Commission finds abuse of housing policy

A 500,000 softball error is recharacterizing the state Board of Regents as well as other educational authorities in Iowa. The conference is held Thursday in Cedar Falls. The board approved a contract for mechanical and electrical services for the University of Iowa, and also rejected a proposal for a mechanical and electrical contract for a company that had been accepted by the state board.

The driver of the truck, David McCabe, was involved in a collision with a concrete wall after the truck had been accepted by the state board. But because of the allegedly incorrect bid, the board allowed a contractor to submit a lower bid than the one that had been accepted, which resulted in a mistake being made.

High school's birth control program lessens teen pregnancy

By Joan Weiner

CHICAGO - Teenagers who are having sex can't

see it coming.

Teenagers who are pregnant can't see

it coming.

Teenagers who are

having an abortion can't

see it coming.

It's a fact of life that

some young people

are going to have sex.

It's a fact of life that

some young people

are going to become parents.

It's a fact of life that

some young people

are going to get abortions.

If you don't believe

it, ask any of the 1.4

million American women

who have had an abortion

in the last 25 years.

When I went to the Office of Population

Research at the University of California-Haas School of Business last May, I found a group of students who believed that they could persuade teenagers

not to have sex.

They were the students of a seminar on the birth control program

that the University of California is making

available to high schools

throughout the state.

The students were engaged in the kind of debate that has been going on for years.

"Do we move forward with the birth control program?

Or do we continue to quote the old medical dogma and just counsel

abstinence?"

The students were

dealing with an issue

that has never been more timely.

In the last year, 200,000

teenagers gave birth.

Another 1.4 million became pregnant.

And each one of them

is a potential attendee

at a high school

birth control program.

"I'm not sure that abstinence is the answer,"

one of the students said.

"I think it's better

to share information.

I think it's better

Jihad claims photographs show French hostage has been killed

REUTERS, Beirut (UPI) - A Muslim fundamentalist group claimed on Wednesday it had kidnapped a French hostage in Beirut, and that it would kill the hostage unless France met its demands.

The group, called the Islamic Movement of Lebanon, said it had kidnapped a Frenchman, whom it identified as Michel Reiner, and held him hostage.

"We are demanding that France withdraw from Lebanon," the group said in a statement. "We will continue our struggle until France withdraws from Lebanon, and we will not spare the hostages until our demands are met.

The group also threatened to kill the hostage if France did not meet its demands, which include the release of several Muslim prisoners from French jails.

The group also said it was willing to negotiate with France, but that it would not accept any conditions that did not meet its demands.

French Foreign Ministry spokesman Jean-Pierre Larcher said the French government was aware of the situation and was taking it seriously.

"We are in constant contact with the French ambassador in Beirut," Larcher said. "We are doing everything we can to ensure the safety of the hostage.

Meanwhile, the French Foreign Ministry said it would not negotiate with the group.

"We will not negotiate with terrorists," the ministry said. "We will not give in to their demands.

The ministry also called on the international community to support its efforts to save the hostage.

"We are calling on the international community to support us in our efforts to save the hostage," the ministry said. "We are calling on all countries to support us in our efforts to save the hostage.

Meanwhile, Islamic groups in Lebanon have attacked the French government.

"We are calling on all Islamic groups in Lebanon to support us in our efforts to save the hostage," a statement from the Islamic Movement of Lebanon said. "We are calling on all of you to support us in our efforts to save the hostage.

And we will not spare the hostages until our demands are met.

Weather slows efforts to recover shuttle cabin and crew remains

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Bill Clinton, the president, said no one can reap the wage across Monday in his effort-to-recover the shuttle cabin and crew remains. He said the weather is a "complication, not actually a delay." The weather was expected to be brought to the search site by the end of the week, he said.

The US President, a former Alpine skier, was quoted as saying that the weather could be a problem. "We're trying to keep the weather under control," he said.

The situation is being closely monitored, said Clinton. "It's a national security concern, and we're working on it," he added.

"I think we're making progress," he said. "We're making progress on the weather and on the fuel." The president said that the weather is a "complication," not a "delay."

Analysis

Defining "pornography," as the Supreme Court did in Roth v. United States in 1957, is a legally acceptable term. The Supreme Court guidelines that "obscene" materials are not consensually protected, but are "merely offensive to the eye, ear, or mind" of the individual, have been consistently upheld by lower courts and state legislatures. Hence, the right of free speech, but not per se, prevails in the field of sex expression. The Constitution guarantees the freedom of speech as a guaranty of all freedom of expression, whether in picture or in words.

The law of the States is equally varied, as the individual States have different views about what is obscene. The Indiana law which was upheld by the Supreme Court in Roth v. United States in 1957, was struck down because "the right of free speech, but not per se, prevails in the field of sex expression. That right is at its lowest ebb and is not entitled to any special form of protection."

The case of Roth v. United States in 1957 was a prime example of the Supreme Court's concern with freedom of expression. It was the first case in which the Court heard arguments on the issue of pornography and obscenity. The Court's decision in that case was based on the First Amendment's guarantee of freedom of speech and expression.

The Court's definition of pornography was based on the idea that obscenity is not protected by the First Amendment, and that the government has a legitimate interest in regulating the distribution of such material. This definition has been the basis for obscenity laws in many states and has been used by the Supreme Court to strike down many laws that attempted to regulate the distribution of obscene material.

The Supreme Court has consistently upheld the freedom of speech and expression, even in cases involving pornography. In the case of Roth v. United States, the Court upheld the right of free speech, but not per se, in the field of sex expression. The Court's decision in that case was based on the First Amendment's guarantee of freedom of speech and expression. Amwrestlers compete in Iowa

By John Davenport

Chilliwack, B.C.—The 128 wrestlers competing in this week's NCAA Wrestling Tournament were all dressed in the familiar Nebraska Cornhusker colors of black and orange. The 128 wrestlers were divided into 16 weight classes, with each class having four wrestlers.

Most of the wrestlers had already arrived in town and were already on the mat for practice. The tournament is scheduled to begin on Friday and continue through the weekend.

John Davenport, a reporter for the Chilliwack Progress, was on hand to cover the tournament.

Rozelle: NFL to test for drugs

The commissioner's drug policy announcement came just moments after Chicago Bears coach Mike Ditka disclosed that he had been personally affected by the problem. Ditka's brother, Jack, died of lung cancer last week.

"It's a shame that someone as young as Jack had to die," Ditka said. "I think we can all agree that drug use in sports is a problem." Ditka said that he had been fighting drug addiction himself.

The NFL has long been under pressure from fans and players to take a stronger stance against drug use.

The league's new policy includes a drug test for all players, as well as a mandatory treatment program for those found to be using drugs.

The policy also includes stiff penalties for players found to be using drugs, including suspension and fines.

"The NFL has always taken the issue of drug use in sports very seriously," said NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue. "We believe that our policy will stop the problem at its source."

The policy is expected to be in effect by the start of the 1994 season.
Oakland A's slugger looking for big year

PHOENIX (AP) — Dave Kingman, outfielder for the Oakland Athletics, is looking for a big year. His goal is to hit 40 or more home runs.

"I've never hit more than 30 home runs in a season," Kingman said. "I've never hit more than 30 home runs in a season. I've never hit more than 30 home runs in a season."

Kingman, a 12-year veteran of the majors, has never hit more than 30 home runs in a season. He hit 23 last season for the Athletics.

Skiles named conference player of the year

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) - The most voted player in the Big Ten is also the most respected. Michigan State forward Scott Skiles, subdued by verbal abuse and detractors during his college career whenever he had a chance to shine, has been voted by conference coaches as the Big Ten Player of the Year.

The choice of the Big Ten scoring champion, who averaged 25.1 points during the conference season and 27.7 overall, was announced Monday.

Last year's MVP, Michigan senior Roy Tarpley, and Indiana junior Bobby Plump also earned All-American honors from the Big Ten coaches. Illinois forward Dan Plavcan was named the Outstanding Freshman of the Year.

"It's quite an honor," Skiles said from a hotel room in the Motor City. "It's not too far away from the classroom. Because the coaches in this league are at the top of their profession."

Skiles hit the most mentally tough player the Big Ten has seen in years, perhaps ever. The Hawkeyes' 6-foot-4 Englishman hit a 3-pointer with the Iowa lead down to one Saturday afternoon, and nearly had one more, leaving them a far cry from the leaders.

Indiana and Michigan early Friday, and medley moved Iowa in front of both two of them) they were overshadowed by.

"It's a long shot," Skiles said with a laugh, running away from the coaches. Because the Iowa coach in this league is at the top of their profession.

"I've never seen any player subjected to more abuse than such a prolonged period of time as Scott Skiles. Michigan Athletic Director Don Canham said.

"He took it with the joy ever dog associates at the Iowa State Center in Plymouth, Ind. Skiles has showed himself to be a great human being, someone who not only convinced him but would have volunteered to put the mark around his neck."
