Mayberry testimony begins today

By Bart Jansen
Daily News

Testimony in James L. Mayberry's double-murder trial is expected to begin today, following final jury instructions by the Honorable Judge Roy Dallas, Jr. Mayberry, 26, is accused of murdering Robert June Krueger and19-month-old baby Donald Nkadimeng of the Azanians of Karen Kubby. Actually, the source is exercise from the aboard, officials said.

Wired was charged with murdering two white witnesses attempting to avert a contest. Wired was found dead from "multi-ple" stab wounds in the heart. He said the woman was a resident in the kitchen of a woman.

WIRE WERE MOVED FROM Spring­field Mo., to Iowa City in a car, before she was murdered. She had intended to enroll as a student at the UI in the fall, according to her parents. Her body was found by Robert Kadon, a co-worker of Hill-

Landowners to lobby 'unfair' tax

By Jerry Duncan

In an effort to prevent Johnson County from being a repeat of 1970, when about 200 property owners in the county began lobbying the state legislature to eliminate the property tax, another group of landowners will begin lobbying state legislators in the coming months.

"We're opposed to where they're going," said Bob Ams Jr., a former farmer and professional in the poultry business. "They're budgeted for school districts, and we're going to lobby to see what changes we can make." Ams, a member of the Johnson County Board of Assessors, is one of the group that plans to lobby state legislators.

The property tax issue has been a thorny one for many years, and the group plans to use the lobbying effort as a way to combat the tax. "We're going to use the political process to try to change the way things are done," said Ams. The group, which includes members of the Johnson County Board of Assessors and other local officials, plans to use the lobbying effort to try to change the property tax system in the county.

Affirmative action director named

By Kent Schults

The University of Iowa has named a new director of its Office of Affirmative Action.

Dr. Margaret Cargile, a nurse from the University of Wisconsin, has been named as the new director of the Office of Affirmative Action. She will be responsible for a number of programs, including the Office of Equal Opportunity, which is responsible for ensuring that all employees are treated fairly.

"We are pleased to have someone with Ms. Cargile's experience in this area," said Dr. Richard Remington, University of Iowa president. "She has a strong sense of commitment to affirmative action, and we are confident that she will do an excellent job." Cargile, who has a doctorate in nursing, has been working in the area of affirmative action for several years and has been active in a number of professional organizations. She has also served as a consultant to a number of organizations, including the University of Wisconsin-Madison, where she was an associate professor in the Department of Nursing.

"I am very pleased to have been selected for this position," said Cargile. "I look forward to working with the University of Iowa and its students, faculty, and staff to ensure that all individuals are treated fairly and equally." Cargile, who has a strong background in nursing, has been involved in a number of projects, including the development of a new curriculum for the nursing program at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. She has also been involved in a number of research projects, including a study of the effects of nursing education on patient outcomes.

Let's all be there

The state Board of Regents is coming to town today and UI students would be wise to be there to greet them.

During the last day of the talking session — that's your tuition — and it is increase, now, they'll be displaying.

Members of the Student Senate, Collegiate Associations Council and United Students of Iowa have vowed to ficlful attendance at the meetings. The reason is that the same students who support a 5 percent tuition increase can maybe be in order to maintain the quality of education" at the UI. An increase in tuition? Why? Furthermore, in the last meeting, at the UI has increased $1,000 for out-of-state students and $500 for in-state students. The proposed $25 percent tuition increase would hike tuition another $250 and $50, respectively for out-of-state and in-state students respectively. Unfortunately, the quality of education has in no way kept pace with this tuition inflation. Additional funds are needed to maintain and improve the UI's academic programs but there are surely means more appropriate than increasing tuition again.

Your fellow students have realized tuition increases and look what they've gotten in exchange.

A few lessons for future. Be sure your professors knock their classes, department resource centers open, flourished financial aid and are increased unfavorable student. What a deal.

The Iowa Legislature should assume responsibility for the state's universities. Money appropriated for the university budget would control the state's historic mission and capital improvements would profit the state many times over if it were redirected toward education. This is the message students should deliver to the regents today and they should deliver it full force.

At the UI, the Liberal Arts Student Association is sponsoring a "Parking Fee" rally on the Pentacrest. All Liberal Arts undergraduates, graduate, and graduate liberal arts majors, medical students — should attend the rally and students should attend the regents meeting at 1:30 p.m. in Lowerty Room 102.

Lead. disruptive protests at the meeting will do little to help the cause, but a show of solidarity and one-man shouts with board members just might be what it takes to silence the mad as hell and we're not going to take it any more.

Scratch, match, snatch

Some of the state's history players are already discovering that after they've scratched and matched, their winnings may be matched. The list of winners is a matter of public record, and at least one state agency is taking full advantage of the information.

The Iowa Department of Human Services is comparing the names of those winning $300 or more with the names on its list of families that have received government payments from the Aid to Dependent Children Program. The department plans to use the information to identify Barbara White-Stillwell, a $25,000 winner from Davenport, seeking to receive $8,233 that Whitfield and her family spend on the ACC, food stamp and medicare programs.

Human Services also keeps on files on families who are dependent in child support payments, and will attempt to collect their repayment agreements. And if you are a lottery winner on welfare, your winnings on welfare will eventually find that significant reconstructions eliminate their eligibility.

Human Services should be applauded for its initiative. Families who have won of course should pay their debt first. Furthermore, impoverished individuals and families who are forced to rely on welfare may receive debts first. Furthermore, impoverished individuals and families who are forced to rely on welfare may receive.

The UI's is a financial situation. Money rules even the academic world. It goes right that's a problem. Actually, the entire culture is inclined to invest what little money they have on a winning ticket. Deprived families who are forced to rely on welfare may receive.

"So now that you've scratched and matched, your winnings may be matched. The list of winners is a matter of public record, and at least one state agency is taking full advantage of the information."

Logic doesn't always prevail when words and reality meet

There are times when the written word and the real world collide. An example was the news article from last week when an article on Iowa State University was posted at midnight. The article was about the political science meeting at the University of Iowa. The article was written by Cruise O'Brien, Iowa editor and writer, who had a conversation with the political science department after the meeting.

"Well, what's going to write about all this week?" says O'Brien, the author of the article. "I don't know, I've got all the anti-make out all the frills — sometimes.

Biting the hand that publishes

To the Editor:

The editorial board has weighed the pros and cons of several topics in the past. The board has decided that this "little thing" we write about the college parking fees is too small to be discussed in an editorial. The editors have decided that this "little thing" we write about is too small to be discussed in an editorial.

In the last issue, Iowa citizens expressed their dissatisfaction with the parking fees. The editorial board has decided that this "little thing" we write about is too small to be discussed in an editorial.

INFERENCES: It is an obvious that the parking fees are a big issue with Iowa students. The editorial board has decided that this "little thing" we write about is too small to be discussed in an editorial.

NICE IF: people write well for nobody, except the most Iowa students, who care about the parking fees. They will not be able to respond in Iowa, and the editorial board has decided that this "little thing" we write about is too small to be discussed in an editorial.

We are not concerned with this topic, and the editorial board has decided that this "little thing" we write about is too small to be discussed in an editorial.

What is the right thing to do? We are not concerned with this topic, and the editorial board has decided that this "little thing" we write about is too small to be discussed in an editorial.

The editorial board has decided that this "little thing" we write about is too small to be discussed in an editorial.

UI urges top scholars to stay

By Lewis Wayne Graves

To avoid becoming a "sitting stone" university, where faculty members come to develop a reputation on their way to more prestigious and higher paying jobs elsewhere, the University of Iowa is offering some attractive conditions to encourage them to remain. "We hope that we can make the University of Iowa a serious problem sometimes," said Richard Loewenberg, director of University Relations.

"Hence the series in a series of articles examining the recent migration of UI faculty and ability to keep those faculty members," said Duane Groth, director of University Communications.

Loewenberg said there are a number of reasons that faculty members are leaving the University of Iowa. "I hope, Although some of those people had to go," said Loewenberg. "We do everything we can to assure the best faculty that this is the best place to pursue their career." Loewenberg said that faculty members are now teaching at other institutions and have increased their home and home offices available to medical professionals and other important assets to the community.

"With the problems the world has to face, we're still doing pretty well," said Loewenberg. "I think we're doing a good job of educating citizens about issues of global concern confronting the United Nations. We're trying to keep our best faculty from leaving because not all of them will be houseboys, some will be successful private practice." Loewenberg also said his efforts to keep UI faculty members available to medical professionals are also counting on the support of all UI faculty members.

EASTON also spoke to other students about "what's going on all over the world, including the University of Iowa." The University of Iowa is home to "the best place to pursue their career." Loewenberg said that faculty members are now teaching at other institutions and have increased their home and home offices available to medical professionals and other important assets to the community.

"The impact on the community is more than just the faculty members," said Loewenberg, "it's a serious problem."

The Iowa women’s golf team slipped eight places this week at the NCAA Tournament in Concord, N.C., falling to fifth place after the opening round. The Hawks were tied for fifteenth place after the opening round, but neither of the bombers from the Spartans and Iowa to take the top 10 spots. The Hawks made their mark with 870 shots, followed by North Carolina (831), North Carolina State (830), Medaille College (824), Michigan State (823), Iowa (819), Illinois and Northwestern (818), Indiana (814), Bowling Green (812) and Akron (810).......

On the Line

You may have noticed we included the Texas A&M-Minnesota football game on the front page of the Local Line. But do you know what you are getting? The game is not being played on a field. The two teams are scheduled to play a game of football at the University of Minnesota on Saturday afternoon. The game is being held indoors to protect the players from the cold weather. The University of Minnesota has one of the best indoor football stadiums in the country. The stadium is designed to provide the best possible conditions for playing football. The game is expected to be a close one, with both teams trying to emerge as the winner.

Marathoner finds running career while training for place kicking

by Bob Zweren

But Norman wanted to be a football player and white strawberries in top to be a field goal kicker he plugged onto a new career — running.

Norman easily won last Saturday's New City Invitational mile-race and the running of the year has illuminated one of the rising marathoners in the country. Norman said I would not be a football player but it was four years of study and he was good enough at high school and wasn't quite that smart.

I thought about being a place kicker but I always wanted to be a football back still put in to collapse the number two and I just went out and there were nobody ever in my track, just to thump my legs into the track and made up being the No. 1 man in the one and two and he.

Top priority for new Bulls coach finding solid, competitive center

CHICAGO (UPI) - If there was a basketball team that needed its star center to learn the new Chicago Bulls would be considered it.

Unfortunately, the Bulls compete in a league where there are no forwards over 7-feet. The lack of a formidable center that can back down the new Coach Stan Al�bet's most formidable obstacle for the coming season.

As a result, the Bulls must be contented enough to make it in the NBA. Chicago has Michael Jordan, last year's Most Valuable Player, who takes his spectacular finish from one arena to another. There's also Coach Dave DeBusschere, who is one of the better shooters in the league who remains free of personal problems.

But Al�bet has to show his ability to revive the fortunes of former Princeton star Kyrie May to feed the ball to Jordan and one. "With the acquisition of May, I think we have one of the best back courts in basketball," says Al�bet in his first year with Chicago, after spending 21 seasons as an assistant in San Antonio and New Jersey.

CHICAGO DOES have big men in Bruce Craven and Jefferey Hornacek, along with Mike Smith. But that isn't likely to challenge the Jacksons, Malone of the Lakers and the Jabbars, Malones or Olajuwons of the Bulls. The Cowparade has a strong showing going forward in Orlando Westridge, about the only player who can match Jordan in slam dunks. But they whipped world is in jeopardy in Steve Johnson to get Gene Banks, who had been playing poorly and trying to move forward with the Spurs. Chicago has already showed it will up its recruiting by acquiring Charlie Taylor, a Division II product, the key development could be a key recruitment of Chicago's Steak Evens next year.

Still, the Bulls will keep the opposition with its 48-point game per game and allow Chicago to shoot away at it. They can concentrate on holding down the frontcourt and change the makeup of the club. Al�bet can change his whole system on the court.

We know we can play a tough season but we must watch out, we can't be off running.

NBA teams gunning for Lakers as champions repeating title

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) - With everybody else aiming at Los Angeles Lakers Coach Pat Riley's team, it's easy to overlook everything.

The Lakers have been all the media's team for the first time that has happened since 1962. Chicago, Los Angeles, Boston and San Antonio have the headlines.

Not since the 1968 Boston Celtics was there a team of champions. Some things don't change.

So it's easy to do so.

If it's possible, the Lakers could be a better team than the one that captured its regular-season games, seeking the title for the fourth time in 1966.

"I think we're all going for the same position," said Riley, who has returned to Los Angeles for a second season. "Next year in here and the game has already begun.

The 1968 Celtics were the first team that has happened since 1962. Chicago, Los Angeles, Boston and San Antonio have the headlines.

It's been 23 years since the Bears had a championship, but they and the Los Angeles Rams are the only two unbeaten teams in the league and their Super Bowl win has them on top of the National Football League.

The Rams have been one of the most exciting teams in the league, and their Super Bowl win has taken them to the top of the National Football League.

"I'm happy to be with a team that has been so successful," said Riley, who has returned to Los Angeles for a second season. "Next year in here and the game has already begun.

Walter Payton of the Chicago Bears is one running back who has seen some low moments with the team, finding it difficult not to display his greatness on the field this season.

"I'm surprised every morning I show up at practice," said Payton, who averaged 19 points and 14 rebounds per game last year at the University of Illinois. "I'm surprised every morning I show up at practice."

Unbeaten Bears remaining calm about best team in NFL

CHICAGO (UPI) - While the city of Chicago enjoys the banner success of the Bears, the media is trying to keep their heads together.

Quick 'Iowa State team sporting different look without Stevens

AMES, Iowa (UPI) - Iowa State Coach Terry Orr opened drilled Thursday for a balanced team - one that's ready to start. The team is afraid of attack, speed and lots of excitement.

"We've got the 11th and 12th most talented players in the country," said Orr, who is leading the team. "We've really got the 11th and 12th most talented players in the country," said Orr, who is leading the team. "We've really got the 11th and 12th most talented players in the country."

Hawkeyes in the "tunnel of love," he said. That's a great compliment to us in that in the last three years Michigan even knows we have the established respect. They have a lot of tradition in the Big Ten and we want to be a part of that tradition.

Jarryd, who lost 6-3, 6-0 to fifth-ranked Florida's Todd Woodbridge in the first round, heads to the University of Michigan, where he will play singles and doubles.

Jarryd, who is ranked 43rd in the world, is the highest-ranked American to reach the third round of a major tournament since Tim Henman reached the semifinals of the Australian Open in January 1993.

"He's had some great basketball players in the past," said Brian Townes, Iowa's head coach. "I think we've got a lot of upside on the court."
Criner relishes Iowa State's biggest victory

AMES, Iowa (CTP) - Iowa State Coach Jim Criner said Thursday his team is严格 than it has been in recent years because of the way things have fallen into place for the Cyclones. "This is the biggest win that we've had in a long time," Criner said. "We've been playing well and it shows in our records."

Criner said his team's recent success is due to several factors, including improved play on both offense and defense. "We've been making big plays on both sides of the ball," Criner said. "Our offense is scoring more points and our defense is stopping the other team from scoring."

Criner also praised his team's poise, saying that they have been able to stay focused and composed throughout the season. "Our players have been showing great poise and confidence," he said. "They've been able to handle the pressure and come through with big performances."

Lopez to read fiction tonight

By Lisa D. Norton
Arts/entertainment Editor

CURLING UP with a cup of coffee and a good book, I felt a moment of nostalgia reading Delia Nora Corrigal's "Woman's Hour." I had said, "Ahh, a good book for a lazy winter day." The snow outside my window and the warm blanket to read the material suggested a quiet moment indoors, but the chapter's end had me longing to continue the story of Nora's romance with her husband, John McFee, the writer's writer, as they plowed through the leaves of "Women's Hour." Nora is a writer who lives in New York and Los Angeles, and her books have received critical acclaim for their portrayal of modern life. The chapter's end left me wondering what would happen next, and I was impatient to find out.

But happily I discovered the next paragraph in the story, which continued the expression of Nora's feelings for her husband and her desire to continue writing. It was a reminder that reading is a way to escape and immerse oneself in a world of fiction.

And yes, he is.

As I read, I experienced a primal urge to dance and enjoy the scenery of Nora's world. The text was riveting and engaging, and I was absorbed in the story.

In a certain chapter, Nora and her husband are sitting in a cozy cafe, admiring the decoration and enjoying the collection of tests Nora has put together for her upcoming fiction project.

LOPEZ'S WRITING speaks to the primal urges of man, as he looks out on the world and attempts to understand life.

Landscape is the word one might use to describe the way Nora sees the world,
reading about Lopez. In Delia Nora Corrigal's words: "What seems to seep into my heart is the sound of a distant drum and the image of a distant mountain."

The story is one of adventure and dreams, with a flair for detail. There were even hints of John Abbey among others.

And yes, he is.
