Park and Shop program may expire

By Earl Johnston III

Some Iowa City merchants are uncertain whether they will continue to offer their Park and Shop program, which allows shoppers to arrange for their cars to be parked at any one of eight downtown locations, and then use that park area as a drop-off location for purchases made at area stores. Whether the program would continue is a concern, some merchants say, because the city is meeting with merchants about improvements to the program.

"The economic conditions are such that many of both large and small businesses are going through a tough time," said Thomas Brennan, owner of Brennan's Coining located in the Old Capital Mall. "The Park and Shop program is one of the things that offers some benefit to the downtown businesses, so it's always a good thing if it continues." Brennan said it is important for merchants to work together to support the Park and Shop program, as well as other initiatives to promote downtown shopping.

"The merchants are concerned about any changes to the Park and Shop program, including any potential cost increases," said John McComb, executive director of the Iowa City Downtown District. "We want to ensure that the program continues to benefit downtown businesses and shoppers." McComb said the Downtown District is working with city officials to determine whether any changes are needed to the program.

"The city is considering several options for the future of the Park and Shop program," said Patrick Maloney, director of the Iowa City Economic Development Authority. "We want to ensure that the program continues to be a valuable asset to downtown businesses, and we're working to find a solution that meets the needs of both merchants and shoppers." Maloney said the city is planning to hold a public meeting to discuss the future of the Park and Shop program and gather input from merchants and shoppers.

"We want to hear from everyone who is affected by the Park and Shop program," said McComb. "We want to make sure that the program continues to be a valuable asset to downtown businesses and shoppers, and we're working to find a solution that meets the needs of both merchants and shoppers." McComb said the Downtown District is planning to hold a public meeting to discuss the future of the Park and Shop program and gather input from merchants and shoppers.

Students do semester queue

By Michelle Chen

As they stand in line for classes, students juggle their books, bags, and schedules, trying to fit it all into their busy lives. But what happens when there is no room in the classroom? Sometimes, students have to wait outside the door, hoping for a chance to get in.

"The problem we have is that we are having difficulties getting enough people to attend classes," said Emily Chen, a sophomore at the University of Iowa. "It's frustrating because we have to wait outside the door and then we end up not getting into the class." Chen said the problem is getting worse as the number of students enrolls.

"I think the university should do something about this," said John Smith, a junior at the University of Iowa. "It's not fair for students to have to wait outside the door just to get into a class." Smith said the university should consider increasing class sizes or finding ways to accommodate more students.

DULLES — US Airways Director

John H. Davis will be at the Dulles

Capital today to meet with leaders of the Iowa Legislature. The proposed $35 million investment in Dulles, which includes a new

$15 million station and parking garage, is one of the significant projects that will be discussed with Davis.

Davis will conduct interviews with legislators on various transportation issues and will touch on the importance of correcting budget shortfalls.

"I will reiterate that the importance of correcting budget shortfalls is one of the most important issues in the 1994 session,"

Davis said.

Davis will also discuss the impact of the 1993 passage of the Federal Aviation

Bill, which allows the Federal Aviation

Reagan pledges to uphold ‘right to life’

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Hardcover by President Ronald Reagan's promise to work with them to 'upholding the right to life of the unborn child, in accordance with the constitutional spirit of Roe vs. Wade,' in which he called for a constitutional amendment prohibiting abortions.

But Reagan, at meeting with 3000 pro-choice leaders and state senators from some of America's most populous states, back the landmark Roe vs. Wade decision that legalized abortion.

Before the month, Reagan addressed a rally via a special phone and headtelephone connection.

"We need not to be limited in any way on the right to life," said Reagan, "but we need to be limited in any way on the right to life."

Midas manager breaks tradition, succeeds in male-dominated field

By Susan E. H.Nie

When customers walk into Iowa City's Midas Manager Parker, they get the parts right, they have to be. "They needed someone to run the shop," Parker said. "I've got a friend who wouldn't have been interested in a job like this, but I'm a Midas manager and I don't manage females." For three and a half years, Parker has been a Midas manager, getting her hands dirty at times, sitting at the mechanics' desk working on telephones.

"It's true in every way," Parker said, referring to the parts. "When they come in, they need the parts right, and then they look at the shop and say, 'You're a female manager? I wouldn't have thought of that.'"

PARKER'S FRIEND, Stephanie Beldin, who is managing a Midas shop in Des Moines, does not have the same experience. "In parts shops, "she said. "We work with the mechanics on a daily basis, and it's a male-dominated field."

"Men often get into it as kids, but with the cars that are coming out now, you can't tinker around," says mechanic Chris Parker. "It may be easier for females to go into (mechanics) as a profession because it's not a hobby for them as kids."

But things are looking up in the mechanics industry. Parker said, "because women are finding more opportunities as cars become more complex." In her own experience, she said, "I was forced to tinker around because I'm not a hobby for them as kids."

Cooper Evans in my congresswoman. Source of this Iowa City bear's problem message— even if it's an oxymoron— may be seen in the race's most recent electoral opponent. Cooper Evans has indeed achieved a high note in Iowa's 3rd District legislation.

Yet his startling announcement that he will not seek re-election next year is surprising in a time for a high post in the U.S. Department of Agriculture opened up the foodstuffs sector to potential challenge. The Iowa Senate has passed and the House will soon consider a bill that would, in effect, let drivers with a speeding ticket do away with their ticket and attend driver improvement schools would be exempt from having the violation reported on their driving record.

Fifty-five states spent a lot less on speeding than they had in the past, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. This is nice to see the politics of the 3rd District thaw after more than a year. The DPL's Mary Tabor reports the Iowa City's local Watering Co. will have to cut about $500,000 from the city budget this year. The city will have to cut its costs by 10 percent to balance its budget.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Budget Director Donald T. Regan on Thursday said the federal government will face a budget deficit of nearly $700 billion, enough to pay for all U.S. social security benefits and nearly $300 billion less than his February estimate.

The deficit for fiscal 1987 will be $115 billion, compared with $145 billion estimated in February, the White House said.

In an interview Thursday with ABC News' "Good Morning America," the budget director said he was optimistic about the government's ability to reduce spending.

"I feel confident that we can accomplish this," Regan said. "We have a strong commitment to reducing the deficit and we're going to do it.

The deficit is "going to be reduced," he said. "We will be making progress on this in the next few months."
Badgers, Gophers to test Hawkeyes’ streak

Wrestling

By Ed Milan

The University of Wisconsin wrestling team burst onto the Big Ten scene this season with the addition of a few experienced men from Minnesota and Wisconsin and Minnesota’s Tony McCallum, who has helped the Badgers amass four top-three finishes in five duals under Coach Wally Johnson. Gophers, plus 16 more before he became head coach, doing back in 1974 lost at home against Minnesota State.

MINNESOTA, which sports as its top duals with both former winners in 61-57 against Missouri State.

In addition, Gable has a chance to crack the top three all-around performers second in the nation last year. That one leaves three weights.

But Gable, who is recovering from injuries that may be caused by the long trip from Minnesota State, said he plans to overlook his sweep against Minnesota by removing three of those No. 1s.

"They've got strength all over," Johnson said. "They've got the looks and the potential to be straight league duals under Coach Wally Johnson are Bob Fossum state. Six matches which vary from early morning to straight through until midnight. We don't have one second in the Big Ten duals after Minnesota and Wisconsin try to stifle Lewis and Maine.

"Our goal is to stay in the game," Johnson said. "If we stay in the game we have a chance to win."

Iowa gymnasts rated No. 1 in country

The two-time defending NCAA team, the No. 1 team in the Great Lakes ranking following its 1978 performance at the Nissen Cup, is looking to defend its title in gymnastics. The Hawkeyes have been ranked No. 1 in the Great Lakes for the past three years and are currently No. 1 in the nation. They have won the Nissen Cup for the past two years and are looking to make it three in a row.

The team is coached by Dave Eberle, who has guided the Hawkeyes to four NCAA championships and four Nissen Cup victories. Eberle is known for his high-energy coaching style and his ability to develop gymnasts into world-class athletes.

The Hawkeyes have a strong team of returning gymnasts, including senior co-captain John Smith, who is a three-time NCAA champion. Other top performers include sophomore Phil Johnson, who is a two-time NCAA champion, and junior Brian Johnson, who is a three-time NCAA champion.

The Hawkeyes will face tough competition from the Oklahoma Sooners, who are also ranked No. 1 in the country. The Sooners have won the Nissen Cup for the past two years and are looking to make it three in a row.

Iowa's success in gymnastics is due in large part to its strong coaching staff, which includes David Eberle, the head coach, and assistant coaches Mark Johnson and Jim Clark. The team is also supported by a strong fan base, which has been instrumental in helping the Hawkeyes achieve success in gymnastics.

The Hawkeyes will face their biggest test of the season when they host the Sooners in the Nissen Cup on Jan. 29. The game will be a battle of two of the top teams in the country, and the winner will be crowned as the national champion.

The Hawkeyes will be looking to continue their streak of success in gymnastics and to reclaim the Nissen Cup for the third consecutive year. With a strong team and a dedicated coaching staff, the Hawkeyes are poised to make a run at the national championship once again.

China will see American football courtesy of Super Bowl telecast

DECATHLON—Super Bowl XL will be shown in China in what is likely to be the first time the major American football championship has been seen in the Far East nation, the league and network officials for the broadcast, which will be in perfect timing with New Year celebrations in early January, the company says.

The Super Bowl broadcast of the Chicago Bears victory over the New England Patriots on Sunday will be the first time football, as it’s called in China, will be televised in China, the company said.

"We thought that would be interesting and a good showcase of the way they deal with their citizens," Hughes said. "We thought this would add a little Chinese touch to this." Hughes also said the American football violence on display will be tame.

"The American game is far more violent than the Chinese game," Hughes said. "The violence that would be seen on 'Super Bowl' is far less violent than the violence that we would see on our American television screens.

"Frankly, I don’t know how you translate that," Hughes said.

"Because the bear is a symbol of the Soviet Union in China, the company will also try to give a new image to the bear," Hughes said.

"The Chinese and Russians don’t want it to have a new image," he said, "so we’re really attempting to make the game more likeable.

"It would add a little Chinese touch to the game," Hughes said.

"We don’t want to make it too foreign, too American," Hughes said.

"We think both our guys are better, but there are a lot of running backs we believe we can have down the road," Hughes said.

Madison Square Garden applauds Mullin's return

NEW YORK — Despite warnings every day was a piece of a plan. "Chris, here's a piece. Chris, where you gonna be after the game?" "Yeah, Chris."

And Chris Mullin of the Golden State Warriors made a name for himself as a basketball player in his own right. Mullin is a native of Santa Clara, California, and a star of the Golden State Warriors. He is currently the assistant coach for the Golden State Warriors.

This week, Mullin made headlines after returning to the team. It was his first appearance since he missed the last six games due to an injury. Mullin's return was met with cheers from fans and players alike.

"It was beautiful," Mullin said after the game. "I'll think they wanted the new start for 'new' start. He said he had been working hard on his return and was excited to see how it would go.

But, in many ways, this victory was not Mullin's. His shot clocked off the rim. In the same time, he became part of the game at New Orleans.

"It was good to see them," Mullin said of the Saints players in the stadium. "But it was a little homesick. It's almost like returning to a place that means a lot to me."

NEW YORK (UPI) — NBC was back on top in the ratings wars Monday when its "Cosby" show was the most popular program on the network. CBS was third, with "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" and "The Flip Wilson Show" ranking highest.

Another reason for NBC's win was the performance of "The Avengers," which had the highest numbers ever in its fourth season. The show not only won NBC's slot in the highest-rated spot, but also drew more than 60 million people making it the most-watched show since the beginning of the season.

The view of the network is that NBC is making a come-back with "Paisley Flower" and "Club Nest.

The prime-time ratings for the week ending Jan. 18, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co., was NBC with 13.5, followed by ABC with 13.1 and CBS with 10.9. The ratings are the per cent of the total audience that watched a particular show.

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Colombia Iowan has been elected to the Citizens for Better Government, a media watchdog group that issues a "press watch" on TV shows.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Controversial 'leftist' programs are under fire from a variety of organizations. The Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) is facing criticism from the left as well as the right.

Inaccuracies in Media and a variety of watchdog groups are accusing PBS of "leftist" programming and "indoctrination" of its viewers. The group said, "Congress should investigate the programming practices of the public broadcasting network."

The network's programming is "political correctness," the group added. "There is no hidden agenda at PBS."

The group also accused PBS of providing "half-truths" and "misleading information." They said the network is "indoctrinating" its viewers with "leftist" programs.

"PBS has been accused of pushing a political agenda," the group said. "Congress should look into its programming practices and hold it accountable for its actions.

Accuracy in Media said a 15-part series titled "Vietnam: A Strange History," which began on PBS in June, is inaccurate. The series documents, and is based on the book by PBS producer Roy A. Little, "The Truth as I Saw It," which was written by a former Marine who served in Vietnam.

In response to the series, Accuracy in Media and a variety of other organizations have accused the network of "leftist" programming.

"The network is not balanced," the group said. "Congress should hold PBS accountable for its programming practices.

PBS Corp., which produces the network, has refused to comment on the accusations. It said it stands by its programming practices.

"PBS is a public broadcasting network," the group said. "Congress should look into its programming practices and hold it accountable for its actions.
