City elementary schools consider review

By Jerry Duncan Staff Writer

Plans to consider a sweeping national study of elementary schools, similar in scope to a massive 1983 study on American secondary education, were met with mixed reaction this week among state and local educators. U.S. Secretary of Education William Bennett will decide within a month whether to conduct a study of the nation's elementary schools on the scale of the "A Nation at Risk" study...

But some educators believe the problem has its roots at the elementary level.

"I THINK, MAYBE, we should do it," Bennet said last week in a report by United Press International on the possibility of a comprehensive study of elementary schools. "I'm not surprised — it's the next logical step," said David Cronin, superintendent of schools for the Iowa City Community School District. Cronin said, however, that "from my perspective in Iowa City, I don't see the same kinds of concerns expressed in 'Nation at Risk'..."

focused on elementary education in the Iowa City school district, resulting in the initiation of an "ongoing and systematic review of curriculum," Cronin said. Research has also focused on the amount of time students are engaged in instruction. From a "nationwide standpoint," a sweeping study of elementary schools would "probably not be a bad idea," said Phil Dunshee, a lobbyist for the Iowa Association of School Boards. IOWA, HOWEVER, has already responded to the "A Nation at Risk" study by producing the First in the Nation in Education report, Dunshee said. The F.I.N.E. report examined problems in both secondary and elementary school systems and has been used as a "spring board" for subsequent elementary school improvements in Iowa, he added. A national study on elementary schools, therefore, "might not be as valuable" for Iowa as it would be for other states, Dunshee said. In addition, the national political climate for massive changes in education — which was ubiquitous in 1983 — may now be absent, he said. The "Nation at Risk" report was "saying the right thing at the right time," Dunshee said. "I have my doubts as to whether a new study would be able to accomplish the same political activity." Although a broad study of the dilemmas facing elementary schools may be a "desirable thing," it should not be conducted "in the same fashion" as the earlier study, said Charles Case, dean of the UI Department of Education.

"A Nation at Risk" was a "very poorly done study," Case said, adding that the Commission on Excellence in Education "ignored evidence that did not support their biases." "Most of the evidence supports the fact that things are not as dire as the commission would like to believe," Case said. ALTHOUGH THE 1983 report triggered legislation that was beneficial to secondary schools, some legislation "has resulted that won't make a hell of a lot of difference," Case said. "While everyone has a renewed interest in education, they have forgotten the role of equity in education," he added. Equity between social classes and between races has been "swept See Education, Page 5

New mall inflames residents

By David Roll Staff Writer

A proposed shopping center to be built near the K-Mart in southeast Iowa City drew complaints from neighbors at the Iowa City Council meeting Tuesday. The Pepperwood Place Shopping Center would cause traffic problems and endanger children, said several residents from the neighborhood surrounding the 10.4-acre site of the proposed center.

"The influx of traffic traveling to and from the center will pose... a threat to pedestrians and children," said David Stone, 831 Sandusky Drive. Part of the problem stems from plans to open Broadway Street to Highway 6 and close access from nearby Taylor Drive. Broadway Street would run past the Cedarwood Apartments of Iowa City to the shopping center. Children from the apartments play on that street, residents said.

"COMMON SENSE will tell you that traffic and children don't mix," said Anna Buss, 2125 Broadway St. "Our neighborhood is primed for a very serious accident." In addition to the safety problems, area residents are worried about the effect the center will have on the quality of their neighborhood. "The aesthetic impact of this development will be devastating," Stone said. The value of some area homes will decline because they face the back of the shopping center, he said. The residents already have trouble with garbage that blows over from the K-Mart, Buss said. "You add another shopping center back there and we're going to become a garbage disposal," she said. BUT SCOTT OLSON, designer of the center, said residents would be "pleased with the appearance" of both the front and back of the center. If the council rezones 3.74 See Council, Page 5

Japan proposes import plan

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan unveiled a major import plan Tuesday aimed at ending complaints about its trade surpluses with the United States and other Western nations, but Western analysts said the moves will not solve the problem. The "action program," under study since a January meeting between President Reagan and Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone, was announced by State Minister Toshio Komoto, who said the plan "will result in improvements" in imbalances.

Under the program, Japan will slash tariffs, liberalize capital markets and eliminate bureaucratic barriers to imports. The plan — the seventh package in recent years — would eliminate or reduce tariffs over three years on 1,853 products, including those in several high-priority areas to the United States. "I BELIEVE these measures embody the best efforts of the Japanese government... to prove that the Japanese market is the most open in the world," Komoto said. "We believe this action program will result in improvements in the trade imbalance — that is for sure." But United States trade analysts, who frequently cite the strong U.S. dollar as the major reason for the U.S. trade deficit with Japan, said it was unlikely the plan will reduce the deficit, which exceeded $35 billion in 1984 and is expected to reach $45 billion this year. In Washington, the government announced the nation's trade deficit jumped to a near-record $13.4 billion in June, with the trade losses to Japan the highest for any month in history. June's trade deficit, second only to July 1984 in size, brought to $70.7 billion the red ink in the first half of the year. A third of it, $23.9 billion, was accounted for by trade with Japan, which ran a record $4.6 billion deficit for the month, the government said. The unnamed trade analysts said it was too soon to tell whether the new Japanese program, which must be approved by

U.S. dumps S. African gold shares

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — South Africa Tuesday recalled its ambassador-designate to the United States a day before U.S. lawmakers were to draft legislation imposing economic sanctions against Pretoria. "The South African Ambassador to the United States, Mr. Herbert Beukes, has been requested to return to South Africa for consultations with the minister," a Foreign Ministry spokesman said in Pretoria. He declined to elaborate on the step, but political analysts in Johannesburg said the recall was a strong expression of diplomatic displeasure. In Washington, Senate and House negotiators were scheduled to meet today to draft compromise legislation imposing economic sanctions on South Africa. Congressional leaders hoped to enact a bill before week's end.

percent last week as the market shed $5.8 billion in the wake of Botha's decision to invoke emergency rule in 36 regions of the country. American and British investors sold South African holdings and went into Canadian and Australian gold, they said. The market rallied Monday from what Johannesburg dealers considered an "overreaction" to the state of emergency, but shares slid dramatically again Tuesday. Shares in the giant Vaal Reefs mine, the world's biggest gold mine, lost $3.25 overnight to open at $81 Tuesday, dealers said. THE HEAVIEST selling came from the United States, where investors appeared to have lost confidence in the South African market. In another development, Law and Order Minister Louis Le Grange announced in Port Elizabeth he would introduce new government restrictions within the next few days on funerals for black riot victims. After touring riot-torn black townships in the area about 600 miles south of Johannesburg, Le Grange said he would limit the number of people allowed to attend funerals. Funerals for well-known black dissidents killed by police have drawn crowds of up to 60,000 people. With most forms of political protest outlawed in South Africa, funerals have become platforms for leading dissidents, including Tutu, to attack the policies of the government. In a telephone interview, Tutu said the restrictions "will merely exacerbate an already difficult situation."

BEUKES HAS been in Washington for about two months but had yet to present his credentials to the White House. In Washington, a White House spokesman said the administration had no comment. The United States recalled Ambassador Herman Nickel from Pretoria June 15 to protest a South African military raid into neighboring Botswana the previous day. The U.S. administration said last week Nickel would not return until white-ruled South Africa ends its 10-day-old state of emergency in black areas of the country that had led to the arrest of 1,259 people — nearly all of them blacks. The Reagan administration last week called for the white-minority government to end the state of emergency imposed July 21 around Johannesburg and Port Elizabeth. Meanwhile, dealers on the Johannesburg Stock Exchange said U.S. investors are dumping South African gold shares at a rapid pace in response to a state of emergency. DEALERS SAID a cautious rally was thrown into reverse by President Pieter Botha's refusal Monday to negotiate with Nobel Peace Prize winner Bishop Desmond Tutu over the crisis. "Botha's refusal to talk to Tutu seems to have gone down particularly badly in the United States," one dealer said. "U.S. investors are dumping major gold shares on a massive scale." Stock exchange dealers said total capitalization fell almost 10

Police reported continuing unrest in the Cape and Transvaal provinces Tuesday. Officers fired tear gas to disperse black students stoning cars on a public road outside Cape Town's University of the Western Cape and said there were incidents of stoning and arson near Johannesburg. Police announced 54 more arrests of blacks, bringing to 1,259 the total number of people arrested since July 21.

China's output grows 23 %

PEKING—China's industrial output so far this year jumped 23 percent for a record performance, but energy shortages hampered further expansion, officials announced Tuesday.

Chinese industrial production from January through June reached a record total of $142.3 billion, State Statistical Bureau spokesman Ma An said.

Afghan rebels strike airport

NEW DELHI, India — Afghan rebels attacked Soviet forces at Kabul airport in a rocket and machine-gun assault that triggered a heavy Soviet artillery bombardment, Western diplomats said Tuesday.

Rebels in Pakistan said 11 Soviet and Afghan soldiers were killed in the attack at the fortified airport Saturday.

Immigration bill approved

WASHINGTON—The Senate Judiciary Committee Tuesday approved a bill to grant amnesty to millions of illegal aliens despite concern by Hispanic groups that proposed sanctions in the bill would lead to job discrimination.

Before its 12-4 approval, the committee amended the immigration bill to require that legal status be granted to qualified aliens within three years of enactment.

Military resumes payments

WASHINGTON—The Defense Department said Tuesday it has paid about $100 million for expenses to the General Dynamics Corp. after receiving a pledge the corporation will no longer make claims for such items as advertising and executives' trips on corporate jets.

The Pentagon accounting rules, under which unallowable expense claims previously were permitted, are "ludicrous," Assistant Navy Secretary Everett Pyatt said.

GAO settles discrimination

WASHINGTON—The General Accounting Office will pay $3.5 million to 300 present and past black employees who charged they were denied promotions because of racial discrimination, officials said Tuesday.

The GAO, responsible for evaluating government operations, also agreed to promote 32 blacks who still work for the agency.

Judge ends CBS takeover

ATLANTA—A federal judge Tuesday refused to block a move by CBS to buy back 21 percent of its own stock and thus apparently ended a bid by cable television entrepreneur Ted Turner for a hostile takeover of the network.

U.S. District Judge Robert L. Vining Jr. said that the buy-back scheme was not against the stockholders' better interests.

Maddox fears he has AIDS

ATLANTA—Former Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox said Tuesday he fears he may have gotten AIDS from drugs used at a Bahamas cancer clinic where 1,000 people were patients.

Maddox, 69, was treated at the clinic where blood-derived drugs they used were found to contain the AIDS virus.

Fire report blames MOVE

PHILADELPHIA—A Fire Marshal's report released Tuesday said the fire that destroyed 61 homes on May 13 was started when a police bomb ignited a container of gasoline atop the house of the MOVE group.

The report said the explosion of the "entry device" dropped from a police helicopter caused a container marked "gasoline" to ignite, resulting in the fire.

Rash of obscene calls plague city

By David Roll
Staff Writer

An obscene phone caller posing as a doctor harassed Iowa City women last week in a scheme that may be connected with 200 obscene calls reported this year.

The caller says his name is Dr. Scholz and that he is researching breast cancer, according to Karla Miller, coordinator of the Rape Victim Advocacy Program.

After asking women innocuous questions about their age, height and weight, the caller asks them about their breast size and the call turns obscene, she said.

Women called by the man should hang up and notify police if they get any repeat calls, said Detective Sergeant Craig Lihs of the Iowa City police.

WHEN A WOMAN receives an obscene call, police patrols are told to drive by the person's home several times during the next eight hours.

"I've tapped a lot of phones and just haven't had any luck," Lihs said. Even in homes where people say they have received six or more calls a day, taps have not turned up the caller, he said.

"Apparently he's very slick about how he goes about asking his questions," Miller said. "It's somebody who's using information in a well-rehearsed manner."

The caller may be the same person who plagued women with a different ploy earlier this year, Lihs said. "I think it's the same guy we had all along," he said. "Most of July he's been pretty quiet up to a week ago."

Earlier this year, a caller told women he was from the Bali Bra Co. and asked them questions about their bra size, Miller said.

"ONE OF TWO things happens," Miller said. "Either the call turns obscene or he calls up months or even years later." Some women have been called once a month for several months, she said.

In other calls, a man calls women listed in the UI student directory and tells them he knows where they work and other facts about them.

"Then he threatens to come over if they hang up or to kill them if they hang up," Miller said.

The man has never carried out any of his threats, Lihs said.

"But if it's the same guy, where along the line is he going to get tired of making the calls and start going out to people's houses? I don't know," he said. "Just because he hasn't, doesn't mean that he won't."

THE IOWA CITY police have received about 200 reports of obscene calls since February 15. The last rash came in February and March, but the problem has been going on for six or seven years, Lihs said.

The Rape Victim Advocacy Program has received 25 complaints in the last year, up from 14 complaints the previous year. But many more obscene calls are not reported, Miller and Lihs said.

"It makes you more aware of being vulnerable," Miller said. What's notable about the increase in obscene phone calls is the fact that "these are very frightening callers" and women are not accepting it as "just part of life," she said.

An Iowa City man reported to Iowa City police Monday evening that several hundred dollars of tools were stolen from the back of his pick-up truck, which was parked in his garage.

N.E. "Doc" Dawson, 2809 Friendship St., told police that $400 worth of hand tools, a $200 right-angle drill and a saw valued between $180 and $200 were stolen.

Also taken was a Milwaukee hammer-drill valued between $175 and $180 and an eight-piece set of Kline nut drivers.

Theft report: Christina Bennett, 1116 E. Jefferson St., reported to Iowa City police Tuesday afternoon that her residence was broken into Monday morning.

Stolen was a $125, 15-inch RCA color television set; a $50, ladies, quartz Timex watch; a $40 white cotton coat and $2 in change.

Damage report: Robert Axmeer, 928 E. Davenport St., reported to Coralville police

Monday evening that his antique tractor was damaged while it was parked at the intersection of 10th Street and Boston Way.

Damage to the tractor totaled $300.

Theft report: David Vandekieft, 602 Westgate St., reported to Iowa City police that his $250, blue, Raleigh 10-speed was stolen from his residence.

The bike had been locked in place but the chain was cut.

Theft report: Tumaini Basaninyenzi, 1610 Oakwood Village Condominiums, Coralville, reported to Coralville police Monday afternoon that his $85, blue, Huffy Strider 2000 10-speed bicycle was stolen from his residence.

A Montezuma, Iowa, man made an initial appearance Tuesday in Johnson County District Court on the charge of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

David K. Watts, 19, was observed by Iowa City police driving the wrong way in the 100 block of East Washington Street early Tuesday morning.

After police stopped the vehicle, Watts was given a field sobriety test but failed. Watts was also charged with going the wrong way on a one-way street.

Watts' preliminary hearing is scheduled for Aug. 13 and he was released on his own recognizance.

Jeff Lynn Jeffries, 34, Altoona, Iowa, made an initial appearance Tuesday in Johnson County District Court on the charge of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

Jeffries stopped his vehicle on Highway 80 near Tiffin Monday for an apparent mechanical failure, according to court records.

Jeffries failed field sobriety tests, court records state. Jeffries' preliminary hearing is scheduled for Aug. 9 and his bond was set at $1,000.

Ronald Samuel Keithley, 54, Cedar Rapids, pleaded guilty Tuesday in Johnson County Magistrate Court to public intoxication, public urination and interference with official acts.

Iowa City police Monday afternoon responded to a report of a man causing problems at QuikTrip, 25 W. Burlington St., court records state.

Keithley was found to be intoxicated by officers. The police reported that Keithley urinated on the window, sidewalk and entrance door of the convenience store. Keithley told officers he urinated because he "had to go too bad," court records state.

When officers asked Keithley for some identification, he swore at the officers. He was then taken to the Johnson County Jail.

Keithley was sentenced to serve two days in jail and pay $60 in court costs.

Interim hours announced for UI facilities, services

Schedules for several UI facilities will change during the break between summer and fall semesters, Aug. 3 to 25.

The Main Library will be open weekdays from 7:30 a.m. to 10 p.m., Saturdays from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Sundays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The north entrance will be closed from Aug. 3 to 25, and will be open until 6 p.m. on Aug. 26 and 27. Departmental libraries will post hours of operation.

The Union will operate on interim hours Aug. 3 to 25. Regular hours will resume Aug. 26. The Union's Iowa House will remain open during break.

The Field House will be open 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Aug. 3 to 25 and will be closed on the weekends. The Recreation Building, Field House Pool, Canoe House and Halsey and Mayflower Pools will be closed Aug. 3 to 25.

Cambus Red and Blue routes will run every half-hour on weekdays from 6:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. Oakdale and Pentacrest routes will be unchanged, except the Oakdale route will stop running at 9 p.m. The Hawkeye Court route will run on the half-hour from 6:30 to 10 p.m. The A.M. Hospital route will provide service from Hancher and Carver-Hawkeye Area commuter lots from 6:15 to 8 a.m. and 3:20 to 5:30 p.m.

Hancher Box Office will be closed Aug. 3 through 25. No tours of the auditorium will be offered during that period.

Old Capitol and the Museums of Art and Natural History will maintain regular hours.

Folk art lives through apprenticeship program

Three Iowa Citizens will be learning traditional folk art forms from recognized masters through $10,500 worth of Folk Arts Apprenticeship grants recently awarded by the Iowa Arts Council, officials said Tuesday.

The Folk Arts Apprenticeship program serves to encourage preservation of traditional folk art forms in danger of being lost or forgotten. The program is supported by funds from the National Endowment for the Arts and the State of Iowa. Through the program, art forms as diverse as fiddling, Mexican folkloric dance, bobbinlace making, woodturning and Czech egg decorating will be learned.

Area apprentices studying with master folk artists include the following: Michael J. Haverkamp, $900 to assist in study with David F. Marsh in clawhammer-style banjo.

David F. Marsh, $1,650 to study three-finger melodic banjo with Bob Black.

Daniel L. Bray, $480 to assist in study of woodturning with Richard Reeves.

Senior citizens sought for state fair arts show

Singers, dancers, instrumentalists and humorists are being sought by the Iowa Commission on the Aging for the Performing Arts Show to be held at the Iowa State Fair Aug. 20.

The only criteria for these sought-after amateur participants is that they be 60 years of age or older.

The performing arts show will be held on Older Iowans' Day at the State Fair and is "a fun day designed especially for Iowa's senior population," according to Karen Tynes, executive director of the commission.

The performing arts show is an annual feature produced by the Iowa Commission on the Aging in cooperation with the Iowa State Fair Board. Persons interested in performing should contact Amelia Simonini at 914 Grand Ave., Des Moines, 50319, or phone (515) 281-5187 by Aug. 9.

Hypercholesterolemia
Hypercholesterolemia is a condition in which too much cholesterol, a fatty wax-like substance, is circulating in the blood. Cholesterol is manufactured by the body, and comes from animal substances, such as meat, egg yolks and whole milk dairy products. When the amount of cholesterol becomes excessive, it is deposited on or in the lining of the arteries with other fatty substances. Over a period of years, the lining of the arteries becomes thicker and harder, and the channel through which the blood flows is narrowed. When an artery which supplies the heart with oxygenated blood closes off, a heart attack results.

UI program for business students permits faster degree attainment

By Carolyn Hardesty
Staff Writer

A UI program may provide the key of both worlds for students who see their eventual future in business but who want to pursue undergraduate degrees in the College of Liberal Arts.

The Accelerated Professional Track is the brain child of UI Associate Dean and Director of the Masters in Business Administration Program Eleanor Birch. Part of the reason for initiating the program was to foster the growth of the business program while maintaining or increasing its quality.

But Birch was also struck by the findings of studies conducted by Stanford University, American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and others. "The most successful executives are those with broad liberal arts backgrounds," she said. Recently graduated students with specializations in business areas are hired at higher salaries, but Birch said after ten or 15 years, those with a liberal arts background are making more money.

BIRCH SAID one asset of the local program is its lower cost. "Students get a good value for their dollar here. I've heard that often," she said.

Another advantage, Birch said, is that APT is a potentially faster way to earn the degree. A conventional on-campus MBA takes two full years to complete. Under the APT, it is possible to shorten the time by one semester and maybe more depending on an individual's schedule.

In looking for participants for the APT, Birch said, "We will identify competent, able, mature students at the end of their sophomore or beginning of their junior year." She said it was important to realize the College of Business is not trying to change the minds of students who want to pursue a life in academics, but many liberal arts students anticipate a business career and perhaps expect eventually to earn an MBA.

If students want to begin studying for an MBA before graduation, the APT may be for them.

APT participation is combined with a student's present academic program. They retain their major advisor and also are advised on the eight 190-level courses required for an MBA and which they can take as undergraduates if they have available elective hours.

IN ADDITION to shortening graduate time in the program, another incentive is money. When applying for admission to the graduate MBA program, students are also considered for fellowships sponsored by businesses.

This sponsorship guarantees them $1,000 per semester and $700 for a summer school session. The program has benefits for both the individual and the company, Birch said. "The business has first claim to having that student for a cooperative education experience."

All APT students are required to have at least one cooperative education experience, where they spend a summer or a semester working for a business.

Companies currently participating in APT include Norand Computers, Arthur Anderson, Merchant's National Bank and National Computer Systems.

THE PROGRAM which began this past spring has 13 students, all of whom have high grade point averages but whose majors vary from biomedical engineering to communication to art. Jana Wessels, coordinator for graduate admissions in the College of Business Administration, said the response to the program has been very good.

"I'm from liberal arts myself and I'm pleased to see this connection," Wessels said. Administrators and faculty from the UI College of Liberal Arts were told about the program in luncheon meetings during the spring.

Branstad hopeful of farm support

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gov. Terry Branstad said he is hopeful of action after a meeting Tuesday in which he told Vice President George Bush there could be "massive" farm liquidations unless a credit crunch is eased.

"He (Bush) said he would review the material we gave him and share it with the cabinet council," which is looking at possible steps on farm credit, Branstad said. "I'm hopeful we can get some action."

Branstad spent time with Bush and with two presidential assistants and said the meetings were devoted to describing the problem and possible solutions.

The governor said he and Bush talked about two ideas. One is to buy down interest rates so a farmer's income is large enough to cover his debts. Another is to create a corporation that would take over land when a mortgage is foreclosed and could lease it back to the original farmer, thus keeping it off the market and keeping land prices from falling further.

"WITHOUT SOMETHING like that, liquidations this fall could be massive," Branstad said.

The governor referred to a recent analysis which said there could be disruptions in the form of higher interest rates and up to 500,000 more unemployed people if farm income falls a few billion dollars and leads to foreclosures and billions of dollars in loan defaults.

Branstad is scheduled to meet Wednesday in Sioux City, Iowa, with the governors of Nebraska, South Dakota and Wyoming to discuss the problems of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank in Omaha, Neb., which plays a major role in farm finance in the four-state region.

It has raised interest rates to offset bad loans and is considering consolidating Land Bank and Production Credit Association operations. Other members of the Farm Credit System are considering a $340 million aid package for the Omaha bank.

"We're going to be asking some tough questions of (Omaha FICB president) John Harling about what's happening," Branstad said.

Cowboys and Africans

*For God's sake let us sit upon the ground
 And tell sad stories of the death of kings!*

— William Shakespeare, "King Richard II," III, ii, 155-6

Perhaps we are fortunate enough to be witnessing the first death-gasp of apartheid. But why are the white South Africans so blind to the crisis they face?

We in the United States could understand the white South African better if we think about how our own history might have been different.

Suppose that, as in South Africa, the white settlers in the United States had taken the native population and — instead of slaughtering them as they did — used them as beasts of burden.

The reservations, our version of the tribal homelands, would now be burgeoning with impoverished Indians whose only hope would be getting a job working for the whites. The whites would have Indian butlers and maids. Industries would hire Indians at a pittance of a white person's wage.

Under this system, the few whites would enjoy the highest standard of living in the world, while the many Indians would survive on the worst.

But after a hundred years of such wage-slavery, the Indians would remember how they used to rule the land before the arrival of the white people. And they would hit the warpath again.

Our president would say: "The Indians are being used by the Soviets. All their radical leaders are communists." And most of the white population would believe him.

We would try to install Indian leaders and police to give the semblance of a transfer of power, but we would never talk of when they would rule again.

The Indians would know that time was on their side. If the Jews could return to Zion, Mother Earth could return to the Indians.

But in reality, it has been much different. As Vine Deloria pointed out in Custer Died for Your Sins, whites in the United States treated the Indians as wild animals and hunted them almost to extinction. The blacks were used by the whites as beasts of burden and wrenched them from their African homes.

Life in the United States differs from life in South Africa only by degree, not by kind. The unemployment rate among blacks who are the same age as UI undergraduates is close to 50 percent. Women make only half the income that men do. And the remnants of the Indian empires remain sovereign on the barren reservations that the whites put them on only a hundred years ago.

Apartheid is heinous and must not be tolerated. But when you point a finger at the white South Africans, three other of your fingers point back at you.

Slick solution

Ten years ago the question was: What should be put on the vacant urban renewal land parcel on Linn Street between the public library and the parking ramp? Today the Iowa City Council is still in the dark.

Nine years ago the council hired urban renewal consultants Zuchelli and Hunter, whose latest report lists three options for the site: "Mixed use" (a building housing shops and offices or semi-luxury apartments), "the fairy godmother solution" (the site being chosen by a major department store, financial institution or corporate headquarters), or leaving the site vacant.

But the report says shops and offices downtown already have a high vacancy rate; similarly, it is unlikely that a fairy godmother will appear. Needless to say, the vacancy option seems empty.

The consultants haven't provided any more of a solution than the council. Since September 1976, Zuchelli and Hunter have been paid $279,454.79. That seems a hefty sum for the level of creativity displayed. The consultants gave us the special ambience of the Old Capitol Mall, the Holiday Inn and the parking ramps. So should the council give them the go-ahead for the next report?

Councilor Clemens Erdahl suggests an amphitheater and skating rink. A lot of people would use and enjoy those facilities, and a central location would be ideal. Erdahl has the right idea.

Not censorship

To the Editor:

Much to the satirical discontent of Michael Humes, the recent anti-porn activities will not be so easily labeled as book burning. It is not censorship if the activists are seeking. If such brilliant critics as Humes could be troubled to actually investigate what they are belittling, this would become obvious.

The activists merely ask that unabashedly misogynist materials be placed in more appropriate places than QuikTrip magazine racks. Possible locations include the annual Amnesty International reports or next to Ku Klux Klan literature in public libraries. Although the content of these magazines is nothing less than abhorrent, that in itself is not the issue. What concerned people everywhere are protesting is the fact that they are available as veritable handbooks on sexual torture to anyone who can pass as 21.

Legal marijuana is high priority

IT'S THE LEAST debilitating of all common intoxicants and has never accounted for a substantiated drug death.

Socially and medically, alcohol and tobacco are considered more dangerous, and the substance is said to have medicinal value in treating glaucoma, migraines, hypertension, epileptic seizures, insomnia and relieving the effects of chemotherapy. It has the potential to replace about three-fourths of the prescription drugs on the market today.

What is this wonder drug?

None other than the seven-leaf substance familiar to virtually every student, used regularly by an estimated 25-35 million Americans: marijuana.

Yet the greatest danger associated with pot-smoking, it appears, is the threat of arrest and imprisonment. More than 400,000 people are arrested each year in connection with marijuana laws.

MARIJUANA POSSESSION is a serious misdemeanor in Iowa, and although Iowa City Police Chief Harvey Miller admits that "most people who use it aren't going to get caught," 47 unlucky Iowa City tokers have been charged with marijuana-related offenses since last July. Though most of these were slapped with sentences more lenient than the $1,000 fine and one-year jail sentence possible for possession under Iowa law, they suffer criminal records for their "crime" nonetheless.

The National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws was formed in 1970 to eliminate marijuana prohibition, and in 1984 a UI chapter was founded. While the group had only two or three active members at that time, according to UI NORML chair Doug McVay, membership grew to "upward of 100" people. This year, "unlike the other progressive groups whose funding got chopped, our funding got cut very, very little," McVay said.

THE IOWA CITY chapter will consider an initiative in the fall to decriminalize marijuana within the city limits, similar to a resolution passed June 2 in Columbia, Mo. Such a proposal would be of substantial benefit not only to the thousands of Iowa City ghanja-imbibers, but to all citizens.

Unlike alcohol, which has been cited as causing vandalism and violence, use of the weed is a generally peaceful pastime. In fact, as any of those who have tried it know, it tends to relax and pacify users. According to Sgt. Donald W. Hogan of UI Campus Security, marijuana use is "no doubt widespread around here," but enforcement officers "just haven't had any problems with it."

DESPITE THIS, an estimated $4 billion is spent each year to enforce pot laws in the United States — money that could be used to fight real crimes — yet these efforts have been quite impotent. This prompted Mervin Manby, a retired official of the United Nations Division of Narcotics Drugs, to say in 1984: "Perhaps it's time for a change. The drug situation is getting worse."

Burt Neal, NORML office manager in Washington, D.C., said: "Overall, I think basically everyone's getting sick of Ed Meese asking for $100,000 more to fight the war against drugs... Basically, people are beginning to realize the whole thing is an absolute failure."

MARIJUANA LEGALIZATION has the backing of such notables as former Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., conservative columnist William F. Buckley and renowned pediatrician Dr. Benjamin Spock. In 1982 a National Academy of Sciences panel stated: "Existing evidence indicates that partial prohibition has been as effective in controlling consumption as complete prohibition and has entailed considerably stronger social, legal and economic costs."

The American Bar Association, the American Public Health Association, the American Medical Association governing board, the National Council of Churches, the American Academy of Pediatrics, the National Education Association and the National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse are among the many that have recommended legalized pot-smoking, as well.

It appears, therefore, that advocating marijuana legalization does not hold the stigma it once did — if it ever did. Yet we haven't seen much activity in the area as of late, and it's time to start taking a stand to obtain a right that should be ours.

"IN THE ACTIVIST community, marijuana is an issue that's very lightly touched on," McVay said. "Marijuana's illegal, and activists are afraid to touch on that. Some activists are quite concerned about being connected with something that's — oh-my-gosh — illegal."

"The reason I'm involved," said McVay, who is spending his summer working on the Oregon Marijuana Initiative, "is because I smoke marijuana and I'm being considered a criminal. As long as I'm being considered a criminal for something I don't consider a criminal act, I'll give it my best shot to change it."

Mike Reilly, former NORML leader at Iowa State University, said "no one wants to damage their personal life by becoming an advocate" of marijuana. He also claims there are more important issues for activists to work for: "I'd rather go out and protest South Africa and get high afterwards."

OK, MAYBE THE marijuana issue doesn't compare in global scope to the atrocities of apartheid

South Africa or U.S. intervention in Central America. Nevertheless, fruitless laws are interfering with our right to engage in an activity that the government has no right to control. And by working to bring about legalization of the giggles-smoke, activists would be working to bring about positive social benefits, as well.

First and foremost is the impact marijuana legalization would have on the troubled Iowa economy. According to McVay, Iowa's hemp crop is worth $200 million to $250 million annually. Former NORML director George Farnham said if sold to the state, taxed and marketed, this crop could eliminate 60 percent of the state's budget deficit and nationally, more than 300,000 jobs would be created. "Legislators who never even considered decriminalization bills are now supporting marijuana legalization bills for economic reasons," he said.

IN ADDITION, POT dealers would be forced from the underground, bringing those tax dollars into the economy. This would solve the problem of users of the mild drug being exposed to heavier drugs, as well, according to a 1982 report by the National Science Academy. More adolescents would be "introduced to the drug through families and friends who practice moderate use," the report stated.

These users would also be allowed the benefit of education on the use and abuse of the substance. As long as marijuana remains illegal, according to Reilly, campus education programs similar to Drinking Responsibility in College cannot operate. "That's what sucks," he said. "You can talk about smoking and booze, but marijuana's against the law — you can't talk about it." In fact, you can't even slap a surgeon general's warning on the baggie the stuff usually comes in.

ON A MORE PERSONAL level, I find moderate use of the love weed to be an enjoyable and relaxing pastime. When I decide to smoke a bowl in the privacy of my home, I feel it's my right to do so. I'm willing to join the Iowa City initiative that would allow me this privilege, and all self-respecting pot smokers should actively support it, as well. If we don't come out of the closet, we'll be smoking in the closet forever.

Nicaraguan peasants land reform

By Tom Fate

WHEN I ARRIVED BACK in the states after spending six weeks in Nicaragua, the first thing I did was scan the Kansas City airport for a newspaper. I was met by the following headline in the Kansas City Star: "President Decries Terrorist Alliance." The article quoted President Reagan as saying Nicaragua was among an emerging confederation of terrorist states.

Reagan said this confederation was engaged "in acts of war against the government and people of the United States. And under international law, any state that is the victim of acts of war has the right to defend itself." He went on to say that "all of these states are united by a simple criminal phenomenon — their fanatical hatred of the United States, our people, our way of life and our international stature."

I understand the president was still a little distraught over the slaying of four Americans in El Salvador and the hostage crisis in Beirut. But as far as Nicaragua is concerned, these flag-waving, apple pie accusations have absolutely no basis in fact.

IT IS EASY TO THROW the communist blanket over any country you don't understand — and then assume this supposed communist state is probably terrorist. But it is more difficult to explain what communism is; specifically, why a government or its people are communist. Why is Nicaragua a communist or terrorist state? On the basis of which Sandinista actions and/or policies was this determination made?

When the Sandinista government came to power in 1979, one of its commitments was to carry out a land reform program to address the grievances of hundreds of thousands of peasants. But in some regions of the country this reform was not rapid enough. The department of Masaya was a case in point.

Masaya, located in the central Pacific coast region, is one of the smallest and most heavily populated departments in Nicaragua. Masaya is also one of the areas in Nicaragua with the greatest number of agricultural proletariats (peasants who own no land and derive their sole income from working as agricultural laborers) and semi-

Guest Opinion

It is simply un-American to focus on the poorest sector of society.

proletariats (peasants who own some land, but not enough to sustain their family for the entire year).

PREDICTABLY, MASAYA HAS a high incidence of latifundios — big farms, part of which are not cultivated. This situation is the result of capitalist producers who, with the help of the state, forced smaller producers and indigenous people off their lands to create and consolidate the large latifundios to grow cash crops.

At the beginning of June 8,700 Masayan peasants asked the Sandinista government to turn over 11,656 acres of land that were either owned by private producers or the state. The Ministry of Agriculture Reform (MIDINRA) set June 14 as the date when it would give the peasants an official response.

On June 14 the peasants and their families marched into the central square of Masaya, eagerly awaiting the government's response. Jaime Wheelock, the head of MIDINRA, announced that 3,096 acres from the state and 8,560 acres from the private sector would be turned over to the peasants. (The government negotiated with the owners of the latifundios, offering to buy their land rather than expropriating it.)

The peasants are free to decide among themselves how the land will be worked: as cooperatives or individually. For the peasants present at the square, justice was finally done, after decades of exploitation. I think it is interesting to note how this terrorist/communist government treats its farmers. It is unfortunate that the family farms in Iowa and other states have not had similar support from the U.S. government.

THOUGH I WAS ONLY in Nicaragua for a short time, it became apparent to me that the Sandinistas have focused their concern and programs on the "have nots" — the very lowest economic sector of society. It was the "have nots" who recently received the land at Masaya.

When the Sandinistas launched their literacy campaign after the triumph, it was the "have nots" — those who had never had the opportunity to read — who benefitted. The free medical and health care programs were not developed for people who could afford these services previously. The neighborhood renovation and food distribution programs were not created for those who already had paved streets and milk for their children.

Somehow I get the feeling that this is what the United States views as wrong in Nicaragua. It is simply un-American to focus on the poorest sector of society. Over the last five years the Reagan administration has systematically slashed social programs geared for the "have nots" and simultaneously increased defense spending at an alarming rate. It seems clear where our priorities lie.

The American dream under the current administration has become one of paranoia and accumulation. It is not geared toward the "have nots" or the suffering. It is not a call to community. Maybe the United States is holding onto its standard of living and its international stature so tightly that it is choking. If the United States is fighting for democracy and freedom in Nicaragua, what are the Sandinistas fighting for? Rice and beans?

IF THE DISTRIBUTION of a country's budget reflects that country's priorities, it's time for us to re-examine ours. Nicaragua does not want to spend 40 percent of its federal budget fighting a war. It can't begin to afford it.

The Sandinista government simply wants to feed and clothe its people and rebuild its society. But Nicaragua does not have a choice. It has to defend its right as a democratically and freely elected government to survive. The United States, on the other hand, is denying that right and does have a choice. Communism and terrorism have become useless labels. It's time to listen to the people.

Tom Fate, a UI graduate student in expository writing, recently returned from Nicaragua.

PDP unaltered by orbit plans

HOUSTON, Texas (UPI) — The planned operation of the University of Iowa's plasma diagnostics package satellite will be largely unaffected by the space shuttle's lower-than-expected orbit, UI scientists said Tuesday.

NASA scientists said that most of the scheduled PDP scientific maneuvers will be completed, in spite of the fact that the Challenger likely will make two, instead of three, orbits around the PDP while the PDP is a free-flying satellite. Also, some of the PDP operations while on the shuttle's remote arm system will be curtailed.

The PDP, which was turned on and began making measurements from inside the shuttle's cargo hold at 7:40 p.m. Monday, was scheduled to be removed from the shuttle at 6 p.m. Tuesday.

The PDP will be held away from the Challenger by the shuttle's remote arm as it begins its scientific mission.

"WE'LL DO SOME tests, such as letting the boom antennas out to see that they work," said William Kurth, PDP project scientist.

"Then we will have several hours of rigorous scientific experiments while the PDP is out on the remote arm. For example, we will be looking at the way in which the shuttle disturbs the plasma and we will look at an electron beam fired from the shuttle's cargo bay," Kurth said.

The study of the interaction of an electron beam with the plasma is being conducted to simulate some of the processes that occur naturally in an aurora.

The PDP satellite, consisting of 14 scientific instruments designed and built at the University of Iowa, is scheduled to begin its free-flight investigation of the shuttle's interaction with the earth's upper atmosphere at 7:40 p.m. Wednesday.

Experiments conducted by the PDP will also deal with the effects of chemical releases from the shuttle's engines on the upper atmosphere.

U.S., Soviets bicker in Helsinki

HELSINKI, Finland (UPI) — The United States and Soviet Union accused each other Tuesday of violating the Helsinki Accords with Secretary of State George Shultz charging Moscow has "totally isolated" dissident Andrei Sakharov.

The clash between the superpowers dominated the first day of ceremonies marking the 10th anniversary of the signing of the Helsinki Agreement on European Security and Cooperation. But Eastern and Western diplomats noted the speeches contained predictable and not unusually hostile language.

The Helsinki accords—signed Aug. 1, 1975, by the United States, Canada and all European nations except Albania—recognized the post-war borders of Eastern Europe in return for promises of improved human rights.

SHULTZ AND SOVIET Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze met for the first time Tuesday, in Finlandia Hall at the opening of the anniversary ceremony. They shook hands and chatted for about two minutes through an interpreter, laughing heartily at each other's remarks.

In his address, Shultz sharply condemned Moscow for what he claimed was a pattern of breaking pledges to honor human rights and freedoms.

Citing "the barriers, the walls, the barbed wire and the weapons" erected by the East to divide Europe, Shultz warned that "tensions will exist so long as some persist in violating the most fundamental human rights." Shevardnadze said the Helsinki pact's human rights provisions are honored in the Soviet Union, where there is no "unemployment, poverty, homelessness, or discrimination based on race or nationality."

The ceremonies will continue through Thursday with speeches by the foreign ministers or their equivalents from the 35 nations that signed the accords.

acres of the site, groundbreaking will begin in September with completion expected by the summer of 1986, said Ralph Stoffer, project engineer for Southgate Development, which already owns the K-Mart building and the nearby liquor store.

The center would contain a 45,000-square-foot grocery store and 55,000 square feet of retail space. If the council doesn't approve the rezoning, Southgate will build a smaller "strip center," Stoffer said.

The rezoning request is the council's first attempt at "conditional zoning." Under a recently passed Iowa law, the city can ask the developer to agree to certain conditions before a site is rezoned.

ONE OF THOSE CONDITIONS is a proposal to close Hollywood Boulevard, the frontage road for Highway 6, between Keokuk and Broadway streets. The closing could cause a problem for a nearby office building.

"This is being done to benefit another property and I feel frankly that it's quite wrong," said Robert Hibbs, president of Hawkeye Investments, which owns the Colonial Park office building on Hollywood Boulevard.

If the street is closed, it will be difficult for elderly people to enter the Blue Cross/Blue Shield office in the Colonial Park building to get their medicare payments, he said.

The closing would also make it impossible for trucks to enter the parking lot for deliveries, he said. He asked the council not to close the piece of Hollywood Boulevard in front of his building.

Education

under the rug," he said.

Other Iowa educators said, however, that problems in elementary education have been ignored and a study is needed.

"I have no objection to it," said Ken Tilp, vice president of the Iowa State Education Association.

"Quite frankly, I think there should be more emphasis on the beginning of the learning process, as soon as kids get into school," said Tilp, who is a high school French teacher in West Des Moines.

Elementary school children are the "most neglected group," Tilp said.

The National Education Association has no official position on the possibility of "A Nation at Risk" Part II, but Nancy Young, a spokeswoman for the national agency, said, "We would welcome any report that would open the dialogue on the issues we're facing in elementary schools."

Japan

Japanese lawmakers, will prevent future deficit increases.

U.S. OFFICIALS reacted cautiously to the program, and expressed concern about the length of time needed to implement the measures.

"We see certain aspects of it at initial blush that hold promise," said White House spokesman Larry Speakes.

"While a long-term effect is welcomed, earlier implementation would resolve crucial trade problems confronting us today," Speakes said.

Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., chairman of the Senate Commerce, Science and Transportation Committee, said "the words sound great."

How To Get 2,000 Hours Of Great Music

Consider this: Drivers drive about two hours a day. Most listen to music as they roll along.

That adds up to 14 hours a week, or over 700 hours a year. Keep your car three years and that's over 2,000 hours of rock, classical, country western or whatever.

Our point: An hour invested now can save you, 1,999 hours of not-so-hot listening up the road.

So bring in your favorite cassette, The Rolling Stones or Beethoven. Kick back and take an Alpine test-listen.

Odds are overwhelming you'll be blown away. Thanks to advanced Alpine electronics and our expert installation techniques, together creating The Alpine Touch.

Take the short drive to our place. It beats 1,999 miles of rocky rock and roll, right?

For most, RAGBRAI is more than just another bike ride

By Carlos Trevino
Special to The Daily Iowan

There were more than 8,500 bicyclist involved with the Register's Annual Great Bike Ride Across Iowa-XIII. Completing the 540-mile ride was only a part of RAGBRAI, according to most riders.

"Some people would say it's a challenge to make it through," said UI junior Mike Owen. "I don't think it's a challenge. The big part of this is the friends you make and the relationships that develop on the ride," he said.

"As a rider, I think this has gotten too popular," Owen said. "On the first one I rode (RAGBRAI-VI) there were only around 5,000 people. Now it's getting out of control."

Gil Vasquez, who crossed the Mississippi River from Sterling, Ill., to join the road tour, agreed.

"THE SECRET'S OUT," Vasquez said. "This has been written up by everybody...Reader's Digest, Life magazine...so now a lot of people are joining the ride."

"Some of these people here you see here every year; a lot of friendships come out of this," he said.

So does a lot of money, according to local businesspeople.

When thousands of bicyclists rolled into Monticello, Iowa, on Friday they tripled the town's normal population and pumped in thousands of dollars for everything from bicycle repairs to popcorn.

When the bicyclists reached their final

"We go through 2,000 pounds of popcorn easy," said Jill Reade, and employee of Reiter's Popcorn stand.

Erma Skelley, of Skelley's general store in Monticello, said most of the riders bought pop and snack items. No beer was available. "I could have sold a whole keg if I had it," she said.

Although Skelley's didn't carry beer, there was no lack of it on any of RAGBRAI's campsites, rest areas and stopping points, which were dotted throughout the state.

destination — the Mississippi River at Clinton — it was time for tradition. And many rode into the river, some drank from it, others kissed in it, and some even reluctantly became wet T-shirt contestants.

"Well, that was a big one," said Owen of his seventh RAGBRAI tour. "I think everyone should go for it," he said.

'Blackout' profits from screenplay

By Merwyn Grote
Assistant Arts/entertainment Editor

HBO PREMIERE Films' latest production is "Blackout," a neatly done thriller that builds its suspense on an intriguing premise.

The story opens in a suburban Ohio home, still decorated with the remnants of a five-year-old's birthday party, where Lucy Vincent and her three children are found murdered. In a grotesque parody of domestic bliss, the four bodies are found posed before the television set in the basement family room. The apparent murderer is Ed Vincent, an upstanding family man and real estate broker, who has disappeared without a trace.

Days later, on a mountain highway in the Pacific Northwest, there is a violent car accident that leaves one passenger dead, burnt beyond recognition, and another alive but badly disfigured and suffering from amnesia. It is known that one of the men in the rented car was named Alan Devlin, but beyond that no other information can be gathered by the police. After a year of extensive plastic surgery, the amnesiac (Keith Carradine) is released from the hospital. He assumes the name of Alan Devlin, figuring that there is a 50/50 chance that that is his true name.

Within six years, Devlin has established himself in his new identity. He has married Chris (Kathleen Quinlan), a nurse at the hospital where he was treated, become the father of three children and established a successful real estate business. Devlin's new life remarkably duplicates that of the long lost Ed Vincent.

IN THE MEANTIME, detective Joe Steiner (Richard Widmark), the officer investigating the Vincent murders, has become obsessed with the crime. His obsession has apparently cost him his position on the force, but still he persists in a private search for the elusive Ed Vincent. One day he receives an anonymous tip that leads him to Alan Devlin. Convinced that he has found his quarry, Steiner sets out to prove that the gentle and loving Devlin is, or at least once was, the psychotic and potentially uncontrollable Ed Vincent.

But David Ambrose's tightly-written screenplay sets up a perversely amusing double dilemma. Steiner's case is based purely on circumstance, with no shred of concrete evidence to support his suspicions. But Devlin has no way of proving to Steiner, or himself, that he is not Ed Vincent.

AS STEINER begins to doubt Devlin's guilt, Devlin himself begins to doubt his innocence. Chris is faced with the prospect that the man she has loved deeply for six years might pose untold dangers to her and her children. And it becomes obvious that Chris' old boyfriend, Mike Patterson (Michael Beck), the chief of police in Devlin's new hometown, still carries a torch for Mrs. Devlin and is more involved in the investigation than is at first apparent. As Devlin's guilt seems more evident, so does the likelihood that he is being meticulously framed by either Steiner or Patterson.

It is quite a neat mystery; it seems no one can truly solve the case except for Ed Vincent, who may be buried in Devlin's subconscious mind, who may have died years earlier in the auto accident, or who may not even be a physical part of the story at all.

The film cleverly manipulates the viewers' sympathies, allowing identification with all the major characters. Carradine, in an unusually amiable role, underplays his fears and self-doubts with skill, yet maintains an added touch of unstated menace. Quinlan deftly handles a role in which she must waver between fear and resolute faithfulness. There is even something sad and thoughtful about Beck's otherwise embittered old boyfriend. And Widmark's gracious, world-weary charm is always a welcome ingredient.

But the real star of the film is the screenplay itself. Coolly complimented by Douglas Hickox's smooth direction, it devilishly plays with the viewer, while never tipping its hand. "Blackout" is competent, highly entertaining thriller that keeps one guessing right up to its final revelation.

Arts column has local emphasis, gives readers chance to respond

IKNEW WHEN I picked up the phone it was going to be one of those calls. "I read your column about hearing Bruce Springsteen on Muzak today," he began, "and I have just one question: Who really gives a shit?"

There are probably many great ways to respond to opening lines like this, but I've never thought of any. I usually just respond with stony silence, and let the caller get whatever he wants to off his chest.

In this case, I quickly recognized the voice. It was the member of a local band who'd asked me to come hear his group perform a couple of times this spring. I like hearing new bands, and when invited like this I usually try to catch the gig, but when he called this spring it was right before finals and I just didn't have the time.

Allen Hogg

ment. But I resisted, because I sympathize with him. I really do. It's a bit of a Catch-22 for new bands: It's hard to get gigs if one doesn't have some press clippings, but it's hard to get press clippings if one can't get gigs.

So I try to write about local bands, and I like to put features about local arts happenings in the arts/entertainment section. This isn't just a matter of pandering to local artists, either. I believe this is also the best way the DI arts/entertainment section can serve its readers. There are, after all, lots of places people can go to get national arts and entertainment news — People magazine, Rolling Stone, "Entertainment Tonight"; I'd like to think the DI is the best place people can go to find out what's happening in the Iowa City arts world.

this mean we absolutely avoid the types of stories one can read elsewhere. DI readers don't, after all, live in a partial vacuum in which only Iowa City arts events exist, they are interested in what goes on around the world. So we do print film, television, record and book reviews, and occasionally United Press International stories about the Live Aid concerts, Madonna's nude photos or Rock Hudson's bout with AIDS. And, yes, we even print stories on seemingly trivial things like hearing Bruce Springsteen on Muzak, which, in this case, was used to illustrate a larger point, that is, that some things aren't as much fun if they become too popular.

BUT THE FIRST emphasis is on local happenings. And it is ultimately up to readers to let us know if the DI arts/entertainment section is cutting the mustard in this regard. That's why I sincerely thanked my caller after talking to him last week. It was input from a reader, a response, and he did indeed make me think about the arts/entertainment section's purpose and about how well that purpose is being fulfilled.

So here, reader, is a request: If you find the DI's arts/entertainment section coverage lacking, let us know about it.

ANYWAY, THE gist of his message was that why was I wasting space writing about a performer who already has millions of dollars when there are starving local artists who are dying for publicity? Why was I writing about hearing Bruce Springsteen on Muzak when I wouldn't write anything about his band?

My first impulse was to tell him what he could put his band around: The Daily Iowan is not some public relations rag; if he wants publicity, he can talk to the advertising depart-

THIS DOESN'T MEAN the DI arts/entertainment coverage is perfect. Most of the DI arts/entertainment staff members are students with lots of other commitments, and we can't always cover everything. Nor does

McGee, Clark pace Cardinals past Cubs

CHICAGO (UPI) — Willie McGee went 5-for-6, including a homer in a three-run first inning, and Jack Clark drove in four runs, including a three-run homer in the eighth, to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to an 11-3 romp Tuesday over the Chicago Cubs.

Kurt Kepshire, 8-6, scattered seven hits over eight innings to get the victory. The Cardinals supported him with 17 hits. McGee, who also scored three runs, lined a solo homer in the first and added an RBI double in a three-run fourth. He also singled in the second and eighth to raise his National League leading average to .345.

The Cardinals beat the Cubs for the seventh time this year without a loss. The Cardinals have won eight of their last nine. Clark had an RBI single in a three-run fourth in addition to his homer, his 20th of the season, in the eighth.

Kepshire, 8-6 this year and 4-0 in his career against Chicago, struck out four and walked three in pitching his first complete game of the year.

St. Louis jumped on rookie Steve Engel, 0-1, who was making his first major league start, with three runs in the first.

Riggins arrested for public intoxication

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Washington Redskins running back John Riggins was arrested last week in suburban Reston, Va., on a charge of being drunk in public. The Washington Post reported Tuesday.

Riggins was picked up by Fairfax County police early Thursday while riding in a car driven by Stuart Miller, who was charged with driving while intoxicated, the newspaper said.

Both men were released after appearing before a magistrate, and spent no time in jail, The Post said.

Whether a person charged with an alcohol-related offense is held at the jail is "a discretionary call on the part of the magistrate," Fairfax County Sheriff Wayne Huggins told The Post.

He said most people arrested on such charges spend "four to six hours at the jail, depending on how drunk they are."

Riggins, who lives in nearby Vienna, Va., declined comment in The Post report.

The running back has yet to reach a settlement on a contract with the Redskins, but he was expected to agree to a one-year contract Tuesday and report to the team's training camp in Carlisle, Pa., later in the day.

Thatcher moves to stamp out hooliganism

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and English soccer officials agreed Tuesday to study a system of identity cards at soccer matches in a move to stamp out hooliganism plaguing the country's national game.

Thatcher has urged soccer officials to tighten security and crowd control following two stadium tragedies in May — a riot by English fans in Brussels in which 38 people died and a stadium fire in Bradford that killed 56.

In a 90-minute meeting, Thatcher won the backing of English soccer officials for a feasibility study into identity cards and ways to improve security, including the introduction of closed-circuit television monitoring of crowds.

Bert Millichip, chairman of the English Football Association, said soccer club officials are "very serious" about introduction of the cards, but they want government aid to set up the card system.

He said Thatcher responded that the clubs should "put some of the cash down."

Fuller accepts Bears' backup position

PLATTEVILLE, Wis. (UPI) — Steve Fuller says he's accepted being number two behind starting Chicago Bears quarterback Jim McMahon.

"A lot of bad things would have to happen in order for me to start," Fuller acknowledged this week during a break in practice at the University of Wisconsin-Platteville.

"I have accepted that McMahon should play until he can't play," he said.

Fuller said it was difficult at first to accept his status as the backup quarterback, especially after playing a key role in leading to Bears to a division championship last year.

"Certainly it's difficult to accept after I've had a taste of starting," he said, referring to his four regular season and two playoff game starts last year while McMahon was out with a variety of injuries.

McMahon missed seven games last year, with injuries including a hairline fracture in his throwing hand and a kidney laceration. However, McMahon said he is healthy this year and looks forward to playing a full season.

Fuller completed 53 out of 78 passes for 595 yards during the regular season, but separated his shoulder in a Dec. 3 game against the San Diego Chargers and didn't see any more action until the playoffs.

"Fuller can be just as good a starter as anyone and I think he proved that last year," said Bears Coach Mike Ditka.

Southeastern coaches meet the media

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — As in the instance when the mountain had to come to Muhammad, the demise of the Southeastern Conference "Skywriters" tour has the league's football coaches coming this week to the media.

The coaches — including Georgia's Vince Dooley, who backed off plans to run for the U.S. Senate, but missing LSU's Bill Arnsparger, who is off on a cruise — will meet with sportswriters and sportscasters from the seven-state region over a three-day period to talk about their teams.

Spend a Buck tries to avenge setback

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Spend a Buck still may get a chance to avenge his upset loss Saturday in the Haskell Invitational Handicap by running in the Travers Stakes, Saratoga's summer version of the Kentucky Derby, owner Dennis Diaz said Tuesday.

"Hopefully, we'll still go to Saratoga," Diaz said during a telephone interview from his home in Tampa, Fla., during which he tried to explain the confusing chain of events that led to reports the nation's leading money-winner would run the Aug. 17 Monmouth Handicap instead of the Travers.

The Travers is also Aug. 17. "I'm going to go up to Saratoga Saturday, and on Saturday and Sunday I'll meet with (breeder and new part-owner) Will Farrish and decide from there," Diaz said.

A RUPTURED BLOOD vessel in the lung caused Spend a Buck to bleed profusely from the nose immediately following his 3 1/4-length loss to 35-1 longshot Skip Trial in the one and one-eighth mile Haskell at Monmouth Park.

That bleeding episode, the second in Spend a Buck's short but dazzling career, immediately put the Travers in question because New York state laws prohibit the use of Lasex, the drug used to prevent such arterial ruptures.

Still, Diaz and trainer Cam Gambolati said a couple hours after the bleeding stopped that they still planned to ship Spend a Buck to Saratoga this past Monday.

But Diaz said Farrish later talked him and Gambolati into delaying any decision about Spend a Buck's next race for a week while allowing the colt to rest at Monmouth.

"About 5 p.m. Sunday, we decided we were not going to ship Monday," Diaz said, "and I guess some race people just presumed from that move that we were definitely out of the Travers."

"Will and I decided that there was no rush, that we could wait a week before making any decision."

"Cam asked me today what to do about paying the (Travers) fees,"

Diaz added, "and I told him to pay it. Whatever the nominating fee is, we're going to pay it."

Diaz said his $4 million-winning Kentucky and Jersey Derbies champion has not bled any more since Saturday and is not troubled by the tender ankle he had before the Haskell.

"He's ice cold," Diaz said. "He came through the race very, very well. I talked to Cam about eight o'clock, and he said the colt's just all full of himself this morning."

THE FINAL DECISION on whether to run the Travers, Diaz said, will be based on the condition of the Saratoga oval.

"If it's a deep, laboring track like Monmouth was Saturday, instead of just a fast track, we can't run," Diaz said. "We'd be crazy. We can't let him get out there and run like that and run out of air and bleed or maybe even break down. And he would bleed, because he just won't quit."

If they do skip the Travers, he said, the Monmouth Handicap is a possibility, even though he and Gambolati would prefer not to run Spend a Buck, a young 3-year-old, against 4-year-olds.

"I'm not real thrilled about it because he's a June foal," Diaz said. "But where else are we going to run him? There's nothing else going on at that time. Everything is at Saratoga."

Many horse experts have suggested that the best course of action would be retirement. If he never runs again, Spend a Buck, with just two defeats as a 3-year-old, would remain a strong candidate to be named 3-year-old of the year.

"WE CAN'T DO THAT," Diaz said. "He's too good a horse. We think about it, sure. If we retired him now, he'd be the division champion. But we owe something to this horse. The people have fallen in love with him, and they want to see him. We'd like to see him win again."

Diaz indicated that Farrish might think about retirement more than he does.

"Mr. Farrish is naturally more conservative and pragmatic," Diaz said. "Cam and I are a lot more emotionally involved with the horse."

Under the proposal if player salaries increased by $14 million — $1 million over the limit — the pension contribution would be reduced to $24 million.

The owners own projections, however, show salaries increasing by $34 million a year. That would be $21 million over the salary limit and would reduce the owners' pension contribution to $4 million.

"WE DON'T FORESEE salaries increasing that much," said MacPhail, but he admitted the pension contribution could "theoretically" go down to zero.

"They (the players) don't get both ways. They either get it in salaries or they don't get it as part of the benefit contribution. The clubs can't afford to pay twice," MacPhail said.

The pension and salary plan also includes the owners' previous proposal to expand eligibility for salary arbitration from the current two-year requirement to three, he said.

The proposals are designed to slow down increases in players' salaries that now average $363,000 a year.

The 1984 combined player payroll of the 26 clubs was $248 million. The owners project that salaries will increase $34 million a year, without the slowdowns they propose, causing the teams' losses to mount to an estimated $86 million by 1988.

ACCORDING TO THE outline of the owners' proposal, if salary increases were held to $13 million a year — a 60 percent decrease from the projection — the owners' deficit would be "substantially eliminated." The plan would allow each team to spend $500,000 a year more than they currently do before the cutbacks in the pension contribution kicked in.

"We said that, in essence, what you're saying is that all the projected industry losses by '88 must be paid for by the players — every single last dollar just about," Fehr said he told the owners' team. "The answer was yes, that's right, that's what they want."

"It does not appear to me as if there's a serious attempt being made to address the differences between us," Fehr said.

The owners and players have been bargaining since November, trying to reach a new contract to replace one that expired Dec. 31. The pace of negotiations has quickened, with negotiators meeting almost daily since the players set a Aug. 6 strike deadline.

NOW, INSTEAD OF instead of facing a shot from the rough that is difficult to hit with any accuracy, you have a simple iron shot into the green.

Another problem golfers face in the summer is playing shots from the burnt out fairways. I often find myself hitting knuckle ball shots — shots you think you have struck well, but just seem to flutter through the air and end up 20 yards short of the green.

To counteract this, try hitting an extra club. If you have a 7-iron shot into the green, pull out your 6-iron and put an easy swing on the ball. I often find when I do this, knowing I have plenty of club in my hands to reach the green, I make better contact with the ball and hit it with more accuracy.

Playing golf on the sun-baked conditions we often face may not be as enjoyable as testing yourself against a lush course, but with the proper attitude and a little thought about your course management, it is easy to use the conditions to your advantage and improve your score markedly.

Festival chairman happy with backing

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — The National Sports Festival headed into its second half Tuesday with the chairman of the local organizing committee saying he hoped his home town would bid to host the competition in future years.

"Maybe I don't speak for the city fathers," said Dr. William Bankhead, "but I feel like we have had adequate demonstration that we can support the Festival. And if they come again I think we would have more support."

Tuesday was the lightest day on the Sports Festival schedule, with the evening swimming activity highlighting the proceedings.

Teen-agers Jeff Olsen and Molly Magill went after their fifth and fourth wins respectively. SOFTBALL ACTION continued as well, following the longest game in Sports Festival history. Teams representing the South and West played 21 innings in a game that started Monday night and finished at 2:24 a.m. Tuesday.

The contest took five hours and 48 minutes to play with both pitchers winner Tippy Borrego of Whittier, Calif., and loser Lori Stoll of Bellflower, Calif., going the distance. The South won, 1-0.

Players reject pension offer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Six days before the players' strike deadline, major league baseball owners finally put a pension offer on the table, but the players did not like what they saw — $25 million with an escape clause that could drop the contribution to zero.

In a half-hour meeting with player representatives, the owners' negotiating team offered to increase the owners' contribution to the pension and benefits fund from $15.5 million to $25 million a year, but they insisted on one catch.

If player salaries increase more than $13 million a year, the increase will be offset against the pension contribution.

"They must be crazy," said Donald Fehr, acting executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association.

THE PLAYERS asked for $60 million — one-third of the owners' national television revenues. While the owners' $25 million offer represents about a 60 percent increase over their previous contributions, the offer is less than 14 percent of the annual television package which averages $180 million a year.

Lee MacPhail, president of the Player Relations Committee which is negotiating for the owners, said the offer coupled the $25 million pension with the $13 million salary limit to enable the clubs to break even by 1988.

Cooney retires from boxing ring

NEW YORK (UPI)—Gerry Cooney, who became better known for staying away from the gym than for fighting, Tuesday announced his retirement from boxing.

Typically, Cooney made the announcement through his manager Dennis Rappaport. The reason he cited was an inability to get a rematch with heavyweight champion Larry Holmes.

Cooney, who is in New York, could not be reached for comment.

"He's very down about this," Rappaport said. "It's been a big portion of his life, he needs a couple of days to put the pieces together."

Cooney, a 6-foot-6 slugger who leaves the ring 27-1 with 24 knockouts, had been pursuing Holmes in an effort to erase the only blot on his career. Holmes, the current IBF champ, scored a 13th-round knockout of Cooney in their June 11, 1982 meeting.

BAD BLOOD developed between the two camps before that fight. Holmes was upset that Cooney received the same purse as the champion and at what he termed the challenger's attempts to turn the fight into a racial issue. He vowed he would not fight Cooney again for less than $25 million.

"That's a shame," Holmes said from his Easton, Pa. home when told of Cooney's retirement. "I thought he quit a long time ago. I don't feel sorry for him."

"The problem is, I kicked his butt and he never got over it. I ran him out of boxing."

Rappaport said Cooney could not get motivated for any opponent besides Holmes.

"Gerry couldn't get up for these other guys," Rappaport said. "He always wanted another shot at Larry but it has become abundantly clear that Holmes has no intention of giving Gerry a rematch. That being the case, Gerry felt he couldn't deceive the public by giving anything less than his best against other opponents."

"I THINK DEEP DOWN Gerry saw himself fighting Holmes in (Holmes') 50th fight. He knew it was his chance for redemption."

Holmes, who can match Rocky Marciano's 49-0 record by beating Michael Spinks Sept. 21, has said he'll retire after his 50th fight.

"Why doesn't somebody help Cooney out?" Holmes said. "All they have to do is pay me what I want, $25 million, and he could be No. 50."

Cooney is ranked seventh by the WBC and eighth by the WBA.

Cooney, a former two-time New York Golden Gloves champ, turned pro in 1977 and won his first 25 fights until the much-anticipated bout with Holmes.

After the defeat, which left Cooney depressed, he sat out nearly 27 months recovering from hand surgery and an assortment of other injuries before returning last September with a fourth-round knockout of Phil Brown. In his last bout, he stopped George Chaplin in two rounds last December.

RAPPAPORT SAID Cooney leaves boxing a multimillionaire.

"I hope when the people look at the disappointments, the injuries, the canceled fights, they also look at the successes," Rappaport said.

Cooney, who earned between $7-10 million for the Holmes fight, had trouble staying in the gym even before fighting for the title. In the two years before battling Holmes, Cooney had just three fights totalling 3 minutes and 43 seconds.

Cooney had been scheduled to fight New York heavyweight Eddie Gregg, either in late August or September. Gregg and his handlers were expecting final word on the fight Thursday when they instead heard of Cooney's retirement.

Gregg's trainer Eddie Gallagher said they had turned down offers to fight Marvis Frazier and Mitchell Green in order to fight Cooney.

"I'm angered but not shocked," said Gregg, a 31-year-old who is 22-1-1. "It's par for the course for Cooney, he's done it before."

Dry fairways can help golfers

Playing golf in the dry weather conditions that have plagued Iowa this summer can be a very frustrating experience. But if approached with the right attitude, you can use the dry fairways to your advantage and improve your scores.

It is not much fun to travel to your favorite links to spend a day playing off the weeds that creep into the fairways and seem to be more prominent than the grass. In Iowa, however, a golfer often needs to adapt to playing under these conditions as few courses have the necessary watering systems to keep the fairways green.

The bulk of the effort of the grounds crew has to go into grooming the greens and keeping them growing, and that is as it should be.

It is no fun, however, to tag a drive off the tee and watch it sail down the fairway and then take a hard bounce to the left and roll into the rough. That happens quite a bit when the fairways have dried out in the heat of the Iowa summer.

PLAYERS ARE THEN faced with two problems. One is playing the ball from a rough lie that is less than generous. The other problem is controlling your emotions.

The latter may be the more difficult to deal with. Part of the secret to successful golf is maintaining a good attitude, but this is often easier said than done.

I keep a good playing attitude in the summer by using the conditions to my advantage. After all, when the fairways are dry you can hit the ball farther with less effort than usual.

One way to use the dry conditions to your advantage is to keep your driver in your bag and tee off with a 3-wood. You don't sacrifice any distance and you gain accuracy. A well-played fairway wood from the tee will give you as much distance as the driver and you will find that it is much easier to control.
