Tom Davis nets UI coaching job

By Dan Millea
Staff Writer

UI President James O. Freedman formally named Stanford University's Tom Davis as the new Iowa men's basketball coach at a press conference in Carver-Hawkeye Arena Sunday afternoon, welcoming him to what has become one of the most high pressure jobs in collegiate sports.

Davis replaces George Raveling, who left Iowa City for a similar position at the University of Southern California last month because of personal reasons involving the pressure and notoriety associated with the Iowa post.

Raveling had succeeded Lute Olson just three years before, after Olson departed to the University of Arizona because of similar difficulties.

"I think it's good to make a lot of that issue," Davis said of the pressure that comes with the Iowa job, "because I think it's something we're facing all over the country today."

"The people of Iowa and the people who support the university shouldn't feel like it's just unique to this university or to this area, but we have some pressures that are going to be unique to this state for obvious reasons."

TWO MAJOR factors that contribute to the high-profile of the Iowa position are believed to be the absence of professional teams in the state and the fact that few aspects of Iowa life are able to draw attention away from the Hawkeyes. That helped make Olson and Raveling statewide celebrities, perhaps against their wishes.

"It concerns me," Davis admitted of the instant notoriety. "I've got to work hard to keep a sane way of life as much as I can. I think I'll have to be able to step back from my profession on a day-to-day basis."

According to Athletic Director Bump Elliott, Davis signed on for five years at $75,000 per year, about $10,000 more than what Raveling was reportedly making. In addition, money from speaking engagements and television and radio talk shows are likely to push Davis' annual earnings above the $200,000 mark.

DAVIS PLANS to employ a running style of offense and a pressure defense, and he said the fact that the Iowa players fit in well with that philosophy helped lure him to Iowa City.

"I would say that my style of play is based first on the fast break, but at the same time I want discipline," Davis said. "There are certain times in the game when you have to be able to get the ball in the hands of the right player."

"The bottom line is, what do the kids want to play? And that was one of the things that Sophomore guard Bill Jones, who started much of last season, said he does not expect a rough transition.

"I've been here for two years and I've become accustomed to Raveling," Jones said, "but (adjusting) shouldn't be too difficult (Raveling's style) is pressuring and running and using your athletic ability. I hope the new coach brings that on."

Freedman lauded Davis as a man committed to both athletics and academics, and as the candidate he felt offered the most to the position.

"I have been impressed with the fact that (Davis) has been an outstanding basketball coach," Freedman said, "and I have been impressed with the fact that he holds a (doctorate) degree."

Davis, 47, is originally from Wisconsin and has spent much of his life in the Midwest. He lettered all four years in basketball at Wisconsin-Platteville, a National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics school where he majored in History.

AFTER SIX YEARS as a high school coach in Wisconsin and Illinois, Davis enrolled at the University of Maryland where he earned a doctorate in physical education while also serving as an assistant coach of the Terapins.

In 1971 he became head coach at Lafayette where he compiled a 116-44 mark before being hired by Boston College in 1977. Davis took the Eagles to the National Invitation Tournament once and to the NCAA Tournament twice, reaching the regional title game in 1982 before losing to Houston, 99-92.

Following that loss Davis was hired by Stanford, where he compiled a 58-59 mark in four seasons. In his 15 years as a collegiate head coach, Davis is 274-150.

Davis is married and has a 14-year-old son.

really interested me in this position, that everyone just raved about the kids in the program (saying), 'Oh, those kids can really run.'"

Among those who urged Davis to take the position were ex-Iowa and current Oregon State Coach Ralph Miller and North Carolina State Coach Jim Valvano, whose Wolfpack knocked the Hawkeyes out of the NCAA Tournament last month. A third recommendation came from an unlikely source: Olson.

"I don't know that I ever would have been involved with this job if it wasn't for Lute Olson," Davis said. "Lute just raved about this position, about Iowa City, about the university and about his days here."

ALTHOUGH he will not meet the current Iowa players until sometime today, Davis predicted they will not have much difficulty adjusting to his style because it is so similar to Raveling's.

Iowa City, Sheller-Globe rift ends with plant expansion

By Brian Lott
Staff Writer

In the world of big business it can often be difficult to let bygones be bygones.

But officials from Iowa City's Sheller-Globe plant — who recently paid Iowa City about $38,000 to compensate for damage to the city's wastewater treatment facility — appear to be doing just that.

Last week company officials announced they plan to go ahead with $4 million of plant modifications, a move they say represents "a cooperative effort" between the Ohio-based automotive supplier and Iowa City. They also say it demonstrates a commitment to Iowa City's future.

Sheller-Globe recently completed a study of alternative production methods for automotive safety products used in vehicle interiors. As a result, the company decided to go ahead with modifications that would make the Iowa City plant more efficient.

"BASICALLY WE WENT around to plants in Europe and Japan and looked at the types of processes and process-flows they were using," said Iowa City Plant Manager Kenneth Chaloupek. "We came back and used some of the ideas we saw on those particular trips and in those particular plants to model our own."

The company's plans call for a two-year restructuring of the plant's production structure — from a "process-oriented" to a "product-oriented" flow.

"There'll be a reorganization of manpower," Chaloupek said. "This (plant) is the primary target, as far as Sheller-Globe is concerned. It's not necessarily new equipment, it's just being able to use the equipment we have in a more efficient manner."

But while the company's new programs mark a significant investment in the city's future economic well-being, it has been only two weeks since the lawsuit between the two parties was resolved.

"WE REACHED a mutual agreement with the city, as far as the settlement is concerned," Chaloupek said. "It's not something that came about pretty lightly. We spent close to a year working on the settlement of this."

In 1981, city officials alleged that chemicals from the Sheller-Globe plant infiltrated the city's sewer system, destroying organisms that live in the system and that aid in the processing of untreated sewage.

UI Hospitals sued by critical 'consumers'

By Dana Cohen
Staff Writer

The UI Hospitals are facing 35 lawsuits from dissatisfied patients, a figure one local attorney said is about twice the number filed five years ago.

The Iowa City attorney attributes the upsurge of lawsuits being filed against the hospitals to "consumerism."

UI Hospitals patients are demanding perfection in their hospital care, said the attorney who frequently represents the hospitals in lawsuits, but asked not to be identified.

"We are now in an age of consumerism," he explained. "If you go to a pizza parlor and

This is the first in a series of articles examining the impact of the legal system on the UI Hospitals.

don't like the pizza, you raise hell," he said, adding that it is easy to say "somebody must have done something wrong."

"IF YOU DON'T see perfectly after a glaucoma operation, the ophthalmologist must have screwed up," he continued.

"People are expecting perfection and if they don't get it, they don't hesitate to sue," he said.

But another local defense attorney disputed that the number of lawsuits filed against the hospitals is unusual.

"If you look at suits filed over the last seven to eight years, I would think they go in cycles," Iowa City attorney James Hayes said.

While doctors at the hospitals are covered by a separate insurance company, they are not required to pay for their lawsuit coverage personally.

Iowa law provides that UI

Hospitals is an arm of the state government and therefore covered by chapter 25-A of the State Tort Claim Act, which says that under certain circumstances the state can be sued for acts of negligence.

THE STATE is therefore responsible for all malpractice suits filed against the UI Hospitals and its physicians.

If any staff physician's lawsuit exceeds $1 million, the state is required to pay the difference, according to assistant Attorney General John Scott.

In fiscal year 1984 to 1985, the state lost about $88,000 in lawsuits. The UI Hospitals insurance company paid approximately $340,000 in hospital lawsuits, Scott said.

While Scott admitted the number of suits filed this year are "probably higher" compared to last he anticipated the amount of money lost would be about the same.

But he said he could not project the amount of money to be lost this year in lawsuits by the hospitals because there are too many cases currently pending.

Some notable recent cases against the UI Hospitals include:

• A civil suit filed by Jacqueline Renee Sexton alleging that two doctors recommended that she have an abortion without first determining if her fetus was dead or alive.

According to the suit she refused to have the abortion and requested an ultrasound examination.

After the ultra-sound examination, the suit said a doctor told her that her fetus was dead. She was carrying a live fetus and later gave birth to a daughter, court records state.

• A $40,000 judgement handed down against the hospitals saying a UI surgical team was ruled negligent in failing to timely diagnose and treat Matthew J. Eckerman for phlebitis, a condition marked by inflammation of the veins.

The suit said Eckerman later developed a phlebotic condition that left him disabled.

McFarlane: Terrorism demands force

LOS ANGELES — Former national security advisor Robert McFarlane said Sunday the United States has been too cautious in dealing with terrorism and should exercise its right to strike first.

"Moving effectively, with strength, is particularly difficult," McFarlane said. "But we are being cautious, probably to a fault. We must overcome our lack of understanding of this scourge and put aside the romantic notion of giving terrorists the benefit of the doubt."

McFarlane, who spoke Sunday at a conference on international terrorism sponsored by the Simon Wiesenthal Center, said people need to understand that the United States has a "legal and moral right to move pre-emptively against terrorists."

Chemical blaze prompts evacuations

DOLTON, Ill. — Fire engulfed a chemical plant Sunday, sending clouds of toxic smoke into the air and forcing the evacuation of 2,000 residents within a half-mile radius, police said. No injuries were reported.

Thick black smoke and balls of fire shot into the air as firefighters from 10 south-Chicago suburbs battled the three-alarm blaze for two hours before bringing it under control, officials said.

Two employees were in the McKesson Chemical plant when the fire started at about 10 a.m. but escaped safely, firefighter Paul Kiple said. Evacuated residents were allowed to return to their homes at 1:45 p.m., officials said.

Soviet Union expected to join Interpol

LONDON — The Soviet Union, which officially holds that no crime exists under its socialist system, is expected to join the 138-member international police organization, Interpol, to combat growing domestic crime, particularly drug abuse, The Sunday Times said.

The newspaper said the Soviets have begun to admit an increasing crime rate, and disclosed during a United Nations drug conference in February "that a drug addiction problem existed in Soviet society."

"I believe it is only a short time before the Soviet Union applies to join Interpol," the newspaper quoted Raymond Kendal, secretary general of the Paris-based organization, as saying. "They are beginning to acknowledge that they have a problem."

Americans injured when bus crashes

TORONTO — A chartered bus carrying 40 Americans to the Toronto Zoo crashed into a chain-link fence Sunday, injuring 23 people, including two who were impaled on a rail that smashed through the windshield, police said.

Five people, including two children, were seriously injured when the bus ran off the road and crashed on Queen Elizabeth Way about 8 miles west of Toronto in the suburb of Mississauga.

It was one of two Blue Bird Coach Lines buses carrying the Buffalo, N.Y., adult students and their children from Erie County Community College to the Toronto Zoo. The Ontario Provincial Police were investigating the accident but had not yet determined a cause.

More British troops may go to Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Britain is ready to send more troops into Northern Ireland to quell escalating Protestant violence directed at police and firefighters, Britain's chief minister in Northern Ireland warned Sunday.

Northern Ireland Secretary Tom King's warning came after Protestant extremists, apparently angered by a recent Anglo-Irish accord, attacked and firebombed the homes of 16 police officers and fought weekend street battles with police and firefighters.

King told an interviewer Sunday there were no plans to boost the 10,600 British troops now in the British-ruled province, but that Margaret Thatcher's government would not hesitate to send reinforcements if violence continues.

Texas gunman holds ex-wife hostage

EULESS, Texas — The brother of a Polynesian gunman helped police Sunday negotiate with the man who has been holding his ex-wife bound and gagged for almost two days in a convenience store, officials said.

The gunman, identified as Malone "Maron" Mataele, 27, a jobless waiter from the South Pacific island of Tonga, entered the Kwik Pantry store where his ex-wife worked at 9 p.m. Friday and pulled a gun.

Minutes later, Mataele shot and wounded a police officer responding to a silent alarm, officials said, beginning the 2-day-old siege.

One of Mataele's two unidentified brothers at the scene remained inside the store Sunday afternoon to help police negotiators, police Capt. Tommy Free said. The gunman has not talked to police in recent hours, Free said, but officers were contacting the brother by telephone every few minutes.

Legislature to spend lottery revenues for ISU research

By Kirk Brown
Legislative Writer

DES MOINES — Leadership of the Iowa Senate Friday announced plans to spend at least $20 million in Iowa Lottery revenues over the next four years to enhance Iowa State University's biotechnology research capabilities.

Meanwhile, Imperial Chemical Industries, an England-based bio-technology firm, moved a step closer to finalizing plans to build a major research facility near the ISU campus by announcing an additional 20 scientists will begin working at a company office near Ames.

Although Sen. Art Small, D-Iowa City, said the $20 million funding commitment represents a "profound change in attitude" among legislators, a key member of the Iowa House of Representatives voiced skepticism.

Rep. Mike Connelly, D-Dubuque, chairman of the House Economic Development Committee, said he believes the $14 million in lottery revenues the House has allocated for bio-technological research during the next three years should be sufficient to lure Imperial Chemical to Iowa.

House Speaker Rep. Donald Avenson, D-Oelwein, said negotiations between House and Senate members will continue in an effort to reach a compromise.

The House Ways and Means Committee this week is expected to vote on legislation that would increase the income tax paid by the wealthiest Iowans.

The bill calls for Iowans who earn more than $40,000 annually to pay more income tax beginning next year. But the measure would lower the maximum tax rate from 13 percent to 9.75 percent.

In addition to eliminating the deductibility of federal income taxes, the bill would result in either a reduction or no change in the income tax paid by 80 percent of all Iowans.

"I would rather have seen them get serious and look at reforms such as removing loopholes," said House Minority Leader Delwyn Stroemer, R-Garner, in response to the package the Democratic leadership has investigated.

Police

A local man was charged with assault with intent to commit serious injury by Iowa City police after he assaulted another man at a party early Saturday.

Police arrested David Earl Terrel, 26, of 365 Koser Ave.

The victim was transported to UI Hospitals, where he was treated for facial lacerations and a possible facial fracture, according to reports.

The incident occurred in an apartment complex in the 500 block of Bowersy Street.

Theft report: Property worth more than $1,500 was reported stolen from a local railroad yard to Iowa City police Friday.

Dennis Henderson, 115 Wright St., told police that seven pieces of traction motor axle brass were taken from the site, near the intersection of South Van Buren and Webster streets. The theft reportedly occurred April 2.

Police reports did not indicate what the brass items are used for. The incident is under investigation.

Arrests: Two UI students were charged with tampering, criminal trespass and public intoxication after Iowa City police apprehended them in trucks outside the United States Post Office, 400 S. Clinton St., early Friday.

Charges were filed against Jeffrey Swano, 21, 118 E. Prentiss St., and James Siebert, 21, 316 Ridgeland Ave. The two were apparently discovered inside postal trucks.

U.S. postal authorities were notified by police and federal charges may be pending, according to police documents.

Assault report: A local man reported to Iowa City police that he was assaulted early Saturday near the intersection of Iowa and Dubuque Streets. The victim was treated at UI Hospitals. No other information was available.

Report: Tammy Regal, 520 S. Johnson St., reported to Iowa City police Saturday morning that her car had been smeared with blood overnight. Reports state the substance was smeared on the car following a fight outside Regal's apartment and that neighboring residents were responsible.

Burglary reports: Iowa City police are investigating a burglary that took place at the home of Pramod Thanedar, 227 E. Washington St., on Thursday. Taken were a tube of toothpaste and $25 cash.

On Saturday, an employee of Chuck Smith Body Shop, 1216 Gilbert Court, reported to police that the establishment was burglarized. Police are investigating the incident. No other details were available.

Michael Laronde, 1512 Broadway St., reported to Iowa City police that his car was burglarized Saturday while parked.

A Minnesota truck driver was found guilty on two counts of involuntary manslaughter Friday after being involved in an accident last summer that killed two Iowa City residents.

Sylvester James Larson, 66, Lafayette, Minn., unintentionally caused the death of Shirley Lekin, 52, formerly of 923 Rider St. and Anthony Stanfield, 16, formerly of 415 1/2 Bowersy St., when Larson's semi collided with the vehicle on Second Street near 20th Ave. in Coralville, according to court records.

Larson fell asleep at the wheel of his truck, causing it to collide with a car in which Lekin and Stanfield were riding, stated the ruling made Thursday by Johnson County District Judge John Sladek.

LARSON FACES a maximum of two years in prison and a possible $5,000 fine for each charge. Sladek said he is uncertain if the sentences will run concurrently. The department of correctional services will conduct a pre-sentence investigation, and Sladek scheduled the sentencing for May 30.

Larson was also in violation of federal motor carrier safety violations because he had slept only three to three-and-a-half hours the evening before the accident.

Several beer containers were found in the cab of the semi in a cooler on the floor, including one container that was opened and partially consumed near Larson, court records state. Larson also consented to a chemical test that showed him to have an alcohol concentration of 4.3 based on the number of grams per 100 milliliters of blood.

The alcohol in Larson's system increased the likelihood of falling asleep, the ruling stated.

Charles Edward Phillips, 27, Lot 514 Indian Lookout Trailer Court, made his initial appearance on an assault charge in Johnson County District Court Friday.

According to court records, Phillips was charged last month when he assaulted another man without intent, but he did cause the man bodily injury. Phillips allegedly struck the man in the head, causing bruises and several of the man's teeth to loosen. Johnson County Sheriff's officials charged Phillips at Regency Trailer Court, Highway 923.

Phillips' preliminary hearing has been scheduled for April 14.

South Africa and Latin America are thousands of miles from Iowa City.

But actions taken here can have an effect on the condition of human rights in those nations, speakers told hundreds of listeners at the Human Rights in the Global Community colloquium held this weekend in the new UI law building.

Among the many speakers at the two-day conference were the daughter of South African Bishop Desmond Tutu and Adolfo Perez Esquivel, 1980 Nobel Peace Prize winner. Naomi Tutu Seavers was the keynote speaker at the conference's Saturday luncheon.

Seaver's father received the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts at changing South Africa's apartheid system. She is also highly involved in fighting the Pretoria regime's apartheid policy through peaceful methods.

Adolfo Perez Esquivel

She stated the theme of her talk in her native language, and repeated it in English: "A person is a person through other people."

"In the broader context of the world," she said, "a person cannot oppress, ridicule or despise another without oppressing, ridiculing and despising themselves."

She said oppressors can be seen all around the world, living well and apparently suffering no consequences for all the suffering they impose on others. But looks can be deceiving.

"I don't know much about other societies," she said, "but I can speak about my homeland, and I can tell you white people suffer in a very concrete way for our oppression."

"The white South Africans are so busy oppressing us and guarding their privilege that they have less and less occasion to enjoy that privilege," she said.

ON FRIDAY, Argentine human rights activist Adolfo Perez Esquivel, winner of the 1980 Nobel Peace Prize, asked an audience of more than 300 to join hands to look for a solution to Latin American problems.

Speaking of present and past problems, Perez Esquivel said United States policy toward Latin America must be altered.

"We must change this policy of aggression to a policy of cooperation," he said.

Esquivel has devoted his life to the human rights struggle since 1974, when he became general coordinator of the Service for Peace and Justice, a church-based network of organizations working for social justice in Latin America through nonviolent means.

His denunciations of government atrocities led to his arrest in April 1977. He was imprisoned without trial for 15 months and where he reports being tortured at the hands of Argentina's military dictatorship.

ESQUIVEL BLAMED large loans from the United States and the Soviet Union for supporting the military dictatorship.

ships in Latin America.

"The two powers have divided the world between themselves as if it were an orange — taking one half each of them," Perez Esquivel said.

"The problem is now we are trying to see who sucks the juice from the other half. But the problem is that Latin America is the juice, and we don't like to be sucked like an orange," he added.

Esquivel addressed the controversy aroused by President Ronald Reagan's proposal to send $100 million worth of aid to Contra forces fighting to overthrow the Nicaraguan government.

"They call these people 'the freedom fighters.' I don't know what liberty they are talking about," he said to the cheering crowd.

OTHER SPEAKERS at the conference dealt with the surprisingly effective role of the individual in correcting human rights abuses throughout the world.

W. Michael Reisman, professor of Jurisprudence at Yale Law School, said individuals in the media are in the best position to enforce human rights.

The conference was the culmination of 11 regional human rights meetings throughout Iowa.

UI faculty defends relevance of MBA

By Jim Cahoy
Special to The Daily Iowan

"Success. A Matter of Degree," reads the copy of a recent advertisement run by the UI in Newsweek magazine to promote its master's of business administration program.

Where this ad appears and what it pushes illustrates the importance placed upon master's degrees in the business world.

But while master's of business administration programs are attracting more and more students, the degree itself has come under fire recently.

The degrees have been attacked by everyone from liberal arts supporters — who feel the degree is too narrow and restricting — to critics who say some students are substituting the degree for valuable workplace experience.

Also, the increasing popularity of master's programs in business colleges has led some to predict a surplus of degree holders. The number of students earning master's degrees from American business schools has jumped from 2,000 in the mid-1960s to 70,000 graduates this year.

Richard Stevenson, head of the UI department of finance, said the increasing number of graduate business degrees being granted may affect their worth.

"I THINK IF current rates continue, there could be a glut of M.B.A.s," Stevenson said. "I think too many schools that should not be offering M.B.A.s are offering them, and this is devaluing the M.B.A. as a degree."

But Stevenson does not predict trouble for graduates of the UI program.

"I think it's going to be the small, less prestigious schools that are going to be affected. I think those people who get M.B.A.s from small schools are going to find their degrees worth less and less. Iowa's program is one of the most prestigious in the nation, so I doubt our graduates will be affected," he said.

Eleanor Birch, associate dean of the UI Graduate Business Programs, defends the UI program for graduate business students against charges that it is too business-oriented.

"We usually insist on some liberal arts background before taking an M.B.A. We have a variety of students enrolled in the program, many of them who were not undergraduate business majors," she noted.

The value of a business master's degree is also strongly supported by Birch. "An M.B.A. is a quick way to learn all facets of business so you don't go out into the business world naked."

"I THINK M.B.A. programs teach many things that students can't learn anywhere else," she added. "Certainly, companies offer their own training programs. But there are some things that schools can do better than a company. There is an awful lot of theory that students cannot get anywhere else but in an M.B.A. program."

Some people worry, however, that students expect too much out of an advance business degree.

"I am concerned that many students use M.B.A.s as substitutes for business experience," Stevenson said. "An M.B.A. is no guarantee of success."

Some have also charged that the degree is not specific enough.

UI sophomore and business undergraduate Jeff Tank noted, "An M.B.A. is too broad. I would rather have an area of expertise. M.B.A.s give a more general, managerial education. I think I can be a success in business without an M.B.A."

Stevenson said business master's degrees are not the only ticket to success in the business world. "I agree an M.B.A. is broad, and you can get into more specific areas and still succeed in business. The problem is that these days, many businesses tend to use the M.B.A. as a screening device to see if a student is really serious about business or not."

Stevenson also noted the value of a business master's degree depends in part upon the student.

"I think whatever one gets out of the M.B.A. is up to the individual," he said. "We just teach the basics. It is up to the individual to turn an M.B.A. into something more substantial than just a piece of paper."

Several hundred UI students denounced South African apartheid and President Ronald Reagan at a rally at the Pentacrest Friday.

The protest was part of nationwide collegiate efforts to commemorate the 15th anniversary of the assassination of civil rights leader Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

Although the UI has withdrawn all investments from companies doing business in South Africa, protesters condemned Reagan's contributions to the South African government.

"Like a Hefty garbage can, Reagan is synthetic plastic," UI Assistant History Professor Tom Smith said of Reagan's South African policies.

"The garbage is beginning to smell," he added.

"He's managing to threaten the stability of the world," Smith said of Reagan after his speech. "He's ruining the country's internal health."

A powerful thunderbolt struck an Iowa City apartment complex about 8 p.m. Friday, sending the roof ablaze and sending residents from their homes into the pouring rain while firefighters extinguished flames.

The fire was relatively minor according to Iowa City Department Battalion Chief Ken Irving. No injuries were reported and damage is estimated at $500.

Irving said the bolt may have hit a television antenna or appliance outlet and that accidents occur "quite often." The incident happened during a brief electrical storm.

UI senior Penelope Larson, resident of the apartment complex, said she was watching television when the lightning struck.

"There was a huge explosion," she said.

CAC, LASA

Before elections are even held this week, the new executive officers for the UI College Associations Council and UI Liberal Arts Student Association have already decided.

CAC, which will elect officers tonight, and LASA, which holds its elections Tuesday, have only one candidate for each available office.

But those running said they are not to blame for the losses in the past.

"It's kind of an unusual situation," CAC presidential candidate Mike Reck said Sunday. Reck, the outgoing president of LASA, said the outcome of the election is usually determined on how the candidate has performed in the past.

"THE ELECTION process is a year-long thing," Reck said. "It's become a consensus of things."

The only candidate for presidency of LASA, George Fischer, agreed.

"We aren't trying to be cocky but I think we've got together the best ticket possible," he said.

There were some people considering running for the office, Fischer said, but they decided not to.

Reck's vice president running-mate is UI Graduate Student Senate President Charles Du Mond.

Reck and Du Mond will definitely be elected tonight's CAC meeting won't take office as executive until May 15.

CAC Treasurer Circe Starn said CAC members were surprised about the lack of opposition to the two candidates.

Anniversary of King's death prompts anti-apartheid rally

By Phil Thomas
Staff Writer

Several hundred UI students denounced South African apartheid and President Ronald Reagan at a rally on the Pentacrest Friday.

The protest was part of a nationwide collegiate effort to commemorate the 18th anniversary of the assassination of civil rights leader the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

Although the UI has withdrawn all investments from companies doing business in South Africa, protesters condemned Reagan's contributions to the South African government.

"Like a Hefty garbage bag, Reagan is synthetic plastic," UI Assistant History Professor Tom Smith said of Reagan's South African policies.

"The garbage is beginning to smell," he added.

"He's managing to threaten the stability of the entire world," Smith said of Reagan after his speech. "He's ruining the country's internal health."

MIKEL JOHNSON of the American Friends Service Committee urged members of the audience to discontinue use of American products made by businesses with South African investments.

"Don't put another quarter in the Coke machine until Coca-Cola comes out of South Africa," the former UI student shouted at the crowd.

"Remember those children as you drink Coke."

As Johnson spoke a chant erupted from the group of protesters: "No Business, No Business, No Business in South Africa."

UI graduate student Moyisi Majeke, a former South African citizen, told the Pentacrest crowd of the inadequacies of South African government and its ill-treatment of blacks.

"The only way I could go back there would be to tear that government down," he said.

Speakers at the rally also denounced the treatment of the Native Americans, poverty in American Appalachia and violence in Central America.

AFTER THE RALLY Johnson questioned the enthusiasm of the U.S. college student in standing up for civil rights and blamed philosophies promoted in the 1970s.

"We've just been through a decade when people have been focused on themselves," she said. "It's a little harder to motivate people."

But some protesters said the rally shows a revival of civil rights activism on American college campuses.

Co-organizer of the rally Bruce Nestor said the protest was a good sign for the anti-apartheid movement.

"I think it went great," he said. "I think it shows that the apartheid issue is alive again on this campus."

Last spring more than 100 people were arrested when they refused to leave UI President James O. Freedman's office during a protest against UI holdings in companies doing business in South Africa. Since then the UI has sold all its holdings in companies doing business in South Africa.

Craig Perrin, who was a leader of last spring's anti-apartheid protests at the UI attended Friday's rally. He said, "Students are becoming much more effective in their lobby efforts because we're right."

"It's a necessary step toward political action," he said.

Lightning strikes apartment; evacuated residents soaked

By Marianne Chermi and Julie Eisle

A powerful thunderbolt struck an Iowa City apartment complex about 8 p.m. Friday, setting the roof ablaze and sending residents from their homes into the pouring rain while fire fighters extinguished the flames.

The fire was relatively minor, according to Iowa City Fire Department Battalion Chief Ken Irving. No injuries were reported and damage is estimated at $500.

Irving said the bolt may have hit a television antenna or an appliance outlet and that such accidents occur "quite often." The incident happened during a brief electrical storm.

UI senior Penelope Lara, a resident of the apartment complex, said she was watching television when the lightning struck.

"There was a huge explosion and a big flash of light, and I thought that lightning had struck our porch," Lara said. "I jumped off my couch, and I looked outside and people were saying 'The roof's on fire,' so I ran out."

NEIGHBORING residents also heard what they described as an explosion.

"There was a big flash of light first and then a loud crack of thunder, so we knew it was really close by," said Bruce Ogesen, a resident of 1015 Oakcrest. Ogesen said a resident told him the smoke alarms inside the building were then activated.

Several residents said they felt the building shake when the firebolt struck.

Antoinette Kissane, who also lives in the complex, said the television in her apartment was blown out by the bolt. She said other residents who had high voltage appliances plugged into outlets during the incident also reported damage. Five fire trucks and three Iowa City police squad cars responded to the incident.

ALTHOUGH JULY and August are the most dangerous months for lightning, the Lightning Protection Institute in Harvard, Ill., warns home dwellers to be cautious whenever electrical storms occur.

Residents should stay clear of laundry and dishwashing equipment, plumbing lines and other metal objects, fireplaces or chimneys, open windows or doors, and telephone and electrical appliances. More than 20 percent of all lightning-related deaths and injuries occur in buildings, the institute reports.

In addition, the National Weather Service in Silver Springs, Md., reports that 16 million thunderstorms occur annually, and that 100 bolts of lightning strike the earth each second of the day.

CAC, LASA heads decided

By Phil Thomas
Staff Writer

Before elections are even held this week, the new executive officers for the UI Collegiate Associations Council and the UI Liberal Arts Student Association have already been decided.

CAC, which will elect officers tonight, and LASA, which holds its elections Tuesday, have only one candidate for each available office.

But those running said apathy is not to blame for the unopposed positions.

"It's kind of an unusual situation," CAC presidential candidate Mike Reck said Sunday.

Reck, the outgoing president of LASA, said the outcome of the election is usually based on how the candidate has performed in the past.

"THE ELECTION process is a year-long thing," Reck said. "It's become a consensus sort of thing."

The only candidate for the presidency of LASA, Gordon Fischer, agreed.

"We aren't trying to sound cocky but I think we put together the best ticket possible," he said.

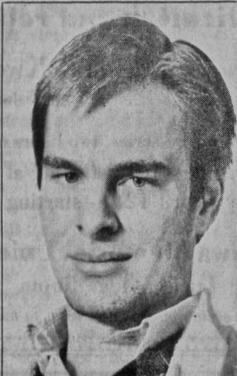

There were some people considering running for the posts, Fischer said, but they didn't.

Reck's vice presidential running-mate is UI Graduate Student Senate President Charles Du Mond.

Reck and Du Mond will almost definitely be elected at tonight's CAC meeting, but won't take office as executives until May 15.

CAC Treasurer Circe Stumbo said CAC members were not surprised about the lack of opposition to the two candidates.

"THEY'VE DONE so much work that everyone knew they would probably run," she said. "Everyone knows what they're planning on doing."

Reck said under his leadership the CAC will concentrate on fighting against tuition increases at the UI and cuts in state appropriations for the state Board of Regents.

He said the CAC will also look into recruiting more minority students on a non-athletic basis. He said there are too few minority students at the UI.

Reck called the low number of minority students at the UI "shocking."

Fischer said his work would not differ much from Reck's as LASA president.

"I think we'll have pretty much a 'stay the course' attitude," Fischer said.

Reck said Fischer will have his hands full when he takes the job as LASA president Tuesday evening.

"The election process is a year-long thing," CAC presidential candidate Mike Reck says. "It's become a consensus sort of thing."

"LASA PRESIDENT may be the toughest job in student government," he said.

Among the immediate goals of LASA will be the construction of more streetlights on the UI campus, LASA vice-presidential candidate Tricia Johnston said.

Johnston, who is also running unopposed, said LASA will also look for a more diversity in its membership.

Despite reports of grumblings between Fischer and UI Student Senate President Joe Hansen, Johnston said LASA and the senate should work well together.

"Gordon (Fischer) has kept in good relations with Joe Hansen," she said.

Hansen said he wouldn't get involved with CAC and LASA elections, but said his relations with both groups are positive.

Other uncontested LASA executive candidates are Ann Naffier for treasurer and Linda Groven for secretary.

Libyan terrorists suspected in German disco explosion

BERLIN (UPI) — A West German newspaper Sunday quoted Bonn security officials as saying Libya was behind the bombing of a discotheque frequented by American soldiers and is planning more attacks on U.S. targets.

The Welt am Sonntag newspaper also reported that security officials suspect a link between Friday's discotheque bombing, which killed an American soldier and a Turkish woman and injured 204 people, and Wednesday's bombing of a TWA jetliner over Greece, which killed four people.

It said the officials will use laboratory tests to compare remnants of the bomb used in the disco bombing with the explosive device used in the airliner.

The U.S. Berlin Command identified the dead soldier in the disco bombing early Saturday as Sgt. Kenneth Terrance Ford, a 21-year old infantryman from Detroit. He was assigned to the 6,000-strong U.S. garrison in the Western outpost in September 1984.

U.S. Ambassador to West Germany Richard Burt and West Berlin Mayor Eberhard Diepgen inspect the bombed discotheque.

THE WELT am Sonntag newspaper, known for having good intelligence sources, quoted unidentified security officials as saying the attack on a main street in the American sector of the city was part of Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy's campaign of vengeance against the United States for the recent clash in the disputed Gulf of Sidra. Sixty-four Americans were injured.

"The Federal Criminal Office believes there is reason for serious concern that Libya will carry out more terror acts (against U.S. targets) on German soil," the newspaper said.

"Khadafy should know that we are informed that his people are on the way, but not what else we know," the newspaper quoted "a high Bonn security official" as saying.

Asked to comment on the newspaper report of Libyan involvement, Manfred Ganschow of the West Berlin security squad, which is in charge of the investigation of the La Belle disco bombing, called it speculation.

"Libyan involvement is one of the possibilities we are looking into," he said. "There are others." TWO ORGANIZATIONS have claimed responsibility for the nightclub attack — the anti-American Arab Liberation Front and the Holger Meins Commando, named after a member of the Baader-Meinhof terrorist group who died during a prison hunger strike in 1974.

The Holger Meins group, an offshoot of the Red Army Faction, also claimed responsibility for the Feb. 28 assassination of Swedish Prime Minister Olof Palme.

"This had an effect, obviously at the city's expense," said Iowa City Councilor John McDonald. "We had to replace that, because it did have an impact on the plant as to the ability of the plant to operate."

The city originally asked for $100,000 in damages. McDonald said, however, that both company and city officials decided to settle out of court when exorbitant court costs entered into the picture. He added that it "was not going to be a simple trial."

Both sides agreed to have Charles Dore, former general manager of Owens Brush Co., act as mediator in the dispute. A fee of $38,000 was proposed to the Iowa City Council and was formally accepted as the settlement March 25. This marked the end of formal litigation, and "resolved" the suit but didn't "drop" it, according to Chaloupek.

"Dropped isn't the right word," Chaloupek said. "Dropped insinuates that the whole thing went away. It didn't; we ended up paying $38,000."

New, multicourse tuition discount

Visiting students save 20% on 2 courses; 25% on 3 courses.

Now... Northwestern offers the ambitious visiting student an extra incentive to attend the SummerSession: a 20% savings on the total tuition cost of two courses... a 25% savings on three.

Whether you are completing requirements or exploring a new field, there's the challenge of Northwestern. Nearly 250 courses are offered in the College of Arts and Sciences, the Technological Institute, and the Schools of Education, Music, and Speech.

Courses range from Television Comedy, Strategic Planning and Management, and Sociology of Sex Roles to Organic Chemistry, Crime and the Novel, Photography, and Music in Vienna. There are even 13 Intensive Study sequences that let students earn a full year's credit in eight weeks in language, science, or math.

Details on all courses and on the new multicourse tuition discount plan are in the SummerSession Bulletin along with a register-by-mail application. Order your free copy today.

Counterfeit crisis

For several days last week, the front pages of newspapers across the country carried stories of a Nicaraguan invasion of Honduras. Nightly television news programs also topped their broadcasts with maps and videotape of the region and featured American officials' reactions to the alleged incursion.

From the outset, however, the invasion stories were suspect. First, the news of the Nicaraguan military action was disclosed by the Reagan administration the night before the U.S. Senate was scheduled to vote on President Ronald Reagan's plan to send $100 million in aid to rebels battling the Nicaraguan government.

Second, follow-up reports on the "invasion" indicated U.S. officials had greatly exaggerated the severity of the crisis. The number of Nicaraguan troops involved, the distance into Honduras they had traveled and the recent history of Nicaragua-Honduras relations all became distorted by American officials.

Now, after $20 million in emergency military aid, including U.S. soldiers and equipment, has been funneled into Honduras to confront this "communist threat," the dust is beginning to settle and the covert aims of the Reagan administration are becoming clear.

On Thursday, a top Honduran government official told the New York Times that the situation was exploited by the Reagan administration for its own ends, namely the increased use of force against the Sandinista government in Nicaragua. "The United States interest was that this situation have the connotation of an international incident," the official explained.

Aside from the fact that Reagan's well-timed play brought the United States another step closer to direct military involvement in Central America, his deceitful action does grievous damage to the concept of a strong democracy rooted in an educated populace.

In this case, the American public has been seriously misinformed by those in positions of power and, as a result, the decision-making responsibility of the people has been forfeited. Democracy has been dealt a blow and a dangerous trend has been set.

No doze

Each year millions of acres of land in national forests are destroyed by bulldozers building logging roads. The bulldozing is done at taxpayers expense, as a subsidy for the timber industry.

Because the economic demand for timber is far below the expense of the road building, these operations cost taxpayers about $200 million annually. Operations in remote areas in Alaska return as little as one cent on the dollar.

Under current legislation, forests with logging roads do not qualify for wilderness protection. Using this loophole the Reagan administration has silently accomplished what a vocal James Watt could not. By pushing an ambitious program of thousands of miles of new logging roads, many remote and unspoiled forests have now been disqualified for future protection.

The loss represents more than just tax dollars wasted. Many animal species, such as the Spotted Owl, Fisher and Goshawk, are becoming increasingly endangered as more forest habitat is destroyed. Fishermen lament the loss of trout in formerly clear streams now darkened with erosion from the road cuts.

Many timber products are used in this country. If there was an economic need for more logging in these areas it would certainly constitute a strong argument in favor of more logging roads. But in this case the law of supply and demand is clear — the costs far outweigh the timber value. It is only taxpayers' dollars which make the operations profitable.

National forests belong to all Americans. Why should citizens have to pay to provide the timber industry with profits and the administration with a scheme to keep forest areas from being preserved for future generations?

At a time when severe budget constraints are cutting funds for education, agriculture, health care and many other programs, subsidizing unneeded logging roads represents a gross example of government waste and mismanagement.

Contra aid is paranoid aid

By Richard C. Wright

I WRITE IN opposition to aid of any kind for the Nicaraguan Contras, based in Honduras, as well as to the deployment of National Guard units to Honduras for training exercises.

President Ronald Reagan's Central American saber rattling and narrow-minded foreign policy fantasies are the jingoistic delusions of a B-movie actor who has exited stage right in his latest costume as a self-described "Contra." This paranoid flight from the stage of reality as a mercenary "freedom fighter" is perhaps a role he is much better suited for than that of el Presidente ("This is your president speaking"). Reagan's actions are also an embarrassment to his party and an outrage to peace-loving Americans who feel a kinship with the people of Central America.

Our family has been fortunate enough to have visited Nicaragua and lived with the people of Honduras. We recently adopted a beautiful newborn Honduran baby girl. Our 13-year-old son accompanied us to that country to establish residency and undergo the lengthy process of adoption.

Five weeks later my son and I returned to the states, via Managua, spending our last four days in Nicaragua. My wife and our new child remained in Honduras in the state of Yoro, just miles from the military camp where the 109th Medical Battalion of the Iowa National Guard, based in Iowa City, is scheduled for maneuvers this summer.

THE DIFFERENCES between these two countries, whom our country is bullying into war, was instructive: Nicaragua, struggling in the afternoon of its revolution to survive as a nation at war, with most of its vital human and material resources going to the front to defend itself from U.S.-based counter-revolutionaries, is still managing to take care of its people.

Through land reform, nutritional programs, the literacy campaign, free medical care and comprehensive immunization programs, a legacy of illiteracy, disease, malnutrition and infant death inherited from the corrupt Somoza dictatorship has been aggressively attacked. The World Health Organization has called Nicaragua a "model country in health care."

Honduras is the second poorest country in the hemisphere, with half of its population illiterate and most of the fertile, productive land belonging to U.S. fruit companies — for export crop production. Millions of these acres supposedly "changed hands" around the turn of the century in exchange for military favors, such as the alleged overthrow of a Honduran president in 1911, and as land grants rewarded for building railroads that never went farther than the plantations and the banana ports.

THE COMMON person, or campesino, is landless and forced to live on a square of earth within the windowless walls of a bamboo hut, sometimes sharing this existence with 10 or 12 others. With an infant mortality rate estimated as high as 40 percent, there is no free medical aid for the poor, no public health or vaccination programs, no government aid for the thousands of children dying of malnutrition.

The Daily Iowan/Gregory McCallum

Our child nearly died the first night we had her due to a severe umbilical cord infection. Cords are routinely cut with machetes in rural Honduran hamlets. The midwife just shook her head, sure the child would die. And she would have died, left to the "will of God," had it not been for the $3 we could afford to buy her an injection of antibiotics. Three dollars for the life of a child, an unaffordable luxury in the third world. And our tax dollars ($134,000,000 in military and economic aid in 1983) feed the military a steady ration of bullets and hardware while none of that aid finds its way to the mouths of the people.

We became good friends with a local order of nuns who run a nutrition center where we worked and watched shriveled children die, children who cried when you touched them because hunger is painful. Some of the nuns work with the peasants in a clinic, and in the mountains through nutrition programs, prenatal care and community gardening projects.

THE HONDURAN government, a quasi-military junta with a popularly elected presidential figurehead (whose strings are pulled from Washington) despises and represses nuns who work with the campesinos. Postal clerks openly read their mail, convent phones are suspected of being tapped, nuns are incarcerated and tortured for helping the peasants, children awaiting adoption are held up in the Court of Minors while the government sorts out scandals... and children die, 14,000 of them this year from malnutrition.

In Honduras the streets are filled with armed National Guardsmen, security forces, state police and soldiers wearing U.S. Army-issue fatigues; even bank guards carry Uzi submachine guns. And a never-ending army of hungry children follow your every step, begging for food and money.

In Nicaragua uniformed Sandinistas in the streets were more likely to be armed with briefcases, typewriters, notebooks and magic markers, and the only children to approach us asked for one thing, a "pluma" or pen.

THE ROTATION of National Guard units through Honduras in maneuvers entitled "Terenacio Sierra," building roads and military installations, combines with the expansion and new construction of military bases and airstrips (nine bases and six airstrips now exist in Honduras — one airstrip has been turned over to the CIA) to provide the image of a permanent presence for immediate conversion to full-scale war. The completion of a 22 kilometer road by engineering units of the National Guard would effectively connect the base in Yoro with the Caribbean ports of Ceiba, Cortes and Castilla where a U.S.-financed training center was opened in 1983.

This would undoubtedly be interpreted by the Sandinistas as providing a direct link for U.S. Marines from aircraft carriers, steaming offshore, to the base in Yoro, beefing-up our defense and tactical positioning for a major drive into Nicaragua. This provides a scenario reminiscent of the early 1960s in Vietnam when U.S. advisers paved the way for the escalation of a civil war into one of the most costly, bloody and unpopular wars of modern time.

Reagan's latest script, the now-verified mock Sandinista "invasion" on the eve of the Senate Contra aid vote raises the curtain on Honduras as a theater of U.S. intervention and promises a diet of lead and shrapnel for bulging bellies.

MEANWHILE, in Yoro, my wife reported the villagers were alarmed by huge yellow clouds rising above the base: The speculation is that chemical warfare is being practiced.

The 109th is scheduled to provide support for Missouri

National Guard troops building the road from Jocon to Puentecita and to allegedly provide "human service" to the villagers. To send this unit down in the guise of a humanitarian "civic action" is absurd.

They are being sent for acclimatization to jungle warfare and as a show of support for Contra rebels being trained in Honduras to overthrow the Nicaraguan government... they are being sent for fear of losing federal funding... they are being sent as a Band-Aid, as aspirin of goodwill as they help carve an endless trail of soldiers through a jungle tunnel and into the light of a raging fire of war.

TO THE MEMBERS of the 109th I offer this challenge: Go if you must, but go only to use your humanitarian and technical skills as medics and dentists to serve the needy campesino families. Take along medical supplies, vitamins, antibiotics, clothing, diapers (rags take the place of diapers in Honduras, and as rags are in short supply, children often go without them).

Go if you must, but if you do, be prepared for a flock of bloated-bellied, hollow-eyed children haunting you in your path and pleading for food: "Dame comida, mister, por favor." And think, as you sit down to a full-course meal in the mess tent, about the wealth you may not have known you possessed. Think about your real reasons for being there and what you would do, if you could, to give strength to a people too long hungry and at war. Put down your arms along the jungle road and take up syringes and sterile dressings, antibiotics and food, and go to the people.

My baby flew home last night luckily escaping cross-fire of political war games. We leave her sisters and brothers to fend for themselves in a mother country that's forgotten her children.

If you go, go with an open mind, and try to leave something of yourself down there, a legacy of kindness and understanding. Go as a healer, not as a warrior.

To the Editor:

... The Dairy Termination Program, part of the 1986 farm bill, which is designed to reduce the nation's milk surpluses by destroying entire herds of dairy cows, has several features which will certainly cause unnecessary suffering to the animals. The program requires all cows and calves designated for the Program to be branded on the face with a hot branding iron, a practice which will cause extreme pain and may impair the cow's ability to eat properly and cause bone infection.

The Program also provides for purchase of these cattle by an intermediate buyer who may then hold them in a feedlot for up to six months before sending them on to slaughter. Since many of these animals will be milking cows in need of being milked twice daily and feedlots are not set up to deal with this... the cows will most certainly suffer.

The callous manner in which this Program deals with animals is a disgrace...

Talk of oil glut fills Bush's Mideast trip

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (UPI) — Vice President George Bush sat down to a Bedouin feast in the Arabian desert Sunday, and met with King Fahd to discuss the spillover of violence from the Iran-Iraq war and the precipitous plunge in world oil prices.

On a day marked by a visit to a modern hospital and a ostrich chase in the desert, Bush sought to clarify remarks he made last week that appeared to favor a return to higher oil prices.

The oil glut was among the issues on the agenda for a late-night meeting with Fahd at his summer palace.

The session was to have been held this afternoon, and Bush spokesmen Marlin Fitzwater suggested the change indicated the Saudi's were "very eager" to talk to the vice president.

Earlier, in the capital of Riyadh, Bush denied he had come here to pressure the Saudis on oil prices, and asserted that continued low prices may not be in the long-term interest of the United States.

"I'M IN A listening mode when it comes to the intentions of these major producing countries," he said. "And again, the interest in the United States is bound to be cheap energy if we possibly can. But from our interest, there is some point where the national-security interests of the United States say, 'Hey, we must have a strong, viable domestic industry.'"

At the same appearance, before an American business group, Bush underscored concern for Saudi security with an implicit warning to Iran that the American confrontation with Libya last month showed the Reagan administration "is fundamentally, irrevocably committed to maintaining the free flow of oil" through the Persian Gulf.

"After this past month," he said, "no one should doubt the importance we attach to freedom of navigation in international waters."

The declaration coincided with reports of an attack by Iranian warplanes on a Saudi tanker in the Persian Gulf.

Fielding questions in Riyadh before a trip into the desert and a flight to Dhahran, Bush complained of being misinterpreted last week when he spoke about oil-price stability in the face of a Saudi-backed drop intended to regain lost market shares.

RATHER THAN trying to boost prices on his four-nation tour of the Arabian Peninsula, Bush said, "I hope when I leave this part of the world, I will have a clearer idea of how the countries involved — and one major one is Saudi Arabia — feel there can be some stability to a market that certainly can't be very happy to them."

Bush repeatedly referred to the "freefall" in oil prices — a recent 60 percent nose dive — as "a two-edged sword" that benefits consumers, but cuts against the administration's belief in the need for a healthy U.S. oil industry.

The flap over oil prices was forgotten for a time as Bush was driven more than 40 miles into the desert outside Riyadh for a traditional Bedouin feast at a not-so-traditional encampment where camels roamed near air-conditioned tents and a mobile satellite transmission station that made the United States only a direct-dial telephone call away.

With Prince Salman, the governor of Riyadh, seated between them, Bush and his wife, Barbara, dined on a feast that included Bedouin staples — lamb, rice, fish, salad and bread — and mounds of ice cream for dessert.

Angry Filipinos protest Weinberger visit

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — A jeering crowd of demonstrators chanted "Weinberger go home" and waved anti-U.S. banners as Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger arrived Sunday for talks with leaders of the new Philippine government.

Weinberger, 67, is the highest-ranking Reagan administration official to visit the Philippines since a civilian-backed military revolt ousted 20-year ruler Ferdinand E. Marcos on Feb. 25 and installed President Corazon "Cory" Aquino.

A crowd of about 50 Filipinos gathered at the airport gate for Weinberger's arrival, chanting "Weinberger go home" and waving banners saying "Dismantle U.S. military bases" and "Scrap U.S. military base agreement."

Philippine Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, Armed Forces Chief Fidel Ramos and U.S. Ambassador Stephen Bosworth greeted Weinberger, who was surrounded by tight security.

The defense secretary is expected to reaffirm Washington's military and economic aid commitment to the Philippines and discuss bilateral agreements covering strategic U.S. military bases in the country during talks Monday with Aquino, Enrile and Ramos.

"THE PURPOSE of the visit is to consult with the government and find out what their needs are and how we might be of assistance," Weinberger spokesman Robert Sims said.

Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger greets Philippine Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile at the Manila Airport Sunday, prior to talks with President Corazon Aquino on security matters.

Sims said the aid could include training, logistics and other military support for the 250,000-strong Philippine Armed Forces.

Top among the concerns of the Reagan administration is Aquino's stance on the future of eight U.S. military facilities in the Philippines — including Subic Bay Naval Base and Clark Air Base, Washington's largest overseas installations.

Protesters said the Philippines should reject Weinber-ger's offers of military assistance.

"We don't need any military aid. It's only meant against the Filipinos," said Jun Miranda, Secretary-General of the Nationalist Alliance for Justice, Freedom and Democracy, a group of students and workers formed after the 1983 assassination of Aquino's husband, popular opposition leader Benigno Aquino.

"If they sincerely want to develop the Philippines they should give us economic aid without any strings attached," Miranda said.

Contadora information collected in Panama

PANAMA CITY, Panama (UPI) — Three U.S. congressmen, preparing for a second House vote on aid to Nicaraguan rebels, met Sunday with foreign ministers of the 13 Latin American countries trying to end the Central American conflict.

The congressional delegation, which arrived late Saturday, was led by Michael Barnes, D-Md., who heads the House subcommittee on Western Hemisphere affairs.

Foreign ministers from the Contadora group — Mexico, Colombia, Venezuela and Panama — were to wrap up a weekend meeting Sunday with their Central American counterparts and foreign ministers from the Contadora support group, made up of Brazil, Uruguay, Peru and Argentina.

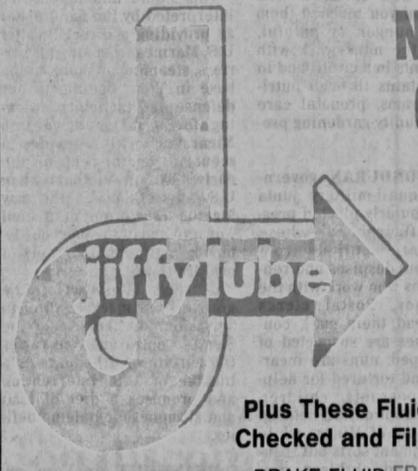

The Contadora talks and the visit by the congressmen followed a border clash between Nicaragua and Honduras two weeks ago.

BARNES SAID he traveled to Panama with Reps. Jim Slattery, D-Kan., and Bill Richardson, D-N.M., to learn more about the Latin American peace effort before a new House vote on aid to Contras trying to overthrow Nicaragua's leftist regime.

"We're not here to negotiate with anybody," Barnes said on arrival. "We're simply here to listen and to gain information that we can then share with our colleagues on the status of the Contadora initiative."

Coaches' departures can cause headaches

By Robert Mann
Staff Writer

In the past five years several coaches have resigned from their positions at Iowa universities, causing, at least temporarily, instability in major sports programs.

While retaining a coach often adds to the success of a program, officials from Iowa's three state universities say there is little that can be done to force coaches to fulfill their agreements.

Dorsey Ellis, UI vice president for finance, said the university could have brought lawsuits against former basketball coaches Lute Olson and George Raveling, although it would not have been easy to win such a lawsuit.

"From a technical standpoint, we could have sued them for damages if we could have proven damages," Ellis said. "In most instances, it would be difficult in the extreme to prove that."

Ellis said, however, it is often easier for a coach to prove damages and win lawsuits, although that is also uncommon.

Neither Iowa Athletic Director Bump Elliott nor his associate athletic director could be reached for comment because of the search for a new basketball coach, but Iowa State's and Northern Iowa's athletic directors said contracts usually benefit the coaches.

"I THINK contracts basically protect the coach," Iowa State Athletic Director Max Urlick said. "In reality, it's a tough position being head coach, and I think they need the protection."

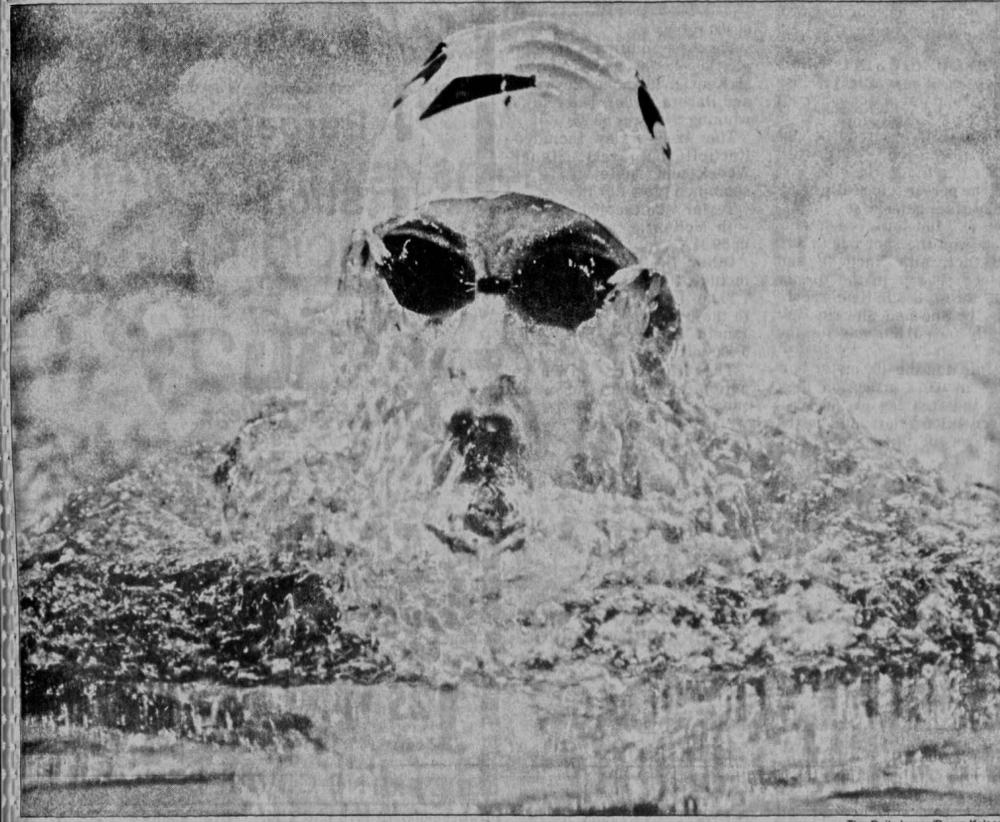

When a school does decide to make a switch, Urlick said the university makes good on its agreement until the released coach finds another appointment.

Hawkeyes place 14th at nationals

By Steve Williams

Pablo Morales once again proved himself one of the premier swimmers in the nation, winning three individual events and contributing to one relay victory, helping Stanford to its second straight national title in men's swimming, last weekend in Indianapolis.

Morales, who will be a shoe-in for the upcoming 1988 Olympics, won the 200-yard individual medley, the 100 butterfly, and the 200 butterfly, while combining with teammates Shawn Murphy, John Moffet and David Lundberg in winning the 400 medley relay.

The Cardinals outscored runner-up California-Berkeley by nearly 70 points, totaling 404 to the Bears' 335.

STANFORD COACH Skip Kenney said winning the second time around was a sweeter win than the first.

Swimming

"I'm so damn proud of our guys," Kenney said. "Last year's win was too easy. This was more of a battle because it's hard to repeat and the odds were heavily against us."

But while Stanford was establishing itself as the power in United States swimming, the Iowa Hawkeyes proved that they are definitely one of the most powerful teams north of the Mason Dixon line.

Behind third place finishes from Tom Williams in the 50 freestyle and John Davey in the 400 individual medley, the Hawkeyes amassed 67 points to tie Auburn for 14th place. Their total was second only to Ohio State, who scored 68 points (all from diving events), leaving the Buckeyes the WIN

'Misses' put Iowa in sixth at NCAA

LINCOLN, Neb. — A shot at the NCAA title for the Iowa men's gymnastics team was destroyed on the parallel bars, a performance which ended up spiraling the Hawkeyes to a sixth-place finish.

After three rotations at the Bob Devaney Sports Center Friday night, Iowa was in fourth place and appeared to have a chance to catch Okla-

Iowa's Dan Bachman competes on the parallel bars in the individual competition at the NCAA Championships. Bachman scored a 9.75 to tie for second.

Tom Auer, hit their routines and the others had trouble. A little trouble, a lot of trouble. You just can't afford that in this kind of competition."

Bachman was the star of the NCAA meet for the Hawkeyes. The senior from Parma, Ohio, captured all-American honors in the all-around, on the parallel bars and on the floor exercise.

ON FRIDAY NIGHT, Bachman took fifth in the all-around with a score of 56.85. Stanford's Jon Louis won the all-around with a score 57.60.

"It feels good in my senior year. I've never been an all-American since I have been here," Bachman said. "To finish up like this just made my career here at Iowa."

On Saturday, Bachman won his other all-American awards. He scored 9.75 on the parallel bars, the same event that doomed the Hawkeyes the day before, and tied with Ohio State's Seth Riskin for second place.

Bachman tied for third on the floor exercise with Chad Fox of New Mexico as both gymnasts recorded scores of 9.65.

"I'm excited. I can't complain now," Bachman said shortly after receiving his parallel bars award. "I just let go and hit my routines and a lot of good things came out of it. God has blessed me quite a bit here," Bachman said. "To fin-

Major leagues open today to the cries of, 'Play Ball!'

United Press International

After six weeks of formulating questions in the sun of Florida and Arizona, major league baseball teams begin to get some answers today.

That's when the season officially opens with five scheduled games, stretching from coast-to-coast. Boston is at Detroit, Cleveland at Baltimore and Milwaukee at Chicago in the American League and Philadelphia at Cincinnati and San Diego at Los Angeles in the National League.

Over the next six months fans across the country will get the answers to the following questions and lots more:

- Is their life in Los Angeles without Pedro Guerrero?
- Can Lou Piniella survive baseball's hottest seat as manager of the New York Yankees?
- Is rookie Pete Incaviglia of the Texas Rangers really the fictional Roy Hobbs come to life?

The Detroit Tigers have the honor of being the first team to take the field this season as they entertain the Boston Red Sox at Tiger Stadium in an afternoon game, beginning at 12:30 p.m. Right-hander Jack Morris will start for Detroit against Boston left-hander Bruce Hurst.

Fans attending the Red-Phillies game will not get to see baseball's all-time hit leader, Pete Rose, in action, however. Rose, bothered by a stomach virus and flu all spring, was forced to place himself on the 15-day disabled list Sunday and will be relegated strictly to managing the club for the first two weeks of the season. It is only the second time in his 24-year career that Rose has gone on the disabled list.

ROSE HAS NAMED right-hander Mario Soto as his Opening Day starter and the Phillies will counter with left-hander Steve Carlton. It marks a remarkable comeback for the 41-year-old Carlton, a four-time Cy Young Award winner who appeared in only 16 games last year.

Another left-handed pitcher attempting a comeback, Mike Flanagan, will start for Baltimore in its opener at home against Cleveland. Flanagan missed most of last season with a knee injury and pitched in only 15 games. Ken Schrom will start for Cleveland.

A knee injury is already plaguing the Dodgers as they begin defense of their National League West title. The Dodgers will take the field without Guerrero, their most feared slugger, in the lineup. He suffered a torn tendon behind his right knee in a sliding accident last Thursday and will be lost to the team for at least three months. Left-hander Fernando Valenzuela has been named by Dodgers manager Tom Lasorda to pitch the opener and Eric Show will start for San Diego.

Kostrubala sets discus mark in victory at Texas Relays

By Robert Mann
Staff Writer

Gary Kostrubala broke the school record and the Big Ten record on his way to the discus title at the Texas Relays in Austin Friday.

Kostrubala, who has thrown well in the past at the relays, tossed the discus 202 feet, four inches, eclipsing the previous conference record of 195-5 and his old school record of 192-8, which he set one week ago. "He likes to throw in Austin," said Iowa Coach Ted Wheeler.

Track

"He's always getting a PR (personal record) down there."

WHEELER SAID he was surprised, however, the senior threw so far in only his third outdoor meet of the season.

"That is a feat without challenge from any of the discus throwers in the conference," Wheeler said.

"It's a good ring to throw in," Kostrubala said of the facilities in Austin. "And there's a lot of good competition."

Kostrubala said he has set his goals now past the Big Ten conference meet and is looking to the NCAA outdoor meet and The Athletics Congress (TAC) meet, both of which he has already qualified for. He is also hoping for a possible invitation to the Sports Festival, which he said takes the top two people in each of four districts.

Iowa wrestling banquet tonight

The Johnson County I-Club will sponsor the annual Iowa Wrestling Banquet Monday, April 7 at the Rowday Inn, honoring the perennial NCAA Champions who recently grabbed a ninth-straight national crown in Iowa City.

Coach Dan Gable will be the featured speaker at the dinner.

Tickets for the affair are available from the Iowa Athletic Ticket Office, Malcolm Jewelers, Hawkeye State Bank, Plamor Lanes, Suplepp's Flowers, The Nickelodeon, Bremers, Hawkeye Medical Supply and Red Carpet Travel Service.

Hawk golfers fifth in opener

The Iowa men opened their golf season last weekend with a promising performance from senior Guy Boros and a fifth place team finish at the Purdue Invitational at West Lafayette.

Boros ended with a two day total of 213, good for a second place tie with Steve Barber. Mark Brewer of Miami (Ohio) took medalist honors with a 212 total and led his team to the invitational title.

Miami crushed the rest of the 15 team field with a team tally of 878. Ball State was a distant second with 890 strokes. Illinois State and Minnesota tied for third with 895 strokes, followed by Iowa's 898.

Minnesota was the lone Big Ten team to outshoot the Hawkeyes. Purdue tied Southern Illinois-Carbondale for sixth with 903 strokes and Michigan (905), Wisconsin (910) and Michigan (911) rounded out the top ten.

Also scoring for Iowa were Mike Eckerman (229), Joe Kramer (223), Mike Compiano (230) and Tim Joselyn (236).

Hawkeyes drop three of four in softball

The Iowa softball team lost three out of four games this weekend at Minnesota.

Saturday, the Hawkeyes dropped both games of a doubleheader by identical 4-0 scores to the Gophers.

Tracy Langhurst pitched Iowa to a 3-1 victory on Sunday, and Judy Oliverius suffered the loss.

Minnesota came back to nip the Hawks 3-2, behind pitcher Barb Drake in the second game of the day.

Sampson, Olajuwon lift Rockets

HOUSTON (UPI)—Akeem Olajuwon collected 25 points and 11 rebounds, and Ralph Sampson had 19 points and 17 rebounds Sunday to spark the Houston Rockets to a 109-103 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers.

Olajuwon and Sampson also teamed to limit Kareem Abdul-Jabbar to 18 points. Jabbar had averaged 41 points a game in the Lakers' three victories against the Rockets this season.

Hawks win tourney behind Hull, Redies

By Melissa Rapoport
Sports Editor

Field event specialist Shelley Redies and sprinter Sherri Hull paced the Iowa women's track team to first-place honors in an eight-team tournament Saturday.

The Hawkeyes' 165 points edged host Western Illinois by four points in Malcomb, Ill. Bradley, clinching a distant third collected 75 points, followed by Northeast Missouri (57), Northern Iowa (54 1/2) and Black Hawk East (8 1/2).

"We were real happy," Iowa Coach Jerry Hassard said about the win. "Our emphasis was to run runners under or over their specialties, and on top of that some of our athletes didn't compete."

SENTA HAWKINS, Alicia Simpson, Kristi Dinkla, Lisa Moats and Jenny Spangler all had the weekend off.

Despite the event shuffle, Hassard said, Redies and Hull picked up the slack.

"The person that really headlined the meet was Shelley Redies," the Iowa coach said. "She won the shot put in 43.9 (43 feet, nine inches), and placed second in the discus, but threw a life-time record 144.3 1/2. She and Sherrie Hull really paved the way for the win."

Hull won the 400-meter hurdles in 62.72, a season best, ran the first leg of the first-place 4x100 relay and ran the first leg of the second-place 4x400 relay.

The three additional members of the 4x100 were Vivien McKenzie, Roxanne Reynolds and Davera Taylor. The relay's winning time was 48.25.

The 4x400 relay included Rochelle Roberts, Janet Wodek and McKenzie. They combined for a 4:01 time.

Taylor won the 400 in 58.77, with McKenzie taking second in 59.91.

Other first-place finishers include Roberts, winning the 1,500 in 4:37.31; Lynn McMillan in the triple jump (36.8 1/2) and Janeth Salazar clinched the 5,000 in 18:23.15.

The Hawkeyes return to action next weekend when they travel to the Drake Women's Invitational in Des Moines.

'Hits' propel Iowa to three-win trip

By Julie Deardorff
Staff Writer

The Iowa baseball team posted three lopsided victories over the weekend over Kentucky's Murray State before dropping the final game to the host Racers.

Friday the Hawkeyes breezed to a 26-3 victory, and then swept a doubleheader on Saturday 10-0 and 14-4.

Murray State's 28-15 victory on Sunday set a record for the most runs scored in a game (28), and tied the record for most home runs hit in a game (eight).

Despite the one loss, Iowa Coach Duane Banks was happy with the performance, especially the hitting. "I was very pleased with the weekend," he said. "I thought we hit the ball very well."

The Hawkeyes totaled 68 hits in the four games and belted 20 home runs, including eight in the first game, which broke a Murray State record. The 26 runs in the first game was also a record.

Jeff Gurtcheff and John Knapp led Iowa's powerful hitting. In the first game, winning pitcher Mark Boland struck out six and walked four. Gurtcheff was 4-for-4 with two home runs and four RBI, and Knapp went 5-for-7, including two homers and five RBI.

Murray State led 1-0 after the first inning, but Iowa scored in blocks of four in the second, fourth and fifth to take the lead. Rick Jennings capped off a six-run ninth inning with a grand slam.

IOWA NEEDED only a five-run third inning to assure a victory for Steve Denkinger in the second game. Denkinger struck out three and walked four as he improved his record to 2-1. Knapp had a three-run homer and four RBI, and Gurtcheff smacked the other home run of the game.

Jeff Schafer was the winning pitcher in the nightcap and Mike Havers was awarded the save. Knapp had a perfect game going 4-for-4 with a home run and four RBI, and Gurtcheff went 2-for-3 with a home run and four RBI.

In the final game of the series, Murray State sent eight men to the plate in the bottom of the first in a five-run scoring spurt. The Racer's Dave Winder was 5-for-6 in the game with two home runs and 12 RBI. He broke the school record with 12 RBI, and tied one for most hits in a game.

Winder hit a three-run homer the first time he was up, and a grand slam the second time to help his team take a 12-2 lead after only two innings.

Jim Lambert recorded the victory and Iowa's Ron Griffith suffered the loss. The Hawkeyes went through six pitchers in the final game, giving up 13 walks and striking out nine.

Hawkeyes defeat Spartans, lose to No. 20 Michigan, 8-1

By Jeff Stratton

The Iowa men's tennis team saw its nine-match winning streak come to an end Saturday against Michigan, a team Coach Steve Houghton said "is the best collegiate team I've seen since I've been coaching."

The Hawkeyes lost to the Wolverines, 8-1, after knocking off Michigan State, 7-2, Friday to end their road trip with a 1-1 record.

Michigan is currently ranked No. 20 in the nation, but Houghton said they deserve to be ranked higher. "They are an outstanding team," he said. "Against Michigan, at No. 1 singles, Ben Goldberg defeated Iowa's Mats Malmberg, 6-2, 4-6, 6-2.

Despite the loss, Houghton was pleased with Malmberg's play. "Goldberg is one of the top 30 collegiate players in the country," he said. "He has had a lot of good wins over nationally-ranked players this year."

At No. 2 singles, Jim Sharton defeated Iowa's Rudy Foo, 6-3, 6-3. At No. 3 singles, Ed Filer defeated Iowa's Jim Nelson, 6-4, 6-1. At No. 4, John Royer defeated Iowa's Bryan Stokstad, 7-6, 6-3. At No. 5 singles, Jon Morris defeated Iowa's Jim Burkeholder, 6-0, 6-2. At No. 6 singles, Mike Tizzutello defeated Iowa's Bill Seitz, 6-2, 7-6.

IN DOUBLES PLAY, Filer and Sharton downed Nelson and Stokstad, 6-3, 6-4. Royer and Morris defeated Foo and Burkeholder, 6-1, 6-3, and the Iowa team of Malmberg and Shafer defeated Brad Koontz and Chip McColl, 6-3, 7-5. Since Malmberg and Shafer have been paired together at No. 3 doubles, the duo have compiled a 9-0 record.

Against Michigan State, Malmberg defeated Santiago Cash, 7-6, 6-2. Fernando Belmar defeated Iowa's Foo, 7-6, 2-6, 6-2. Paul Mesaros defeated Iowa's Nelson, 6-2, 6-4. Stokstad defeated Kurt Streg, 6-1, 6-4. Burkeholder defeated Chris Ignas, 6-4, 6-2 and Seitz defeated Steve Hooley, 6-1, 6-2.

In doubles play, Nelson and Stokstad defeated Belmar and Mesaros, 7-6, 6-3. Foo and Burkeholder defeated Cash and Streg, 6-4, 6-3 and Malmberg and Shafer defeated Ignas and Hooley, 6-2, 6-4.

Houghton said he was surprised with his team's margin of victory. "To beat them that badly is a good showing," he said. "I was expecting a 5-4 match."

Baltimore, Royals ready for A.L. Championship Series

Spring at last!

After watching an action packed NFL season in which the Chicago Bears "squeaked" by all opponents to their first Super Bowl victory, and seeing the Boston Celtics and Los Angeles Lakers surprise everyone by ruling the basketball world, it's time to turn our attention to a less predictable sport, Major League Baseball.

Year after year, critics attempt to inflict their words of wisdom on the unsuspecting public, only to be shocked at the end of the year by the rise to power of some unknown.

Who could have predicted the Kansas City Royals would have fallen behind, 3-1, in games to both Toronto and St. Louis only to wind up winning both the American League Pennant and the World Series?

WHILE BRET Saberhagen won't have another dream season in 1986, Kansas City should have enough to repeat as champions in the American League West — the reason being that they're in the weakest division in baseball.

Mark Gubicza, Charlie Leibrandt and Dan Jackson will combine with Saberhagen and company to lead one of the best pitching staffs in the league, and if George Brett can continue his mastery over the opposition, the Royals will squeak by once again.

But while Kansas City is ready to defend its crown in 1986, up north, Ray Miller has Minneapolis geared for a long-awaited run at the Royal dynasty.

After a surprisingly poor performance on the mound by Frank Viola, Mike Smithson and reliever Ron Davis in 1985, the return of Bert Blyleven to the Twin Cities would stabilize the young staff, and with timely hitting by Kent Hrbek and Kirby Puckett, the Twins could be primed to challenge in the upper half of the American League West.

Meanwhile, a power surge by Phil Bradley last year in Seattle, has Mariner fans hoping for a first ever division crown, and if pitching can improve in 1986, Seattle could also make a go of it.

And as for an Angelic revival in 1986, forget it.

OLD AGE is becoming a disease in California and unless Reggie packs his bats and heads for greener pastures, Mr. October's heroics will be a thing of the past.

The rest of the West: 1. Kansas

City Royals; 2. Minnesota Twins; 3. Seattle Mariners; 4. Chicago White Sox; 5. California Angels; 6. Oakland A's; 7. Texas Rangers

On to the American League East where the second coming of Earl Weaver has Baltimore thinking championship once again, and with good reason.

After combining for a 30-36 record in 1985, former 20-games winners Mike Boddicker, Scott McGregor and Mike Flanagan are again ready to relive the past.

But if Baltimore can live in the past, so can the New York Yankees, who after not having won a division title since 1981, are ready to prove that history can repeat itself.

LET'S JUST HOPE Lou Piniella will have better luck than his predecessors at the managerial post.

Don't look for Sparky Anderson to worry about job security in 1986. But don't look for the Detroit Tigers to win the division either.

Also, don't expect a repeat performance from the Blue Jays in 1986. The reason simply being that the American League East is just too tough.

Rounding out the East: 1. Baltimore Orioles; 2. New York Yankees; 3. Detroit Tigers; 4. Toronto Blue Jays; 5. Boston Red Sox; 6. Milwaukee Brewers; 7. Cleveland Indians.

Contracts

Cyclones mid-contract after the 1982 season when he decided he would rather work in the private sector in the Southwest.

At Iowa, Olson left for the warmer climes of Arizona in 1983 before his agreement with Iowa was expired, while Raveling exited last month to another Pacific 10 school, Southern California, with two years left on his five-year contract.

Following Olson's departure from Iowa, several players left the team and the squad finished below .500 for the first time since 1978. The team won 20 games the next two years after Raveling scheduled easier non-conference opponents. Even though this type of instability may hurt a team, there was never an attempt by either of the universities to try to force any one of these coaches to stay.

"People have to be pleased with each other for employment to continue," Urick said. "If they're not, then it's not a good deal."

IOWA COACH Tom Davis, who left Stanford while still under contract, said Sunday at his press conference that coaches sometimes need to do what is right for themselves.

"You feel badly about leaving the people you care about," he said. "You have to understand sometimes you need to do things for yourself."

Even though the agreements between coaches and universities are not always fulfilled, the contracts still represent something.

"Everybody that enters into an agreement has to enter into it with a good-faith effort," Bowsby said. "Once we sign a five-year agreement with (basketball Coach) Eldon Miller, we don't expect him to leave right away, nor would we expect us to make any changes prior to the end of that five-year period."

Miller was released as basketball coach at Ohio State during the past season and has spoken out against the requirement at that school that limits coaches to one-year contracts, seemingly giving the university the upper hand over coaches.

Urick, however, said he "wouldn't feel very good" about mandatory one-year contracts, adding he would prefer to go the other way and allow coaches to be eligible for tenure, which is offered to college professors who remain at the same university for a certain length of time.

Bowsby also spoke out in favor of the long-term contracts, because they give recruits more security in knowing the coach will remain at the school. It also gives the coach's family a sense of stability.

Swimming

ners of the mythical non-sunbelt crown.

"WE WERE VERY pleased with our finish this year in the NCAA's," Iowa Coach Glenn Patton said. "It was the highest finish we've had since I've been here. I was a little upset to get beat by Ohio State by one point, but all things considered, it went pretty well."

Along with his third-place time of 3:47.88 in the 400 individual medley, Davey took 10th in the 200 individual medley and 13th in the 200 butterfly, leaving him as the nucleus for Patton to build on in the future.

Meanwhile, Williams, who made a name for himself in the 50 freestyle earlier in the week, saw his fortunes dwindle in the 100 freestyle, when his time of 44.37 placed him 17th, far behind Matt Biondi's (California-Berkeley) championship time of 42.03.

BUT WHILE WILLIAMS was bested in the 100 freestyle,

Scott McCadam of Iowa State, who was beaten by Williams earlier this season, took second in the event with a 43.10 time.

"We knew our destiny lied on the shoulders of Davey and Williams," Patton said. "Both swimmers set new school and Big Ten records with their performances and that meant a lot to us. They both had an excellent meet."

Other competitors for Iowa were Mike Curley, who ended his Hawkeye career with a 20th-place finish in the 100 backstroke, and Todd Slaybaugh, who finished 24th in the 100 breast stroke.

Glenn Galembo also settled into the 21st position in the three-meter diving competition.

The only other scoring for the Hawkeyes came from the 400 freestyle relay team of Williams, John Linxwiler, Dan Dumford and Ed Lower, who finished seventh with a time of 2:57.26. California-Berkeley won the event in 2:53.02.

Gymnastics

more than I was expecting."

IOWA WAS ALSO led by Ron Nasti, who finished 21st in the all-around (55.85), Joe Thome, who placed 33rd (55.10) and Stu Breitenstine, who ended in 35th place (55.00).

A share of the NCAA title was lost by Nebraska when they were penalized for improper procedure.

On the last event of the meet, Arizona State trailed Nebraska by 1.40 points but they pushed past the Cornhuskers with a 48.15 point performance on the horizontal bar as compared to Nebraska's 46.60 on the vault.

Arizona State apparently was leading by .15 of a point but one event earlier Nebraska Coach Francis Allen had filed three inquiries regarding the performances of three Cornhusker gymnasts on the horizontal bar.

Allen won the first inquiry, which added .15 of a point to the Nebraska team score, placing them in a tie with Arizona State, but lost the other two inquiries.

A TEAM IS allowed as many inquiries as it believes is needed, but if an inquiry after its third is turned down by the judges, a team deduction of .30 of a point will be given, according to NCAA gymnastics rules.

Because Nebraska, who had already entered an inquiry earlier in the meet, lost its fourth inquiry, .30 was deducted from its score, knocking them out of a tie with Arizona State and into second place.

Nebraska's Wes Suter had the opportunity to win the meet, inquiries or not, but he fell and scored only 8.95 on the last Cornhusker routine.

If Suter could have scored a 9.4 on vault (he scored a 9.45 in the preliminaries Friday night) Arizona State's Dan Hayden could not have won the team title on the last routine of the meet.

Hayden needed a score of 9.85 to win the team championship and he came through with an electrifying 9.9 score on the horizontal bar.

Hayden scored 9.9 by using kovacs — somersault catches — and according to Arizona State Coach Don Robinson, Hayden is the only gymnast in the world today capable of accomplishing the trick.

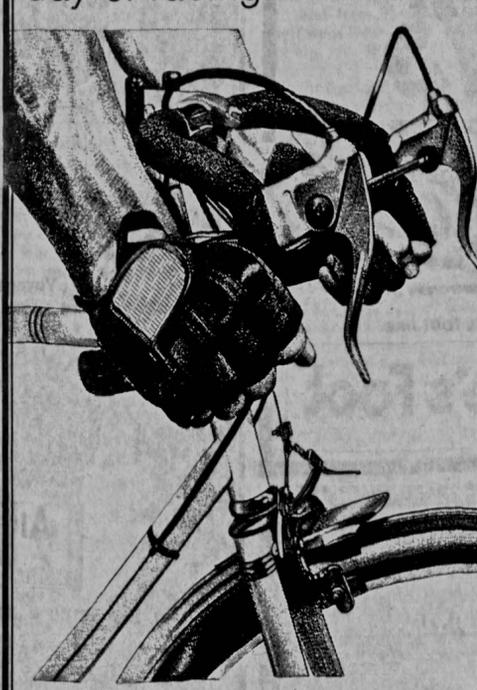

"This counted, that's for sure," Hayden said. "I knew I had to have one of the best sets in my life."

'Bills' g
By Jeff Wren Staff Writer
EXCELLENT! Today night's "Bill" concert was exquisitely balanced harmony of music, dance, lighting. Bill Kirkpatrick work proves him to be a reographer for all sea and the premiere of Bill ner's choreography a unique surprise.
The evening's present began with "A Solo," choreographed by Wagner to el's exuberant "Royal works." The dance became joyful visualization of music. Wagner's strong, technique simply support the warm and carefree ner of his dance. When the dynamic horn sea came on, Wagner would his hips like a gyroscope to take off in the wind could easily picture him himself leaping among canyons and hills.
Wagner's "Becalmed" performed before a ground projection of autumn leaves on a floor, with lighting reser the sun peeking through forest leaves.

'Bills' give outstanding performance

By Jenny Wren Staff Writer

EXCELLENT! Thursday night's "Double Bill" concert was an exquisitely balanced harmony of music, dance and lighting. Bill Kirkpatrick's work proves him to be a choreographer for all seasons, and the premiere of Bill Wagner's choreography was a unique surprise.

The evening's presentations began with "A Solo," choreographed by Wagner to Handel's exuberant "Royal Fireworks." The dance became the joyful visualization of the music. Wagner's strong, clean technique simply supported the warm and carefree manner of his dance. Whenever the dynamic horn section came on, Wagner would twist his hips like a gyroscope about to take off in the wind. One could easily picture him off by himself leaping among the canyons and hills.

Wagner's "Becalmed" was performed before a background projection of late autumn leaves on a forest floor, with lighting resembling the sun peeking through the forest leaves.

"I was looking for you but couldn't find you... I wanted you and I was looking for you all day but I couldn't find you," came the lyrics from Laurie Anderson's music.

Graphic by Jenny Wren

The couple, David Berkey and Lan-Lan King, enter in retrograde harmony looking for each other. Berkey, dressed in mauve and bare-chested; and King, in a mauve floating tunic, were simple and sincere in their movements. Graceful skill on the part of the dancers served to amplify the tender mood of "Becalmed."

Kirkpatrick's "Quintessential" represents an experiment in pure movement style — though this is not really where Kirkpatrick shines, it is understandable that such a colorful choreographer might want to experiment with a relatively emotionless piece now and then.

Five women, dressed in white, moved in waves and imbricated patterns to music by Phillip Glass. As a piece of choreography, "Quintessential" was executed well enough, but it's hard to find a distinguishing characteristic because it looked very much like many other similar choreographic exercises which one has seen over the past decade.

But the work was highlighted by the dancers themselves. A brief solo by Shirley Nelson had a free-spirited, earthy quality and the gracefully dramatic entrance and exit by Angie Hayes wove into "Quintessential" the flavor of a dream.

"Major Medical Medical Model," Kirkpatrick's thesis piece, featured a hospital bed, a couch representing a nurses' lounge, many bedpans and cast of characters that included nurses, doctors, patients, "Jackie Kennedy," an astronaut, a geisha girl and a cowboy — though the inclusion of the last four as part of the dance is, of course, up to the interpretation of the audience.

"Major Medical Medical Model" was a rift of humor which provided an opportunity for the intelligencia (or merely the curious and uninformed in the audience) to observe modern medical "machina" from the patient's point of view. In the end the medical machina destroys itself — done without satire but with a lot of insight. Kirkpatrick's thesis piece should be shown to anyone preparing for the medical profession.

Kirkpatrick's "Cocktails For One" featured Kirkpatrick in pink slacks with a starched white shirt imbibing occasional mimed cocktails. He dances with slinky grace and tongue-in-cheek humor.

Wagner's thesis piece "The Verge," was performed to Vivaldi's "Winter Concerto." A sensitive conceptualization of nature's intrinsic harmony flowed through Wagner's work. Cleanness of line and geometrical intrigue became part and parcel of the works emotional quality, elevating the whole to a new plane of clarity which was both emotionally soothing and intellectually stimulating.

One left the concert wishing for more.

Entertainment Today

At the Bijou

Lady Windermere's Fan (1925). Ernst Lubitsch directed this silent version of Oscar Wilde's famous play, substituting his visual wit, the "Lubitsch touch," for Wilde's verbal wit. Irene Rich and Bert Lytell star. At 7 p.m.

Avante-Garde 7. The seventh and final potpourri of the bizarre, the unusual and the unexpected from some filmmakers who see things a little bit differently. At 9 p.m.

Television

On the networks: An unusual (at least for television) lovers' triangle is examined in "My Two Loves" (ABC at 8 p.m.), about a recently widowed woman (Mariette Hartley) who finds herself attracted to a female co-worker (Lynn Redgrave) as well as her late husband's best friend (Barry Newman). And love is war on "The Annihilator" (NBC at 8 p.m.) as a newspaperman (Mark Lindsay Chapman) is stalked by a killer humanoid who happens to look like his girlfriend.

On cable: Science fiction fans receive a double-dose starting with Sting in the sandy epic Dune (Cinemax-13 at 7 p.m.), based on the novel by the late Frank Herbert. Then, The Last Starfighter (Cinemax-13 at 9:30 p.m.) offers an unpretentious and surprisingly fun movie about the problems a high school senior (Lance Guest) faces when he is called upon to save the universe.

Music

Acclaimed organist and teacher Robert Anderson will lecture on "Training and Repertoire for Church Musicians" at 9:30 a.m. in Clapp Recital Hall, with a masterclass at 1:30 p.m.

Pulitzer-winning author reads tonight

By Margot Patterson
Special to The Daily Iowan

EVIDENT IN ALL of Alison Lurie's work is a perceptive intelligence and an ironic, often acerbic wit. She has written a number of critically acclaimed novels, the settings of which range from the cloistered, if scarcely peaceful, confines of Eastern academia (The War Between the Tates) to the sunlit madness of Los Angeles (The Nowhere City).

Expatriate Americans in London are the subject of her most recent novel, Foreign Affairs, for which she won a Pulitzer Prize in 1984. Lurie will read from her work at 8 p.m. in Van Allen Lecture Room I.

As a woman writing in a country whose literary tradition has been dominated by men, Lurie is outspoken in her admiration for the English novel, acknowledging its importance in her own work. This is reflected in Foreign Affairs, in many ways a faithful recreation of the 19th century novel.

Vinnie Miner and Fred Turner are the new American expatriates — not wealthy patricians but budget-conscious academics on sabbaticals, scholars trekking to Britain as pilgrims to the shrine of English literature.

VINNIE IS 54, a tenured professor of children's literature, "small, plain and unmarried, the sort of person no one ever notices." Her frequent bouts of self-pity are marked by outbreaks of petty theft, but an opportunity to spend six months in England, a country Vinnie regards as her spiritual homeland, promises some consolation to her in her solitary, loveless state.

An assistant professor of English at the same university as Vinnie, Fred is also in London on academic research. Fred is 28, a strikingly handsome man with an otherwise lackluster personality.

Unlike Vinnie, with her confirmed anglophilia, Fred is initially unenchanted by England. The London he has dreamed of is in reality cold, dreary, inhospitable and past its prime. But a romance with the beautiful Lady Rosemary Radley gives Fred an entree into London circles previously closed to him.

Soon Fred is leading a glittering fast-track life of intellectual dinners in Hampstead and weekends with the gentry in their country homes. As Fred's fortunes rise, so too does his opinion of London, though he eventually discovers some disturbing realities underneath the graceful veneer of English social life.

WHILE FRED penetrates the upper echelons of London society, Vinnie finds herself reluctantly involved in the problems of Chuck Mumpson, a folksy waste disposal engineer from Tulsa she met on the flight to London. Mumpson is just the kind of American Vinnie despises: a businessman who goes on package tours, an ignoramus in Western reality, "a person without inner resources who splits infinitives."

In alternating chapters, Lurie traces Fred's and Vinnie's respective liaisons. The leisurely paced plot allows for a rich layering of ruminations on a variety of subjects — the relationship of literature to life, the contrast between illusion and reality, the injustice of fate — before the characters separate and the dawning realization that people are seldom what they seem. The revelations involved change both the protagonists' perceptions of themselves and their consciousness of what it is to be American.

A regular visitor to Britain, Lurie has provided a very complete depiction of the complex of emotions England inspires in Americans who spend time there. Frequently amusing and always absorbing, the novel is also true to its 19th century model. A clear and deftly handled moral concern underlines and illuminates the portrayal of love and innocence abroad.

A man who was convicted almost six years ago of a degree murder following a shotgun slaying will receive a new trial when he appears in Iowa County District Court today.

Michael Otto Gilroy, who has been serving a mandatory life sentence at the Iowa State Penitentiary, will come to court because he seeks his initial trial was unfair.

According to court records, Gilroy claims he was denied a fair trial because prosecutors failed to provide lawyers with information.

Despite more than 100 people walking out on his talk, Linn County Democratic convention this weekend, Cortez — a supporter of Don LaRouche — said the party could learn much from the views of the right extremist.

"We need to awake the crats," said Cortez, who to gain the party's nomination in order to oppose incumbent Chuck Grassley, R-Iowa, year for a seat in the Senate.

The LaRouche plan includes, among other things, requiring Acquired I
