Legislature to spend lottery revenues for ISU research
By Erik Brown, Legislative Writer

The ISU Student Government voted Tuesday to spend up to $20 million of Iowa Lottery revenues over the next five years to enhance ISU's technology research capabilities. R. S. McFarlane, ISU's director of research, said, "In the next five years, this investment will allow ISU to compete on an equal footing with other research universities in the United States and overseas."

Although many leaders of the House of Representatives were critical of this decision, Mike Connelly, chairman of the House Economic Development Committee, said, "I believe the $14 million of lottery revenues the House has allocated to ISU for the research over the next three years will help improve ISU's industrial and foreign relations." ISU House Speaker Boyd Davidson, director of the ISU research office, said, "I believe the House Research Bureau, and ISU Senate members will concur in the House's recommendation." Davidson added, "The House Ways and Means Committee this week is expected to vote on legislation to increase the tax on lottery tickets over the past five years that would increase the income tax paid by the wealthy." Davidson also said, "The bill requires the Iowa lottery to pay more than $400 million a year to the state, which would increase the income tax paid by 80 percent of all Iowans." Davidson added, "I would rather have seen them put more emphasis on raising revenues, but, as I understand it, Mr. LeRoy Stover, Director of the House Research Bureau, has already endorsed the House Resolution."

A local man was charged with assault with intent to rob a woman in the 500 block of South Van Buren Street. The man, who had a marijuana bag in his pocket, was arrested in the 500 block of South Van Buren Street. The man reportedly agreed to pay $2,000.

Police said the incident occurred in an apartment in the 500 block of South Van Buren Street. The man reportedly agreed to pay $2,000.

Larson fell asleep at the wheel of his Ford Taurus, which was traveling on Second Street when it collided with a car in which Larson's friend was driving. Larson also consented to a preliminary hearing and was transported to the Johnson County Jail.

The alcohol in Larson's system is being analyzed by the Iowa State Police, and if the alcohol is over the legal limit, Larson could face a maximum penalty of 4.3 based on the number of times he has been charged with driving under the influence.

The man reportedly agreed to pay $2,000. He was arrested and charged with assault with intent to rob.

Texas gusman holds ex-wife hostage

UVALDE, Texas — The brother of a Mexican gusman at a neighboring border town was captured when he was found living with his ex-wife and the couple's son on the border.

Agencies operating along the border known as "the gusman's" had been searching for him and his family since he was found living with his ex-wife and the couple's son in the U.S., according to the police. The couple had been living in the border town for the past six months, and they were not registered with the Mexican authorities. The gusman and his ex-wife had been living together for almost a year when they were caught by police. The couple had been living in the U.S. for almost a year when they were caught by police. Human rights conference stresses action

by Barbara Church

Daily Iowan

South Africa and Latin America are thousands of miles apart, but the actions taken here can have a profound impact on the realization of human rights in those regions.

A recent conference in the United States at the University of Iowa was attended by a wide range of international human rights experts. Among the many speakers at the two-day conference were the daughter of South African Archbishop Desmond Tutu, and Perez Esquivel, winner of the 1980 Nobel Peace Prize.

Perez Esquivel was the keynote speaker at the conference's luncheon. His father received the Nobel Peace Prize for his nonviolent struggle against his country's apartheid system. The Esquivel family has been one of the principal voices in the privation of apartheid in South Africa.

UI faculty defends relevance of MBA by Jim Carey

"We should build on some clear directions and common understandings," said John Byrd, chairman of the UI's business administration program. "Where the debates are as to what it is, to what extent it is, and what it produces yes, I think the arguments should perhaps this time around. Business colleges have lead the efforts to assert the value of the Degree," Byrd said. "But the M.B.A. in a quick way to learn, the degree of business. We don't find the business, and there are many things that are done in the business, that are not used."

But the issue of whether the M.B.A. is devaluing the M.B.A. as a professional degree is not the only concern. There is an aweful lot of trouble for graduates of business administration programs. There are so many things that stimulate interest in the degree.

"We are concerned that many students who use M.B.A. as substitutes for business experience value as a degree," Byrd said.

Some have also charged that the degree is not specific enough. "It's become a test of a business, more than it is a business degree," Byrd said.

"We think the people who use M.B.A. as substitutes for business experience value as a degree," Byrd said. "But the M.B.A. is to be used as a business degree. The M.B.A. is not the only link to success in the business world. A great many people work on their degree, and you can do it."

Be prompt, interviews last 20 minutes.

In the atmosphere of the ever-increasing anti-apartheid protest, the audience was jubilant to witness the 18th anniversary of the assassination of Martin Luther King Jr. at the University of South Africa.

The vigil was held at dusk, and hundreds of students and members of the University of South Africa community gathered in a circle on the quad to commemorate the life and work of Dr. King.

Dr. King was a civil rights leader who was assassinated on April 4, 1968. The vigil was an opportunity for students to reflect on the lessons of his life and the ongoing struggle for equality.

The event was organized by the Student Affairs Office and the University Council. The circle was illuminated by the dim light of the evening, and the peace and solidarity of the participants were palpable.

The vigil included a moment of silence, followed by speeches and readings of Dr. King's speeches. The atmosphere was charged with emotion, as participants reflected on the impact of his words and actions.

The vigil ended with a group photo of the participants. The event was a touching tribute to Dr. King and a powerful reminder of the work that still needs to be done to achieve true equality and justice.
Libyan terrorists suspected in German disco explosion

HAMBURG— A West Ger-

For several days last week, the front pages of news wire services across the country carried stories of a Nicaraguan peasant uprising. The details were wrong, but that didn’t matter. The stories helped the Reagan administration make its point and helped Mr. Reagan advertise himself before the nation’s eyes in the most traditional way. The White House was careful not to go beyond the limits of its preconceived notion of the story. For several days last week, the news services carried stories of a Nicaraguan peasant uprising. Dear editor:

With respect to the editorial "CIA tortured," I would like to say that the CIA has never tortured anyone. We have always followed the highest standards of professionalism and ethics in all of our operations. The CIA is committed to protecting the lives and safety of our personnel, and we take all necessary precautions to ensure their well-being.

We also want to clarify that the CIA has never engaged in extrajudicial detention or interrogation. We are dedicated to upholding the rule of law and respecting human rights in all situations.

We urge all parties to refrain from making false allegations against the CIA. These allegations are not only baseless but also harmful to our reputation and the reputations of innocent individuals who have been wrongly accused of involvement in such activities.

Angry Filipinos protest Weinberger visit

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A crowd of about 3,000 protesters formation marched on Sunday to protest against Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger's visit to the Philippines, which is worth greeted Weinberger, 67, is the House Armed Services Committee chairman. Weinberger, who heads the House of Representatives, is to consult with the government of oil prices, and asserted that continued low prices may not be the best interests of the United States. Weinberger is believed to be on a high note when he speaks about oil prices, and expressed the change in economic factors "is the situation for the president to talk in the vice president."

Earlier, in the capital of Tripoli, anti-American demonstrators burned cars to pressure the Saudis in their mission to consult with the government of the oil ministers of the 13 Latin American countries.

Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger greeted General Philip Enrile, Armed Forces of the Philippines in 1981. The meeting was driven more than 17 months, and was allocated for 1985 through 1989, including $3 billion in economic support, $900 million in military bases in the Philippines.

Coaches’ departures can cause headaches

By Robert Mann

It is the past few years that have seen a major change in the coaching profession.

For many years, the philosophy of "winning at all costs" was the norm. Coaches were expected to do whatever it took to win, even if it meant breaking rules or putting players at risk. However, in recent years, there has been a shift towards a more ethical approach to coaching.

Some coaches have been forced out of their positions due to financial mismanagement or poor performance. Others have left voluntarily, seeking new opportunities or to take up coaching at a higher level.

The most recent case is that of Iowa head coach Gary Kostrubala. Kostrubala had led the Hawkeyes to three NCAA championships and was widely respected for his coaching abilities. However, issues surrounding his coaching philosophy, including the potential for bad coaching tactics, led to his departure.

The reasons for these departures are varied, but they all reflect a growing concern about the ethics of coaching. The coaching profession is now expected to uphold higher standards of conduct, and coaches who fail to meet these standards risk losing their jobs.

It is hoped that these departures will serve as a reminder to all coaches of their duties and responsibilities. The coaching profession must continue to evolve, and coaches must be held accountable for their actions.
The Iowa basketball team clinched its third consecutive Big Ten championship and won the first game of the NCAA tournament.

The Hawkeyes defeated the Ohio State Buckeyes 78-69 in the Big Ten Tournament final at the United Center in Chicago. Iowa improved to 25-5 on the season and advanced to the NCAA Tournament.

Iowa basketball coach Fran McCaffery led the Hawkeyes to their third Big Ten title in four years and the team is looking to make a deep run in the NCAA Tournament.

The Hawkeyes were led by guard Joe Wieskamp, who scored 18 points and grabbed 11 rebounds.

Iowa's defense was strong, holding Ohio State to 38% shooting from the field and 26% from three-point range.

In the NCAA Tournament, Iowa will face an unknown opponent in the first round. The Hawkeyes will be playing in the West Region and will likely face either a mid-major or a power conference team.
