Tight budget precludes UI salary increases

By Kirk Brown
University Editor

The question of how sagging faculty and staff salaries can be increased will take center stage when the state Board of Regents and officials from Iowa's three state universities tackle a host of budget issues later this week.

In a report released Monday afternoon, Board Executive Secretary R. Wayne Richey recommends the regents ignore requests from the three state university presidents to ask the Iowa Legislature for salary increases totaling more than 10 percent next year.

The legislature has already approved a 5.5 percent salary increase for regents faculty and professional and scientific staff members next year and Richey said he believes it would be impractical for the board to request additional pay raises.

"In view of severely limited state funds and the fact that the state salary policies have already been established for all state employees, the board office recommends only the mandated increases" of salaries be requested, Richey's report states.

RICHEY DID recommend, however, "that the board prepare a separate special report for the governor and the legislature on faculty salaries at the three universities to set forth the facts regarding the conditions at the institutions."

This fall regents faculty and staff received salary increases averaging 2 percent. But at the UI, where pay raises were doled out on the basis of merit, many faculty and staff members did not receive any increase for the second time in three years.

UI President James O. Freedman, who has been in China for the past two weeks, was unavailable for comment Monday. But Freedman warned at last month's regents meeting that UI faculty and staff salaries will plummet to the bottom of the Big Ten if the state does fund pay increases above 5.5 percent next year.

UI Associate Vice President for Finance Casey Mahon said Monday she believes "President Freedman will again point out to the board that something simply has to be done as far as salaries."

ALTHOUGH RICHEY is recommending the board not ask for additional salary increases, his report does urge the regents to request approximately $59 million in funding increases from the legislature for university operating budgets and capital projects next year.

Of these funds, $13 million would be used to replace state appropriations the board lost from this year's budget when

U.S. waits as Syria identifies corpse

United Press International

Yugoslavian officials said Monday they will soon answer a U.S. extradition request for the Palestinian accused of directing the Achille Lauro hijacking, although he reportedly left the country. Meanwhile, the body of an elderly man — perhaps the American reported slain by the hijackers — washed onto the Syrian coast.

In Rome, Italian Prime Minister Bettino Craxi said Italy allowed Palestine Liberation Organization official Mohammed Abbas to leave that country despite U.S. objections because Abbas held an Iraqi diplomatic passport and was immune from prosecution.

The four men accused of the hijacking and murder were still being held and were transferred to an unidentified maximum-security prison in Italy Monday.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Daniel Lawler said, "Syrian authorities have discovered the body of an elderly man washed up by the sea on the Syrian coast near Tartus. We are now trying to identify the body."

IT WAS NEAR Tartus on Oct. 8 that the pirates allegedly shot Leon Klinghoffer, 69, a stroke victim confined to a wheelchair, then dumped his body and wheelchair into the Mediterranean.

"We have not identified the body ourselves," Lawler said. "We were told (Sunday) the Syrians saw the body and they thought it might be Leon Klinghoffer."

CBS News reported Monday night that a warrant for Abbas' arrest, released by the Justice Department, contains evidence including transcripts of ship-to-shore conversations "allegedly indicating direct involvement of Abbas with the kidnapers."

Abbas, leader of the Palestine Liberation Front, a PLO splinter group, was on an Egyptian airliner with the four Achille Lauro hijackers when it was intercepted by U.S. warplanes and forced to land in Sicily Friday.

Eyewitness alters testimony

By Greg Philby
City Editor

A key eyewitness, who testified last Thursday he saw accused arsonist Dennis J. Malone "locking or unlocking" his front business door shortly before the building burned, said Monday he wasn't sure who he saw.

State prosecuting attorney Jack Dooley re-opened his case Monday after resting it last week because James Harding, a former UI student who claimed he recognized Malone near the scene of the crime, called Dooley following his testimony and told him he "wasn't absolutely positive" the person was Malone.

Harding testified that Malone's appearance has changed "so drastically, that it was difficult to compare or match his present condition with that of December 3, 1982," the night of the fire that destroyed Malone's Bicycle Peddlers, Comer's Pipe & Gift Shop, Lind's Printing Service, Inc., and WGN Cos., Inc., all located between 13 and 15 S. Dubuque St.

MALONE, 37, who faces a first-degree arson charge for allegedly starting the blaze in The Bicycle Peddlers, has lost considerable weight and has shaved a moustache he wore at the time.

Harding said he could be the "victim of a hoax," because he hasn't seen Malone for so long it "is possible I could be wrong . . . If that's Dennis Malone in the court today, whom did I see the night of the fire and whom did I identify?"

Defense attorney Philip Reisetter also introduced witnesses who told the seven-man, five-woman jury that the charge does not add up.

Employees of The Bicycle Peddlers, competitors from other bicycle shops and financial experts all testified that Malone's business was doing well at the time, and the fire forced him to relocate to a less profitable site on Market Street.

FORMER BICYCLE Peddlers employee Richard Huntley said both Malone and his business were "upbeat" and Malone had just received a shipment of cross-country skis that he stocked in the store. Malone also was "optimistic" about his business because he had just set up a floor display at Lindale Mall in Cedar Rapids for the Christmas season.

John S. Koza, senior vice president of Iowa State Bank & Trust Co., who handled most of Malone's loans, said he carried about a $25,000 debt at the time of the fire. But Koza said Malone came to the bank following the

UI hit with more staff departures

By Lewis Wayne Greene
Staff Writer

For the second year in a row, a total of 68 UI faculty members chose not return to the UI, according to a report the state Board of Regents will review later this week.

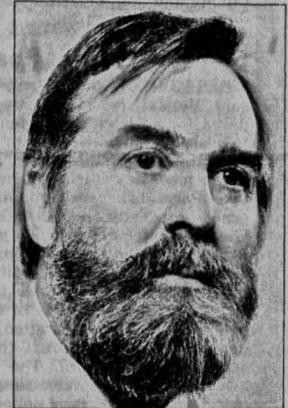

Every UI college, with the exception of the UI College of Pharmacy, had faculty members resign last year. But once again the UI College of Medicine was hardest hit by the departure of faculty, losing 30 tenure-track professors or roughly 6 percent of the college's entire faculty.

UI administrators insist the loss of faculty is an unavoidable part of the life of a university and that the steady level of resignations during the past three years is nothing to be alarmed about.

But UI Botany Professor Richard Sjolund, president of the UI Faculty Senate, said last week he believes the recent exodus of professors indicates a much deeper morale problem on campus.

"This year is a very critical year," said Sjolund. "Faculty loyalty has a bottom line."

Star Wars may be dropped

BONN, West Germany — U.S. officials have promised to renounce Star Wars deployment if the strategic defense system spurs a dramatic offensive weapons buildup by the Soviet Union, a West German government spokesman said Monday.

Spokesman Friedhelm Ost told a news conference that the assurance was given to West Germany by Paul Nitze, President Ronald Reagan's special adviser on arms control, and other administration officials. He confirmed a statement in a newspaper interview published Sunday quoting Chancellor Helmut Kohl as saying West Germany had been assured of a "renunciation of the deployment of such a system if it were an obvious inducement for the other side to increase drastically its offensive weapons."

Income checks proposed

WASHINGTON — The administration plans to ask Congress to greatly expand the government's use of confidential tax data and give federal agencies access to information on any American's private insurance coverage, it was reported Monday.

Under the proposal, the information could be used by the government to determine if millions of Americans applying for federal entitlement programs, such as Medicare, are eligible, the New York Times said. A spokesman for the White House's Office of Management and Budget told the newspaper that legislation authorizing such action would be sent to Congress later this month or early next year.

Prisoners take hostages

LUCASVILLE, Ohio — Seven inmates took two correctional officers hostage Monday in a "super-maximum" security area of the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility, authorities said.

Prison Superintendent Terry Morris said he had begun negotiating by telephone with the inmates, although it was not known if the captors had made any demands or if they had any weapons. The prison, which houses about 2,200 inmates, was charged last week in a suit by the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees with dangerous overcrowding.

Branstad to meet Reagan

DES MOINES — Gov. Terry Branstad said Monday he is tentatively scheduled to meet with President Ronald Reagan Thursday to press for action to solve the farm credit crisis.

The meeting, which is scheduled to take place during the Republican Governors Association's fall conference in Washington, comes nearly a year after Branstad began lobbying for federal action to solve the farm credit crisis. "I intend to ask him to address the issues of concern to the people of this state and why his administration has not done anything to address those concerns," Branstad said. The governor also said Reagan is welcome to come to Iowa to explain his farm policies.

Priest guilty on sex charges

LAFAYETTE, La. — A Roman Catholic priest who admitted he sexually abused 35 or more young boys pleaded guilty just before his trial was to begin Monday and was sentenced to 20 years in prison without parole.

The Rev. Gilbert Gauthe, 40, who had planned an insanity defense, pleaded guilty to 33 counts of pornography, crimes against nature and indecent behavior with juveniles. The plea bargain was approved last week by the parents of the 11 boys who would have had to testify against the priest. Gauthe said in court he planned to continue psychiatric treatment and experiments with the drug Depo-Provera, also known as chemical castration.

Strangers offer youths ride home

By Julie Eisele
Staff Writer

An area man told Iowa City police Sunday his son and a friend were approached by three adults in a pickup truck. The three offered to give the boys a ride home.

"Your mother wants us to pick you up and take you home," a male driver told the boys, police reports stated. The incident occurred shortly after 5 p.m. near the intersection of Clinton and College streets, where the youths were awaiting a ride from a parent.

The man, described as a white male with red hair and a neatly trimmed beard, was accompanied by another male and female, who were not described. Police described the vehicle as an older model pickup truck with a white top and blue bottom.

A similar incident was reported to police earlier Sunday, when a couple in a green car with green license plates told a boy to get into their car at the parking lot of First National Bank, 204 E. Washington St.

Report: Three Iowa City residents reported to Iowa City police Monday they received telephone calls from a man who ordered them not to hang up the telephone, and told two of the victims to talk to him while he masturbated.

The calls are similar to seven other calls reported to police during the past week. Monday's incidents were reported by women who answered the telephone, although the caller asked for their husbands by name. The men were not home in all cases, and the caller told the women he'd "be over" if they hung up.

The caller identified himself as "Jimmy" to one woman and "Gary" to another. All of the incidents occurred between 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. Police officials suspect the calls are being made by one person.

Courts

By Bart Jansen

An Iowa City man and a North Liberty woman made initial appearances Saturday in Johnson County District Court on cocaine possession charges.

Iowa City police responded Friday afternoon to a complaint of a suspicious van in the 800 block of South Clinton Street, and observed Bruce Anderson, 30, of 1100 Arthur St., and Susan Jane Lantz, North Liberty, in the light-blue van, court records state. After officers opened the van doors, Anderson allegedly attempted to cover a mirrored tray containing a white powdery substance, according to court records.

Lantz was also charged with possession of marijuana after a search at Johnson County Jail revealed a leafy, plant-like substance kept in a clear plastic bag in her purse, court records state.

Anderson's preliminary hearing is scheduled for Oct. 31. Lantz's preliminary hearing is scheduled for Oct. 22. Both were released on their own recognizance.

Timothy Allen Fitzgerald, 18, Riverside, Iowa, made an initial appearance Saturday in Johnson County District Court on the charges of second-degree burglary and second-degree false use of a financial instrument.

Fitzgerald allegedly wrote a check Sept. 27 to Wendy's Old Fashioned Hamburgers, 840 S. Riverside Drive, on another person's account, according to court records. He was also charged with allegedly breaking into Stevens Sand and Gravel, Route 6, Oct. 1 with the intent to steal money, court records state.

Fitzgerald's preliminary hearing is set for Oct. 22 and he faces a total of $6,900 bail on the charges.

Dan Anthony Shaw, 25, of 103 Country Lane, Apt. 4, and Larry Cox, 29, same address, made initial appearances Monday in Johnson County District Court on the charge of possession of marijuana.

Coralville police arrested Shaw Sunday for an alleged driving violation. A subsequent search of his car revealed a black bag containing a portable scale, a "great quantity" of marijuana, baggies and some money, court records state.

Cox was a passenger in Shaw's car and arrested along with him for possession of marijuana, although neither claimed ownership, court records state.

Shaw and Cox have preliminary hearings set for Oct. 29 and both were released to the Iowa Department of Corrections.

Regents office recommends cuts in UI's share of lottery revenues

By Lewis Wayne Greene
Staff Writer

The UI will oppose recommendations released by the state Board of Regents staff Monday significantly reducing UI requests for Iowa Lottery revenues, according to a top UI administrator.

The UI submitted an $8 million list of lottery funding requests earlier this year aimed primarily at establishing endowed professorships in high-technology areas.

But the board office memo released Monday recommends the UI only receive $3.6 million in lottery revenues to expand the equipment and faculty of the Iowa Laser Facility, endow faculty positions in biocatalysis and immunology and create a Biomedical Engineering Institute.

The board office report, which was approved by Regents Executive Secretary R. Wayne Richey, eliminated $3.75 million of the UI's requests for lottery funds.

AMONG THE proposed projects that were not recommended are endowed professorships and programs in international development, manufacturing technology, biotechnology and hydraulics research, as well as the establishment of a Very Large Scale Integrated Circuit Design Center.

UI Vice President for Educational Development Duane Spriestersbach said he thought the board office's process for reviewing the requests of the three regents universities was "simply not adequate to review the merits" of the UI proposals.

Spriestersbach said he believes UI administrators will urge the regents to include more of the UI's original requests in the final package that will be submitted to the Iowa Development Commission later this fall.

"I think we will be making a vigorous presentation on behalf of our recommendations as they were presented," Spriestersbach said.

THE REGENTS office report recommends Iowa State University receive $1.5 million more than the UI in lottery funding. These recommendations include $2.5 million in funding for the construction of a National Materials Reliability Center on the ISU campus.

The report also asks the regents to recommend more than $1 million worth of projects at the University of Northern Iowa — making the total recommended requests $10 million, which is the most the board can ask for from the lottery.

Spriestersbach would not say that he thought the regents office report favored ISU unfairly, but he did defend the UI's approach to economic development through endowing professorships.

"It's ideas that are going to carry the day in the end. I'm convinced of that," Spriestersbach said.

RICHEY SAID HE wasn't surprised at Spriestersbach's disappointment with his lottery funding recommendations.

"Obviously, the University of Iowa did not get everything it wanted," Richey said, but he added this year's proposals shouldn't be interpreted as a "precursor" of future board office lottery funding recommendations. "There could be a complete reversal next year," Richey said.

Richey defended the process of determining the recommendations saying, "If we split everything on percentage there wouldn't be a need for administrators."

The regents are scheduled to discuss the lottery requests, as well as university plans to establish research parks, at their meeting in Iowa City later this week.

Students plan rally to protest spiraling tuition

By Kent Schuelke
Staff Writer

UI students are planning to march, carry signs and shout slogans Wednesday demanding that the state Board of Regents freeze tuition next year at Iowa's three state-supported universities.

The UI Liberal Arts Student Association and the University Democrats are hoping 1,000 UI students will attend their noon rally on the Pentacrest to dramatize to the regents that they are "suffering" from spiraling tuition costs, said LASA President Mike Reek during a press conference Monday.

The rally will then turn into a protest march to the UI Lindquist Center, where the board will decide on next year's tuition rates at Iowa's three state universities at their monthly meeting.

"We plan to achieve a tuition freeze by any means necessary," said Gordon Fischer, co-chair of the UI Tuition Freeze Campaign.

FISCHER SAID 6,000 UI students have signed petitions calling for a tuition freeze in the past month. He added that about 90 percent of the students who were approached signed these petitions "without hesitation."

"When we were outside of the Union, people were falling over themselves to sign it," said Fischer. "I've talked to people that are dropping out of school and others who can't be in school because of (low) income."

Board Executive Secretary R. Wayne Richey has proposed a 6.5 percent across-the-board increase for students at the regents universities next year that would raise approximately $7 million in additional income.

In addition to LASA and the UI Collegiate Associations Council, which are both calling for a tuition freeze, United Students of Iowa and several other student groups have urged the regents to put a 5 percent ceiling on next year's tuition increase.

FISCHER SAID he has discussed the tuition issue with Regent Percy Harris, one of a minority of regents who publicly supports a resident tuition freeze, and he applauded LASA's efforts.

"He's glad to finally see a student organization take the ball and run with it," said Fischer.

Reck criticized the UI Student Senate members and Regent Jacki Van Ekeren for not supporting a tuition freeze.

"I was surprised by her (Van Ekeren's) stand," said Reck. "I know there was a big push to get her on the board because she's a student but she in no way has represented the students."

Although Van Ekeren said she believes the income from a tuition increase is needed to maintain educational quality, Fischer said these funds will not lead to significant improvements for the UI.

"IT'S A LOT of money for me and you, and it's a lot of money out of student's pockets, but for the university it's not a large amount," said Fischer.

UI Student Senate Vice President Sara Moeller said that student leaders supporting the 5 percent tuition increase will be pitching their proposal during lunch with the regents Wednesday at University Theatres, while other UI students will be protesting on the Pentacrest.

"They got rid of our bargaining chip," said Moeller of the freeze movement. "The freeze movement has given them a 'dammed if they do' attitude about voting for the 5 percent (student proposal)."

Fischer, Moeller and Van Ekeren will debate the tuition issue on KRUI radio tonight at 7 p.m.

He really meant . . .

Once again, the White House press team scrambled this week in an attempt to "clarify" what President Reagan meant he said — or said he meant — about the extradition of the Palestine Liberation Organization hijackers of the Italian cruise ship Achille Lauro, who killed American Leon Klinghoffer.

It is a familiar game at the White House: Reagan issues a statement and a day later Press Secretary Larry Speakes has to make a public appearance to explain what Reagan "really" meant.

As news of the surrender of the Achille Lauro's hijackers reached Washington, reporters asked Reagan to comment. Reagan, off guard, said that if the "Egyptians, Italians, even the PLO could seriously bring these criminals to trial," he would not seek their extradition.

Reagan must have later been hit with a volley of criticism as he entered the Oval Office. The PLO prosecute one of its own factions? Less than two hours passed before Reagan was urged to go public to demand the terrorists' extradition. Then, pressured by National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane, Reagan commanded American warplanes to intercept an Egyptian airliner carrying the hijackers and lead it back to Italy.

Reagan is now demanding extradition of the hijackers to the United States, where he said they could face "capital punishment." If that is his true intent, the Italians will hesitate. Italy's policy is to not extradite prisoners to countries that have the death penalty, Italy itself having abolished capital punishment after World War II.

Speakes today is fielding criticism not from Reagan's decision to intercept the Egyptian airliner, but from his awkward comments about the hijackers.

Speakes has had lots of opportunities to cover the president's tracks, such as when Reagan called the Nicaraguan contras the "moral equivalent of our Founding Fathers," or when he said the SS soldiers buried in Bitburg cemetery were "as much victims" as the people they murdered.

When Reagan incorrectly noted in August that in South Africa "the segregation of public accommodations has all been eliminated," Speakes countered, "I concede that the president should have said that some, not all, of the accommodations have been eliminated."

Last week Reagan insulted U.S. ally Tunisia by calling the Israeli bombing of a PLO camp there, which killed 60 Palestinians and wounded over 100 Tunisians, "Israel's right, if they can find the right people." Surely among the rubble and 60 corpses one guilty terrorist lay dead.

Predictably, soon after the comment Speakes held a conference to soften the president's words. Speakes sent condolences to Tunisia, and labeled the attack "an understandable expression of self-defense, but it cannot be condoned by the U.S. government."

Reagan's tendency to shoot from the hip and not think from the head is a dangerously careless foreign policy approach. Now that the hijacking crisis is over, Reagan will be preparing for the November summit in Geneva. No doubt Speakes will be preparing, too. Unfortunately, Speakes can only apply lather after Reagan's verbal razor has done its damage.

Halitosis heroes

If you've been following the directions hanging in dentists' offices, the instructions printed on toothpaste boxes and pamphlets handed out by hygienists, that's probably where your dental problems began.

According to the results of a UI College of Dentistry study released last week, the standard three minutes of brushing is no longer enough to keep teeth their whitest and brightest (as well as cavity- and plaque-free).

The real unsung heroes of the experiment are the 82 UI dental students who went without brushing from Sunday night until Tuesday morning on three separate occasions in order to act as research subjects. How long did they have to brush to get rid of the plaque left on their teeth following those gruesome weekends? And where did they hide from Sunday until Tuesday?

Students should fight for tuition freeze this week

By Kirk Brown
 University Editor

JUST IN CASE any students have been sleeping under a rock for the past month, I'd like to remind you that the state Board of Regents will be voting this week whether to hike your tuition for the sixth consecutive year next fall.

The regents, who will meet at the UI Wednesday and Thursday, will be urged make their decision on the basis of several varying tuition rate proposals that have been put forth, including:

- a 6.5 percent across-the-board increase recommended by Board Executive Secretary R. Wayne Richey

- a 5 percent across-the-board increase suggested by United Students of Iowa and a coalition of student groups from the UI, Iowa State University and the University of Northern Iowa

- an across-the-board tuition freeze proposed by the UI Collegiate Associations Council and the UI Liberal Arts Student Association.

PERSUASIVE ARGUMENTS can be, and have been, made for each of these proposals. Nonetheless, I believe the stance The Daily Iowan editorial board took Oct. 1 calling for a freeze on resident tuition and a 5 percent increase for non-residents remains the most logical position for the regents to consider.

Without being repetitive, it is vital to again note that the average Iowan's income is expected to increase by only about 3 percent next year and hundreds of farm families will undoubtedly sink into bankruptcy this winter.

In light of these facts, it would be unforgivable for the regents to further burden residents with any tuition increase; in fact, a discount of some sort might be more appropriate.

NON-RESIDENT STUDENTS, as expected, have blasted the DI's suggestion as jingoistic, short-sighted, unfair and several other terms not fit for printing. They have charged, among other things, that socking non-residents with another tuition hike will destroy the UI's cultural diversity.

It is not easy or enjoyable to advocate charging one-third of our readers more money to come to the UI. But the simple reality of the situation is that the number of non-residents who have applied, and who have been accepted, at the UI has increased each of the past two years, despite tuition increases of 25 and 11 percent. In addition, the UI's foreign student enrollment is at a record high.

Clearly, the saturation point has not been reached and the $192 increase the DI is proposing for non-residents would still keep their tuition rates last in the Big Ten, $183 behind this year's non-resident tuition at the

From the Metro Desk

University of Minnesota, which ranked ninth this fall.

THE BOARD IS also more likely to vote for a freeze on resident tuition rates than an across-the-board freeze that some UI student leaders have been calling for. The much-publicized statements made by Regents Charles Duchon and Percy Harris at last month's meeting in support of a resident tuition freeze lend credence to this prediction.

Although the odds are stacked against it, asking the regents to freeze tuition totally is a far better tactic than requesting a 5 percent across-the-board hike.

Contrary to what UI Student Senate President Steve Grubbs believes, the board's final decision on the tuition issue often results from last-minute bargaining between student leaders and the nine regents. Last year, for example, the board had to vote on three different motions before approving a compromise proposal raising tuition 5 percent for residents and 11 percent for non-residents.

What type of compromise can students expect this year when USI has responded to Richey's recommended 6.5 percent tuition hike with a lukewarm alternative proposal seeking a 5 percent increase? Even if its proposal is adopted, USI would end up saving resident students about $20 next year. Big deal.

PERHAPS WHAT IS most frustrating, however, is the lack of unity UI student leaders have displayed in working for their constituents on what has to be the most important issue they will address all year.

We are not talking about meaningless resolutions, but about dollars and cents from students' pockets. Yet the student senate and CAC have spent the past several weeks firmly entrenching themselves in silly, ideological positions rather than working together to organize an effective lobbying strategy.

If the regents vote to follow Richey's recommendations and raise tuition by 6.5 percent later this week, the losers will be the students. And I would hope, as these students try to figure out ways to finance another year of higher education, they will recognize their student leaders for what they are: scapegoats.

A prefix won't add 'science' to creationism

E VOLUTION IS A fact. It is an observed aspect of reality, just as it is a fact that leaves fall from certain trees during a Midwestern autumn.

Yet creationists have, in recent years, kept the scientific community on the defensive. They have demanded "equal time" in science textbooks and stated that their "scientific creationism" should be given the same dignity as evolution.

Fortunately, the first signs of courage in standing up against this unrealistic stance are beginning. In California, the Board of Education rejected 24 science textbooks that watered down evolution to the point of meaninglessness. Well-known science writers such as Isaac Asimov have started to speak out more forcefully against such pseudo-science. Court cases have gone against those seeking forced inclusion of "scientific" creationism in school curricula.

THE ONLY THING open to question in this issue is the mechanism of evolution. In the mid-1800's, Charles Darwin and Alfred Russel Wallace proposed evolution through the process of natural selection. While this theory is often popularized by the phrase "survival of the fittest," this carries the unfortunate overtone that mere physical strength and size determine the success of an individual or species.

What natural selection is really stating, however, is that those creatures best suited to their environment will tend to survive and reproduce and to pass on those favorable characteristics to their offspring. While this can sometimes translate into the "biggest and the meanest," just as frequently it can imply the "smallest and the meekest," if that adaptation will increase the odds of staying off some other organism's menu.

Random mutations — changes in the genetic code — of the DNA in sperm and egg cells provide the fodder for natural selection to work its slow miracles. These alterations in the instructions for replication can be caused by cosmic rays, natural radioactivity, chemical means, or spontaneous rearrangements of the DNA structure. Most such experiments are doomed to failure. Every once in a while, though, the roll of the dice produces a trait which makes it easier for its holder to survive.

A FAVORITE example of a useful mutation comes from Industrial England. Certain moths there rest on birch trees. A normally white moth against the white birch bark was able to hide quite effectively from birds. Moths that had a mutation for melanin experienced a color change to black. These insects were prime targets for predators. Few of them survived to pass on their new color.

However, when pollution darkened the bark with soot, black moths were then camouflaged. Their white brothers were the ones easily visible to birds. The gene for a dark color became an advantage, was environmentally selected for, and was passed on to future generations of moths until the black variety dominated the species.

This random, statistical transformation of a species applies to all creatures throughout the eons. From single-celled animals to massive dinosaurs to the prolific human race, evolution has molded and shaped them all. When external conditions change, a species must either adapt or die out. Extinction and advancement teeter in a precarious balance. An accident of environment or an unanticipated genetic mutation can spell the difference between life and death.

THERE ARE STILL questions as to whether evolution is slow and continuous; whether it acts in spurts with long periods of inactivity in between; and whether catastrophic changes in the world can bring about correspondingly radical alterations in the make-up of species — as the recent asteroid-collision/dinosaur-extinction theory suggests. Whichever theory becomes the accepted one, though, it will be derived from an application of the scientific method; that is, the testing of an idea, the gathering of evidence to support or refute it, and, where possible, the performing of reproducible experiments.

Creationists have now added "scientific" as a prefix to their belief that God created the universe and all the creatures therein. While some greater being may very well have done so and while evolution does not preclude the existence of God, calling such a religious idea "scientific" is a contradiction in terms. Belief in a god is inherently a matter of faith. There are no objective, independent tests or experiments to prove or disprove the existence of God. Thus, by definition, any idea that ultimately rests on the reality of such a divine being cannot be called scientific.

People are free to believe as they will. Trying to transform religion into science, however, does nothing to increase our understanding of the universe. Any attempt to do so is essentially a lie.

Asking the right questions

To the Editor:

Many ideas are floating around concerning what to do with tuition rates at the UI. No one enjoys a tuition increase, especially those of us who are students (or our parents, who often help pay the bills). However, those at the UI have seen tuition increase since 1980 by 57 percent for in-state students and by 103 percent for out-of-state students.

A tuition increase looks likely once again, and the question everyone is asking is how much. Although an important question, I don't believe it is the most important one to focus on.

The major reason given for the proposed tuition increase is the state's poor economy. As such the question to focus on is this: What will happen to tuition, and our universities, when the state's economy improves? Will the regents drastically reduce tuition that had (?) to be raised in bad times? Will the state legislature increase funding to a level that will ensure excellence in education? (An excellence our universities are losing day by day.) Will higher education continue to grow out of reach for those who cannot afford it, from the regents and state leaders.

Darrin Hamilton

A terrible thing to waste

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to your editorial board's tuition proposal ("DI offers alternative tuition proposal," Oct. 1). I, too, am from Illinois, but nowhere near Chicago, and my parents aren't rich. I have had to pay my way through college, and up until this year I have done so with the help of PELL Grants and student loans. I don't like the proposed unilateral tuition increases any better than the next person. However, I am willing to pay my fair share to continue my education at the UI. What I have difficulty understanding, though, is how the UI Student Financial Aid department can have its cake and eat it too.

The problem I am talking about may not have originated there, but it has settled there. It seems that some programs, such as the Physician Assistant and the Nuclear Medicine programs, are, by classification, in the College of Medicine. This makes them, according to the Financial Aid office, ineligible to receive PELL Grants, thus eliminating them from many other types of aid. But since most students in these programs are still working toward a baccalaureate, they are considered undergraduates and are ineligible to receive graduate-level loans to make up the difference.

This means students, such as myself, may not be able to pursue their career goals. As for me, my undergrad loan has run dry. Unless I find money somewhere, I'll be leaving the UI in December $10,000 in debt, without my degree, and with a sense of disgust toward the UI. A waste, isn't it?

China charges continued U.S. aid may lead to forced recovery

PEKING (UPI) — In an obvious warning to visiting Vice President George Bush, China charged Monday that U.S. political and military support for Taiwan was preventing reunification and could lead Peking to use force to recover the island.

The blunt admonition in the latest edition of the official Peking Review magazine appeared on newsstands Monday morning as Bush began two days of talks with high-ranking Chinese leaders.

Foreign Ministry Spokesman Ma Yuzhen said Bush was told "very clearly" of Peking's opposition to U.S. arms sales to Taiwan in discussions with Premier Zhao Ziyang, Communist Party Chief Hu Yaobang, Foreign Minister Wu Xueqian and others.

Asked if China was satisfied with Bush's response, Ma said, "We still have differences over this question."

IN A BANQUET toast Monday night Bush said, "Our two great independent countries do not agree on every issue, and we should not expect to."

Ma reiterated his country's unchanging opposition to U.S. military support of Taiwan at a press briefing following Bush's meeting with the Chinese leaders.

"Chinese leaders have stated very clearly the consistent Chinese position on the Taiwan question, including, of course, the sale of U.S. arms to Taiwan," Ma said.

He said Zhao described the Taiwan issue as a "major obstacle" to Sino-U.S. relations and asked Washington to honor a 1982 communique on reducing the quantity and quality of U.S. arms to the Nationalists.

BUSH RESPONDED to the Chinese demands by "pointing out that U.S. arms sales to Taiwan had been decreasing each year," said vice presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, who described the three-hour session with Zhao as a "frank and friendly" exchange.

Senior administration officials traveling with Bush said the United States has cut its arms shipments to Taiwan from $780 million to $760 million over the last year.

"In the August 1982 communique they (the Chinese) agreed to the continuation of arms sales to Taiwan, to be reduced gradually, and I believe that's precisely what we've done," said one official.

But the official said Taiwan constitutes "a very important question for the Chinese, and they raise it, and they raise it emphatically and they raise it forcefully."

IN THE LENGTHY Peking Review commentary, Chinese foreign policy experts Zi Zhongyun and Zhuang Qubing accused Washington of "conniving" to give Taiwan official status in the international arena and of trying to circumvent the 1982 communique.

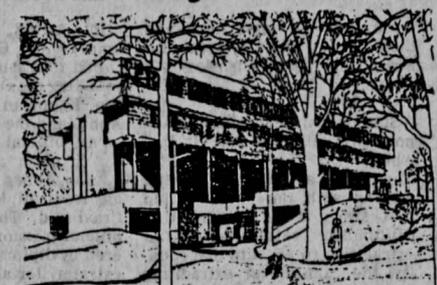

It accused the United States of treating Taiwan as a "protectorate" and said some U.S. officials were pushing to maintain military parity between the mainland China and Taiwan, which Peking considers a rebel province.

The authors warned if a succession crisis, independence movement or other political upheaval on Taiwan forced China to take military action against the island, the United States would "find itself in a real dilemma." "And, with one misstep, its relations with China will meet with serious and potentially critical setbacks," said the commentary, entitled "Opportunities and Potential Crisis."

The commentary said the U.S. backing "has undeniably encouraged the Taiwan authorities in their stubborn refusal to negotiate with the mainland" and that "America is in effect obstructing the reunification of China."

China has sought reunification with Taiwan since 1949, when the defeated Nationalist army fled to the island following the communist takeover of the mainland.

Cholesterol research wins Nobel for pair of American geneticists

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — Two American molecular geneticists have won the 1985 Nobel Medicine Prize for explaining how high cholesterol causes coronary disease, the Nobel Medicine Committee announced Monday.

The committee said the work of Michael S. Brown and Joseph L. Goldstein, of the department of molecular genetics at the University of Texas Health Science Center at Dallas, "drastically widened our understanding of the cholesterol metabolism and increased our possibilities to prevent and treat" hardening of the arteries and heart attacks.

"All I can say is that we're both shocked and very surprised and it will be a time before it all sinks in," Brown, 44, a professor, said at a hotel in Boston where he was attending a conference with Goldstein, 45.

Goldstein, a professor and chairman of the university's department of molecular genetics, said: "It's very exciting. I am still trying to believe it's true. I hope physicians and patients will become more aware of the problem of cholesterol and arteriosclerosis."

ARTERIOSCLEROSIS, commonly known as hardening of the arteries, is a disease in which fatty deposits from food build up on the inner walls of arteries, setting the stage for a heart attack or stroke.

Cholesterol, manufactured by cells and taken in with fatty food, is present in all tissues and is vital for normal bodily processes. But when excess cholesterol accumulates in artery walls, it inhibits the blood flow until a clot forms.

Blockage of a coronary artery may cause a heart attack while blockage of a vessel to the brain can cause a stroke.

The men, who will share a $225,000 cash award, were the 59th and 60th Americans to win the Nobel Prize in Physiology or Medicine, its official title, since the prestigious awards were first presented in 1901 under terms of the 1895 will of Swedish dynamite inventor Alfred Nobel.

WORKING IN tandem, the men discovered in 1973 that atherosclerosis and heart attacks may be the result of genetic defects in the Low Density Lipoprotein receptor, which pulls cholesterol from the blood stream into the body's cells.

Their research shows why previously unexplained heart attacks occurred and may uncover a way of controlling high cholesterol among populations of industrialized countries with rich diets.

In a recent article, the doctors wrote that with drug therapy to control the number of LDL receptors "it may one day be possible for many people to have their steak and live to enjoy it too."

Brown and Goldstein learned the mechanism underlying severe hereditary familial hypercholesterolemia, an inborn error of metabolism, is a complete or partial lack of functional LDL receptors.

Change in federal pay proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Current wage scales for 2 million federal employees would be scrapped and agency heads would set salaries under a bill proposed by the Pentagon, Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., said Monday.

Barnes said the plan "would politicize the federal work force by allowing managers to reward political loyalists and penalize career federal workers doing their best to implement programs and uphold the law."

The Pentagon sent the proposal as a draft bill to House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., and Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas, Barnes said.

Currently, wages for civilian federal workers are based on a 15-grade system and within each grade are middle steps. Senior government executives, such as Cabinet secretaries, can be paid more than the highest civil service grade.

Under the bill drafted by the Pentagon, which has hundreds of thousands of civilian employees, wages would be set by agency chiefs on the basis of performance. The Pentagon had no immediate comment on the proposal or Barnes' criticism.

BARNES SAID the proposal was tested with Pentagon engineers and scientists at San Diego and China Lake, Calif., and added, "This sample clearly does not represent a fair cross section of the wide variety of occupations in the federal work force."

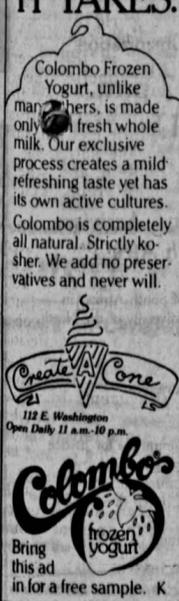

Based on such a limited sample, he said, "We don't know the consequences of sweeping changes proposed in this plan on worker pay, morale, productivity, hiring, budget costs and service to taxpayers."

Bill Bronrot, a Barnes spokesman, said the administration also is concerned about the idea.

"It has not been introduced in Congress but sent up to the speaker and the Senate majority leader and sent to (the Office of Personnel Management) for review. OPM has some very serious concerns about it."

Bronrot also admitted the current civil service system is not perfect.

ABBAS WAS being held by Italian authorities along with the hijackers last week when the warrant was issued, but he was allowed to fly to Yugoslavia. Washington in turn asked Yugoslavia to arrest and extradite Abbas, but Yugoslavia did not respond on Monday and the PLO said Abbas had left the country.

"Abbas was just passing through Yugoslavia on his trip out of Italy," said the PLO official, who would not comment on Abbas' destination. "He was not on an official visit here and therefore it was not necessary for him to meet any Yugoslav officials."

State Department officials had no confirmation of reports that Abbas had traveled to South Yemen. But a department official dealing with the matter noted that since there are no U.S. diplomatic relations or an extradition treaty with that country, the chances for extraditing Abbas would be nil.

IN ROME, Craxi told an emergency Cabinet meeting called to discuss the events surrounding the Oct. 7 hijacking that the Egyptian plane carrying Abbas and the four hijackers was on an "official mission."

"Abu Abbas was the holder of an Iraqi diplomatic passport," Craxi said. "The plane was on an official mission, considered covered by diplomatic immunity and extraterritorial status in the air and on the ground."

In a move to stem a widening crisis, Craxi had been expected to try to placate Defense Minister Giovanni Spadolini, who has been hinting he might pull his Republican Party out of Italy's five-party governing coalition.

Spadolini, leader of the strongest pro-U.S. party in the coalition, was outraged by Abbas' departure and stung by Craxi's failure to consult with him. He did not attend the Cabinet meeting.

faculty is in desperate need of some sort of sign that there is continued state interest in higher education.

In his address to the senate last month, Sjolund pointed out how dramatically relative salary levels at the UI have dropped in recent years.

"Today, the average salary paid to associate professors is less, in real dollars, than the salary we paid to assistant professors when I first came to Iowa," said Sjolund. "We have lost an entire rank."

UI Vice President for Academic Affairs Richard Remington agreed there is a morale problem at the UI, but he stressed the level of academic excellence on campus has not suffered because of it.

REMINGTON SAID one way of illustrating that the UI is maintaining a high level of professional excellence is by watching where UI professors go when they resign.

The UI report to the regents indicates that UI professors who resigned last year went to prestigious universities such as Harvard, Cornell, Johns Hopkins and Northwestern.

But Sjolund said he sees the migration of faculty from the UI to these universities is an indication the UI is fast becoming a "stepping stone" for professors on their way to more prestigious and better paying schools.

"It's not just a person, it's a whole program" that is lost when the UI loses established faculty, Sjolund said.

He also said losing professors because of non-competitive salaries is penny-wise and dollar-foolish because the departing faculty often take precious research dollars with them when they leave and new junior faculty members have to develop their programs from scratch.

"When you have to re-invent the wheel, when you have to start the process over again, you have to start wholly with institutional funds," said Sjolund.

AN EXAMPLE of this came last year when Gerald Granner left the College of Medicine for Vanderbilt University, taking with him more than $1 million in research grants and an international reputation fostered at the UI.

"Those are the kind of people that we can't afford to lose. If you lose many of those — then you're in trouble," said College of Medicine Dean John Eckstein.

Although the faculty in the College of Medicine is among the highest paid at the UI — with a handful of professors earning more than UI President James O. Freedman's annual salary — Eckstein said he isn't surprised by the number of faculty who have resigned in recent years.

Clinical medicine professors can still usually make more money in private practices than they can at a university, said Eckstein, so professors who "see the reward system" in terms of money are practically impossible to keep on the faculty.

GRANNER SAID he left the UI because of frustrations he experienced in trying to continue his research and to advance his professional career.

Despite the fact that his research was one of the most important programs in the College of Medicine, Granner said he wasn't given enough room to continue and advance his work.

"I didn't really have any space at all under my control at the university," said Granner.

Since he went to Vanderbilt, Granner said he has been able to expand his personal research and that of his department.

Another UI professor who resigned last year said the primary reason he left was the backwards nature of the UI.

"The university is dominated by this 1960s style of populist ideology," said the professor, who asked not to be named. "What people say is it's the money, but I don't think so. The basic problem is intellectual."

The professor, who is now teaching at another Big Ten university, also said the poor quality of UI students influenced him to leave.

According to Remington, however, a certain number of the UI faculty will leave each year no matter what the UI does to try to prevent it.

"The most important factor is that people leave for what they perceive to be a better situation," said Remington.

Budget

Gov. Terry Branstad cut state spending by 3.85 percent last month.

A partial list of the UI funding requests Richey is recommending the regents approve include:

- $5.6 million for improving educational quality and research equipment.
- $8.5 million for continuing the remodeling of the UI Chemistry-Botany Building.
- $2 million for utility improvements.

WHILE URGING the regents to approve these requests, Richey voiced skepticism about actual funding of the projects unless "the money drops straight out of heaven."

"The regents institutions face some severe and unavoidable budget problems in fiscal year 1987," warns Richey's report. "The universities have urgent needs for additional funds to maintain or achieve an adequate level of quality in their educational programs."

"(But) it is unlikely that state revenues will permit a significant growth in appropriations in fiscal year 1987," continues the report.

Although Mahon said all of the UI requests for funding represent "urgent and pressing" needs, she said the increases Richey has recommended were not vastly different from past years and thus probably would not spark much controversy between Richey and UI officials.

Malone

fire and restructured a loan repayment schedule, which Malone has continued to repay.

Koza testified that Malone did not have money problems at the time and was good about repaying debts.

Walter Moscrip, owner of Hall Bicycle Co. in Cedar Rapids, said he sold bicycle parts to one Coralville and two Iowa City bicycle shops, including The Bicycle Peddlers. While the other businesses ordered less merchandise in 1982 than the year before, Malone purchased $1,293 worth of parts in 1982 and only $503 worth in 1981.

"ACCORDING TO what he bought from me, he was on a good start for the fall and a great start for Christmas," Moscrip said.

Defense witnesses said Malone took the demise of his business hard.

Lori Anderson, who was manager of Comer's at the time of the fire, said Malone was "devastated" on the night of the fire.

"Dennis looked so upset it was upsetting to me," she testified. Anderson said she "tried very hard not to cry" when she saw Malone, and had to leave the scene.

Bruce Johnson, an Ames fire expert who investigated photographs, diagrams and depositions concerning the fire, argued against the state's opinion that the blaze began with fuel oil splashed in the basement of The Bicycle Peddlers.

Johnson said fuel oil was found near the origin of the blaze because it leaked down a wall in a "V pattern" from a bicycle parts washer on the floor above it. He said the fire did not start with an accelerant, but the liquid leaked into the already burning fire.

The evidence "should've jumped right out" at investigators, Johnson said. Dooley, however, defended the state's theory because the state officials actually studied the scene of the fire.

Testimony continues today, with closing statements expected this afternoon or early Wednesday.

Docudrama 'Kaddish' deals with struggle of Holocaust survivors

By Richard Panek
Staff Writer

AT THE START of Kaddish and again at the end, Yossi Klein is saying kaddish over his father's tomb. It is a Jewish prayer of mourning and of hope. This prayer, as well as what it represents in the life of Yossi Klein, gives Kaddish a complete dramatic structure, even though it is a documentary.

Such a satisfying resolution couldn't have been anticipated when Steven Brand, a producer for "20/20," started this project in 1978. As the subject of a documentary, Yossi Klein was promising but unpredictable. He was 25, angry and on the verge of extremism.

Most importantly for the purposes of this documentary, he was the son of a survivor of the Holocaust. Zoltan Klein lived through the Nazi occupation of Hungary by hiding in a forest. His parents — Yossi's grandparents — died at Auschwitz. Partly as a result of these tragedies, when Zoltan came to the United States and married an Orthodox Jew, he didn't want children.

YOSSI GREW up with this knowledge. Thanks to his father's horrific bedtime stories, he also grew up with the Holocaust as a reality from the past and as a possibility for the future. By the time he was 10, Yossi was publishing articles about the Holocaust as if he, and not his father, were the survivor.

Survival is the central subject of Kaddish. As Yossi became politically active in protests, including a trip to Moscow on behalf of Soviet Jews, and as he became a freelance writer specializing in Jewish issues, he was trying to understand how and why his father, and anyone else, has survived. When his father died, during a trip to Israel, Yossi had come to terms with his own survival.

It is the outcome of this struggle that provides Kaddish with its dramatic movement. Will Yossi capitulate to his pessimism? Will he turn into a fanatic, a doomsday prophet, an alarmist who sees the next Holocaust around every cultural corner?

FOR A WHILE, he does. After taking over his father's wholesale candy business, he writes articles for the New Jewish Times comparing Germany in the early 1940 to today's United States. But during a visit to Jerusalem in 1981, to cover the World Gathering of Jewish Holocaust Survivors, he comes to terms with his past. And he understands the importance of hope for the future.

Standing over his father's tomb, saying kaddish, Yossi Klein tries to voice the thoughts of Zoltan Klein:

"Whatever I am, I am more than that, because of what I have been through, because of what I survived. I am a monument."
So is Kaddish.

Weekend concerts feature vocals, instruments blending effectively

Maria Deligiorgis
Special to The Daily Iowan

THERE WERE TWO concerts on campus this weekend, both of which deserve some note. First the Center for New Music performed Sunday afternoon in the sculpture court of the UI Museum of Art, and Sunday evening Kantorei, under the direction of Don V. Moses, celebrated Heinrich Schütz's 400th birthday with a concert of vocal music in Clapp Recital Hall.

The Music in the Museum concert began with a Dennis Riley composition, Apparitions, in three movements. Georgeanne Cassat played the harp, Jane Walker the flute and William Hibbard the viola.

The three performers sat close together, a facet that added to the intensity of this rich melodic dialogue. The instruments maintained their individual voices yet blended and moved together.

THE THIRD MOVEMENT was particularly beautiful. Viola and harp played several harmonics with the viola often muted. The other-world quality of the music was further magnified in the sculpture court with the harp's bell-like tones.

The second piece on the program was Kata, a 1985 composition by UI composing student Jeffrey Johnson. Kecia Ashford's clear soprano voice rang above an eight-flute choir and two percussionists. Hibbard did an excellent job as conductor of the seven haiku, drawing subtle nuances while keeping complex rhythms under firm control.

The most memorable work of the CNM concert was percussionist Michael Geary's performance of Psappha by Iannis Xenakis.

Geary began with a warning to the audience of the volume the composition would achieve. Sure enough, it got very loud, very quickly. Geary, however, went beyond mere volume with an exceptional and dramatic use of dynamic variation. Geary is an impressive performer who offered the audience an explosive musical experience.

THE KANTOREI concert was an event of 30 singers blending beautifully. This was especially evident in the second piece, "Ich weiss, dass mein Erlöser lebt." Moses coaxed from his singers a full blending of mature voices. Patty Cahalan, the soprano soloist, was an absolute joy as her lilting voice soared above the rich texture of the choir.

"Psalm 24, SMV 476" was the most exciting work of the evening. Singers and instrumentalists were situated all over the auditorium with Moses conducting from the middle, between members of the audience. The auditorium was filled to capacity with sound.

The audience was again encompassed for the final work on the program, "Psalm 136, SWV 45." Applause is deserved for Moses and his singers for an extraordinary choral performance.

Groups band together for benefit

By Allen Hogg

SEVERAL IOWA rock musicians will be helping out their own tonight at the Crow's Nest as three Iowa City-based bands participate in a benefit for an Eastern Iowa group that recently had its equipment destroyed in a fire.

Boys With Toys, the Shy and the Rhythm Rockers will perform in a concert to raise money for the Blue Band, a Cedar Falls-based group that had its instruments and equipment destroyed in a recent fire at a Waterloo club. Ramona Black, stage manager at the Crow's Nest, said the benefit is being held because the

Rock 'n' roll

Blue Band has done so much for the Iowa City music scene. "They've played here for about five years," she said, "and they've really put a lot into the Crow's Nest."

A THREE-DOLLAR donation will be requested at the door, although Black said patrons may give as much as they want. "People can give more, or pay less if they can't afford that," she said.

All proceeds will go to the Blue Band, which has also been hampered recently by the loss of saxophonist Bobby Thompson, who had major surgery at the UI Hospitals. "The bands are donating their sets; (area soundman) Dennis Jones is donating sound and lights; and the Crow's Nest is donating the building and advertising," Black said.

The Blue Band, commonly known as "Bobby's Blue Band," specializes in rhythm 'n' rock, reggae and blues and has released three albums on band leader Bob Dorr's Hot Fudge Records label. According to Black, the band members have continued performing since the fire, using rented equipment. She said many of them would be at tonight's show and could be expected to sit in on some of the other bands' sets.

Holbrook's acclaimed portrayal of Twain promises surprises, fun

Hal Holbrook will perform "Mark Twain, Tonight!" at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Hancher Auditorium. The acclaimed one-man show will celebrate the 150th birthday of America's great humorist.

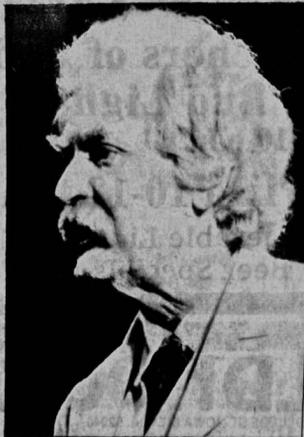

With more than 30 years and 1,500 performances, Holbrook's affectionate portrayal of Mark Twain is unchallenged as the most successful and honored one-man show in American theatrical history.

Holbrook has more than 15 hours of Twain material at his command, allowing him to shape each performance to current events and the mood of his audience — and to keep the show fresh and full of surprises even for those who have seen it many times before.

The Twain portrayal began as an honors theater project at Denison University that included an "interview" with Twain. After graduation in 1948, he toured the Southwest, performing at school assemblies before heading to New York for an acting career.

Holbrook based his show on the speaking tours Twain made in his later years, so his Twain is the familiar image of the aging author in a white suit. To achieve this visage, Holbrook must subject himself to a four-hour make-up routine before each performance, and must spend an additional hour-and-a-half removing the make-up after the show.

Kaddish (1984). Jewish life in the aftermath of the Holocaust is examined in this documentary-drama about how children are prepared to face a return of the horrors of Hitler. At the Bijou at 9 p.m.

Richard Meyers, filmmaker and professor of art at Kent State University, will screen and discuss his latest work at 7:30 p.m. in Communication Studies Building Room 101.

Television

On the networks: The late Orson Welles made his last film appearance playing host to a special black-and-white episode of "Moonlighting" (ABC at 8 p.m.) in which David and Maddie daydream about alternate solutions to a 40-year-old unsolved murder. Meanwhile, a Mitchum family reunion is on hand as grandpa Robert, son Christopher and grandson Bentley C. act together for the first time in "Promises to Keep" (CBS at 8 p.m.), a TV-movie about a father's return to his family after a 30-year absence. And for the record, "Hometown" (CBS at 7 p.m.) becomes the first series of the season to bite the dust, with its last episode airing tonight.

On cable: Bette Davis plays a terminally ill socialite in Dark Victory (WGN-10 at 11:30 p.m.), a classic tear-jerker that also stars George Brent, Humphrey Bogart, Geraldine Fitzgerald and Ronald Reagan.

6.6 points a game last season and totaled 104 assists on the year.

Junior Gerry Wright and sophomore Al Lorenzen also return to add strength to Iowa's forward court. Wright averaged 9.7 points and 6.1 rebounds while starting 31 of 32 games last year, while Lorenzen averaged 3.9 rebounds and 6.2 points a game.

Seven-foot junior Brad Lohaus, who redshirted in 1984, also returns. Lohaus is coming off minor knee surgery but has hit the weights rigorously and boosted his weight to 233 pounds, up from 205 pounds last season.

Lohaus said his redshirt season will help him tremendously. "Everything I did last year helped me," he said. "I can't tell you all that it did for me."

AT THE GUARD position Iowa returns Jeff Moe, who started 24 games as a freshman last season and scored 7.7 points per game.

Also bidding for playing time in the backcourt will be sophomores Bill Jones, Michael Reaves, Michael Morgan and non-scholarship player Bart Casey.

Raveling's recruiting class, which ranked among the nation's finest, consists of high school all-Americans Ed Horton and Roy Marble, along with point guard B.J. Armstrong, 6-foot-7 swingman Kevin Gamble and 7-0 center Les Jepsen.

The team Iowa puts on the floor this year will have better athletes than last year, according to Raveling. "In terms of athletic ability we are quicker, faster and have more athletes on this team,"

Iowa basketball Coach George Raveling displays a box of Luvs diapers for the upcoming season. Raveling has only one of the diapers he says he will use to prepare his young senior and two juniors returning to the team.

he said. "This is the most talent one through 12 (players on the team) I've had at Iowa," Raveling said. "I just wish we had more talent in the junior and senior classes."

RAVELING SAID it is not "beyond the realm of possibility" that

Iowa could start two freshman, two sophomores and a junior this year, and added patience will be the watchword from a coach's viewpoint this season.

"I guarantee that nobody else in the Big Ten will put two freshmen, two sophomores and a junior on the floor," Raveling said. But the Iowa coach said "there is more than just a remote possibility we could evolve into a nationally ranked team," as the season progresses.

For that to happen, Raveling said a leader needs to emerge on the team.

Recruits

Hawkeyes this season.

Coming from a junior college shortens the step Gamble has to make from the high school ranks to the Big Ten, he said. "Most of the things the freshmen will be (adjusting to) I've already been doing in junior college," Gamble said.

The junior added because he knows what to expect from playing at the college level, he will be able to help the other new players make the adjustment to Big Ten basketball.

RAVELING CONSIDERS Marble to be an outstanding athlete who could play in two or three different positions for the Hawkeyes.

The guard's rebounding ability has caught the attention of the Iowa coach. "Marble could end up being the best rebounding guard I've ever coached," Raveling said.

Marble is optimistic about the young Hawkeyes doing well this season. "We definitely have the talent," he said. "It's raw talent, but soon Coach Raveling will start to make it gel.

"I know in the long run we'll be pretty tough," Marble said.

Horton is another multi-talented player Raveling recruited who could man more than one position for Iowa. Horton will probably play at power forward while Armstrong will be a point guard.

Horton said he sees his role this season as contributing more on defense than offense. "Rebounding is probably by far my best part of the game," he said. "I want to rebound and become a great rebounder."

Jepsen, who plays center, is probably the unknown newcomer on the Iowa team, according to Raveling. "There's no doubt he's Iowa's center of the future," the Iowa coach said.

Raveling called Jepsen a good shooter for a 7-footer. "He also runs the floor well for his size," he said.

Cardinals

the feat was the 1981 Dodgers, who beat the New York Yankees in six games in the World Series.

NO TEAM HAS won a best-of-seven series by winning all four games at home and losing all three on the road. But that is what the Dodgers must do to capture these playoffs.

After a day off Tuesday, St. Louis will start Joaquin Andujar against Orel Hershiser of Los Angeles.

The game featured a gutty performance by Valenzuela, who pitched eight innings and escaped numerous jams.

"Fernando pitched a great ballgame," Dodger catcher Mike Scioscia said. "He made some great pitches in crucial situations."

The Cardinals received patchwork pitching with starter Bob Forsch lasting into only the fourth inning. Jeff Lahti pitched the last inning for the victory.

"THE KEY WAS OUR bullpen," Herzog said. "(Ken) Dayley got out of one jam and (Todd) Worell got out of the eighth. That was their last threat."

The game began after a 46-minute rain delay. And for the third consecutive time, St. Louis took an early lead, blending speed with clutch hitting for a 2-0 advantage.

McGee and Smith opened with walks and Tommy Herr doubled down the left-field line. McGee came home easily and Smith ran through the stop sign of third base coach Hal Lanier to score.

The Dodgers answered in a strange fourth inning that included catcher's interference, a botched pickoff and managerial moves.

Ken Landreaux led off with a single. One out later, Bill Madlock hit his second homer of the series, tying the score 2-2.

Hawks start preparation for Michigan

After a physical game against Wisconsin, Iowa Coach Hayden Fry said practice went well Monday considering the players' condition.

"A lot of guys were very sore and beaten up," he said. "They were very attentive and conscientious and I think we got off to a good start this week."

Fry said all decisions on the playing status of injured players will be decided during pre-game warmups against Michigan Saturday.

After watching game films Sunday, Fry singled out Ronnie Harmon, Jay Norvell and Gary Kostrubala as the best offensive, defensive, and specialty team players.

In other news, Michigan's tenacious defense has allowed only one touchdown in five games, a fact that must concern Fry.

"They're just fundamentally so sound and they have such good balance between the running and passing offense and the running and passing defense."

NFL executives may adopt instant replay

NEW YORK (UPI) — National Football League executives may expand an experimental use of televised instant replays to settle disputed officials' calls to this season's playoffs and Super Bowl.

The replay plan is on the agenda of the NFL presidents' fall meetings, which will be held today and Wednesday in New York.

The use of instant replays has the support of Dallas executive Tex Schramm and several coaches, including Miami's Don Shula and Pittsburgh's Chuck Noll — but faces resistance because officials have never used the replays during the regular season.

The instant replay issue will probably be voted on Wednesday, and if passed, the NFL will use the same system it tried as an experiment during selected preseason games. The replays would be authorized for the eight postseason playoff games and the Super Bowl championship.

An extra official will be posted in the press box and watch replays of close calls involving possession plays — only questions of catches and fumbles will be reviewed.

On The Line

Yes, it has happened. The great O.T. Line doesn't want to admit it but it has happened. What has happened? We announced the wrong winner of last week's keg of brew from Stonewall's in Monday's paper.

Sorry, Steve Schauer but your just like the 543 other ballots from last week now, you lost.

Mary Rocca is the true winner and she came up with one of the best ballots we have ever seen here at the DI. She went through her ballot with a 10-0 record and predicted the tie breaker score for the Oklahoma-Texas game as Sooners 14, Longhorns 6. The actual score as you know by now was 14-7.

Schauer predicted a tie-breaker score of 17-10 in favor of Oklahoma on his perfect ballot but came up short to Rocca.

Congratulations Mary. We are expecting massive amounts of ballots to roll in this week to contribute to the excitement starting to build in anticipation of the Iowa-Michigan contest Saturday. Let's set a record for entrants this week. Staff Writer Steve Sands has nothing better to do with his life than count ballots anyway.

The prize this week has been kindly donated by The Copper Dollar, located at 211 Iowa Avenue. The Dollar rocks and bops nightly and is Sports Editor Melissa Rapoport's favorite place to play pinball.

Before you can win, however, we have some rules for you to follow.

First circle the team you think will win. If you are predicting a tie, circle both teams.

The last game listed is the tiebreaker, circle the team you think will win and predict the score of the game.

Only five ballots per person will be accepted and entry deadline is high noon Thursday.

You must be nineteen years of age to enter the contest.

Iowa sharp at Kentucky meet

By Jeff Stratton
Assistant Sports Editor

Tennis

There is something about playing golf in Kentucky that agrees with the Iowa women's golf team.

Iowa played to a fourth-place tie with Michigan State Monday after the first round of the Kentucky Invitational in Lexington.

This is the first time this year the Hawkeyes have matched Michigan State stroke for stroke, something Iowa Coach Diane Thomason has said her team is capable of doing.

Last year Iowa turned in one of its best performances at the Kentucky Invitational, finishing eighth in a strong field.

HOST KENTUCKY leads the tournament with 292 shots, followed by Indiana (300), North Carolina (302), Iowa and Michigan State (313), Memphis State (314), Illinois (316), Bowling Green (319), Western Kentucky (320), Southern Illinois (322) Michigan (333) and Alabama-Birmingham at 348.

Thomason was excited by her team's play, but said she expects the Hawkeyes to improve on

Monday's scores. "They are determined to play better and have that urge to play better," she said. "I told them we have to have three steady team scores and I know we can do that after last year."

The Hawkeyes were paced by Mary Baecke and Julie Edgar who shot 76 on the par-74 course. Freshman Diane Ohl added a 79, while Lynn Tauke shot 82 and Mary Kramer shot 85.

NORTH CAROLINA'S Kandi Kessler leads the race for individual honors after shooting three-under-par 71.

Iowa's tie with Michigan State is something the Hawkeyes have been shooting for, according to Thomason. "I have said all along we can match up with Michigan State," Thomason said.

Baecke shot even-par on the back nine holes, which was Iowa's front nine, enroute to her 76, and Thomason said she has been expecting a solid round from Baecke. "She needed to put in a round like that," she said.

The Iowa coach said she wants steadier play from Ohl, who shot even-par on her first nine holes before slumping to a 43 on the back side. "We need to work to keep her a little steadier," Thomason said.

Seniors the key to Illini hopes

CHAMPAIGN, ILL. (UPI) — Illinois basketball Coach Lou Henson said Monday the success of his veteran team will depend on the seniors — the same group that did not play up to expectations last year.

Even though the team finished 26-9 and second in the Big Ten, Illinois was expected to do better.

"I felt we had a pretty good year. Some people were disappointed," Henson said at the team's picture day. "We didn't play as well as the year before."

Returning for Illinois are guards Bruce Douglas and Doug Altenberger and forwards Efrim Winters, Anthony Welch, Scott Meents and Ken Norman. Norman, the only junior in that group, finished strong last season, averaging more than 17 points a game his last six.

NORMAN ALSO IS a key to one of the "new wrinkles" Henson mentioned using — a fast break.

"I don't think we've got a fast-breaking ballclub," Henson said. "We would like to get the ball down the floor sooner. ... We're going to work on it, but we're not good at it."

Norman is probably the fastest of the forwards and coming from Chicago's Public League is at home with a fast-breaking offense.

But making radical changes — especially with veteran players — is not Henson's style. He said the team is better at running a half-court offense and indicated if the fast break doesn't prove itself immediately, he'll drop it.

"If the seniors have a good year, then we're going to have a good ballclub," Henson said. "We're going to try to move and do a little bit more."

ILLINOIS LOST TO Georgia Tech in the NCAA Tournament last year and travels to Atlanta March 1 for a rematch in the midst of a four-game road trip to end the regular season.

"We almost won the game," said Altenberger, who scored 24 points to lead Illinois in the game. "We better be hot at that point in the schedule."

Altenberger hopes to see more consistency in the team's play this year. "At times (last season) we were outstanding. At times we were lousy," he said.

One lousy time for Altenberger, even though he tied for Illinois' scoring honors, was when he was limited to 8 points in a 54-34 loss at Purdue.

Joining Altenberger in the backcourt is Douglas, who slumped to less than 40 percent shooting from the field last year.

Douglas said some minor changes in last year's lineup — Welch in at forward after sitting out a year and Douglas from forward to guard — may account for some sub-par play. He looks forward to a better year.

"We're all used to the positions we're in," he said. "That was a big difference."

Royals' Gubicza surprise starter as Toronto looks to wrap up title

TORONTO (UPI) — Canadians celebrated Thanksgiving Monday, and the Toronto Blue Jays are grateful the Kansas City Royals have exhausted their left-handed starters.

The Blue Jays were baffled by southpaws Charlie Leibrandt and Danny Jackson in Games 4 and 5 of the American League playoffs over the weekend in Kansas City, scoring just three runs in those games. The three runs, however, came in the ninth inning Saturday and the Blue Jays were able to pull out a 3-1 victory to give them a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series.

Looking to wrap up their first-ever American League pennant, Toronto ran into the 23-year-old Jackson Sunday and the Texan shut the Jays down by pitching an eight-hit, 2-0 shutout.

Now at 3-2 in the series, the Blue Jays tonight again will attempt to clinch the series. On the mound, they will see a welcome sight — a right-hander. During the regular season, Toronto thrived against right-handed pitching, going 75-36 against righties. Against lefties, they were 24-26.

IN THE PLAYOFF series, Royals manager Dick Howser sought to nullify that edge by using three left-handers — Leibrandt, Bud Black and Jackson — along with right-handed ace Bret Saberhagen. The theory backfired in the first two games, as Toronto took a 2-0 lead in the series. But Leibrandt and Jackson came back with strong performances to keep Kansas City alive.

Howser will start 23-year-old right-hander Mark Gubicza in Game 6. Gubicza, 14-10 during the regular season, was scorched in his only start against Toronto this year, giving up five runs in 2 2-3 innings. He pitched three innings in relief last Tuesday in Game 1 but has not started a game since Oct. 4.

"With a game of this importance, I feel excited," said Gubicza, who was given the starting assignment after Sunday's game. "It's a dream come true. I feel strong, I think I can do the job. I didn't have any complete games this year, but I figure I'd save it for this one."

TORONTO MANAGER Bobby Cox plans on loading his lineup with left-handed hitters against Gubicza as the Blue Jays try and break out of their mini-slump. The Blue Jays were limited to seven hits Saturday and eight Sunday.

"Their pitchers have come around pretty good to me," said Cox. "Their pitchers have pitched good and our guys have pitched good. We just left a lot of runners on base. We hit the ball hard, but we just couldn't get them in."

Blue Jays catcher Ernie Whitt said seeing the right-handed Gubicza should not make much of a difference.

"We can score off lefties or righties," said Whitt. "You've got to give the pitchers credit for what they did (over the weekend)."

GUBICZA, LIKE Jackson, is a power pitcher. Kansas City catcher Jim Sundberg said Gubicza sometimes gets overexcited when he is pitching and that is when he can get in trouble.

"Sometimes he gets emotionally wrapped up in the game," said Sundberg. "His personality is a 'rah-rah' type. He's a very emotional kid. That's when he has a tendency to throw the ball too hard. But when his control is good, he's solid. The key for him is to get ahead of the hitters, with his breaking pitch or his fast ball."

Doyle Alexander, who pitched in Toronto's American League East clinching game over the New York Yankees, will make his second start of the series for the Blue Jays. Alexander, Toronto's winningest pitcher at 17-10 during the regular season, allowed five runs and seven hits over five innings in Game 3.

Rugby club defeats Illinois State gets whipped by ranked Gophers

By Laura Palmer Staff Writer

With a 4-0 victory over Illinois State last Saturday, the Iowa women's Rugby Club appeared to have the lead on a strong weekend. But a 12-4 loss later to Minnesota left them in a bind.

Diane Pfile, on a Ronnie Harmon look-alike run from midfield, scored the only try of the Iowa-Illinois State tussle. A missed conversion point kept the score at 4-0.

Experience was the key to the 12-4 victory for the Gophers.

"Minnesota is a lot more experienced team and have been together a lot longer (than we have)," Iowa player Tanya Fry said.

The Gophers scored early against Iowa but the Hawkeyes kept them from scoring again until late in the second half.

Pfile was again Iowa's only scorer.

Ice Hawks victorious

The Ice Hawks' A-team skated their way to a 5-3 victory over Loras College in Dubuque Friday.

A slow start for Iowa left the Hawkeyes down by three but the A-team was able to regain its composure and win by two.

The B-team fell to Palmer College, 4-0.

The team will practice Wednesday at 9 p.m. in Dubuque. Its first conference game is scheduled for Oct. 25.

Soccer Club wins

Controlling the game from the start, the Hawkeye Soccer Club rolled over the Cedar Rapids Comets, 3-1.

Hawkeye Jose Aquayo carried the ball deep into Comet territory before kicking a cross pass to teammate Jacques Bourgeois, allowing Bourgeois to put the first point on the board.

Minutes later, Jeremy Sawadogo added another goal to make the score 2-0 at the half.

Iowa's third goal came off a breakaway, allowing Rodrigo Carraminana to score. A late goal by the Comets made the score 3-1.

"It was a big win for us in what is widely regarded as a duel for soccer supremacy in eastern Iowa," Hawkeye Raul Curto said. "I thought we played a fairly neat game and deserved the win."

The Hawkeyes will travel to Cedar Falls on Saturday to take on Northern Iowa.

Bowlers take top spot

With a top score of 2,277, the Iowa men's Bowling Club A-team bowled its way past Iowa State and Augustana to win its first meet last weekend.

High scorer for the A-team was Steve Scarpino with 589 pins.

The men's B-team bowled a total of 2,252 pins with Kevin Klein as its high scorer.

The women's Bowling Club defeated Augustana with a 2,315 total score.

Both Angie Paar and Rochelle Phelps were high scorers with 513 pins.

This meet was a preparation for the Big Ten meet scheduled for Oct. 26-27 in Madison, Wis.

Rowers reach finals

The Iowa Crew Club sent four boats into the finals at the Creighton Regatta last weekend.

The mixed eight boat rowed its way to a first place finish.

Both the women's novice eight and the men's varsity four boat had second place finishes and the women's novice four took third.

Twenty-two people made the trip and everyone, including the novice boats, were able to compete.

Water Polo Club sweeps

Making a clean sweep of all three of its opponents, the Iowa City Water Polo Club left Grinnell Saturday knowing that the wins were well deserved.

"We play like a team this year," Jim Chaney said. "Everybody is scoring."

Iowa City dominated Grinnell with a 14-0 win before rolling over Knox, 14-1, and trouncing Des Moines, 15-3.

Iowa City's leading scorers were Chaney with 11 goals, Steve Ferguson with nine and Bill Veer with eight.

Iowa City will host Nebraska Saturday, at 11:30 a.m. at the Field House Pool.

For further information about the club, contact Eric Fleming at 354-9219 or Jim Chaney at 351-3441.

Nordic skiers meet

Take charge this winter by helping to organize trips, outings and social activities for the Iowa Cross Country Ski Club.

A committee organizational meeting will be held tonight from 6:30-7:30 p.m. in Room 354 of the Field House.

Everyone interested in organizing events or skiing should attend tonight's meeting or contact club President Randy McGuire at 354-1390 or Vice President Margaret Beals at 354-6460.

Travelogue series begins

Veteran adventure photographer Jim McDonald will open the Iowa Mountaineers travelogue series on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 p.m. in Macbride Auditorium.

McDonald's subject will be "Scandinavian Summer."

The public is invited and admission will be by season ticket or available at the auditorium.

Travel meeting set

University Travel will hold an informational meeting Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Union Michigan Room to distribute information about upcoming trips.

Some of the trips offered include a holiday shopping trip to Chicago, a ski trip to Steamboat, Colo., and spring break vacations to South Padre Island, Texas, and Daytona Beach, Fla.

turned over his driver's license. He is scheduled to appear in traffic court Nov. 8.

"It's an unfortunate and disappointing situation," Ditka said. "I've retained a lawyer and we'll deal with it at the right time."

Bears running back Walter Payton, who at first refused to admit knowledge of the event, defended Ditka.

"Haven't you ever been stopped?" Payton asked a reporter. "It didn't get any publicity, did it? He's a human being."

DITKA PREFERRED to discuss his club's good fortune. Sunday's victory, making up for the Bears' loss to the 49ers in the NFC Championship game last fall, gave the Bears a 6-0 record. But Ditka said he is not surprised.

"We're a good team," he said. "We came within one game of a Super Bowl last year. It's gratifying to see the team playing together. It's all for one and one for all."

Ditka said it is important his team was able to put together a seven-minute drive using the rushing game instead of the passing game in the fourth quarter. It ended with a 17-yard touchdown run by Payton.

"I DON'T THINK we dropped the running game," Ditka said. "Yesterday came out with a 189 to 183 (rushing to passing yards) balance, which is unusual. It's nice to get that feeling back."

Ditka said the victory over San Francisco wasn't really revenge for the NFC championship game loss.

"We really didn't get revenge. When they beat us they went to the Super Bowl. There was a different reward."

The Bears play NFC Central Division foes the next four weeks, including two games against Green Bay. They currently own a three-game lead over the rest of the division.

Iowa high on talent but low on experience

Banks returns as sole senior on 85-86 team

By Jeff Stratton
Assistant Sports Editor

Iowa basketball Coach George Raveling passed out bumper stickers at Monday's Iowa press day that say, "Wait Til They're Old Enough To Shave!" — and that is the motto of the Hawkeyes for the 1985 season.

The reason? Raveling documented plenty of them, starting with the percentage of juniors and seniors returning this season on each Big Ten team.

Iowa returns the lowest number of juniors and seniors in the conference. Juniors and seniors make up 61 percent of the Illinois and Northwestern basketball teams, while the Hawkeyes have 26 percent juniors and seniors on the roster.

Basketball

The Hawkeyes have the smallest number of starters returning in the Big Ten, the least amount of lettermen and no player who averaged double figures in scoring or rebounding last season.

IOWA IS RANKED 15th in a preseason poll, but Raveling can't understand this. "This is the youngest team I've ever coached in my career," he said.

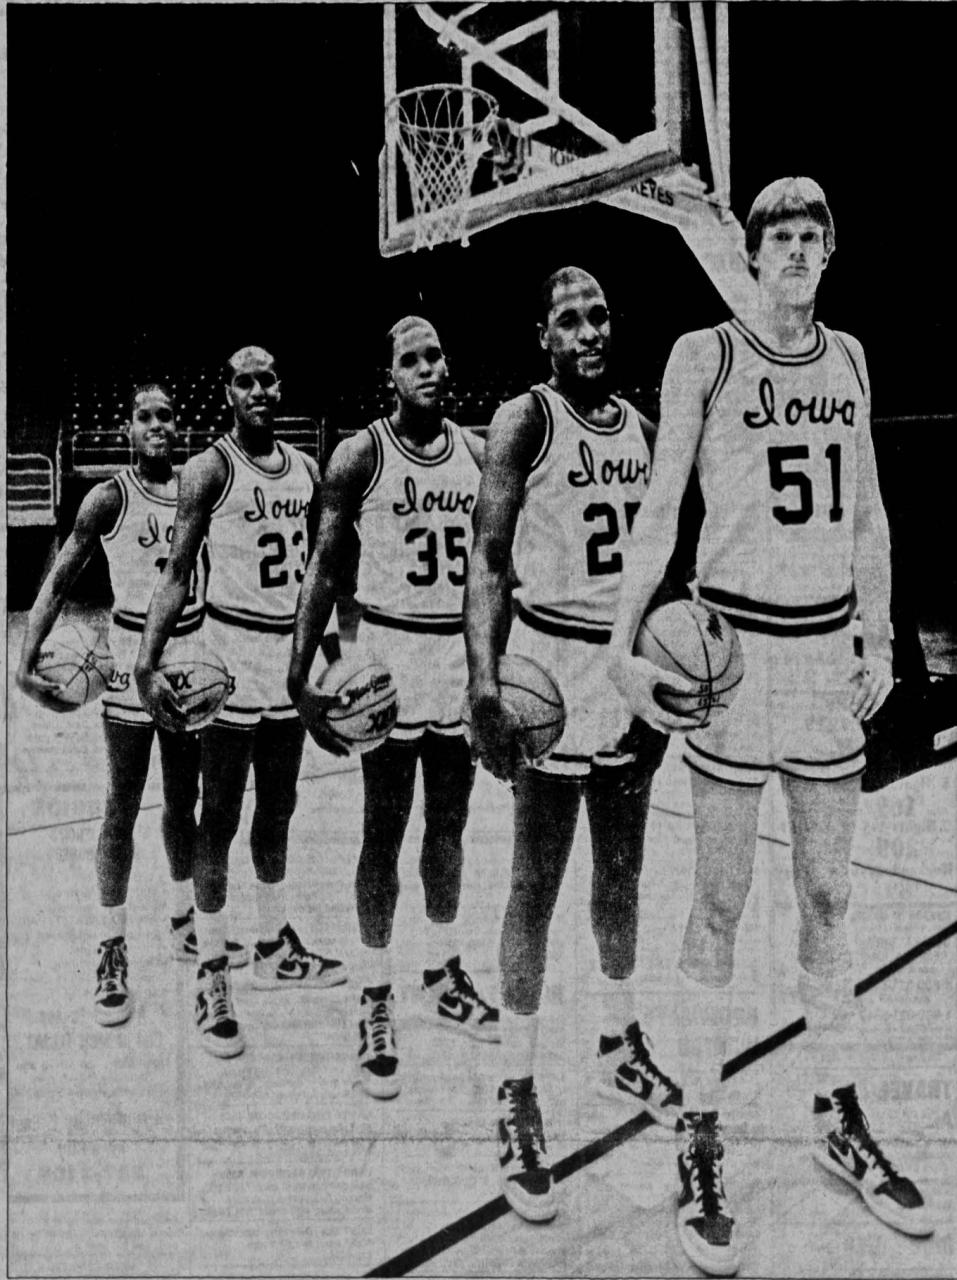

With the graduation losses of Iowa's all-time leading scorer, Greg Stokes, Michael Payne and Todd Berkenpas, the Hawkeyes lost their highest scorer, top rebounder, leading assist man and two players who started for three seasons (Payne and Stokes).

To top matters off, the three departing seniors, along with the graduated Ken Fullard, took with them 41 percent of Iowa's rebounds, 40 percent of the assists and 47 percent of all the points Iowa scored.

"This is the team now that is the 15th-ranked team in the nation," Raveling said.

"We have talent, we certainly have talent," the Iowa coach said about his highly touted freshman class. "That's the good part. The bad part is its unproven talent. Until (Tuesday) they had never even worn an Iowa uniform. It's a bunch of guys that have never played on a collegiate basketball team in their life."

IOWA DOES HAVE experience returning this season starting with three-year letterman Andre Banks at guard. Banks averaged

Raveling ready to teach team of youngsters

By Jill Hokinson
Staff Writer

What do diapers, baby food and pacifiers have to do with this year's Iowa basketball team?

They're the newest coaching devices Iowa Coach George Raveling will use to whip a young, inexperienced Hawkeye squad into a team worthy of a top 20 ranking.

"I think this is the youngest team I have ever coached in my coaching career," said Raveling who only has one senior and two juniors with Big Ten playing experience on his bench.

Compared to the other Big Ten teams, the

Basketball

Hawkeyes are definitely the young pups in the conference.

According to Raveling's statistics, Iowa has the least number of starters and lettermen returning. The Hawkeyes also have no returning players who averaged in double figures on rebounding and scoring last season.

"THIS TEAM IS totally devoid of a star," the Iowa coach said. "This is the first team I've ever coached in my life with no star."

What Raveling does have to work with this season is probably the results of two very good, back-to-back recruiting years.

"We have talent, that's the good part," he said. "The bad part is it's inexperienced talent, unproven talent."

The raw talent Raveling has to work with this season includes B.J. Armstrong, a guard from Detroit, Mich., Ed Horton, a forward from Springfield, Ill., Roy Marble, a guard from Flint, Mich. and Les Jepsen, a center from Bowbells, N.D.

Added to the list of freshmen is junior college transfer Keven Gamble from Springfield, who plays either guard or forward.

"THEY ALL HAVE the ability to play at this level and play right away," Raveling said.

Gamble comes to Iowa by way of Lincoln Junior College. Raveling describes Gamble as an outstanding jump shooter. "He will be the best shooter on the team," the Iowa coach said.

The Iowa coach expects Gamble to play either small forward or second guard for

Smith's ninth inning shot puts St. Louis up, 3-2

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Acrobatic Ozzie Smith opened the game Monday by performing one of his patented backflips. He ended it by tying the Los Angeles Dodgers in knots.

The switch-hitting shortstop hit the first left-handed home run of his career in the bottom of the ninth inning to move the St. Louis Cardinals within one victory of the World Series with a 3-2 decision over the Los Angeles

Playoffs

Dodgers. Smith's shocking liner down the right-field line off reliever Tom Niedenfuer gave the Cardinals their third straight victory over Los Angeles and a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven National League playoffs.

A victory in Game 6 Wednesday in Los Angeles will send St. Louis into the World Series for the first time since 1982.

SMITH, A 29-YEAR-OLD from Mobile, Ala., opens each post-season game by running onto the Busch Stadium infield and executing a cartwheel and a backflip. He is known as the Wizard of Oz for his sparkling defensive work. But this time it was his bat that became a wand. He entered the season with only seven lifetime homers. He added five this year, all from the right side. But this one was the sweetest of all.

"I was just trying to get a base hit and get myself in scoring position," he said. "I was fortunate to get under it and get it out of the ballpark."

As Smith hit the ball, Niedenfuer's head snapped back. Smith rounded second thrusting his right fist. He leaped into the arms of teammates at home plate.

"YOU REALLY DON'T think about Ozzie hitting one out like that," Niedenfuer said. "He just happened to do it today."

Niedenfuer had just entered the game in relief of starter Fernando Valenzuela. After Willie McGee, the first batter, fouled out, Smith followed with a shot that barely cleared the wall in right field.

"I expected Ozzie to hit one," cracked St. Louis manager Whitey Herzog. "He had two fastballs and had good swings at them."

The Cardinals are bidding to become the eighth team to capture a best-of-seven series after losing the first two games. The most recent team to accomplish
