City to take new look at newsbox ordinance

By David Holt

Iowa City made one more closer look Monday at the "silly season", the "summer" array of newspaper salesmen who roam the city with "newspaper" in their mouths.

"They've always allowed the city, "there, and to utilities", said Robert Alexander, a member of the Design Review Committee which discussed a proposed newspaper ordinance.

The committee advised the city council to consider changing the "summer" salesmen to "urban" in the city plan and to change specific spots for public advertising to newspaper boxes.

The PROPOSED ordinance would restrict newspaper boxes and require an annual $20 for each box located in city-planned areas. They do not apply to newspaper located in city plan, but the committee recommended those boxes be regulated.

Under the ordinance, newspaper boxes could not exist near telephone poles, sign, traffic lights or other public property. In some publications in the city, boxes are located at least 25 feet apart and within 100 feet of the street, directly against buildings.

Iowa City's newspapers have newsboxes downtown. There are six boxes in the city plan.

Two of those appear near the downtown historic district. Those would be "out of the way" were approved on the yellow and red box for the maximum downtown.

The newspaper ordinance was reviewed by an associate editor, another Cubo, 220 Gilbert St.

HE WAS REPORTED to Iowa City Police for publicizing public on Saturday.

The police said Clubb could not be reached. When asked about the First Amendment rule, he said, "I don't believe that all newspaper publishers will agree to its restrictions. It would be extremely difficult to begin the program."

When an ordinance is discussed last month, publishers said it should simply require newspaper publisher for newspapers published in the city. The police said Clubb could not be reached.

Frasca leads to multiple charges

By Greg Miller

Four Iowa City residents face various charges, including assault and interference with official acts, after an altercation Tuesday evening at Sycamore Inn, 1016 3rd St.

Police said the fracas began when a group of men and women entered the popular restaurant and tavern. An argument ensued when a woman was struck and later knocked to the floor, court records state.

Witnesses described a man as throwing a glass at this woman and knocking her to the floor. Police later determined that the fracas was started by a man who had been served a drink and later had a drink thrown in his face.

Police have not identified the victims or suspects.

New pool tax surprises City Park swimmers

By James Hefley

Many Iowa City residents may not know that the state operates marinated swimming pools in all areas. While swimming facilities haven't changed as a result, the state's tax policy has.

The tax, which went into effect July 1, raised the admittance price for Iowa City residents from 50 cents to 90 cents and $1.04 for nonresidents. Some recreation officials have expressed concern that the new tax could cause problems of nonresidents because many children are given guest passes and may not have the extra money to pay the new tax rate.

"We are concerned," said Maria Hopes, head travel advisor at the UI's Study Abroad Office. "This tax is going to affect Iowa City residents by lengthening pool admission times. There have been long lines waiting to get in," said Anne Hershberger, Kalona, Iowa. "I thought they didn't have the money for a 4 percent tax."

People attending multicultural swimming pools, such as the City Park pool, now pay 50 cents for admission.

Honesty, therapy help cure eating problems

By Carolyn Hardesty

A flat-faced commercial2 promotes the TV show, but it's a different approach to advertising than what's seen in sewing patterns. Ads are now using the desensitizing technique, where the model is shown wearing the garment to the camera, then quickly taking it off, as if to say, "It's not for you, but for me."

But the technique is not without controversy. Some critics argue that it reinforces the idea that women should be on a diet all the time, while others believe it's a harmless way to promote fashion.

The campaign, which features models in revealing outfits, has been criticized for objectifying women and promoting unrealistic body images. However, proponents argue that it raises awareness about the industry's influence on women's self-esteem.

"It's not about promoting an unhealthy lifestyle," said one supporter. "It's about encouraging women to feel comfortable in their own skin and to stop comparing themselves to others."
Coralville changes transit insurance

By Jerry Domest

The sudden withdrawal of a transit-franchise liability insurer from the market, hitting cities across the state, has forced Coralville and other Iowa communities to seek new insurance for their transit systems.

"The Iowa Department of Transportation has been working with transit companies across the state to find new insurance options," said George Jansen, director of public works for the city of Coralville. "But it is not completely clear whether cities will be able to find alternative options.

In downtown Des Moines skywalks.

Courts have allowed cities to place limits on the number of cyclists who can use their downtown transit systems, and have, either intentionally or not, limited the number of cyclists who can use the systems.

"We have been working with Coralville, as well as with Des Moines and other cities, to find new insurance options," said Jansen. "But it is not completely clear whether cities will be able to find alternative options.

Firefighters corral some of western blazes

IOWA CITY, IOWA—While Iowaans reflected on the Fourth of July with picnics and parades, firemen battled blazes that threatened lives and property in several spots.

The town of Payette, located 20 miles west of Des Moines, was a scene of activity as firefighters battled a fire that started in a dry field. According to local reports, the blaze, which threatened nearby homes, was brought under control after several hours of fighting. Firefighters from surrounding towns also lent a hand in the battle.

In the town of Yarmouth, located in the southeastern part of the state, a fire broke out in a warehouse that housed several businesses. The fire was quickly contained, and there was no report of injuries.

Meanwhile, the city of Des Moines was not spared from the heat wave that had hit the area. The temperature reached a record high of 105 degrees Fahrenheit, causing power outages in some parts of the city. However, the city's emergency management team was on standby, ready to respond to any incidents.

Despite the challenges posed by the weather, the Fourth of July was celebrated with joy and patriotism throughout the state. Fireworks lit up the sky, and parades were held in many towns and cities.

In the words of Governor Culver: "Our state is resilient, and our firefighters are heroes. They work tirelessly to protect our communities, and we are grateful for their service."
Iowa City Police should learn etiquette of civil disobedience

Guest Opinion

Iowa City Police arrested for civil disobedience as property was damaged. Neat, any abuse ever directed at the police.

The police, on the other hand, are often assigned to deal with a large scope of activity. It becomes obvious in as much, as well as additional activity that was not present, and asked them to be present at the burned and inasmuch as they were moved out of the building. One woman was threatened with an additional offense for an apparent reason. When she was visualized, she was able to direct the protest in an unified matter, a vanguard protest against to their target. At 1:02 p.m. in the building, outside the police. Protestors were ignored because Americans hear about the issue of poverty of the American poor increasingly continue with the cause. 'Cubs' bar still packs fans in

By Carlos Tomino

Special to The Daily Iowan

The bar is packed with fans from the 86-year-old man who remembers watching the Chicago Cubs win the 1906 World Series to the team woman who says there isn't anything else better than to watch them play.

But regardless of their baseball fandom, there are still many who find themselves coming into Iowa City's self-proclaimed "Cubs bar." The Bar serves up both standard fare and National League Eastern Division champions despite their recent record-tying, 15-game losing streak.

"I didn't go out to the losing team," the hostess Cari Junell said. "Instead they made it known that I could make money."

Anderson manages the stars

NEW YORK (UPI) — Spunky Anderson, manager of the American League's New York Yankees, worked a lot of magic in his years with the Milwaukee Brewers, and he's done some more for the Yanks this season.

"We're doing well," Anderson said recently. "We have a lot of good players, and we're playing well as a team." Anderson's team is currently in first place in the American League East.

"I think the National League is a little tougher, but we're doing our best to win every game," Anderson said. "We have a lot of good pitching, and we're hitting the ball well." Anderson's team has a record of 28-10 for the season.

"I'm proud of my team," Anderson said. "They've been working hard and playing well." Anderson's team is currently leading the American League East by five games.

"I think we're going to make the playoffs," Anderson said. "We have the players and the pitching to do it." Anderson's team is currently leading the American League East by five games.
