Teacher exodus signals problems for future

By Jerry Duncan

Poor working conditions, low pay and little respect have been forcing teachers to leave the profession in droves, creating a teacher shortage that by 1995 will reach one million—almost half the teachers in the United States today, UI educators said.

The trend is affecting Iowa, too, as 26 percent of the Iowa teacher workforce is expected to retire within the next five years, said

Rebecca Anthony, administrative Placement Office.

And the relatively low pay in Iowa may make those positions hard to fill.

THE AVERAGE ANNUAL salary for a teaching graduate in Iowa is $14,000, a figure considerably lower than most states in the nation, Anthony said.

"Iowa is falling behind in salaries rapidly," she said, adding that the Sun Belt states of Texas, California and Florida are offering Iowa teaching graduates associate in the UI Education $18,000 to $20,000 in an effort to curb the extreme teacher shortages those states are now facing.

> Ironically, while Iowa's teacher education programs rank high in the United States, only 72 percent of 1983-84 Iowa graduates took teaching positions in Iowa and contiguous states, Anthony

While salary level is an important consideration in attracting teachers, poor working conditions probably rank higher than leaving the profession, said William Matthes, associate dean of the UI College of Education.

THE EXODUS of teachers has also touched a deeper level, with the number of students in teacher education programs declining by 60 percent from 1972 to 1982 and the numbers continue to slide downwards. In addition, a disproportionate number of academically talented teachers are leaving the profestant professor in the UI College of Education.

Keith collaborated on a study published in 1983 on the academic abilities of UI students entering and remaining in the field of special education.

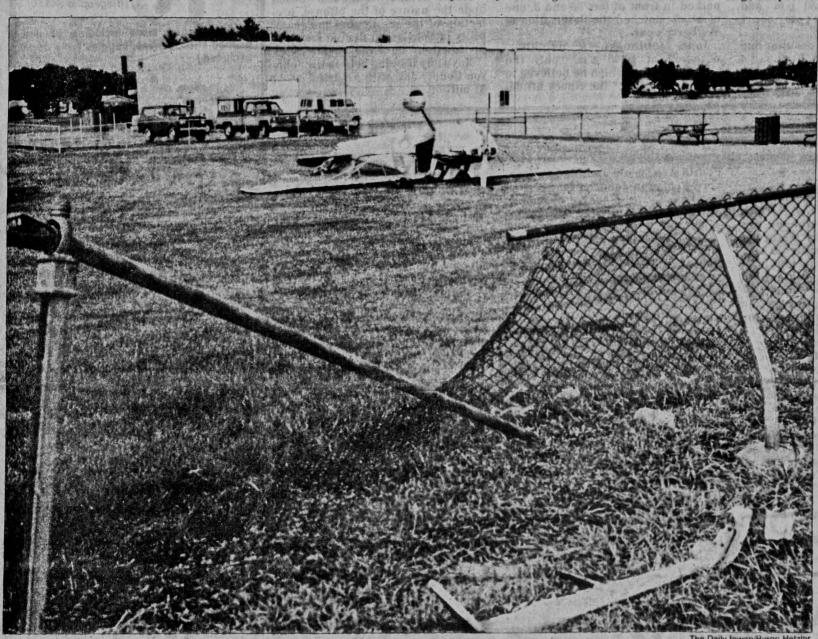

Although Scholastic Aptitude Test scores on math and verbal ability indicated no decline among UI graduates, "substantially greater numbers of (high academic ability) teachers, compared to low academic ability sion, said Richard Keith, assis- teachers, have left special education teaching positions," the study said.

> BETTER PAY and opportunites elsewhere have "skimmed the cream off the top of the teaching profession," Keith said.

National data on the academic records of students currently majoring in education shows they "don't have the same academic ability" as students in other majors, Matthes said. This

Jury finds Mackey innocent

By Greg Philby

A handful of teary-eyed parishioners hugged and shook Daniel Patrick Mackey Friday, moments after a jury concluded the former St. Wenceslaus priest was innocent of taking more than $6,000 from a Holy Land tour

Testimony in Johnson County the jury needed only two-and-a-

After Mackey was found not guilty of first-degree theft, defense attorney Gary Lane said the whole case was "laughable" hands with a smiling Father in the first place and "there was no basis for prosecution." The case reached the courtroom only because of the "glare of the attention of the public and the media" because Mackey was a Catholic priest, Lane said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Ronald Reagan took a few steps from his hospital bed Sunday and doctors said he was on "a spectacular" road to recovery, a day after a large tumor was removed from his colon.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said an elevated temperature was the only minor problem reported as Reagan recovered from almost three hours of abdominal surgery Saturday at Bethesda Naval Hospital. Speakes said the temperature was "certainly normal in a postoperative period.'

ing tests on the polyp removed from the juncture of Reagan's small and large intestines to determine if it was malignant. The lab findings were expected this afternoon.

Dale Oller, who headed the surgical team that operated on Reagan, said the president "is on a post-operative course that sur-

Steven Rosenberg, chief of surgery at the National Cancer Institute and a member of the five-man surgical team, said polyps of that same size and type are malignant in more than 50 percent of all cases.

But even if cancer is found, Rosenberg said there is a "reasonable likelihood" the operation itself, which included removal of the intestine around the growth and a close inspection of surrounding tissue in the abdominal cavity, will prove cur-PATHOLOGISTS WERE conduct- ative, with more frequent examinations but no further treatment prescribed for Reagan.

A woman's natural stance is to put her hands on her hips, which makes her look like someone's mother, Des Moines Attorney Roxanne Conlin said, demonstrating this pose on opening night of the UI "Women As Leaders"

But Conlin didn't come to Iowa City just to tell women how to stand. She and the other conference keynote speaker, Elly Haney, focused on women as leaders and as feminists.

HANEY, AUTHOR OF "What is Feminist Ethics?" spoke Friday night on behalf of Wilma Scott Heide, former president of the National Organization of Women. Heide was originally slated to speak at the UI conference, but she said: "Leadership at its very heart for Wilma is a leading toward change for a more humane

Haney, who wrote Scott Heide's biography,

But, according to Conlin, that "humane future" is still far off. "We live in an imperfect world. We are here so (barriers against women) won't be there in the future. As women we can't afford to be divided," she said.

Conlin used examples from American history to illustrate biases against women.

BETSY ROSS, who sewed the first American flag, "spent the rest of her life trying to get paid." After the revolution, soldiers and farmers were paid, "but no one thought to pay a woman for a little extra sewing."

Mayberry admits he struck Wise

Accused murderer James L. Mayberry "admitted being at the trailer and striking" Julia Wise on the night of her death, according to a search warrant affidavit filed Friday.

Leading Iowa City police investigator Gerry Knock also wrote that Mayberry's fingerprints were present on the lens of Wise's glasses, which were lying a few feet away from her body.

Mayberry is accused of murdering 20-year-old Julia Wise in her 37 Hilltop Trailer Court apartment on Mayberry told Iowa City detective Paul Sueppel that he was sitting on the steps of Lot 36 at 2:30 p.m. July 2, waiting for his brother-in-law, Mark Berger, to come home.

Wise allegedly came out and asked Mayberry if he had seen her cat and Mayberry talked to her a few minutes, adding he thought the cat had run under the trailer.

MAYBERRY ALSO TOLD Wise he wanted a drink and she brought him a glass of water, according to the report. He told Sueppel he was wearing blue work pants with a light shirt or smock-type top, which he wears while working at Spencer Sound Systems, 211 E. 11th St., Coral-

Mayberry's wife, Pamela, told police officers on July 6 that "on the night of July 2, she thought it peculiar that her husband washed his work uniform clothes when he arrived home sometime between 10:30 p.m. and 11:30 p.m.," according to court

She also "thought this peculiar due to the fact that her husband's employer always launders his uniforms for him."

Dave Spencer, Mayberry's employer, told Sueppel July 10 that Mayberry's clothes were either picked up by Means Services and had not been returned or they remained in Mayberry's possession.

A FEW HOURS after the discovery of Wise's body, Mayberry told Sueppel "he was with the victim" on the night of the murder, according to the affidavit filed by Knock.

The affidavit also says Mayberry admitted he was with Wise inside her trailer July 2

Mayberry told detectives that on the night of July 2, he left work around 7 p.m., driving his 1974 LeMans. He said he "shot off some fireworks" and then went directly to lot 36 of the trailer court, arriving between 7:30 p.m. and 7:45 p.m., and found Berger not at home, according to an affidavit filed by Iowa City Detective Tommy Widmer and DCI agent Ken Pamela Mayberry told him he arrived at their residence, 1920 H. St., between 10:30 p.m. and 11 p.m.

MAYBERRY STATED during the period between 7:45 p.m. and 10:30 p.m., he was in the yard of lot 36 and was with Wise for about 10 minutes.

An unidentified resident of Hilltop told officers Mayberry went by Wise's trailer on at least four occasions until about 9 p.m., and the witness observed Mayberry with Wise, the Knock affidavit said.

The witness also said he saw Mayberry and Wise together at 9 p.m. outside the trailer with the living room light on and said two cars were parked in front of lots 36 and 3, one of which matched the description of Mayberry's car.

John Jablonski, a neighbor, observed at 10:45 p.m. "only the middle light on, which he believed to be the bathroom," the Knock affida-

Mayberry also filed a motion Thurs-

Emmit J. George, Mayberry's courtappointed attorney, supported the request because Mayberry has no prior adult criminal record, no physical or mental disabilities and because his family can not raise bail.

George also stated Mayberry has never fled to avoid prosecution or failed to appear in court when ordered, has several community ties and is employed.

Sladek denied the request "based upon the nature of the offense, protection of the public and the possibility of (Mayberry) fleeing from the jurisdiction," he wrote.

Recommendation advocates no improvement on parcel yet

Iowa City's last urban renewal a parking lot east of the pard a parking lot east of the down Wn Holiday Inn, should not be developed yet, City Manager Neal Berlin told the Iowa City Council Friday.

The local market would not support a new retail store, office building, apartment complex or hotel considered for the site, Berlin said in response to a recently released report from Zuchelli, Hunter, and Associates, an Annapolis, Md., consultant.

The consultants suggested two major options for construction on the 45,000-square-foot lot, as well as a proposal to leave it vacant. A "mixed-use" building might be possible, said Donald Zuchelli of ZHA. Retail shops could occupy the ground floor and upper levels could be used for offices 120 to 320 downtown parking spaces, Zuchelli noted.

Another option for the site is a "fairy godmother scenario," in which a major department store, financial institution or corporate headquarters would be built on

But it is "exceedingly difficult" to close a deal with a major user, Zuchelli said

Berlin said the city should wait until there is "increased market strength" or until "one major developer displays a very strong interest in a project which will

Leaving the property vacant has disadvantages, Zuchelli said.

A parking lot on "important land in the central business district" conveys an "image of stagnation and restricted economic growth,"

"DORMANT URBAN RENEWAL land does nothing to enhance the city's potential for new develophe said. "Nothing enhances development potential like new development.'

Iowa City urban renewal began in the early 1970s and has seen the construction of the Old Capitol Center, the downtown pedestrian mall, the public library, the Holiday Inn and Plaza Centre

The council has been looking for an appropriate use for the last site for the last 10 years, said Councilor Clemens Erdahl.

Armstrong's department store or "semi-luxury" apartments. once expressed an interest in THAT BUILDING would demand building on the site, but backed out of the plan in January 1983. Plans to construct another parking ramp there have also been discussed

"I think it's the most important (parcel)", Erdahl said. "I think it presents us with the most exciting opportunity.

ERDAHL SAID he would like to see an amphitheatre and an L-shaped office building constructed on the site. The amphitheatre could be used as a skating rink in winter, he said.

Zuchelli's report analyzed the markets for retail stores, apartbe compatible with the long-term ments, offices and hotels in Iowa

Major department stores might not want to locate on the urban renewal parcel, he said, because it is distant from the Old Capitol Center, the "center of gravity" of downtown retail sales. But smaller retail stores might agree to share the office space in a new building, he said.

"Semi-luxury" apartments down-town would probably attract many students, the report said. Apartments close to campus are currently 98 percent to 100 percent full.

MANY OFFICES in the city are vacant, so the construction of more office space downtown could be a "risky venture," Zuchelli said. There might be a market, however, for offices for lawyers, accountants, design professionals and insurance and real estate agents, he said.

The downtown Holiday Inn has substantially changed the area market for hotels, and a competing hotel should not be built now, the report said. But the market might support another large hotel by 1989, Zuchelli predicted.

"While the city certainly would be able to produce a building of some nature on the site at this time," Berlin said, "I do not believe it would be wise to undertake a project for which there does not seem to be sufficient economic support and would not produce a project of either the magnitude or character which would be most advantageous to the city."

Clinic's smoking treatment places emphasis on positive

By Kathy Hinson Staff Writer

According to the American Lung Association, about 90 percent of the nation's 54 million smokers would like to quit. But, as any smoker will tell you, "It's easier said than done."

That's why the UI College of Medicine set up an American Institute for Preventive Medicine Smokeless clinic here, to help smokers break the habit.

Since the UI program began in June 1983, more than 480 smokers from the Iowa City area have gone through the three-phase process, according to Lois Hughes, program coordinator. Hughes said the process combines behavior modification with several other stop-smoking methods and added, "I think the combination of different techniques is what makes this

The first, or "preparatory," phase of the program "is meant to help people get ready to stop," Hughes said. At the introductory meeting smokers are asked to follow exercises that will make them more aware of their smoking habits.

UNTIL THE DAILY meetings begin the following week, smokers keep track of when and how often they smoke, buy only one pack of cigarettes at a time and carry the pack in a different place than usual.

When the daily meetings begin, the smokers enter the "skill development" phase. As they begin the series of four meetings, participants actually quit smoking. "When they walk out on the first day, they do so without their cigarettes," Hughes said.

The daily meetings are devoted to learning some coping mechanisms to help smokers do without their cigarettes. They are also a "crucial" part of the process, Hughes said, "because they develop a positive attitude toward quitting" rather than focusing on the frustration

AFTER THE FOUR skill development meetings, the participants enter the "maintenance" phase and meet three additional times during a two-week period. They continue to work on a positive attitude toward quitting, and anticipate problems they will face as "longer term non-smokers," Hughes said.

"The group experience becomes very impor-tant at that point," she said. "They're able to give each other encouragement" and help each other through rough times.

Although the American Lung Association statistics show only a 10 percent to 20 percent success rate for smokers who try to quit, 35 percent to 50 percent of the Smokeless participants contacted a year after going through the program are still non-smokers, Hughes said. Although some stop-smoking programs advertise higher success rates, Hughes noted these programs may use statistics taken right after the program ends.

"If you get a program that boasts a 80 or 90 percent rate you have to say 'Whoa, folks!'

The UI Smokeless program is conducted monthly, so "people can anticipate 'I'm not ready this month, but it'll be there next month," Pomrehn noted.

The Iowa City Smokeless program was initially funded by the UI College of Medicine, but is now "pretty much self-sufficient" through the $100 enrollment fee, Pomrehn said.

Hughes noted the fee can be paid over two or three month period, so people can use the money they save on cigarettes to pay for the program. Discounts are available for senior citizens, UI employees and family members who enroll in the program at the same time.

Role of mentor discussed in UI workshops

By Karen Burns Freelance Writer

Talk about leadership was intertwined with talk about love, opportunity, assertiveness and mentors during three workshops as part of the "Women as Leaders" Conference sponsored by the UI Physical Edcuation and Dance Department this weekend.

Leadership is "an attitude toward ourselves and other people," said Barbara Lockhart, visiting professor in the UI Physical Educa-

"The only way to have strength is to love ourselves as individuals and to relate to others in a loving, respectful way," she said.

SOCIETY HAS DEVELOPED in a way that has diminished self-worth for women, Peggy Burke said. "We frequently aim too low and stay there too long.

Burke, chair of the UI Physical Education and Dance department, told the women in the audience: "Don't ever consider yourself the weaker sex. Number one is to have confidence in yourself.'

Leadership means taking advantage of opportunities, according to June Davis, acting director of the UI Office of Affirmative

She said women have to make their own opportunities. "You can't sit back and think affirmative action or anything else will do it for you. It may get your foot in the door, but the rest is up to you," Davis said.

ONCE INSIDE THE DOOR, women have to be able to stand up for themselves, according to Anne Griffiths, who led a workshop to show women how to become more assertive.

"Women always apologize. I think women have to learn to say 'No' in a friendly, brief, firm way," said Griffiths, associate dean of Faculty of Professional Studies at Slippery

Griffiths acted out skits with audience members to show how body language and voice control send messages about power and

Joffrey II ends residency with magical tales

Staff Writer

The Joffrey II Dancers culminated their five-week Iowa residency with the world premiere of "Tales of Hans Christian Andersen" Thursday and Saturday nights at Hancher Auditor-

It was an important time for everyone involved. The dancers had their first chance to perform a full-length ballet; Richard Englund, who became company director in May, got a good look his dancers in action; and Sally Bliss, Joffrey II director emeritus who is primarily responsible for bringing this ballet to Iowa, saw more than 10 years of dedication come to the grand crest. But world premieres turn attention to the choreographer, so if the nights belonged to anyone, it was choreographer Donald Mahler, director of the Metropolitan Opera Ballet.

"Tales of Hans Christian Andersen," with its lovely music by Edward Elgar, brought two of the storyteller's best-loved works to life — "The Little Mermaid" and "The Nightingale." The ballets are united by a prologue and an epilogue that remind us of Anderson's vision and great love of children. My thoughts went back to rainy afternoons spent cuddled with his stories. Mahler does well in establishing this sort of mindset in which he'd like his work to be viewed.

IN THE TRIPLE ROLE of Andersen, the prince and the emperor, Patrick Corbin takes us beneath the sea to the realm of the Little Mermaid, where, despite the attentions of her four sisters, she is lonely and yearns for love. She finds that love in a shipwrecked prince and is granted human form to pursue him. But the prince becomes promised to another and the Little Mermaid returns to her home in the sea.

Less is more in Mahler's choreography. He does not muddle about with contrived, complicated movement. In the dance of the Little Mermaid and her sisters, nothing is extravagant. He lets the pure beauty of basic movements, the formations, speak. That is something to be cherished these days. For those who were left wanting something more in the movements, it must agility for turning in every position imaginable.

THERE IS EVEN a touch of humor woven in with the mermaids dipping between the waves. But while the sheets of fabric are clever, after the shipwreck they do become overused.

As for the dancers, they performed admirably, especially Saturday when energy was at its peak. It is amazing the difference a day makes - and perhaps having Robert Joffrey, founder of the ballet company, seated front and center helped, too.

Erica Yoder as the Little Mermaid was a delight. For one so young (she is 18), her acting skills are remarkably well developed. Technically, she handled the role with ease. Her newfound human form was a special joy. Yoder is all youth and light.

CYNTHIA GIANNINI as the prince's fiancee is special in the maturity she brings to her performance; she works intelligently. And although Corbin is a bit too subtle in his characters, his movement is breathy and clean.

The last third of the evening was dedicated to "The Nightingale," telling the familiar tale of the emperor who is taken by the innocent voice of the nightingale and then falls under the spell of a wonderous mechanical bird. Death comes upon him, but the nightingale brings him back to be remembered that this is a life. It is not as develop as the story about a girl who lacks the mermaid story, but is asant enough.

The same principles of simplicity hold true in this tale. Mahler doesn't inundate the audience with Oriental flavor. The costuming is enough.

BUT ALTHOUGH this was a rather abstract version, the Nightingale, danced by Johanna Snyder, could have been a bit more birdlike. Snyder has all the makings of a fine dancer and a particularly nice line, but there was something missing in her portrayal. Perhaps with repetition she will become more comfortable in the role. After all, this is an apprentice company and the dancers are working on developing their stage personalities.

The decor and costuming of the evening, designed by Carol Vollet Garne, gave the ballet the perfect touch of exoticism. The minimal sets are just what a touring company like Joffrey II requires, yet, like the costumes, they are vivid enough to truly take us into a fairy tale world.

On an ending note, it is rare that a company such as Joffrey II will spend an extended length of time in any one place. During their five-week stay in Iowa City, the company has brought that special love of dance that only youth seems to spawn to thousands of eastern Iowans. It has indeed been a special time. And I, along with many others, thank the company for making it possible.

Hooker, hot slide color Oasis 'blues'

By Jeff Hamilton Staff Writer

REVERENT, dancing crowd of more than 200 watched the legendary John Lee Hooker, the 67-year-old musician who has been playing the blues since 1930, perform two shows at Gabe's Oasis Saturday night.

The Coast To Coast Blues Band, which warmed up the crowd for Hooker, started out very hot. Roy Rodgers (yeah, that's his name), a young white slide guitarist touring with Hooker, was amazing. Playing acoustic slide on the Robert Johnson standard "Dust My Broom," Rodgers performed the tune's dramatic, full octave slides with manic virtuosity.

After the group performed three songs, Hooker, dressed in two parts of a three-piece suit, made his entrance to the thumping boogie of his "Boogie Chillen" and simply danced for a while. At this point in his career, Hooker doesn't play much guitar in his shows but just stalks the stage with the microphone, singing in his heavy, Delta style. A short man with thin eyes that seem to have seen too much, Hooker is the grand hepcat of the blues.

PLAYING WITH an essentially white rock band (though a tight one), Hooker didn't perform any of his slower, deeper blues ("I'm in the Mood" or "The Waterfront"), but stuck with his more popular "boogie" tunes. He performed a rocking, one-chord ostinato variation on the 12-bar form with accents that fall fractionally ahead of the beat. One of the crowd's favorites was "Boom Boom," a Hooker original that was a hit for The Animals in the mid-1960s. These up-tempo tunes were more than enough to please an audience that had come for no more than to dance and hear some great music performed by a legend. They certainly got that much.

The opening act for Hooker was the duo of Joe Price and Vicki Ewing, who played an enthusiastic but loose set of blues standards for the local audience.

Bolivian election expected to empower conservative hopefuls

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI) - More than 1 million Bolivians voted Sunday for a new president and Congress in elections that were expected to sweep conservative candidates into power in the economically devastated country.

Early unofficial returns showed right-wing former dictator Hugo Banzer, a retired army general, leading the presidential race. Conservative former President Victor Paz Estenssoro was in second place, followed by Vice President Jaime Paz and the government's candidate, Roberto Jordan.

National Election Board officials estimated that more than half of Bolivia's 2.1 million registered voters had cast ballots by early after-

SOLDIERS GUARDED the Quemado presidential palace and troops were placed on alert in their barracks, prepared for possible disturbances during the vote.

With one exception, every Bolivian election since 1960 has climaxed with a coup by dissatisfied military leaders. Bolivians have had six governments and two coups since 1980, and there were three other coups between 1978 and 1979.

Banzer and Paz Estenssoro led a field of 18 presidential candidates. The military pledged to honor the results, but leftist labor unions and peasant groups, charging voter registration irregularities, vowed to challenge the election.

If no candidate receives more than 50 percent of the vote - a likely prospect — the Congress will choose a president from among the top three finishers.

PLAGUED BY THE HIGHEST inflation rate in the world, a weak peso and daily strikes, Bolivians were expected to vote for conservative candidates to express their unhappiness with the center-left government of President Hernan Siles

Zuazo, who under the Constitution cannot succeed himself.

Voters blame Siles Zuazo for a 5,100 percent inflation rate in the last 12 months, a minimum wage that has fallen to $22 a month and unemployment that affects 20 percent of the work force. Siles Zuazo has also stopped making payments on much of Bolivia's $4.88 billion foreign Bolivia is the second largest U.S. aid recipient in South America, trailing only Peru. But the U.S. Congress is presently studying a proposal to reduce the amount of aid because of Bolivia's failure to curb a booming cocaine trade. About 40 percent of the coca used to make cocaine is grown in Bolivia.

Banzer, 59, a former dictator and head of the Nationalist Democratic Action party, was given a slight edge because of high voter registration in the cities where his support is

Minister: Nicaraguans meted out rifles to guard against invasion

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) -Defense Minister Humberto Ortega announced Sunday the government distributed 200,000 rifles to civilian militia groups in anticipation of a feared U.S. invasion.

Ortega's comments came as rebels battling the government said they increased their fighting around the country Sunday - five days before the celebration of the sixth anniversary of the Sandinista revolution.

The clandestine Radio 15 de Septiembre of the Nicaraguan Democratic Force, or FDN, announced its fighters attacked a cooperative ranch and ambushed a series of vehicles. Indian rebel groups claimed several kidnappings.

Ortega said the rifles were turned over to the militia "to confront (U.S.) imperialism and defeat them if they pons were Soviet-made AK-47 assault rifles, and other weapons included submachine guns and machine pistols.

The defense minister also said the army was training "special brigades" in anti-tank and antihelicopter warfare tactics.

FDN rebels, who have been trained by the CIA and financed by the Reagan administration, attacked a cooperative ranch called El Jobo, 120 miles southeast of Managua, Radio 15 de Septiembre said.

A Nicaraguan military source said three militiamen died and others were wounded defending the ranch. The rebels destroyed a number of installations at the cooperative.

In Rio San Juan province, some 125 miles east of Managua near the village of El Almedro, rebels ing a mother and her daughter.

A MILITARY SOURCE said a rebelplanted anti-tank mine exploded on the road near Nueva Guinea, killing two civilians and wounding four others. One person also died when a pickup truck was ambushed near Asturias, 150 miles northeast of

The Misura, a separate anti-Sandinista group operating in northern Zelaya province, kidnapped an undetermined number of Miskito Indians from the remote region along the Caribbean coast.

The Miskitos were traveling along the Coco River after receiving permission from the Sandinista government to return to their villages in the area under a partial autonomy plan for the Indians.

Mexican vote results protested

MEXICO CITY (UPI) - The first official results from last week's Mexican elections were released Sunday amid growing protests by supporters of the country's major opposition party that the ruling party stole the Complete results were not expected until late Sunday, but the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, or PRI, was believed to have swept the July 7 election.

As the vote count continued, several hundred supporters of conservative opposition National Action Party, or PAN, remained outside the governor's palace in Hermosillo, in the state of Sonora, to demand that authorities recognize the victory of their gubernatorial candidate, said Hilario Garcia, PAN secretary gen eral in Sonora.

GARCIA CHARGED that members of the ruling party, pretending to be opposition supporters, were arrested Saturday in Ciudad Obregon carrying Molotov cocktails.

Elsewhere in Mexico, controversy swirled around hotly contested PAN-PRI races in the state of Puebla, east of Mexico City, and in the northern states of Nuevo Leon and in Chihuahua, which is PAN's strongest power base

PAN officials and officials from the main leftist opposition party, the charged that the ruling party inflated voter registration lists with fictitious names, stuffed ballots boxes with votes for the PRI and stole other boxes after the polls closed.

In addition, voters often had to mark their vote in full view of government and ruling party representatives. The PAN also alleged the PRI had a week to alter vote tallies since the results remained in the hands of the government.

Lebanese await Syrian observers

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) - Israeli jets streaked over Beirut on reconnaissance missions Sunday as Lebanese officials awaited the arrival of 35 Syrian military observers to monitor a plan to end street fighting between rival militias.

In southern Lebanon, a Finnish member of the U.N. peace-keeping force was killed Sunday in the village of Mazraat Froun, about 13 miles east of the port of Tyre, when the ambulance he was driving hit a

In the Lebanese capital, official Beirut radio said the Syrian military observers were to arrive Sunday from Damascus.

The 35-man Syrian observer force failed to appear on schedule Saturday, forcing a 48-hour postponement of a plan to secure predominantly Moslem west Beirut. No reason was given for the Syrians' delay.

SYRIAN PRESIDENT Hafez Assad has given his support to the plan, which calls for rival Moslem militiamen to leave the streets of west Beirut and for police and army units to patrol the area under Syrian observation.

Several Syrian efforts to end violence in Beirut have failed over the past year, but this plan is the first to include Syrian observers. They are to help a peace-keeping force of 2,000 policemen and 500 soldiers.

Most Moslem gunmen and roadblocks were removed voluntarily Saturday by the two dominant militias in west Beirut - the Shiite Amal and Druze Progressive Social-

The officials also said Israeli gunboats had cruised off Beirut several times in the past three days, drawing ineffective fire from Moslem militiamen.

'Gold mine' of data transferred by spies

gressional sources believe a Navy y ring gave the Soviet Union years of access to a "gold mine" of the service's most sensitive secrets, a published report said Sunday.

Quoting unidentified sources, the New York Times said the spy provided the Russians with information from the Navy's satellite communications network, which since the mid-70's has transmitted virtually all of the service's sensitive messages.

The Times said the initial focus of the investigation into the alleged spy ring was on John Walker Jr., but officials now believe it was Jerry Whitworth, a Navy communications specialist until 1983, who did the most

An intelligence source told the newspaper the messages were a potential "gold mine" to Soviet analysts because they could provide insights into all aspects of the Navy, from mundane maintenance schedules to sensitive reports on the performance of weapons and ships in training

Still, officials believe the information Walker and his associates gave the Russians would not enable them to decipher codes currently used by the Navy because the service has changed its coding machines and the key lists for each of its facilities are

Military conspiracy in Aquino's death probed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) - Philippine military officials secretly tried to intercept the airliner carrying opposition leader Benigno Aquino the day he returned home from self-exile and was killed in 1983, it was reported Sunday.

At least two Philippine air force F-5 armed fighter jets were sent up to try to head off Aquino's Manila-bound China Airlines plane and divert it to Basa Air Base 35 miles away, the San Francisco Examiner said in a copyright story.

The newspaper said the incident appears to contradict statements by Gen. Fabian Ver and others accused in Aquino's slaying that they did not know which plane Aquino was taking in his attempt to return to the Philippines.

based on interviews with U.S. Air Force officers who said highranking Philippine military officials took over their radar scopes without explanation the day Aquino was shot, Aug. 21, 1983.

The Air Force officers said when they questioned the "highly unusual activity," that they were told it was "none of (their) busi-

The Examiner said when the fighter jets couldn't find Aquino's plane in the cloudy sky, Philippine officials asked U.S. personnel to order their planes into the air. The request was rejected.

This is significant to the case if true" said chief prosecutor Manuel Herrera. He said it would support allegations of a military conspiracy in Aquino's death.

The study by Catholics for a Free Choice compared the records of 30 senators on each side of the abortion issue.

It also compared the voting records on pro-child and pro-family issues of 100 House members who support a woman's right to abortion with the voting records of 100 members who oppose legal abortion.

The study used votes on six key issues determined by the Children's Defense Fund as critical to low and moderate income

> "THE STUDY FOUND that prochoice legislators were overwhelmingly more supportive of child and family programs than those who consistently oppose abortion rights," said Frances Kissling, the Catholic group's executive director.

"It is somewhat hypocritical for members of Congress to call themselves pro-life because they vote against abortion rights if they also vote against lifeaffirming and life-sustaining programs for women and children," Kissling said.

Mother, daughter imprisoned elderly

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) - An elderly woman and her daughter kept at least five old people captive in locked attic rooms for more than a decade, feeding some of them dog food and cashing their Social Security checks each month, authorities said Sunday.

William Connolly, director of the state Division of Housing and Development, said two elderly women were found Saturday by investigators watching a house where authorities discovered three malnourished elderly women on July 3.

Connolly said Rosemary Scorp, described as being in her 50s, and her mother, Josephine Scorp, moved the victims between their three houses, motel rooms and other hideouts to avoid official surveillance.

He said he expected searches of two other houses would probably turn up two unidentified elderly men who were seen at one of the houses during police surveil-

NO CRIMINAL CHARGES had been filed against the women, but Michael Wilfing, the Housing Department's enforcement director, said people from his agency were and were awaiting an indictment to be sought by the Monmouth County prosecu-

On Saturday morning, state investigators watching the Ocean Township house said they saw Margaret Woods walking around outside.

Kevin Schild, an investigator, said Woods told him she had been kept there against her will for almost 15 years.

"The woman ... was literally skin and bones," Schild said. "She was very emaciated, frail, very frightened and very withdrawn. She said she had lost a great deal of weight and couldn't keep food down."

WILFING QUOTED a neighbor of the Scorps as saying he saw as many as 10 elderly people at one time at the couple's farmhouse in Hope Township during the past several years and added that the Scorps had been feeding the women dog food.

Schild said the women were living in filthy conditions confined to separate rooms in the attic, using a portable toilet emptied once a day, no soap or clean laundry, few showers or medical care.

Motorcyclist dies in Montjuich race

BARCELONA, Spain (UPI) - West German motorcyclist Nikolaus Ruck was killed Sunday when his Kawasaki 600 cc rammed into a lamppost during the Montjuich Formula TT-1

Ruck, racing in a pack of four riders, veered off the circuit to avoid a pile-up when a motorcycle in front of him broke down, race officials said.

Ruck, 46, then lost control of the engine, skidded about 220 yards and crashed into the lamppost. He was rushed to Barcelona's Hospital Clinic where he was pronounced dead

Hospital officials said another cyclist, Tony Rutter of Britain, injured in a pile-up on the circuit Saturday, remained in serious condition. Rutter, 44, suffered head, wrist and leg injuries in the crash.

McCrory defends welterweight title

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI) - Milton McCrory unleashed a savage attack Sunday night and knocked out Carlos Trujillo of Panama at 1:59 of the third round to retain his World Boxing Council welterweight title

The Detroit fighter from the outset controlled the scheduled 12-round bout at the new Louis II Omnisports complex.

McCrory waited for his moment in the third round before pounding Trujillo with lefts and rights to the head. McCrory's right hand did much of the damage and a crashing right ended the challenge of the 24-year-old Panamanian.

Before a sparse crowd of perhaps 1,500, the victory lifted the 23-year-old champion's record to 27-0-1 while Trujillo's

It was McCrory's fourth successful title defense since he won the crown in August 1983 from Colin Jones of Wales. He earned $150,000 for this victory.

Wiebe takes first tour win

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) - Mark Wiebe won the $500,000 Kingsmill Golf Classic Sunday by defeating John Mahaffey on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff with a 15-foot birdie

Wiebe of Escondido, Calif., who tied with Mahaffey at 11-under-par 273 at the end of regulation play, won $90,000 for his first victory on the PGA circuit.

Mahaffey, a 1981 Kingsmill winner who has already won $145,795 this year, sent his drive off the par-4 16th tee, where the playoff began, wide and left. He earned $54,000 for second Wiebe, who joined the PGA Tour in 1983, but returned to qualifying school in 1983 and 1984, said in the sudden death he tried to atone for his bogey on the par-4 18th.

"You hit a good putt on 18," Wiebe said he told himself. "You missed it. Here's your chance to make up for it here."

Controversial home run lifts Angels

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) - Brian Downing clubbed a controversial two-run homer with two out in the bottom of the ninth to cap a three-run inning Sunday and give the California Angels a 5-3 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Trailing 3-2, Reggie Jackson led off the ninth with a walk off Gary Lavelle, 3-4, and pinch runner Craig Gerber advanced to second on a sacrifice by Ruppert Jones. After moving to third on a groundout, Gerber scored on Bobby Grich's single to tie it

Downing then hit a 1-1 pitch into the left-field corner where George Bell appeared to make the catch. A fan, however, grabbed the ball from Bell's glove and umpires ruled it a homer. The Blue Jays' bench emptied onto the field and a five-minute argument ensued, but the umpires would not

It was the third such meeting since the end of the regular season and took place before Sunday night's championship game between the Oakland Invaders and Philadelphia Stars at nearby Giants Stadium - the third and final title game of the Commissioner Harry Usher withheld details of the meeting, saying he did not want to detract from the championship. A news conference is scheduled Monday to discuss the threehour meeting among the league's 14 owners.

Among the issues known to be discussed was the proposal for retaining players. Some owners have approved a plan whereby each team can protect 35 players by Aug. 1. The remaining players would be considered free agents.

The players kept on the roster would receive 30 percent of their salary, starting March 1.

Also discussed was a plan to reduce the league to 12 teams. Economically troubled franchises in Tampa Bay, Los Angeles, San Antonio and Denver are expected to move or merge.

Morris, Hoyt nab All-Star positions

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) - San Diego's Lamarr Hoyt and Detroit's Jack Morris were expected to be named the starting pitchers for the National and American League squads, respectively, in Tuesday night's 56th All-

National League manager Dick Williams said he would go with Hoyt, 12-4, who hurled a three-hitter Friday to lead the Padres to a 2-0 victory over St. Louis Cardinal ace Joaquin Andujar.

Andujar, 15-4, the major league's winningest pitcher who was originally named to the National League pitching staff, has refused to pitch in the game because Williams hedged on naming him the starter.

Ron Darling, 9-2, of the New York Mets will replace Andujar in the National League lineup. Darling has a 2.52 ERA and two shutouts with 105 strikeouts in 139 1-3

WILLIAMS and American League All-Star manager Sparky Anderson were to officially name their respective starters at a news conference Monday.

Anderson's American League pitching staff will be composed of three of his Detroit hurlers, Morris, Dan Petry and Willie Hernandez, plus Bert Blyleven of Cleveland, Jimmy Key and Dave Stieb of Toronto, Donnie Moore of California and Jay Howell of Oakland.

The Tiger skipper was expected to tap Morris, 10-6 with a 3.04 ERA, as his starter. The Detroit right-hander has chalked up nine complete games and four shutouts in 20 starts, the best in the American League.

Morris is one of three St. Paul, Minn., natives who will play before the hometown fans in the All-Star game,

Baker claims Open with final round 70

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (UPI) -Kathy Baker shot a 2-under-par 70 Sunday to win the most prestigious tournament in women's golf with a three-stroke victory in the U.S. Open.

She sank a 4-foot birdie putt on the 16th hole to go ahead by four strokes over Judy Clark. Baker finished at 8-under 280, three strokes ahead of Clark and seven in front of third-place finisher Vicki Alvarez.

Baker was the amateur champion at the Open in 1981 and 1982 and joined the pro tour in August 1983. Her previous best finish this year was sixth at Uniden and the Moss Creek Invitational.

Baker started the day in the lead at 6-under 210 but fell back into a tie with Clark when she bogeyed the No. 2 hole at the upper course at Baltusrol. However, she birdied Nos. 7 and 8 to take the lead by two strokes over Clark at the turn.

ON THE BACK NINE she bogeyed No. 10 but birdied 11 to go up by two strokes again. On easy par-5 after that.'

No. 14 Baker ran into some trouble when she left her tee shot in the bunker for a bogey. But she birdied Nos. 15 and 16 to go 8-under for the tournament.

Clark, who has never won in eight years on the pro tour, bogeyed No. 3 but got the stroke back when she birdied No. 4. She then strung 12 pars in a row to remain 5-under but bogeyed No. 16 as Baker birdied and the tournament was over.

Clark fired a U.S. Open record 7-under par 65 Saturday to enter the final round in second place at 5-under 211. She finished the round at par-72.

Nancy Lopez, who has never won a U.S. Open, also started the day two strokes off the pace at 5-under but bogeyed five holes in the final round finish at par-288.

Lopez was 5-over 77 for the day. She had four bogeys on the front nine and another on No. 16.

"When you bogey the first two holes here you put yourself in a big hole," she said. "You should never bogey the first hole. It's an one three-week Dan Gable's training camp to provide the more advanced athlete with more intense wrestling.

SPORTS CAMPS also provide two one-week sessions, which fit into the normal scheme of camps.

The changes have not altered the attendance. About 950 wrestlers will have participated in one of the camps, and are "coming from all over the nation, representing 30-40 states," Lantz said. And for Robinson, the ordeal at

Iowa "just kind of dropped," Robinson said. "Life goes on." Although Robinson does not coach at Northern Iowa, he said the cooperation from the school and its wrestling program has helped him. He contracts from the university for the facilities during the summer, and staffs the camp with wrestlers from all over the country. Briggs "has gone out of his way to help me," said Robinson. "We use a lot of NI (Northern Iowa) wrestlers. That makes them better so there will be some direct spin-off from the camp.'

sport when they teach it. Robinson said 202 wrestlers are taking part in the concentrated program which runs from June 29 to July 27.

A typical day for participants includes weight training and running at 7 a.m., followed by technique sessions from 10:15 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. After lunch and a rest period, two hours of hard wrestling follows at 3 p.m. Motivational talks are given after dinner, with more weight work and running to end the day.

In addition to coaching the Hawkeyes, Robinson served as an assistant coach on the 1976 U.S. Olympic team and was named coach of the U.S. Pan American Games. He still keeps up with the Iowa wrestlers he worked with, and said he misses coaching but enjoys the free time with his family.

"I don't think you can do anything for 13 years and not miss it," he said.

Chozas makes his bid for Tour de France win

niard Eduardo Chozas jumped into contention in the 72nd Tour de France Sunday with a devastating victory in the 15th stage of the 22-leg bicycle race, crossing the line almost 10 minutes ahead of the rest of the pack. Chozas worked early to distance himself from everyone else in the 147.5-mile race and never let up, finishing in 7 hours, 8 minutes and 42 seconds.

Ludo Peeters of Belgium was the closest challenger 9:51 behind. He was followed by Irishman Sean Kelly three seconds later Matching Kelly at 9:54 were American Greg Lemond in fourth place and Belgian Jean-Philippe Van den Brande in fifth.

Frenchman Bernard Hinault, the four-time champion who had to be stitched up Saturday after a bloody fall about 300 yards from the finish line, continued to hold on to the leader's yellow jersey, finishing eighth Sunday.

With the victory, Chozas made a dramatic jump from 27th to seventh place in the overall standings.

Becker earns gold medal in Europe

By Brad Zimanek Staff Writer

How would you like to spend part of your summer traveling around Europe, learning more about the sport you love and even coming home with a gold

That is what it was like for Iowa women's basketball player Lisa Becker. The 6-foot-4 Cedar Rapids native returned home after being a member of the Jones Cup team, which recorded a 6-1 record in winning the gold

The USA team posted a 10-9 record for their entire stay but was able to come through in the tournament competition.

"The trip was an excellent experience," Becker, the Hawkeye center said. "It was a growing experience. I learned that I have a lot of things to work and rematch against Sweden. improve on if I'm going to want to play international competition in the future."

THE USA TEAM came out on top of the 16 teams in the tournament, which included Finland, Sweden, Taiwan, West Germany and Canada. The USA's only loss in the tournament came at the hands of Sweden, 65-59.

The victory, however, that stands out in Becker's mind was the come-from-behind win in the

"The game against Sweden stands out in particular because it was a game in which I felt I contributed the most," Becker said. "I scored 14 points in helping us come from behind."

Becker was happy with how she played during the tournament but was a little disappointed with the actual playing time she received.

"I'M VERY PLEASED with the way I played," Becker said. "I didn't think I received as much playing time as I would have liked, but when you're playing on a team like that, you can expect that. Some games I would barely get in two or three minutes where in others I would get 13 or

Besides learning from the foreign competition, Becker also learned a few things from her United States teammates which she feels will help her further down the line.

Ueberroth believes strike is possible

ball commissioner Peter Ueberroth, maintaining a neutral stance in baseball's labor dispute, said Sunday he believed there was a "fairly good chance" players will strike this season.

Appearing on NBC News' "Meet the Press" from the Metrodome, where the 56th All-Star game will be played Tuesday night, Ueberroth said, "a strike would be a failure for both sides."

Player representatives are meeting Monday in Chicago and are expected to set a strike deadline in their contract dispute with owners. Although they threatened earlier this season to boycott the All-Star game, it appears a strike date will be set sometime in August.

"I'd say there's a fairly good chance (they'll strike)," he said. "But it's not a strike date, it's a "THEY'LL (PLAYERS) decide tomorrow. The sooner the better, I say. Let's get it over with and let's get it behind us.'

Ueberroth said he felt both the owners and players had good representation in the stalled contract talks. The players have been without a contract since Dec. 31, and the two sides have been negotiating since Novem-

Robinson finds peace after storm

By Steve Sands Staff Writer and Melissa Rapoport Sports Editor

For J Robinson, the former Iowa assistant wrestling coach, the storm has subsided.

Robinson, who was the graduate assistant for four years before beginning his eight-year position as Iowa's assistant coach, and the Iowa administration last year grappled over who would have funding control of his month-long summer intensive wrestling camp at Iowa.

The UI gave Robinson total control over the popular camp in 1982, but after a Michigan youth attending the camp in 1983 collapsed during a workout, the administration reviewed the camp and demanded several policy changes about training and medical services.

ROBINSON WENT ALONG with all the changes until the UI asked for financial control of his

The former wrestler from Oklahoma State, who competed on the 1972 Olympic team in Munich, did not agree with the final demand. He resigned as assistant coach in April 1984 and took his camp on the road to Northern Iowa last summer.

Northern Iowa wrestling Coach Don Briggs, who accepted Robinson's request to hold the camp there, said he could see both sides of the controversy.

"I think they (UI administration) had their reasons for wanting certain conditions on the camp," said Briggs. "But on the other hand, I had to sympathize with Robinson said the response to the camp is still good, even after the change in location.

"IT HAS AN EIGHT-YEAR reputation of being the best there is, so they still come," he said.

nd the turmoil has died down When Robinson had control of his camp in Iowa City, Iowa had other wrestling camps of lesser intensity conducted through its sports camps program.

With the resignation of Robinson came the change of financial policies and format changes. The sports camps had nothing to do with the training or intensive camps," Sports Camps Director Marty Lantz said.

"All sports camps, regardless of administration, are now run as sports camps through Rec Services," he said.
