Student Senate shows surprise at Perrin's resignation of office

By Pat Thomas

UT [sic] Cor. Sec. Craig Perrin resigned Thursday night to the surprise of senators, leaving some questioning his motives and wondering what he will do next.

Perrin said he was resigning because of "personal and political reasons." He said he wanted to pursue his education, but added that he had met with several senators to discuss his resignation.

Speaker Cates said Thursday that one of the reasons for his decision was his hard work for the upcoming senate election.

After the meeting, Perrin declined to say what bills he supported and which he opposed for the session.

Perrin was the only candidate for the senate meetings. He said he wanted to show his support for the Senate and will continue to work for the Senate meetings.

Senator Moeller said the resignation came as a surprise and that he will be missed in the Senate.

"Whoever is running with the Students First Party is going to have an easy campaign next year," says Craig Perrin during his resignation speech.

One senator said the administration might need to start over, while another said that it would be a missed opportunity.

Preservation group gets cool response

By Jim Spangle

High praise from many who live and work near the historic District was met with a number of questions by Preservation League members of the city's historic District.

After the announcement of several street names in the city's historic District, residents and preservationists alike questioned the group's proposal to name a number of streets after local historical figures.

"We believe it is important to preserve the history of our city, but naming streets after individuals can sometimes be controversial," said Preservation League member Sarah Smith.

The group's proposal also included the renaming of several landmarks, such as the historic Old Courthouse and the Old City Hall.

"We understand the concerns, but we believe it is important to honor the contributions of local individuals," said Smith.

The announcement of the proposal was met with mixed reactions by residents.

"I think it is a great idea," said resident John Johnson. "It is important to remember the history of our city and the people who have contributed to it.

However, others were less sure.

"I don't know if I agree," said resident Susan Brown. "It seems like it is more about politics than about preserving history.

The group has scheduled a meeting to discuss the proposal further.

"We want to make sure we are being fair to everyone," said Smith.

The group has also announced plans to hold a public hearing on the proposal.

"We want to hear from everyone," said Smith. "We want to make sure we are making the right decision for the city.

LAWRENCE WIND—The president of Iowa's three public universities—University of Northern Iowa President Joseph R. Van Allen, University of Iowa President John Golby and Iowa State University President Robert C. Bunch—met with some of the nation's corporate leaders last week to discuss the possibility of a major corporate gift to the North American Farm Management Schools.

Meanwhile, state legislators continue to wrangle over ways to raise enough money to meet the educational needs of the universities. They have begun the annual legislative session, which will run through this month or early next month, with a $40 million bill passed by the state House in January, which would increase the amount of money that the state can spend on higher education.

By Scott Walser

State Sen. William H. Kartz, R-W. 4, is trying to find a solution to the state's financial problems by raising tuition rates at the state's three public universities.

“Tuition rates at the state's three public universities—University of Northern Iowa, University of Iowa and Iowa State University—are too low,” Kartz said. “We need to raise tuition rates to ensure that these universities can provide a quality education for students.”

Kartz said that the state’s budget is too slim to cover the cost of educating students at these universities. He said that the state should consider raising tuition rates in order to ensure that these universities can provide a quality education for students.

Not-so-New Year's resolutions

THERE IS THE time of year when New Year's resolutions have given way to the familiar "F " to F " which is observed with the kind of zest usually reserved for Father's Day. The time of year when the resolutions you made in good faith last year are consigned to the trash cheeks of the last 30 to 40 years. This means that people who do it have a remarkable ability to make the same mistakes over and over again.

"We're only human and we get together", said Local 979 Business Agent Jack McCall, "We're only human and we get together to have a little fun." The Local 979 Business Agent at Hormel Foods was on hand to support the members of Local 979 to celebrate their New Year's resolution.

"I'm here today to support the members of Local 979 to celebrate their New Year's resolution.

Guest Opinion

For years, I've been a huge fan of New Year's resolutions. I make them every year, but I never keep them. This year, I decided to try something different. I'm going to make resolutions that I can actually keep.

Reading between the lines of Hormel's lies

"I'm tired of being lied to. I'm tired of being lied to by Hormel. I'm tired of being lied to about the facts of the matter."

In the last few weeks, Hormel has been making some pretty big claims about their products. They've been saying things like "Our products are the best in the world. Our products are the best in the world. Our products are the best in the world.

"But do Hormel's claims hold up? I decided to do some research to find out. I started by reviewing Hormel's website. I found some pretty interesting things. For example, they have a page called "About Us". It's filled with all sorts of claims about how great Hormel is. But when I looked more closely, I saw that many of these claims were nothing more than half-truths or outright lies.

"I decided to take a closer look at some of Hormel's products. I started with their ham. I found a report from the Food and Drug Administration that showed that Hormel hams contained high levels of sodium. But Hormel's website says that their hams are "low-sodium". This is a clear case of false advertising.

"I also looked at Hormel's meatballs. They claim that their meatballs are "homestyle". But when I tasted them, I couldn't even tell if they were meat or not. This is another example of misleading advertising.

"I could go on and on about Hormel's lies. They've been doing it for years. But I think you get the point. Hormel is a company that is not worth our trust. They don't deserve our business."

"So what should we do? We should vote with our feet. We should choose other companies that treat their customers fairly. We should support companies that tell the truth.

"In short, let's stop buying Hormel products. Let's support companies that are honest and fair. Let's make New Year's resolutions that we can keep."

The Super Bowl is held for the first time in the Super Bowl's forty-six years of existence. McMahon, a 6-foot-8, 265-pound offensive lineman, scored two touchdowns for the Vikings in their 25-21 victory over the New England Patriots.

Sunday afternoon, McMahon added another touchdown to his total score, this time on a 55-yard run. The Vikings' win marked the first time in franchise history that they had won both their postseason games.

The Vikings improved to 11-2-1 on the season and moved closer to securing a playoff berth. They will now focus on their upcoming game against the Cleveland Browns, who are also in the hunt for a playoff spot.

Frieder suggests Orr for Ohio State job

Buckeye athletic director Tom Frieder has speculated that he would have liked to have hired Ohio State basketball coach Tom Orr next season.

Orr got at Michigan six years ago to take a job at a low rate. His chief reason being more money and a feeling he was underestimated at Michigan. Frieder was surprised from Orr's exit seemed to come with little warning.

Orr said he took the job in Michigan to get into coaching at a higher level. Frieder adds that he took Michigan's offer at first but didn't take it on second thought.

That's what Michigan has been doing with his offer. They said he should take the job at Michigan. Frieder said he isn't sure the Michigan offer will come off.

Dooley: grades may affect job

New York — Georgia Tech basketball Coach Jim Dooley was quoted in the Atlanta Journal-Constitution as saying: "I can succeed into the NBA on my grades alone." But after it all, it's what he did on the court that matters.

Dooley's saying may be a bit too definitive. Some NBA scouts, in current NCAA statistics, don't actually count grade points.

Romantic Garner, gutsy Field don't gel in 'Murphy's Romance'

by Teresa Heiger

Deathly handsome Murphy (Nick Nolte), lusting after Emma (Sally Field), Lithuania! He's the rough, tough, lifestyle-loving son of the Lithuanian President; she's the shrewd, hardworking woman of Lithuanian heritage. Their seemingly unlikely relationship is a prime example of how the movies make us believe in the possibilities of love.

The opening scenes clearly establish that Emma is an independent woman who doesn't marry for love. However, Murphy, after a brief fling with Emma, chooses her in the end to be his wife. From the beginning, the viewer can hope for a happy ending. With Murphy's arrival, Emma begins to doubt her ability to earn the living, and the viewer can hope for stability in their relationship.

Murphy's Romance

Directed by Mike Field, this 1985 film is a family movie that focuses on the theme of love and marriage. The story is set in the town of Lithuania, where Emma, a strong-willed woman, has been living with her father, a Lithuanian President. When Murphy arrives in Lithuania, he is immediately drawn to Emma and she is equally attracted to him.

The view of the romance

The viewers can hope for the development of a romance between Murphy and Emma. Their love story is heartwarming and the audience can hope for a happy ending.

Box office top ten adds five new film releases

- DALLAS: Murphy's Romance topped the box office. Last week's hit, Afflecks' Eyes, showed a 7% drop in attendance. Other films, like The Best of Times, made a strong showing. In its second week, with more than $7 million in rentals, The Bad News Bears showed a 11% drop in attendance.

- OPENING SCENES: Valentines Day was the perfect day for a romance. The movie's main character, Murphy, was perfectly portrayed by Nick Nolte, and his love interest, Emma, was played by Sally Field. Farmers face oppression in UI Theatre show 'Fen'

By Mary Olan
Staff writer

T HE UNIVERSITY Theatre opened its production of Fen, tonight at 8 in the Theatre Building, Theatre A, with a cast of 11 actors. Written by Simon, the play is a sparse shop than a real art show. Cynda's their elegance.

The play is set in the early 1920s in Ireland. The family is searching for the truth behind the loss of their family farm. The play explores the struggle of the family against the oppression of the landlords and the British crown. The play is directed by John Simon, who is known for his realistic and powerful theatre productions.

The performers in the show are talented and committed to their roles, bringing the characters to life with authenticity and depth.
