobody on the team is hitting. I've seen so many breaking balls."

Frey said he would like to see the 22-year-old make it in the big leagues but he has been pressing too hard to perform well now.

"He is not relaxed," Frey said. "Every at-bat seems like an ordeal for him. Dallas (Cubs general manager Dallas Green) and I talked about Dunston Monday afternoon, Monday night, Tuesday afternoon ... we've been talking about him for quite a while."

Dunston was batting .194 and had committed nine errors. The Cubs entered Tuesday night's game with a team batting average of only .222.

Bleier says steroids made him a success

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Rocky Bleier, the wounded Vietnam War hero who built himself into a sturdy star running back with the Pittsburgh Steelers, says he did so with the help of small doses of legally prescribed steroids.

Bleier, describing himself as naturally too short, too slight and too slow to succeed in the NFL, said he took the steroids only in pill form over a six-year period of time. He said he did not inject the drugs the way many players do today.

"The only thing I had going for me was I was strong and in shape," Bleier said Tuesday night before attending a reunion of Steelers' Super Bowl teams. "Specifically, I couldn't be taller or faster."

Bleier said he began taking the prescribed pills to build up body tissue and muscle in 1973 or 1974 for a six-week period that ended just before training camp, then got off them until the next year, when he resumed the process. He said he did that for six years, taking only Dianabol in pill form.

"I did not abuse it," he said. "I got the ability I wanted for a short period and got off it."

When asked why he had not disclosed that he had taken steroids prior to Tuesday night, Bleier said he didn't think it was worth mentioning.

Black Hawks need home ice win

CHICAGO (UPI) — Home is where the victories are in the Chicago-Edmonton Stanley Cup semifinal series and that is not good news for the Black Hawks.

Edmonton took a 3-2 lead in games in the best-of-seven series Tuesday night with a 10-5 victory over the Black Hawks.

All five games in the series have been won by the home team, and since the Oilers have the home-ice advantage that has to change if the Black Hawks want to be in the Stanley Cup finals. Chicago is 1-3-1 in Edmonton since the Oilers joined the NHL.

"We just have to find a way to steal a game in Edmonton," said Chicago rookie Ed Olczyk.

"HOCKEY IS THE only game where home ice is such an advantage," Chicago Coach Bob Pulford said. "Thursday is our stab at it."

The series returns to the smaller ice of the Chicago Stadium Thursday for the sixth game and it was there that Chicago got back into the series last week by winning twice. The sold-out Stadium crowd begins making a lot of noise during the national anthems and don't stop as long as Chicago is in the game.

"I think the crowd in Chicago interferes with everybody's communication," Edmonton Coach Glen Sather said. "Maybe we'll start the game with earplugs for the players."

The smaller ice hurts the Oiler game because they thrive on wide-open spaces to take advantage of their superior passing game. On Tuesday, the Oilers took advantage of the penalty situations in the second and third periods to shoot ahead after trailing in the first period.

"We didn't want to play them four-on-four and three-on-three," Chicago captain Darryl Sutter said. "There's too much ice, and we can't key on (Wayne) Gretzky and (Jari) Kurri."

Kurri had a great game, with three goals and two assists after getting shut down in the two Chicago games.

Edmonton decided to get tough with the Black Hawks Tuesday and paid the price. All five Black Hawk goals Tuesday came on power plays. But the Oilers also doubled the Chicago shot output, 51-23.

The Black Hawks had defensemen Doug Wilson and Keith Brown back from injuries, although Wilson looked slowed by the groin pull he suffered. Still, he got two assists.

Edmonton defenseman Paul Coffey also played despite an ankle injury. He did more than just play, getting a goal and five assists to break his own record for most points scored by a defenseman in a playoff game. Coffey's point total for the playoffs is 25, tying several records for a defenseman.

New station to provide up to minute sports

NEW YORK (UPI) — United Press International and American Sports Advisors, Inc., announced Wednesday the formation of Telesports Communications Corp., designed to provide home subscribers with up to the minute information on sports events 16 hours a day.

UPI and ASA announced jointly that the new service will include pre-game data, progressive developments and post-game stories and statistical information on professional baseball, basketball, hockey, horse racing, boxing and football.

It will also carry college football and basketball results within moments after the end of games.

Ed Horowitz, president and founder of ASA, said the joint venture is 75 percent owned by ASA and 25 percent by UPI.

HOROWITZ SAID THE information will be assimilated at ASA's headquarters in Garden City, N.Y., and then transmitted by telephone line to a transmitter in Bren Mar., Va. From there it will be bounced off a satellite to an FM radio earth station in various cities from which it would go via FM radio wave to the subscribers' outlets.

Horowitz said he was approached by a representative of Douglas Ruhe, one of two principal owners of UPI, a year ago and that the deal was closed with Luis Nogales, chairman of UPI, on April 26.

He said subscribers can turn on the service at 10 a.m., and receive information until shortly after the last game of the night and that he expected the joint venture "to gross well in excess of $5-million within the next two years."

Gardner stuck with bullpen

United Press International

Minnesota manager Billy Gardner Tuesday night saw a bullpen fail for the fourth time in the last five games and he figures he's stuck with what he's got.

"There's nothing down in the minors," he said after watching Curt Wardie surrender a grand slam to Ken Griffey in the seventh inning of a 10-7 loss to the Yankees. "There's nothing around, really. Everybody keeps the good guys. You can get the same kind of people we got — but who wants them?"

The Twins, who boast a major-league leading .299 team average, are tearing up American League pitchers and Minnesota's starting pitching is among the best in the league. But sooner or later Gardner has to go to his bullpen and that's when the fun starts for the other team.

The New York Yankees lately have been living up to their nickname of "Bronx Bombers." In their last nine games, they have hit 13 homers after belting only seven in their first 20 games.

THE TWINS COLLECTED 11 hits Tuesday to reach double figures for the 14th time in the last 15

Chicago outfielder Harold Baines is in the midst of an All-Star season. After hitting .304 in 1984, Baines was batting .330 through 28 games. He's tied for second with Minnesota's Tom Brunansky for the batting lead behind Detroit's Lou Whitaker. Baines has hit safely in 23 games, has 11 multiple-hit games and has committed only one error in right field while playing every inning of every game.

The wind was swirling so hard in Tuesday night's game in Toronto that it posed an unusual problem for Blue Jays manager Bobby Cox.

"When I went out to the mound to talk to Doyle (Alexander) I was rocking back and forth," Cox said.

Metro Conference cage programs still under fire

Memphis State faces attack from NAACP

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Memphis State's basketball program, already under fire for possible links to a federal gambling investigation, drew a new attack Wednesday for alleged exploitation of black athletes.

The Memphis branch of the NAACP charged Coach Dana Kirk ignores his players' problems and said its own investigation showed Memphis State fails to give enough academic help to black athletes.

"We fail to see how a head coach with such disregard and lack of concern for his players should be continued to that position," the NAACP wrote university president Thomas Carpenter.

Maxine Smith, executive secretary of the NAACP, suggested Kirk should be fired.

"IF HE DOES not have time to answer their questions, to deal with them in any way ... then we need a new coach," Smith said.

"According to our investigation, there is very little rapport between the athletes, who happen to be predominantly black, and the head coach. They feel isolated, they feel that they don't have anybody really to communicate with."

Kirk defended his program.

"We haven't had any problems with anybody. Everybody (athlete) that's started has finished," Kirk said.

"We've had one transfer in the last four years, and that's a tribute to our program."

"I feel very good about that (NAACP investigation). They are for our university. They are for our basketball team."

The Commercial Appeal reported Wednesday that only four players who have entered the basketball program on a scholarship since 1973 have graduated.

MEMPHIS STATE HAS battled negative publicity in recent weeks surrounding a grand jury investigation that reportedly is focusing on the team's losses to Detroit last season and to Villanova in the NCAA Final Four.

The grand jury also is reportedly investigating big-time gambling at Colonial Country Club. Several of the grand jury witnesses have been financial boosters of the school and some belonged to the country club.

One country club member, N.S. Garrett, a farmer from Proctor, Ark., shouted at a television cameraman Tuesday and shattered his light with a cane as he entered the grand jury room to testify.

The NAACP said it started its investigation in response to publicity about the school's basketball program.

The NAACP urged the school to make more effort to provide tutoring, make-up classes, summer and post-graduate jobs for athletes.

"I appreciate the fact somebody wants to tell us about our basketball program," Memphis State Athletic Director Charles Cavagnaro said. "The worst thing is when people don't care enough to talk. But I'm not saying the feedback is true."

Similar motions were filed on behalf of defendant Gary Kranz.

Motions filed on behalf of Tulane cagers

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Lawyers for defendants in the Tulane basketball point-shaving scandal filed a flurry of pre-trial motions Wednesday, seeking to have the indictments thrown out because an unauthorized person was present in the grand jury room.

The motions, filed on behalf of players John "Hot Rod" Williams and David Dominique, claimed Edward "Ned" Kohnke should not have been in the grand jury room as it considered the Tulane case.

Kohnke is a private attorney who works part time for the Orleans Parish district attorney's office. He broke the scandal by informing District Attorney Harry Connick of the alleged point-shaving.

Three players and five others have been indicted on charges of trading cash and cocaine for changing the outcome of two Tulane basketball games this season.

The battery of legal documents, filed to meet the trial judge's deadline, sought information on evidence and testimony gathered by Connick and his assistants. A court clerk said the deadline could be extended if defendants showed reasons it needed to be.

IN ADDITION TO attacking the indictment, Williams' lawyer sought to have Judge Alvin Oser block any effort by prosecutors to use oral or videotaped statements made by his client in the wake of his much-publicized arrest.

The papers asked for everything from transcripts and videotapes of interviews to an opportunity to have one prospective witness — player Jon Johnson — examined by a physician.

MOST OF THE documents sought information to help defense lawyers prepare their cases.

The papers asked for everything from transcripts and videotapes of interviews to an opportunity to have one prospective witness — player Jon Johnson — examined by a physician.

"Such grand jury testimony and statements made to law enforcement officials should be shown to the defense in order to avoid unwarranted prejudice that will result from the surprise testimony of these witnesses," one motion of behalf of Williams said.

The players, three students and two suspected bookmakers were indicted on charges they shaved points in two Metro Conference games. One player, Bobby Thompson, has already pleaded guilty.

Three players were charged with accepting cocaine and cash to shave points in Metro Conference games against Memphis State and Southern Mississippi in February. Five other men, including three students, were charged with sports bribery and narcotics violations.

One player, guard Bobby Thompson, and one student, have pleaded guilty. While the others have entered innocent pleas including players David Dominique and NBA prospect Williams.

Tulane Coach Ned Fowler and two of his assistants resigned after admitting to paying the players for point shaving. School officials said the coaches were not involved in the point shaving scheme.

Sports dreams can come true with audio tape

Remember that "hail mary" pass from Doug Flutie to Gerard Phelan. Gary Graminski does.

Remember the sportscaster called the famed play that enabled Boston College to defeat Miami in 1984's most exciting college football game; "Doug Flutie is coming to the sideline. It looks like he's favoring his right knee. Flutie has to come out of the game and it looks like it will be No. 18 Gary Graminski ... Graminski, 5-feet-7, 180 pound walk-on from Concord, Mass. This is his first appearance of the season, what a great place to have to start a career. Graminski breaks the huddle and comes up to the line, takes the snap, rolls right, under pressure ...

SINCE 1984, Richard Stark, a 30-year-old marketing manager from Silver Spring, Maryland and David Landau, a 30-year-old attorney from Rockville, Maryland, have been altering the course of history for many fans via an audio re-creation of a sports fantasy.

As they say, "C'mon haven't you imagined yourself cutting John McEnroe down to size on the tennis court; or maybe you'd like to give Larry Holmes a boxing lesson; or take 'Goose' Gossage deep." You could even be the missing link that would pull the Cubs from San Diego and move on to the "Fall Classic."

Hall of Fame Tapes, which has produced over 500 dream tapes already, can create a 12 to 15 minute sportscast for one, two, three or more than three people. The cost is expensive though, as a one-person event is

"C'mon, haven't you imagined yourself cutting John McEnroe down to size on the tennis court," tempts Hall of Fame tapes.

$64.95 and it increases with participants.

THE TAPES ARE of good quality though, as the buyer, who undoubtedly has a Walter Mitty Complex, gets scripting, recording by professional announcer, sound effects etc ...

Baseball, football, tennis, basketball, hockey, long-distance running, boxing, golf or even a fictional sports event can be created.

"We've created tapes for sports fans of all ages, men and women," Stark said. "For golfers with a 28 handicap to the armchair athlete who always imagine themselves in the action."

Another example: "It looks like nothing can stop Georgetown as it steamrolls its way to the 1985 National Championship. And now Villanova is going to make some changes. In for McLain and Jensen are Anthony Phillips and his father Mel Phillips also from Chicago. I don't understand Rollie Massimino's logic here," the announcer says. "Okay, let's see what they could do against Ewing and company" ...

One could only imagine.
