U.S. outcry against S. African regime grows

Bill would ban importation of Krugerrands

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate and House negotiators Wednesday forged a compromise bill to impose economic sanctions against South Africa, including immediately banning the importation of Krugerrand gold coins. The House surrendered to the Senate's insistence against imposing an immediate ban on new investments by U.S. firms in South Africa. But in exchange the Senate agreed the gold Krugerrand may be banned immediately unless President Ronald Reagan certifies the white-minority government has made major progress, such as granting blacks full citizenship, in dismantling the racial separation policy of apartheid. Both chambers would have to approve the waiver of the ban.

BOTH THE SENATE and House measures ban U.S. bank loans to the South African government, the sale of computer equipment that its security forces may use to enforce apartheid and the export of American nuclear technology. Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said he would try to present the conference compromise to the Senate today, the last day of the session before a month-long break. The House would follow.

However, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., has warned that he may delay action on the conference report by a filibuster, blocking action until September.

The tentative agreement states there would be an immediate ban on the importation of the gold coin but that Reagan could waive the sanction for 12 months if he, found — and Congress agreed — that South Africa was making substantial progress in ending apartheid.

REP. PARREN MITCHELL, D-Md., dismissed the argument that sanctions will hurt the black workers and their families.

"People who love freedom are willing to bear suffering," Mitchell said in an emotional plea to the crowded conference in the Student says S. Africa always in crisis state

Since the beginning of this century, the legal structure of the South African government has been designed to systematically oppress that country's black majority, according to a UI student from South Africa.

Moyisi Majeke, a UI law student who fled South Africa in 1979, told an audience of about 40 at the Iowa City Public Library Wednesday night that the present state of emergency in his native country is simply a continuation of the white minority's disregard for human rights there. "South Africa is always in a state of emergency and always will be in a state of emergency until that government is destroyed," he said.

The recent attention given to South Africa is surprising, said Majeke, because the situation has not changed radically.

"IN LIBERAL DEMOCRATIC countries, a state of emergency is a suspension of constitutional rights. We never had any constitutional rights. There was nothing to be suspended. It (a state of emergency) limits access to courts. We never had any access to courts," he said.

UI scientists pleased with PDP results

UI scientists conducted virtually perfect scientific operations Wednesday, using the Plasma Diagnostics Package attached to the Space Shuttle Challenger's remote arm and continuing after the PDP was set into free flight.

The PDP was released from Challenger's remote arm at 7:10 p.m. Wednesday, and was expected to remain in free flight until 1 a.m. today. Although no data had been received from PDP at press time, UI researchers were calling the mission a "tremendous success."

Gary Galluzzo, UI Office of Public Information science writer, said the mood among the 20 UI researchers monitoring the PDP free flight from the Johnson Space Center in Houston was "joyous" Wednesday night.

He added: "We all watched it happen in amazement and then suddenly there was cheering and there were handshakes and pats on the back and everything was crazy. Everyone here is very happy with the way things are going up there."

DONALD GURNETT, project scientist from the UI, told The Daily Iowan in a telephone interview from Houston: "The entire PDP project looks like a giant success right now. In fact, the PDP portion of this mission has been perfect to this point."

Gurnett noted, however, several other missions on the shuttle have been less successful than the UI's experiments.

"There have been difficulties encountered," Gurnett said, pinpointing a malfunctioning instrument-pointing system as the root of problems encountered by several institutions.

The free-flight, scheduled to last nearly six hours, was expected to allow the PDP to take measurements while Challenger flew two roughly circular orbits around the PDP at distances of up to one-third of a mile. The shuttle's remote arm was extended to re-grapple the satellite and bring it into the cargo hold for a return trip to earth.

THE PDP — a 625-pound cluster of 14 scientific instruments — is being used to study the effect of the space shuttle's motion and emission gases on the earth's thin upper atmosphere.

Salvadoran troops kill rebels

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States, keeping President Reagan's vow to avenge the slaying of four Marines, gave El Salvador information that led to deadly reprisals against members of the rebel group who claimed the deaths, officials said Wednesday.

Salvadoran troops killed 21 members of the organization that said it attacked the Zona Rosa cafe in San Salvador June 19 that left four Marine embassy guards, two American businessmen and seven Salvadorans dead.

First word of the raids came Wednesday from Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who said in an interview with the Mutual Radio Network that some of the actual gunmen had been killed and captured.

HOWEVER, THE PENTAGON and Salvadoran military said later they did not know if any of those who took part in the attack had been captured or killed.

Nine other members of the group, the Central American Revolutionary Workers' Party, were captured during the series of raids by the Salvadoran army that began two weeks after the attack. Two of those were senior officials of the rebel group.

White House spokesman Edward Djerejian said Salvadoran troops "recently inflicted a major defeat on the guerrilla organization which planned and carried out" the June 19 attack.

Administration officials claimed U.S. involvement in the raids was limited to supplying intelligence to the Salvadoran government.

"THANKS TO the help of American intelligence the Salvadoran armed forces have dealt strong blows to the guerrillas, specifically to the Central American Revolutionary Workers' Party." See Terrorist, Page 5

Novel wine store to open in downtown area

By Jan. Mintzen
Staff Writer

Iowa City is scheduled to get a boost in its "spirits" this September when a new wine store opens downtown, but not all are enthusiastic about the new business.

Proprietor John Gillespie said Claret & Friends, to open at 223 Market St., will carry higher priced wines that may not be available in state liquor stores and private outlets.

"We think it's really interesting and important for people to have a broader selection of wines than they have had in the past," said Gillespie, who is a former director of the New York City Wine Board Information Bureau.

"We plan to have the largest selection of fine wines, $5 and over, of anyone in the state," Gillespie said. His 840-square-foot store will open with about 200 wines in stock, and he hopes to expand after that.

"WE'LL HAVE THE inexpensive wines also, but they won't have our priority," said Gillespie, who has written columns on wine consumption in newspapers and journals for the past 10 years and has done consulting work for wholesalers and retail wine sellers in Denver, Colo.

Paul Kaefring, manager of the Iowa City Liquor Store No. 52, 1922 Keokuk St., said the state-owned store carries more than "1,400 different items" and "approximately 800 wine items."

"It's kind of ironic that when the liquor department approached the (Iowa) City Council to see about opening a mini-mart (liquor store) downtown, there was a lot of opposition to it," Kaefring said. "Now there's going to be a lot more outlets downtown for wine and you don't hear any complaints from them anymore."

"I THINK IT should be an awful nice addition to the community," said Councilor Bill Ambrisco. "I think it's something that will add to the ambience of our downtown community. I wish him well."

Ambrisco also downplayed the possible increase in alcohol abuse that might arise from having a wine store downtown.

"Wine drinkers don't consider wine in the same category as other liquor... they consider it a foodstuff," he said.

"Wine is generally considered the beverage of moderation and we're going to encourage the drinking of wines with food," Gillespie said. "You'll have to go somewhere else for Mad Dog," a high-alcohol wine produced by Mogen David.

BUT ARTHUR SCHUT, executive director of the Mid-Eastern Council on Chemical Abuse, said, "Anything that encourages consumption encourages problems with alcohol."

There won't be undue problems because of the store's opening, Gillespie said, because "for one thing, we are not an on-premise drinking consumption establishment. And we won't sell closed containers of wine to people who appear to be intoxicated, because I just don't think that's good business policy."

Schut said he was not opposed to the new wine store opening in Iowa City, but "we did have a position opposed to private wine sales, though. The Iowa Substance Abuse Program Directors Association met and unanimously decided we were opposed to the legislation, primarily because the wholesaler

Bishop denounces the rich

MALAGA, Spain — The bishop of Malaga, saying jetsetters are turning summer parties into orgies, Wednesday urged them to stop flaunting their yachts, diamonds and sports cars on the Costa del Sol.

5 indicted for malfeasance

WASHINGTON — Five people, including two former Postal Service officials, have been indicted on bribery and racketeering charges in a scheme involving nearly $2 billion in computer contracts, prosecutors said Wednesday.

Weapons boost business

WASHINGTON — Factory orders climbed 1.9 percent in June, the second month in a row that weapons business significantly boosted the total, the Census Bureau said Wednesday.

Without including defense orders, which run independent of the state of the economy, the increase would be only 0.9 percent in June. Excluding defense orders in May would have pulled the 2.1 percent improvement down to 0.7 percent.

ISU Daily ruled not libelous

DES MOINES — The Iowa Supreme Court Wednesday threw out a $100,000 libel award against Iowa State University's student newspaper because the story was "substantially true."

The story reported that Laurie Hovey had been raped on the night of Jan. 26. Hovey's suit claimed that the article defamed her by reporting that she had been raped when in fact she was forced to perform oral sex.

Bombings commemorated by prayer services, bells

In commemoration of the 40th anniversary of the bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki on Aug. 6 and Aug. 9, the local Ecumenical Peace Committee is sponsoring a prayer service followed by a group procession.

The service will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 6, at the Zion Lutheran Church, 310 N. Johnson St., with the procession concluding at College Green Park.

The theme for the commemoration is "Remembering War... Envisioning Peace." Barbara Ruth, a spokeswoman for the event, said the theme is similar to Pope John Paul II's words of "to remember the past is to commit oneself to the future... to remember Hiroshima is to abhor nuclear war. To remember Hiroshima is to commit oneself to peace."

Area churches are planning to ring their bells for 10 minutes at the times of the bombings—8:15 a.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 6, and at 11:02 a.m. on Friday, Aug. 9.

Iowa River algae growth affecting city water

The recent bad taste and smell of Iowa City drinking water is being caused by algae in the Iowa River, city officials said.

"Excessive amounts of algae have been growing in the Iowa River because of warm weather and low water level," said Charles Schmadeke, public works director.

But the water is still safe to drink, Schmadeke said, and employees at the city water plant are working to get rid of the offensive taste and odor.

Two UI pharmacy pros earn national honors

Two associate professors in the UI College of Pharmacy recently received honors in their field.

Dennis Helling, head of the UI Division of Clinical/Hospital Pharmacy, has been chosen to chair an academic section of the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy. Mary Berg has been granted the "Career Achievement Award" from Kappa Epsilon, a national professional pharmacy fraternity.

Berg's research has led to the development of an improved charcoal therapy used in treating phenobarbital poisoning. UI College of Pharmacy Dean Robert A. Wiley said, "At a fairly early stage in her career, Dr. Berg has achieved a number of professional distinctions."

Helling's new position makes him responsible for planning annual meetings and developing policy for the clinical instruction section of the national pharmacy association.

Utility 'phantom taxes' climb near $49 million

Iowans paid just less than $49 million in 1984 for federal utility taxes which never made it to Uncle Sam, according to Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, and the Environmental Action Foundation.

"For every dollar Iowans were charged by electric companies for federal taxes, the utilities pocketed an average of 38 cents in phantom taxes," Harkin said. The phantom taxes refer to the difference between federal tax money collected from customers and the amount the companies actually paid after figuring tax breaks.

Iowa investor-owned utilities have now accumulated more than $600 million in phantom tax dollars," Harkin said. "In theory, much of the overcollected taxes are supposed to be returned to the customer or to the government within 30 years. In fact, an electric utility will be collecting more phantom taxes than they are returning year after year."

Seed firm moves to Iowa City

By David Roll
Staff Writer

Stauffer Seeds, Inc., will take root in Iowa City with the opening of its new national headquarters here today.

The firm's seventh largest seed-corn company closed a deal Wednesday to move into offices in the Eline Building, 507 Highland Ave., announced Stauffer President Tony Laos at a press conference at the Iowa City Civic Center.

Stauffer will bring seven employees from its current headquarters in Westport, Conn., and will hire eight additional employees after mid-August. The headquarters will be "operating smoothly" in about six months, Laos said.

"The possibility for growth is very good," Laos said, adding that Stauffer may eventually hire another 10 to 20 employees.

The company considered moving to Springfield, Ill., and Madison, Wis., before deciding to move to Iowa City. The proximity to the UI was important to the researchers who will work at the plant, Laos said.

"YOU HAVE TO put a lot of money into research to have the performance on the farm," he said.

The Iowa City airport and the

"I think the long-term economic impact is considerable," says Ray Muston about Stauffer Seeds' decision to move to Iowa City. "They're going to have a very, very important presence in the community."

"work ethic" of local people were other factors that influenced Stauffer's decision, Laos said.

The company's sales, production and administrative personnel will all move into 9,000 feet of office and warehouse space, which will be rented from Southgate Development Corp. on a three-year agreement.

Southgate President Mace Braverman said he talked with Laos for the first time Wednesday and closed the deal quickly. Stauffer has been considering the Iowa City location for about two months, said Ray Muston, president of First Capitol Development, a local coalition which promotes economic development.

"I THINK the long-term economic impact is considerable," Muston said. "They're going to have a very, very important presence in the community."

Stauffer grows seed corn on 25,000 acres throughout the corn belt, employing about 3,000 people for detasseling during the summer. The company built a seed-corn production plant in 1982 in Lone Tree, Iowa.

"The (seed) company has doubled in the last three years," Laos said, "and we have a lot of strong backing and potential for growth."

Volunteers, kids enjoy 'siblinghood'

By Carolyn Hardesty
Staff Writer

As the divorce rate has risen in recent years, so has the need for adult role models for children in single-parent homes.

Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Johnson County serves about 100 children by matching them with adults who are interested in getting to know youngsters and willing to spend three or four hours weekly with them.

Director Margaret Passeri said the organization rose out of a combination of activities in the 1970s, including a "Big Sister" program sponsored by the county Cooperative Extension Service and an "Uncle Program" sponsored by the Optimists Club.

Volunteers for the program must be 18 years of age and be willing to be part of the program for at least a year. Most adults spend time once or twice a week with their young friends.

GARY WESTFALL, a reception clerk in the otolaryngology department at the UI Hospitals, has been a big brother for two-and-a-half years. He said, "The fellow I live with was part of the program and I enjoyed watching the interactions they had, so I decided to sign up."

Westfall's little brother is 9. "We do the movie thing a lot," he said, "or go to the park or just go to my place for cookies and pop." Westfall said he really enjoys the time he spends with his little brother.

Orienting and interviewing volunteers takes a few months and is very thorough. "We want parents to know that the safety of the child is our prime consideration," Passeri said. Any time in the interview process, the parent, child or volunteer has the option to decline the match.

Caseworker Kelly Willson said, "About 60 (percent) to 70 percent of our volunteers are affiliated with the university." She said a great number of single-parent employees and students enroll their children in the program.

THE SCREENING PROCEDURE includes initial orientation, an in-home interview, contact with five personal references who have known the volunteer for at least a year and a police check. Passeri said the police check was added in the past year after her group petitioned the state department of criminal records for access.

"In the final analysis, it comes down to a trained case worker making the decision," Passeri said.

The local chapter became affiliated with the national Big Brother and Big Sisters in 1978. Passeri said there have been numerous benefits. "We have access to other people with expertise and a pool of information. It also gives us national visibility and gives parents the comfort of certain standards."

MATCHING CHILDREN, who are between the ages of 6 and 14, to an appropriate volunteer depends on a parent's desires as well as the policies of the chapter.

While single adults of all ages comprise the highest number of volunteers, couples occasionally apply. Some of those are retirees and some are students. Passeri cited a pair of medical students who wanted the opportunity to participate but who individually did not have the time to devote to the task. As a pair, however, they could spend the necessary time with the child.

Passeri said the average length of the relationship in Johnson County is two years. "We're very pleased with that because it increases the stability for the child."

She said there are about 100 children on a waiting list for a big brother or big sister. Most are waiting for a brother, since about 75 percent of the children involved with the program are male.

A meeting concerning the obligations and benefits of the program will be held tonight at 7 p.m. at the Johnson County Extension on Highway 218 South, beyond the airport.

ALBUMS

Ain't Love Grand. X. Electra/Asylum.

By Jeff Hamilton
Staff Writer

When Exene Cervenka sings, "My Goodness/Just left to make room for you," she may sound like one of those Jim Thompson femme fatales whose love of sex and booze mirror the hero's own "fall," but the shift of perspective eviscerates the cliché. Exene has been singing about what she can't repress since 1980, so it is not forgotten that this is no persona; the perversity of her contradictions is all her own.

What's bad about the new X album, Ain't Love Grand — and it goes bad in a lot of complex, almost moving ways — can be reduced to the complaint that Exene Cervenka hardly seems to be on it. She sings only three-and-a-half lead vocals, and one of those ("Supercharged") is a throwaway.

JOHN DOE, Exene's husband and the man who seems to take over here, sings out of a different sense of what rock is. The recent Knitters' collaboration, for example, was most reverent to the folk songs it covered when Doe's voice was behind them.

Exene gives something to Doe: On 1981's Wild Gift (still, to my sensibility, the best rock 'n' roll record of the 1980s), there was an exponential excitement in their voices following each other. Their marriage seemed grounded by Doe's fatalistic (and romantic) rock 'n' roll attraction to Exene's weird, sexy bohemian excesses. It was dizzyingly logical listening to those Jefferson Airplane vocal harmonies that couldn't get out of the kitchen because they were passed out drunk. And if the idea of their difficult marriage was a beautiful rock metaphor, then 1983's More Fun in the New World was important for transcending the marriage issue, using it to illuminate X's utopian politics.

BUT THERE HAS always been another, parallax contradiction: While those utopian

Whole New World. The Whites. MCA.

By Steve Horowitz

Although family groups are a rarity in rock 'n' roll, they have long been a staple of country music. From the Carter Family in the 1920s to the recent Grammy-honored mother and daughter combo, the Judds, good relations have made some fine country music together.

The Whites are no exception: Father Buck and daughters Cheryl and Sharon White have been singing together for over 20 years. They're helped out on their latest record, Whole New World, by Sharon's husband Ricky Skaggs, who plays fiddle, mandolin, assorted guitars and triangle, as well as co-producing the disc.

AS THEIR NAME implies, the Whites perform pure and wholesome country music. They don't sing cheatin' or drinking songs, and they croon plenty of church-inspired lyrics. This may sound dull, but the harmonies are clear and the pickin' is clean. It really doesn't matter what they're saying; it still sounds like a good time.

The best songs on Whole New World are the slow ones, because they allow the Whites to weave their voices pian politics keep X in the margin, the band is dying to be mainstream popular. There's a joke involved in Ain't Love Grand's opener and first single, "Burning House of Love," which steals its riff from Survivor's "Eye of the Tiger." But either X didn't see the joke (I seriously doubt this) or they respect the pop-outreach of blandness, because the rest of the song recycles Survivor (better, of course) without transformation. And Doe seems responsible for this.

The rest of the first side is a pretty great précis of Doe and Exene's split. (From what I can tell they're still married, but not together.) The best songs, Exene's "My Goodness" followed by Doe's "Around My Heart," look at infidelity with about as much passion and complexity as one could hope for.

THERE IS A BIG drop-off on side two, which doesn't even consider the issues explored on the first. With the exception of "I'll Stand Up for You," the songs don't address marriage or politics, but retreat familiar post-punk material. It's all in the titles: "Supercharged"; the mysteriously chosen Small Faces cover, "All Or Nothing"; and "Little Honey," which appeared on the last Blasters record.

For reasons that will probably remain unknown for a while, Exene seems on her way out. A couple of years ago X might have confronted this fact and kicked it down to see if it came up. It's the failure of Ain't Love Grand that the listener is left to intuit these meanings.

together into a variegated tapestry of sound. This is especially true of the title cut, and the group's version of Bobby Braddock's "I Don't Want to Get Over You."

THE WHITES DO not write any of their own material, which may contribute to the album's biggest problem — it is too short. There is only about 30 minutes worth of music on the entire record. But this is a problem common to many of today's country music records, and not unique to the Whites. I mean, how else could Hank Williams Jr. have already made 50 albums?

But otherwise, Whole New World is a very pleasant listening experience. It is heartily recommended for those who enjoy the clean country sound of the "new Nashville."

Idiocy rules summer 'movies'

By Merwyn Grote
Assistant Arts/entertainment Editor

DISGRUNTLED BECAUSE it's already August and Iowa City has yet to screen Frankenstein's Great Aunt Tillie? Well, you have a right to be irate; there are a bunch of celluloid masterpieces that have yet to get here. So as you trek home over this academic break, here are a few edifying films that are well worth your summertime attentions:

The Purple Rain of Cairo. Mia Farrow stars as Cyndi Lop-eared, an appallingly poor dresser and would-be rock groupie with a crush on singing star Prince. During her 139th consecutive viewing of Prince's autobiographical ego trip, The Purple Rain of Cairo, she is shocked when the singer's cinematic alter ego, "The Brat," turns from the screen and talks directly to her. She is further surprised when the character climbs down from the screen to declare his undying love personally. And to prove it, he beats her to a pulp.

SUDDENLY, THE REAL Prince arrives at the theater to retrieve his wayward image. Seeing Cyndi, he immediately falls in love as well and proves it by having his bodyguards beat her to a pulp. But before Cyndi can choose between the two, Prince and "The Brat" meet face-to-face and immediately realize that they could love none other than themselves. The bodyguards, now as confused as the viewing audience, immediately beat both Prince and "The Brat" to a pulp. But the story ends happily, when Cyndi signs on as the bodyguards' manager and makes a fortune promoting rock 'n' resting tours around the country.

Rambo vs. Godzilla: Worst Blood Sport III. Since the end of Worst Blood Sport II, John Rambo (Sylvester Stallone) has carried his murderous rampage for truth, justice and human compassion throughout the Far East, wiping out Vietnam, Laos, Thailand and choice areas of mainland China. Fearing that they might be next, the Japanese decide to call out of retirement their patron saint of comic-book violence, Godzilla (played by Arnold Schwarzenegger, in a very ill-fitting lizard suit). At first he is reluctant to come back into the fray, but relents when he discovers that his place in The Guinness Book of World Records under the heading of "Most oriental people senselessly slaughtered by an insipid character in a bad movie" might be threatened by Rambo's blood thirsty activities. The streets of Tokyo run red with food coloring in this kill-or-be-killed battle between bad-movie-series titans.

CONCEIVED, WRITTEN, produced, directed and scored by star Stallone, the movie was filmed in "Rambo-Vision" (all the images slant to the right) and "Rambo-Color" (all shades of red, white and blue are slightly enhanced). All prints also include a trailer for Stallone's next film, Rocky XVIII: Balboa vs. the Creature from the Black Lagoon.

The Cocoonies. A bunch of aging character actors from the Ruth Gordon Retirement Village for the Old but Incredibly Cute are shocked to discover that their Palm Springs retreat is about to be taken by the Pentagon as a testing sight for a new MX missile. Not taking the news lying down, the old folks decide they might have an ally in another aging but cute actor who is in semi-retirement on the east coast. Referred to only as "Two-Faced Ronnie," after a pirate he once played in a grade B swashbuckler at Warner Brothers, the band of cantankerous old coots believe that he might be a kindred spirit.

AFTER A SERIES of horrifying misadventures (involving mountains of governmental red tape, stolen social-security checks, buildings with long flights of stairs, and children who never call — not even on Sundays or holidays), they finally get to see Two-Faced Ronnie. Unfortunately, after telling them how sympathetic he is and relating a long-winded (though irrelevant) story about his boyhood in Illinois, Ronnie then has them all arrested as communist subversives.

But just as all hope seems lost, a savior descends from above in a blinding white light. It is Steven Spielberg, who announces that he has just bought the Pentagon as a set for his next multi-million extravaganza, Gross Expenditures of the Government Kind. Not only does he return the Retirement Conceived, written, produced, directed and scored by star Stallone, Rambo vs. Godzilla: Worst Blood Sport III was filmed in "Rambo-Vision" (all the images slant to the right) and "Rambo-Color" (all shades of red, white and blue are slightly enhanced).

Village to the oldsters, but he hires them all as bit players in the new film. Two-Faced Ronnie is quietly shipped off to the Prof. Irwin Corey Institute for Those Who Babble Utter Nonsense, and everyone lives happily ever after.

Pervet. This behind-the-scenes exposé of modern journalism is set in the offices of Penthouse magazine. John Travolta stars as a pictorial researcher, who scours the country looking for embarrassing old photographs of famous women whom the magazine can legally exploit and humiliate. One day he comes across some faded Polaroids of LaDonna (Meryl Streep), rock singer and star of the hit film Desperately Seeking Respectability. Taken years earlier when she was working as an aerobics instructor at a disreputable west-coast nudist colony, the pics are just grainy and unfocused enough to meet Penthouse's low standards.

LaDONNA PLEADS with Travolta to spare her public humiliation. Moved by the sincerity of her pleas and the sincerity of the death threats from her fiancé Sean Bent (Robert De Niro), Travolta relents and submits instead several of LaDonna's less flattering passport photos. Unfortunately, Penthouse publisher Gooch Boobione (Dabney Coleman) is unmoved and prints doctored photos with LaDonna's head superimposed on other bodies. LaDonna sues, winning $2 million in damages, but Boobione doesn't mind paying up, having made $17 million selling the LaDonna copies of his sleazoid magazine. LaDonna, however, gets revenge when she records her chart-busting, Grammy-winning rebuttal, "Like a Vermin (An Exploiter of the Very Worst Kind)," and makes enough money to buy out Penthouse and turn it into a new-wave fashion magazine.

National Review's European Vacation. Sponsored by his magazine, political conservative William F. Buckley makes his debut as a producer/screenwriter/director. According to author Buckley, "Interpret it as propaganda if you will, but it became lucidly manifest that the most proficient process for righteously swaying the tragically ill-advised and horribly misinformed masses, who are so often the wretched and defenseless prey of the mercenary and dangerously Marxist dictators who manipulate the progressively stilted and paralyzingly liberalized media, was by condescending to their stratum of social existence and pandering to their appetite for innocuous amusements. Veracity through mirthful expressions of derision, if you will."

This is the sort of madcap lunacy that Buckley brings to this off-the-wall comedy about a family of clean-cut, patriotic Americans who travel around the NATO countries visiting military bases and missile site while teaching the meaning of democracy to illiterate anti-nuclear protesters. Charleston Heston stars as John Adams Griswald, with Anita Byant as his wife, Betsy Ross Griswald, and Donny and Marie Osmond as the Griswald children, George and Martha.

Variety is spice of August concert life

Eastern Iowa concert-goers will have plenty of opportunities in which to catch a wide variety of music this month.

The first chance will come this Friday night at the Five Seasons Center in Cedar Rapids when teen idol Rick Springfield appears. Opening for Springfield will be the Boston group 'Til Tuesday.

Two more major concerts are scheduled for the Five Seasons Center in August. Country "outlaw" Hank Williams Jr. will appear with John Anderson on Aug. 9, and Mötley Crüe will bring its heavy metal "Theatre of Pain World Tour" to Cedar Rapids Aug. 19. Opening for Mötley Crüe will be Loudness.

COUNTRY FANS will have another opportunity to catch a favorite act on Aug. 10, when the Statler Brothers bring their vocal harmonies to the Muscatine County Fair in West Liberty, Iowa. And, of course, those attending the Iowa State Fair in Des Moines will be able to see a number of groups. The grandstand line-up for the fair includes appearances by the Beach Boys on Aug. 15; the Rock 'n' Roll Reunion VI, featuring Rick Nelson, on Aug. 16; the Statler Brothers again on Aug. 17; George Thorogood and the Destroyers, with special guest Johnny Winter, on Aug. 19; Tom Jones on Aug. 20; the Country Music Hall of Fame, featuring Mel Tillis, on Aug. 23; The Oak Ridge Boys, with guest Exile, on Aug. 24; and Alabama, with guest Bill Medley, on Aug. 25.

Jailhouse Rock (1957). Elvis Presley actually made a few good films in his long and lucrative movie career. This is one of them; a rock drama about an ex-con who becomes a singing star. Crisp dialogue, well-done musical numbers and Elvis even acts. Wow! At 7 p.m.

The Ceremony (1971). Nagisa Oshima, director of Cruel Story of Youth and In the Realm of the Senses, presents this indictment of contemporary Japan told through the saga of the Sakurada family. Detailing the changing face of his country since World War II, Oshima's film is considered to be one of the most ambitious Japanese works of the last decade. In Japanese. At 9 p.m.

Television

On the networks: Soap and game show luminaries vie for "The Daytime Emmy Awards" (CBS at 2 p.m.). Sam goes up against a team of Playboy Bunnies in a charity ballgame on "Cheers" (NBC at 8 p.m.). And two box-office disasters surface: Summer of Innocence (ABC at 7 p.m.) is actually John Milius' tedious 1978 surfing epic, Big Wednesday, which concerns three beach buddies (William Katt, Jan-Michael Vincent and Gary Busey) who spend their lives waiting for the ultimate wave; and The Fish Plot of Dr. Fu Manchu (WHBF-4 at 11:40 p.m.) was Peter Seller's woefully unfunny cinematic swan song, which is ironically about a fiendish scheme to achieve immortality.

On cable: Robert Altman's 1970 hit *M*A*S*H* (WGN-10 at 11:30 p.m.) is probably one of the most influential films of all times. Its comic irreverency, perverse characters and loose directorial style set a tone for a generation of Hollywood films. It also provided big career boosts for stars Elliott Gould, Donald Sutherland, Sally Kellerman and Robert Duvall.

'Cosby Show' leads pack in NBC ratings sweep

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The Cosby Show" was back in first place in the prime time ratings race last week, and NBC led the off-season competition for the 10th straight week.

Prime time ratings for the week ending July 28, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co., showed NBC with a 12.6 rating and a 24 share. CBS came in second with a 12.3

rating and 23 share. In third was ABC with a 10.2 rating.

The top five prime time shows for the week ending July 28, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co., were:

1. "The Cosby Show" (NBC)
2. "Family Ties" (NBC)
3. (tie) "Miami Vice" (NBC)
3. (tie) "Newhart" (CBS)
5. "Facts of Life" (NBC)

House approves non-military Contra aid bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A compromise bill providing $27 million in non-military aid for the Contras this year was passed by the House Wednesday and sent to the Senate for final congressional approval.

The rebel aid was contained in a $13 billion supplemental spending bill for 1985 that also includes $1.5 billion in emergency economic aid for Israel and $500 million for Egypt.

The measure was passed 320-106. All three programs also were authorized in the regular foreign aid authorization bill for next year, which received final approval in the House earlier Wednesday and was sent to the White House. The supplemental spending bill permits the programs to begin before Sept. 30, the end of this fiscal year.

CONGRESSIONAL APPROVAL

of renewed aid to the Contras — the rebels fighting the elected government in Nicaragua — is a victory for President Ronald Reagan despite the limitations imposed by the House.

The House refused last year to allow the CIA to continue funneling arms aid to the Contras and the program expired Sept. 30, despite Reagan's pleas.

The House also voted earlier this year to refuse to resume the aid, but eventually agreed to permit so-called humanitarian aid — food, clothing and medicine, but no arms or heavy transport — as long as the CIA and the Defense Department do not have a role in the program.

THE DONATION OF such non-military aid would, however, allow the Contras to divert their few resources into military equipment.

The Senate voted to provide $38 million in aid and would have allowed CIA involvement, but during negotiations on the bill the Senate yielded to the House position.

The administration also is barred under the final version of the bill from arranging for other countries, such as Honduras or El Salvador, to funnel assistance to the Contras.

No mention was made as to whether current covert aid would cease.

AGREEMENT ON THE supplemental bill had been stalled by a dispute over money for public works water control projects. The compromise plan appropriates $48.8 million for 41 new Army Corps of Engineers water projects, 21 of which have not yet been authorized by Congress.

Shuttle

analyzed for several months, Louis Frank, project principle investigator, said scientists made at least one immediate scientific finding Wednesday, which involved an electric charge created on the shuttle.

"When the electron beam is fired into space, the shuttle loses electrons and becomes electrically charged," Frank said. "This is similar to the static electricity that is built up in your body when you walk across a wool rug."

"In the case of the wool rug, your body charges up to 10,000 volts and more. The reason such a high voltage doesn't kill you is that not enough charge is stored in the body and, consequently, the electrical charge has a very small current,"

Frank explained.

"IT TURNS OUT when a 1,000-volt electron beam was fired, the Challenger was charged by 100 volts," Frank said, noting some scientists had expected a charge nearer the full 1,000-volt bombardment.

Frank added, "Even though it sounds like less than the charge in the example of the wool rug, this charge is a lot greater because the Challenger is such a large object and stores the charge."

This information will be useful in helping scientists design equipment to study the information of man-made auroras in the earth's upper atmosphere.

Other data from the PDP will be analyzed by UI researchers during the next several months. "The action part of this mission will primarily be completed Thursday but, from a scientific stance, the work has just begun," said Galluzzo.

The PDP experiments were endangered twice, first by the shuttle's delay in launch and second by the failure of one of the shuttle's three engines, causing UI researchers concern.

"Shortly after launch I thought we might accomplish 15 (percent) or 20 percent of our PDP activities," said Frank. "Now it looks as though we will complete 95 percent of what we set out to do. We've been fortunate here, and the smiles on the faces of the Iowa team members reflect that."

Majeke, a former magistrate in South Africa, related the long history of legislation which has been used by the white government to maintain the system of apartheid. Among the vast network of laws intended to oppress blacks, he said, are those prohibiting most social gatherings and interracial sex and others restricting the right of blacks to find employment.

The methods of repression, however, are not limited to legal areas, according to Majeke. Physical torture, up to and including death, is not uncommon.

"THEY HAVE METHODS like electric shock and needles through one's private parts" which are used to persuade prisoners to admit to crimes or identify other suspected criminals, he said.

Because of the ruthlessness of the apartheid system and the oppressed position of blacks there, Majeke rejected the claim that international moves such as economic sanctions would be more harmful to South African blacks than the government.

"Blacks in South Africa are virtual slaves. All that could happen is that the slaves might have a little less bread to eat," he said.

Majeke also noted the Reagan administration's policy of constructive engagement, including measures such as the Sullivan Principles, which are designed to equalize black employment, is ineffective.

"It's a big joke to talk about employing large numbers of blacks because American companies need technocrats. These will never be found in South Africa," Majeke said.

ers were talking about an increase in consumption or sales of two-to threefold."

GILLESPIE SAID his store will be more service-oriented than other wine outlets.

"It seems at this moment that we will be able to provide sampling on the premises, so people will be able to come in and taste the selection of the week," Gillespie said. "Wine is an investment, and this is a good way for people to compare them. We want to make it easy for people to enjoy wine."

Other services would include wine delivery with the purchase of a case or more, a monthly newsletter with information on new wines in stock and a description of each wine bin that tells the customer pertinent facts about the wine, Gillespie said.

THE STORE'S HOURS will be similar to state liquor store hours, which run from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.,

Gillespie said. "If we find out that people want to buy their wine at 10 in the morning, we'll be open at 10 in the morning."

Kaefring said he'd "have no way of telling" if the new store might hurt the liquor store's business.

"I'd have to see what he's going to have for sale," Kaefring said. "There's so many businesses opening right now, there's just a big cloud. You just kind of have to wait for the dust to settle."

Sanctions

Capitol's elegant old Senate Foreign Relations Committee room.

Helms warned against any sanctions. "We ought not to throw the baby out with the bathwater," Helms said, condemning apartheid but opposing the sanctions.

Lugar was opposed to the ban on Krugerrands but gave it up in exchange for the House dropping its insistence on immediately banning new investments by U.S. firms in South Africa — either new plants or expanding current ones.

THE SENATE HAD set an 18-month timetable in which Reagan could impose the ban on new investments as well as other sanctions, including the importation of South African uranium and coal, and the House a 12-month timetable.

The Senate agreed to the 12-month timetable, after which Reagan has the flexibility to impose a number of sanctions — but must impose at least one.

The committee approved a proposal to mint a U.S. gold coin to satisfy the demands of buyers of Krugerrands.

Party, but this does not mean to say that those responsible for the Zona Rosa massacre have been captured," said Major Carlos Armando Aviles, head of the Salvadoran army press office in San Salvador.

The military action is one of the first tangible signs of the tougher policy against terrorism Reagan talked about last month in the aftermath of a rash of violence.

When the bodies of the Marines were returned to the United States, Reagan vowed that the United States and the government of El Salvador would track down the murderers.

"They say the men who murdered these sons of America escaped and disappeared into the city streets," Reagan said June 22.

"But I pledge to you today, they will not evade justice on Earth any more than they can escape the judgment of God," the president warned. "We and the Salvadoran leaders will move any mountain and ford any river to find the jackals and bring them and their colleagues in terror to justice."

The attack was the worst on U.S. military personnel in El Salvador since the United States became involved in the country's civil war.

Kim: House arrest is ridiculous

This story compiled from reports by United Press International and Staff Writer Greg Miller.

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — The government placed opposition leader Kim Dae Jung under house arrest Wednesday to prevent him from attending the national convention of South Korea's major opposition party—a move he denounced as illegal.

Kim warned that if the government continues to bar him from politics, "the only choice left to me is to take to the street."

Police placed Kim under house arrest at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday to keep him from staging what the government called "unlawful" political activity.

The move came the day before the New Korea Democratic Party, the party with which Kim is affiliated, opens its national convention to realign its leadership.

"This move has no legal ground and it is not justifiable because the government should be the first to abide by law," Kim told United Press International in an interview.

"THE RULING CAMP apparently wanted to keep me from attending a rally later today of my supporters in Seoul for the convention as well as prevent me from attending the convention," Kim said.

As such, the move reflects a government intention to meddle in the internal affairs of the major opposition party. It is ridiculous. This should be corrected right away."

Kim, who lost a close presidential election in 1971 to the late President Park Chung-hee, was arrested in May 1980 and sentenced to death on charges of sparking a bloody nine-day rebellion in Kwangju, the capital of his home province.

UNDER INTERNATIONAL pressure, his death sentence was commuted to a 20-year prison sentence. In December 1982, he was released from prison for medical treatment in the United States.

Kim returned to South Korea Feb. 8, defying a government threat of imprisonment. He was placed under house arrest upon his return but the order was lifted a month later with the condition that he not participate in political activity.

UI LAW PROFESSOR Burns Weston accompanied Kim on his return to South Korea to help prevent government retaliation.

Kim is barred from joining a political party because of his 1980 conviction in the Kwangju uprising.

"This is ridiculous because I can legally deliver speeches to meetings of college students and workers while I cannot address any political party gatherings," Kim said.

POLITICAL OBSERVERS said Kim Dae Jung and Kim Young Sam wield great power in the NKDP and have joined forces to back long-time opposition leader Yi Min U's leadership of the party.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Charles Redman said "We have called consistently for the removal of all restrictions on Mr. Kim as soon as possible."

"We view this most recent action as inconsistent with previous steps taken by the Korean government toward a more open political system," he said.

Redman said the U.S. government is not aware "of any danger to Mr. Kim's physical well-being. He is safe and he is receiving visitors at his home."

The South Korean government, he said, "is well aware of our concern."

WESTON SAID he was "disappointed" by all of this.

"The motive of the South Korean government comes exactly as Jung claims. The tension has been building up for months since President Chun visited President Reagan," Weston said.

"This is a pointing development in my judgment. The U.S. response to all this is unfortunately mild. The U.S. is pursuing a policy of constructive engagement. All this does is buy time for the government in power," Weston said.

"The U.S. government is playing it mildly and super cautious against General Jung," Weston said.

"The U.S. should be expressing outrage but it's simply giving a slap on the wrist," Weston said.

Foreigners flee 'ravaged' Uganda

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI) — About 300 foreigners, including 62 Americans, stranded in Uganda by a military coup left the ravaged nation in a convoy Wednesday as food and water became scarce.

The ragtag assortment of about 60 vehicles was escorted 125 miles to the Kenyan border by Ugandan soldiers and British military advisers.

After the coup, which ousted President Milton Obote Saturday, the new military rulers sealed the borders.

But Uganda's new military ruler, Lt. Gen. Tito Okello, guaranteed the safety of the foreign nationals and agreed to let them leave Wednesday.

IN THE CONVOY were citizens from Australia, Britain, Canada, France, Ghana, India, Italy, Somalia, Tanzania, the United States and West Germany.

In Washington, the State Department said the 62 Americans who left included 42 U.S. officials and dependents and 20 citizens.

Twelve U.S. employees remained at the American Embassy in Kampala, including Ambassador Clayton Davis, and about 200 American civilians stayed behind in the East African nation of 14 million, spokesman Charles Redman said.

"We evacuated in large part simply because Kampala is still recovering from the effects of the coup," Redman said. "Public services are not available in all parts of the city. Shooting and looting have not been brought to a complete halt."

Balboni's leads Royal with homer

DETROIT (UPI) — Steve Balboni cracked a tie-breaking three-run home run with one out in the ninth inning Wednesday to give the Kansas City Royals a 5-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Balboni tied a club record with his fourth homer in four games. He has 21 for the year and six in the last seven games. Danny Jackson struck out a career-high 10 batters and gave up eight hits in eight and one-third innings in raising his record to 6 and helping Kansas City win its eighth game in its last 10. Dan Quisenberry came on with two on and one out in the ninth for his 24th save.

George Brett walked to lead off the ninth against loser Walt Terrell, 10-6, and was bunted to second by Hal McRae. After Frank White was walked intentionally, Balboni belted his 21st home run on Terrell's next pitch.

North Korea proposes to co-host Olympics

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (UPI) — A proposal by North Korea to co-host the 1988 Summer Olympics with South Korea has little chance of being approved by the International Olympic Committee, an IOC official said Wednesday.

The official said the proposal would probably be raised during a forthcoming meeting between the national Olympic committees of the two Koreas, but the call for a combined-Korean Games has been rejected previously.

"It would need a change in the IOC Charter and a two-thirds majority vote of support at a full IOC Session. The IOC Charter stipulates that the Olympic Games is awarded to one NOC (National Olympic Committee)," the IOC official said.

IOC President Juan Antonio Samaranch has frequently stressed the group is fully committed to staging the 1988 Summer Olympics in Seoul, which was awarded the Games in 1981.

The latest proposal for a joint Korean Games was delivered Tuesday by North Korean vice premier Chong Jun Gi. The official (North) Korean Central News Agency quoted Chong saying: "I think no one will have any ground to oppose the proposal for the co-hosting by the North and the South, if he truly values the Olympic movement."

Blazer's Norris to meet with Ramsey

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Audie Norris, the Portland Trail Blazer forward who has been in Jack Ramsay's doghouse since his failure to appear for a physical training program, says he is anxious to meet with the coach.

Norris arrived in Portland Monday night from his home in Jackson, Miss. He said Tuesday his first priority was to meet with Ramsay.

"I want to speak with Jack first, before I tell my side of the story," he said.

Last season, Norris was subject to fines for his failure to get down to a prescribed weight. That's why the Blazers wanted him to undergo an off-season training program this summer.

"I haven't weighed myself," Norris said Tuesday. At the start of the 1984-85 season, the 6-9 center weighed 250 pounds.

USFL's Lockett banks on Dolphin tryout

MIAMI (UPI) — Sometime in the next week or so, Frank Lockett will receive something from the Miami Dolphins that he rarely saw during his last few months in the U.S. Football League — a paycheck.

Lockett, signed Tuesday by the Dolphins as a free agent wide receiver, spent the last eight games of the USFL season with the San Antonio Gunslingers, who gave him only one paycheck.

"I got one paycheck for eight games," he says of his stint with the Gunslingers. "They still owe me for about five games. Right now, the chances don't look good (for getting paid). I haven't been paid in two months."

He and the other 45 Gunslingers were released from their contracts early in July after the team failed to pay them.

While Lockett no longer has to worry if he will be paid, he now must turn his energies to making a team that already has such wide receivers as Mark Clayton, Mark Duper, Nat Moore, Tommy Vigorito, Vince Heflin and Jim Jensen.

Gunslingers place entire roster on waivers

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The Portland Breakers of the United States Football League, struggling to stay financially afloat, placed all of its players on waivers Wednesday when the team was unable to meet a payroll deadline.

All of the players now become free agents and have the option of negotiating with other USFL and NFL teams, team officials said.

Portland had been given until 3 p.m., Iowa time, Tuesday by the USFL Players Association to come up with about $500,000 due their players but reached a tentative arrangement to extend the deadline until Oct. 1.

However, USFL Commissioner Harry Usher told the Breakers they would have only until 6 a.m. Wednesday to meet the delinquent payroll or put the players on the waiver wire. Breakers officials said attempts to get a further extension were finally nixed by the players' group.

Quartet's Hall of Fame honors inaugurates life-long dreams

CANTON, Ohio (UPI) — Joe Namath called it "the party I always dreamed I'd be invited to."

No, not the Inauguration Ball. That affair comes once every four years.

The event Namath is referring to is much more exclusive: It is only held once in one's lifetime.

On Saturday, Namath will join fellow quarterback Roger Staubach, running back O.J. Simpson, center Frank Gatski and NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle as the 1985 enshrinees into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

The quartet brings to 128 the number installed at the Hall of Fame.

Following the noon ceremonies, the Houston Oilers and the New York Giants will meet in the nationally televised Hall of Fame game at Fawcett Stadium adjacent to the Hall.

NAMATH AND SIMPSON will join 1977 enshrinee Frank Gifford in the ABC broadcast booth. Namath will replace Don Meredith on the Monday Night Football crew this year.

The quartet will be enshrined in alphabetical order, which means Staubach is last.

"Actually, I think that's very appropriate," Staubach said. "When gentlemen like Frank Gatski played the game, offensive linemen were more or less toiling in obscurity."

"For me, I'm happy to see these great players get the recognition they richly deserve." "I guess my proudest achievement is that I was durable," said the 63-year-old Gatski, who ended his career with Detroit in 1957.

"I NEVER MISSED a practice or a game, and I mean never. I went through high school, college and the pros without missing anything."

"But being in the Hall ... well, it's just an overwhelming feeling. I wouldn't miss this experience for the world."

Namath, a 42-year-old native of Beaver Falls, Pa., has chosen his high school coach as his presenter.

"I owe Larry Bruno so much," Namath said. "It's fitting that he be at my side for this wonderful moment."

Namath went on to play for Bear Bryant in Alabama. In 13 NFL seasons with the Jets and Los Angeles Rams, he completed 1,886 passes for 27,663 yards and 173 seasons.

Festival helps fight loneliness

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Each time Jeff Olsen climbed out of the pool at the National Sports Festival, layers of self-doubt began peeling away like shards of wrinkled skin.

The gangly 16-year-old swimmer from Austin, Texas with glasses and a mild case of acne capped a majestic four days of competition Tuesday night by anchoring the West "A" team to victory in the 400-meter freestyle relay. Olsen also had individual first-place finishes in the 200, 400 and 800 best performance by a male swimmer in the Festival's six-year history.

His confidence soaring with each massive stride of his 6-foot-4 frame, Olsen dominated the field and impressed the goggles off five-time 1976 Olympic gold medalist John Naber, a television analyst during the meet.

"SOMEONE CAME right up on Jeff's shoulder down the stretch of the 400 free," Naber said, "and instead of panicking and thrashing in the water, Jeff just dug a little deeper; he's a very cool customer."

That's a recent development. "I was alone for most of my childhood," said Olsen, who is adopted. "I'd wake up in the morning and set up a Monopoly board for four players and I'd play all four pieces. When I came here, I figured maybe I could win the 200 and go home enthusiastic. All this hasn't sunk in yet, but I'm just so glad that it happened. I've gotta enjoy the time that I have on cloud nine."

Olsen expects to graduate from Kirby Hall School in 1986 and has not decided which college he will attend. The 1988 Olympics are his ultimate goal, but Olsen said he expects his share of blues on the way to a little piece of Seoul.

"I'll have my bad days, but I just concentrate on the silver linings," Olsen said. "I think a few more people will notice me next week than would have normally. They probably won't know my name, but I think they'll stand there and wonder if I'm the guy who did well at the Sports Festival."

a salary-cap plan, presented in June, with a flat $25 million pension contribution.

Under the newest plan, the owners' pension contribution could be reduced to nothing if players' salaries continue to escalate. In the salary-cap plan, the pension contribution would remain constant, but clubs would not be able to sign free agents or make trades that would take them over a stipulated payroll level.

MacPhail said he was waiting for the players to make a move.

"What we would suggest is that maybe the players come forward with something," he said. "They have made absolutely no movement since December."

ON THE OTHER hand, Fehr said he was waiting for a "serious" offer from the owners. "Do we want a signal that they're serious? The answer is, it would help immensely."

The Mets and Expos player representatives at Shea said the owners had underestimated their determination.

"Maybe they want a strike because with that kind of proposal (tying the pension to salary increases) that's the only thing you can think," said outfielder Jim Wolfhard, the Expos' player rep. "I have been in the major leagues 12 years and that made me want to throw up."

New York player rep Keith Hernandez said, "The owners do not understand. I will sit in my room the last day so they can call me, but the players for the most part have more regard for the game of baseball than the owners."

Five-alarm blaze causes track to close for season

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Ill. (UPI) — A five-alarm fire possibly caused by an electrical malfunction Wednesday destroyed the grandstand and clubhouse of Arlington Park, effectively closing the race track for the season.

Joseph Joyce Jr., president of the track, said park officials will meet Thursday to determine if 55 remaining racing dates can be moved to another location, such as Hawthorne Race Track in Cicero.

Joyce said an announcement also will be made Thursday on the status of the Aug. 25 Budweiser Million, one of the world's most lucrative thoroughbred races.

"We love that race and we'll try to still have it," Joyce said at a news conference in a hotel near the track.

Joyce said officials were leaning toward a decision to rebuild the park — a task he said would cost up to $100 million.

HE SAID THE TRACK itself suffered only minimal damage but there was no way to stop the grandstand and clubhouse from being destroyed.

Two of the estimated 150 firefighters who fought the blaze were treated for minor injuries. Thomas Willing, 31, Mount Prospect, was treated for smoke inhalation, and Thomas Landmeier, 43, Arlington Heights, suffered minor burns on the face and neck.

Firefighters from 20 suburban Chicago fire departments used 30 pieces of equipment to battle the blaze, which was reported shortly after 1 a.m., Arlington Heights Fire Chief Bruce Rodewald said.

The track's racing schedule lasts until Sept. 30 with races held six days a week. The park, which opened for the season May 19, has an average daily attendance of 10,000.

THE STATE WILL lose close to 7 percent of the $1.9 million in daily revenue at the track for each day racing is not held, Joyce said.

"We bought this track and are committed to providing the best in Midwest racing, though we'll have to see what the damages are before making rational projections for what the future of the track is," he said. "We invested a great deal of ourselves, our capital and our hearts to make it a great place."

Joyce said insurance will cover any lost revenue the park incurs. He would not give details, but said the policy provides blanket coverage for property and profit loss.

Joyce said the fire apparently broke out in the Horsemen's Lounge, which is in the clubhouse section, and then engulfed the Post and Paddock Club.

The fire also spread to the nearby first level of the five-story grandstand, which was built in 1927 and has been renovated several times.

FIREFIGHTERS WERE forced to remove the walls and ceilings of the grandstand to locate burning areas. Extensive smoke and water damage was reported.

Tommy Trotter, director of racing at the track, said he called the Arlington Heights Fire Department after smelling smoke coming from the Horseman's Lounge.

Trotter, who was awakened by the smoke, said he could hear "crackling" in the ceiling of the lounge, which is located next to the club.

He said he returned to the clubhouse, where his wife, son and a track chauffeur were sleeping, and alerted them. No one else was staying overnight at the club, which can house 15 people.

Junior Olympic funding woes are stabilizing

By Jeff Stratton
Assistant Sports Editor

As the opening day for the Junior Olympics, scheduled to begin August 4, approaches, fundraising for the event has slowly crept to the $40,000 level. Marv Hartwig, chairman of fund raising for the Junior Olympics, said if expenses for the Junior Olympics are kept under control, the financial situation of the games should be in "good shape."

"If we hit $40,000, due to some savings on transportation costs from the city, we should come out okay," Hartwig said. "If all goes well in the next 10 days we should be in good shape."

Hartwig said the expected revenue from ticket sales and Junior Olympics memorabilia is also expected to aid the games' tight financial situation.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION of the Junior Olympics has been troubled, and Hartwig attributes much of this to lack of corporate support of the games. In the past, corporate support has not been a problem when the Junior Olympics have been held in larger cities like Indianapolis, Ind.,

Memphis, Tenn., and Kansas City.

Hartwig said that in an attempt to garner corporate support for the Junior Olympics, 30 letters were sent to potential corporate sponsors seeking $5,000 contributions. The letters, however, were met with no response.

"We contacted large corporations with Iowa connections but not a single one came through," Hartwig said. "That's what really hurt. We sent the letters, followed up on them and got refused. It's a mystery to me."

PART OF THE fund-raising problems of the Junior Olympics may be attributed to organization, Hartwig said. "We thought if people knew we needed money they would pump it," he said. "It didn't work that way. We should have expected it. We didn't have enough staff and volunteers. We just winged it and that's scary."

The Junior Olympics will run from Aug. 4-11, and will feature competition in 14 events. Tickets cost $2 for adults and $1 for children.

Combo Dombo surges to IM title

By Jeff Stratton

Combo Dombo exploded for seven runs in the fifth inning to blow open a close game and went on to defeat Fun Brothers, 11-3, and claim the men's intramural softball championship Wednesday night at the Hawkeye Softball Complex.

Intramurals

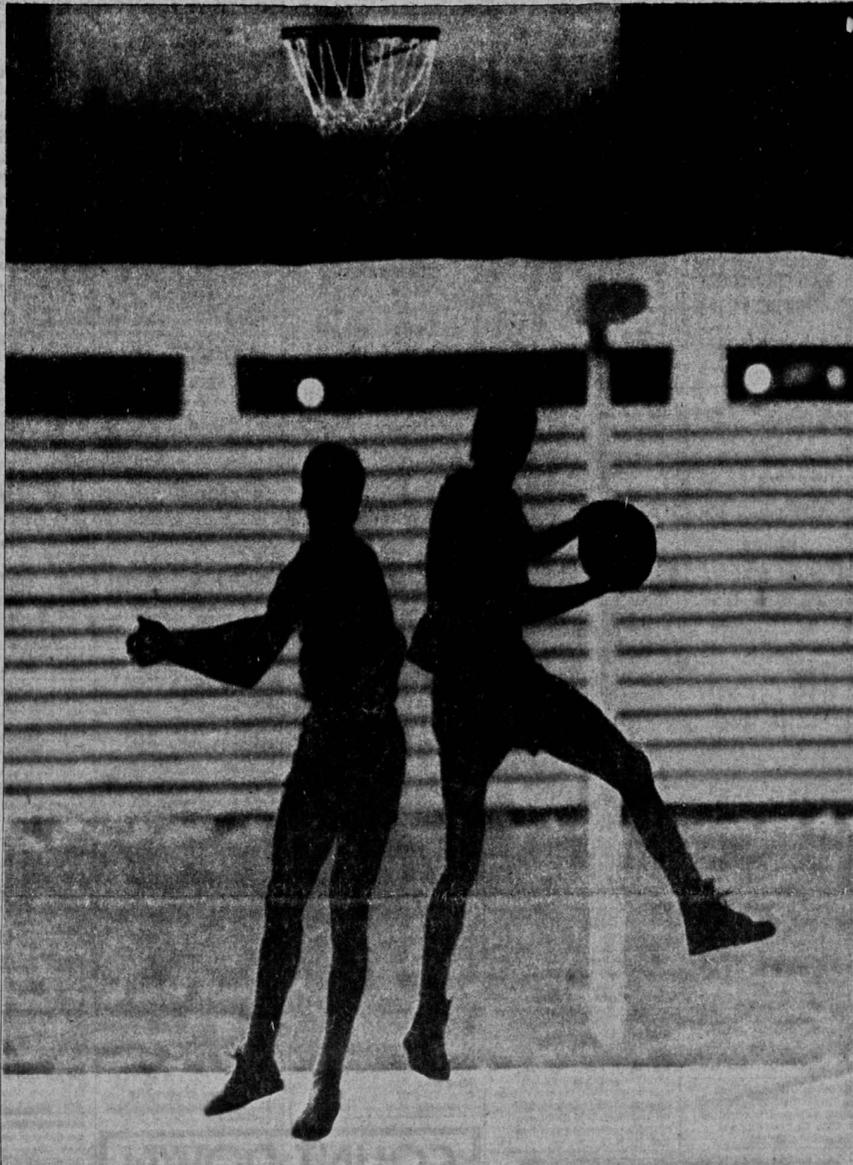

The victors took a 4-3 lead into the fifth inning, but batted around to put the game out of reach. Steve Fedash opened the inning with a walk and Mike Conlon followed with a nice piece of hitting, resulting in a single just past Fun Brother's first baseman Bob Bateman. Todd Crandall then walked to load the bases.

Dale Anthony's single knocked in two runs and Crandall scored Combo Dombo's third run of the inning on an error by Fun Brother's third baseman Joe Picchiotti, making the score 7-3.

THE FIFTH INNING wasn't kind to Picchiotti as his throwing error to home plate allowed two more runs to score.

Maxey said the fifth inning was easily the key to the game. "It was definitely the big factor in the game," he said. "All it takes is one big inning. They (Fun Brothers) have a good team. I've seen them play a lot this summer."

Combo Dombo took a three-run lead in the first when Conlon and Crandall walked, Anthony advanced the runners with a sacrifice fly and Dave Hall singled in two runs.

Advisor says owners are deceitful

NEW YORK (UPI)—Marvin Miller, adviser to the baseball players' union, Wednesday accused baseball owners of "trickery and deceit" in comments after a fruitless bargaining session only six days before the players' strike deadline.

Representatives for major-league owners and players met for about one-and-a-half hours but reported no progress toward an agreement on the divisive issues of pensions, salary arbitration and club salary caps.

With the Aug. 6 strike deadline creeping closer, no definite meeting was scheduled for Thursday. Donald Fehr, chief negotiator for the players, and Lee MacPhail, his counterpart for the owners, plan to consult by telephone to decide whether to meet.

Fehr said he had visited Shea Stadium earlier Wednesday to explain to New York Mets and Montreal Expos players the proposal presented Tuesday by the owners. The proposal couples a $25 million pension offer with a $13 million salary increase limit.

"THE PROPOSAL produced anger; it produced solidarity among the players. If anything, it reinforced the overwhelming impression the players have had for a long time now, that is, the owners are not serious about trying to reach an agreement," Fehr said.

MacPhail said he was not surprised the players rejected the owners' plan.

"The players reject every proposal you give them the first time," MacPhail said.

Miller, head of the players' union for 17 years and now a consultant, was angered by the owners' proposal because he felt it was a deliberate attempt to circumvent an agreement made in 1981 after the settlement of the players' 50-day mid-season strike.

THE PLAYERS AGREED to extend the existing contract and pension agreement through 1984 if the pension increase negotiated for 1985 were made retroactive to 1984.

The owners' "cockamamie" proposal presented Tuesday included no increase for 1985 and thus none for 1984, Miller said. Those years would continue under the previous pension contribution level, $15.5 million, and an increase to $25 million would not become effective until 1986.

"I have seen trickery and deceit in collective bargaining but not quite to equal that one," said Miller, accusing the owners of developing a formula to avoid paying the retroactive increase.

MacPhail acknowledged that such an agreement was made and said if the players objected, another way could be found to handle 1985.

"WE'RE FIRM on the proposal, but we are willing to negotiate," he said.

MacPhail explained the owners had two proposals on the table: the plan announced Tuesday which would tie their $25 million pension contribution to a $13 million salary increase limit; and
