Israelis, U.S. hold talks over spy case

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israeli Cabinet minister Moshe Arens returned to Israel Sunday after a secret trip to Washington to discuss the Pollard spy case with U.S. officials, Israel radio said.

Prime Minister Shimon Peres sent Arens on the unpublicized mission to discuss the case of an American computer analyst accused of spying for Israel, the radio report said.

Arens is a member of the right-wing Likud party and minister without portfolio in Israel's coalition government. Israel radio did not say whom Arens met with in Washington or how long he was there.

Arens was expected to brief Peres and Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir later Sunday on his talks with U.S. officials, the radio said.

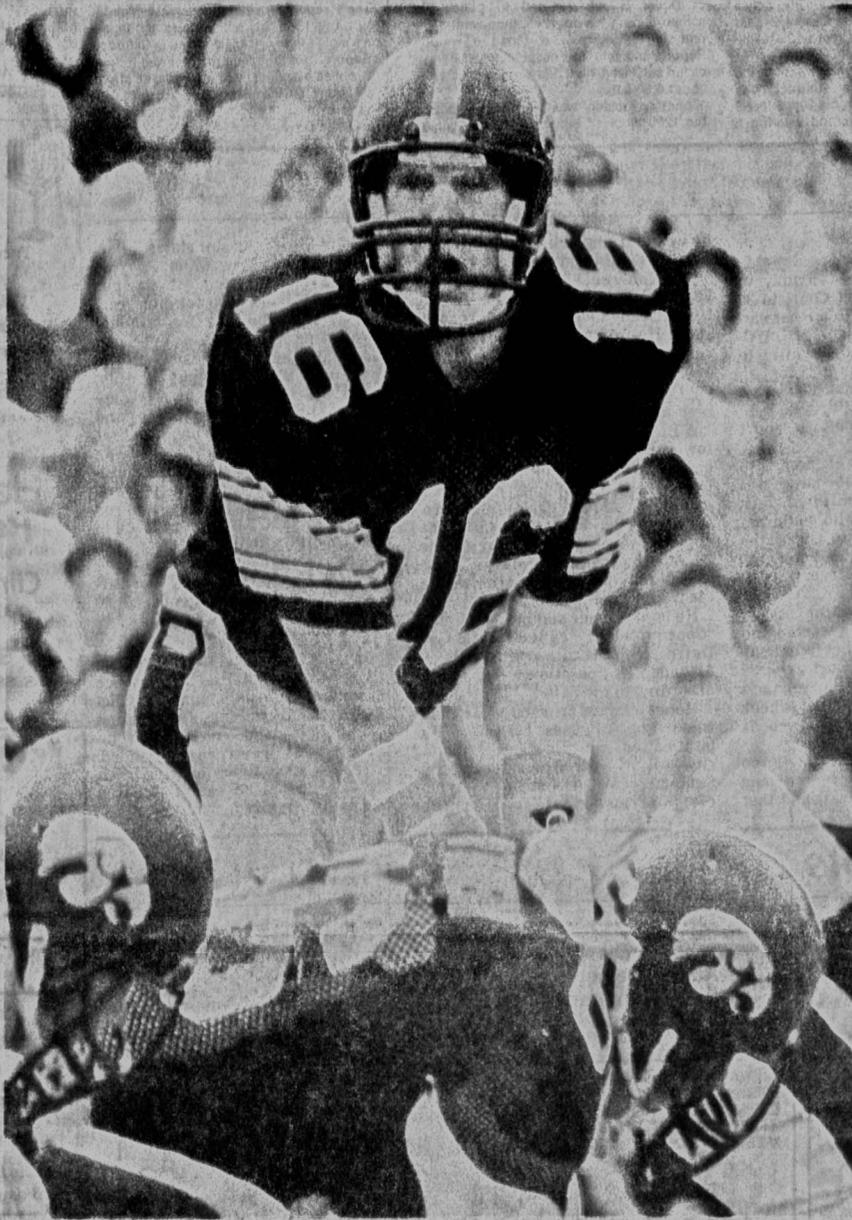

THE RADIO said Ram Caspi, a prominent Tel Aviv attorney serving as the government's counsel in the spy case, also met with U.S. officials over the weekend.

Jonathan Jay Pollard, a civilian Navy intelligence analyst, was arrested in Washington Nov. 21 on charges of selling secrets to Israel, straining relations between the United States and its closest Middle East ally.

His wife, Anne Henderson-Pollard, has been charged with possession of unauthorized classified information in connection with the case.

On Dec. 1, Israel apologized for the spying "to the extent it did take place," saying it would punish anyone found guilty of such activity and dismantle the secret unit accused of directing the operation.

Iowa quarterback Chuck Long finished second to Auburn running back Bo Jackson in the Heisman Trophy voting Saturday. Jackson edged Long by 45 points in the closest vote in the history of the award.

Long gives Jackson run for Heisman

By Melissa Rapoport
Sports Editor

NEW YORK — On his long road to glory, the Iowa quarterback continued to set records Saturday night at the Downtown Athletic Club in New York, becoming runner-up in the closest race in the history of the Heisman Memorial Trophy Award.

Auburn tailback Bo Jackson led balloting with 1,509 points, followed by Chuck Long with 1,464. More than 1,000 points behind Long, Brigham Young quarterback Robbie Bosco finished third.

Sports journalists and past Heisman winners vote to decide who will be named the nation's top college football player.

"I'm honored I was so close," said Long, who placed seventh in the Heisman running last year. "I never expected to win it. You know, I never expected to be invited out here. I was happy to be invited — it's been kind of fun out here."

Long rejected a possible lucrative professional contract to stay with the Hawkeyes an extra year. When he announced his decision last February, Long said the lure of the Heisman played a lesser role than the temptation of a return trip to the Rose Bowl.

IOWA COACH Hayden Fry expressed no disappointment in Long's second-place finish. "I feel sorry for all the young athletes across America that weren't here and probably deserve to be here," Fry said. "At least Chuck had the great opportunity to be associated with the Heisman."

"Chuck Long's the kind of guy that will never break stride," Fry added. "He's like that on the football field; if he throws an interception or takes a loss he shakes it off and on the next play tries to win."

UI President James O. Freedman was pleased Long did as well as he did in the voting. "The UI is very proud that Chuck Long is runner-up for the Heisman Trophy for 1985. His exemplary leadership has brought credit to the university, and I congratulate Chuck, his family, his teammates and Coach Fry."

20-foot evergreen falls in heist attempt

By Julie Eisele
Staff Writer

Three UI students could learn an expensive lesson after a search for a Christmas tree Friday led them — equipped with a saw — into the yard of an Iowa City family.

The three males cut down a 20-foot evergreen but were caught in the act before they could cart the tree away. Iowa City police, who did not identify the students, said the three will pay the cost of replacing the tree instead of facing criminal charges.

But the three may end up shelling out enough money for the fallen tree to have purchased about 20 Christmas trees.

"It's going to be a lot stiffer than I anticipate, but that's the price one pays for stupid pranks," said Harold Peters, 12 Bella Vista Place, owner of the tree.

PAUL DYKSTRA, owner of Iowa City Landscaping, 705 Highway 1 West, said evergreen trees often cost about $25 per foot, which could grow into a price tag of about $500 for replacing the Peters' tree.

The tree will probably have to be replaced with a younger tree — about 10 or 12 feet tall — likely to cost more than $300, Dykstra said.

Bryon Helt, supervisor at Pleasant Valley Orchards and Nursery, Inc., 1301 S. Gilbert St., estimated costs between $600 and $800.

"It's hard to determine what a tree is worth," he said. It would be more expensive if the Peters family wants the new tree planted in the same location because the roots of the old tree would have to be removed, he said.

"We were shocked and disappointed," Peters said. "What we will expect is sufficient money to pay a nursery to come in and replace the tree with something equivalent."

THE THREE WERE observed at the scene about 3 p.m. Friday when Ellie Peters returned home. One of the men allegedly shouted, "Look out, someone's coming." The three fled the scene in a car, leaving the tree on the roadside.

Ellie Peters and another motorist spotted the car's license plate number and police later contacted the men.

Iowa City police officials said they have received similar reports in past holiday seasons.

Helt said, "It happens about a half dozen times around this time of year." He recalled a similar incident that occurred about three years ago at Regina High School, which he said cost the high school students involved about $3,000.

Some nurseries sell a repellent to be sprayed on trees that emits a skunk-like odor once the tree is taken indoors.

"I guess people figure, 'If we can't get them one way, we'll get them another,'" Helt said.

Some boo downtown tunes

By Gretchen Norman
Staff Writer

Christmas is in the air in downtown Iowa City, due to the Downtown Association, but not all pedestrians are lending a receptive ear to it.

The association began a tradition of piping Christmas music into the pedestrian plaza on Nov. 24, and will continue to broadcast the music from the Holiday Inn every day until Christmas. The music is turned off at night.

"It's never been done because we've never had a facility like the Holiday Inn," Barbara Waters, chairwoman of the Iowa City Christmas Kickoff, said. "I don't think anyone is offended by Christmas music. It puts people in a positive frame of mind."

But some Iowa City residents say "Bah, humbug," to the carols.

"IT KIND OF reminds me of hell, like being stuck in an... elevator," said John Barchite, 1132 E. Washington St., who walks by it two or three times a week. "It's kind of pornographic."

Gretchen Schmuch, 709 S. Dubuque St., said, "I find it really intrusive. The rest of the Christmas things downtown are nice but the music drives me nuts."

People who work in the area said they have received few complaints from customers.

"I had some complaints at first because they had it too loud," Holiday Inn reservationist Lisa Barnes said. "I haven't heard much of anything else."

One speaker is located on the balcony of the Holiday Inn and the equipment — donated by Bob Woodburn, owner of Woodburn Sound Service, 400 Highland Court, — is located in the Holiday Inn's Nautilus Center.

"I don't think the volume is loud enough to bother people," Waters said.

ONLY ONE customer has commented about the music to Sabine Myers, an employee of Technographics Inc. located across the plaza from the Holiday Inn at

Graphic by Gregory McCallum

Plaza Centre One. "He was going to cut the wires," she said.

Although every fourth song played is not a Christmas carol, the music "creates a Christmas mood and seems old-fashioned," said Mary Jane Hallerud, 716 E. Burlington St., who walks by it every day.

Some people said the music — which is selected from tapes in the Nautilus Center — may even help increase sales in the area.

"It gets people in a shopping mood and will boost the Iowa City economy," Scott Lehman, 902 Wyld Green Road, said.

KEVIN GROTHE, a UI public relations student from Hills, said he walks by the music every day, and "it's a good public relations gesture to get people into the Christmas spirit." He added the Holiday Inn is a good location for the music because of the high traffic in the area.

"They need to play something soft, something soothing to the ear," he said. "It's okay, but they could choose something a little smoother."

Paul Muller works at Circus Time Popcorn stand near the speaker and said no one has complained to him about the music.

"I don't think it's obtrusive and think it's good Christmas music," Muller said. "It doesn't bother me."

Waters said the association will probably sponsor the music again next year because she will be in charge of the Christmas kickoff.

East-West spy swap reported

HAMBURG, West Germany — East and West Germany swapped three jailed spies in a deal kept secret to protect a planned East-West exchange involving British and U.S. spies, the newspaper Bild reported in its Monday edition.

A senior West German government official was quoted by Bild as saying the swap between the two countries was kept secret to protect a larger East-West exchange involving U.S. and British agents that is still in the planning stage. Bild said "up to 12 agents of the United States, England and West Germany will be swapped for an unknown number of Eastern spies serving long terms of imprisonment in the West."

Polish environment studied

WARSAW, Poland — Poland suffers from the worst environmental pollution in the world and 12 million of its people live on the "verge of ecological catastrophe," a Communist Party report contended Sunday.

"The threat to the environment in Poland is believed to be the greatest in the world," said the 350-page study, drafted by ecology experts of the Academy of Social Sciences at party headquarters. Government spokesman Jerzy Urban has denied Poland's environmental problems are worse than other European nations, but the report said "society should be informed by the government of the true situation."

Financing sought for Globe

ST. LOUIS — Jeffrey Gluck, publisher of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, continued to search for investors even though the newspaper has suspended operations indefinitely.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge David McDonald announced Friday he would appoint a trustee to manage the newspaper, prompting Gluck's main source of financing, Citicorp Industrial Credit, Inc., to cut off funds. The trustee, who could be named as early as Monday, is to determine whether the newspaper should be reorganized or liquidated. Friday's morning edition was the last published.

Catholic catechism planned

VATICAN CITY — Pope John Paul II Sunday celebrated a mass officially closing the worldwide synod of bishops, who requested a definitive catechism to keep Roman Catholics in line and a study of power sharing.

The catechism — a compendium of church doctrine expected to be drawn up in Rome — will attempt to set the doctrinal record straight for the world's 840 million Catholics. The new catechism will give church authorities a concrete way of combating doctrinal confusion. But it also will serve to keep church members from picking and choosing which doctrines they want to believe — a sort of "selective Catholicism" that has blossomed in the last 20 years.

Mime Marceau hospitalized

MOSCOW — French mime Marcel Marceau collapsed and underwent intestinal surgery at a Moscow hospital where he was listed in serious condition in an intensive care unit, French and Soviet sources said Sunday.

Marceau, 62, on a concert tour of the Soviet Union collapsed in pain "in private" Friday and was rushed to Botkin Hospital where he had an intestinal operation Saturday, a French diplomat said. A nurse at the hospital said Marceau was in serious condition in intensive care but gave no other details. Marceau was expected to remain in the elite hospital for foreigners until the middle or end of the week, when he would be flown back to Paris, the diplomat said.

Elderly woman victim of swindle

By Julie Eisele
 Staff Writer

An elderly Iowa City woman was swindled out of more than $300 last week by a man who offered plumbing and electrical services and requested money in advance, according to Iowa City police reports.

An employee of Johnson County Elderly Services Agency, 28 S. Linn St., reported the incident to police about 11:30 a.m. Friday.

"She wrote a check to him in advance for services he was going to render for electrical and plumbing work and after looking around inside the house, he left," the report stated.

The check was written in the amount of $318. Police detectives are investigating the incident.

Assault report: A bus driver for the Iowa City Transit System told Iowa City police Friday he was assaulted by a passenger near the intersection of Arthur Street and Muscatine Avenue.

Police reports did not state whether the victim was injured. The suspect was described as a white male in his 20s, 5 feet 9 inches tall with brown hair and wearing a jacket and blue jeans with a large buckle and a chain on the left side of his pants.

Police were unable to locate a suspect.

One incident was reported by a resident in the 600 block of South Johnson Street late Friday. A woman reported to police a subject was attempting to enter her home just before midnight, according to reports. Entry was not gained and police located no suspect.

On Saturday, a resident in the 1700 block of Dover Street reported to police that someone rang his doorbell, then went to the rear of his home and broke a window. Reports indicate the suspect fled after the caller surprised him. The incident occurred about 6:30 a.m.

Another incident was reported Thursday in the 1200 block of Sandusky Avenue when a proowler attempted to enter a home shortly after 7 p.m.

Theft report: Jim Eash, 2105 Grantwood Drive, reported to Iowa City police Friday the theft of $800 in silver from his residence.

Burglary report: Boyd Crosby, 2224 Aber Ave., told Iowa City police his garage and shop area were burglarized late last week. Police reports did not indicate what was stolen.

Report: A Coralville woman told Iowa City police she received three calls Saturday from an individual soliciting donations for the Iowa City Police Department. Police officials told the woman the calls were a prank.

Theft report: Susan Rubes, 218 Melrose Court, told Iowa City police a keg and taper were stolen from her residence late Saturday.

Report: An area motorist reported to Iowa City police his windshield was cracked after it was struck by ice. Reports indicate the ice was thrown at the vehicle as it traveled on Brookside Drive.

Courts

A man was sentenced Friday in Johnson County District Court to 30 days in jail for assault in a local bar.

Lawrence Joseph Rogers, 25, Williamsburg, Iowa, pleaded guilty to assault with bodily injury for an altercation with a woman last April in The Kittyhawk Bar, 800 S. Dubuque St., according to court records.

Rogers was originally charged with willful injury, but the charge was amended after depositions were taken from witnesses who could not confirm he intended to harm the woman, according to a sentencing memorandum filed by Rogers' attorneys.

The original complaint stated Rogers quarreled with a woman and threw a glass mug at her after she hid behind the bar, court records state. The left side of the woman's face was lacerated and her cheek bone was broken, court records state.

But the memorandum states no one could identify where the mug went when Rogers threw it and that he wasn't trying to injure the woman.

Rogers will be allowed to serve the 30 days on weekends during the next year and was given credit for time he has already served, court records state. He was also ordered to make restitution to the woman and to Johnson County for his prosecution, court records state.

A Dubuque man is suing The Daily Iowan for using his name in the police section of an issue of the paper.

John W. Moore, Dubuque, Iowa, states in the suit that his name appeared in the Nov. 6 issue of The DI. Moore alleges printing his name was unfair and an infringement on his trade name J. Moore.

He is the owner and publisher of a "Concept-Sheet" called "J. Moore Definitive's Ltd.," which has extended its operation in Iowa City, according to the suit.

Moore claims he should be paid when The DI uses his name in publication. He alleges DI University Editor Kirk Brown signed in September an agreement for financial arrangements with the Concept-Sheet, the suit states.

The police story which carried Moore's name stated UI Campus Security officers escorted him from the UI Law Building for criminal trespassing. Moore's Concept-Sheet also states he was arrested on two prior occasions by Campus Security.

The suit also names the newspaper's publisher, William Casey, and its parent corporation, Student Publications Inc.

Moore asks in his injunction application for $5,200 from the publications board for the infringement on his trade name. Casey has refused to pay, according to the suit.

The criminal violation of a trade name is a simple misdemeanor carrying a maximum sentence of 30 days in jail and a $100 fine.

James John Eggers, 26, Tiffin, Iowa, made an initial appearance Friday in Johnson County District Court on the charges of possession of marijuana and operating a vehicle while his license was suspended.

Eggers' preliminary hearing is set for Dec. 20 and he was released on his own recognizance.

Pro-lifers reprove UI clinic's 'political stance'

By Earl Johnston III
Staff Writer

Igloo freezing temperatures, about 15 pro-life advocates picketed outside UI Hospitals abortion clinic Friday to draw attention to "the blood that is on the university's hands."

According to hospital records, nearly 400 abortions were performed at the UI Special Gynecology Clinic in the Westlawn building during a four-month period earlier this year.

UI Right to Life spokesman Tim Ganske said that by performing abortions, the UI is committing "nothing less than infanticide" and is expressing its biases concerning certain moral, ethical and religious responsibilities.

Ganske also said the UI is breaching what ought to be its politically neutral stance by making the operation available.

"Abortion has become the foremost political issue today," Ganske said. "We have candidates at both the state and federal levels running under pro-life or pro-choice labels.

"We believe that by opening its doors and providing this service, the university is taking a definite stand on the pro-choice side," Ganske said.

FOLLOWING FRIDAY'S protest, UI Hospitals officials denied that performing abortions is a political statement and said they would continue the practice.

"This is the practice of medicine — don't accuse the medical function of making a political statement," said Frank Zlatnik, vice chairman of the UI Obstetrics and Gynecology Department.

"I see it as an insult that someone would say we're making any kind of political statement."

Zlatnik said the Special Gynecology Clinic is similar to other hospital clinics that provide patients with a medical service.

He explained that when an abortion is performed at UI Hospitals it "takes patient between the doctor and the patient and is confidential in that sense. This would be the case for any other service offered here."

The UI Right to Life Organization, with about 50 members, has led the fight against abortions for about seven years both on campus and at other local clinics, including the Emma Goldman Clinic.

Kevin Ross, UI Right to Life member, said that although many people are silent on the issue of abortion, most "reasonable people, at heart, realize its true wickedness."

"I think it's a shame that university finances are going toward what many people are morally opposed to," Ross said.

BUT ACCORDING to UI Hospitals Information Director Dean Borg, the UI is prohibited by law to use state-appropriated funds for the operations.

"The patient who requests the finances also arranges for the personal resources or insurance, Borg said. He added that the price of an abortion varies depending on the procedure.

In addition, Ross said that "ultra left-wingers" who adamantly support pro-choice often support, or are members of, such groups as the UI Gay and Lesbian Association.

"I know this is a generalization, but I think it's an accurate one," Ross said.

Commenting on Friday's intemperate weather, Ross said, "That's the difference between us and the ultra left-wing camp; we care enough to come out here and protest when it's really cold."

Iowa students make the grade on Basic Skills

By Jerry Duncan
Staff Writer

In the midst of concern about the quality of Iowa education, public school students have been scoring steadily higher on the Iowa Test of Basic Skills since the mid-1970s, said a UI author of the test.

"Kids are doing better. We've got to tell people that," said H.A. Hoover, statistics professor in the UI Testing Program, at a conference of the Institute for School Executives in Iowa City Friday.

In fact, up to the sixth grade, basic skill scores are the highest in the history of the state, he said, with the exception of math and reading comprehension test scores, which are still slightly below the peak point in the mid-1960s.

Students got "bogged down" in computational mathematics, but there has been a turnaround during the past five years because of newer text books that emphasize back-to-basics, he said.

Comparing Iowa basic skills scores with national skills test scores shows a virtual mirroring, demonstrating that similar testing factors affect other states, he said.

IOWA SKILLS tests such as the basic skills and the Iowa Test of Educational Development are unique in the United States because school districts have the option to use them and they are not mandated by the Iowa Department of Public Instruction, Hoover said.

Recent newspaper articles reporting that students in large schools score better than those in small schools are an example of how testing and test scores can be misinterpreted by lay people, Hoover said.

"Those tests are voluntary. That makes a big difference," he said, because not every school is included in the sample and generalizations can be inaccurate.

Skills tests are not reasonable to use as an "end-all" in curriculum evaluation, said Robert Forsyth, UI professor in the Iowa Testing Program, but "they are an important part of it."

Feedback to parents, teachers and the student on scores and how to interpret them can aid in raising individual scores, Hoover said.

UI student finds his claim to fame decorating residence hall doors

By Kent Schuelke
Staff Writer

Nearly 500 years ago Michelangelo received 500 ducats to paint Jesus Christ on the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel.

Following in this tradition, Mitch Galane has received $140 this fall for drawing the likenesses of Rambo, Jim Morrison, Rob Lowe and other modern-day idols on students' doors in UI Residence Halls.

Galane, a UI freshman, has drawn the images of rock 'n' roll and film stars on 14 doors in the UI halls.

"I'm not so much an artist as I am a reproducer," Galane said.

Galane's door sketching career began in August when he was living in temporary housing at the Burge Residence Hall. A roommate noticed Galane drawing in a sketch book and asked him to pencil something on the door of the lounge where they were living to enhance its decor.

Mitch Galane puts the finishing touches on a drawing of Jimi Hendrix. Galane, a UI freshman has made a sideline of sketching on dorm doors.

AFTER GALANE'S rendering of Jim Morrison debuted on the lounge door, requests began coming in from other residents who wanted him to personalize their doors.

Rick Dau said he and his roommates decided Clint Eastwood was a natural choice to police the entrance to their room.

"We wanted a tough character on the door to show that we weren't about to be messed with — us three roommates," said Dau, a UI freshman.

THE CRITICS on fifth floor Burge appear impressed with Galane's hall gallery.

"It's pretty good. I could never do it — the shading, the expression," said John Erickson, who hired Galane to draw an image of rock star Jimi Hendrix on his door. "It's something to be able to take a pencil and be able to make something that is almost lifelike."

"People go by and say that's really cool," Dan Emmerson said about the drawing on his door of guitarist Pete Townshend. He added it was his roommate who chose to have the Townshend put on the door.

"He's a big Who fan, so my roommate, the fanatic, wanted Pete," Emmerson said. "If I had my way it would be Marilyn (Monroe)."

GALANE, A FILM major, likes to draw his favorite movie characters on the doors, adding each door takes about two hours to finish.

But Galane also said students have requested him to draw some bizzare subjects.

"The weirdest I've had is someone who wanted me to draw a two-headed unicorn," Galane said, adding he also started but never finished a drawing of a Playboy centerfold.

Galane said his work has also been used to a foster romance.

UI freshman Steve Johnson hired Galane to draw a picture of his girlfriend to surprise her when she came from Illinois for a visit. The drawing's premiere attracted the curiosity of most of the fifth floor, Galane said.

"He had it taped up in paper and he did an unveiling," Galane said, adding the girlfriend was embarrassed by the fuss. "But she liked it; she said it looked like her."

GALANE SAID that he has been commissioned by UI Residence Services to muralize the fifth floor hallway, part of an experimental plan to showcase the work of budding student artists.

"I think it's excellent, the work I've seen is well done," George Droll, UI Residence Services Director, said. "There's a lot of attention to detail. It looks very professionally done."

The drawings don't do any mentionable damage to the doors, UI Residence Services Assistant Director Wayne Graeve said. But students have to pay to repaint their door if they are unable to erase the artwork.

Galane also said his work has helped him adjust to college life.

"It gets me known," the UI freshman said.

Local coalition applauds tax plan

Jim Sprague
Staff Writer

While local government leaders have voiced strong opposition to Gov. Terry Branstad's proposed property tax freeze, rural tax protest groups consider the proposal an early victory.

Bob Arn, chairman of the Johnson County Rural Iowa Property Taxpayers, said he personally supports the governor's action although his group has not taken a formal position. Arn said it would give the taxpayers' group something specific to lobby for in the Iowa Legislature.

Arn said his endorsement of Branstad's proposal is not a popular reaction, however. "I'm going to make people angry in Iowa City," he said.

The taxpayers' group was formed earlier this year in reaction to a 9 percent increase in property tax evaluation for farmland and it has been active in lobbying local governments for property tax relief. The Johnson County group recently demanded that the Johnson County Board of Supervisors cut back its budget 9 percent.

THE GOVERNOR'S plan to freeze the taxes will not greatly affect the county's budget because of a self-imposed budget freeze for Johnson County next year, said Dennis Langenberg, chairman of the county Board of Supervisors.

But the supervisors are unhappy with having the decisions made for them at the state level.

"He's way out of line," Langenberg said in reaction to Branstad's proposal. "We're locally elected officials. He should leave it up to the local officials."

Jim Buline, a member of the taxpayers' group, said he was not surprised by the reaction of county officials and can understand their opposition to the governor's plan. His one concern is "state government coming down and putting their finger in the county's" business, he said.

CITY AND SCHOOL officials who had planned on increased property tax collections have also been stranded by the proposal.

Neal Berlin, Iowa City manager, said a second city budget would have to be prepared with recommendations for the areas to be cut. Berlin said the city would be short $1 million to $1.4 million if it can't collect a planned 6 percent increase in property taxes.

David Cronin, superintendent for Iowa City Schools, said salary increases negotiated in workers' contracts before the governor's plan was unveiled will force school costs to rise. Because the school budget is 80 percent payroll, the district must lay off employees to meet budget demands without a budget increase, he said.

Tax proposal lambasted as 'irresponsible'

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Gov. Terry Branstad's call for a freeze on property taxes is an irresponsible way to shift the state's money woes onto the backs of local governments, Senate Majority Leader Bill Hutchins said.

As part of his state reorganization plan, Branstad has recommended the legislature freeze property tax budgets of city and county governments.

"In addition to this major restructuring and downsizing, I am recommending that we freeze state spending at present levels. This action freezing state budgets should not be an excuse for a property tax increase," Branstad said earlier this week.

"While the state will make good on its commitment to restore the impact of the (3.85 percent) across-the-board cut on local governments, those governments should review their own operations and restructure and downsize as we are doing at the state level," he said.

Hutchins, D-Audubon, said the general public backs the property tax freeze because they think it will save them money.

But he said city and county officials are upset about it because it is likely to result in a reduction of local government services. He said they also oppose it on the basis they will lose their power to make local decisions at the local level.

"There is a lot of political support for a hard freeze, but I don't think it is good government," Hutchins said.

House minority leader Del Stromer, R-Garner, said a property tax freeze doesn't have much to do with reorganization, but he agrees it is politically popular. He sent a letter to Branstad aides Friday asking for more details on the freeze.

OPEC ministers predict price war

tel's remaining share of world markets.

This would be done by having a production floor instead of a ceiling with OPEC members permitted to sell as much oil as they can at the best price obtainable on the free market.

"OPEC IS GOING into a new phase," Otaiba told reporters Sunday evening on the second day of the year-end meeting of the 13-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

"A $20 level would naturally have effects but it would not be devastating for OPEC," he said.

The ministers, who ruled out any agreement on a new pricing strategy, met Sunday in Yamani's suite. A third day of talks was scheduled for Monday in the seventh OPEC meeting in 12 months.

Before the session, ministers told reporters the central issue under discussion was the protection of OPEC's remaining share of world markets. OPEC presently controls about one-third of the free world market, as opposed to a two-thirds share in its heyday in the late 1970s.

As a net importer of oil, the United States would not be so deeply embroiled in any price war.

Toxic gas leak in Japan injures 28, hospitalizes 5

TOKYO (UPI) — Clouds of toxic gas spewed from a leak in a factory storage tank early Sunday, engulfing a residential neighborhood in western Japan and injuring at least 28 people, police said.

Police said the leak of gasified hydrochloric acid originated in the Sanwa Electrical Appliance Works in Osaka, about 125 miles west of Tokyo, but it was not clear exactly when and how the leak began.

"I didn't hear any alarm bells or anything, but I awoke with a choking sensation in my throat," one resident told the Kyodo news service.

"I saw a cloud of gas floating all around, and then I fainted," said one unidentified 16-year-old girl, interviewed by television reporters at her hospital bed.

Of the 28 injured, only five people were hospitalized, police said.

"But the official number of injured will probably rise," a police spokesman said. "We've already heard of one hospital in the neighborhood that had 50 to 60 people in its emergency room."

Most of the victims complained of sore throats caused by the leaking gas.

Hydrochloric acid, a compound commonly used in petroleum production, and by foundries and electrical appliance manufacturers, is highly toxic.

Filipino presidential race widens

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — A split between top opposition politicians that threatened to undermine an election challenge to President Ferdinand Marcos widened Sunday with a third party considering fielding a separate candidate.

Former Sen. Eva Estrada Kalaw, who withdrew from the race Saturday citing the need for opposition unity, said she was calling a meeting of her faction of the Liberal Party to review a possible candidacy.

Kalaw said she considered the race wide open, and there were indications that former Sen. Jovito Salonga, head of a larger faction of the Liberal Party, was also studying the possibility of a candidacy.

The renewed interest in the campaign followed former Sen. Salvador Laurel's announcement earlier Sunday that he would run against Marcos in the elections, scheduled for Feb. 7.

Salvador Laurel raises his hands in a gesture of victory after announcing Sunday he will run for president in Philippines' Feb. 7 election.

LAUREL'S DECISION, which dashed hopes for a unified challenge to Marcos, came after talks about a united ticket with the other declared candidate, Corazon Aquino, broke down because the two candidates could not agree on which party banner to campaign under.

Corazon Aquino, wife of slain opposition leader Benigno Aquino and regarded as the opposition's best hope of ousting Marcos, had asked Laurel, 57, to run as her vice presidential candidate.

Laurel, who heads the largest coalition of anti-Marcos forces, said he refused because Aquino — "for undisclosed reasons" — was unwilling to run as a candidate for the United Nationalist Democratic Organization, or UNIDO.

"This sudden and unexpected refusal on her part to run as UNIDO candidate leaves me no choice but to decline her offer to run as her vice president," Laurel said, adding he would file his candidacy for the presidency Monday.

LAUREL SAID Aquino was welcome to "join me as my vice presidential running mate."

At a news conference, Aquino, 52, leader of the Laban Ng Bayan Party, said she had proposed a coalition — the UNIDO-Laban — but Laurel refused.

PERES, leader of the Labor party, accused Arens of masterminding the Israeli spying on the United States, charging the Pollard affair began during Arens' term as defense minister. But Israeli news media, including state-run television, have reported the spying might have begun 10 years ago during Peres' term as defense minister.

Israel has reportedly given a U.S. investigative team permission to question three Israeli officials — Rafael Eitan, a former senior official in the Israeli intelligence agency Mossad, and two diplomats who returned home from Washington almost immediately after Pollard's arrest.

ON SATURDAY, a key Israeli legislator close to Peres, Simcha Dinitz, said the U.S. officials may be allowed to question other Israelis as well.

Israel has waived diplomatic immunity for the two diplomats — Yosef Yagur and Ilan Ravid, science attaches based in Washington and New York. Diplomatic immunity protects diplomats from criminal prosecution while in a foreign country.

The American investigative team is to arrive in Israel to begin the questioning within two days, Israel radio said Sunday.

High-ranking Foreign Ministry official Hanan Bar-On was named liaison with the U.S. team, which will include officials from the State and Justice departments and the FBI.

Long

leading up to the 5 p.m. Iowa-time announcement was nerve-racking.

"Every paper I read had something on it," the Wheaton, Ill., native said. "I just wanted to get it over with and relieve the pressure a little bit. The last hour (during NBC's television presentation) was worse than a football game. I'll tell you, it was worse than the Michigan game this year. It was a long TV show. It seemed like two hours."

Jackson was experiencing the same emotions.

"I've been thinking about this all day," Jackson said. "I didn't know if it was going my way or to Chuck Long.

"The people in the second row probably heard my heartbeat. It was the first time I've really been nervous," Jackson said.

Long was pleased the balloting proved to be so close. "I'm proud it was the closest race . . . It's a heck of a lot better being second than not being in the race at all."

The second closest race was in 1961 when Ernie Davis of Syracuse University won the Heisman with 824 points and Bob Ferguson of Ohio State University was runner-up with 771 points.

JACKSON, AS a three-time All-American, ran for 1,815 yards during the 1985 season. He averaged 6.4 yards for his 278 attempts. Holding virtually all of Auburn's offensive records, Jackson has gained a career total 4,303 yards in 38 games averaging 113.2 yards per game.

Jackson's sparkling football career is enhanced by his track and baseball accomplishments as well. In his two-year track career, he lettered twice and qualified for the NCAA meet in the 60-yard dash both years.

The McCalla, Ala., native, however, is as distinguished a baseball player as he is an Auburn football star. As a senior in high school, Jackson turned down a multi-year contract with the New York Yankees to play football with Auburn.

"I'm the eighth of ten kids and I'll be the first to graduate from college," Jackson said. "I wanted to start a trend in my family. I wanted to be the first in my family to go to a major college and graduate . . . I can fall back on my degree."

As a centerfielder last season, Jackson batted .401 with 17 home-runs and 43 RBI. He led the Tigers in runs scored (55), yet Jackson said, "In baseball, I would say I'm average."

His football coach Pat Dye said, "You folks don't have any conception of what talent this guy has."

UPON GRADUATION, Jackson said he has not decided which professional sport he will pursue, and doubts the Heisman Trophy will affect his decision. "If I play football after I leave Auburn, it's because I want to," he said. "The same goes with baseball."

After losing the Heisman Trophy by a 45-point margin, Long said he didn't know what determining factors qualified Jackson as the best candidate. "Bo Jackson had really good years at Auburn," Long said. "Watching him on films and everything, he's a great athlete. It's hard to answer that question — what they decided on. He rolled up some good statistics this year.

"I'm really not sure what the difference was. I thought it would be close and I kind of thought he would come out the winner anyway," Long said.

"I just said good luck to (Jackson)," Long said. "He's a class guy and he's a nice guy — he really is."

"I DON'T THINK anyone could say anything negative about losing to a guy like Bo Jackson," Fry said. "He's a phenomenal football player."

Dye, however, said he would have taken the blame if Jackson had lost. "It would have been a tremendous disappointment because I would have felt like I did not do my job," he said.

Now that the pressure created by the Heisman Trophy has passed, Long said he will concentrate on the future. "First we have to go out to Pasadena and do something out there," Long said. "After that I'm going to play in the Japan Bowl. I'll get ready for the (National Football League) draft; the draft is a long way away so I'm not going to worry about that now. I'm going to try to take it one step at a time.

"Everything's happening so fast. And it seems like everything happened in the course of two weeks. It really hasn't hit me yet. It really hasn't hit me that we're going out to the Rose Bowl yet until we get there."

Bah, hubbub

Piping carols into the downtown Iowa City walking mall must be the ultimate crime against Christmas.

The first aggravation is that this noise invasion started before Thanksgiving. Holidays are special largely because of their brevity; allowing the tunes of the season to drone on for more than a month transforms the special into the ordinary.

The second aggravation is that the songs being broadcast in the plaza reach far beyond the traditional Christmas fare. Julio Iglesias' "To All the Girls I've Loved Before" conjurs up an image very different from sugarplums and jingle bells. Only three of every four selections is a Christmas carol, presumably so the tinny attack isn't waged solely against yuletide favorites.

The Downtown Association, along with its accomplice, the Holiday Inn, has turned the walking mall into a giant elevator. They have welded their mighty Muzak, and struck down the true spirit of Christmas.

Mayor John McDonald's lighting of the community tree was a nice way to signal the beginning of the season, but please stop the music.

Speech coach

Dear Hayden Fry:
We have a complaint.

Oh, we think it's neat that you've done such a swell job turning the Iowa football program around, and we're rosy cheeked at the thought of going to another bowl game.

You see, football is very important to Iowans and having a "mighty fine ball club" is especially important during these tough economic times. We're told it gives us poor, depressed Iowans "something to cheer about."

No, it's not the team that we'd like to register our complaint against. It's you.

Coach Fry, surely you must realize you are a god by sports fans' standards. You are probably the most well-known Iowan around... But you're not really an Iowan.

In recent years, Iowa has been virtually unheard of on the national sports scene. Now that we've got millions of viewers from across the country watching your every move, you insist on mispronouncing your own team's name. It's Hawkeyes, not Hawgeyes!

But it doesn't stop there. Mr. Fry, sir, you're in Iowa now — not Ah-wa. And the next time you're interviewed about this beloved Hawkeye state, don't say "Why, in Ah-wa y'all would hafta drive a hundred miles before you'd even come to a stoplight."

You've done a great deal to promote Iowa, Coach Fry, but before you draw your next cliché-filled sentence please remember: When in Iowa, do as the Iowans.

Sincerely,

Mary Boone

No room at the inn

For most, the holiday season holds a childlike innocence and appreciation bundled up in brightly wrapped packages, the aroma of wassail and cookies warm from the oven and the togetherness of the family gathered around the tree. 'Tis the season to be jolly...

And lest we become too overwhelmed with the materialism of Christmas, displays such as the creche are set up each year to remind shoppers why they are celebrating.

The creche, we are told, symbolizes the Christian tradition, the spirit of sharing and caring included in so much of the season's folklore and so often overlooked in this increasingly material world.

In this spirit, the Community for Creative Non-Violence, a Washington group that seeks food and shelter for the poor, submitted a nativity scene reminding the public that for many, the season doesn't mean bulging waistlines from holiday gorging, going home for the holidays or dreaming of a white Christmas. For many of the nation's poor, a white Christmas simply means the park bench or cardboard box they call home is that much more uncomfortable.

The Community for Creative Non-Violence has filed a lawsuit against Secretary of the Interior Donald P. Hodel and the National Park Service after the park service refused to place a nativity scene depicting a man, woman and child on a heating grate next to the traditional Christmas display set up near the White House. The inscription on the proposed scene was to read, ironically, "A still there is no room at the inn."

The proposal was rejected, said a park official, because it is a "statement on a political issue now the subject of great controversy" and "not a traditional symbol of Christmas."

And quite an uncomfortable symbol, at that. "Does the government seek to exclude from the 'national celebration' of Christmas symbols of concern for the poor and homeless by categorizing them as 'controversial' and not 'traditional'?" the Community for Creative Non-Violence questions in its lawsuit.

Well, yes, but no one should be surprised that human compassion has been excluded from the government's definition of traditional Christmas values. Sadly, this censorship is merely one small example of the "see-no-evil" attitude prevalent in society today.

Conservation keeps cold out

By Mary Tabor
Editor

UTILITY BILLS never bear good tidings. And those consumers who just ripped open November's tally discovered that this billing period marked a 28 percent drop in outside temperatures from the same billing period last year in Iowa City, resulting in even higher fuel bills.

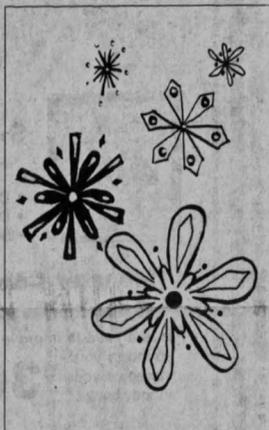

Two consumer actions can combat such mammoth heating costs: conservation and insulation.

Not since the late 1970s when President Jimmy Carter deemed the energy crisis "the moral equivalent of war" has the needed emphasis been placed upon the practice of conservation. Simple sacrifices such as wearing a sweater and setting the thermostat no higher than 68 degrees can indeed do wonders in cutting heating costs.

DESPITE THE Reagan administration's de-emphasis of energy planning, public attitudes appear ripe for renewed stress on conservation. A recent study by the Alliance to Save Energy showed that the majority of Americans see a decline in the standard of living resulting from the lack of energy efficiency and not from reduced energy use.

Doing one's bit to cut back on the use of fossil fuels is also a positive means to alleviate the common and justified resentment of the money-grubbing oil companies and conniving OPEC sheiks.

Those homeowners who are ready to substantially invest in insulation will want to start with an energy audit. By an act of

Caveat Emptor

Congress, most large gas and electric utilities are required to offer their customers an audit of energy use and misuse by a trained inspector at a minimal charge.

AFTER ASSESSING energy consumption in this way consumers will be able to choose a reasonable plan for outfitting their homes for cold Iowa winters, but for renters and others looking for a smaller investment in energy savings a few minor changes will also soothe the sting of high utility bills. The biggest culprits when it comes to squandering heat are windows and doors. When considering renting a new apartment, or buying or building a new house, consumers would be wise to assess the amount of southern exposure. In a performance study conducted on a house in Portland, Maine, south-facing windows recorded a net heat gain; east and west windows (if properly insulated) just about broke even on energy conservation; but windows on the north readily allowed heat to escape into the great winter outdoors.

Window finds its origin in the word "wind-eye" — indicating its primary use as allowing the wind to pass through a building, as well as allowing the eye to wander past the confines of the four walls. Both functions, desirable as they may be, reduce windows' effectiveness in keeping the heat in and the cold out.

THE FOLLOWING are some relatively low cost options that will preserve the "wind-eye" functions, yet add to the conservation possibilities of windows.

- Storm windows and weather stripping offer the most basic way to reduce the dollars you end up contributing to those big oil companies.

- A mylar inside storm barrier presents a unique way to cut heat loss. This plastic film, available at hardware stores, is attached to the inside window trim and then shrunk to fit with a hair dryer. The only problem is that the product can be expensive, yet should be replaced every season.

- Wood shutters, insulated drapes and roll-down shades all provide options for dressing windows against the cold. Shades can even be trimmed with Velcro strips adhering to the window frame and forming a tight pocket preventing cold air from spilling out.

- Draft stoppers stretched out across the foot of doors can help greatly to trap warmth in a room.

Minor though they may sound, these additions to a home can trim fuel consumption and contribute to the availability of energy for future generations.

ONCE UTILITY customers recover from the shock of how much they owe Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric Company, they should search the bill's envelope for an important message about Project AIDE — that is, Add in Dollars for Energy.

Enclosed is a card for customers to pledge their dollars to help pay energy bills accumulated by elderly, disabled and low-income users. Established in 1982, Project AIDE is distributed through the Iowa City Crisis Center. Each dollar given by customers is matched by 25 percent from Iowa-Illinois shareholders.

Although the need for such a program is testimony to outrageous energy costs and enormous profits reaped by large utilities and oil companies, the effort should not be belittled. As the leaflet states, "Pledging a little will mean a lot to those in need."

Mandela's release is top priority

A WHITE city councilwoman from Johannesburg, South Africa, visited the Martin Luther King Jr. Center for Nonviolent Social Change in Atlanta last summer as part of a fact-finding tour of the United States. I don't know if she was part of the traveling propaganda offensive organized by the apartheid regime in Pretoria that I had read about, but I wouldn't be surprised.

After touring the facilities, she took part in an informal discussion with center officials. She expressed admiration for Martin Luther King Jr., and her belief that nonviolence was "the only hope" for humanity as well as for South Africa. She said it was a shame, however, that there were no credible black leaders in South Africa.

"BUT WHAT ABOUT Bishop Tutu and Nelson Mandela?" asked a member of our staff.

"Tutu just doesn't seem to have the support of the masses," she explained, dismissing the Nobel Peace Prize laureate with a blase wave of the hand. "And of course Mandela... well, he's a very violent man."

When pressed to explain how African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela could be considered a "very violent man" when he has been jailed in isolation for two decades by a regime that survives only through murder, torture and brutality, she muttered nervously and abruptly departed.

I STILL WONDER about the strange logic that would bring even a moderate supporter of apartheid to the King Center. However, the Pretoria regime's campaign to discredit Mandela is understandable, for apartheid has no more articulate or compelling foe. This is why South African President P.W. Botha and his apologists in the United States have painstakingly portrayed Mandela as a communist, a black racist and a proponent of violence.

Even if Mandela were a communist, that would not justify his incarceration in a true democracy. But he is not a communist. He admits to having been "influenced by Marxist thought," like many other social-democratic leaders with whom the United States enjoys cordial relations. "But that doesn't mean we are Marxists," he has emphasized.

As for the attempt to characterize him as a racist, Mandela is one of South Africa's clearest voices calling for a multiracial society. "Whites in South Africa belong here — this is their home," he said in an interview last summer. "We want them to live with us and share power with us."

THE CHARGE THAT Mandela is a proponent of violence is as simplistic as it is hypocritical. Although he has admitted to acts of sabotage against state property, and has explicitly rejected an exclusively nonviolent strategy to combat apartheid, he has turned his imprisonment into a powerful example of nonviolent protest.

In 1976, the government offered to release him if he would go into exile and stay out of politics. He refused and was moved to a more isolated prison because his captors feared his influence on other prisoners.

Last February, he was again offered conditional freedom. President Botha told Parliament Mandela could go free if he would renounce violence. Mandela's eloquent refusal will stand in African history as one of the enduring documents of the struggle for freedom.

TURNING THE TABLES on Botha, Mandela challenged the apartheid regime to face its own violence. "Let him renounce violence... Let him guarantee free political activity so that the people may decide who will govern them. I cherish my own freedom dearly, but I care even more for your freedom... I owe it to their widows, to their orphans, to their mothers and fathers who have grieved and wept for them... I am not less life-loving than you are. But I cannot sell my birthright, nor am I prepared to sell the birthright of the people to be free. Your freedom and mine cannot be separated."

Powerful, soul-stirring words from a man of rare courage, compassion and integrity. Now at Pollsmoor Prison outside Cape-town recovering from major surgery, Mandela has been separated from his family for 23 years. Yet his unflagging dedication to the cause of self-determination and human rights for all South Africans will inspire freedom-loving people for generations to come. His unconditional release ought to be the first priority of U.S. foreign policy toward South Africa.

Dole: balanced budget bill won't work 'magic'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressional proposal to mandate a balanced federal budget will not work "magic" in reducing the nation's mounting red ink and could be postponed, Senate Republican leader Robert Dole, Kansas, said Sunday.

"There are some who think this Gramm-Rudman-Hollings (budget balancing legislation) proposal is going to do all this magic," Dole said.

"My own view is that certainly it is a good step in the right direction, something we need, it's a good discipline. But again it's legislation that we can postpone or modify."

Dole, interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press," also said there is "no way" Congress will vote to terminate some 30 to 50 domestic programs. Analysts say programs must be cut to reduce the federal deficit by $50 billion and keep a 3 percent increase in military spending that President Ronald Reagan wants, without raising taxes.

ASKED WHETHER Reagan would veto the balanced budget proposal because it would impose mandatory across-the-board cuts on defense as well as domestic programs, Dole said, "Well, there is always a possibility but I doubt in the real world he would do that."

"Things are closing in on the White House," the Senate leader said. "They wanted to cut federal spending and the result was Gramm-Rudman-Hollings and the White House has to say, 'Are we for it or not?' I think right now the moment of truth is about to arrive."

Treasury Secretary James Baker, appearing on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley," said he would recommend Reagan sign the bill if it comes out of Congress.

Rep. Bob Michel, GOP house leader from Illinois, said he expects the balanced budget measure will be adopted, but if it is, "there's going to be strong agitation for" an increase in taxes next year to soften the blow of budget cuts.

Bonner reunited with relatives in U.S.

NEWTON, Mass. (UPI) — Soviet dissident Yelena Bonner, continuing to observe orders from Russian officials that she avoid questions from the press, was reunited with her family Saturday evening after she arrived in the United States to receive treatment for her ailing heart.

Bonner, 62, who has suffered two heart attacks and is expected to undergo coronary bypass surgery in Boston, landed at Logan International Airport accompanied by her son, Alexei Semyonov, and her son-in-law, Efrem Yankelevich after spending a week in Italy.

At the airport, Bonner was taken to a VIP lounge where she was greeted by her daughter, Tatiana Yankelevich, her 85-year-old mother, Ruth Bonner, and three grandchildren, Anna, 10, Metvei 12, and Alexandra, 2.

BONNER HAD last seen her daughter and two of her grandchildren during a previous trip to the Yankelevich home in 1979. She had not seen her mother since 1980, when Ruth Bonner left the Soviet Union to take up temporary residence with the Yankeleviches.

Efrem Yankelevich said the family had received several offers from doctors interested in treating Bonner and would probably make an appointment Monday. "We won't be able to release any names (of doctors) until after we actually speak with the doctor," he said.

Bonner's arrival also has raised new family concerns for Ruth Bonner, who says she plans to return to the Soviet Union with her daughter, Yankelevich said.

"She wants to return this time, but we are trying to dissuade her because we have no idea what's going on with her daughter," he said.

Yelena Bonner is accompanied to the U.S. by her son Alexi Semyonov.

Jackson's win sets up Heisman race for '86

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bo Jackson posed with a 25-pound bronze statue in one corner of the Downtown Athletic Club's 17th floor while Vinny Testaverde answered questions near the elevator and Lorenzo White was smiling for cameras four floors below.

The 1986 Heisman Trophy race had already begun.

Jackson of Auburn, benefitting from a strong preseason campaign, became the 12th running back in the last 13 years to win the Heisman Trophy. He edged Iowa quarterback Chuck Long in the closest vote in the 51-year history of the award given to college football's most outstanding player.

Brigham Young quarterback Robbie Bosco finished third.

JACKSON, LONG and Bosco are seniors. However, fourth-place finisher White, a running back from Michigan State, and fifth-place finisher Testaverde, a quarterback from Miami (Fla.), are a sophomore and junior, respectively. And the way the Heisman voting has become part popularity contest, White and Testaverde had to leave the Downtown Athletic Club secure in their front-runner status.

"(Finishing fifth) gives me the extra incentive for next year," said Testaverde, who redshirted a season and can graduate early and be eligible for the NFL, if he decides not to come back. "You get a chance to see how things are done here. Being from New York (Elmont) gives me a little extra drive. This year, I knew Chuck or Bo would win."

White, who led the nation in rushing, was in the unenviable position of being a sophomore. Seven juniors and 44 seniors have now won the Heisman.

AMONG THOSE joining White and Testaverde as early favorites for next year are Oklahoma State running back Thurman Thomas, who tied for 10th place, Alabama quarterback Mike Shula and Oklahoma quarterback Jamelle Hollaway, who is a freshman.

Notoriety has become important in pursuing a Heisman. Jackson and Ohio State running back Keith Byars emerged as the summer favorites for the Heisman. But when Byars went down with a broken foot in the preseason, Jackson was the unspoken leader.

After several of the other preseason candidates got off to a slow start, performed for struggling teams or, in the case of Texas Christian running back

Kenneth Davis was suspended from his team by Coach Jim Wacker for taking payments from boosters, Long emerged as the strongest pursuer.

Despite Jackson's seemingly comfortable position, questions about his resiliency were frequently asked (Auburn lost two games in which Jackson pulled himself out because of injuries) and kept an air of suspense around the proceedings.

Ex-Hawkeye and Olympian Barry Davis led a crew of current and former Iowa wrestlers at Saturday's Northern Iowa Open in Cedar Falls by taking first place at 134 pounds.

The bulk of the Iowa team spent the weekend in Pennsylvania, coming away with a 30-14 win over highly touted Division II power Edinboro State Saturday. The Hawkeyes then met on Sunday with Bloomsburg State in Bloomsburg, Pa., but no results were available at press time.

Two other past Iowa mat stars grabbed first-place medals at Cedar Falls. Lindley Kistler won the meet at 177 pounds and Jim Zalesky did the same at 158. Just one active Hawkeye, Brad Penrith, came away with a first-place finish, at 126.

Wrestlers from Oklahoma State and Iowa State were also competing at the meet along with a number of Iowa small college teams, according to Davis.

IN HIS illustrious career at Iowa, Davis claimed three national titles, was named the Outstanding Wrestler of the 1985 NCAA Championships and won a silver medal in the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles.

But his wrestling career is far from over as he plans to enter various meets this winter and take part in an overseas tour.

Iowa upsets 6th-ranked Penn State

By Jill Hokinson
Staff Writer

The Iowa women's basketball team posted its biggest win Sunday afternoon by defeating No. 6 Penn State, 65-63, in Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

The win was even sweeter for the 6-2 Hawkeyes because they won the game with three starters on the bench. Forward Lisa Long the scoreboard with 17 minutes, 59 seconds left in the half.

With 2:30 remaining in the half, Jolynn Schneider tossed in a basket and drew a foul. She converted the free throw to put the Hawkeyes ahead, 31-28. Penn State's Bethany Collins closed the gap to one with :11 left by making two free throws, giving Iowa a slim 31-30 halftime lead.

THE HAWKEYES stretched their one-point advantage to an 11-point difference in the first seven minutes of the second half, by outscoring the Lady Lions, 15-4, to lead 45-34.

Vanessa Paynter led the Penn State comeback with 12 points in the last five minutes of the game. A jumper by the six-foot-two forward at 1:14 closed the gap to six, 64-58. Vicki Link added a basket and a free throw to pull Penn State within three, 64-61.

Robin Christian, who came off the bench for the Hawkeyes to score eight points, made one of two free throws, increasing Iowa's lead to four with 28 seconds left. Christian's free throw was the only Iowa score in the last three minutes of the game.

PENN STATE got the rebound and Paynter drove the lane putting in a layup to make the score, 65-63, with 16 seconds remaining. On Iowa's next possession, Kennedy was fouled but missed the free throw.

Paynter took the rebound and went all the way for a layup that refused to go in. The ball rolled around the rim and then fell out. The two teams battled the loose ball around trying to get the rebound as time ran out.

Basketball

and guard Tricia Blair didn't dress for the game because of injuries. Point guard Michelle Edwards played only a few minutes due to a sprained ankle.

"I can't begin to express how happy I am," Iowa Coach Vivian Stringer said. "This is the biggest win for the Iowa program."

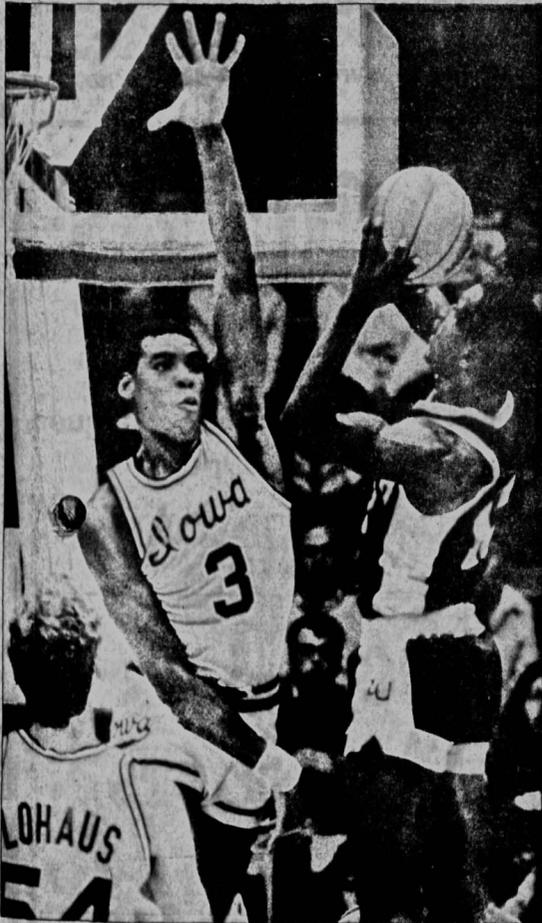

The victory over the Lady Lions also avenged a 40-point loss last year in University Park, Pa., when Penn State defeated Iowa, 87-47.

PENN STATE Coach Rene Portland said her team was in an ideal situation to take it to the injured Hawkeyes Sunday. The Lady Lions also had a week to prepare for the Iowa game.

"We came into this game very prepared," Portland said. "There's no excuse for what happened."

"Vivian's players really wanted it for Vivian," she said. "They played with their hearts and won it for Vivian."

Bartow snares Classic crown

Lohaus shines as bright spot for the Hawks

By Laura Palmer
Staff Writer

Confidence was the key Saturday night to the drastic turnaround in Brad Lohaus' performance in Iowa's victory over Lehigh in the consolation game of the Amana-Hawkeye Classic. Lohaus, who was three-for-10 from the field Friday night, scored a career-high 20 points Saturday to lead the Hawkeyes to a 89-69 victory over the Engineers.

Basketball

"Tonight I stayed intense," Lohaus said. "It didn't feel any different than any other night, (the shots) just kept going in."

Lohaus made all nine shots from the field and hit both shots from the charity stripe.

"LOHAUS GAVE us a big lift tonight. Not only in scoring, but with his rebounding, defense and blocked shots as well," Iowa Coach George Raveling said.

The junior center led the team with eight rebounds and four blocked shots.

Last year he averaged 6.8 points and 5.2 rebounds a game. His previous career high in scoring came in last season's opener with Illinois Wesleyan with 16 points. His rebounding high still stands at 12.

According to Raveling, Lohaus missed the entire summer because he was rehabilitating a knee he injured in an Iowa practice session before the NCAA tournament and consequently was behind other players in conditioning.

Both Lohaus and Raveling agreed that despite the interim, the seven-foot center thought that he was a shoe-in for the starting spot.

"I thought that I would establish myself early and be in all the time. I had a lot of higher expectations for this season," Lohaus said.

Lohaus has been pushed for playing time by the emergence of a tough group of Hawkeye newcomers.

"The day they stepped on campus I knew that this recruiting class would be tough."

Raveling has said in the past that Lohaus needs to learn to play like a seven-foot player instead of a six-foot player.

"Seven footers dominate games and seven footers block shots," Raveling said. "A lot of it is just mental and Brad is getting more and more confidence in himself."

Lohaus' stamina during the game is improving. "We're keeping a watchful eye on him and taking him out before he gets tired," the Iowa coach said.

"Tonight I think I stayed in too long and that hurts the team. The coaches are still learning (to take me out earlier)," Lohaus said.

Classic title moves to UAB, Iowa gets third

By Jeff Stratton
Assistant Sports Editor

It wasn't supposed to be like this.

The consolation game of the Amana-Hawkeye Classic matched Iowa and Lehigh in the battle for third place preceding the championship game between the University of Alabama-Birmingham and Arkansas State. The anticipated Iowa-UAB title game never materialized, thanks to a fine performance by Arkansas State in Friday's first round that sent Iowa down to a 66-62 defeat.

Basketball

So Iowa was relegated to the third-place game, and thanks to a good all-around performance by center Brad Lohaus, the Hawkeyes trounced Lehigh 89-68.

Lohaus scored 20 points, pulled down eight rebounds and blocked four shots.

Iowa Coach George Raveling has been after Lohaus to play like a 7-footer, and Saturday night he got his wish. "God gave me a 7-foot body and I need to play like it," Lohaus said.

THE HAWKEYES were in control for most of the contest, before steadily pulling away from Lehigh in the second half. In fact, for Raveling, the game's tightest moments may have been before the opening tip.

Last season, Raveling made the comment that Lehigh didn't deserve a berth in the NCAA tournament, and he feared he might have put his foot in his mouth. "I agonized over this game from the moment we lost the Arkansas State game," he said. "I sincerely regret I ever said (Lehigh didn't deserve an NCAA berth). If there was ever a case of putting my foot in my mouth, that was it."

"I told the kids that I put them in a bad situation, because I knew Lehigh wouldn't forget that."

And the Engineers didn't forget either, although it didn't make a bit of difference in the game's outcome. "I think the players remembered that," Lehigh Coach Fran McCaffery said.

LEHIGH, a need-based institution with an enrollment of 4,000 that does not extend athletic scholarships, has four players paying $15,000 a year to attend school.

The Blazers were without question out-manned against the Hawkeyes. "We wore them down with our depth and size," Raveling said.

McCaffery agreed. "Obviously, we got worn down," McCaffery said. "Iowa kept throwing fresh bodies at us."

Panthers advance in playoffs, 17-14

CEDAR FALLS, Iowa (UPI) — Senior safety Tim Moses batted down two passes in the fourth quarter to help the Northern Iowa Panthers squeeze out a 17-14 victory over Eastern Washington in Division I-AA quarterfinal play Saturday.

UNI scored first when Kevin Mote kicked a field goal from 32 yards out. The Panthers promptly scored again on a 13-yard touchdown strike from Mike Smith to Brian Baker. The Panthers scored again just before the half on a 7-yard run by Carl Boyd.

The second half was all Eastern Washington. Tim Floyd snagged a 9-yard pass from Rick Worman. With only minutes left to go Rob Fries returned a punt for an 84-yard touchdown.

Eastern Michigan threatened in the final two minutes, but sharp defensive play by Moses prevented two possible touchdown strikes by Worman.

UNI will meet Georgia Southern next week in Cedar Falls in a semifinal game.

Payton's streak continues; Bears win, 17-10

CHICAGO (UPI) — Walter Payton, rushing for more than 100 yards for the ninth straight week, raced 16 yards for a touchdown late in the third quarter Sunday to snap a 3-3 tie and spark the sluggish Chicago Bears to a 17-10 victory over the Indianapolis Colts.

Calvin Thomas added a 3-yard touchdown run midway through the fourth quarter to help the Bears post an 8-0 home record, their first undefeated mark at home since 1956. Chicago, which lost for the first time last Monday night to the Miami Dolphins, improve to 13-1.

The Colts, 3-11, lost their sixth straight while having an eight-game winning streak over the Bears snapped. Chicago had not beaten the Colts since 1966.

Payton, held to 15 yards in the first half, finished with 111 yards on 26 carries. Payton broke the mark for consecutive games over 100 yards of Earl Campbell and O.J. Simpson last week.

He scored up the middle with 1 minute, 53 seconds left in the third quarter to cap an 11-play, 63-yard drive.

After the Colts were pinned deep in their territory, Chicago went to its ground game again, marching 45 yards in 10 plays culminated by Thomas' touchdown with 6:49 left.

The Colts closed to 17-10 when Mike Pagel hooked up on a 61-yard scoring pass with Wayne Capers 52 seconds later.

Bengals embarrass Cowboys, 50-24

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Before Sunday's game against favored Dallas, Cincinnati Coach Sam Wyche optimistically predicted his Bengals would beat the Cowboys 35-27.

Surprisingly, that turned out to be a conservative guess. With Boomer Esiason firing touchdown passes of 58, 45 and 29 yards and James Brooks scoring on runs of 27 and 18 yards, the Bengals shocked the Cowboys 50-24.

"I wrote on the blackboard that 35-27 was going to be the final," Wyche said. "To beat a good team like that makes you feel good inside."

It was the third most points ever scored against the Cowboys in their 26-year history. Minnesota scored 54 in a 1970 game and St. Louis rolled up 52 in 1962.

Cincinnati piled up the fourth highest point total in its 18-year history.

Hawkeyes dominate at Wisconsin Invite

By Jeff Stratton
Assistant Sports Editor

The Iowa women's swimming team, along with the Hawkeye divers, came away from Madison with an impressive showing at the non-scoring Wisconsin Invitational.

Iowa swimmers won 10 individual events and swept all five relays, while the Hawkeye divers took four of the top six spots in the overall diving competition.

"There is no question we did dominate," Iowa Coach Pete Kennedy said.

Iowa's Jane Keating won three events. The 500-yard freestyle in four minutes, 55.9 seconds, the 1650 freestyle in 17:14.6 and the 200 butterfly in 2:08.84.

Keating's time in the 500 freestyle impressed Kennedy. "That's the second-fastest time ever swam at Iowa. It's a real fast time," he said.

KEATING ALSO owns the fastest Iowa time in the 500 freestyle.

Kim Stevens also won three events for Iowa, taking the 50 freestyle in 24.77, the 100 freestyle in 53.2 and the 200 freestyle in 1:53.9.

Chris Dieterle won two events for the Hawkeyes, sweeping the 100 and 200 breaststrokes in 1:10.35 and 2:29.5 respectively.

Also for Iowa, Allison Lloyd won the 100 butterfly in 58.85 and Bernie Brandenburg won the 400 individual medley in 4:41.6.

The Hawkeyes swept all five relay events.

The 200 medley relay team of Vickie Nauman, Dieterle, Lloyd and Stevens won its race in 1:52.2, while the same team won the 400 medley relay in 4:07.8.

The 200 freestyle relay team of Brandenburg, Dieterle, Lloyd and Keating won its race in 1:41.49, the 400 freestyle relay team of Brandenburg, Dieterle, Lloyd and Stevens won in 3:41.9 and the 800 freestyle relay team of Brandenburg, Sophie Lindeskog, Keating and Stevens won its race in 7:43.2.

"WE CONTINUE to get great swims out of some consistent people," Kennedy said, mentioning Dieterle, Lloyd, Brandenburg, Carolyn Grasshof, who finished second in the 400 individual medley, Stevens and Keating.

In the overall diving competition, Iowa's Kelly Johnson took the title and was followed by teammates Diane Goldsworthy in third place, Terri Millmeir in fourth and Vicki Ramseyer in sixth place.

Johnson won the three-meter dive and finished second in the one-meter, while Goldsworthy took fourth in the one-meter dive and finished third on the three-meter board.

Millmeir finished third in the one-meter dive and fourth in the three-meter, while Ramseyer finished fifth in the three-meter and seventh in the one-meter dive.

"We have four kids diving well," Kennedy said. "Overall, that's what impressed me. Our two steadies (Johnson and Goldsworthy) are diving well and now, two others (Millmeir and Ramseyer) are starting to dive well."

Iowa's next competition will be Saturday when the Hawkeyes host Iowa State at the Field House pool beginning at 1:30 p.m.

Alford's selfless act results in no reward

(UPI) — A selfless act of charity may have cost Indiana one of the biggest games of its season.

Olympian Steve Alford was rewarded with a one-game suspension by the NCAA after posing for a sorority calendar whose proceeds went to charity. Indiana's leading scorer received no fee for this appearance.

As chance would have it, Alford's suspension coincided with Saturday night's game against traditional rival Kentucky, and the Wildcats took full advantage by posting a 63-58 victory at Lexington.

Kentucky, ranked eighth in the nation, boosted its record to 5-0 while No. 20 Indiana fell to 2-1.

Ed Davender, a strong defensive player who said he was disappointed at missing the opportunity of guarding Alford, scored a game-high 22 points for Kentucky.

"WE KNEW the game would be tough regardless of if he played or didn't play," Davender said. "We just sort of took advantage of it."

Indiana Coach Bobby Knight didn't make any changes in his game plan despite the loss of Alford, and said he accepted responsibility for the infraction.

"The rule was broken," he said. "They (NCAA) made the decision and they have to live with it."

Kentucky Coach Eddie Sutton also was disappointed with the barring of Alford, saying, "There's such inconsistency in the NCAA. I felt it was an unjust penalty."

Meantime, the Big Three of college basketball couldn't be more perfect during the early stages of the season.

North Carolina, Michigan and Duke all posted victories Saturday, and among them they have compiled a 20-0 record.

NORTH CAROLINA provided further indication of why it was chosen No. 1 when it blasted Rutgers, 114-71, at Greensboro. The Tar Heels, in stretching their record to 6-0, led 105-47 with little more than 2 1/2 minutes remaining before Rutgers was able to assert itself for the only time in the game.

Six North Carolina players scored in double figures, led by Brad Daugherty with 23 points.

The 114 points marked North Carolina's highest point output since 1978, when the Tar Heels routed Niagara, 121-69, and it was the most points ever allowed by a Rutgers team.

Michigan matched North Carolina's record and also enjoyed a comfortable afternoon by trouncing Florida Southern, a Division 11 team, 91-68, at Ann Arbor. The Wolverines broke away on an 18-point tear early in the contest and built a 52-24 halftime bulge.

Roy Tarpley, a 6-foot-11 senior, had a four-inch height advantage and he scored 19 points and blocked 10 shots. John McNulty led Florida Southern, 1-2, with 15 points.

DUKE, DESPITE a poor shooting effort of 26-for-63 from the floor, ran its record to 8-0 by beating Virginia, 72-64, in the Atlantic Coast Conference opener at Durham. All-America guard Johnny Dawkins scored 24 points, including four free throws in the final minute, for the Blue Devils and forward David Henderson added 20 points and 10 rebounds.

Virginia, 4-1, was led by forward Mel Kennedy's 20 points.

All of the top 10 teams to play Saturday were successful. Fourth ranked Georgia Tech beat Georgia, 89-65; No. 5 Syracuse trounced Navy, 89-67; No. 6 Kansas defeated North Carolina State, 73-56; and No. 9 Nevada-Las Vegas edged Maryland, 64-63, in overtime.

No. 7 Georgetown was idle after winning two games earlier in the week to run its record to 4-0.

At Atlanta, freshman Tom Hammonds scored 20 points and Bruce Dalrymple added 18 to spark Georgia Tech over arch-rival Georgia. Georgia Tech, 4-1, led 47-35 at halftime before 16,615 fans at the Omni, the largest crowd ever to see the two rivals play.

At Syracuse, Wendell Alexis scored 23 points to power Syracuse over Navy in the final of the ninth annual Carrier Classic Tournament. Rafael Addison added 15 points and Michael Brown 14 for the Orangemen, now 5-0.

At Greensboro, Ron Kellogg scored 23 points to lead Kansas over North Carolina State.

Baseball lays back in California

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The winter meetings are proceeding in Southern California style—laid back. Baseball executives began hobnobbing Sunday, presumably laying groundwork for deals that could take months to complete. Without a trading deadline to meet, officials raised little expectation of producing a juicy series of transactions. Instead, they are shifting strategy, opening long range talks or continuing those already begun. "A lot of clubs may defer trading until they can see what their situation is in spring training," said Dodgers vice president Al Campanis. "We now have the opportunity to see how these rookies develop in the spring and to check out the sore arms."

In the absence of a spacious hotel lobby, the flesh peddlers first gathered around the pool in cool and sunny weather. They then disappeared, whether to rooms or to golf courses, you couldn't tell.

EVEN THE RUMOR mill remained quiet on a day lightly scheduled in deference to the first day of Chanukah.

In recent years, complicated contracts and free agency made it increasingly difficult for clubs to meet the weekend deadline for inter-league trade. Even intra-league trades became a problem. Last year's deal between the New York Yankees and Oakland A's illustrates the difficulty that executives faced.

San Francisco's job to stop Dickerson

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — No matter how you spell it, victory Monday night for either the San Francisco 49ers or the Los Angeles Rams will begin with a capital "D". For the Rams, 9-4, to win running back Eric Dickerson will have to chase away his season-long blues and return to the form that made him the NFL's all-time single season rushing leader in 1984.

Los Angeles has lost four of its last six games.

SAN FRANCISCO Coach Bill Walsh said he felt his team was poised to play its best football of the season. "It appears that we are gathering some momentum," he said. "However, we haven't played a complete game yet. This past week our defense was dominant and our offense was opportunistic. I think this week will be our best game of the season."

Dickerson, an early-season holdout, has rushed for just 915 yards on 231 carries this year. Last year, he had already accumulated 1,643 yards after 13 games.

Walsh's counterpart, Los Angeles' John Robinson, wasn't as optimistic as the 49ers' coach. "We have the second-best record in football — and we're in deep trouble," the Rams Coach said.

However, despite his slow start, the 49ers' defense knows it has to stop Dickerson if San Francisco is to win.

Robinson considered a quarterback change this week after a 29-3 rout at the hands of the New Orleans Saints. However, the Rams coach decided that Dieter Brock would again start against the 49ers.

"Eric Dickerson is the man," said safety Carlton Williamson. "He's always a challenge. We can't afford to let him bust through to our secondary. We have to hold him to a minimum."

THE SAN FRANCISCO defense has been responsible for turning around the defending Super Bowl champion's dismal season. The unit has not yielded a touchdown in the last 14 quarters. They also have scored eight points, picked up 12 sacks and recorded 10 takeaways over that time span.

"WE EVALUATED what gives us the best chance to win," Robinson said. "We feel Dieter Brock does that."

The game boils down to the championship of the NFC Western Division, a title owned by San Francisco the last two years. The Rams currently have a one-game lead over the 49ers and with a victory would go two games up with two games remaining in the regular season.

The Rams coach also had to consider Brock's last game against San Francisco. The 34-year-old "rookie" completed 35 of 51 pass attempts for 344 yards. If Brock falters, Robinson can call upon backup Jeff Kemp.

If San Francisco wins, the 49ers would be tied with the Rams at 10-5 but own the advantage in the tiebreaker with two victories over Los Angeles this year. Of greater importance, the loss would likely deal a fatal blow to the Rams' confidence.

Walsh said the two Rams quarterbacks present different challenges to a defense. "It's Brock's pattern to stay in there (the pocket)," the 49ers coach said. "It's just natural for him. Kemp will come outside and throw the ball. He has excellent running speed."

San Francisco's formula for victory against the Rams has three parts. First, the 49ers are going to have to keep the Rams explosive duo of Ron Brown and Henry Ellard at bay on kick returns.

Heisman

United Press International

Auburn running back Bo Jackson poses with the Heisman Trophy after it was awarded to him at the Downtown Athletic Club in New York Saturday.

"THE SUSPENSE was building up tremendously," Long said. "The last hour was worse than a football game. It was worse than the Michigan game."

In the end though, there were no trick plays. Jackson garnered 317 first-place votes and 1,509 points to Long's 286 first-place votes and 1,464 points. The 45-point difference broke the previous closest finish in 1961 when Ernie Davis of Syracuse held off Ohio State's Bob Ferguson by 53 points.

Jackson, who will officially receive his trophy at the Heisman dinner Thursday, was the second Auburn player to win the award. Tigers quarterback Pat Sullivan won in 1971.

"He's the strength, the heart and the soul that has put Auburn football back on the national level," Tigers Coach Pat Dye said at the announcement Saturday. Jackson said he will decide in the spring whether he will pursue a professional football or baseball career. Last year, he batted .401 for Auburn with 17 home runs and 48 RBI and it is speculated he would be a high pick in baseball's draft.

In a season where he led Auburn to the Cotton Bowl, the 6-foot-1 and 220-pounder from Bessemer, Ala., gained 1,786 yards on 278 carries with 17 touchdowns. He completed his regular-season career with 4,303 yards and a 6.6-yard average per carry.

"It's like getting to the highest point on the ladder," Jackson said of the Heisman. "You climb and climb and climb. Now, I think I made it to the top."

Wrestling

Dec. 28-29," Davis said. "I have a wrestle-off coming up in Des Moines for the World Cup team on January seventh, and for three weeks in January I'll be on a tour in Russia."

Davis said he is fortunate to be able to work out at his alma mater, and he admitted that Iowa wrestling Coach Dan Gable is still an influence in his career.

"If I wanted to find the best place to practice," Davis said, "I couldn't find a better place than Iowa because of the quality of the program and the facilities, and just having Gable there, too. He kind of pushes me a little, he keeps me motivated."

THIS WEEKEND Gable was motivating his starters in Pennsylvania after they toyed with a loss at Southern Illinois-Edwardsville Thursday night, before dropping the defending NCAA Division II Champs 30-23.

Edinboro State, a team which includes four former Iowa wrestlers among its starters and a fifth, Mike DeAnna, as its coach, was expected to be as tough an opponent as SIU, according to Gable.

That was not the case, however, as the Hawkeyes lost just two matches, one of those being a forfeit to ex-Hawkeye David Ray at 134, and used their strength in the upper and middle weights to overpower the Fighting Scots.

AFTER THE FORFEIT gave Edinboro its only lead of the night at 8-5, Iowa's 142-pounder Kevin Dresser crushed Terry Kennedy 17-2, winning by technical fall in just four minutes, 22 seconds.

Hawkeye Jim Heffernan then nipped ex-teammate Bob Kauffman 6-5 at 150 to give Iowa a lead of 14-8. A 9-9 draw at 158 between Iowa's Royce Alger and another Iowa transfer, Mike Haehy, upped the team tally to 16-10.

As was the case Thursday night at Edwardsville, Hawkeyes Marty Kistler, Rico Chiapparelli and Duane Goldman put the meet away by dominating their foes.

Kistler dumped another ex-Hawkeye, Matt Furey, 13-4 at 167. Chiapparelli followed with a 14-3 decision over Dave Held, and Goldman used 5:14 to dispose of Frank Myers by technical fall, 20-4.

DEAN HALL ended the meet with Edinboro's only true win by dominating Iowa's Andy Haman, 10-2, to make the final score 30-14, Iowa.

Matt Egeland continued to have problems for the Hawkeyes as he fought to a 10-10 draw at 126 with Dan Wilaman. Egeland was beaten badly Thursday night, suffering a technical fall at the hands of Allen Grammar of SIU, 18-3.

At 118 pounds, John Regan of Iowa knocked off Dave Rowan 8-4. Regan is in a battle for the starting spot at that weight with Steve Knight, who lost to SIU's defending national champ Tim Wright, 19-4, Thursday.

Hawkeyes

poured in 33 points, a tournament record, 22 in the second half, to lead the Blazers to a 78-59 victory over Arkansas State.

Mitchell was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player, and was joined by Iowa's Lohaus, Arkansas State's John Tate and Brad Goshien and Lehigh's Daren Queenan.

Queenan set a tournament record for most points by totaling 52 points for the two games.

IN FRIDAY'S contest Arkansas State's Tate scored 23 points and Goshien added 21 to drop Iowa.

Iowa was led in scoring by Roy Marble with 15 points and Al

Lorenzen added 14. Iowa trailed at halftime, 32-30, and wasn't able to catch Arkansas State in the second half. "We never got over the hump in the second half," Raveling said. "We kept knocking on the door, but Arkansas State locked the door on us."

Iowa, 6-1 on the year, travels to Ames Tuesday to meet Iowa State. The Cyclones are 4-1 on the season following a 77-69 loss to Drake in Des Moines Saturday night.

Iowa State defeated the Hawkeyes last season at Carver-Hawkeye Arena, 54-50.

Hollywood, theater owners hope for a profitable holiday

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Hollywood seems to have more attractive films under the Christmas tree this holiday season than in recent memory, which should cheer both moviegoers and theater owners alike. Spurred by the astonishing success of Sylvester Stallone's super-patriotic Rocky IV with its $35 million opening week, theater owners, at least, are hoping to celebrate a record-breaking seasonal box-office bonanza.

New York-based Larry Lapidus, president of RKO Century Theaters (175 theaters in New York City and St. Louis) and Ted Mann, with corporate headquarters in Hollywood and a chain of 100 theaters, are especially optimistic about the array of promising pictures in release or soon to be open nationwide.

With box-office receipts down $300 million from last year, theater owners have been hurting. They hope a record-breaking Christmas season will go a long way in bailing them out.

"Grosses have been down because summer releases didn't perform well, despite the high quality of the films. It is difficult to pinpoint what sort of reception a movie will get even if it screens well and gets good reviews," said Mann.

THOUGH MOVIES enjoyed a sensational box office in 1984, the releases during the important Christmas season fell surprisingly short of expectations. Last Christmas was one of the most dismal seasons on record for producers and exhibitors with only Eddie Murphy providing any holiday cheer with the phenomenal success of his Beverly Hills Cop. High hopes for such expensive dazzlers as Francis Ford Coppola's $40 million musical The Cotton Club and Supergirl, a quasi-sequel to the hugely successful Superman films, were never realized. The drawing power of Robert DeNiro and Meryl Streep in Falling in Love failed to coax customers to the turnstiles. And even the seemingly sure-fire teaming of box-office champs Burt Reynolds and Clint Eastwood in City Heat proved to be an unexpected disappointment.

THE MUCH-HERALDED 2001, a sequel to Stanley Kubrick's landmark film 2001: A Space Odyssey, crashed and burned, never getting into orbit, while Dune, the expensive science-fiction thriller from producer Dino De Laurentis, failed to quench anyone's thirst for holiday entertainment.

Others, such as Johnny Dangerously, The Flamingo Kid, Breakin' 2: Electric Boogaloo II, Mickey & Maude, Protocol and Starman fared better but did not meet industry expectations.

This year, producers went back to their drawing boards leaving theater owners to tighten their belts and hope that this year's visions of sugarplums would dance in everyone's heads. At least, optimism is high this year.

"IN MY OPINION there is a really good mix of films out there," said Lapidus. "Two pictures I'm confident will hold up through Christmas are Rocky IV and Santa Claus: The Movie. Both have opened strong and promise to keep going. Santa Claus will only do well on the weekends until school lets out, then it will really take off."

Judging by box-office receipts so far, Mann was less enthusiastic about Santa Claus, the $50 million yuletide epic from the director and the producers of last year's flop, Supergirl. "It's difficult to say what kind of staying power a film has after it has opened big," he said.

BOTH LAPIDUS and Mann are expecting big things from Michael Douglas, who is starring in two major holiday releases. One is the film version of Broadway's super musical, A Chorus Line, directed by Gandhi's Richard Attenborough. The other is the Douglas-produced Jewel of the Nile, an action-adventure sequel to the 1983 surprise hit Romancing The Stone. In it, Douglas rejoins his Stone costars Kathleen Turner and Danny De Vito.

"We are all expecting great things from A Chorus Line," Lapidus said. "It's even better on the screen than it was on stage. And it's had great reviews. I know how big a hit Romancing the Stone was, but we expect the sequel to do even more business because it's a better movie."

MANY THEATER owners are keeping their fingers crossed that Steven Spielberg hasn't lost his magic touch at the box office. The Color Purple is his first attempt at a purely serious adult film and one which almost everyone agrees has the best Academy Award potential of any holiday film. Spielberg is also executive producer of Barry Levinson's Young Sherlock Holmes, an adventure about the sleuth's school days, which has received some rave reviews.

Little is known so far about a couple of major productions which are scheduled for release Dec. 20. They are Revolution, starring Al Pacino and rock singer Annie Lennox in a story set against the backdrop of the American Revolution, and Out of Africa, a romantic adventure starring Robert Redford and Meryl Streep. Even theater owners have yet to see them.

Umbrella gift, Mark Twain essay express writers' political views

By Teresa Heger
Copy editor

MORE THAN TWENTY writers criticized U.S. activity in Nicaragua last Thursday night.

Although the poems and essays that the artists read varied, all of the members of "Writers Against U.S. Involvement in Nicaragua" had a very clear message: the United States has no business in Central America.

The writers, including poet Marvin Bell, this year's National Book Award winner Bob Shacochis and many others, were protesting the Reagan administration's overt involvement with the counter-revolutionary forces in Nicaragua.

While some of the readers voiced support for the current Nicaraguan government, others expressed fear of another Vietnam for America's next generation. Other readers felt that the United States is successfully covering up military involvement in Central America; that the popular Reagan administration and its image is numbing the public to the injustices occurring in Nicaragua.

THE EVENING opened with a joint statement, read by Charles Scott of the Writers' Workshop, defining the writer's purpose for the joint readings and stressing that the point of the readings was to go beyond "the trickery of words" and to "see reality."

In their readings, many of the participants expressed concern with how, as writers, they could help or hinder the Nicaraguan cause, as well as increase world awareness through their words.

One of the major concerns raised at the reading was the problem of America's own perception of its involvement in Nicaragua; the feeling that the government presents its involvement in Nicaragua's civil strife as a noble crusade against communism.

Shacochis selected for his reading a work written by Mark Twain at the turn of the century concerning U.S. dealings in Cuba at that time. This essay, echoing the current disillusionment that many feel toward the United States and its intervention in Nicaragua, pointed out that America's interest in Cuba was anything but altruistic. Shacochis emphasized that things have not changed.

According to Shacochis, the United States is only keeping up a long tradition of intervention with its current involvement in Nicaragua.

BARBARA CULLY, a graduate of the Writers' Workshop, stressed with her reading the poet's ability to fight against perceived U.S. propaganda. Reading an excerpt from an essay by Caroline Forché, Cully said the work is the writer's explanation of "why she writes what some people consider 'political' poetry."

In this essay, Forché states, "All language is political. Vision is always ideologically charged... There is no such thing as non-political poetry..."

She continues to say how the poet must avoid making that which is horrible or ugly into something that is pleasing. "We are responsible for the quality of our vision... It is my feeling that the 20th century human condition demands a poetry of witness. This cannot be accomplished without certain difficulties. There is the problem of poeticizing horror, which resembles the problem of the photographic image, which might render starvation visually appealing. There are problems of reduction, of over simplification..."

Hilary Sideris of Writers' Workshop reiterated this idea of over simplification. Reading a poem by a Polish writer, she emphasized the way the media is able to desensitize the public against widespread atrocities.

In the poem, a man reading his morning paper skims over the account of 120 dead soldiers, then moves on to an article about a local murder which he reads with relish. The message is that, after a certain point, the mind can no longer absorb the horror of what it sees, or is taught. War, like the current Nicaraguan problem, can exist simply because it cannot be imagined.

IF ANGER and struggle against political euphemism was one vision presented by the writers, another was an appeal toward a humanitarian view of the crisis in Nicaragua. Kevin Boyle of the Writers' Workshop read a work that emphasized "the walking death of not getting involved."

In his selections, Boyle stressed how no choice, is in fact a choice. He cited how the Nicaraguan government has aided its people by, among other things, increasing the literacy rate from 13 to 51 percent and improving the living conditions of the general population. Yet by allowing, in the name of freedom or capitalism or religion, counter-revolutionary activity in Nicaragua, the United States is defeating all that it says it is defending.

One of his selections, written by a priest, emphasized that it is better to support an atheist with humanitarian interests than with a Christian with fanatical and heartless intentions.

This idea was echoed in perhaps one of the most compelling readings of the evening that was given by Tom Fate, a graduate student in the expository writing program who spent last summer in Nicaragua and will be returning there in two weeks.

FATE READ a short description of his encounter with Carlos, a 17-year-old Sandinista soldier. Carlos, who had lost a father and a brother to the fighting, "... said if the Contras were 'freedom fighters,' what was he fighting for — rice and beans?" Fate wondered as he talked to Carlos what kind of life the boy would have had if he had been an American. "He'd have more than 'rice and beans and hope' anyway. But I wasn't sure that that was much better. He talked of freedom with a passion that I couldn't quite understand."

Fate told of how, when they parted — Fate to Managua and eventually the United States, Carlos to his battalion — he had given Carlos an old umbrella to protect him from the seasonal rains. "I remained in the cafe several hours, sipping beer, listening to the thunder, and wishing I could give Carlos protection from something besides the rain."

"Writers Against U.S. Intervention in Nicaragua" showed, perhaps more than anything else, this wish to give substantial aid to the people of Nicaragua. They see U.S. intervention in that country's government as being detrimental not only to Nicaraguans, but also to America and America's image at home and around the world. Their statements combined to create a solidarity, to break a path toward radical action concerning U.S. policies in this troubled country.

Newest angle on Holmes is unnecessary detraction

By M. Wyn Grote
Assistant Arts/entertainment Editor

SUPPOSEDLY Agatha Christie killed off her fictional sleuth Hercule Poirot because she had seen what filmmakers had done to Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's Sherlock Holmes and had hoped to spare her creations the same sort of creative liberties. Considering Holmes' fate, her fears seem justified.

It is estimated that Holmes has been portrayed in anywhere from 120 to 200 different films. While the personalities of Holmes and John Watson have remained largely consistent, the circumstances of their adventures have run far afield. For instance, in the film series of the 1930s and 1940s starring Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce as the quintessential Holmes and Watson, the two were plucked out of Victorian England and their adventures turned into contemporary anti-Nazi propaganda.

Scarlet both men are middle-aged. But that is one curious aspect of Young Sherlock Holmes; disclaimers at both the beginning and the end of the film divorce it from Doyle's written works, while everything in between studiously recreates, indeed, tries to explain all the Holmes cliches. The film does everything possible to be a Holmes adventure, yet, curiously, denies that is what it is.

Anyway, when a retired teacher at the boys' public school dies under mysterious circumstances, young Holmes and Watson (Nicholas Rowe and Alan Cox), accompanied by the man's pretty niece (Sophie Ward), endeavor to solve the case. This leads to a far-fetched tale involving a crazed Egyptian cult, killers with blow guns, hallucinogenic drugs and ritual sacrifices. The film even kicks in some improbable Indiana Jones-style derring-do and some psychedelic special effects that may not be strictly in the cerebral tradition of Holmes, but are nonetheless fun.

IN 1970, Billy Wilder's The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes speculated on the long-term relationship between the two and delicately suggested they might be gay. In 1971, George C. Scott played a compelling Holmes in They Might Be Giants, though his character was actually an eccentric and Watson was a psychiatrist played by Joanne Woodward. Holmes' psychological hang-ups and infamous cocaine addiction were the focus of Nicholas Meyer's 1976 book and film, The Seven-Percent Solution. The year before, Gene Wilder gave Holmes a jealous sibling named Sigerson in the comedy The Adventure of Sherlock Holmes' Smarter Brother. And the list goes on.

BECAUSE HOLMES is such a colorful character and yet so easily grasped, he is an irresistible subject for such tinkering and revision. But with the abundance of poetic license, it has also become increasingly difficult to find a fresh approach to the material.

Therefore, I suppose it is to their credit that the makers of Young Sherlock Holmes have found a new angle. The film finds the would-be detective still a teenage schoolboy when younger Watson comes across him for the first time. The film conveniently ignores the fact that when Doyle has his characters meeting for the first time in A Study in

THE REAL PROBLEM, and I think an unforgivable one, is that the film is indifferent to young Sherlock's deductive prowess. Director Barry Levinson points out most of the clues to the audience before Holmes even notices them and usually Watson brings them to his attention. As a result the audience is usually one step ahead of the character. I supposed that this could be attributed to Sherlock's inexperience, but less easily justified is the fact that Levinson and screenwriter Chris Columbus reveal the clues to the audience before Holmes solves the crime. This betrays the whole mystique of Holmes as a man who comprehends what others overlook entirely. It is odd that a film that labors endlessly on minor details and gaslit Victorian ambience would so blithely ignore Sherlock's most dominant personality trait.

And there really is no reason for the film to be about young Sherlock Holmes anyway; the adventure would have worked just as well, if not better, had it been about Holmes in his prime. But this is a Steven Spielberg film, so the youth market must be served.

Still, Rowe is properly reserved and arrogant as Holmes and Cox is adept at playing the uncertain and bumbling Watson. Perhaps when they grow up, Spielberg will let them play the real Holmes and Watson, instead of The Hardy Boys Go to London.

Daughter's memoirs pay tribute to Sadat

United Press International

Camelia Sadat, Anwar Sadat's daughter by his little-known first wife, Ekbal Mohammed Madi, has written a book, My Father and I, that describes a man known as a brilliant statesman, but who privately was a traditional and distant Muslim father. The book, which she has called a "letter to his soul," is filled with reminiscences of a guilty daughter who feared and worshipped her father, but was his match in temper and spirit. The book discusses the politics of the era only as a time reference to more personal moments with Anwar Sadat and evolves as a critical sketch of a man who placed this office before the needs of his family.

According to the book, after Anwar Sadat's second marriage, Camelia Sadat and her two sisters had to make appointments to see their father.

Anwar Sadat returned from the Camp David accords as a new man to his daughters, just before Camelia Sadat left to seek a graduate degree in Boston. His parting words to her were: "This may be the last time you see me alive."

Camelia Sadat turned on the evening news Oct. 6, 1981, to see Dan Rather announcing the death of the Egyptian leader.

"I loved him so much as president, and father," Camelia Sadat said. "I wish everyone who was close to him would write about him, to add to the history of the man."

At the Bijou

Late Autumn (1960) A widow and her daughter decide to enjoy life alone rather than marry in this movie directed by Yasujiro Ozu — noted for rendering everyday family life in Japan with quiet dignity and insight. In Japanese. At 6:45 p.m.

Follow That Dream (1962). Early in his film career, Elvis Presley made an impression as an actor and light comic talent. This is one of his last attempts at a sincere film performance before he sold out to sand and surf epics. At 9:15 p.m.

Television

On the networks: Irwin "Master of Disaster" Allen, who produced such epics as The Poseidon Adventure and The Towering Inferno, recruited everyone from Steve Allen (who wrote the music) to Shelley Winters (who plays a dodo bird) to fill up his multi-million dollar, mini-series "Alice in Wonderland" (part one, CBS at 7 p.m.). Sid Caesar, who plays The Gryphon in "Alice," plays it straight as a family friend in the "Hallmark Hall of Fame" drama "Love is Never Silent" (NBC at 8 p.m.), about a young girl (Mare Winningham) who tries to break free of her deaf parents' dependence on her.

Doreen Anderson on horn, accompanied by Lynn Wright on piano and George Haman on tuba, will perform in recital at 5:30 p.m. in Harper Hall.
