Israel tries talks with Soviets on new policy

BURLINGTON, Lebanon (UPI) - Arab peace negotiators here were expected to reach a tentative agreement tomorrow morning, a U.S. diplomat said. Fighting at least one person, and fighting broke out in west Beirut after a rally on a Belgrade, Lebanon, Sunday reports said.

Israel and the United Arab Emirates were holding a two-day conference to discuss a possible peace agreement. The talks began today in Amman, the capital of Jordan.

The Israeli delegation included Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin, and military and political leaders. The Arab delegation included Foreign Minister Sayed Abdul Rahman, and other officials.

The talks were expected to continue for another day, with the possibility of a final agreement being signed the next day.

The agreement would be a significant step towards peace in the region, as it would be the first formal agreement between Israel and the United Arab Emirates.

The news was welcomed by both sides, with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin saying, "This is a historic moment for the region." And the Arab delegation leader, Sayed Abdul Rahman, said, "We are ready to work towards a peaceful future."

‘The Emerald Forest’ lacks a cohesive style

By Richard Panek

THE EMERALD FOREST is as close to a triple-R as I've ever seen. Romance. Recreation. Reality

Pleasant and directed by John Boorman found the inspiration for his latest film in a novel about a hunter's search for his son who had been kidnapped. The son, Billie Jean, was left behind in the jungles of Mexico. Now, however, she's back. This movie, however, doesn't stop there.

Boorman's inspiration for the movie was the novel by the same name by Iowan - Iowa's favorite author, Lynn C. Johnson. The Legend of Nigger Creek, which was a major hit in the 1930s.

The first half of The Emerald Forest centers around the search for Billie Jean, who had been kidnapped by a group of Indians. Boorman found the inspiration for the movie in the novel by the same name by Iowan - Iowa's favorite author, Lynn C. Johnson. The Legend of Nigger Creek, which was a major hit in the 1930s.

The second half of the movie is set in the jungles of Mexico, where Billie Jean and her brother Binx must survive the dangers of the forest. Without forcing it, the film touches on such subjects, through abuse or indifference.

Films

The Emerald Forest is a classic example of the trend of the 1970s, when movies were often a mix of adventure, action, and drama. The film is set in the jungles of Mexico, where a group of Indians is on the run from the law.

Billie Jean, played by Charley Steen, an up-and-coming actress, and her brother Binx, played by Tomme, played by Allen Moore, a rising star in the industry, are on a mission to rescue their parents from the clutches of a villainous gang. Along the way, they encounter various obstacles, from dangerous animals to treacherous terrain.

Billie Jean, in The Legend of Billie Jean, adopts a close-cropped haircut la Diane Keaton. It was the look that defined the decade and it continues to be a staple of the fashion world.

Lynn C. Johnson, the author of the novel, once said, "When I dream, now I am here." After reading an article about Billie Jean, the author decided to write a novel about her. "I dream of a world where there is no class or rank," she wrote in her memoirs. "Now I live in there when I dream. Now, I am here.

Billie Jean, in The Legend of Billie Jean, adopts a close-cropped haircut la Diane Keaton. It was the look that defined the decade and it continues to be a staple of the fashion world.

THE SERIOUS SIDE OF SUMMER FUN!

For many people, insect stings and bites cause only minor discomfort. But for those who are allergic or sensitized, these ugly bites can cause very serious problems. In some cases they can be fatal. If you recognize any of the symptoms listed below, don't wait to get emergency medical attention. Those who have been stung or bitten by an insect or animal that is not known to them should seek medical attention immediately.

Symptoms:
- Painful, red swollen area
- Itching, swelling around the bite
- Rash or hives elsewhere on the skin
- Difficulty breathing or swallowing
- Drowsiness or other changes in alertness

If you experience any of these symptoms, seek medical attention immediately. By doing so, you can prevent serious or life-threatening reactions.

Prevention:
- Wear protective clothing, including long sleeves and pants.
- Avoid areas where stinging insects are likely to be found.
- Use insect repellent.
- Store food and beverages in well-sealed containers to prevent insects from infesting them.

Remember, it is always safer to prevent insect bites rather than trying to treat them after they occur.

Dan Forsman shot a 3-under-par because of an accident that totaled his car. The accident occurred shortly after the 100-lap mark, leading from lap 55 to 57, where Forsman was 134.008 mph, had a crowd of about 4,000. Forsman, who had been overtaken by an easy 5-inning victory, had a season-high of 14 strikes, breaking three in the first, last and 11th, and dropping temporarily on a 10-strike stretch at the 6,514-yard San Diego course.

NEGOTIATIONS are continuing "around the clock" for Cunningham, and no other Eagles draft picks who remain unsigned, the each.

Wilander victorious in Swedish Open

BASTAD, Sweden (AP) — Mats Wilander won his first tournament since returning from injury Sunday to outclass fellow Swede Stefan Edberg 4-6, 6-3, 6-1 in the final of the $180,000 Swedish Open.

Wilander defeated Edberg for the second time in as many months. The Swede had lost to Wilander in the French Open and the Bastad Grand Prix tournament last month. The 19-year-old Wilander has a string of 17 straight victories on clay courts.

"I have never played better tennis than these three tournaments," Wilander said. Edberg, a five-time automatic specialist, was down by two sets to none when Wilander added three straight games on his way to victory.

"In these gusting winds, it's easier with my own way of playing — from the baseline than to stay volleying to Edberg's serve," Wilander said. "I have never been as much in control as today."

Wilander, 19, now has captured 18 Grand Prix titles, since his first surprising victory in the 1981 French Open.

Globetrotters seek woman star

"Why shouldn't we try a woman player?" says Globetrotter Billy Ray Hobey. "It's going to be great. A woman will be a very positive ingredient to add to the team."

Although the personnel of the Globetrotters is comprised of mostly men, it's not totally out of the question to consider employing a woman on the team. During a practice session on the University of New Orleans campus, Billy Ray Hobey, a member of the Globetrotters, said that the idea of employing a woman player is not only feasible but would add a positive element to the team. "Why shouldn't we try a woman player?" he asked. "It's going to be great. A woman will be a very positive ingredient to add to the team."

The Globetrotters, who are known for their acrobatic and entertaining performances, have always been a male-dominated sport. However, Billy Ray Hobey believes that a woman player would bring a new level of excitement and entertainment to the team. "I think it would be great," he said. "A woman would add a new dimension to the team."
