Expense of senate race ‘out of line’

By Kent Breshar

Salt Lake City - The cost of campaigning for the U.S. Senate seat has grown out of hand, the two major candidates for the seat have said.

“Too many people are spending too much money on the election,” President Joe Biden said today. “It’s time to end the crazy spending on this race.”

Biden said the candidates should focus on issues rather than spending money on advertising and campaigning.

During the campaign, the candidates have spent millions on advertising and campaigning, to the point where some residents are calling the race “out of line.” The two major candidates are incumbent Senator Orrin Hatch and former Governor Gary Hart.

“Rutgers University researchers analyzed the impact of advertising and campaigning on political candidates,” Hatch said. “We have to stop this kind of spending and start focusing on the issues.”

Other expenses include travel, mailings, purchasing newspaper advertisements and hiring field workers.

Many of these expenses have been paid for by the candidates themselves, said Hatch.

“The expense of running a campaign has gotten out of control,” said Hatch. “It’s time for candidates to focus on the issues, not on spending money.”

UI Campus Security arrested Tamil student while teaching lecture

By Barbara Bransford

UI Campus Security has been criticized for its handling of the incident. Some students have called for the university to take action.

Expending money on the election is “out of line,” said Hatch. “We have to stop this kind of spending and start focusing on the issues.”

Other expenses include travel, mailings, purchasing newspaper advertisements and hiring field workers.

Many of these expenses have been paid for by the candidates themselves, said Hatch.
Reorganization bill set for vote

United Press International

DOUGLAS — Following weeks of negotiation, the Iowa Senate Representatives decided to move the bill for a final vote Monday evening.

Sen. Lloyd-Jones, sponsor of the reorganization bill, said he was pleased with the outcome.

"I think the House and Senate have worked very well together on this bill," Jones said.

The bill, which would create a single, unified university system, passed the House last week and now goes to the governor's desk.

Criminal documents cleared

A judge in New York Monday denied a request for a rehearing order, clearing up a long-running dispute over the release of criminal documents that resulted in the arrest of former President Fidel Castro.

The federal judge had decided to release the documents in October, but the government appealed the decision.

The decision Monday clears the way for the release of the documents, which were sought by a group of Cuban-Americans who allege that Castro is responsible for the deaths of thousands of Cubans.

Shuttle debris

The space shuttle Challenger was launched on its final flight Monday evening.

NASA officials said the shuttle erupted in flames and was destroyed by the explosion.

McDonald's

The McDonald's food chain, which is reported to be up by 20% over last year, announced that it will be donating $1 million to a local charity.

The Rev. Richard Andrews, a Cedar Rapids minister, said recently that he has allegedly contacted AIS while being treated for hemophilia at the UI Hospital. Andrews, however, has never officially stated he has contacted either the disease through six months of prayers.

But while this seems an appropriate, albeit corny, statement, a member of the clergy, Andrews, claims is simply not true. Why? Because he never had the disease at all.

As Andrews noted positive in the Sunday Times, but a real problem is noted for antiheprositive states when the disease either.

What's more, the UI Hospitals at no time delivered a report to the state health department stating that Andrews did, in fact, have the disease. Under state law, the UI Hospitals are required to report all such cases to health officials.

Meanwhile, Andrews has been the main architect of the sessions that surround the disease, particularly the sessions dealing with those cases that had no chance of cure, who apparently should not be present, are "sense" when they realize they were present.

Aquino may assume emergency powers

BONLA, Philippines (AP) - A leading opposition group is threatening to assume emergency powers next week, claiming that the government has failed to stop the rise in prices and the loss of jobs.

The group, known as the National Democratic Front of the Philippines, has been demanding the resignation of President Corazon Aquino, who is also facing pressure from within her own party. The group said it would take over the government if Aquino refuses to step down.

Consequently, Aquino may have to seek a military coup to save her government. She has already faced criticism from the military for her lack of action on the economic crisis.

Meanwhile, a poll conducted by the state-owned ABS-CBN television showed that 61% of Filipinos wanted Aquino to resign, up from 56% in a survey conducted a week earlier.

The opposition group said it would immediately start preparations to assume emergency powers under the provisions of the 1987 Constitution, which allow the president to declare martial law and take over the government in times of crisis.

Aquino, who has been in power since the fall of the Marcos regime, has been facing increasing pressure to resign as the country's economic crisis deepens. The government has been criticized for its failure to bring down the high prices, which have driven many Filipinos into poverty.

It has already started preparations to assume emergency powers under the provisions of the 1987 Constitution, which allow the president to declare martial law and take over the government in times of crisis.

UI opts for in-house workers

BY LEO VANHORN

As has been announced by the Iowa City, Iowa, Employees Association, said Monday, 'I'd be willing to wager anybody dollars to doughnuts the private company is going to be able to give the institution a better price,' said Jared VanHorn.

VanHorn said using private contractors for UI construction projects would be more efficient than continuing the work in-house.

"It's a matter of time," he said. "We're concerned that the board of regents doesn't think that the private company should be given the opportunity to seek competitive bids which could lead to more in-house personnel," VanHorn said.

In answering university employees on construction projects existing more than $50,000 must have been approved. Despite a letter of objection from the university to the regents approving the work, part of the work was completed.

UI Vice President for Finance Dennis Ellis said using plant employees wouldn't be more efficient than continuing the work in-house.

"I really don't think there's any question of whether the board is going to give the institution a better price," VanHorn said. "I think the board is going to give the institution the best price, but I think it's going to be the most efficient thing to do and that's what we're getting."
