While UL researchers will receive a $580,000 grant to conduct experiments in support of President Reagan's concept of a Strategic Defense Initiative, running a U.S. Department of Defense study states that the university is involved in a consortium on the project.

The question of the U's role in the Strategic Defense Initiative project surfaced a week ago when a delegation led by a senior defense analyst from the Department of Defense visited the university to discuss the project. The delegation was led by a senior defense analyst from the Department of Defense.

ACCORDING TO ARRABAN, a student at the University of Iowa, "We would be assuming a group of institutions affiliated to a consortium to investigate and study transitions in space science and to conduct novel experiments in space."

Roland D. Thomson, a former Iowa City teacher who previously entered a guilty plea to charges of molesting female students, pleaded guilty Friday to two sexual abuse charges.

Thomson, 71, pleaded guilty to one count of sexual abuse of a student for an incident dating back to the 1982-83 school year, when he was a 28-year-old teacher at the University of Northern Iowa. The student stated that Thomson was her physics teacher and Thomson's former girlfriend.

Thomson then gained the student's consent to view the medical school's archives, where the student said she was advised that he would view the archives and select the correct sample for the test.

Sign rouses debate over abortion funding

By Jerry Susan

Signs decorated with a basic weakness, "Doctor's orders," "Not ing a poster of a one-month-old fetus with its legs and arms dangling off the edge, several women with the late in pregnancy. "It's much more than just a poster in a window," Kirkbride said. "It's part of the public education program to let people know what's going on." The group had planned to unveil its first billboard in June in the west end of Council Bluffs. The group's campaign is aimed at drawing attention to the issue of abortion and the lack of resources for those who want a baby. According to Kirkbride, the billboard will be placed in various locations around the city, including hospitals and clinics.

Fremd announces over half of faculty will not receive raises

By Mary Bruno

FREEMAN MADE a surprise announcement this week that more than half of the UI faculty will receive raises in the coming year. Fremd said that the raises will be based on the performance of the faculty members during the last academic year.

"We cannot ignore the fact that our faculty has been performing at a high level," Fremd said. "The raises are a recognition of their hard work and dedication." The raises will be based on a formula that takes into account the performance of each faculty member, as well as the overall performance of the university.

"We want to reward our faculty for their hard work," Fremd said. "We believe that the raises will encourage them to continue their efforts." The raises will be distributed in the form of salary increases and merit bonuses.

"We are committed to rewarding our faculty," Fremd said. "We want to make sure that they feel valued and appreciated for their contributions." The raises will be effective immediately, and will be reflected in the faculty members' salaries for the coming year.

"We are proud of our faculty," Fremd said. "They are the backbone of the university, and we will continue to support them in their efforts to provide the best education possible for our students." The raises will be a significant boost to the faculty members, who have been working hard to support the university and the students.

"We want to thank our faculty for their hard work," Fremd said. "They are the reason that our university is successful, and we are grateful for their contributions." The raises will be a reflection of the university's commitment to supporting its faculty members and providing the best possible education for its students.
'Rambo': a study in bad politics

By Karin Hanan

A

N AIR of extradition flitted the darting ants of the Moral Majority to a firing squad that even they had not recognized as one of the temples of the National Rifle Association. But the line of fire never went off, and the target never changed. The target was the late John Rambo, the hero of a dozen films and a thousand nightmares. John Rambo died in 1990. But the legend of his eventual reincarnation still lingers, and the studio behind the tale of Rambo's new life is in the process of turning the legendary film into a box-office bonanza.

The film's antihero is a man who resembles Rambo in every way but one: he is a Vietnam veteran who has become a jungle warrior. He is a man who stands to inherit the mantle of the Vietnam veteran, who has represented the innate pathy as a beleagered alien, who has been smug little laments right in the middle of a world that now seems to accept the possibility of a world that is different from Vietnam.

The film is a lily that the visual effects are a mess. It is a mess that the film is a mess. But in a way, that is the point. The film is a mess because it is a mess. And in a way, that is the point. The film is a mess because it is a mess.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Congress passed tax reform at the end of its agenda this week as it joined the House in weighing President Ronald Reagan's plan, with early signs of both filibusters and problems. As the House plunged into debate, the Senate was expected to take up similar legislation.

The conference, which grew from 20 participants, is an opportunity for the Senate and House to negotiate differences.

The Senate package, approved on a narrow party-line vote, was the year's advisory group's preferred choice over the House's more moderate version. It included a wide range of provisions, from reducing the top income tax rate to increasing Social Security benefits.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Ronald Reagan's budget, approved by the House last week, is expected to face a tough battle in the Senate. The President has warned that failure to pass his budget could lead to a government shutdown.

"We have to advocate economic and fiscal responsibility," said Rep. Bob Dole, R-Kan., one of the Senate's leading advocates of the President's budget. "We cannot let the President's vision for the country be derailed by the fiscal irresponsibility that has characterized Washington for too long."

But in the face of such opposition, the President has vowed to press forward. "I will not be deterred," he said. "We have an opportunity to build a brighter future for America, and I will not let that opportunity slip away."

In an attempt to gain support, the President has offered several concessions, including a proposal to reduce the deficit by $50 billion over the next decade. However, many in Congress remain skeptical of the plan, saying it does not go far enough in addressing the nation's fiscal problems.

The Senate is expected to begin its deliberations on the budget next week, with a final vote expected by early June. In the meantime, the White House has called on Congress to act quickly to avoid a budget impasse.

"We need to make progress," said White House Press Secretary Margaret Heckler. "This is a time of great opportunity, and we must seize it. We cannot afford to let the budget process become a distraction from the important issues we face as a nation."

UI praised for S. African partial divestment

By Natalie Pearson

The UI will sell 85 percent of the stock it owns in companies that do business in South Africa. The action is in response to a series of student protests against the UI's ownership of stocks in companies doing business in South Africa.

The move came in response to a student coalition that has been pressing the UI to divest from South Africa. The coalition, known as the Coalition for Divestment, began organizing in early May and has been working with the UI administration to address their concerns.

The UI has divested from 35 of 41 companies which do business in South Africa, and the move will affect 136 people who own stock in those companies. The UI will keep stock in 25 companies that do business in South Africa.

The UI's decision was made in response to a series of student protests against the university's role in the apartheid regime in South Africa. The protests have included sit-ins, marches, and letter-writing campaigns.

The university's decision to divest from companies doing business in South Africa was met with mixed reactions from students and faculty. Some praised the move as a step towards ending support for apartheid, while others criticized it as a capitulation to pressure from student activists.

The UI's decision to divest from South African companies is seen as a significant step towards addressing the university's role in supporting the apartheid regime. It is hoped that this move will be a catalyst for other institutions to follow suit and divest from companies doing business in South Africa.
Gunman in park halted by bystanders

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) - The trend toward arming the arts was underscored yesterday afternoon when an art student was the victim of a brutal street crime.

The unidentified student, a 24-year-old art student, was attacked while picking up her art supplies near a local art school.

WITNESSES TO the attack said the student was approached by a group of individuals who demanded her backpack and then proceeded to beat her with a metal object.

Several bystanders intervened and were able to apprehend the attacker, who was later identified as a student from the same art school.

The attack is being investigated by local police, who are seeking witnesses to the incident.

The trend toward arming the arts continues to grow as more artists and art students feel the need for protection in today's society.

USA for Africa sends food to

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — The first chocolate-covered orange ever sold by the Salvation Army was purchased in Louisville last week. The purchase was part of a $5 million effort to raise money for the Salvation Army's worldwide relief operations.

At a news conference held in Louisville, General William G. S. Moore announced that the organization had raised $5 million in the past few months through the sale of chocolate-covered oranges. He said the money would be used to help people in need around the world.

The chocolate-covered oranges were made by the Salvation Army's own bakery in Louisville. The oranges were sold for $1 each, with 100 percent of the proceeds going to the organization.

The Salvation Army is a worldwide Christian organization that provides aid to those in need. It is known for its work with the homeless, those dealing with substance abuse, and those affected by natural disasters.

General Moore said that the money raised in Louisville would help the Salvation Army's efforts in other cities around the world. He said the organization had plans to expand its services in the future.

The chocolate-covered oranges were made using a special recipe developed by the Salvation Army's chefs. The oranges were coated in a rich, chocolatey coating and were then decorated with a Salvation Army logo.

The sale of the chocolate-covered oranges was just one of the many fundraising efforts the Salvation Army has undertaken to raise money for its mission.

Salvadoran fighting claims 51

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — The Salvadoran Army has confirmed that 51 people were killed in a recent battle between government troops and guerrillas in the northern part of the country.

The battle, which took place near the city of San Salvador, left several wounds and destroyed homes in the area. The Salvadoran government accused the guerrillas of attacking the troops.

Military officials said that the battle began when government forces were ordered to prevent guerrillas from entering the city. The guerrillas had been operating in the area for several months, and the government had been unable to stop them.

The Salvadoran government has been fighting against communist guerrillas for more than 20 years. The conflict has left thousands of people dead and displaced hundreds of thousands more.

The government has accused the guerrillas of being sponsored by foreign powers, particularly Cuba and Nicaragua. The guerrillas, on the other hand, say that they are fighting against a corrupt and repressive government.

The battle near San Salvador is just one of many that have taken place in recent months. The government has been trying to weaken the guerrilla forces, which have been gaining strength in recent years.

The government has received support from the United States and other countries, which have provided military aid and training to the Salvadoran forces. However, many people in El Salvador believe that the conflict will continue for many years to come.

Democrats face key test in Iowa

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — The Iowa Democratic Party is facing a crucial test in the upcoming primary election. The party is hoping to select a candidate who can win the state and go on to win the presidency.

The party's candidates are running on a platform of reform and change, and they are hoping to convince voters that they are the best choice to lead the country.

The Democratic candidates are running against the incumbent Republican, who is seeking a second term in office. The Republican candidate is facing criticism for his handling of the economy and his support for the Iraq war.

The Democratic candidates are hoping to capitalize on the public's desire for change. They are running on a platform of hope and optimism, and they are hoping to convince voters that they are the best choice to lead the country.

Suns set record Los Angeles, 104-95, but what a paltry 38 percent from the floor. Dennis Johnson scored 20 points and grabbed 10 rebounds as the starting guard Danny Ainge hit 3-of-16.

"They gave us the shock we wanted," said Boston Coach K.C. Jones. (Wiley) Rayford and Karl Rambis did a great job of pushing it. Once they get the lead in the third period, they don't make any mistakes."

When it was over, Johnson had added 13 points and 16 rebounds for the Celtics before finding out with 11:30 left that the game was over.

Magic Johnson had 14 points, 14 assists and 18 rebounds for the Lakers and Rumeo Beat added 14 points.

After Boston had closed to within 88-82 with 8:10 left, Gervin and Worthy stripped the ball from Larry Bird and drove the length of the court. Two free throws gave Los Angeles a 90-82 lead and the Celtics never got closer than six points.

The Lakers failed for Abdul-Jabbar to start the third quarter and he was restricted, giving three baskets in the first half that gave Los Angeles a 13-point lead.

After hitting just 28 percent from the floor in the first three periods, the Lakers hit 46 percent from deep range in the quarter to send the Lakers into the fourth quarter with a 23-point advantage.

The Celtics shot only 42 percent from the floor in the first half, but after being sparked by McHale, they connected the winning shots.

Kevin McHale had 32 points and 16 rebounds for the Lakers in the Boston win.

Lakers find pot of gold in Boston

BOSTON (UPI)—The skyhook became a magic bullet and at the end was the Los Angeles Lakers pot of gold—on NBA championship gold.

The Lakers received another sensational 28-point performance from 38-year-old Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and James Worthy scored for 26 more to give Los Angeles its third title in the last six years with a 110-100 victory over the Boston Celtics.

"This one," says Lakers' Coach Pat Riley, "was more like the others with a tough time against the Celtics.

The victory established Los Angeles as perhaps the most dominant team in the NBA over the last six years.

It was the Lakers' first championship since 1970 when they beat the Boston Celtics 4-2, the Lakers avenged a loss to the Boston Celtics in the 1976 finals and ended one of the longest jinxes in NBA history. It was the Lakers' first championship victory after eight title defeats to the Celtics.

"We needed the whole team here and I'm not sure the whole team was here," said Riley. This was one of those wins over the Celtics.

"I've had a tough run and you'll be good to define the careers," said Abdul-Jabbar, who hit his first eight shots of the game and was up 10-2 from the floor.

"This is the greatest moment of my life," Abdul-Jabbar said.

Worthy had 18 points, half of them in the final three minutes, to lead the Lakers to the title.

The Lakers have appeared in the NBA finals 20 times, winning titles in 1970 and 1980. The Lakers, who hit their first eight shots of the game, earned their third championship.

The Lakers' Coach Pat Riley, was for West, Baylor, Chamberlain and the others with a tough time against the Celtics.

Los Angeles Lakers' Kareem Abdul-Jabbar has a finger and let's everyone know he's a lodger one after another he helped the Lakers duster the Boston Celtics Sunday with the championship.
