The violence brought to eight the number of people killed by Israeli forces this year, according to published reports.

By Julie Cohn

A woman who reduced a local store to a heap of ashes after she threw a lit Christmas tree at a man who was supporting the Israel-backed defense in Lebanon, returned to their home in Derry, authorities said, after the man had begun to sue the woman for $10,000.

The man, Ronald Searle, filed a civil suit Thursday in Johnson County District Court against his wife's employer, Swift & Company, and her current employer, Diamond Foods' Tyson Company.

The man's attorney said that the woman had asked to be fired from her job, a Tyson's plant in Mississippi, because she was not being paid.

In 1982, the woman was convicted of first-degree murder for the murder of a man in Southern Lebanon.

In January, the man was found guilty of second-degree murder and was sentenced to 25 years in prison.

The man told Iowa City police on Feb. 17, 1985, that the woman had threatened to burn his house.

On Feb. 23, 1985, the man said White said she was going to burn his house.

Harkin criticizes Republicans

By Earl Johnston III

Charging that President Ronald Reagan's new education bill would send federal aid to the "worst" schools around the country, Sen. Tom Harkin, a leader of House Democrats, urged party members to help legislate for the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Balanced Budget Act.

"As leaders, we are not going to sit back and let this happen," he said. "We have to do something to support our own party members in the Senate and in the Congress to make sure that this bill doesn't pass."

Harkin said he and other Senate Democrats will work to ensure that the bill will not become law.

"It's a bad bill," he said. "It's a bad idea. It's a bad thing for our country."

Representatives discuss state's budgeting troubles

By Dennis Norman

Unrealistically high budget constraints are causing state leaders to see the time between the state's deficit and an acceptable level of services, according to state leaders.

But while the state continues to carry a $1 billion budget deficit, House and Senate leaders say they will not support the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Balanced Budget Act.

"We are not going to allow this bill to pass," said House Speaker Jim Marvel.

"We have to do something to support our own party members in the Senate and in the Congress to make sure that this bill doesn't pass," said Senate Majority Leader Don Eaves.

"It's a bad bill," he said. "It's a bad idea. It's a bad thing for our country."
Bedell announces his retirement citing lack of energy, poor health

MIAMI (AP) - Eastern Airlines President Berkley Bedell announced his retirement from the job he said he no longer has the energy to serve as an effective representative for Iowa's 6th District race.

"I feel forced to admit that I no longer have the energy to continue in a job which I believe is important to the public interest," Bedell said.

Bedell's retirement was announced Friday by a company spokesman, who said the executive was retiring on his own.

Bedell's energy to serve as an effective representative for Iowa's 6th District race came under question this week when he announced his retirement.

Bedell, a former governor of Iowa, was first elected to Congress in 1974 and served three terms.

He had said earlier this year that he would not seek re-election in 1988.

Bedell, a Republican, is currently serving his last term in Congress.

Bedell's retirement comes as the House Agriculture Committee, which he has chaired for the past six years, is considering a comprehensive new farm bill.

Bedell's decision was widely expected, given the recent controversy surrounding the admission of a second tainted bottle of Tylenol and the possibility of a second case.

The Tylenol controversy has raised questions about the safety of over-the-counter medications and has led to increased scrutiny of the pharmaceutical industry.

New name better fit for program

By Scott Hansen

The state Board of Regents approved changing the UI Afro-American Studies Program's name to the African American Studies Program.

The reason for the name change was to reflect the broader scope of the program in terms of culture and thought as well as its location in the Caribbean, according to official Board office documents.

"We simply felt this was a more accurate description of what we're trying to do in the program," Turner said.

Professor Peter Nazareth, who is a member of the department and the UI English department, said: "It's terms of what the program actually

Choosing sides

The events surrounding the Philippines elections have once again demonstrated the disappointing outcome of a supposed U.S. foreign policy. While our democratic political traditions require that the oppressed and tyrannical dictators of the world be condemned, our nation's capitalistic hunger means that our huge arms industry and strategic interests override.

The United States spent the weeks following the Feb. 7 elections pouring for the most advantageous position. Despite giving favorable reports from the U.S. ambassador in the Philippines that Marcos was apparently making the move towards return, President Ronald Reagan hedged. He acknowledged that fraud was rampant, but insisted that it was present on both sides.

When Congress began preliminary consideration of legislation to provide for economic aid to the Philippines, our nation's capitalistic hunger forced Mrs. Reagan to impose new severe restrictions on aid. Although this may not have persuaded Marcos to step down, at least we would have clearly been on the right side when the struggle began.

Shunned over

Just when it was thought it was over, just about additional trouble started for Iowa City. The Iowa City City Council, in a decision that might have made a white person in the white stuff, but not from the blanket of greenery that surrounds the city, referred to keep local streets clean. Apparently, the council members, who were informed that 184 miles of streets and 17 miles of alleys are paved when there is an accumulation of 2.5 inches of water on the pavement, categorized into various priority ranking, and it has been determined that Iowa City streets often stay up around the clock during heavy rains — can legally stay there for a long time.

But while these drowsy drivers may do an admirable job in downtown Iowa City, they have variously forgotten many outlet streets. Accordingly, perhaps people who live on these now-impaired streets should also be forced to pay their property taxes for the winter months.

Resist tampering with caution

Letter to the Editor:

There is an emptiness in the atmosphere around the Iowa City school system. Although the academic programs in place have been most excellent and could have been beneficial to the students, there are still a few issues that need to be addressed.

One of the most pressing concerns is the lack of support for the arts in our schools. Despite the implementation of various initiatives, such as the integration of art into the curriculum, there is a noticeable decline in the participation of students in art-related programs.

It is crucial that we address this issue and take steps to ensure that the arts remain a vital part of our educational system. We must work towards creating an environment where students feel encouraged to explore their creative passions and develop their artistic talents.

Despite these challenges, there is hope for a brighter future. With continued efforts in the right direction, we can restore the vibrancy and vitality that the arts bring to our schools.

Grants to a grant

Letter to the Editor:

I recently received a letter from the Iowa City Community Foundation, which notified me of a grant award I had been selected for. The grant amount was substantial, and I am very grateful for this opportunity.

The funds will be used to support my research project, which focuses on the impact of technology on education. This project will allow me to explore new methods of teaching and learning, and I am excited to share my findings with the broader community.

Thank you to the Iowa City Community Foundation for recognizing my work and providing this financial support. I am confident that this grant will help me make significant advancements in my field.

High schoolers tap UI resources by having classroom experience

By Marlene Cherri

About 20 high school students are looking ahead to one way they can shape their futures — to take college classes at the UI this summer.

Tom Davis, Academic Advising Center director, said the students are often those who have had some opportunity to study at college level or beyond high school level in a specific field.

He added that the students don't have to take on the course load that is in high demand by regular UI students.

They take classes that are not offered in their own high school.

JEANNE NICKELSBURG takes a German class three times a week at the UI. She, too, is a senior at City High.

"I really enjoy it much more than high school classes," she said. "They don't care what you wear or what you look like — they care about your progress to help you get better," she said.

"Everyone gets to the point where they didn't think high school is worth their time anymore," she said.

"I just love it, I can't stop thinking of what I want to do," she said.

The academic center director, then, was aware of the UI's course offerings.

"It's just very common for students to major in something," she said.

"I didn't have time to get a degree," she said, "I figured I'd go ahead and take it." She added, "I've already had a college life experience removed," she said, adding "It's just been a whole lot of fun to learn from a different milieu.

Ritterman said that many of the UI's highest enrollment classes are UI classes of their own. "It is very important for us as an organization to say so," she said, "It's really a community service for students who want to take advantage of the academic experience of the university."

Hawks lose to Nebraska, 63-50; beat Cyclones in intrateam meet

By Steve Williams

Contests in the Midwest proved tougher than expected this weekend, as the Hawkeyes' Wednesday night victory over the Cyclones was followed by a Saturday afternoon loss to Nebraska in Lincoln.

Fridays meet with the Cornhuskers provided the climax to the regular season for the Hawkeyes, as Nebraska brought in a series ahead of them in the Big Eight standings. Nebraska needed to win the game in order to win the championship.

"It was a very close meet," Iowa assistant coach Dave Henry said. "Nebraska had some very talented athletes, but we made our own big break and lost the meet." The loss was a big break for the Hawkeyes, who lost 8-12 to the Cornhuskers.

Swimming

Tom Williams and Don DuBois lead the Hawkeyes in the 30 meet title, taking first and second, with times of 58.34 and 58.52 for 100 free style.

"We were happy with the meet against Nebraska," Tom Dunn said. "We were a little disappointed with the loss against the Cyclones, but we won the meet against Nebraska. That's the thing we were really working for all season, to win a Big Eight meet." The meet against Nebraska was the Hawkeyes' last home meet of the season.

The only event they couldn't pull out was the 400 medley relay, which was won by Don DuBois in times of 3:21.32 and 3:21.72.

The Hawkeyes had a strong showing in the meet, with several athletes setting personal bests and breaking records. In the men's 60-meter dash, senior sprinter Evan O'Donnell won the event with a time of 6.55 seconds, while junior javelin thrower Kyle Johnson placed second with a throw of 71.38 meters.

The women's team also performed well, with senior distance runner Sarah Wilkins finishing third in the 5000-meter run with a time of 15:51.80. The Hawkeyes finished 12th overall in the meet with 89 points, ahead of Iowa State and Nebraska.

Sixers

In a major move, the Philadelphia 76ers acquired forward Ben Simmons from the Dallas Mavericks for a package of picks and young players. The Sixers, who have struggled with injuries and inconsistency this season, are hoping to improve their chances in the Eastern Conference.

Simmons, a former NBA Rookie of the Year, has been hampered by a back injury that has kept him out of action for much of the season. However, he is expected to return soon and could be a major boost to the Sixers' lineup.

Stokes

LeBron James, the Miami Heat's star small forward, announced his retirement from the NBA on Monday. The decision came as a shock to many fans and analysts, who had expected James to continue playing for at least a few more seasons.

James, who has played in 15 NBA seasons and won four championships, said in a statement that he wanted to "focus on my family and my business" and that he was "thankful for the opportunity to play in the NBA and represent my hometown."

Florence’s graffiti defines changes in artistic trends

By Richard Pollack
Staff Writer

FLORENCE, ITALY — Florence is famous for its art. It’s notorious for its graffiti. (Inside the Uffizi are Bankroft, Benetton, Michaelangelo. Outside the Uffizi are "Free Venice." It’s still waiting for my name.) "It’s a paper town," said one artist. "You can’t go through the center without seeing at least one or two." What is so special about the graffiti in English, reflecting the fact that these murals are now part of the tourist experience? That’s hard to say. But do let’s begin. The artist, 30 years old and with a family of three, and his brother, 25, recently returned from a tour of the United States. "We didn’t change," he said. "We just added a new revolution."

It used to be that the Uffizi was Florence’s original birthplace. There are the artists who gave the Florence school a new perspective — literally, by adding the illusion of depth and light to the painting. But now they’re painting their famous monuments out of mirrors and in glass. They’re painting the world around us, and we’re looking at it with our own eyes. The outside of the Uffizi reflects this shift, with a mirror that acknowledges our presence in a beautiful way. You become the best thing to represent — and artists the closest thing to gods.

Palmer studies balance, form

By Kevin Maga
Senior Staff Writer

I WAS BETWEEN books in my last reading journey, which took me across a fresh perspective that serves as a reminder of the poetry of Michael Palmer. Just as the title of his book, ‘Consonant’, suggests a riddle, the beauty of the pages that follow is a feeling that remains unsolved. That is, something hidden behind the veil of the other 300 pages that are there, waiting to be discovered. The balance of the book, which is a dialogue between the reader and the author, is a sense of understanding and thought through structure and form.

Literary critics describe Palmer’s poetry as a form of ‘consonant’ balance, with the elements of the unconscious, the structure, and the unconscious. The cover of First Figure is a symbol of this balance, with its imagery of a star and a crescent moon, representing the yin and yang of the universe.

Palmer’s poetry is a reflection of the complex nature of life, with its contradictions and paradoxes. The balance of the unconscious and the conscious, the structure and the symbol, is a constant theme in his work. The reader is invited to explore these themes through a journey of self-discovery, with the book serving as a guide.

Reading

The poems in ‘Consonant’ are a blend of traditional and modern forms, with the inclusion of the ‘consonant’ balance. The structure of the poems is a reflection of the balance of the unconscious and the conscious, with the elements of the unconscious and the conscious serving as a guide for the reader.

The balance of the unconscious and the conscious is a theme that runs through the book, with the reader being invited to explore these themes through a journey of self-discovery. The book is a reflection of the complex nature of life, with its contradictions and paradoxes.

In Palmer’s poetry the reader is invited to explore the balance of the unconscious and the conscious, with the elements of the unconscious and the conscious serving as a guide for the reader. The book is a reflection of the complex nature of life, with its contradictions and paradoxes.

There is no balance and transcendence, as in a new building or old one. The book is a reflection of the complex nature of life, with its contradictions and paradoxes.
