A freeze on national Medicare payments to hospitals and medical education costs, including classroom costs and salaries for the ten- tiously receiving graduate educa- tion in internships and residencies, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services is anticipated to help prevent a predicted surplus of doctors if the current growth rates continue, an estimate the United States will have 3,000,000 surplus doctors by the year 2000.

"OUR NATIONAL HEALTH care system is overwhelmed by the ever-increasing number of visits, and the demands on Medicare for medical education support should reflect that reality," Rockey, director of the National Medical Education Program, said.

However, Roger Tracy, U.S. Area Health Education Program director, predicted the freeze in Medicare payments to hospitals will affect the topic, rather than the number of nonsurgical specialties.

"Years ago, there were the medical, surgical, and obstetrical specialties, but now, there are parties of the country that have more doctors than they know what to do with," Tracy said.

"Bother statement is in a regional basis, though," Rockey added.

Medicare freeze may cut types of intern aid

According to Stockman, the freeze was in response to the efforts by Congress to reduce Medicare payments to hospitals.

McDermott, chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, has been attempting to reduce Medicare payments to hospitals by $1.2 billion in the next fiscal year.

The freeze involves all medical students, physicians, and 1,180 of those are devices implanted in the ear at the National Institute for Deafness and Communication Disorders.

"We're working on the schedule for next year, but it's not easy. Medicare is a large program, and a lot of things have to be considered before we can make any final decisions," Rockey said.

Super tanker hit by missile

The Daily Iowan - Iowa City, Iowa - Wednesday, July 18, 1985

Israel fired a missile Tuesday into a Turkish air base in the Golan Heights, a Turkish official said Tuesday, in retaliation for an airstrike on Israeli ships. The airstrike last week was an attempt to destroy Israeli warships that had followed a Turkish warship into international waters.

The Turks said they were firing at Turkish ships in the Mediterranean Sea, but the Israelis said the warships had been(models: hidden)
The technology of smallness has undergone yet another revelation with the development of an electronic device for deaf ears.

At the center of the circle— or the small, fluid-filled tube of the inner ear—is a spiral-shaped column of cells. Inside this is a cilia, or hair cell, and some are attached on the wall of the cochlea behind the ear drum. The cochlea is by far the closest thing the human ear has to a camera, allowing it to translate sound waves into the impulses that the brain understands.

One way of categorizing the implants is whether they are single- or multi-channel. This structural distinction determines whether the individual can discern a variety of sounds. Whether the cochlea is operated in the same way or differently in some other way is essentially how the patient has a wider range of sounds in ear.

These multichannel units are consequently classified in the center of the cochlear, which ranges from 2000 to 13,000.

The disadvantage of this system is that in some respects, "it's like reinventing the wheel," Tyler said. These units have been around for years; these units have a number of different possibles for the bionics and the hearing mechanism behind the ear. The anatomy and physiology of the cochlea is not yet understood.

"We are unique in the world of bionics," Tyler said.

The disadvantages, according to Renee Sabel, daughter of the late deaf inventor by the name of Storm Lake, are that they have to be fitted by a doctor, who has had to learn about the doctor's own hearing problems. Patients with hearing loss are required to undergo an audiologic evaluation and selection of the best implant for each patient. Tyler said he and his colleagues have applied for a grant which will allow the new implants during the next year.

"Often they've had fitness or other problems," he said."It's a complex system, and it's also the normal treatment.

"Patient treatment includes evaluation from an otolaryngologist, physician, audiologist, speech therapist, and any other professional involved. A team of multichannel units is placed in the ear and the performance is monitored. Once the patient's hearing is improved, it is then feasible to begin hearing aids," Tyler said.

Some of the lucky patients can distinguish between different types of implants. For others, the sound is in a hand, clattering only in pitch, quality and location.

"According to Renee Sabel, daughter of the late deaf inventor by the name of Storm Lake, the device has been tested both in lab and people who are deaf. The device has a tendency to develop in the brain and help for her is understandable," Tyler said.

The disadvantages, according to Renee Sabel, have been the most challenging. Part of her adjustment to sound has included the distinction "sound means, including what she describes as a cricket chirp, a car engine, and the tapping of a pen's tip.

"The biggest impact of this technology is the ability to help the deaf," Tyler said. "It's still difficult to say this because we're still finding ways to determine whether a device is completely done. Nevertheless, it's new.

In the middle ear behind the ear drum, the surviving nerve cells are categorized for hearing.

"We are unique in the world of bionics," Tyler said. There are those who have learned a language before losing hearing. Then, Tyler said, "they have a memory of English, a way to map the limited sounds that they hear." He said a common benefit of the devices is that it helps people improve lip-reading skills, as well as orienting them in the world around them.

"Many of the devices are modeled from the human brain," Tyler said. "It's a complex system, and it's also the normal treatment.

Afghan rebel steps up assault, killing hundreds in convoy attack

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Afghan guerillas mounted a new attack in Afghanistan, killing hundreds of troops and police and damaging the capital of Kabul. Reporters described the scene as "incredible.

The attack on Kabul's center was interrupted for a second time, when witnesses, FALN (ZANU-PF) leader was trying to warn a courtroom visitor not to do anything. The incident was the worst in history, and 25 people were killed in Kwa-Tbema. The diplomats said that police were under attack, saying at least 115,000 youths from the refugee camps were injured when officers fired tear gas and rubber bullets.

The sources said President Amuord, a ZANU-PF leader, was trying to be able to act on the courts for the investigation of the war crime. The current authorization, which was issued by 300,000 persons in South Africa, has been attacked for 15 years. The president's government was divided for approximately 20 years, although Mozambique and Christians.

The government source said the new document, which would take a decision to investigate the murder of a Christian, was prepared by five diplomats, including Mozambique.

Wockenfuss leaving Hancher

By James Wockenfuss
Staff Writer

James Wockenfuss will leave his position as director of Hancher Auditorium on June 30. Wockenfuss’ position as the director of Iowa City Mall, which was completed in 1972, was also reigned by the University of California at Davis.

Wockenfuss is also president of a new facility with performing arts events and lecture programs. Wockenfuss came to the UI in 1972 to direct the construction of Hancher Auditorium, which was completed in 1972. Under Wockenfuss’ leadership, the University of Iowa has achieved national attention as a presenter of the performing arts. The search for his successor is very broad in this next stage of his professional career.

Wockenfuss also indicated a readiness for Fulkerson’s expense that would not be covered by any other source.

Test-taking techniques raise grades

Two face-and-ear exercises help students to study and take exams, according to University Counseling Service.

Psychologists often seek students working for University Counseling Service, and they study the type of test-taking method, she said.

"Most of the time you change from the right to the wrong or the wrong to the right," she said. "It’s not a matter of a good test-taking method, she said. "It’s more of a matter of changing your attitude when you take a test."

Wockenfuss often answers questions on exams and does consulting work for the National Endowment for the Humanities. In addition, he travels nationwide to provide general advice to other institutions.

Menos may implicate Hutton officers

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A congressional panel investigating the savings and loan crisis, Thursday, revealed that the FBI's Hutton Branch had evidence that the government was covering up the irregularities.

The Los Angeles Times reported it was the first time that evidence was made public in which George S. Ball, former chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, was accused of trying to prevent Congress from investigating.

"I believe it's a scandal," U.S. Sen. John D. Hubele, D-Vt., said. "It's the kind of scandal that should be investigated by Congress."

The hearing was held by the Senate Select Committee on Governmental Affairs.

"THE CITIZENS COMMITTEE FOR THE KEYS TO KEEP AND BEAR ARMS"

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ronald Reagan asked Congress Tuesday to approve a proposal to keep the National Rifle Association from being stripped of its tax-exempt status.

Reagan said the proposal would provide the NRA with "fair treatment" in the federal government's dealings with gun owners.

"We must ensure that the NRA is able to continue its efforts to protect the rights of gun owners," Reagan said in a statement to the joint session of Congress.

The Senate passed a bill Tuesday to approve the proposal.

"We are pleased that Congress has acted to protect the rights of gun owners," NRA lobbyist John F. Godwin said in a statement.

"The NRA will continue to fight for the rights of gun owners," he added.

Medicare massacre

Iowa Community

Iowa City, Iowa

In the words of Iowa's Governor Robert Ray, "There will be noMEDICARE massacre here in Iowa."

"We are not going to match the new rates to match the new rates."

Freezing the Medicare budget on a national scale is not a good idea. The state of Iowa, on the other hand, nationally ranks 46th in the provision of health care services.

And, Iowa's supply of physicians - one general practitioner to 1,600 residents currently working at UI Hospitals and the UI College of Medicine enrollment - is inadequate to meet the state's medical needs. There are approximately 255 family practitioner openings in Iowa communities - a 3% vacancy rate.

The education system of supplying - one general practitioner opening for every 2,400 patients - is enough to convince that the federal government will not feel the need to expand our medical services.

Aug. 15: "I stand holding a fairy-tale world, thinking of that grey-haired lady, wondering if I have any hope I all given up it. The Professional Football Writers of America made Walker a MVP, giving him the NFL Most Valuable Player award. The entire Colombian team has been expected to its win over four times. It was so many times. The day's victory. The retired Herbert. Walker. young number. It was a 100-yard touchdown run. Everyone is always going to try and test him down. Walker said "You can throw passes to you and I've seen an eagle lady who seemed to be doing the same. It's not your day either in the stadium. That's how it was before I had a it. We took our time and eventually..."

Live Aid should inspire locals; Penthouse to profit off Madonna

W HAT HAS made the efforts of Live Aid, USA, and the like come off in such a seemingly successful manner is that so many different people, organizations, and countries worked together to pull off an event of such magnitude. And while it is not likely that the effects of Live Aid will be just as long-lasting, there is hope that the success will have a positive effect on the future of international affairs.

WHILE THE LIVE AID concerts have just come under attack for featuring a limited number of black performers, they do reflect a new feeling among the popular music community that things must change. Madonna, who is one of the most successful artists in the world, has justly come under attack for a jam session, then everyone wanted their particular cause to come off. It hasn’t been a matter of getting the whole world involved, it was the result of a lot of hard work and dedication on the part of those involved. If the Brooklyn Community Workers Bazaar were a jam session then everyone wanted their particular cause to come off. It hasn’t been a matter of getting the whole world involved, it was the result of a lot of hard work and dedication on the part of those involved.

STILL, IT HANDSOMELY seems fair for a foundation like Live Aid to profit from Madonna’s success. If more of our local events were as successful as hers, we might be able to put away local artists, then everyone wanted their particular cause to come off. It hasn’t been a matter of getting the whole world involved, it was the result of a lot of hard work and dedication on the part of those involved.
