Israelis apologize for spying incidents

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israel apologized Sunday to the United States for any acts of espionage and said it would punish anyone found guilty of such activity and dismantle the secret unit allegedly involved in spying on Washington.

"Spying on the U.S. stands in total contradiction to our policy," Prime Minister Shimon Peres told the Cabinet in a report later read to the news media. "Such activity, to the extent it did take place, was wrong and the government of Israel apologizes."

Peres said an inquiry was under way into allegations that surfaced after the Nov. 21 arrest of Jonathan Jay Pollard, a civilian U.S. Navy intelligence analyst charged with selling secrets to Israel.

"The government of Israel is determined to spare no effort in investigating this case thoroughly and completely," Peres told the Cabinet.

"THE GOVERNMENT of Israel assures the government of the United States that in the wake of the inquiry, if the allegations are confirmed, those responsible will be brought to account, the unit involved in this activity will be completely and permanently dismantled, and necessary organizational steps will be taken to ensure that such activities are not repeated."

"Our relations with the United States are based on solid foundations of deep friendship, close affinity and mutual trust," Peres said.

Secretary of State George Shultz, en route to South America, said, "I think this is an excellent statement and we are satisfied by it and we welcome it. We have full confidence in Israel's determination and ability to pursue this case down to the last detail and to bring those responsible to account."

Peres said the government had nothing further to say about the case, but Israeli officials who asked not to be identified said the unit was a secret counterterrorist group attached to the Defense Ministry and separate from Israel's regular intelligence community.

Blizzard slams Midwest; roads and schools close

A deadly arctic blizzard dumped several inches of snow and unleashed gusty winds from Oklahoma to the Canadian border Saturday and Sunday, stranding scores of motorists and forcing hundreds of schools to cancel classes today.

Calling the storm "an unusual act of God," UI President James O. Freedman announced Sunday that no UI classes will meet today.

"If this had been a regular weekend, we probably would have been open," Freedman said, but since many UI student were out of town because of the Thanksgiving break he decided it was best to cancel classes.

FREEDMAN said he decided to cancel classes after receiving several phone calls from concerned parents and students who were stranded.

UI Public Information Director Dwight Jensen said the decision to cancel classes was made so UI students won't be forced to travel long distances on slick highways trying to get back to school.

"What we were concerned about here was avoiding the possibility that students should take any risk in getting back," Jensen said.

Classes were also cancelled at the University of Northern Iowa, Iowa State University, Drake University and many area colleges. In addition, Iowa City Community Schools will be closed today.

THE WEEKEND storm was blamed for at least one death in Iowa Sunday. According to officials, James Beggs, a 57-year-old trucker from Kansas City, Kan., was killed when his semi slid on icy I-35, crossed the median and slammed into an oncoming truck. The driver of the other semi, David Stout, 30, of Winterset, had to be pried from the wreckage but was in good condition at a Osceola, Iowa hospital.

Nationally, at least 42 deaths have been attributed to the severe weather during the past week, including 10 deaths in Iowa.

At least two dozen weather-related traffic accidents occurred in Iowa City and the rest of Johnson County Saturday and Sunday.

THE WORST of these accidents apparently involved three cars and a semi on I-80 near Coralville. At least two people were injured in the accident and another was treated for frostbite at a local hospital, according to police reports.

Raymond Donovan, Route 4, escaped injury when his vehicle hit ice, slid into a ditch and flipped onto its top on a county road about 12:30 a.m. Sunday.

Police reports also show that about 5,000 people in the southeast corner of Iowa City were without electricity for about an hour Sunday night when a power line was blown down by high winds.

IN OTHER PARTS of the state the storm forced officials to call in the Iowa National Guard to help search vehicles stranded in drifts. Wind chills plummeted below the dangerous minus-50 level and caused several traffic accidents, including a 15-car pileup near Mitchellville, Iowa.

Despite repeated warnings to stay off Iowa roads and highways, Department of Transportation official Ed Thornton said, "There's some idiots still out there."

Thornton said snow plow crews wrestled with zero visibility in spots and he said sanding highways was futile because of winds in excess of 40 miles per hour. As a result of the weather I-80 was closed for in several spots Sunday.

NEAR WILLIAMS, Iowa hundreds of truckers and a busload of students on a tour crowded into the Boondocks Truck Haven on I-35 to wait out the storm.

A clerk at the Bethel Mission in Des Moines said the facility was crowded with around 80 transients.

"We're making room as best we can — if they can make it here we'll find room for them," he said.

Branstad tells plans for austerity budget

Gov. Terry Branstad wants to sell state-owned WOI television and turn 80 state liquor stores over to private retailers as part of his new austerity budget package, it was reported Sunday.

Branstad revealed his plans in a story in The Des Moines Register this weekend. The governor also wants to freeze state spending, put the State Fair under private control, merge 68 state agencies into 18 super agencies and eliminate 40 of the 190 boards and commissions.

The governor says the state budget is $107 million in the red so his plan will include making an earlier 3.8 percent across-the-board budget cut permanent and trimming another $39 million.

BRANSTAD says the drastic measures are needed because state government has grown beyond the means of Iowans to support it.

The governor will submit the proposals to the Iowa Legislature next year where leaders promise they will get a friendly reception.

But Rep. Minnette Doderer, D-Iowa City, reacted to Branstad's announcement by saying she doubted it would be effective and that parts of it would have a very tough time in the legislature.

"I'm going to look at it, but I'm not going to accept it just because it's there," she said, adding that, "nobody has proven to me that much of Iowa government doesn't work."

DODERER SAID she and several other legislators would meet with representatives from Branstad's office Tuesday to discuss the details of his proposal, but said she has his proposal to sell WOI is "not a solution to anything."

"I certainly would oppose at this time selling WOI, because next they'll want to sell one of the engineering colleges (at the UI and Iowa State University). Right? I feel WOI serves an educational mission," she said.

The sale of WOI, operated by Iowa State University since the late 1940s, has been resisted by university officials. The governor hopes to sweeten the deal by promising to sink all proceeds from the sale — estimated at around $25 million — back into Iowa State programs.

UNDER BRANSTAD'S plan the State Fair would be turned over to private interests while retaining ownership of the land and buildings.

The governor wants to trim 80 of the least profitable liquor stores and sell the leases to private retailers.

Branstad will not recommend some politically explosive ideas considered in the past such as reducing the size of the legislature or cutting some elected offices such as Secretary of State or Treasurer.

Winter storm catches returning students

By Kent Schuelke Staff Writer

A major winter storm that blasted Iowa Sunday delayed many UI students' return to Iowa City and inconvenienced local residents who dared to venture outside.

"It sucked," said Frank Korinek, who dropped off his brother James at the UI Currier Residence Hall after driving from Chicago. "There were about 50 cars in the ditch and people sliding all over the place."

Korinek, an Iowa State University student, said, "I'm staying in Iowa City tonight."

UI freshman Katie McFarland said she and three other UI students had a nerve-racking, five-hour trip from Streamwood, Ill.

"We were on the edge of our seats the whole way," McFarland said. "We had a lot of trouble, every mile you saw about five cars in the ditch — it looked like a skating rink."

WHILE MANY students had a tough time getting back to Iowa City, other students and local residents spent much of the day trying to burrow out of the snow, which was blown into deep drifts by strong winds.

UI Internal Medicine Professor Mark "Ernest" Armstrong and his wife Bertha spent about an hour Sunday clearing the snow from the driveway of their home at 701 Bayard St.

"I don't remember a storm this bad in November going into December," reflected Ernest Armstrong.

"But don't you think it's beautiful," added Bertha Armstrong.

"Isn't it like fairyland?"

UI Physiology Professor Charles Wunder, who was forced out in the subfreezing temperatures Sunday morning to feed UI laboratory animals, said he had to abandon his car for several hours on Normandy Street because of the bad weather.

"I HAD SOME animals to feed and I don't like them to suffer," Wunder said. "When I got back between 9 (a.m.) and 10 (a.m.) there were people spinning all over."

Sharlene Hartman, 46, found the hazardous weather an ideal time to explore the streets of Iowa City on cross-country skis.

"If you have to travel, travel this way," Hartman said as she skied up Lee Street.

UI Director of the Division of Sponsored Programs Marge Hoppin said she found the chore of shoveling her walk frustrating work.

"It's wet and it's tough to lift. I'm glad we have a snowblower," Hoppin said.

But Hoppin said that gray, snowy days have their silver lining.

"It was a nice surprise," Hoppin said. "I can hole up inside and do the things that I want to do and not feel obligated to leave the house."

Iowa basketball player Andre Banks said he also enjoyed the winter weather that invaded Iowa City during the weekend.

"It reminds me of Christmas," he said.

Dissident to leave for Rome

MOSCOW — Yelena Bonner, wife of Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov, prepared Sunday to go to Rome today for treatment of an eye ailment before going on to the United States for heart bypass surgery.

The 62-year-old Bonner was scheduled to leave Italy this afternoon, her associates said. Bonner told her son in Boston she had pledged not to talk to the Western media during her trip and said she was told by Soviet authorities that if she did, she would not be allowed to return to the Soviet Union and her husband, Sakharov has remained in Gorky, where he was exiled almost six years ago after he spoke out against the December 1979 invasion of Afghanistan.

Three Mile Island shuts down

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. — The Unit No. 1 nuclear reactor at Three Mile Island shut down for about 12 hours Sunday because a relay switch in the reactor's electrical generator malfunctioned, plant officials said.

A "minute amount" of radioactive steam was vented into the air immediately after the mishap, which officials described as "of no consequence to the public health and safety," said Lisa Robinson, spokeswoman for GPU Nuclear Corp., owner of the plant. The reactor was restarted at 1 percent power around 2 p.m. after plant operators replaced the faulty relay. The unit is expected to resume producing power at 75 percent capacity on Monday.

Transplant patient improves

DES MOINES — Iowa's youngest transplant patient was breathing on his own Sunday as his condition greatly improved, officials at Mercy Medical Center said.

A spokeswoman said 7-year-old Ryan Melone was taken off a ventilator machine Saturday night because X-rays showed his damaged lungs were responding to his new stronger heart. His condition was also upgraded from critical to serious. Doctors had thought Melone might have to stay on a ventilator for a week or more. He suffers from a condition called pulmonary hypertension caused by his chronic heart disease. The condition impedes the flow of blood to his lungs, but doctors say his new heart should overcome the problem.

Nicotine threat reaffirmed

WASHINGTON — Surgeon General C. Everett Koop said Sunday that despite industry claims to the contrary, cigarette smoking is addictive and cigarette advertising should be outlawed.

Koop, interviewed on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation," responded to industry statements that the surgeon general had reported cigarette smoking to be non-addictive by saying, "Nicotine in cigarette tobacco is an addictive drug. Dr. William Pollin, director of the National Institute of Drug Abuse, has said that nicotine is the most addictive drug in our society, and in the 1983 report that I made on smoking and health, I talked about both the addiction that is physiological, as well as psychological."

Democrats to retire donkey

NEW YORK — The Democratic National Committee plans to retire the donkey as a symbol of the party in an effort to put on "a new face," New York magazine said Sunday.

It was not immediately clear what the new logo would be, but the magazine quoted party officials as saying it was being designed by Saul Bass of Hollywood, who created the symbols of AT&T, Warner Communications and United Air Lines. "We want to put a new face on the party," DNC spokesman John Florescu said in an interview with the magazine. "It's always useful for a party to have a symbol that the public can recognize, particularly when its image is one of division and fractiousness."

Crash kills two Iowa City women

By Julie Eisele
 Staff Writer

Two Iowa City women were killed and three persons injured Friday afternoon in a head-on collision on Highway 1 in Johnson County, according to Iowa Highway Patrol officials.

Dead are Vivian Ockenfels, 28, 2020 Apt. L, Broadway St., and Barb Netser, 21, 1009 Highland Dr. Officials said Netser was a passenger in the vehicle driven by Ockenfels.

Highway Patrol officials said Ockenfels, who was driving northbound about two miles south of Frytown, lost control on a curve, crossed the center line and drove into the path of a car driven by Terry Craig, 18, of Washington, Iowa. Officials said they are uncertain if weather conditions were responsible for the accident, although the highway was reportedly snow-covered.

CRAIG'S mother and sister were hospitalized at the UI Hospitals. Hazel Craig, 48, was listed in fair condition Sunday, and Reathel Craig, 10, was in stable condition.

Terry Helfrich, 8, of Brighton, Iowa, was a passenger in the Ockenfels vehicle and was released Saturday, according to hospital officials.

Ambulance officials were unable to provide information about the types of injuries the victims sustained.

Varn to run for Senate

By Marianne Cherni
Staff Writer

Rep. Richard Varn, D-Solon, has announced plans to run for the Iowa Senate next year.

Varn, a third-year UI law student who has served two consecutive terms in the Iowa House of Representatives, will run for the District 27 seat currently held by Sen. Joe Brown, D-Montezuma. Brown has decided not to seek re-election in the district, which covers the counties of Iowa and Poweshiek as well as part of Johnson County.

"I really do think I could be more effective in the Senate than in the House," Varn said. "There aren't half as many people and it's easier to both block things and pass things."

"WE ARE IN desperate need of strong, positive, optimistic leadership at all levels of government and business," said Varn, who received an undergraduate degree in political science from the UI in 1981. "The time for gloom and doom is over."

He added his priorities will be economic development, family farming, quality educational programs, and more responsible state spending policies.

"My record is strong in these areas," Varn said. "(But) there is still a great deal of work left to do, if we are to make all of Iowa a place to grow."

FIRST ELECTED to the Iowa House in 1982 by a wide margin, Varn was then re-elected in 1984 by a two-to-one margin.

During his current term Varn is serving as vice chair of the Joint Subcommittee on Higher Education Appropriations. The 27-year-old politician also serves on several other House committees, including Economic Development, Education, and Natural Resources.

Quality education is one of the things Varn said he has been working for in several ways.

Varn stressed he has worked "to get the (state) universities tapped into the lottery funds to do research" which he said "has potential for spinning off into small businesses in the state."

IN ADDITION, Varn said he also has "tried to get the most out of the state legislature that we can for quality education funding."

Varn said he has sponsored work-study bills in the past, designed to "put young people to work in conjunction with any private or public entity." Although this legislation has been passed by the Iowa Legislature, Gov. Terry Branstad vetoed it.

In the past Varn has been a vocal critic of Branstad's policies toward funding higher education.

"For the future, I think it's going to take a governor that is willing to look into funding increases rather than funding cuts for the (State Board Of Regents)," he said.

"I'll be glad to vote for increased funding for the regents," Varn added. "We've reached the point where we are destroying those things that we will need to build our economy up in the future, specifically the regents institutions."

Tax plan hits schools

By Jerry Duncan
Staff Writer

A Reagan administration proposal to deny taxpayers the ability to deduct state and local taxes could produce serious side effects for public school systems, national and state officials said.

The proposal, which is one part of a plan to overhaul the present tax system, could force states to raise their tax rates, said Joel Packer, a lobbyist for the National Education Association.

Higher taxes could provoke a "taxpayer revolt" that would spur legislators to lower state taxes. Less state revenue would mean less education funds, he said. Nationwide, state and local governments earmark 36 percent of all their expenditures for education. Approximately 42 percent of Iowa's total budget is used to fund K-12.

IN ADDITION, the federal share of the nation's education bill is only 6.2 percent, or $8.6 billion — the lowest percentage in 20 years, Packer said.

Iowans who filed itemized returns deducted about $1 billion in state taxes from their federal returns, according to a Congressional Research Service Study conducted in 1982. Statistics are not available for the most recent tax year.

Under the current federal income tax system, Iowa taxpayers are allowed to deduct state and local taxes, as well as interest paid on non-business items, medical and dental expenses, and charitable donations, said Bob Rogers, an Iowa Department of Revenue tax analyst.

"It will be much, much more difficult to get increases or levies for education," Packer said, if the proposal is passed.

HOWEVER, "it looks definite that (the legislature) will reject the total elimination of state and local deductibility," Packer added.

Since the 1972 passage of the School Foundation Plan which provides funding for elementary and secondary schools in Iowa, has shifted from local property taxes to state taxes, said Bill Sherman, spokesman for the Iowa State Education Association.

Iowa is a low tax state, averaging a $75 state and local tax deduction from federal income tax returns for each taxpayer, said Hal Rusk, spokesman for the U.S. Treasury Department. Nationwide, the average state and local tax deductions is $106.

If the proposal is approved, the state legislature would be "less willing to raise taxes for state purposes if taxpayers have to pay higher federal taxes," said Sherman.

Losing pounds requires effort

The Daily Iowan/Steve Sedam

By Marianne Cherni
Staff Writer

For many UI students extra pieces of pumpkin pie and the late-night turkey snacking added to the enjoyment of the Thanksgiving vacation. But these treats may also have added unwanted pounds.

What can you do to take the extra weight off?

If the answer that comes to mind is "crash diet," you could be thinking about doing serious harm to your body and only losing the weight temporarily.

According to Betty Loan, a clinical dietitian at Iowa City's Mercy Hospital, "There's nothing magical about weight loss; it takes effort and time."

LOAN STRESSED that students should use common sense when trying to get rid of those Thanksgiving pounds.

"Eat three balanced meals, and avoid concentrated sweets. Concentrate on high fiber foods — raw fruits and vegetables are satisfying and low in calories," she said.

In addition, Loan said to avoid fried foods and drink a lot of fluids, six to eight glasses a day.

Students should also remember "alcohol is full of empty calories," she said. "A shot of alcohol or beer has 150 calories and it can really add up when you go downtown."

LOAN ALSO warned about fad diets. She said many people put their health in danger because "they're willing to take the chance to be thin overnight."

Herbalife, a product which its sponsors promise is made up of all natural ingredients, is hazardous to your health, Loan said.

She added that while the chemicals contained in the product may be natural, that does not make them any less dangerous.

Also, like the grapefruit diet, she said, many diets contain food restrictions which cause rapid weight loss by drastically reducing caloric intake.

"There's nothing magical about grapefruit," said Loan. "It's the low-calorie diet" that causes the weight loss.

SHE STRESSED all fad diets, especially liquid protein diets are dangerous because they cause weight loss at a drastic rate and thus induce a hazardous metabolic reaction.

"Your body releases electrolytes, sodium, potassium, and chloride very suddenly in reaction to the weight loss," Loan explained. "Your body can't handle this."

Losing weight is not enjoyable, Loan said. "It's too bad it's not as easy or pleasurable to take it off as it is to put it on."

'Chew' tied to cancer, high blood pressure

By John Hofmann
Special to The Daily Iowan

Teeth discoloration, lesions in the skin of the mouth and loss of teeth due to gum decay are just a few short-term effects of using smokeless tobacco, according to a UI researcher.

And a more serious long-term effect may be increased risk of mouth cancer, said Chris Squier, a UI professor in the College of Dentistry.

Some types of smokeless tobacco have been linked to a greater cancer risk. "Fine 'snuff' seems to be associated with higher risks of disease or cancer," Squier said.

Nicotine isn't the only ingredient considered detrimental to smokeless tobacco users' health.

"THERE ARE high contents of sugar in chewing tobacco which would be an uncontrollable source to a diabetic," Squier said. "In addition, it contains 1200 milligrams of sodium plus a direct intake of nicotine causing hypertension."

A recent study of young males ages 19 to 26 found higher blood pressure in chewing tobacco users, apparently from nicotine, Squier said.

Despite the health risks, smokeless tobacco sales have been increasing dramatically — especially in younger age groups, Squier said.

The availability of smokeless tobacco makes it easy to buy. "We sell up to 150 tins of chew a week," said Tim Stull, an employee at Quik Trip, 301 Market St.

PAT McNALLY, a UI sophomore, first tried chewing tobacco in the sixth grade, and although he's aware of its effects, he continues the habit.

"I figure I don't do it enough to give me lip cancer," McNally said. "At the most I'll chew twice a day and go through a tin in about a week."

Whether using a tin of smokeless tobacco a week or a tin a day causes health problems is still unclear, Squier said. "No one knows what enough is."

Unlike McNally, some people begin chewing tobacco without knowing of its effects and risks.

MARK ZINIEL, a UI sophomore, began chewing tobacco when he graduated from high school.

"I had no idea what chew was really about," Ziniel said. "It was just something to do in a situation where my job was really boring or highly stressful."

At that time, he chewed one tin of tobacco a day. He said since then, he has cut down to one tin a week.

The nicotine in any tobacco is addictive, Squier said, but chewers have a greater risk of gum cancer than smokers because tobacco is absorbed at a faster rate. "The blood levels of nicotine achieved are similar, though only chewing has directly been related to high blood pressure in a younger group," he said.

LIKE SMOKERS, chew users protest they can quit whenever they want.

"I would definitely say I'm hooked on nicotine," Ziniel said. "I feel like my body needs it, but I have a lot of will power and if I really wanted to quit I could."

McNally feels he's not addicted and wouldn't have any problems kicking the habit.

"Like a social drinker I'm a social chewer," McNally said.

Although mouth cancer is a rare disease, Squier cautions young chewing tobacco users that effects can be seen years later in life.

"The use in India is great," Squier said. Forty-eight percent of all cancers in India are in the mouth, while in Iowa, four percent of all cancers are in the mouth, he said.

THERE IS NO law requiring a surgeon general's warning on the labels of smokeless tobacco, but with Squier's help, the Iowa Legislature looking into the issue.

Massachusetts will put a law into effect December 1 saying tobacco can cause mouth cancer and can be habit forming," Squier said. "There is also a bill going to the (U.S.) Senate committee's pushing for a national law."

Council eyes user fee increases

By Gretchen Norman
Staff Writer

In the midst of budgeting short-falls, the Iowa City Council will discuss increasing user fees for various city services at its meeting tonight and will formally vote on the measures Tuesday.

"I think it's no secret about the budget cuts in effect at the present time," Mayor John McDonald said. "It's one of the fairer ways of doing it." He added that people who utilize the services should help pay the bills.

The council is considering several fee increases recommended by the Iowa City Finance Department. The Iowa City Fire Department and the planning, zoning and adjustment boards are also considering similar increases.

"I'm a firm believer that people who use the service should pay for it," Councilor Bill Ambrisco said. "There are no free lunches."

FIRE REPORTS would go up to $3 per copy from the current $1 cost for the first copy and 25 cents for each additional one. The fee covers the time it takes to find a report, make copies and mail it.

Each additional fire reinspection of commercial, industrial and UI buildings will cost $15 if the measure is passed. The buildings must be checked regularly to ensure compliance with the Uniform Fire Code and the State Fire Code.

"Reinspection increases motivate compliance faster," Ambrisco said. People often ignore requests by the fire department, because "there's no negligible penalty," he said.

Subdivision and development fees could increase dramatically, especially in subdivisions without streets. According to the fee study, they would go up from $160 to $450, nearly a 300 percent increase.

"FEES ABOUT land development bother me," Ambrisco said. "I'm afraid they'll be passed on to the consumer." Administering the paperwork "takes an incredible amount of time to dispatch," he added.

The proposed rates are based on the average costs of processing applications.

If approved by the council, burial fees for residents at Oakland Cemetery will increase about twice as much as the current charges.

Fees for residential solid waste collection will be given second-round consideration Tuesday evening. The proposed ordinance would cost $4.30 per month for each dwelling unit and $2.15 per month for each rooming unit. If the ordinance is passed by the council, it will be voted on one more time before it becomes policy.

Also up for second consideration is a proposal to increase parking fines from $2 to $3 in the Civic Center lot.

Helicopters collide over Los Angeles Harbor

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Investigators Sunday tried to reconstruct the events preceding the collision of two helicopters over Los Angeles Harbor, killing one person and injuring 10 others.

"We have no indication what caused it," said Bill Post, a pilot with Island Express, the company which operated one of the choppers. Post said he and investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board and the Federal Aviation Administration examined the wrecked helicopters, trying to determine what happened in the moments before the crash.

THE HELICOPTERS, each flying six people between Catalina Island and the mainland, crashed just before sunset Saturday as they approached the heliport for landing. One of the helicopters, owned by the Helitrans Co., plummeted into the water, just missing the floating Princess Louise Restaurant, anchored near the heliport.

The other remained airborne for about 50 feet and crashed at the edge of the heliport in front of the windows of a banquet room on shore, where employees were preparing tables for a wedding party.

"It's rather a miracle that they missed everything," Fire Battalion Chief Larry Schneider said.

MARION PARKOV, owner of the Princess Louise, said the helicopters crashed within 10 yards of the boat, near a windowed banquet room at one end of the ship.

"Moments before the crash, there was a wedding party in the room," Parkov said. "Debris from one of the helicopters hit the boat, shattering two 8-foot wide windows and cutting through metal bars at the bottom."

Princess Louise hostess Rhonda McElwin said she heard an explosion and then witnessed the crash of the two helicopters.

"There was a big boom — a really big sound — and I guess that was when they collided," she said.

"We heard the noise and we rushed out," said Chef Oscar Siller, who helped pull victims from one chopper. "We saw the helicopters come down."

THE PILOT of the Helitrans helicopter said he had been about to land on the heliport when he noticed an Avalon Express sea taxi pulling in just beneath him and broke off his approach because he knew his rotors could cause turbulence for sea craft, Sgt. Ray Rush of the Los Angeles Port Warden's office said.

The pilot made a low-altitude circle over the area and came back to make another landing approach when "he was aware" of another helicopter in the vicinity, Rush said.

"As he came in to make the final approach, he said the world exploded," Rush said.

A PASSENGER, identified as Hossein Habibi, 28, of Glendale, was killed in the crash. One of the pilots walked away uninjured, a fire chief at the scene said.

Five other passengers, including a 7-month-old girl, remained hospitalized Sunday. The baby, Ashley Puma, was listed in critical condition. Her mother, Tiare Puma, 24, of the Woodland Hills area, was in serious condition.

A nursing supervisor said the baby and her mother both swallowed gasoline and seawater when their helicopter crashed into the harbor.

John Moore, no age available, Susan Purket, 45, and Alfred Rea, 31, were in stable condition.

Five other victims were treated and released.

Los Angeles firefighters cover the body of the only fatality resulting from the crash of two helicopters over the harbor. Ten others were injured in the mishap that occurred just before sunset Saturday night.

Atlantis astronauts erect tower

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Atlantis' spacewalking astronauts erected a 40-foot tower in the ship's cargo bay again Sunday, then one rode the ship's robot arm to the top to complete the prototype space station structure.

They later strung electrical wire up the truss and maneuvered the 190-pound tower about as part of a series of tests setting the stage for construction of an American space settlement in the 1990s.

"Let's go build a space station," Jerry Ross said jubilantly midway through the smooth exercise.

"I bet we make it in a few years," replied co-worker Sherwood Spring.

THE ASTRONAUTS' first job was to rebuild the 45-foot truss they erected in Friday's highly successful five and one-half hour spacewalk. Only this time they built only nine sections from the bottom up, then Ross rode on the end of the shuttle's 50-foot mechanical arm to add the 10th section.

"Oh, Woody, this looks beautiful from up here," Ross said from his post high above the winged space shuttle. "Oh man, beautiful!"

Mary Cleave was driving the triple-jointed, computer-controlled arm from Atlantis' flight deck, responding to commands from Ross as he went up and down.

Once the tower was finished, Ross strung electrical cable up its side as space electricians might when assembling the space station.

"WHAT A WEIRD sensation," Ross said of the high-rise night work which was conducted under flood lights.

The exercise was aimed at exploring alternate methods of construction using the robot arm to move a man about, much like the cherry-pickers used by utility workers to service high lights and wires back on Earth.

Friday's spacewalk already demonstrated that NASA's designers are on the right track in planning the framework for the space station to be built in 1993.

The astronauts left the safety of the shuttle's airlock at 2:25 p.m., a half-hour earlier than planned. They were anxious to start work, or as Ross said, "to go out and play."

AN HOUR before the start of Sunday's spacewalk, NASA reported that the RCA Satcom television satellite launched from Atlantis Thursday had maneuvered itself toward its final 22,300-mile-high orbit. Two satellites launched for Mexico and Australia Wednesday also were in final orbits.

Panel acquits 26 in Aquino murder case

MANILA (UPI) — Former armed forces chief Gen. Fabian Ver, a confidant of President Ferdinand Marcos, and 25 others were acquitted Monday in the 1983 murder of popular opposition leader Benigno Aquino.

Marcos had vowed that Ver, who was stripped of his armed forces post after the Aquino slaying, would be reinstated immediately upon acquittal, a step the United States has warned would lead to a crisis with Washington.

The three-judge panel, apparently supporting the government version of the killing, said it was "not unreasonable to conclude" that Aquino was shot by alleged communist assassin Rolando Galman.

AFTER THE verdict, he slipped out a side door of the courthouse. "Thank God it's all over," he said. "There has been no evidence against me."

The judges ruled the prosecution's evidence that Aquino was shot by a soldier on an airline staircase was circumstantial and outweighed by defense evidence. It ruled he was shot on the tarmac at Manila Airport and that there was "reasonable basis to conclude" Galman was hired by the communist New People's Army to assassinate Aquino and discredit Marcos.

GALMAN HIMSELF was shot and killed after the slaying of Aquino Aug. 21, 1983, at Manila Airport on the opposition leader's return from three years of self-imposed exile in the United States.

The 26 defendants — Ver, 24 other military men and a civilian — were all ordered freed after the decision was issued in a two-hour, five-minute hearing held under tight security.

Aquino's death touched off several political and economic crises for Marcos, who for 20 years has ruled the island nation that houses two strategic U.S. air bases. Aquino's widow, Corazon, accused Marcos of being behind her husband's slaying.

Ver, who was charged as an accessory for allegedly concealing any military involvement in Aquino's death, faced a maximum of two years in prison on two murder counts if convicted.

Also acquitted of charges of conspiring to kill Aquino, 50, and Galman, 33, were Aviation Security Command Chief Brig. Gen. Luther A. Custodio and 16 other soldiers. They faced the death penalty on each count if convicted.

CIVILIAN businessman Hermilo Gosuico, also acquitted, faced a life prison sentence if convicted for alleged links with Galman.

Lawyers for both sides said Ver's acquittal was virtually assured when the Supreme Court in August discounted his testimony before the civilian panel, ruling that he had not been informed of his right against self-incrimination. Prosecutors said that testimony was the main evidence against him.

The verdict came one week after the Supreme Court dismissed a petition signed by the Galman family and 29 prominent Filipinos seeking a mistrial. The petitioners accused the court of being biased and argued that prosecutors failed to pursue all available evidence.

Mary Jo Small said the rest of the UI will be open and employees should report to work as normal.

"People are expected to use their best judgement about venturing out, but we will be open for business," Small said. "People who can get to work are expected to make the effort."

Jensen said the UI Hospitals and Clinics will be open as normal today, but the UI Dental Clinics will only be open for emergencies.

UI CAMBUS services will be affected by the heavy snow and the class cancellations, an official said Sunday.

Camibus Supervisor of Training and Safety Scott Fuller said the buses will be running on an interim schedule today. There will be one Red Route and one Blue Route on a half-hour schedule and the Hawkeye Route will run until 10 p.m. The Oakdale and Pentacrest routes and Bionic buses will be running as usual, but there will be no East Side Loop Route, he said, adding that bus service should return to normal Tuesday.

approached the unit in early 1984 and gathered U.S. intelligence on Arab armies and their Soviet-made weapons.

The officials said the spying on the United States was done without the knowledge of any Cabinet member and ruled out any involvement by Peres or his predecessors, Yitzhak Shamir and Menachem Begin.

"Nobody knew about it at the Cabinet level," an Israeli official told United Press International. The official said the unit was headed by Rafael Eitan, former counterterrorism adviser for Begin and Shamir and former chief of operations for the Mossad, the Israeli intelligence agency.

But Israeli officials said it was possible Eitan did not know of the spying on the Americans.

INTELLIGENCE officials often consciously avoid learning who gathers intelligence information and how they do it in order to avoid any personal liability, the official said.

The report was read to reporters by Cabinet Secretary Yossi Beilin and came one week after the Foreign Ministry promised "a thorough examination" of spying charges that have rocked U.S.-Israeli relations.

During the 10 days since Pollard's arrest, Israel imposed a near-total blackout on developments in the case and refused to confirm that two Israeli diplomats — Yosef Yagur, the science consul in New York, and Elon Ravid, the science attache in Washington — had been brought home from the United States.

The State Department has insisted that Israel provide U.S. investigators access to Israeli officials who may have knowledge of the affair, particularly the two diplomats who left the United States last week.

The celebration had just gotten under way. The Iowa State University women's team had just placed second in the National Collegiate Athletic Association cross-country championships.

And then it happened. The unthinkable. The tragic. Three athletes, their two coaches, their student trainer and their pilot died in the crash of a twin-engine plane just miles short of the Des Moines airport.

Our hearts bleed for the entire ISU community. Any loss of life brings sadness, but the loss of young athletes — young champions — is far too painful to articulate.

The exact cause of the crash hasn't been determined. Most speculate it was the icy weather conditions. Whatever the cause, the resulting shock, disbelief, rage and depression will linger for a long time across the state of Iowa.

Our hearts bleed for the families of the victims. The nurturing of their loved ones was so prematurely crushed. Their share in the joy of the team's victory was slashed with a senseless and untimely tragedy.

Our hearts bleed for the Cyclone athletes, especially those struggling to train for an indoor track season. The loss will be heavy on their minds. And those who must fly to away games this winter will likely board planes with a nagging fear.

A memorial service for the victims will be held Wednesday at 10 a.m. in Hilton Collesium on the Ames campus.

Father knows least

Parents: It's 3 p.m., do you know where your kids are? More importantly, do you know what they are doing?

According to a recent study, parents who think their kids go home after school for milk and cookies may be in for a shock. Researchers Thomas and Lynette Long interviewed 400 12- to 15-year-olds about just what they do to fill the hours after school and before their working parents arrive home. It seems that quite a few of the little devils are taking advantage of these unsupervised hours to have sex.

"Teenagers these days don't get pregnant in motels and cars at 10 at night," said Thomas Long in a copyrighted Denver Post story. "Sex happens at home at 3 in the afternoon while mom is away at work."

So where's dad while all the fun and games are going on?

Apparently Long doesn't think dad's presence (or lack thereof) matters when it comes to how teenagers occupy themselves after school, and places the blame for this epidemic of teenage turpitude squarely on the shoulders of America's working mothers.

Despite Long's lack of enlightenment on the topic, fathers have a larger responsibility than just being around to assist in their child's conception and to write checks for the kid's expenses until age 18. They, along with their spouses, have an obligation to teach their teens responsibility and restraint (not to mention educate them about the possible consequences of sex).

So, you working fathers out there, do you know where your kids are and what they are doing?

Checkout the checkoff

Iowa corn growers voted last week to renew the state corn checkoff for another four years and to increase the amount they will contribute to the fund.

The checkoff, which received a 61 percent approval rating, will increase from the current .10 of a cent per bushel to a rate of .25 of a cent. The corn checkoff was begun in 1978 and is voted on every four years. Corn Promotion Board spokesman Steve Daughtery said the checkoff raises an average of $900,000 a year for marketing and promotion.

Under the higher rate, the checkoff will raise approximately $2.25 million annually. While some Iowans argue farmers currently can't afford to pay higher checkoffs, it is more realistic to conclude: Farmers can't afford not to pay the checkoff.

Iowa's current tenth of a cent rate is the lowest of eight corn checkoff states. The new rate will cost only about 30 cents for every acre that gets the statewide average yield of 120 bushels. But, that small investment could make all the difference in the world when it comes to peddling our agricultural wares.

Smart businessmen know you have to invest money to make money, and smart farmers should realize this too. Approval of the increased corn checkoff indicates Iowa farmers are prepared to fight hard to stay at forefront of the American agricultural scene.

Iowa farmers are making their plea, consumers should take note and whenever possible: Buy Iowa-produced goods.

Crusade to end protest decried

By Bruce Nestor

UI OFFICIALS are engaged in a concerted, nationally organized campaign to suppress student protest. Our administrators, having been challenged to consider the ethical implications of UI policies, have disdained creative or even mildly progressive responses in favor of the traditional response of disavowing responsibility and imposing discipline.

In August Julia Mears, administrative assistant to UI President James O. Freedman, attended a conference of university attorneys that was also attended by the presence of the First Secretary of the South African embassy, a representative of Mobil Oil and a Reagan administration expert on the United States' racist African policy. Their topic: "Divestment and Campus Disruption."

Cecilia Ham, a former UI student and current vice president of the United States Student Association, attended the meeting undercover. Ham said the conference openly discussed how to squelch student protest. According to Ham, the specific topics included:

- Videotaping student protests
- Maintaining secret files on student protesters
- Imposing stricter time, place and manner restrictions on students' first amendment freedoms
- Tightening internal university judicial procedures because courts are unreliable.

UI officials publicly adopted several of these measures, but other universities which attended the conference have gone farther. James Ridgeway reports in the Nov. 5 Village Voice that the University of Miami now requires students to individually register with officials before attending a rally, and administrators in the University of California system changed the rules governing student demonstrations over the summer while students were away and unable to protest.

THESE MEASURES inevitably have a chilling effect upon protest. A student considering attendance at a rally will have to face undercover security guards in the audience, videotaping or the maintenance of permanent files about their activity.

There is cause for legitimate concern and questioning about unrestrained use of these potentially repressive surveillance techniques. Only those with the mentality of Attorney General Edwin Meese would dismiss these tactics by saying the innocent have nothing to fear.

Especially considering the documented, forceful repression of students during the 1960s, the UI community should be realistic about the potential for abuse and start asking serious questions of UI administrators. Why must you spend state money to receive national advice on repressive tactics? Why are you attending conferences with the South Africa embassy? Whose interests in society does the UI really serve?

The UI will defend its attendance at this conference as a purely educational effort concerned with campus disruption and the preservation of academic freedom, not the squashing of dissent.

THE UI PURPORTS to be a free forum of ideas, separated from the mundane politics of everyday life, and engaged solely in the pursuit of truth. Such positions are hopelessly unrealistic and outdated. Punishment, suppression or technology, will not stop social and political protests which the UI finds disruptive. Neither will the pursuit of a white, ruling class version of truth insulate the UI from the demands of justice.

The modern university is an integral part of our social and political system and it responds to certain interests in society. These interests were well represented at the conference attended by Mears: Mobil Oil, the South African Embassy, the National Association of Manufacturers and the Reagan White House. However, as long as the UI abandons considerations of justice in its quest for the Grail of Truth, other groups in society will demand not only to be heard, but to be felt.

MANY MAJOR universities, including Iowa State University, managed to denounce apartheid when they sold their little piece of racism. But such a minimal step was too much for the UI. Bound ever so tightly to their fiduciary duty, they tell us to go back to the classrooms, read Aristotle and forget that people are dying in South Africa; forget that the CIA is on campus; forget that weapons research is conducted at the UI; forget any responsibility to people other than ourselves. But people will not forget these responsibilities — least of all the blacks in southern Africa.

Having been challenged once again, colleges and universities are banding together to preserve their privileged and isolated position in society. The UI's position is clear: under the guise of academic freedom they have allied themselves with corporations, repressive regimes and the reactionary politics of the Reagan administration. Whether universities will win this battle remains to be seen.

Nestor is a UI junior.

Letters

Care-less cost cutting

To the Editor:
My kids attend Rainbow, one of the UI Student Senate Commission daycare centers. No, I am not a student. I am a UI staff member. I conducted an extensive search for child care before starting work full time and I selected Rainbow for several reasons, among them: a competent, informed director and a well trained, compassionate staff whose philosophy of child care (not babysitting) reflects mine; low staff turnover that maximizes a consistent quality of supervision and care; and affordable and accessible from my home and office via Cambus. Beside, it made sense for me, as an employee, to utilize UI-supported child care.

I am very concerned about senate's plan to provide more inexpensive child care to students. Do reduced costs to students mean that I would have to pay more to offset such reductions? I don't object to paying more if I am assured of better and higher quality care. The five senate day cares are already the most inexpensive in Iowa City and Coralville. More importantly, more work-study students mean, to me, fewer adequately trained staff, more turnover, more supervision inconsistencies and fewer constant and familiar faces ... ultimately a diminished quality of care.

So, I absolutely object. My kids are too valuable. And I'd bet a paycheck that other parents have similar objections.

No one is perfect

To the Editor:
Until I read Maris Deligiorgis's review ("String quartet performs flawlessly," DI, Nov. 22) I was under the impression that a characteristic such as "flawless" was generally attributed to God. I suggest that the members of the Stradivari Quartet would be the first to agree that their performance (while quite superb) was far from flawless.

Marvin Dueck

Listen up

To the Editor:
It is apparent to me that the DI reporter covering the Gene Sharp lecture on civilian-based defense ("Speaker urges nonviolent means," Nov. 15) did not listen to the talk.

Sharp clearly stated that there will always be a need for some kind of national defense since people will always feel threatened by others. What he was suggesting was that nations may be better defended by the use of nonviolent tactics rather than violent ones. He advocated research be undertaken to determine if the use of nonviolence is more effective than violence in resolving disputes and, if so, in what way can this be applied. He is saying that a shift from violent tactics to nonviolent ones would be a gradual process, not one in which a nation throws away its weapons immediately. The present defense policies of Switzerland, Austria and Yugoslavia contain some nonviolent components along with their predominantly military means of defense. There has to be an alternative defense policy established before people will give up their guns and bombs.

The quotes in the article are lifted out of context and are confusing. While examples of the successful use of nonviolence need to be included, nothing is said by the reporter that the actions occurred spontaneously and without previous preparation by the people. This is a major point addressed by Sharp. With advance preparations could these nonviolent techniques be more successful? Is it possible that advance plans may serve as a deterrent to an invasion? ...

To the Editor:
Russ Madden's editorial "The buck stops" (DI, Nov. 13) represents the epitome of unreasoning myopia.

Madden laments increasing litigation and what he perceives as "a flight from personal responsibility" by which people seek to "blame scapegoats for their problems." ... The correlation Madden would have us draw is not so obvious. Litigation is a means by which people vindicate their rights. It permits compensation of victims. It allows individuals the opportunity to force wrongdoers to "accept full responsibility for their actions." The alternatives are unacceptable: lawlessness or governmental control. Either no rights are championed or greater governmental regulation is necessary to prevent the abuse of individual rights. In reality, "affixing responsibility on an outside entity" is required not to maintain, but rather to prevent "undesirable behavior" — not to "avoid personal responsibility" but rather to affix it through a fair and impartial adjudication.

True, too many of us are more easily swayed by dollars than by pleas for assistance. But that makes it all the more important to preserve institutions which assign fault and allocate risks. Unfortunate as it may seem to some, we always pay for the "mistakes" of others. We all incur greater costs for goods and services, increased taxation and higher insurance premiums because of the societal belief that it is better for all to suffer a little than for the innocent to suffer at all. I, for one, am quite content to pay the marginally higher costs inherent in spreading the risks in exchange for the freedom from worrying about whether the Maddens or Whitlocks of the world are able to absorb risks entirely.

Cold weather may delay seaway reopening

MONTREAL (UPI) — Repair crews working around the clock to secure a shaky drawbridge said Sunday a drop in temperature could delay Monday's expected reopening of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Seaway official Richard Juteau said the waterway would reopen Monday if the weather continued to stay mild and allowed work crews to stabilize a drawbridge that was heavily damaged Friday when a freighter rammed it.

"But if we get freezing rain, it could delay the work because it would present a danger to the repairmen," Juteau said as he eyed a drizzle that began late Sunday morning.

A CANADIAN meteorologist said the temperature was expected to stay at or just above 32 degrees until late Monday, when snow flurries are predicted.

Seaway repair crews worked all through the night Saturday to install steel braces on the north side of the liftspan of the St. Louis de Gonzague Bridge, 40 miles southwest of Montreal. They were putting braces on the south side Sunday.

The accident occurred just before 11 a.m. Friday when the 532-foot Indian freighter, Jala Godavari, carrying a cargo of steel to New York, missed the entrance to pass under the liftspan of the bridge.

IT CRASHED through two steel abutments, which protect the bridge's pillars, and crashed into the fixed structure of the bridge, collapsing a 60-foot section.

Several vehicles tumbled into the Beauharnois Canal section of the St. Lawrence River, but there were no deaths or serious injuries.

Seaway engineers decided Saturday to leave the ship where it was because it was supporting the liftspan of the bridge, which remained in place.

JUTEAU SAID Sunday that the ship's bow will be secured where it is, but tugs will move the stern one foot toward shore because the ship is pressing on one of the steel abutments protecting the bridge's pillars.

"The abutment is leaning," Juteau said. "We're worried it could fall into the channel and block it if the pressure isn't relieved."

There are about 100 ships waiting to pass through the Seaway before the winter freeze-up closes it, usually in mid-December.

Conditions were clear at the time of the accident. Canadian pilot Benoit Beauchamp, who was responsible for guiding the ship, has refused comment.

Seaway officials have not yet estimated the damages to the bridge, which will be repaired after the shipping season ends.

Anti-apartheid union formed in South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — More than 10,000 blacks celebrated the formation of the country's largest labor federation Sunday and demanded the abolition of apartheid within six months.

The crowd of singing and dancing people jammed the Kings Park sports stadium in a white Durban suburb to celebrate the formation of the Congress of South African Trade Unions.

Elijah Barayi, president of the newly formed union and an official in the powerful National Union of Mineworkers, said workers favored the withdrawal of American investments in South Africa.

Trade unionists at the rally cheered as Barayi said blacks would burn their identity documents — known as "passes" — if the government's apartheid system of racial separation is not dismantled within six months.

POLICE SHOT and killed 69 people during a pass-burning in Sharpeville on March 21, 1960, the worst massacre of blacks by the police in South African history.

"This is the last warning to (President Pieter Botha) to get rid of the passes, to get rid of the troops from the townships before the houses burn down," Barayi told the cheering crowd.

Barayi called on Botha to resign to make way for Nelson Mandela, the jailed leader of the African National Congress and the legendary leader of the black nationalist movement in South Africa.

Officials said the new federation will represent nearly a half million workers, most of them black.

IN DURBAN, miners union leader Cyril Ramaphosa, named general secretary of the federation, said lifting of the state of emergency would be a priority for the new organization.

Botha has imposed state of emergency rule in 38 black and mixed-race districts in an attempt to quell political violence that has claimed nearly 900 lives in the past 15 months.

Ramaphosa said the federation intended to enter the political arena as an opponent of apartheid and warned that it would be "a substantial force to be reckoned with."

The federation, known as Cosatu, was launched Friday night as a fusion of largely black trade unions opposed to apartheid.

Maryknoll nuns' deaths recalled in El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Roman Catholic Bishop Gregorio Rosa Chavez offered prayers Sunday for four American missionaries slain five years ago and blamed top Salvadoran officials for their murders.

"Our judicial system leaves much to be desired," Rosa told Salvadoran Catholics and American missionaries gathered for his service commemorating today's anniversary of the killings.

Maryknoll nuns Ita Ford and Maura Clarke, Ursuline nun Dorothy Kazel and lay volunteer Jean Donovan were raped and murdered by National Guardsmen on Dec. 2, 1980, in one of the most shocking killings connected to El Salvador's bloody civil war.

FIVE GUARDSMEN have been convicted in the killing, including one sergeant, but many continue to believe they were only the triggermen in the murder and not the force behind it.

"We believe there is always someone intellectually responsible for every crime committed," Rosa said after the service when asked if the church was satisfied with the government's efforts to punish those responsible for the murders.

"You must reach up to (top military) levels if you want justice fulfilled," he said.

In his homily, Rosa said the four women "would be the first to protest if we did not also say a prayer for the thousands of other victims of this armed conflict."

LEFTIST guerrillas have been battling the U.S.-backed government in El Salvador for six years. An estimated 55,000 people, mostly non-combatants, have been killed.

The majority of the murders, including those of the four women, are suspected of being the work of right-wing death squads often linked to powerful people within the military, although no officers or administrators have ever been charged with the murders.

Special services for the four slain women are to be held today in Chalatenango province, an area of frequent civil war battles and the women's missionary base.

It is believed their deaths were connected to suspicions that they were rebel sympathizers.

Iowa grapplers fare well in Madison

By Laura Palmer
Staff Writer

The Hawkeye wrestlers fared well last weekend at the Northern Open Tournament in Madison Wisconsin by sending nine grapplers to the finals, four placing first and one becoming the tournament's outstanding wrestler.

"We performed really well and we're happy with our performance," Iowa assistant coach Keith Mourlam said. "This is a tough pre-season tournament. We use this tournament as a gauge; we now know the improvements we have to make and where we stand."

Kevin Dresser, the senior 142-pounder, captured the outstanding wrestler award, throwing three falls in five matches and beating Indiana State's John Effer, 11-2, in the finals.

IN THE semi-finals, Dresser beat the defending national champion at 134 pounds, Jim Jordan of Wisconsin, 14-0.

Three other Hawkeyes fared well in the finals. Jim Heffernan, at 150 pounds, defeated Wisconsin's Jeff Jordan, 11-3. Iowa's 177-pounder, Rico Chipparelli, beat Iowa State's Bob Gassman, 8-3 and Duane Goldman defeated Scott Rechstiener of Michigan, 12-5.

"We did fairly well. There are always a few things to iron out but given time we'll get things straightened out," Jim Heffernan said.

At 167 pounds, Marty Kistler fell to three time all-American Kevin Jackson, 7-11. Jackson, formerly of Louisiana State, recently transferred to Iowa State, but wrestled unattached in the tournament.

SECOND PLACE finishes came at the remaining weights with the exception of the heavy-weight position. At 118 pounds, Steve Knight fell to Michigan's Doug Wyland, 5-7. Matt Egeland at 126 pounds dropped to Gene Spelman of Wisconsin, 6-5.

Wrestling unattached, Hawkeye Brad Penrith at 134 pounds was defeated by Northwestern's Steve DePetro, 1-7. At 158 pounds, Royce Alger lost a close match, 7-8, to Andre Metzger who wrestled unattached.

Stringer's team falls 56-57 in final game

By Robert Mann
Staff Writer

Coach Vivian Stringer's squad fell victim to an injury and questionable officiating, losing to Louisiana State, 56-57, in their final game of the Louisiana State Classic Saturday.

Junior forward Lisa Long went down with a leg injury in the second half at a critical point in the game, according to Stringer, and may be out for the next few games.

"I don't know that she will have any more playing time this half of the year," Stringer said. Long injured her leg at a point where the Hawkeyes were leading by one.

The questionable call by an official occurred late in the second half, Stringer said, and robbed sophomore guard Pam Williams of a chance to shoot two free-throws.

According to Stringer, Williams was getting ready to take a shot when an official called a shooting foul allowing Williams to take two free-throws. He then decided to give the ball to the Hawkeyes out of bounds instead. "When you're on the road, you've got to expect this," Stringer said.

Although they lost, Stringer believes the Hawkeyes played

Hawkeyes cruise past 'Cats, 92-62

By Laura Palmer
Staff Writer

A young Hawkeye basketball squad rolled over Abilene Christian, 92-62, in their season home opener Saturday, raising their record to 4-0.

Overall, Iowa's play wasn't great, according to Coach George Raveling. "Some phases (we played) well, some phases not so well. We'll probably have an absent flow all season until we mature," Raveling said.

"We didn't reach our goal to keep them under 60, they got 62," the Iowa coach said. "We played a good running game, we're better when we run with the ball."

"What I'd like to do is run and press. We have the type of athletes to do that."

Raveling is still in search of a starting line-up but "never had any doubt that freshmen Roy Marble, Ed Horton and B.J. Armstrong could be outstanding players."

"I DIDN'T anticipate Marble to be the leading freshman," Raveling said of the 6-5 guard who broke the freshman scoring record with 28 points.

"The freshmen played well," junior forward Gerry Wright said. "They're a big help and they're so fired up. They make mistakes, but are still fired up."

Basketball

The Hawkeyes started Marble, Wright, Brad Lohaus, Andre Banks and Jeff Moe.

Moe put the first four points on the board for Iowa and totaled eight points in the game.

The scoring stayed close with 23-18, but with six minutes left in the first period, the Hawkeyes broke away and by half time, the score stood at 42-25.

Once the Wildcats allowed Iowa to take the lead, there was no stopping the Hawkeyes. Iowa more than doubled their first half score to win, 92-62.

"THE TEAM played well ... We ran the ball a lot more. We've been working out a lot on running the ball," Wright said.

Wright was slightly disappointed with his own performance in the game, however.

"I could have played better. I didn't rebound as well and I missed three shots. I try to take shots I can make," Wright, who

Expectations run high as Illini prepare for pressured season

By Steve Sands
Staff Writer

CHICAGO — Expectations run high in Champaign, Ill., this time every year since Lou Henson molded the Illinois basketball program into a national powerhouse.

Illinois is ranked in the top ten of many polls and is expected to battle Michigan for the conference title.

But Henson will face added pressure in the 1985-86 season. The nucleus of seniors Doug Altenberger, Bruce Douglas and Efreem Winters will take their curtain call after leading the club to the NCAA regional finals two years ago and the semi-finals last year.

In 1984, the 6-9 forward Winters and 6-3 guard Douglas garnered all-Big Ten honors as sophomores and led the team to a Big Ten title shared with Purdue.

PLAYING FAVORED Kentucky in Lexington, the young Illini almost upset the Wildcats, losing 54-51.

With the departure of only sparkplug guard Quinn Richardson, the Illini were mentioned as the team to challenge Georgetown last year, but inconsistent play by Douglas and Winters in part of the season helped to prevent a repeat title defense.

Although the club set a school record 26 wins, Winters' point production dropped from 14.7 in 1984 to 9.7 last season, and Douglas fell from 13.6 to 10.1.

The Illini finished second in the conference, but peaked during the NCAA tournament, handily defeating Georgia before falling to Georgia Tech in the regional semi-finals 61-53.

Although Douglas and Winters had off years, Altenberger's consistency proved crucial to the Illini. He shot 50.3 percent from the field and averaged 11.3 points a game, second on the team.

The Peoria, Ill. native's defense prowess earned him the team honor, even though Douglas was named the Big Ten defensive player of the year, leading the league in steals for two straight years.

ALTENBERGER IS suffering from an injured knee, and is expected to recover fully in mid-December.

Fifth-year senior Anthony Welch also returns as the leading scorer on the team with 415 points last year. The 6-9 forward shot 52 percent from the field, and grabbed 189 rebounds, second on the squad to Winters' 252.

A bright spot last year for the Illini was the play of 6-8 junior center Ken Norman, who replaced injured George Montgomery toward the end of the season.

In the Illini's last six games, he scored 104 points and had 55 rebounds.

With Montgomery graduating, Assistant Coach Dick Nagy said Norman should fill in without any loss in talent.

"In George Montgomery, we lost a post defensive player," he said. "However we feel Ken Norman is as good as George because he is quicker than George and probably as strong as George."

Senior Scott Meents, the 6-10 center and sixth man for the Illini, should provide extra rebounding punch. Last year he pulled down 111 rebounds.

NAGY SAID THE inconsistency of last year's team was caused by opponents who watched the club closely and were able to shut down the Illini's strengths.

"The people we played against did a great deal of film research in what the Illini did and what it didn't do well," Nagy said.

"I think they did a great job of taking away some of our strengths and our players didn't make the adjustments they had to make."

But Nagy said the Illini had a good fall practice session, and the players have shown great improvement from last year.

He said Winters has taken the ball to the basket more effectively and is rebounding more aggressively.

Tough Dolphin offensive line to challenge undefeated Bears

MIAMI (UPI) — The Miami Dolphins, who know about going undefeated, would like to make sure the Chicago Bears do not.

Monday night in the Orange Bowl Stadium, the Bears' fierce pass rush will run up against a Miami offensive line that has allowed only 13 sacks this season. Bears' coach Mike Ditka expresses great respect for the Dolphin line, which has been banged up by injuries this season.

"You can't get to him," Ditka said of Miami quarterback Dan Marino. "He has the quick release. We're going to have to contain him on the coverage."

Football

THE BEARS, 12-0 and bidding to be the NFL's first unbeaten team since the 1972 Dolphins, have given up only 2,096 yards passing, while the Dolphins, 8-4, have passed for 3,218. The Bears also have picked off 30 passes while Marino has thrown 17 interceptions this season to go with 19 touchdowns.

Miami offensive linemen say the Bears have the best pass rush they've faced all season.

"They just don't have two or three good guys," said right guard Steve Clark, "they have five or six. They're all good players. They're all aggressive and quick and know what they're doing."

"All the Bears across the front line are great players," said rookie offensive tackle Jeff Dellenbach. "They play the intimidation game; it's part of the Bears style."

CHICAGO'S leading sacker is right end Richard Dent with 10. Tackle Steve McMichael has eight sacks and linebacker Otis Wilson has 7.5.

"Everyone knows that Chicago's strength is putting tremendous pressure on the quarterback," said Miami coach Don Shula. "They know he (Marino) is a drop-back quarterback, so they'll be relentlessly trying to break down the pocket and put pressure on him."

Despite the Bears' pass rush, the Dolphins plan to do what works best for their offense — Marino throwing the ball. Wide receiver Mark Clayton leads the Dolphins with 56 catches for 795 yards, and running back Tony Nathan has 54 for 512.

"Our strength has been Marino throwing the football, so you've got to work hard to get him the time to do it," Shula said.

TO HEAR Ditka talk about the Miami offense, you would think the Bears were 0-12.

"It's going to be tough. We haven't gone up against a passing game this year that does the things Miami does," he said. "I don't know if we can keep up with their receivers. I don't think we can pressure Marino."

The Bears make themselves hard to figure by offering different defensive fronts.

"It's very unique what they're doing," Shula said. "It's basically a four-man line, occasionally they drop Dent off and sometimes they put both outside linebackers on the same side and blitz both. They just give you a lot of different looks, or they'll give you that blitz appearance then drop off and play zone."

THE BEARS own two straight shut outs and have not allowed a touchdown in 13 quarters. Nevertheless, the Dolphins believe they can score.

"We have Dan Marino and I think the Bears can be hurt by the passing game," Shula said. "I don't think anyone on this team feels they're going to shut us out. We can score on anybody."

"There's no question they're a very good defensive line, but we can hold our own against them."

Five field goals key to Saints victory

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Morten Andersen kicked five field goals and the New Orleans defense set up two fourth-quarter touchdowns Sunday, leading the Saints to a 29-3 victory over the NFC West-leading Los Angeles Rams.

The loss dropped the Rams, who won their first seven games, to 9-4. The Saints improved to 5-8 in the debut of interim coach Wade Phillips, whose father, Bum Phillips, resigned last week.

Steelers topped in high-scoring quarter

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Steve Sewell's second fourth-quarter touchdown, a 2-yard run with 1:45 left, and Mike Harden's 42-yard interception return for a score 21 seconds later Sunday ruined a Pittsburgh rally and gave the Denver Broncos a 31-23 victory over the Steelers.

The back-to-back touchdowns capped a wild, 35-point fourth quarter, in which the Steelers came back from a 17-9 deficit to win by eight points.

Denver, which entered the game tied with the Raiders atop the AFC West, improved to 9-4. Pittsburgh, 6-7, dropped a game out of first place in the AFC Central.

Redskins fall short despite Schroeder

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers revived their hopes for a third straight NFC West title Sunday, but left the Washington Redskins' post season hopes in critical condition.

Carl Monroe returned the opening kickoff 95 yards for a touchdown and linebacker Keena Turner ran back a fumble 65 yards for a score to spark the 49ers to a 35-8 victory over the Redskins.

The loss drops the error-plagued Redskins to the brink of playoff elimination. The defending NFC East champions' 7-6 record places them two games out of first with three games remaining.

Jay Schroeder completed 30-of-58 passes for a team season-high 348 yards, but fumbled twice and threw two interceptions. His 58 attempts set a Redskins record, breaking Sonny Jurgensen's mark of 50.

Browns' last minute touchdown caps rally

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — Earnest Byner's last minute touchdown run Sunday completed a Cleveland Browns rally with a 35-33 victory over the New York Giants.

The Giants drove from their own 10 yard line to Cleveland's 18 yard line with four seconds remaining, but Eric Schubert's 34-yard field goal try was wide left.

Phil Simms completed 23-of-37 for 284 yards and was intercepted twice for the Giants. Gary Danielson, who did not start due to a shoulder injury, replaced rookie Bernie Kosar early in the second half for the Browns. Danielson was 8-of-17 for 135 yards, while Kosar finished 6-of-16 for 86 yards.

Yugoslavian skiers sweep slalom opening

SESTRIERE, Italy (UPI) — Rok Petrovic of Yugoslavia, insisting he's still not at his best, led teammate Bojan Krizaj to a one-two sweep Sunday in the first men's slalom race of the Alpine World Cup.

Petrovic, who does not turn 20 until February, clocked a winning aggregate time of 1 minute, 40.79 seconds.

"I wasn't as strong today as I'd like to be, I did okay in the first part of the morning run, but I got tired farther down," said Petrovic.

Petrovic and Krizaj, not heavily publicized in the first slalom race of the season, slipped into the top spots ahead of favorites such as defending World Cup champion Marc Girardelli of Luxembourg and Switzerland's double World Champion Pirmin Zurbriggen.

Zurbriggen made it through the 65 first-run gates but lost control in the afternoon run and fell halfway down.

The treacherous Kandahar Alpette course claimed just over half of the 88 starters as 45 skiers fell out of contention over the two runs.

The race was run under the new World Cup "full reverse 30" rule, under which only the 30 fastest skiers in the morning run qualify for the definitive afternoon session, running in reverse order of times.

Petrovic, who took the 1983 World Junior title in slalom at Sestriere and a bronze in the giant slalom, advanced into a tie with West German Marcus Wasmaier for third place in the overall World Cup season standings.

World Cup women are set to race Saturday and Sunday at Sestriere.

Bantamweight fight slated for tonight

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — Jerome Coffee is so confident of snatching Australian Jeff Fenech's IBF world bantamweight championship Monday night that he has already arranged his first defense of the title.

The 27-year-old Coffee has planned the defense for his home town of Nashville, Tennessee, on Jan. 16 against Jesus Salud, who has just won the No. 11 IBF ranking.

Fenech, a 21-year-old former street fighter from Sydney's inner suburbs, is a 4-6 favorite to win the scheduled 15-round bout at the Sydney Entertainment Center.

Both boxers are unbeaten in their professional careers with Coffee boasting a 27-0 record and Fenech winning all of his 11 bouts by knockout.

Coffee, who has been in Australia for two weeks preparing for the bout, predicted Fenech will try to turn the fight into a brawl.

"That's the only way he can win," he said.

FENECH'S TRAINER John Lewis said that Coffee is trying to talk a fight.

"Ever since Coffee arrived in Sydney he's been trying to provoke Jeff into going berserk," Lewis said.

"That's Coffee's best chance to win - turn Jeff into a wild, swinging brawler but, when Jeff gets into the ring, all the taunts from Coffee, all the baiting and provocation will be useless."

Coffee's manager, Stan Allen, said "I expect Jerome to win about the 10th round. He will end it with a barrage of punches."

Coffee will probably try to open with speed and assert early control with his skill, endeavoring to keep Fenech away from the corners or ropes where the Australian's strength and body punching can cause damage.

Neither boxer has fought longer than 10 rounds. Experts agree the longer the fight lasts, the greater the chance of a Fenech victory. The Australian has boxed 34 rounds in the past six months while Coffee has fought only 28 rounds in the last 18 months.

well and are a top-twenty team that must not allow as many turnovers.

Sophomore guard Michelle Edwards scored 16 points for the Hawkeyes, junior forward Lynn Kennedy made ten and Long scored seven.

The Hawkeyes meet Western Kentucky tonight, a team which went to the final four last year and are currently rated in the top twenty. Stringer said the Hawkeyes will need a "super effort" to beat the Lady Toppers, who have lost only one game at home in the last two years.

"If we keep the game close, I'll be happy with that," Stringer said. "We've got our work cut out for us, (because) we've got people who will be playing out of position" due to injuries.

"The only thing where we had a disagreement is that he (Winters) should be more aggressive in the post," he said. "I think it is a personal thing. I think Efrem is a laid back individual."

THE BENCH of the Illini should provide depth in every position.

At forward, the Illini recruited 6-7 freshman Lowell Hamilton, named the number one high school player last year by Street and Smith's.

He averaged 21 points a game, nine rebounds, and six blocked shots to lead Providence-St. Mel to the Illinois Class A state championship.

At the guard position, Henson can call on 5-10 junior Tony Wysinger, 6-4 sophomore Glynn Blackwell, 6-2 senior Reggie Woodward, and 6-1 freshman Curtis Taylor.

Two 7-foot redshirt freshmen, Germany's Olaf Blab and Jens Kujawa, should stand tall in the post, but Nagy says Kujawa should see more action because of his experience.

This is the first in a series of articles previewing Big Ten basketball teams.

totalled 11 points, said.

Banks, the only senior on the team, made two of six field goals from the floor and went one for one from the free-throw line.

Lohaus, who missed four scoring attempts, is "coming along" according to Raveling.

"He needs to learn to play as a 7-footer. God gave him a 7-foot body ... but he plays like he's 6-6," Raveling said.

Iowa's most consistent shooter was sophomore Al Lorenzen, who shot seven for seven and was one for two from the free-throw line.

SOPHOMORE FOWARD Kent Hill is out with a back injury and did not have the OK from the team doctor to play, according to Raveling, but may be a possibility for Tuesday's Drake game.

"They wore us down the second half," Abilene Coach Mike Martin said. "When you're not as talented you have to work harder; there were too many gaps."

One thing the Wildcats had going for them was high-scoring guard Brett Enzor, who led his team with 21 points.

"I hope we don't see anyone shoot better than Enzor," Raveling said. "He really has courage, during the end (of the game) he was limping. I was mad at my players for not playing him harder."

"They're a good scrappy ball team but don't have the depth."

At their own level the Wildcats are tough, Raveling said. The Division II school won the Lone Star Conference championship last year and are predicted to repeat the honor.

Cotton Bowl's glitz tarnished

Doug Flutie's magical touch-down against Miami last year, combined with Flutie's automatic winning of the Heisman Trophy, brought the Cotton Bowl a fair share of advance publicity last January.

This season, with one of its scheduled participants taking a late-season defeat, the Cotton Bowl was not so fortunate.

Van Tiffin's long-distance field goal, which gave Alabama a dramatic 25-23 victory over Auburn Saturday, took plenty of luster off the game. And it will lose even more if Auburn running back Bo Jackson does not win the Heisman, which is a long way from a certainty.

"It was a great game," said Cotton Bowl president Jim Ray Smith, who paid a visit to the Auburn locker room after the Tigers' disappointing loss. "It was one of the greatest I've ever seen. But we have a good team coming to the Cotton Bowl."

While the Cotton Bowl may suffer in the publicity department, it will probably do well in the area of cash flow as a result of the outcome of a game in College Station, Texas, Thanksgiving night.

Texas A&M's 42-10 victory over Texas, which clinched the Southwest Conference title and the Cotton Bowl berth for the Aggies, touched off a wave of excitement among the school's loyal fans.

Without a Cotton Bowl appearance in 18 years, Texas A&M is expected to do something (weather permitting), which no school has done in recent years — pack the Dallas stadium on New Year's Day.

The day after the A&M victory, Coach Jackie Sherrill said Cotton Bowl officials should put in 20,000 extra seats for the game. Those who run the game will likely be happy just to fill the ones they have.

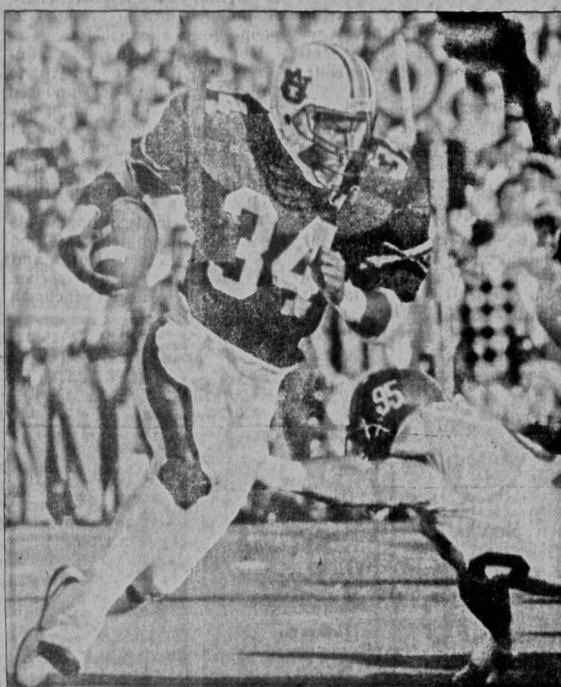

In addition to helping the Cotton Bowl draw a capacity crowd, the Aggies will be trying to reverse a post-season trend that has tarnished the image of the SWC the last two seasons.

During the last two years, six of the nine SWC teams have appeared in a bowl game and all six have lost at least once.

Last season the conference had a 1-4 record in bowl games — Southern Methodist the only winner with a 27-20 Aloha Bowl decision against Notre Dame — and the season before the league was 0-3.

Arkansas will try to get the SWC off on a winning note Dec. 22 in the Holiday Bowl against Arizona State, Baylor will take on Louisiana State in the Liberty Bowl Dec. 27, Texas will face the Air Force in the Bluebonnet Bowl Dec. 31 and Texas A&M will confront Auburn on New Year's Day in Dallas.

The regular SWC season still has one game to go with the SMU Mustangs traveling to Oklahoma next Saturday. The Mustangs will have one last appearance on national television before their NCAA imposed blackout takes over. Also, they have a chance to make an impact on the national rankings should they knock off the high-powered Sooners.

Auburn tailback Bo Jackson (34) evades Alabama defender Curt Jarvis (95) to pick up short yardage in Auburn's loss to Alabama Saturday.

The second-ranked Sooners, who will bring a 9-1 record into their final game, need a victory over SMU to have a shot at the national title against top-rated Penn State in the Orange Bowl.

McEnroe survives, Shriver tumbles in Open

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — John McEnroe survived an embarrassing ace before subduing Nduka Odizor Sunday, but Pam Shriver tumbled to a Swedish onslaught at the $1.5 million Australian Open.

McEnroe, the No. 2 seed, struggled with his concentration, but then ousted the Nigerian powerhouse, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2 in a center court match.

The seventh day of the championships belonged to Sweden when Caterina Lindqvist pulled off the upset of the day with a 3-6, 6-3, 6-2 decision over Shriver.

Tennis

ALSO, Swede Stefan Edberg defeated Californian Matt Anger and defending champion Mats Wilander took to the center court for the first time and completely outclassed Milwaukee's Leif Shiras in third-round matches.

Czechoslovakia's Ivan Lendl, the top seed, was in a sour mood when he pushed aside Ben Testerman of Knoxville, Tenn., 6-3, 1-6, 6-3, 6-2, and was slapped with a $500 fine for an audible obscenity.

Lendl joined the swelling ranks of players who have condemned the center court at Melbourne as the worst grass court in the world.

"It's no good running around and chasing hard for shots and run the risk of falling over. The courts are in bad condition," he said.

SHROUDED BY a cascade of thistle pollen from the riverbank adjacent to the stadium, the center court had a spillover crowd of 9,400 as officials allowed fans to sit on the second center court. Ambulance officials treated 23 people for heat exhaustion.

McEnroe continually sauntered around the court trying to collect his game and wandered nearly to the backdrop of the court when Odizor, serving at 40-0 in the sixth game of the second set, aced the former Wimbledon champion with a gentle underarm lob.

McEnroe simply dropped his head, but immediately discarded his nonchalant attitude and began to overpower the Nigerian. He will now meet Frenchman Henri Leconte in the fourth round.

LINDQVIST, the 22-year-old Swede, came from being down 3-6, 1-3 and 15-30 on Shriver's service to upset Shriver, of Lutherville, Md.

Wilander served deep, volleyed well and was in complete control as he trounced Shiras 6-2, 6-3, 6-2 in his first appearance on the center court.

Hana Mandlikova, the No. 3 seed, stopped Australian Wendy Turnbull, a favorite of the home crowd, 6-3, 6-4. Mandlikova will play Zina Garrison of Houston in the quarterfinals. Garrison, the sixth seed, defeated Henricksson of Mahtomed, Minn., 4-6, 6-1, 6-3.

FIFTH SEED Claudia Kohde-Kilsch of West Germany defeated Jo Durie of England, 3-6, 6-1, 6-2.

In the remaining women's match, eighth-seeded Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia finalized the quarterfinals when she cruised through Australian teenager Amanda Dingwall, 6-3, 6-1.

Big Ten reigns over non-conference foes

The Big Ten basketball teams have picked up where they left off last year, demolishing non-conference competition at a rate of more than 87 percent.

The Big Ten Conference did see three of its clubs fall Saturday with Illinois being upset by Oklahoma 59-57; Northwestern falling 76-72 at Bradley; and Purdue falling to highly-ranked North Carolina 73-62.

But top-ranked Michigan avenged the Boilermaker loss to an Atlantic Coast Conference team by defeating No. 2 Georgia Tech 49-44.

IN OTHER games Saturday, Ohio State upset Maryland 78-66; Wisconsin edged Marquette 75-74; Iowa whipped Abilene Christian 92-62; Indiana turned back Kent State 89-73; Michigan State won its own tourney with a 84-64 win over Western Michigan; Minnesota got past South Dakota 66-57.

Michigan's win solidified the Wolverines' claim as both the No. 1 team in the nation and as the pre-season favorite of the Big Ten.

"It was a great game. Maybe it didn't look it to the public but they don't understand defense," said Michigan Coach Bill Frieder. "That was as intense a game as I've seen."

AFTER TRAILING for much of the first half, Michigan rallied in the second half for the win. Antoine Joubert scored 21 points to pace the Wolverines.

Brad Sellers scored 14 points and grabbed a career high 19 rebounds to lead Ohio State to its upset win over Maryland. Five players scored in double figures for the 2-0 Buckeyes.

Big Ten Roundup

Wisconsin got a perfect 12-for-12 performance from Rod Ripley at the free throw line to help the Badgers improve to 3-0. Ripley scored 22 points to hand Marquette its first loss in two outings.

Freshman Ricky Calloway came off the bench to score 23 points in Indiana's season-opening win. Calloway hit 10 of 11 shots while guard Steve Alford contributed 24 points for the Hoosiers.

ANOTHER freshman, Roy Marble, scored 28 points to give Iowa its fourth straight win without a loss.

Center John Shasky scored 19 points and grabbed 11 rebounds to give Minnesota its win. Marc Wilson added 14 points for the 4-1 Gophers.

Guards Scott Skiles and Darryl Johnson scored 22 points each to lead MSU, 4-0, to a victory in the Spartan Cutlass Classic.

Anthony Bowie scored 19 points, including the game winner with one second left, to lift Oklahoma to its upset win over Illinois. Lindwood Davis added a career high 18 points to hand the Illini its first loss after two wins. Illinois had beaten Hawaii-Loa 72-45 the previous night.

KENNY SMITH and Brad Daugherty each scored 16 points to lead North Carolina past Purdue, 2-1. Troy Lewis and Todd Mitchell each had 14 points for the Boilermakers.

Oklahoma completes sweep of Big Eight

STILLWATER, Okla. (UPI) — Oklahoma claimed sole possession of the Big Eight Conference championship Saturday by defeating Oklahoma State 13-0 on a field covered by a mixture of slush and ice.

The No. 2 Sooners — 9-1 overall, 7-0 in the conference — host Southern Methodist University this Saturday and will play No. 1 Penn State in the Orange Bowl.

The Cowboys — 8-3 overall, 4-3 in the league — slipped into a tie with Colorado for third place in the Big Eight and will meet Florida State in the Gator Bowl on Dec. 30.

"These were the worst conditions I've ever seen any game played under," OU Coach Barry Switzer said.

OU completed its sweep of the Big Eight by scoring 10 points in the second quarter, on a 27-yard field goal by Tim Lashar, a 3-yard touchdown run by Spencer Tillman and three more in the final period on a 30-yard Lashar field goal.

SWITZER SAID the conditions handicapped the two normally high-powered offensive units and made the contest a defensive struggle.

"The field neutralized the offenses," Switzer said. "Our defense played outstanding. During the month of November, our team has scored against our defense."

OU outrushed the Cowboys 201 yards to 124, but OSU tailback Thurman Thomas was the game's leading rusher with 100 yards on 23 carries. It was his seventh 100-yard game of the season and he became the first to gain 100 yards against Oklahoma's nationally second-ranked rushing defense this year.

Fullback Lydell Carr paced OU's rushing with 78 yards on 24 carries and freshman quarterback Jamelle Holieway led in total offense by rushing for 51 yards and completing four-of-five pass attempts for another 54 yards.

Hyperpatriotism ruins 'Rocky'

By Merwyn Grote
Assistant Arts/entertainment Editor

I WON'T reveal who wins the big climatic battle in Rocky IV — that just wouldn't be fair. A never, just let me say this: The big boxing match is between Rocky Balboa, that grand and glorious icon who symbolizes everything that is pure and wholesome about the American Dream, and Ivan Drago, a grim and cold-blooded Soviet fighter who is the epitome of everything despicable for which the evil empire stands. Furthermore, the fight, which is being fought to avenge the brutal death of Rocky's best friend, is being held in Russia on Christmas Day, the most sacred and cherished holiday in all of Christianity.

So, on one side there is Rocky, representing truth, justice and the American way — not to mention the sanctity of religion, while on the other side there is Drago, representing a cruel, heartless and atheistic police state. Now, go ahead, guess who, in these super-patriotic, flag-waving times, could possibly win such a fight in an American movie that was written by, directed by and stars Sylvester "Rambo" Stallone.

Rocky IV
Directed and written by Sylvester Stallone.
Produced by Irwin Winkler and Robert Chartoff. Rated PG.
Rocky Balboa.....Sylvester Stallone
Adrian Balboa.....Talia Shire
Apollo Creed.....Carl Weathers
Ivan Drago.....Dolph Lundgren
Showing at the Englert 1

Films

I HAVE NEVER hid my lack of enthusiasm for Sylvester Stallone's work. I was singularly unimpressed with Rocky and found Rocky II bordering on the pathetically awful. But, on the other hand, I did enjoy Rocky III, which was a slick and no-nonsense entertainment that was pleasingly free of the phoney-balance, lower-class pretense that made the first two films seem so contrived. Rocky III produced the glimmer of hope that maybe Stallone actually had some skills when it came to filmmaking. So, even after the terrible ordeals of watching Rhinestone and Rambo: First Blood, Part II, I was more than willing to give Rocky IV the benefit of the doubt.

And, indeed, the film starts out just fine. It is several years after Rocky III and Rocky and Adrian (Stallone and Talia Shire) are living in domestic bliss. Meanwhile, Rocky's friend and former adversary, Apollo Creed (Carl Weathers) has decided to come out of retirement to fight the robot-like Soviet boxer Drago (Dolph Lundgren), who is an indestructible laboratory-produced monster. This leads to the film's comic highpoint, a pre-match floor show on the stage of the MGM Grand Hotel featuring James Brown, fan dancers and all the tackiness that Las Vegas can possibly muster.

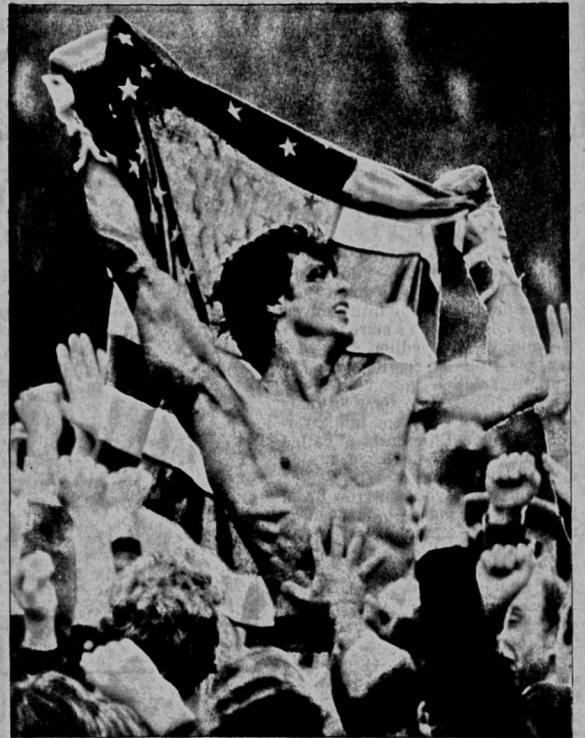

IN THE FIGHT itself, however, Creed is creamed by the towering hunk and dies, which is a shame because Weathers' Apollo was the only character in the Rocky films I ever really liked. Anyway, that is why Balboa goes to Moscow to fight the Russian. Up to this point the film is undeniably enjoyable.

But as Rocky prepares for his big grudge match, the film becomes swamped in so much goey, self-righteous, over-blown super-patriotic drivel that it is embarrassing. The film is slick in the way it juxtaposes the technological training program of Drago against the simple, natural training sessions of Balboa, but it is also about as subtle as an uppercut to the jaw.

The Soviets are once again portrayed as inhuman robots incapable of any emotion except bitterness and anger, while, of course, the Americans are soul-searching humanists motivated by the purest of impulses. The film so insidiously stacks the emotional deck on Rocky's side that, by the time the men climbed in the ring, I was rooting for Drago simply because he was the underdog.

By film's end, Rocky Balboa is not just a symbol of the American dream, American might and the American way of life; he is also a glowing emblem standing for world peace and unity. It would seem that Stallone's answer to East-West animosity would be to get the Russians to worship Rocky with the same adulation with which Stallone worships Stallone. Stallone hasn't got much talent, but he's got gall; he's got ego, and he hasn't an ounce of shame.

Sylvester Stallone as Rocky Balboa waves the American flag at the climax of Rocky IV.

Poets Jones, Graham to present works tonight

By Thomas Quiggle
Staff Writer

OFTEN WHEN two writers are invited to read and I am asked to think up some words about them in advance, I try to establish some connection, a thin wire through which a magnetic current passes, that will make for a smooth transition from the discussion of one writer to the next.

This is the way we think life in general should be. Unfortunately, I have to admit failure in this regard when examining the works of poets Rodney Jones and Jorie Graham.

WHEN JONES and Graham read at 8 tonight in Van Allen Lecture Room II, we will hear the distinct voices of two of America's most highly regarded young poets.

Rodney Jones, the author of three collections, including "The Readings

Story They Told Us of Light" and most recently "The Unborn," was raised in Falkville, Ala. and is currently a teacher of creative writing at Southern Illinois University. He has received Poetry Northwest's Theodore Roethke Prize, a Pushcart Prize in 1984, and was awarded grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and the Guggenheim Foundation in 1985.

Much of his poetry alludes to and takes its location in the South of his youth, and the reader returns with Jones to forgotten little towns, fading football heroes, corn whiskey, old Fords and Red Man tobacco. "Sweep" is one example:

The two Garnett brothers who run the Shell station here who are working separately just now, one hunched under the rear axle of Skippy Smith's Peterbilt tractor, the other humming as he loosens the clamps to replace my ruptured heater hoses, have aged twenty years since I saw them last and want only to talk of high school and who has died from each class.

It has been some years since Jones has lived in the South. Indeed much of the poet's work contains the element of recall or reunion. "Memory is an important sense to me," the author said recently, "in that the story, whatever it is, comes out of that." We find him often examining the territory of his youth, "the dirt that you know best," as Jones puts it. And we see a poignant moment of understanding between himself and his one-armed uncle, the difference in attitude between management and plant workers, and, in "Responsibilities," the struggle between his mother and aging grandfather:

He swings against the frost and the surgeons wishes.

He feels the shell constrict around him.

He Rocks each bone in its raggedy hammock

And what can my mother do now when he talks of marrying?

Yet in the reading of his work one is not overwhelmed by the sense that Jones' work is steeped in an acute form of regionalism. "Location is more important than region (to me)," Jones explained. And so we see Jones as being equally equipped to handle the extraordinary dichotomies he witnesses in El Salvador, his wife's homeland, in "After the Maquilisuat Tree":

I went around addled and lost, stupid for the unproffered sympathy.

And even before the airstrip at Ilopango, before the first soldiers with machine guns and the firecrackers of the Salvadoran Christmas, I was too literal. I was blinded by richness and fear as, later, I was rattled by traffic, moving like a premonition among ambulances, my eyes going up to the dark holes between torches or scurrying through doors with the scruffy goats and undernourished pigs.

Jorie Graham, who graduated from the Writers' Workshop and now teaches here, is the author of two collections of poetry, "Hybrids of Plants and of Ghosts," and "Erosion," published in 1983. The winner of two Pushcart prizes, a Bunting Fellowship from Harvard, and a Guggenheim Foundation grant, Graham this fall also was one of the first ten recipients of a $25,000 Whiting Writers' Award, a newly established grant from the Whiting Foundation to recognize writers of high literary merit.

In "Erosion," Graham holds ideas of man and images of nature in either hand, and seeks to move the former into the higher, more enduring realm that the latter occupies. Through small kindnesses or great brutality, man's temporal value can transcend to a more permanent place. Here is the first verse of "My Garden, My Daylight":

My neighbor brings me bottom fish—tomcod, rockcod—a fist of ocean. He comes out from the apple trees between us holding his gift like a tight spool of thread.

But in "History" we see nature and man brought together toward an entirely different end.

Far in the woods in a faded photograph in 1942 the man with his own genitalia in his mouth and hundreds of slow holes a pitchfork has opened over his face grows beautiful. The ferns and deep-wood lilies catch the eye.

Tonight's reading is free and open to the public.

Actor prepares for Lennon role with a little help from his friends

NEW YORK (UPI) — "John and Yoko: A Love Story" airs tonight at 7, just six days before the fifth anniversary of John Lennon's murder.

McGann broke into show business at age 18 playing Lennon in a Liverpool theatrical production called "Lennon," a role he will repeat soon on the London stage.

"I don't think you can grow up in Liverpool and not be influenced by the Beatles," McGann said in an interview.

"I wasn't born until 1961, and my earliest memories of the Beatles are from about 1965-66.

"I came from a family of four boys with about a year-and-a-half between each of us. At a very early age we used to stand on the couch in my mother's house with tennis rackets and play the Beatles. I got to play John because my nose was broken."

HE HAD BEEN interested in rock 'n' roll since he was a kid and put together several bands. He plays guitar, piano, harmonica and drums.

To study for the role, McGann talked to many of the people who knew Lennon well, and the television show has the added advantage of being based on some 40 hours of conversation with Lennon's wife,

Mark McGann as John Lennon

Television

Yoko Ono. "I knew the music because I loved it anyway," he said. "As for playing Lennon, I attempt to capture the spirit of John. I don't think as any actor you can do more than that."

McGann called Lennon's temperament "fiery," and said Lennon resented the way the Beatles evolved. "In 1962-63, when the Beatles were in Hamburg, they used to break up the stage," McGann said.

Newman, the cook, is featured in book

By United Press International

Buoyed by hit sales from his salad dressing, spaghetti sauce and popcorn, actor-race car driver-gourmet chef Paul Newman has now put his name on a cookbook.

A collection of recipes as varied as his roles, "Newman's Own Cookbook" (Contemporary Books, $13.95), spans the elegant (dilled fillets of scrod), to the exotic (marinated ginger tofu over soba noodles), to the whimsical ("Woodward Veggyburger," named after his actress wife, Joanne Woodward.

The book was compiled by his 25-year-old daughter, Nell Newman, and Ursula Hotchner, wife of Newman's neighbor and partner in the food business, author A. E. Hotchner. Since the two men started Newman's Own food company in 1983, they have generated some $25 million in sales.

"IT (THE COOKBOOK) was Ursula's idea," Nell Newman said. "We had been making up recipes using the salad dressing and spaghetti sauce and she suggested doing a cookbook. So we created these recipes, and my father helped us with the taste testing."

The book, which is filled with witty commentary, contains color photographs of Newman in his kitchen. In one shot, he is pouring salt on a live chicken, with this caption: "Always season poultry before cooking."

On Newman's skills as a chef extraordinaire, Nell Newman said it may be his best role so far. "He loves cooking," she said about the man she calls "papa". "It's funny; it's a recent thing. He gets very stuck on particular recipes. Like he'll eat dilled scrod for weeks and weeks."

NELL NEWMAN, an ornithology student at The College of the Atlantic in Maine, and an ace cook herself, said her legendary blue-eyed dad has her beat with the pots and pans. "He's a lot more relaxed and easy going in the kitchen than me," she admitted. "I get cranky and hysterical if things aren't ready or right, and I'll tell everyone in there to get lost."

Paul Newman may even be more of a culinary whiz than his wife, reveals their daughter. "It's a role reversal," Nell Newman said. "My mother has been working more, and he's been cooking more. Cooking gives him a chance to get out his yayas."

Being the child of an international heart throb does take its toll, she admitted. "It's not pleasant. People have a very preconceived idea of what I should be like, and it makes for a tremendous lack of privacy. After 26 years, you've had it up to the top of your eyeballs."

"It has made me into a very reclusive person; I have an unlisted phone number. So what I do is, I don't tell anybody that Paul Newman is my father, and then people get to know me for who I am first, and find out who my father is later."

Her sisters — Susan, Stephanie, Melissa and Clea Olivia — "feel the same way," said Nell Newman, who is planning to write another cookbook.

"It's a tough thing to live down," she said. "My sisters and I have this tongue-in-cheek attitude about all this. When someone finds out who we are we say, 'So and so found out who we are — who are we?'"

Entertainment Today

At the Bijou

Providence (1977). Alain Resnais, who makes movies that resemble jigsaw puzzles that are missing some of their pieces, put together this acclaimed work about a writer who doesn't know where fiction ends and reality begins.

Merry-Go-Round (1923). Royal and romantic skullduggery is at the heart of this silent film that the infamous Erich Von Stroheim started, but thanks to producer Irving Thalberg, someone else finished. A must for film buffs. At 9 p.m.

Television

On the networks: John Lennon and Yoko Ono get the TV bio-pic treatment in "John and Yoko: A Love Story" (NBC at 7 p.m.). Yoko approved of the filming which covers the time period from their first meeting until his death in 1980. Meanwhile, Sam Melville, who played Kate Jackson's TV hubby back on "The Rookies," joins the cast of "Scarecrow and Mrs. King" (CBS at 7 p.m.), playing Mr. King to her Mrs. King. And Stephanie and Joanna open up an exercise studio at the Stratford Inn on "Newhart" (CBS at 8:30 p.m.)

On cable: Ryan O'Neal and Shelley Long team up only to split up in irreconcilable Differences (Cinemax-13 at 9 a.m. & 7 p.m.), an acid comedy about one of America's favorite pastimes, divorce. The twist is that it is their daughter Drew Barrymore who is seeking to legally ditch them as parents. O'Neal and Long are in top form and the film has a sharp satirical edge towards its Hollywood setting.

Art

Ceramist Joe Zeller will present a slide show and lecture at 8 p.m. in Room E109 of the Art Building.

Undergraduate UI art student David Altens will be displaying his works throughout the week in the Checkered Space Gallery.

Readings

Poets Rodney Jones and Jorie Graham will read from their works at 8 p.m. in Van Allen Lecture Room II.

"After a while, John resented it very bitterly. That's why he gave Epstein a hard time. He blamed Epstein for the suppression. He felt very bitter about people like The Rolling Stones and other bands who would never have been able to make it without the Beatles — and they were naughtier than the Beatles were."

"JOHN WAS always a rock-and-roller and he liked the violence, the barroom brawl."

Another reason for Lennon's bitterness, McGann said, was that he lost control of his group. "He was very much a leader but it became too big for him alone. He was always anti-establishment and he was always against being regimented."

The film "John and Yoko" begins when Lennon, unhappy after the Beatles' 1966 American tour, meets artist Yoko Ono.

"They met when he saw an exhibit of her avant-garde work," McGann said. "It is very much a love story, an incredible love story. It goes through all their vicissitudes — the immigration battles, the Beatles' breakup, his 15 months away from her."

"It could have been romanticized. It could have been very shocking. It's none of those things. It's a very honest, very down-to-earth film and a real eye-opener for anybody who thought they knew everything about John Lennon and Yoko Ono because it is very intimate. I would like this to be the definitive film about their relationship."
