NEW YORK (UPI) - In a draft with few blue chip players available, positioning is everything for teams with a definite need.

For that reason, trades could be as common as running backs and offensive linemen in the first round of Tuesday's NFL draft. Nothing is certain entering the draft, although it is almost definite that the Tampa Bay Buccaneers will use the first pick on Auburn running back Bo Jackson and Atlanta will follow with the selection of Oklahoma nose tackle Tony Casillas.

Houston has the third pick, and is at least even money to deal it to one of a growing group of teams looking to See Draft, Page 9

"This has not been a very easy competition for us because of the lack of success in the past," Olson said. "We sent three teams out in international competition last summer, none of which won the gold. They then decided this was a critical competition and they decided to go through a full trials competition similar to the Olympics."

THE PLAYERS selected for the trial competition were discussed at the meeting of the player's selection committee of the ABA/USA at the Final Four in Dallas. Members of the committee included Chairman Bobby Knight of Indiana, coach John Georgetown

weakens drinking penalties

By Kirk Brown egislative Writer

DES MOINES - The Iowa Senate voted 30-14 Tuesday to significantly weaken the penalities contained in a bill raising the state's drinking age from 19 to 21.

The Senate approved an amendment to the bill proposed by Sen. Tom Mann, D-Des Moines, setting only a $10 fine for 19- and 20-year-olds who are convicted of possessing alcohol. People convicted of selling alcohol to 19- and 20-year-olds would face a $25

Following the unexpected adoption of Mann's amendment it is now unclear when or if lawmakers will finish work on the drinking age bill. The current session of the Iowa Legislature is supposed to close later this week.

SENATE MAJORITY Leader C.W. "Bill" Hutchins, D-Audubon, postponed a final vote on the bill following the adoption of Mann's amendlegislators had already gone home for the evening. Hutchins said he doesn't know if the Senate will take action on the bill today because it is scheduled to spend most of the day debating a 150-page budget plan.

The addition of Mann's amendment will also require the Iowa House of Representatives to consider the legislation again before it goes to Gov. Terry Branstad for final

Speaker Donald Avenson, D-Oelwein, said the House will probably have time to consider the drinking age bill before it adjourns for the year. "But it is not something I am going to keep us down here waiting around for," he added. See Drinking, Page 8A

UI student groups get fewer dollars

By Phil Thomas

Staff Writer UI student groups found out Tuesday night they will be getting $75,000 less funding from the UI Student Senate for the 1986-87 academic year than they received this year.

Senate-funded groups are victims both of a budget crunch and over-ambitious expectations, Senate President Joe Hansen said during a 5-hour senate hearing on allocation requests Tuesday night.

Hansen said about $380,000 was requested from the groups, but the senate can only afford to give out

THE SENATE has less money to work with this year because the previous senate committed $75,000 to the Student Commission on Programming and Entertainment so the group could avoid paying agents for concert promotions,

Hansen said. "The (Senate) Budgeting and Auditing Committee has to make some very tough decisions," Hansen said. "We do what we can to be fair."

But some of those decisions

The recommended funding for The Campus Review brought charges of bias against the budgeting and auditing com-

Review President Sean Johnson both said they were funded less money because they represent a conservative activist group.

But committee member Sen. Mike Gainer said there is no such bias in the decision. "I think the budgeting and auditing committee has been as unbiased as possible, which is coming from a conservative," Gainer said.

The decision was made because the committee decided the group had the resources to bring in Campus Review-sponsored lecturers,

By Brian Lott

Following a heated debate Fuesday night the Iowa City Council approved a controversial measure paving the way for a project intended to bring the city airport back within federal compliance.

While city officials had hesitated earlier this month on the measure, the councilors voted unanimously to continue with the project estimated to cost between $600,000 and $800,000.

Completion of the airport compliance project will make the Iowa City Municipal Air-port eligible for future Federal Aviation Administration

"For us to say at this point to say 'no' would mean no compliance, and that would be a serious mistake," said Councilor John McDonald.

COUNCILOR KATE Dickson agreed by saying that the city "could just beat a dead horse, or keep on killing a dead

"I think we should put ourselves into compliance, for the safety of the entire city,' she added.

But while the compliance project would allow Iowa City to be eligible for FAA funding, several city officials said they are skeptical about FAA sup-

"It's my understanding that the feds have made proposals to cut money for airport improvements," Councilor Ernest Zuber said.

In addition, Iowa City Attorney Terrence Timmins warned that there will be less money for airport improvements forthcoming from the FAA. He said airport improvement funds are kept in an FAA trust fund which may be affected by cutbacks on the federal level.

"I'M ABSOLUTELY in favor of getting the airport into compliance," said Councilor George Strait. "But what I understand is that we'll get zero funding (from the FAA) even if we comply."

Union sought help from the West Tuesday in extinguishing a fire at a giant atomic power plant and acknowledged mass evacuations and two deaths in the "disaster." One unconfirmed report from the area said the death toll may have surpassed 2,000.

A Soviet diplomat in Helsinki, Finland, told United Press International the accident at the sprawling Chernobyl nuclear power complex 80 miles north of the Ukrainian capital of Kiev was "the worst ever in the world," but did not elaborate

The official Soviet news agency Tass said that "two persons were killed during the accident" and "the inhabitants of the nuclear power station's settlement and three nearby populated localities have been evacuated."

KENNETH ADELMAN, head of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, dismissed as "preposterous" the report of only two deaths.

Adelman also speculated there could be "serious, serious problems with contamination." The nearby Pripyat River feeds a reservoir serving Kiev, the Soviet Union's third most populous city with 2.3 million people.

Reagan administration sources said U.S. intelligence agencies concluded that a chemical explosion of some kind" caused a reactor meltdown and that an adjacent building housing another reactor was in danger.

"The roof was blown away, the walls were crumpled and it was clearly still on fire" Tuesday morning, one source said.

A WESTERN diplomat said it was impossible to confirm the report of 2,000 deaths, but "the figure is in the ballpark of rumors coming from the Several Western embassies said Westerners phoned from Kiev to say 3,000 people died.

The statement from Tass revealed few details of the accident, but led to speculation that the accident was extremely serious.

"According to preliminary data, the accident took place in one of the areas of the fourth power generating unit and resulted in the destruction of part of the structural elements of the building housing the reactor, its damage and a certain leak of radioactive substances," Tass said.

"THE RADIATION situation at the electric power station and the adjacent territory has now been stabilized and the necessary medical aid is being given to those affected," Tass

Budget still snarled on defense, taxes

WASHINGTON - The Senate crushed a proposal by Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., to add $3 billion for pioneer programs in three domestic areas Tuesday, but moved no closer to nailing down a fiscal 1987 budget that can pass and escape a veto by President Ronald Reagan.

The Senate voted 65-32 against an amendment that would have included in the budget $3 billion for investments in science and technology, education and training and resource development, financed by additional taxes.

But the nearly $1 trillion budget remained imperiled as Republican senators called for an increase over $295 billion for defense and a decrease in the $19 billion in new taxes and other revenues - demands shared by

The Council of Bishops of the second largest American Protestant church called for both U.S. and Soviet governments and other nuclear powers to accept a weapons test ban, a nuclear freeze and the "ultimate" dismantling of all nuclear weapons.

The bishops also called for a prohibition on space-based weaponry, including those under development in Reagan's strategic defense initiative.

New carrier arrives in Mediterranean

WASHINGTON - The nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Enterprise headed for the central Mediterranean Sea Tuesday, where another carrier has launched jets into a restricted flight zone north of Libya for more than a week, Pentagon sources said.

The Enterprise and its five escort ships left its station in the Indian Ocean and moved west in the Mediterranean. The action brought to three the number of U.S. carriers in the region for the first time since March, the sources

Pentagon spokesman Robert Sims indicated the Enterprise would replace the carrier Coral Sea, which has been in the Mediterranean on extended duty since Oct. 10. But sources who demanded anonymity said there was no immediate plan for the Coral Sea and its eight escorts to head home to Norfolk, Va.

Palestinians arrested for tourist's death

JERUSALEM - Several Palestinians have been arrested as suspects in a wave of shootings in Arab east Jerusalem, including the weekend holy site killing of a British tourist, police said Tuesday.

Police did not identify the suspects or say how many were arrested, but Israel radio said they were suspected of belonging to an underground network of Palestinians loyal to Said "Abu" Mousa, a Syrian-backed Palestinian dissident with guerrilla bases in eastern Lebanon's

Authorities refused comment on reports that some of the suspects admitted they carried out the attacks. "Israeli police and security forces captured a group of terrorists suspected in the shooting incidents," Jerusalem police

Chilean unrest may bring state of seige

SANTIAGO, Chile - A powerful bomb blast damaged the U.S. ambassador's residence Tuesday and only hours later Chile's military government threatened to reimpose a state of siege to contain a wave of terrorism.

"It is possible that the government could reimpose a state of siege to contain terrorism, though we do not favor such a step," Defense Minister Vice Adm. Patricio Carvajal said Tuesday, following a wave of violence that left five people dead and 10 injured in 24 hours.

The state of siege would grant the government of President Augusto Pinochet sweeping powers to arrest opponents, enforce curfews, close down the news media, tap phones and open mail.

Teens play out Romeo and Juliet act

NEW YORK - Teenage sweethearts stabbed each other in a Romeo and Juliet suicide pact but the girl survived and, in a twist of fate, authorities said Tuesday she may be charged with murder.

Christina Ittermann, 16, of Brooklyn, described by her school principal as a gifted writer and a "sensitive child," was in guarded but stable condition following surgery at Kings County Hospital.

Police said Ittermann stabbed her boyfriend, Paul Gibbons, 18, in the stomach with an 8-inch dagger, Monday and Gibbons stabbed her before he died. She then swallowed 60 to 100 assorted pills and slashed her wrists in a desperate attempt to join her sweetheart in

The courthouse will then assume a new role as the courtrooms and court facilities are expanded. The entire renovation is expected to take up to five years.

TUESDAY the Courthouse

Remodeling Committee presented a preliminary schedule to the board that includes a recommendation to begin work immediately on the heating and cooling systems. The schedule also calls for starting the renovation of first floor office space in September. This space will be used for the county attorney's office.

Neumann recognized that it would be a tight schedule, but if the board acted immediately the technical drawings for the project could be ready in 30 days. Bidding would take another month, and construction could begin July 1, he

UI OFFICIALS said Tuesday the investigation into the nature of the substance was continuing.

In an official statement released Tuesday, UI Vice President for Finance Dorsey Ellis said the preliminary theory suggests the problem was caused by materials that did not burn completely in early April.

Ellis apologized for the damage and inconvenience caused by the emissions of the plant and said steps have been taken to be sure the problem is not repeated. Material inside the smokestacks is being examined and the air around the plant is being monitored, Howard said. Car owners who are con-

Violence and oppression have not disappeared in South Africa, and tonight UI students plan to prove that these horrors have not disappeared from their minds.

Several UI students will condemn the racial segregation that continues to force South African blacks from their homes by building a shanty, a symbol of black oppression in South Africa, on Union Field.

The shanty, similar to the type in which many South Africans live, will be built as part of an Iowa Coalition Against Apartheid observance this week. It will remain in front of Danforth Chapel until Saturday.

BRUCE NESTOR, one of the organizers of the shanty protest, said teach-ins on U.S. support for apartheid will take place in the shanty.

Bart Aikens, who will be taking part in the protest, said the event is designed to commemorate successful antiapartheid protests on the UI campus last May 1.

Last May more than 100 people were arrested when they occupied the office of UI President James O. Freedman in protest against UI investments in companies doing business in South Africa. Since the protests, UI officials have sold all stocks in those companies for economic

Despite the stock sale, Aikens said there is still a need to continue the cause on

"WE WANT TO remind students just because we've divested, apartheid hasn't gone away," Aikens said.

While the building of shanties on other college campuses has erupted into many confrontations including the arrests of several students, the UI administration has approved the construction of the shanty.

Nestor said UI Campus Security will provide protection for the shanty "in case anyone tries to destroy it," and UI officials will allow it to remain standing for three "Generally confrontations have arisen over them because students have decided they should stay and administra-tors decided they should be taken down," Nestor said.

SEVERAL teach-ins are scheduled to be held in the shanty from noon to 6 p.m. on Thursday and Friday.

Aikens will speak about "American Apartheid," the forcible removal of Navajo and Hopi Indians from Big Mountain Reservation in Arizona, a situation he said is similar to South African apartheid.

"It's somewhat hypocritical for us to focus on South Africa while ignoring the apartheid in our own country," he said. "We can change the situation by repealing the Additional teach-in topics planned for the shanty include resistance movements in South Africa, life for blacks in South Africa, apartheid as a political system and student resistance to apartheid.

Social host bill passed; server not responsible

DES MOINES (UPI) - The Iowa Legislature gave final approval Tuesday to a bill which would free social hosts from liability for serving beer or liquor to drunken guests.

The House passed the tort liability bill to Gov. Terry Branstad on an 81-12 vote.

Lawmakers opted against a national trend to place a cap on the amount of punitive damages individuals can seek in liability lawsuits.

Instead, the bill would make it more difficult to prove punitive damage was done. It also calls for a study of the insurance industry to determine if limiting jury awards for damages will reduce insurance

The social host provision would reverse a 1985 Iowa Supreme Court ruling which said persons who serve liquor in their homes are responsible for the injury and damages caused by the actions of their intoxicated guests.

Under the bill, the cause of the actions would be based on the consumption, not service, of alcohol.

"The people that bend their elbows should bare the responsibility," said Rep. Daniel Jay, D-Centerville,

The Supreme Court held social hosts should be under the same dram shop laws which make bartenders responsible for serving drunken patrons.

City manager applicants kept private

By Brian Lott Staff Writer

A state law spurred the Iowa City Council Tuesday night to allow a recruiting firm to privately screen applicants for the rition of city manager befol in ad hoc committee become involved in the selection pi cess.

Established earlier this spring in a controversial move by Iowa City Mayor William Ambrisco, the committee was to screen applicants after a recruiting firm narrowed the

The screening sessions were to include representatives from both the city and Jensen-Oldani & Assoc. — the recruiting firm hired by the city to search nationwide for a new city manager.

BUT ACCORDING to Iowa City Attorney Terrence Timmins that committee would have violated an Iowa public meeting law prohibiting the private discussion of applicants for positions in city government.

Timmins also stressed that if the council wished to continue with the original process, the names of the candidates would have to be disclosed at this

Jerold Oldani, a partner in the firm, told the council that the field of candidates has been narrowed to 24. But he said that three of those candidates will withdraw their applications if their names are dis-

"OF THE 24, three candidates clearly could not risk the early exposure at this

Ambrisco said the council should allow the firm to continue the screening process in private saying, "I'd hate to think we'd eliminate two, three or more candidates."

Oldani said that several minority and women candidates are in the running. He said he expects the search for the city's new manager to end in early June. At that point the council will interview the remaining five or six candidates and make its final selec-

City explores transit income avenues

Staff Writer

A number of informal proposals aimed at boosting ridership on the city's 29 buses were presented to the Iowa City Council Tuesday night.

But some of the proposals, developed by an ad hoc committee examining promotional strategies for the area's three bus systems, drew criticism from several councilors.

According to Phil Shive, president of the Downtown Merchants Association and a member of the committee, one proposal calls for the promotion of the bus system to commuters from surrounding Shive pointed out that residents from West Liberty and other neighboring communities often park their cars at Sycamore Mall and take the bus into downtown Iowa City.

COUNCILOR ERNEST Zuber warned, however, encouraging people to park outside of the downtown area would limit the revenue generated by the city's parking ramps.

Zuber also said that the parking fee increase implemented Feb. 1 may be driving more people out of the downtown area. He noted that since the fee increase took effect ridership has plunged by 58,000. He also said the number of hours the city has recorded for downtown parking has dipped by 118,000.

"It proves to not be very good economics," Zuber said. "Now we're not only running deficits in transit, but also parking. Who are we going to get the money from next?"

Councilor Darrel Courtney said he hopes residents continue to make use of downtown parking facilities.

"Otherwise, those two extra levels on the new parking ramp are going to look pretty silly," Courtney said.

But Councilor George Strait, chairman of the ad hoc committee, stressed the proposals were "informal." He said the Ronald and Nancy Reagan are regaled with dancing girls after they arrived in Indonesia. During the visit, Reagan plans to meet with Asian leaders, including Philippine Vice President Salvador Laurel.

Reagans welcomed in Bali

BALI. Indonesia (UPI) -Dancing girls and hundreds of petal-throwing, bell-ringing Balinese Tuesday night welcomed President Ronald Reagan to Indonesia, where he will confer with the Philippines' vice president and other Asian leaders.

Airport security was extremely tight for the three-day visit, with jittery Indonesian army and military police restricting movements along the island's Nusa Dua peninsula, where Reagan and his wife, Nancy, were staying.

The Reagans were greeted by President Suharto and his wife, Tien, after a 161/2-hour trip from Honolulu.

The Reagans and the Suhartos

THE REAGANS' stop in Bali is part of a 22,000-mile journey across the Pacific that will culminate this weekend at the 12th annual Economic Summit in Tokyo.

The chief executive, pacing himself, spent the weekend in Hawaii and spoke briefly Tuesday in Guam during a refueling stop.

On Guam, Reagan told an enthusiastic audience their island was "America's flagship in the western Pacific."

"Your island represents one of the distinctive characteristics of the United States for its Pacificness," he said.

The president and first lady planned to relax Wednesday Reagan was scheduled to hold conferences Thursday with Suharto, Philippine Vice President Salvador Laurel and later with them and other leaders of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations.

Laurel told reporters he expects to discuss with Reagan the question of U.S. support to bolster the Manila government against commun-

Fear and loathing

The details of the near nuclear meltdown outside Kiev, U.S.S.R., slowly drift out of the shrouded Soviet Union much like the radioactive cloud spreading to Scandinavia and beyond.

The fact that the Soviet press agency Tass has released such immediate warnings about the accident underlines the severity of the situation.

United Press International reports indicate that more than 2,000 people have died so far, 80 of those perished immediately after the mishap. The death and misery toll will no doubt rise as the sickening effects of radiation begin to poison the environment.

While grisly to contemplate, this tragedy reinforces the need to halt the use of nuclear energy and opt for clean and safe alternatives such as solar and wind power.

The world's closest brush with nuclear calamity in a non-military setting before this point was the March 28, 1979 disaster at Three Mile Island outside Harrisburg, Penn. The U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission -Pollyanna that it is — says Three Mile Island presents virtually no health risks now, despite the fact that the reactor is still being decontaminated.

The world has grown too comfortable with nuclear power and only a horrendous accident like the one near Kiev can jolt energy consumers back to the dangerous reality of nuclear reactors.

And how ironic that non-military dabbling in nuclear power would bring such high casualty levels to the Soviet people when all along it is the radioactive menace of "The Bomb" that American leaders threaten them with.

If any scrap of purpose can be found in this tragedy it is the intensified fear of all things nuclear and the renewed effort to contain them.

In captivity

President Ronald Reagan is off to the Far East this week for what is being billed as an economic summit in Tokyo. What the gathering will actually turn out to be, if Reagan's pre-summit rhetoric is any indication, is a forum to garner support for the United States' policies

Ever since the April 15 air raid on Libya, which was undertaken to cripple the alleged terrorist activities of Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy, American attention has been riveted on what further steps should be taken to fight terrorism. Simultaneously, there has been a dramatic increase in the number of terrorist attacks directed against American and British citizens, whose governments cooperated in the U.S. strike against

So thoroughly has concern for anti-terrorist measures dominated recent public debate that virtually all else - including the issues of national fiscal policy and arms control - has been relegated to positions of relative unimportance.

Now, as evidenced by Reagan's persistent talk of terrorism right before the seven-nation economic summit, where issues like open markets and balances of trade should be addressed, the obsession with terror has also usurped international concerns.

What this single-mindedness indicates is the extent to which Americans have become slaves of fear. Instead of loosening the grip of terrorists, the bombing raid on Libya has strengthened their hold on the minds of Americans, creating a sort of psychological hostage situation which is no less damaging than physical

The next time Reagan extols the United States for whipping up the "winds of freedom" around the world, perhaps he should consider the true meanings of freedom and act accordingly.

Give us liberty

Los Angeles entrepreneur Ron Smith is carrying his celebrity look-alike business too far. He's looking for a woman who not only looks great in flowing robes with torch and crown, but who also exemplifies the spirit of the Statue of Liberty.

He is looking for Lady Liberty. But does liberty really exist?

At a "he when being "patriotic" means supporting the actions of a government that deals with terrorism by "striking back," and defends democracy by arming "freedom fighters," patriotism is less-than-attractive.

Now, with the U.S. government deporting illegal aliens and arresting sanctuary workers at record rates, it seems fitting to remember the words engraven on the plaque at the base of the statue:

..Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to breathe free, the wretched refuse of your teeming shore. Send these, the homeless, tempest-tost to me

Until we start living up to the ideals the Statue of Liberty stands for, we should stop looking for "Lady Liberty."

Instead, let's start practicing liberty.

Insurance industry defended

By Lawrence A. Berger and Michael L. Murray

E BELIEVE there is a point of view on the insurance crisis that has been ignored by The Daily Iowan's editorial page.

It is true that the insurance industry has strong capabilities in public relations and lobbying, which are frequently exercised in order to protect its perceived interests. And it could be the case that the industry's interests would be served through an alleviation of the trend of increasing tort awards.

In one sense, high loss levels could be of benefit to the insurance industry. Higher losses mean an increased need for the industry's services. After all, if there were no losses at all the industry would not exist.

HOWEVER, TO IMPLY a conspiracy in which "the industry's real goal is to limit our right to hold wrong-doers Guest Opinion responsible for the permanent injuries they inflict" ("Insurance crisis may be fiction, DI, March 10) is a gross mistatement of facts.

First of all, the possibility of a conspiracy in an intensely competitive industry comprised of 5,800 firms is remote indeed. If there were profits to be made through offering insurance at prices lower than those currently prevailing, there is little doubt there would be firms jumping at the opportunity.

In addition, the suggestion that this is an industry "run-ning unbridled" because it is not subject to federal scrutiny could not be further from the heavily regulated than the insurance industry. The state insurance commissioners oversee virtually every aspect of insurance company operations, and the federal government has the right to intervene if it sees the state efforts as deficient.

The root cause of the crisis lies in the fact that the insurance mechanism consists of a pooling of funds from policyholders, and there is a limit to the awards which can be paid out of such finite resources. Although the statistics cited by DI Editor Mary Tabor on total lawsuits and jury awards may be accurate, the fact is that in the local areas of insurance crisis such as the professions, municipalities and businesses, there has been a dramatic increase in both the number and size of the awards.

INSURANCE COMPANIES base their premiums on future anticipated claim costs, and when the trend is rising at an uncertain rate, premiums must go up. The discrepancy between the $5.5 billion reported loss and the increase in net worth of $7.6 billion may be explained by investment income and unrealized capital gains, both of which are highly volatile. In projecting future claim costs, the $5.5 billion underwriting loss is the key indicator.

The fundamental question is, who should bear the cost of permanent injuries inflicted by wrong-doers? Can we afford to compensate victims adequately?

This unfortunate by-product of an evolving society may simply point to the need for increased caution in advan ing into areas which are little understood, or at least a cognizance of the risks involved and a resolution to bear the costs - and a determination of who shall bear them.

Escape to 'Hometown, U.S.A.'

WEEKEND, desperate for excitement, I went to Perry,

Perry is about 25 miles north of Des Moines, and I don't suppose there is any point in describing it further. You already know what it looks like. You have driven through it a thousand times before.

It is that little town you keep passing through, with a feeling of deja vu, while trying to find your way back to the inter-

Haven't you seen that movie theater before? That water tower? That Rexall drugstore? That cemetery, with the faded plastic flowers somebody left in front of one of the headstones last Memorial Day? Sure you have.

You have also seen the three gas stations, the True-Value hardware store, and the rusting railroad tracks over which no train has passed since 1947.

The only thing that's unfamiliar is the name. The last time you were in this town it was called East Boodroo or Lone Cow or Hog Butte. This time it's Perry.

RIGHT ACROSS from the Perry water tower (which is actually quite a bit nicer than the East Boodroo water tower, though not quite as tall as the Hog Butte water tower) is my sister's house. Her two sons have come for the weekend, Dave from Massachusetts and Jay from Minnesota.

called Jay's girlfriend, who lives in Iowa City, and asked her if she wanted to ride to Perry with Joel and me.

"No," she said. "I'd just sit around all day being pissed off at Jay."

She's mad at him because he just got a terrific job offer and he isn't going to accept it.

T.N.R. Rogers

When he lived in Iowa City, Jay was earning X dollars. The job he has just begun in Minneapolis pays 7/4 X. But now he has suddenly been offered a job in Lansing, Mich., which would pay 13/4 X

The catch is that he'd probably have to put in 70 hours a week at work - a schedule that is incompatible with human life as we know it.

That's why she's mad at Jay.

He lacks ambition.

Jay's dilemma - wealth versus more wealth - provides a counterpoint for all the conversations of the weekend. It gives his father a good reason for inflicting several man-toman conversations on him. It gives the rest of us a good punch line whenever we need

"WHY DOES THE chicken cross the road?" Joel asks, trying to lead in to his stapled baby joke.

"To get onto the earliest bus to Lansing," the rest of us chorus. "Because that's an ambitious chicken that would be happy to work 70 hours a

"Why don't we stop picking on poor Jay," my sister says, "and go for a walk downtown?"

"Yes," says Dave. "That should kill a good three minutes.

So we walk downtown and see all the sights. There are five or six of them: Jay's old elementary school. Dave's old high school. The new drive-through bank. The old bank, which has been converted to a steak house. The old police station, which is now a bar. The discount store, which is soon to reopen as a funeral home.

Jay pauses to gaze fondly at somebody's front yard. "Over there is where I saw the red-headed boy," he says. "Remember that, Mom?"

"Yes," says my sister, grimacing slightly. "But it wasn't a red-headed boy."

JAY HAD BEEN so nearighted, at 10 years old, that he had thought it was a redheaded boy lying out there on the grass. Actually it was what was left of a man who had been trying to use a stick of dynamite. It went off too soon and blew his head off.

"He was probably blown up by his enraged fiancee who wanted him to take a job in Lansing," we chorus.

Joel and I spent the night in sleeping bags on my sister's living room floor. The hours are punctuated by a clock that sounds like Big Ben in labor.

The first time Maureen and I saw Iowa we spent the night in this very same house in Perry. It was 18 years ago, while we were on our way to California. We had traveled very far that day and had arrived in Perry late at night - so late that we had seen nothing of Iowa except headlights and taillights on the interstate.

But in the morning we opened the front door and looked out. and there it was. We had a thousand miles behind us and two thousand still to go, but for the moment we were here: It was an August morning, and there was dew on the grass. and all around us was Iowa.

ALTHOUGH THE House passed the drinking age bill on 61-34 vote Monday, it rejected an amendment similar to the one approved by the Senate by a 59-20 margin. United Students of Iowa Legislative Director Scott Brown, who played an instrumental role lobbying for both of these amendments, said he hopes legislative leaders name a special panel of lawmkers to settle the differences between the House and Senate.

"The ideal solution to this situation would be for the bill to go to a friendly conference committee, if we could get one appointed," Brown said.

DURING THE brief debate on the bill in the Senate, Mann said he is opposed to raising the drinkng age because it would be unfair to people under 21 who must assume other legal and moral responsibilities.

"They can lose their lives in Libya or Nicaragua or anywhere else, but they can't buy a beer," he added.

Mann also said his amendment is "intended to make what is a clear injustice a little bit more just.'

In addition, Mann said federal officials have already stated that his amendment would qualify Iowa for $18 million in road funds during the next two years.

"There can be no objection raised against this amendment that it will result in the loss of federal monies or violate federal laws," he said.

The legislation is slated to take effect on July 1, but Iowans born before Sept. 1 would still be allowed to

Marble will tryout for USA squad

Accolades continue to pour in for Iowa's freshman standout

Roy Marble. Along with making NBC's all-American freshman team and being an honorable mention to the all-Big Ten team, Marble has been chosen to tryout for the USA national team which will play in a World Champ-ionship tournament in Spain this July.

"I was surprised to make the team," Marble said, "I should be able to use the experience from this trip as a means of evaluating myself. Hopefully this will enable me to become a more complete ball player."

Marble is well on his way to completing his goal, finishing one of the best freshman careers in Iowa history. Averaging 12.5 points per game, he was able to eclipse Ronnie Lester's old freshman scoring mark of 363 points, moving the

Hawkeye women's athletes honored

Field hockey standout Marcia Pankratz, distance runner Jenny Spangler, and volleyball co-captain Linda Grensing were honored in special ways Tuesday night at the Iowa women's sports banquet at the Ironmen Inn.

Pankratz, Spangler and Grensing all turned in exceptional performances in their final year of competition at Iowa. But obviously, this was nothing new for any of the exceptional athletes.

Pankratz, who led the team during most of her illustrious stay at Iowa, was awarded the Big Ten Conference Medal of Honor by her coach, Judith

"THIS YEAR, Iowa set a standard for indoor hockey in the United States as well as winning the conference championship for the fifth time in six years," Davidson said. "Marcia has led the team by example all year, and I'm proud to give her this award."

The award received by Pankratz will most likely be placed along side her other honors garnered during her stay with the Hawkeyes.

The second of the prestigious awards, (the Robert F. Ray award) was given to Spangler, in perhaps the most emotional honor of the night.

Spangler, who qualified for the first Olympic Marathon Trials two years ago in Olympia, Wash., and also qualified for the 5,000-meter run in the NCAAs, did something that not many athletes can lay claim to in their careers. She turned down money.

"IN JANUARY OF 1984, Jenny participated in the Houston Marathon," Ms. Dottie Ray, who presented the award, said. "Jenny finished second in the race and earned a $10,000 prize, but because she wanted to continue her career with the Hawkeyes, she refused the award.' Spangler received the only standing ovation given to a player the entire night as she took center stage to claim her award. She was also honored by her team by being named the Most Valuable Player

(MVP) for the 1986 season. The Humanitarian Award was the third of the three, and it wenth in Grensing for her lead-ershin and off the volleyball court.

Grensing, who hopes to become a collegiate coach in the future, was also named her team's MVP, and even managed all-Big Ten accolades for her efforts.

"LINDA HAS been a role model for our team all season long," volleyball Coach Sandy Meanwhile, recipiants of MVP awards for their respective teams were: Lynn Tauke, Golf; Jennifer Dubois, Gymnastics; Kelly Johnson, swimming and diving; Lisa Nicola, softball; Kim Herman field hockey; Kelly Fackel, tennis; Renee Doyle, cross country; and the entire team for Vivian Stringer's basketball squad.

By Laura Palmer Staff Writer

People prepare for the "real world" in different ways. For some it's by going to college, for others it's living on their own, but for Iowa player Pennie Wohlford, it's tennis.

"You learn to discipline yourself on the court and to practice. I have to organize my time wisely. It has helped me in life to discipline my time," Wohlford said.

Wohlford spent many of her summers away from home traveling the states while playing in tournaments. This also contributed to Wohlford's independence and maturity. "I really enjoy tennis. It helps you grow up.

You have to decide when you will go to bed, if you'll practice. It's really an individual sport," Wohlford said. "Tennis pulled me away from home and I got

The Iowa sophomore began playing the sport when she was 12 but did not become a serious tennis player until she began high school at Oak Park-River Forest High School to the New York Jets and Ronnie Harmon to Buffalo, all in the first round, making Iowa the 1986 leader in blue-chip draftees. Florida, Auburn and Southern Methodist all placed two athletes in the opening

"IN ONE WORD - fantastic," Coach Hayden Fry said in describing the three first round picks. "It's great for Iowa, great for recruiting. All three of those players will become outstanding football players in the NFL.'

As of press time, Larry Station, Jay Norvell, Hap Peterson, Nate Creer, Bill Happel and Scott Helverson had not been picked through 11 rounds of the draft. The NFL draft is 12 rounds long.

Iowa defensive back Devon Mitchell also went to Detroit, in the fourth round.

As many expected, Long was the second quarterback taken, behind Purdue's Jim Everett who went to Houston (third overall). But by the time Detroit called Long's name, 11 picks had already been made.

LONG VERY possibly would have gone to Indianapolis, which had the fourth pick overall, had the Colts not made a Monday deal to land veteran quarterback Gary Hogeboom of Dallas.

"I wasn't disappointed," Long said of the trade. "I thought maybe I was going to go to Indianapolis, but when they got Hogeboom I thought, 'that's okay, as long as somebody else wants me.'

Pittsburgh and Minnesota, teams supposedly looking for quarterbacks, also passed on Long as the Steelers (No. 9) took Temple guard John Rienstra and the Vikings (No. 8) dealt their pick to San Diego.

A SHORT TIME later the Lions, who had hoped but not expected to get a shot at Long or Everett, snatched the Heisman runner-up and made him the first Hawkeye taken in the opening round since John Alt

"Detroit came in (to Iowa City) and worked me out," Long said. "They were interested back then, two months ago, but they told me right then that I wouldn't be around for them."

It was just four selections later that the Bills, who were not felt to be in need of a backfield player, surprisingly made Harmon the fourth running back taken in the draft and the 16th selection overall.

Abnormal selections hit draft

NEW YORK (UPI) - The predictable led to the totally unpredictable Tuesday at the NFL draft.

For weeks leading to the draft, trades were promised. And personnel directors agreed that after the first few picks there was a large pool of talented but less than top-flight players.

All of which made most predraft predictions irrelevant. Take the San Francisco

Analysis

49ers. They had the No. 18 selection and wanted a running back. But Buffalo, in the No. 16 slot, chose a player at a position at which the Bills are strong - running back and named Iowa's Ronnie Harmon.

With its player gone, San Francisco traded the 18th pick to Dallas, which grabbed wide receiver Mike Sherrard. The New York Giants, at No. 19, had coveted Sherrard. The 49ers then traded the Cowboys' 20th selection to the Bills, who tabbed tackle Will Wolford of Vanderbilt. The New York Jets, at No. 22, liked Wolford.

San Francisco traded when their pick arose four straight times, the last one being a second-rounder to Washington in which the 49ers acquired a first-rounder next

The Giants and Jets participated in another draft-day trend - selecting players not projected to be snatched in the first round.

The Giants picked defensive end Eric Dorsey, a converted nose tackle, while the Jets selected Iowa tackle Mike Haight.

That selection ended speculation that Harmon would join his brother Derrick on the San Francisco roster.

"I THINK THAT'S just great," Fry said of Harmon being selected. "It's great for Ronnie and it's great for Buffalo. He can help that team. Had he gone to a better team he may have gotten lost in the shuffle, but I think he'll go out and help the Buffalo Bills right

Another Hawkeye was soon named as the Jets used their 22nd pick to grab Haight, the fifth offensive tackle taken, capitalizing on a draft pool considered rich in offensive linemen.

Haight's early selection was somewhat of a shocker. He had been projected a second or third round pick, but the Jets, See Hawkeyes, Page 3B

Bears take Illinois' Williams

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) - All-America receiver David Williams, who stands second on the NCAA's career receiving list, waited until the end of the third round before being picked by the Super Bowl champion Chicago Bears in Tuesday's NFL draft.

"I don't speculate on why he was still there," Bears Coach Mike Ditka said of the University of Illinois receiver. "We had him on the board (to go) in the first round."

Williams and quarterback Jack Trudeau, picked in the second round by the Indianapolis Colts, were two of four Illini selected through the first five rounds of the draft. In the fourth round, Tampa Bay picked defensive back Craig Swoope and Denver selected Jim Jurgia.

Illinois Coach Mike White, disappointed that his players were picked lower than he and they expected, said, "It issues a challenge for those kids."

Bears-Dallas exhibition set for London

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (UPI) - Chicago Bears President Michael McCaskey said Tuesday that despite concerns for security, he is optimistic his club's exhibition game against the Dallas Cowboys in London this summer can go on as

McCaskey said in an interview he was aware some players are worried about terrorism at the Aug. 3 game at Wembley Stadium, in light of the United States' attack on

'This team is my family. I wouldn't put my family on a plane where there was a security problem," McCaskey said. The game already has drawn interest in England, with more than 40,000 tickets sold and a crowd near 80,000, with standing room, possible.

Local runners 'master' Boston

One of my lifetime goals is to compete in the Boston Marathon. Last Monday two Iowa City "elder" runners completed this achievement.

For one it has become almost 'routine' and for another it was a thrill of a lifetime.

Guy McFarland, 50, has run more than 140 marathons and 14 Boston Marathons and he doesn't seem to be slowing down yet. On April 21 McFarland ran Boston in two hours, 45 minutes and was 426th out of the nearly 5,000 registered marathoners. He was also the 41st male finisher over 40.

Gerald Murphy, 51, started running for two reasons. First, he wanted to stop smoking and second, he wanted to run Bosthis year's Boston at last year's Omaha Marathon with a 3.19:00 performance which placed him just under the 3.20:00 qualfying standard for male runners 50-and over. At the big event, though, Murphy wasn't as fortunate. Heartbreak Hill did in Murphy and forced him to stumble home in

"I bombed out at about Heartbreak, probably about 20 or 20 and a half miles and then I struggled home," Murphy said. "I finished but it wasn't very picturesque.

McFarland started running in college and then after some time off he started running again before going into the army and Vietnam.

"The registration was smoother and the finish line procedure was smoother and I think that reflects more money involved," McFarland said.

Murphy agrees but found one thing a little disappointing. There was no traditional "beef stew" at the finish line for those who completed the 26.2 mile course. "Since this was my first - I couldn't compare it — but in talking with others who have been there before, the only changes they would comment on would be that it seemed to be better organized," Murphy said. "The only change that I knew about was that there was no beef stew at the end as there used to be."

Attention, hard-core hockey fans. What has been transpiring in the NHL playoffs? In case anyone has been paying too much attention to which teams have drafted Chuck, Ronnie, Larry, and company, here's a brief capsule of the upset-filled second season.

First, in the Patrick Division, the New York Rangers have advanced to the Stanley Cup semifinals by upsetting Philadelphia and Washington, who only had the second and third best overall records in the league, respectively.

What makes it more amazing is the Rangers' regular season record was a mediocre 36-38-6 and they struggled just to make the playoffs. The Rangers, or known as the Blueshirts to hockey aficionados, really surprised this sports fan in particular by knocking off Philadelphia in the opening round. The Flyers were Stanley Cup finalists last season and dominated the season's regular season series with the Blueshirts, going

"I really think they got a diamond in the rough with Mike Haight," Fry said of New York's decision.

HAIGHT, WHO said he was expecting to go no sooner than the second round and possibly as late as the fifth, called being chosen in the opening round the fulfillment of a football dream that started in tiny Dyersville, Iowa.

The New York offensive line has been harshly criticized because of its inability to protect quarterback Ken O'Brien last season, but Haight said taking jobs away from those veterans will not be easy.

Haight said he doesn't have to report to the Jets mini-camp until late next month, but Long will be flying to Detroit today to prepare for a rookie camp that starts Thursday.

"They just gave me some flight information and told me to get on the plane or they'd cut me," Long said of the Lions' invitation to Detroit.

Detroit officials said Long is not expected to start next season, something he had said he hoped for. Both Long and the Lions said he needs at least one year to learn the offense and adjust to the league.

Fry agreed. "It might not be the first year or the second year," Fry said, "but eventually Chuck Long will be the

'Weepers' return to big screen

HO SAYS they don't make movies like they used to? Certainly Sissy Spacek and her husband/ director Jack Fisk, and Mary Tyler Moore and her MTM Enterprises crew have at least tried to make a return to the ways of the old-fashioned tear-jerker.

Their new films, Spacek's Violets Are Blue and Moore's Just Between Friends, are new versions of the so-called women's pictures, weepers about unattainable loves and proverbial romantic triangles.

In her film, Spacek plays Augusta "Gussie" Sawyer, a small-town girl who makes good in the big-time game of photojournalism. Shaking off the dust of her hometown of Ocean City, Md., Gussie moved from globetrotting stewardess to globetrotting shutterbug with a beat that includes all the more fashionable war zones - Northern Ireland, the Middle East, Latin America,

BUT NATURALLY, success, excitement and unending adventure come at a price. All of her gallivanting has left Gussie with little time for a personal life; no real home and no man to call her own. After 13 years on the road, with nary a break for a Christmas holiday, Gussie decides to take a breather and visit the folks back home.

But there is more waiting for her in Ocean City than Mom, Dad and their amusement park bumper cars. There is Henry Squires (Kevin Kline), the boy she left behind. Years before Henry and Gussie had a hot and heavy teenage affair complete with rolls in the sandy dunes of a nearby beach and idealistic plans for jetsetting together. Despite the passing years, Gussie is obvi-ously ready to pick up the affair just about where they left off.

Naturally, there is a catch; Henry, not expecting Gussie to ever return to her humble beginnings, has become the crusading and controversial editor of the local paper and an almost-contented husband and father. Gussie, though not the predatory type, has the power to change all that by offering Henry new possibili-ties in the form of world travel, a job with Newsweek and, not coincidentally, sex and peanut butter sandwiches in the dunes of that nearby beach. This, however, understandably does not set all that well with Henry's wife, Ruth (Bonnie Bedelia), who seems to be a thoroughly decent and quite contented housewife and mother.

AND THIS IS where Violets Are Blue parts company with the old-fashioned tear-jerkers. None of the three principals are seen as villains, but as rather normal (well, normal for the movies) individuals whose only crimes are in following their own impulses. Gussie is not a villainous vamp; Henry is not a lecherous louse; and Ruth is not a grasping, greedy shrew. This makes Violets Are Blue a lowsuds and terribly civilized melodrama and rather sweet, if somewhat slight entertain-

Friends, another lovers' triangle tale which can't seem to decide if it wants to be bad sitcom or bad soap opera — and either would be preferable to the indecisiveness on

MOORE PLAYS Holly Davis, a bland upper-middle-class housewife with a perfect home, perfect kids and an almost-perfect husband named Chip (Ted Danson). Holly's one accomplishment in life is that she is the best pupil in her aerobics class.

By chance, Holly gets the opportunity to become an aer-obics instructor and one of the pupils in her first class turns out to be Sandy Dunlap (Christine Lahti), a sardonic TV newswoman who does fluffy feature stories such as interviewing seismologists following earthquakes.

And wouldn't you know it Chip just happens to be a seismologist that Sandy has interviewed. Holly and Sandy quickly become good friends, though unbeknownst to Holly, Sandy and Chip have already become very, very good friends and are carrying on a discreet affair. And Sandy has yet to realize that her friend Holly is the wife of her beau

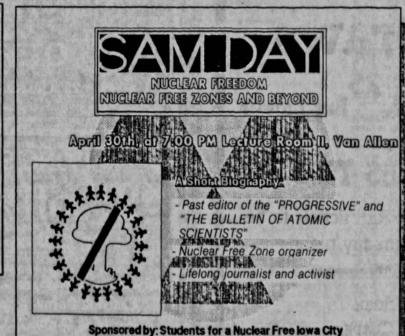

ALL OF THESE incredible and impropable coincidences could add up to a fairly entertaining sex farce, and at times the film does strive for a few chuckles. But overall Just Between Friends just falls flat: trying desperately to be both a witty adult comedy and a profound feminist drama. If there is a single honest moment in the film, it has successfully been hidden under the layers of contrivance and melodra-

What makes Just Between Friends so disappointing, besides its waste of a fine cast, is that it is so pathetically amateur. Moore's MTM enterprises have made the juggling of drama and comedy into an art form with its "Hill Street Blues" and "St. Elsewhere" television series. Director/ writer Allan Burns is a veteran of some of the finest series on television, including, "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" and "Lou Grant." But in moving all this talent from the small screen to the large screen something has gone decidedly wrong.

THE SITUATIONS and characters in Just Between Friends are so broadly conceived and portrayed, that it is really doubtful that Moore and Co. would have stood for such material to be used on their television shows. I think the problem is that Just Between Friends wants to be another Terms of Endearment and as such keeps shooting for the larger-than-life pathos and laughs of that film. But the quirkiness of the plot plays out of sync with the doggedly serious tone of the direction.

The result is just ludicrous. And unlike Violets Are Blue, which just wants to tell an oft-told story one more time, Just Between Friends seems compelled to make feminist statements about self-worth and female bonding.

Violets Are Blue is shallow, but it strives for honesty. Just Between Friends is dishonest because it refuses to see just how shallow it really is.

EFFREY KAHANE, Grand Prize winner at fourth Arthur Rubinstein International Piano Competition, will perform at Hancher Auditorium tonight.

Before he won the Rubinstein competition in 1983, he had, in his own words, a "patchwork career." In a field which is overflowing with talented artists, Kahane had performed primarily in the San Francisco area, combining appearances with the San Francisco Symphony, with accompanying singers and instrumentalists and playing chamber music.

But in 1977, following graduation from the San Francisco Conservatory, Kahane entered his first international event, the Clara Haskil competition in Switzerland, where he took second place. In late 1980, Kahane was a finalist in the Van Cliburn Competition, an event that he credited with launching his career on a national scale.

IN A RECENT telephone interview, Kahane spoke about the direction competitions give an aspiring classical pianist.

Kahane said the Clara Haskil competition "gave me enough prestige to establish myself in the Bay Area. I continued studying, performing and entering competitions." Beyond that, it allowed Kahane to make his name known as a superior technician as well as a master of interpretation.

But speaking of the negative aspects of such events, he said, "Competitions are completely unnatural... They are emotionally and physically draining and it is difficult to be creative. In competitions, a pianist must strive to be creative, otherwise creativity completely slides."

IN 1983, the same year he

won the Arthur Rubinstein Competition, Kahane was also awarded an Avery Fisher career grant. "By the time the Rubinstein rolled around," Kahane said, "I had been through four or five intense competitions. Maybe I was more accustomed to the mental and physical state."

When asked if he would ever again enter a competition, Kahane said, "Definitely not."

Kahane has been brought into demand with major orchestras and concert halls by his consistently superb playing, poetic instincts and dazzling technique.
