Waldheim said to know of mass killings

NEW YORK — Former U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim wrote in a German army war diary orders from Adolf Hitler to kill Greek partisans captured in battle and ship other resistance fighters to slave labor camps, NBC News reported Thursday.

NBC said it obtained the war diary from University of South Carolina history professor Robert Herztein, who found it in the U.S. National Archives.

"We know he was responsible for recording this order with its criminal intent," Herztein told NBC.

Asked if the order meant Waldheim knew civilians were being shot, Herztein replied, "Yes. There isn't a shadow of a doubt."

Guilty verdict given in sanctuary trial

TUCSON, Ariz. — A federal jury, after nearly nine days of deliberation, Thursday convicted eight of 11 defendants accused of running an "underground railroad" for Central American refugees.

The jury convicted six people on charges of felony conspiracy to bring aliens into the United States. Two others were convicted of harboring an alien and transporting an alien.

Eleven Roman Catholics and Protestants from Arizona, Texas and Mexico had been on trial since Oct. 22 on charges stemming from the smuggling of Salvadoran and Guatemalan refugees into the United States.

Indian security forces kill six Sikhs

AMRITSAR, India — Security forces going barefoot out of respect for the Sikh religion patrolled the Sikh's Golden Temple Thursday after ousting hundreds of Sikh extremists at gunpoint from their holiest shrine.

Punjab Chief Minister Surjit Barnala Singh Barnala, a moderate Sikh leader, told reporters one unidentified teenager was killed and five other Sikhs were injured when as many as 600 anti-terrorist commandos stormed the temple's main shrine Wednesday night.

Sikh militant leader Harinder Singh Kahlon said the fatalities included a 7-year-old boy who was gunned down in a burst of machine-gun fire inside the main shrine.

Karmal resurfaces after long absence

NEW DELHI, India — Afghan President Babrak Karmal returned to Kabul "after medical examinations" Thursday, state-run Kabul Radio reported, apparently confirming speculation he was too ill to attend National Day celebrations.

The broadcast was Kabul Radio's first mention of Karmal's whereabouts since reporting his March 30 departure for the Soviet Union. It mentioned no illness, saying only that Karmal's trip was to be a "short, unofficial visit."

On Saturday the radio did not say whether Karmal was present in Kabul at ceremonies celebrating the Soviet invasion — an omission that fueled speculation the president had lost favor with Moscow or was seriously ill.

Florida pharmacists write prescriptions

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Florida's 13,000 pharmacists became the first in the nation allowed to write prescriptions for minor ailments Thursday, but many, fearing lawsuits, said they would ignore the new authority.

The new law, which doctors opposed strongly, enables pharmacists to distribute more than 30 drugs in 14 categories without consulting a physician.

"I think it's a disgrace," said Dr. Luis Perez, president of the Florida Medical Association. "The pharmacists are going to start treating the symptoms that the patient is having, not the disease. That's bad medicine."

Under the law, physicians must still prescribe narcotic and addictive drugs, antibiotics, tranquilizers, blood pressure medication and any drugs that require injection.

New research centers on baldness

WASHINGTON — Scientists said Thursday they have found a molecular "missing link" confirming that the balding condition of millions of men is tied to excessive activity of male hormones.

The University of Miami team reported that oil glands in bald scalps have molecules, called receptors, with 50 percent to 100 percent greater capacity for binding the ingredients of the male hormone testosterone.

The receptors catch hormones as they enter cells in the sebaceous glands of the scalp and convert them to testosterone.

Because sebaceous glands are attached to hair follicles and operate closely with them, the receptor process short-circuits hair growth, but how this happens is not yet clear, said Dr. Marty Sawaya of the school's department of dermatology.

Man climbs to capitol roof in protest of court decision

Police arrested a man who climbed to the roof of the State Capitol Thursday to protest an Iowa Supreme Court ruling, two years to the date after he staged a similar protest atop a broadcasting tower.

"I have been victimized by the judicial system," Randy Heer, 50, of Des Moines said as he was led away by State Capitol Police and the State Highway Patrol.

Maj. Earl Usher of the State Patrol said Heer climbed scaffolding along the Capitol at about 7 a.m. Thursday. He was accompanied down by four officers shortly after 10 a.m.

"He was protesting a court decision issued against him," Usher said.

"The details aren't clear. It dealt with a friendship involving a best man and a maid of honor at a wedding," he said.

Usher said trespassing charges were filed.

With legislative leaders planning to wrap up the 71st session of the General Assembly within 24 hours, a bill raising the state's drinking age from 19 to 21 was still being held hostage by a lawmaker who opposes the measure.

Thursday the Iowa Senate approved an amendment adding a sunset clause to a $10 fine provision for 19- and 20-year-olds convicted of possessing alcohol that was added to the bill earlier this week.

This amendment would replace the $10 fine with a stiffer $100 penalty in 1988. It was approved on a 26-22 vote. But following the adoption of this amendment, Sen. Tom Mann, D-Des Moines, who sponsored the provision specifying a $10 fine, motioned successfully to put off further consideration of the drinking age bill until today.

United Students of Iowa Legislative Director Scott Brown said he believes Mann will try to delay action on the bill until the legislature convenes.

During debate on the bill Thursday, which marked the third consecutive day the Senate has discussed the controversial legislation without taking final action, supporters of raising the drinking age said setting a $10 penalty for offenders was laughable.

"What we've done in the bill is basically a joke," Rep. William Dielman, D-Pella said.

He also said the bill's critics do not understand that "there are a lot of young people who would like the drinking age at 21."

Senate Minority Leader Calvin Hultman, R-Red Oak, also chided lawmakers who mentioned the injustice facing 19- and 20-year-olds who can be drafted but aren't old enough to drink.

"While we're thinking about those 18-year-olds flying over Libya, let's think about a couple of other things," Hultman said. "How about those keggers out in the woods that 19- and 20-year-olds are drinking at?"

But Rep. Jack Rife, R-Moscow, remained unsympathetic.

"Peer pressure out there is a lot stronger than the Iowa Code, so if you think you're solving the problem then you're kidding yourselves," Rife added.

A large crowd, including hundreds of school children, gathered at the State Capitol Thursday to watch Gov. Terry Branstad sign a law making Martin Luther King's birthday and Veteran's Day state holidays.

Branstad said "during his years on this earth, Dr. King changed America forever."

"Dr. King had a dream for America to be a land committed to peace and justice for all," added Branstad. "It is our responsibility to make Dr. King's dream become a reality."

A local man was listed in serious condition Thursday evening at UI Hospitals after he suffered a gunshot wound to the chest late Wednesday.

Charles Tomash, no address listed, was dropped off at the hospital's Emergency Treatment Center about 9:50 p.m. by an unidentified motorist, according to Iowa City police reports. Hospital personnel notified police shortly after Tomash arrived.

Det. Sgt. Craig Lihs, of the Iowa City Police Department, said the shooting occurred in Coralville. But Coralville police officials could not be reached for comment.

It remained unclear who fired the gun and whether the shooting was intentional or accidental.

Proposal discloses of UI faculty w

By Phil Thomas Staff Writer

A proposed UI policy discouraging dating between UI faculty members and students is meeting opposition from UI teaching assistants.

A committee appointed by UI President James O. Freedman has drawn up a policy stating that a faculty member having a relationship with a student is acting in an "unwise and unprofessional" manner.

But UI Political Science T.A. Tom Holbrook said the wording in the proposed policy is "insulting."

"It may be unwise, but unprofessional implies that you would allow personal relationships to interfere with your teaching," Holbrook said. "It's kind of insulting," Holbrook said. "We all know what's right and wrong."

UI COLLEGIATE Associations Council Vice President and Economics TA Paul Thompson said. "It legislates people's moral activities."

Thompson said the CAC was asked by Freedman last month to give feedback on the proposal, adding that he will definitely oppose the measure.

But members of the UI Sexual Harassment Task Force committee, which drew up the proposal, said there is more than one good reason for the policy.

UI Assistant Obstetrics and Gynecology Professor Susan Johnson, who was the committee's chairwoman, said the policy would not condone faculty-student relationships, but added that there would be

Proposal discourages dating of UI faculty with students

A proposed UI policy discouraging dating between UI faculty members and students is meeting opposition from UI teaching assistants. A committee appointed by UI President James O. exceptions. "We did not feel such relationships should be absolutely prohibited," Johnson said. "One shouldn't over-interpret it." But Johnson said that consent to a relationship by both the faculty member and the student is not an excuse, because the faculty member still has a level of power or authority over a student. UI LAW PROFESSOR and committee member Richard Matasar said, "You need to think very carefully as a faculty member before entering into a relationship with a student." Matasar said a faculty member could run into problems by dating a student who is not in any of the faculty member's class but is a potential class member at a later time. There would be no punishment for such a relationship, Matasar said, but added that the student may be ineligible to take a class taught by that particular faculty member. Matasar said the problems would most likely occur within a given department, adding that the students' education could be hampered by such a relationship. BUT ECONOMICS T.A. Bryce Kenagl said his department makes an effort to avoid putting acquaintances of faculty members in their classes. "We've gone to extremes in our department to make sure they don't get people they know," Kenagl said. Another T.A. said the policy would not be taken well by faculty members, either. "I don't think it can be enforced," Communications Studies T.A. Leslie Lannan said.

Anti-apartheid shanty built to raise student awareness

By Dana Cohen and Kent Schuelke
Staff Writers

Building a cardboard hut will not cure the oppression and exploitation of blacks in South Africa, but several UI students involved in a Union Field protest said the action gives them the chance to educate their peers about apartheid.

Several UI students gathered Thursday in a shanty, a hut similar to those lived in by blacks in South Africa, and listened to teach-ins about the problems faced by the black majority there.

The shanty is meant "to provide a focal point for students to learn about South Africa and demonstrate their concerns," said UI graduate student John Papantonakis.

"If they just think it's a cardboard box they're missing the symbolic statement," he said. "Supposedly there have been reforms in South America but as long as people have to live like this there are no reforms."

UI SENIOR BART AIKENS said, "This is how the average South African black lives; we want to show the real conditions."

But some UI students said building a shanty is not an effective way to voice concerns about South Africa.

"There are better ways to express one's viewpoints than to sit in a hut," said UI sophomore Christopher Gramkow. "We should worry about things that are happening in the U.S."

"They're hearing what they want to hear to give them something to protest about," Gramkow said.

Some supporters of the shanty protest said they also thought the symbolic building was not enough.

"I'm afraid it's going to take a lot more than this shanty here to persuade Americans — the richest, most privileged of all human beings — to give up some of those things to our fellows so in deperate need," UI graduate student Sally Blackmon said.

SEVEN STUDENTS spent Wednesday night in the shanty, but were disrupted by pranksters opposing their cause.

Aikens claimed water balloons were hurled at the shanty, calling the incident "a little Klan-like."

Dick Winter, who presented a teach-in on "The Politics of Apartheid," said many students don't understand the South African situation.

"They don't understand anything that has to do with material deprivation," Winter said of the students who threw the balloons.

Six-year teaching program encourages professionalism

By Scott Hauser
Staff Writer

The UI College of Education is planning to begin implementing parts of a "landmark" report on teacher preparation in the next two years, UI College of Education administrators said Wednesday.

Speaking at a panel discussion on the Holmes Group Report on teacher preparation, UI College of Education Dean Charles Case and UI Associate Education Professor Jerrald Shive said the UI needs to take the initiative to make teaching a profession.

Although praising the efforts of the group highly, Jim Sutton, administrative lobbyist for the Iowa State Education Association, told the gathering of about 50 people that he had some serious reservations about parts of the report.

"I WOULD SAY two cheers and a long pause while the rest of us figure out how to make it work," Sutton said.

The report, which was put together by a group of educators from around the country, recommends a system of changes in teacher preparation programs including a 6-year period of schooling, entry tests and a career ladder.

Shive said the college has set up five subcommittees to study various parts and consequences of implementing the 6-year program at the UI by the fall of 1987.

He said the program would be phased in at the UI and would not be done at the "expense of programs" students are enrolled in presently.

The three panelists agreed that the effort to upgrade the profession would have to come from the research institutions themselves with little hope for help either from the state or from the public.

BUT AUDIENCE members expressed concerns about the costs to students of a 6-year program, both in terms of salary and job opportunities in a tight economy.

Many members of the audience expressed the fear that the 6-year requirement will not be worth the added cost, but some members of the audience said the quality of educators in Iowa's schools is declining.

Peg Dunlap, a teacher at Kenwood Elementary in Cedar Rapids, said she has noticed a decline in the quality of education graduates in her 13 years of teaching.

"I don't see the same quality in terms of general education background that I saw five years ago, 10 years ago," she said.

All the panelists agreed that now is the time for colleges to start work on the program and that to delay its implementation would mean a missed opportunity.

Junkins outlines farm plan

DES MOINES (UPI)—Criticizing Republican Gov. Terry Branstad for offering only "one-time, shotgun" approaches to farm problems, Democrat Lowell Junkins Thursday proposed a 10-year, $100 million farm program.

Junkins, one of four Democrats trying to unseat Branstad, said his proposal would be the most comprehensive farm protection package in the Midwest.

"The problems we are facing in Iowa are going to take long-term comprehensive solutions. On the short term, the federal government holds this state and other farm states hostage," he said during a Statehouse news conference.

Junkins' plan would be financed through a combination of bonding and an increase in taxes on wealthy Iowans. He would spend $72 million over the first two years, but only $5 million out of the state's general fund the first year.

The Rev. David Ostendorf, co-founder and director of Prairiefire, a Des Moines-based farmer advocacy organization, will kick off a five-week forum on the rural crisis Sunday at the Zion Lutheran Church in Iowa City.

Ostendorf will be the keynote speaker at Sunday's session, titled "America's Farm Crisis." Four consecutive Sunday sessions will follow, featuring different speakers from Iowa City and across the state.

According to Ted Bartell, organizer of the forum, the speakers will address structural determinants and issues in the farm crisis, the political and economic system that is producing the problem, and what can be done about the crisis.

"We are trying to look at the needs of farmers and other people in the community, identify the needs that people have and possibly try to help those people," Bartell said.

Church schedules farm crisis forum

By Carlyn Citty
Special to The Daily Iowan

The Rev. David Ostendorf, co-founder and director of Prairiefire, a Des Moines-based farmer advocacy organization, will kick off a five-week forum on the rural crisis Sunday at the Zion Lutheran Church in Iowa City.

Ostendorf will be the keynote speaker at Sunday's session, titled "America's Farm Crisis." Four consecutive Sunday sessions will follow, featuring different speakers from Iowa City and across the state.

According to Ted Bartell, organizer of the forum, the speakers will address structural determinants and issues in the farm crisis, the political and economic system that is producing the problem, and what can be done about the crisis.

"We are trying to look at the needs of farmers and other people in the community, identify the needs that people have and possibly try to help those people," Bartell said.

THE ROLE OF the church in the farm situation will also be a primary focus in the speakers' presentations, Bartell said. He stressed that a congregation needs to be "in a position to identify that a need exists, so that the church as a corporate body can respond to that need."

Ostendorf said he will be "covering the general overview of where the situation is at right now in the rural community," as well as the role and response of the church to this problem.

The forum will also provide information on how communication with counselors, social services and friends can be helpful in dealing with the farm problem.

DIANE BAUMBACH, a social worker with Lutheran Social Services in Iowa City, will be providing this information at the May 11 session titled, "Concern and Support for Farm Families in the Zion Community." Although Lutheran Social Ser-VICES provides mental health social service mainly to Washington County, Baumbach said that counseling for those in the Iowa City area is provided.

"I don't see that Johnson County is immune to the rural crisis," she said, stressing that communication is key in dealing with the situation.

"When people can talk about these issues it can help a lot," she said.

Baumbach added that she also wants to let farmers and others in the community know that, despite the pressures coming down on them, they don't have to blame themselves for their problems.

THE MAY 11 session will be directed by Gary Lamb, agricultural liaison for Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, who will speak on the "Economic System Implications of the Iowa Farm Crisis."

Lamb is a farm operator from Chelsea, Iowa, and candidate for the post of Iowa secretary of agriculture.

On May 25, a film presentation and discussion are on the agenda. The film, titled "Another Family Farm," is the story of a family whose farm was foreclosed.

According to Bartell, the film "records the actual experiences of a Minnesota farm family, leading up to the sale of their farm, and shows how Christians and congregations can respond."

JOE BARRY OF the UI Rural Crisis Group will be making a presentation at the June 1 session titled, "Recommended Action Step: Opportunities for Social Ministry and Civic Involvement."

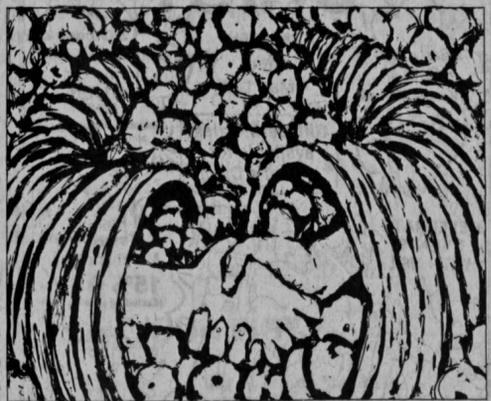

Barry will be presenting information about the rural crisis group as well as information on how to write legislators about specific legislation that could help stop the farm crisis problem.

Jo Ann Dvorak of Family Health Services in Cedar Rapids will also speak at this session.

Each of the sessions will begin at 9:15 a.m. at the Zion Lutheran Church, 310 N. Johnson St.

Bartell made it clear that these sessions are not just for farmers or members of the Zion Lutheran congregation.

He said there are many people holding positions in the community who are also affected by the farm crisis, and their contribution "could make a difference."

Co-op offers value, local involvement

In the bulk coffee section of the New Pioneer Natural Foods Cooperative, a shopper about to grind a potent pound of french roast finds a lengthy newspaper clipping at eye level titled, "How Safe is That Cup of Coffee on Your Table?"

The article goes on to discuss the potentially dire effects of caffeine and the decaffeinating processes used by some coffee producers.

In many ways, this epitomizes the nature of New Pioneer Co-op, a determined adherent to the principle of economic democracy. New Pioneer board member Susan Patterson said, in general, the co-op attempts to be an agent for maximum consumer service and education in addition to being a profitable business.

PATTERSON ALSO CITED the intangible goal of providing a community focal point as a motivating factor for the co-op.

"Society needs to have more ways like this for people to get more involved in community institutions and work together and be able to have an impact," she said.

In its operation, New Pioneer has become far more conventional than its early days as "a pretty funky little place with limited stock and no cash register," Manager John Higgins said.

Despite the changes, the co-op still attempts to go a good deal beyond a concern with profit margins, merchandising techniques and price cutting that occupy the average retail grocery store.

New Pioneer is consumer owned, with each co-op member paying $60 for exactly one share of the operation. In return for their investment, members receive a 5 percent discount on purchases at the store (equivalent to a dividend), one vote in board elections and referendums, and the general right to have response to their individual concerns.

THE MANIFESTATIONS of the co-op's goals come in several forms: a comment board, informational material posted throughout the store (hence the ominous article next to the coffee grinder), the large amount of store space devoted to inexpensive bulk foods instead of pricier and more efficiently shelved pre-packaged goods, and the profusion of member committees ranging from the planning committee to the cheese committee.

Still, there are some snags in the New Pioneer's system.

One problem is the constant tension among the co-op's concerns with nutrition, price, environmental impact and consumer demand.

"We struggle to draw the line every day. It can be pretty tricky," Higgins said. Last year's battles between hard-line vegetarians and the growing number of omnivorous co-op members over the introduction of meat into the store is an example of the problems that come up — problems that rarely have to be dealt with in stores like Hy-Vee.

THE NEW PIONEER board is currently wrestling with the introduction of such popular yet nutritionally or politically marginal items as Campbell's Cream of Mushroom Soup and Miracle Whip. Co-op member Ben Webster said, "I hope it'll be a while before we cave in to those."

Another problem is the upward pressure on prices that results from New Pioneer's emphasis on quality.

"We deal with a lot of small, specialized producers who just don't have the ability to force prices down that the large companies have," Higgins said.

Despite these problems, New Pioneer has been very successful. It has experienced 30 percent member growth over each of the past three years and has earned modest but consistent profits. The strong commitment of co-op employees and members to the store's ideals may account for some of this success. "The nature of the operation really is a key motivator for me. I really wouldn't be interested in working at a big commercial supermarket," Higgins said.

Launch halted by fuel leak discovery

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — A quarter of a cup of leaking rocket fuel forced NASA Thursday to delay the blastoff of a Delta rocket with a weather satellite on board until Saturday, scotching the agency's first major post-Challenger launch try.

NASA spokesman Hugh Harris said engineers conducting last-minute tests discovered a small amount of rocket fuel had leaked past the main fuel valve in the Delta's first stage engine, which burns liquid oxygen and RP-1 rocket fuel, a highly refined form of kerosene.

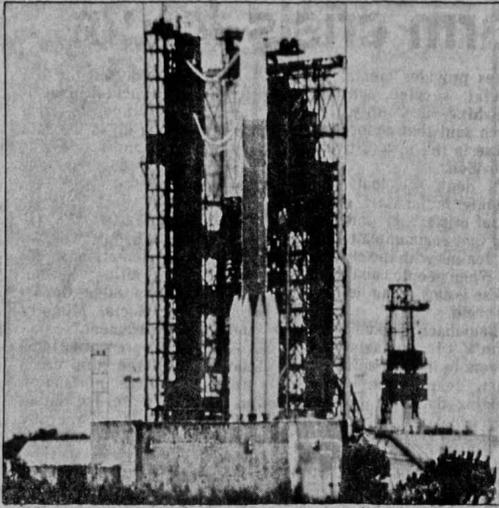

"This was a very small amount of kerosene," Harris said, adding it amounted to about a quarter of a cup. "It was found in the engine bell, which is the lowest point in the system."

ENGINEERS INITIALLY hoped to reschedule blastoff for Friday, but agency spokesman George Diller said they ultimately decided to postpone for 48 hours until 6:18 p.m. EDT Saturday.

It was a frustrating disappointment for the space agency, striving to make its first launch since the Challenger disaster Jan. 28 and the explosion of an Air Force Titan 34D rocket two weeks ago at Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

Diller said even if the Delta had taken off on time Thursday, "We believe we probably would have had a safe flight. There was no chance of an explosion."

The launch of NASA's Delta rocket carrying the GOES-G satellite scheduled for Thursday was postponed.

Dole pushes for budget compromise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Republican leader Robert Dole tried Thursday to transform a vicious budget debate into a compromise that can pass the Senate, and accused House Democrats of playing politics with the tax hike issue.

"There's nothing but politics being played (by the House)," Dole said on the Senate floor. "If the Senate Republicans and some Democrats passed a budget with a revenue increase, we'd be attacked by the House Democrats for raising taxes."

Dole met with senators and administration officials into the early evening, trying to garner enough votes to pass the budget, but Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici said nothing was certain.

"Discussions are taking place on all sides," Domenici said. "I don't know if we are discussing a (single) compromise."

ASSISTANT SENATE GOP leader Alan Simpson of Wyoming said the talks were of a "potential" compromise on the budget that has been debated for a couple of weeks.

The Senate Budget Committee approved a fiscal 1987 budget that would raise $19 billion in taxes, but neither Dole nor President Ronald Reagan supports it. Dole was considering dropping that number to about $12 billion and making up the rest in budget cuts or other assumptions.

On the Senate floor, Dole waved around a document he said was a preliminary budget drawn up by House Democrats that would severely cut the military, raise no more taxes than Reagan will accept — about $6 billion — and meet the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction target. The month-old House draft budget cuts military spending to $282 billion — $38 billion less than Reagan requested.

"We've been had and I don't intend to be a part of it," the fuming Kansas Republican said.

HOUSE DEMOCRATS, however, said the plan Dole was complaining about was a month old and far from a final version.

The Senate's committee-passed budget allocates $295 billion to the military, holds most other programs to last year's levels and meets the Gramm-Rudman deficit target of $144 billion.

Dole met privately with administration Budget Director James Miller and other senators in his office late into the day Thursday as a self-imposed limit on debate on the bill began to run out.

The Senate was supposed to vote late Thursday or early Friday on the budget, though Dole indicated that could be delayed if no agreement is reached.

Millions in Contra aid seem lost

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The General Accounting Office is unable to track some of the $27 million appropriated for the Nicaraguan rebels and as much as $15 million may have "disappeared," Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., said Thursday.

Barnes said the General Accounting Office, a congressional watchdog agency, estimated in March that it was unable to account for $7 million deposited in a Miami bank account to cover expenditures for food, clothing, medicine, and other non-lethal assistance for the rebels, known as Contras.

Barnes told the House Foreign Affairs Committee that the State Department office that oversees the aid program had provided some additional information but it only raised more doubts about how the money was spent.

"We have no way of knowing what happened to the funds deposited in Miami bank accounts for local purchases in Central America," Barnes said.

"THE GAO now estimates that its final accounting will show that $15 million of the $27 million will have disappeared from sight in this way." Congress last year approved the $27 million in aid for the Contras but barred the use of any money for arms purchases. The Contras are fighting to overthrow the Nicaraguan government, which President Ronald Reagan accuses of fomenting communist subversion in Central America.

Reagan has failed so far to win congressional approval of another $100 million for the Contras, including weapons he says they need to avoid extinction.

The Miami account was set up to pay suppliers in Central America and elsewhere for goods not purchased in the United States.

ELLIOTT ABRAMS, assistant secretary of state for Latin America, told the committee in March the State Department is able to track all the expenditures but the identification of the brokers and other personnel involved in the transactions is classified.

Abrams said all the information Barnes seeks is available to the Senate and House intelligence committees, which have not called for an inquiry about the expenditures.

Whispers won't work

The search for Iowa City's new city manager nearing its end.

But the process has been all but smoothly run. The role of an ad hoc committee designed to screen applicants for the position is diminishing.

In early February, Iowa City Mayor William Brantstad appointed the committee to screen applicants. It was sent by Jensen-Oldani & Assoc., the private firm hired by the city to conduct a manager search.

But there was concern among the council members, consisting of Councilor John Ambrisco and five other community leaders. They properly reflect the diverse interests in Iowa City.

Now, following council action earlier this month, it appears this committee will have little say in the handful of candidate finalists ultimately selected by the council.

Despite initial plans, the council gave the city its go-ahead to narrow the field of candidates to a half dozen before these candidates are presented to the committee.

The decision stems from a state law prohibiting private discussion of job applicants for positions in government. Many candidates had indicated they would drop out of the race if their names were disclosed.

From the beginning, however, the council was intent on filling the city's top administrative position with someone who will "fit" into Iowa City.

The committee was to serve as the public's voice. It has been described as "one of the most important decisions" this council will have to make.

Following Tuesday's decision, it's clear that the amount to nothing more than a whisper.

With legislation pending to raise the drinking age, reorganize the structure of state government and determine the state budget, UI students would be wise to pay attention to what goes on in state capital in the next few days.

The UI student body has a voice in Des Moines. The UI Student Government is a statewide student group. In addition, UI student government members regularly travel to Des Moines to push their legislative agenda.

The groups have effectively presented a number of ideas, including much-needed funding for higher education. The organization's missions, however, have been those of preventing destructive legislation. In the past, they have had some recent success.

While it appears the legal drinking age is being raised to 21, USI persuaded the Iowa legislature to significantly weaken the bill's impact by setting the fine for violating the law at $10.

But generally, the current session of the legislature has not been a good one for UI students.

State education funding probably will be inadequate and a number of dangerous changes in governance of higher education are likely to be approved as part of the reorganization act.

As University of Northern Iowa President Curtis pointed out at the state Board of Regents meeting last week, the upshot of this is certainly higher tuition and fewer university services.

But student lobbying organizations can't be blamed. They have provided the framework for an opportunity for UI students to make their voices heard in Des Moines.

The fault lies rather with the students. USI student lobby days have been poorly attended. Efforts to get students to make their views known by writing to legislators have had disappointing results.

Perhaps worst of all, state lawmakers say they think students vote in sufficient numbers to make a significant interest group.

The legislative agendas of USI and the government won't enjoy any more success. Terry Brantstad and Iowa legislators believe they are a viable and effective voting bloc. They bite back when bitten.

The burden of making state government work for students is on the backs of UI students.

territory of the nuclear power station dropped 1.5 to two times. Work is under way to deactivate the contaminated areas adjacent to the power station's territory," Tass said. "Medical assistance is being administered to those affected of whom 18 people are in serious condition. There are no foreign citizens among those affected," said the statement from the Council of Ministers — the Soviet government.

THE UKRAINIAN government said "the radiation situation at the Chernobyl atomic power station and in the adjoining locality is improving. The state of the air basin over the remaining territory of Kiev region and the city of Kiev evokes no concern."

The Soviet government Wednesday admitted 197 people had been injured, with 49 released after treatment. The government contends only two people died, but unconfirmed reports have placed the number of dead in the hundreds or thousands.

The Soviets have maintained the situation has been greatly exaggerated by the Western media and governments.

The U.S. Embassy was bringing in a team of six European-based American radiation experts with special equipment to monitor contamination in the atmosphere, a U.S. diplomat said. He said they had applied for visas and the team was expected to arrive in Moscow by Monday.

CONTAMINATION FEARS swept Europe Thursday. Some countries banned food imports from the Soviet Union, and nearly all kept an eye on radiation counters that registered levels up to 15 times normal readings.

Europe remained at the mercy of the weather as winds pushed radioactive fallout south, Swedish meteorologists said. Prevailing winds over the accident site indicated East bloc and Balkan nations and Austria, Switzerland and Italy faced radiation dangers.

American experts said the Soviet nuclear disaster may threaten for weeks the lives of those exposed to high radiation levels, and may pose a lifetime cancer threat to others in the area near the plant.

Western experts also speculated land within about six miles of the Chernobyl plant is extremely contaminated at this point.

May Day

piners, supporters of deposed ruler Ferdinand E. Marcos and backers of President Corason "Cory" Aquino clashed in the streets Thursday, leaving at least 50 injured, as Aquino addressed a May Day rally only a block away.

Several hours later, riot police and soldiers in full combat gear used water cannon and tear gas to disperse thousands of Marcos loyalists camped outside the U.S. Embassy. At least 56 people were arrested, police said.

Information Minister Teodoro Loesin said Aquino apparently was unaware of the rioting during her address.

The clash was the first between Marcos loyalists and Aquino supporters since a civilian-backed military revolt toppled Marcos from 20 years in power Feb. 25.

IN POLAND, riot police attacked a pro-Solidarity crowd in Warsaw after a May Day Roman Catholic mass, and a heavy police presence in other cities kept anti-government rallies from mar- rying official holiday celebra- tions.

As 5,000 people tried to march away from St. Stanislaus Church after the mass, police advanced in a long line, beat- ing their shields with batons. They moved into the crowd with their weapons, beating and arresting several leaders.

"Such a demonstration of physical force indicates how much physical force is needed to maintain the situation which cannot last for long," said the founder of the now-banned trade union Solidarity, Lech Walesa.

IN CHILE, troops occupied the center of Santiago and fired warning shots to disperse hundreds of workers who attempted to hold a May Day rally called by opposition labor unions. Several rallies also were reported across Chile.

Soldiers with automatic weapons cordoned off a 20-block area around the presidential palace and arrested demon- strators at gunpoint.

Witnesses said three people were wounded in the shooting and dozens of demonstrators were forced on buses with their hands on their heads. Radio reports said 300 people were arrested.

In Paraguay, police in Asun- cion used clubs, tear gas, and water cannon to shatter a rare anti-government demonstra- tion.

"This was savage," said Bishop Melanio Medina. "I would have not believed it if I had not seen it."

IN MEXICO CITY, riot police charged rock-throwing youths who were protesting the economic policies of Presi- dent Miguel de la Madrid. Red Cross officials said 24 people were injured, including five policemen who were hit with flying rocks when police beat students with clubs.

Some 400,000 members of pro- government unions marched through Mexico City's central square, the Zocalo, where de la Madrid and other officials watched the labor celebration from the balcony of the National Palace.

More than a million people participated in hundreds of May Day marches and rallies across East and West Ger- many. In Israel, hundreds of Arabs demonstrated peace- fully, calling for a Palestinian state.

Workers in Greece staged a 24-hour general strike.

ought to be honest with the people before the election."

Sen. George Kinley, D-Des Moines, who is a candidate to oppose Gov. Terry Branstad's bid for re-election, criticized Republican senators who fought raising the sales tax for refusing to "bite the bullet."

"When I win the election this fall I will keep you here until you pass a sales tax increase and straighten this thing out," Kinley said.

"That's the problem in this state today. There probably won't be four of you (Republicans) who will vote for the sales tax, but there are 20 of you sitting over there that know it needs to be done," he added.

AFTER DEFEATING Brown's plan, the Senate spent nearly three hours discussing the complicated plan to put a 75 percent limit on federal deductibility next year.

Sen. Richard Palmer, D-Des Moines, said this limit would provide the state with $40 million next year to be split evenly on property tax relief and education, including an additional $2 million for state Board of Regents faculty salary increases.

Palmer also said his plan would reduce taxes for most farmers while requiring Iowans earning $40,000 or less annually to pay less than $100 per year in added taxes.

"Now is a time when this body and this legislature must show some courage," Palmer said. "As my father always said, 'you've got to do what is right.'"

But Senate Minority Leader Calvin Hultman, R-Red Oak, said Palmer's plan is inher- ently unfair.

"It is a tax on a tax and it is absolutely wrong," Hultman said.

 IOWA CITY

Kodak Liberty Ride Festival to have local participation

By Gretchen Norman
 Staff Writer

For bicyclists who prefer leisurely rides rather than competitive races, Iowa City will be one of 105 cities in the country to host the 1986 Kodak Liberty Ride Festival later this month.

According to Marty Novotny, local ride organizer for Kodak, about 3,000 local bicyclists are expected to participate in the fund-raising event on May 18.

The Eastman Kodak corporation has pledged $5 million toward restoring the Statue of Liberty and Ellis Island scheduled to be rededicated on July 4, 1986.

"This is a national bicycling event," Novotny said. "This is a bike ride, not a race, so the scope is toward everybody."

OPENING CEREMONIES will begin at the UI Carver-Hawkeye Arena where 5,000 helium balloons will be released from two giant Kodak film boxes.

A picnic is scheduled for early afternoon, and a video concert later in the day will feature Hall and Oates, The Hooters and Huey Lewis and the News performing from the Superdome in New Orleans.

Three routes have been mapped out for riders with varying degrees of endurance. The three rides will begin and end at Carver-Hawkeye Arena but will separate at the Interstate 80 overpass on Dubuque Street.

"We looked at routes that could be incorporated within each other," said Dick Siefers, the event's route director. "Even the novice rider can get experience up hills and on flat terrain." Siefers added that the routes were also chosen for their scenic beauty.

FOR BEGINNING bicyclists, the shortest route is about eight miles long. The mid-length route around the Coralville Dam will be nearly 14 miles, and for expert bicyclists, the North Liberty route will be just over 25 miles long.

"No one should be afraid to ride," said Amy Wilcox, who will lead one of the routes.

"We'll make sure no one gets left behind. Besides, everyone can go at their own pace. A lot of people don't realize how far they can ride," Wilcox said.

IN ADDITION, each participant will receive a free T-shirt and a $10 gift certificate from Kodak. According to Novotny, each bicyclist can have a stake in the Statue of Liberty.

"At the base of Lady Liberty there will be an electronic photo album," he said, explaining that black and white photographs will be logged into a computer and will be accessible by using a coded number.

Tickets for the day-long festivities cost $23 each and are available at the IMU box office.

"Bicycling is increasing in popularity as transportation, recreation and exercise. With the pickup in popularity, it is a good marketing approach," Novotny added. "As far as concerts, I think that is given. Music and bicycling are fun types of events."

UI nursing students obtain experience with internships

A new nursing internship offered by the UI College of Nursing gives soon-to-be graduates practical experience to balance their textbook studies.

Students who participated in the four-week internship this semester met Thursday at the Nursing Building to thank the program's coordinators and participating nurses.

"I really enjoyed the experience," nursing student Curt Bittner said. "I did more in my internship in four weeks than in four semesters of classes."

The internship, the first required by the College of Nursing, is taken in the student's final semester. According to program coordinator and Assistant Professor of Nursing Annette Scheffel, the program was begun last fall to balance students' nursing theory classes.

"STUDENTS TOLD US they sometimes experienced reality shock after graduation," Scheffel said. "This internship is the link between the student role and the world of practice."

The new program requires the student to work one-on-one with a regular staff nurse at one of 13 participating health care centers in Iowa. Each student works the staff member's schedule, completing 128 hours of clinical experience, Scheffel said.

Besides building students' confidence and allowing them to explore an area of nursing that interests them, the internship also aids graduates' job search.

Scheffel said many interns working in an intensive care unit or in the operating room — areas that traditionally do not hire nurses without some experience — have been hired for these areas immediately after graduation.

SO FAR, about 200 UI students have participated in the program. Besides keeping a journal describing their work experiences and filling out evaluation forms, the students must also attend a full day of classes each Wednesday.

"It was a lot of work, but now I'm not so scared of graduating and not knowing if I can do it," Sandy Daack said. Daack worked with handicapped children at UI Hospital School.

Kim Cramer, a student interested in occupational health nursing, said the program helped her clarify her career goals.

"I got the opportunity to see an area of nursing I might not have, and also could pick an area that I might be interested in later in life," she said.

Reagan states concern over Soviet silence on disaster

BALI, Indonesia (UPI)—President Ronald Reagan, described as "very concerned" about the Soviet nuclear plant disaster, said Thursday the United States criticized the Soviets for being "closed-mouthed."

The Soviet government has provided few details about the accident, including how it occurred and how much radioactivity has been released.

"I think what is happening to them is up to them," Reagan told reporters in response to questions during photo sessions as he wound up a three-day stay on the lush tropical island of Bali with a series of meetings.

After a leisurely, week-long journey across the Pacific, the president was to fly today to Tokyo, where he will attend next week's seven-nation economic summit meeting and hold private conferences with each of the allied leaders.

THE CHERNOBYL DISASTER overshadowed Reagan's trip to Indonesia and promises to displace terrorism — a topic the American delegation wants discussed — at the top of the summit agenda.

Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone, the summit host, has said he wants to discuss the nuclear accident with the global leaders.

Nancy Reagan told reporters that her husband was "very concerned" about the Soviet nuclear accident, and was following developments "as closely as he can."

Asked whether the Soviets were telling the rest of the world all they could about the explosion, Reagan said, "Well, they're usually a little closed-mouthed about these things, and this is no exception."

EARLIER, REAGAN said the United States has "no way of knowing" the magnitude of the disaster because the Soviets were providing little information.

"We're trying to keep track of what's going on over there," he said.

"We're limited in our knowledge," he told reporters.

Although Reagan has taken time to rest in Honolulu and Bali in the first stages of his 13-day, 22,000-mile Asian odyssey, he appeared tired when he met with Indonesian President Suharto for 80 minutes Thursday. The two men discussed a wide range of topics.

Secretary of State George Shultz said the issue of human rights was discussed with Suharto, who was told the United States does not agree with his suppression of press freedom.

At a meeting later with the foreign ministers of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, Reagan heard warnings about the rise in trade protectionism and praise for his calls for a free market.

AT A BANQUET Thursday where all the guests, including the Reagans, wore native Indonesian attire, Reagan thanked Suharto for his warm hospitality.

"Even though our methods of government differ, the friendly and open nature of the discussions we've had here, and when you are in Washington, reflect the constructive day-to-day, year-to-year conduct of relations between our two countries," he said.

Reagan also held a private meeting with Salvador Laurel, Philippine vice president and foreign minister.

Shultz later expressed chagrin over Manila's request for more aid and Laurel's comments to the press that there were "still cobwebs of doubt" about whether Reagan supported new President Corazon Aquino.

President Ronald Reagan toasts Indonesian President Suharto during a state dinner at the Putri Bali Hotel.

British police seek convicts

LONDON (UPI) — Police searched Thursday for 23 convicts who escaped during a night of rioting at prisons across Britain, and prison guards suspended a work slowdown that played a key role in the disturbances.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher praised the guards for stopping their "appalling" job action — a refusal to work overtime — and said the night of violence at understaffed prisons had a "very salutary" effect on the officers.

Police set up roadblocks and used helicopters to search for 23 prisoners who escaped during the riots. At least seven escapees were believed to be armed with knives and other weapons seized from a prison canteen and workshop.

"THE SITUATION in all establishments has now been brought back under control," Home Secretary Douglas Hurd told Parliament.

"Although some of the violent action by prisoners may have been imitative, there is little doubt that the occasion for it was the overtime ban instituted by the . . . Prison Officers Association," Hurd said.

The refusal to work overtime "both increased the prospect of trouble in the prisons and reduced resources able to deal with it," he said.

He called for an investigation "into these events."

The disturbances erupted Wednesday night and raged into the early morning hours after prison guards refused to work overtime at 134 jails in England, Wales and Northern Ireland in a dispute with Thatcher's government over low staffing levels.

PRISON OFFICIALS cut back visitation time and other inmate privileges because of staff shortages, sparking widespread rioting and arson by prisoners.

The Home Office said 18 prisons across Britain were rocked by violence or disturbances, and eight guards and five inmates were slightly injured.

Worst hit in the rioting was Northey minimum security prison in Bexhill, 55 miles southeast of London, where inmates torched the prison hospital, an administration building, the chapel and most of the wooden barracks.

Military jet crash claims 37

LA FUENTES, El Salvador (UPI) — A Salvadoran military transport plane burst into flames just after takeoff Thursday, sending it crashing into a hill and killing all 37 people aboard. It was one of the worst aviation accidents in El Salvador's history.

Military officials blamed the 6:32 a.m. crash on "mechanical difficulties" that developed only two minutes after the DC-6 took off from Ilopango Air Force Base in San Salvador for a flight to Panama.

The plane crashed in the town of La Fuentes, nine miles north of San Salvador.

Aboard the plane was a group of military technicians headed to Panama for training.

Witnesses said the pilot appeared to attempt an emergency landing on a hill. But one of the plane's wings touched the ground and was torn loose, tipping the plane and sending the craft down the other side of the hill.

Mexico ready for World Cup after quakes

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Mexican officials worked hard to clean up destruction from last year's killer earthquakes in time for World Cup play, and in general they did a good job. Then on Wednesday, three more quakes — one of them a major one measuring 7.0 on the Richter scale — rumbled through Mexico City and environs just after 1 a.m., forcing thousands of people out into the streets in panic.

quakes that killed more than 8,000 people in Mexico City, destroyed or damaged 3,000 buildings, made 300,000 homeless and created weeks of chaos as the frantic rescue and relief efforts were conducted. Soccer officials would rather have teams and the thousands of journalists and fans expected to arrive for Cup play thinking about soccer instead of earth movements. They probably would have succeeded, if not for the latest jolts. Wednesday's quakes will have no physical effect on the tournament, though. None of the 12 stadiums in nine cities up and down the length of Mexico were damaged. NEITHER WERE any of them damaged in the giant quakes of last September, which measured 8.1 and 7.8 respectively on the Richter scale. Both of the stadiums to be used in Mexico City are far outside the earthquake danger zones in the old center of the city, which was constructed over a dry lake bed. Hotels where players, fans and journalists will be staying during the May 31-June 29 tournament also escaped damage in this week's quakes. Last September, only one hotel in which journalists were scheduled to stay was severely hit, the Hotel Continental at the juncture of two of the capital's main avenues, Paseo de la Reforma and Insurgentes. Several people were killed in the hotel, which was dynamited earlier this year. The news reports of last year's quakes were dramatic and caused concern in many foreign soccer associations that the country would be unable to recuperate in time to stage the World Cup, the world's most popular sporting event, especially because the nation is in the throes of a four-year economic crisis. THERE WAS ALSO worry because, with heavy destruction in the two main telephone company buildings, most communications with the outside world was cut off for up to several months, pointing out how fragile the Mexican system was. It would be a true disaster for soccer fans if communications from Mexico were somehow cut during Cup play. The government and the private Organizing Committee, even as the cleanup effort went on, assured all foreign organizations that the quakes would not affect the World Cup. Mexico instituted a rush recovery program that has already torn down many of the damaged buildings, with parks built in some of them. Others remain that are scheduled for demolition or are in a state of

THE QUAKES caused no damage, but reawakened memories of the Sept. 19-20 earthquakes.

Oilers stymied by seven-point plan

EDMONTON, Alberta (UPI) — Calgary Flames Coach Bob Johnson has uncovered one of the NHL's great secrets — how to beat the Edmonton Oilers. "It's a seven-point plan," he said. "It's designed for one purpose — to beat the Oilers. It wouldn't work on another team. But that's all I'll say. I'm going to bottle it and save it for next year."

Division finals. THE OUTCOME left the city of Edmonton in shock and caused an outbreak of uninhibited joy in Calgary, 180 miles south down the turnpike. But while the Battle of Alberta has been won for 1986, there are other skirmishes ahead. The Flames next meet the St. Louis Blues in the best-of-seven semifinals, beginning Friday night at Calgary. "They didn't steal it," St. Louis coach Jacques Demers said of Calgary's victory. "They won it. When you beat the champs, you're a good hockey club. It's going to be tough. But let's go." Kevin LaVallee of St. Louis, who scored the winning goal Wednesday night against the Toronto Maple Leafs, will be playing against his former team in the upcoming series. "I'D LIKE to go back where I started," he said. "I've got something to prove to those guys." Not everyone is buying the notion of Calgary's secret plan against the Oilers. "I don't think even the players know what the seven-point plan is," said hockey commentator Howie Meeker. "I think that's the key, to not know what the play is." Oilers coach Glen Sather gave the Flames full credit for their victory but gave little credence to Johnson's secret plan. "You can analyze it any way you want, but Calgary has a great hockey club and they worked hard," he said. "They won a different way every game." "The game plan was no secret. It was simple. They snuck back with four guys and kept a fifth LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Snow Chief, the 6-5 favorite, Thursday drew a disadvantageous 12th post for the $784,400 Kentucky Derby — richest in 112 runnings of the world's most famous horse race. The spot presented racing's only 3-year-old millionaire with a long distance to run for position — and left him stuck inside the only horses in the field of 16 with more speed than he. Lined up to his right, in the 13th thru 15th posts respectively, are Bachelor Beau, wire-to-wire winner of the Blue Grass Stakes; Groovy, pacesetter in the Gotham and Wood Memorial stakes, and Zabaleta, who caught Groovy to win a division of the split Bay Shore Stakes.

"IT'S NOT FOUR, five or six," said Mel Stute, Snow Chief's trainer, referring to the most coveted post positions, "but I found out you don't get everything you want. He'll have to show some more speed to get into position, but he's got that." Badger Land, the 3-1 second pick, drew No. 10, a hole somewhat better suited to his running style of just off the pace. "It's perfect position," said trainer and part-owner D. Wayne Lukas. "There's a lot of speed outside us, which should clear a path. It gives (jockey Jorge) Velasquez the opportunity to pick his spot, and place him where he'll be comfortable." The luckiest draw may have been that of Bold Arrangement's No. 4 — a spot well suited to the 12-1 British invader's off-the-pace style. "It gives us a chance to get out and get in the race," said trainer Clive Brittain. "I'm absolutely delighted."

IN THE BLUE Grass Stakes, Ferdinand, Bill Shoemaker, 20-1; Mogambo, Leroy Jolley, 10-1; Wise Times, Keith Allen, 12-1; Bold Arrangement, Chris McCarron, 12-1; Icy Groom, Eddie Maple, 12-1; Southern Appeal, Jesse Davidson, 12-1; Vernon Castle, Eddie Delahoussaye, 30-1; Rampage, Pat Day, 20-1.

Broad Brush, Vince Bracciale, 10-1; Badger Land, Jorge Velasquez, 3-1; Wheatly Hall, Gary Stevens, 30-1; Snow Chief, Alex Solis, 6-5; Bachelor Beau, Larry Melancon, 15-1; Groovy, Laffit Pincay, 30-1; Zabaleta, Darrel McHargue, 12-1, and Fobby Forbes, Randy Romero, 12-1.

Wise Times, Icy Groom, Southern Appeal, Zabaleta and Fobby Forbes were grouped as a five-horse mutuel betting field. "I like the fact that the speed drew outside," said Sam Ramer, trainer of Icy Groom, runnerup to Snow Chief in the Santa Anita Derby. "It's perfect for my horse and his style of running (4 to 5 lengths off the pace). They'll have to use their speed to get into position by the first turn. Those horses can't carry wide, they'll have to get into position." Philip Hauswald, trainer of Bachelor Beau, was concerned that having all the speed outside would result in the kind of torrid pace that would burn all of them out. Stute obviously was worried about the same thing, though he pointed out that Snow Chief had the 12 post in the 16-horse Florida Derby, the only race he ever won wire to wire.

Iowa hopes for stellar outing at scene of past success

By Robert Mann

Iowa men's track Coach Ted Wheeler is hoping that lightning strikes twice in Indiana for the Hawkeyes as his team prepares for a meet in Indianapolis. Last year Iowa traveled to what was then called the National Invitational Track and Field Championships as heavy underdogs to many of the other universities competing, but ran away with second place — 11 points ahead of last year's Big Ten track champion, Indiana. "We had no idea we were going to do that well at that meet last year," Wheeler said. "We feel we're in better shape this year, and we're optimistic." THE MEET this year is named the Indiana Invite and again is going to provide some tough competition for Iowa from Wisconsin, Arkansas, Indiana, Mississippi and Northwestern. "It's going to be one of the top meets in the country this weekend," Wheeler said. At the Drake Relays last weekend the Hawkeyes were without weights man Gary Kostrubala and sprinter Pat McGhee, who were sidelined with minor injuries. Kostrubala will probably compete this weekend, but McGhee is still questionable. Both did well at the meet last year. "It looks like he (Kostrubala) is going to go with the discus at least and probably the shot," Wheeler said. "With McGhee, we'll work with him and if he's okay we'll go with him Saturday." Wheeler said Thursday that Rodney Chambers, a distance runner from Chicago Mendel Catholic High School who has signed a national letter of intent with the Hawkeyes, should strengthen Iowa's distance line-up next year. Chambers has run some of the best times in the state this year in the half-mile (1 minute, 54 seconds), mile (4:21) and two-mile runs (9:22).

Track

Hawks meet Big Ten foes at Mid-American tourney

By Dan Millea
Staff Writer

The Iowa men's golf team will go up against the rest of the Big Ten as well as the Mid-American Conference this weekend at the Mid-American Invitational in DeKalb, Ill. The tournament, hosted by Northern Illinois, will cover 54 holes over three days at the Kishwaukee Country Club and will include approximately 22 teams. The Hawkeyes are coming off last weekend's first-place finish at the Drake Relays Invitational, in which Coach Chuck Zwiener said he may have found his lineup for the rest of the season. GUY BOROS, Steve Reilly, Bob Kollsmith, Joe Kramer and Mike Eckerman made the Des Moines trip and all played well enough to prevent team playoffs this week. Zwiener said that, "For the time being," he'll stay with those five athletes. "We'll have to see how we do this week. (But) the way they played last week, we have to go with them." The Mid-American meet will be the first chance the Hawkeyes have had to face the entire Big Ten, but at the Kepler Invitational in Columbus, Ohio last month they turned in a poor performance against most of the league. Eight conference schools competed at the Kepler meet and Iowa finished seventh among them, 12th overall. Host school Ohio State won the meet easily. SINCE THAT tournament the Hawkeyes have improved considerably and played what Zwiener called their best golf of the year at the Drake Invitational. Part of the reason for that

Cardinals' swoon continues

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Carmelo Martinez homered and scored three times Thursday to help Eric Show to his first victory of the season and lead the San Diego Padres to a 4-3 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Show, 1-2, allowed four hits and two runs over six innings before being lifted in favor of Craig Lefferts. Rich Gossage worked the final two innings to gain his fourth save. The loser was Danny Cox, 0-2.

Martinez hit his second home run of the year in the eighth inning off Pat Perry to score what proved to be the winning run.

Hawks topple Northern Iowa, 15-8

With the aid of six home runs, Iowa dropped Northern Iowa 15-8 Thursday in Cedar Falls.

The win improved the Hawkeyes' record to 27-21 on the year. Iowa has won seven of its last eight games.

John Knapp hit two home runs for Iowa, while Rob Eddie, Bill Heinz, Rick Jennings and Gary Ellis each hit one round tripper.

Chuck Georgantas earned the victory for Iowa.

The Hawkeyes host Big Ten rival Wisconsin for double-headers Saturday and Sunday.

Ray sparks Pirates to victory

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Johnny Ray drove in three runs, including one in a three-run eighth inning, to boost his National League-leading RBI total to 21 and spark the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 6-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

The Pirates snapped a three-game losing streak.

Reliever Bob Walk, 1-0, pitched the final three innings to gain the victory. Giants starter Mike Krukow, 3-2, pitched seven innings and allowed five runs to take the loss.

Pittsburgh broke a 2-2 tie with a three-run eighth inning. Joe Orsulak led off with a single and stole second before scoring on Ray's single to center. Sid Bream followed with a single, moving Ray to third. Jeff Robinson relieved Krukow and threw a wild pitch to score Ray. One out later, Tony Pena walked and Jim Morrison singled to score Bream and make it 5-2.

Eight of the nine players in the Pirates' lineup hit safely.

Sugar Ray may fight Marvelous Marvin

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sugar Ray Leonard said Thursday he would end his two-year retirement from boxing if middleweight champion Marvin Hagler agrees to a title fight.

"I know exactly what it takes to beat this man," Leonard told WDMV-TV. "But people say, 'Well, Ray, two years of inactivity, you'll be rusty.' No, no. He will eliminate the rust because he is what I want and I am what he wants. And boxing needs that kind of fight."

A source close to Leonard said there has been contact between Leonard and the Hagler camp and that Leonard would demand a split of the purse. The source said Leonard of Palmer Park, Md., has been in training for more than a month, doing road work and ring work and studying films of Hagler.

"What I'm saying here is I want to fight him," Leonard said. "I'll sit by my phone. If he says, 'Ray I will fight you,' I would consider it very highly — it's something I couldn't really turn down," Leonard said.

Haas haunts old teammates in win

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Moose Haas limited his former teammates to six hits in eight innings to become the major league's first five-game winner and the Oakland A's got two-run homers from Dwayne Murphy and rookie Jose Canseco Thursday to defeat the Milwaukee Brewers, 7-2.

Haas, acquired from the Brewers prior to the start of the season, struck out one and walked two in raising his record to 5-0. Bill Mooneyham pitched the ninth inning for Oakland.

Starter Tim Lary, 2-2, took the loss, giving up five runs and seven hits in five innings.

There won't be 12; Mets' streak ends

United Press International
Zane Smith pitched a four-hitter and struck out a career-high 12 and the Atlanta Braves unloaded four home runs, including three in the fourth inning, to defeat New York, 7-2, Thursday night and snap the Mets' 11-game winning streak.

Smith, 2-2, walked five in pitching his second complete game. Rick Aguilera, 0-2, took the loss as the Mets failed to establish a franchise record for consecutive victories.

Atlanta broke the game open with a four-run fourth inning that featured home runs by Bob Horner, Ozzie Virgil and Glenn Hubbard off Aguilera. Horner led off with his third home run, a shot down the left-field line, and, one out later, Ken Oberkfell singled to right and Virgil ripped a 2-1 pitch over the center-field fence for his second homer. Hubbard then hit a 1-2 pitch over the left-field wall to knock out Aguilera.

New York closed to 6-2 in the fifth on an RBI double by Keith Hernandez, but the Braves moved in front 7-2 in the seventh on Terry Harper's run-scoring single.

New York took a 1-0 lead in the second. George Foster led off with a single and scored on Ray Knight's double.

The Braves moved in front 2-1 in the bottom of the inning on a walk to Horner and Harper's first home run.

IN NEW YORK Steve Lombardozzi and Tim Laudner singled home runs in the sixth inning Thursday night, helping the Minnesota Twins break a nine-game Yankee Stadium losing streak with a 7-4 victory over the New York Yankees.

Ken Hrbek and Gary Gaetti added solo homers to assure the Twins their first Yankee Stadium victory since July 21, 1984, and hand New York only its third loss in its last 11 decisions.

Juan Agosto, 1-2, who entered the game in the fourth, earned the victory.

Trailing 4-3 in the sixth, the Twins scored twice for a 5-4 lead. Hrbek led off with a walk and, one out later, Alex Sanchez drew his first walk in 207 major-league plate appearances.

John Montefusco relieved and, one out later, Lombardozzi had his at-bat prolonged when rookie catcher Phil Lombardi, making his first major league start, allowed his pop fly to fall safely. The official scorer ruled no play. Lombardozzi and Laudner then delivered consecutive RBI singles.

IM softball tourney a battle to the end

By Robert Mann

Hamilton Medical bounced back from an 8-2 loss in the first game to earn a split in the second against One Step Slower, 8-5, in the best out of three series for the UI intramural slow-pitch softball championship.

The deciding game in the championship series will be Sunday at 5:30 p.m. at the Iowa Softball Complex.

In the first game, with the score tied 1-1, Hamilton Medical ran into a barrage of hits and runs as One Step Slower scored six in the second inning.

"WE GOT A couple of bursts of runs and fortunately they didn't," said Loyd Matheson, One Step Slower's pitcher. "You can never score enough runs in this game."

Hamilton Medical's problem in the first game was a simple one, according to their manager.

"We didn't hit the ball," said Dan Bunting. "We seldom score only two runs a game. They scored six in an inning, and we got in a hole we couldn't dig ourselves out of."

With their backs against the wall, though, Hamilton Medical came out hitting in the second game in an attempt to send the series to a third and deciding game.

In the top of the first Hamilton Medical's first three batters singled. With Joe Auer on second and his brother John, on first, Dan Bunting hit a single to score Joe. Tom Bloubin then doubled in John and Rick Mobling, who had reached on a fielder's choice, to end the scoring in the first.

IN THE BOTTOM of the first, however, One Step Slower came back and scored three runs when John Burns, Steve Petersen and Greg Utesch knocked in a run each. One Step Slower then took the lead in the bottom of the second when they scored one run.

Hamilton Medical regained the lead in the top of the fifth when they scored two runs, only to watch One Step Slower tie the game in the bottom of that inning.

The score was locked until the top of the seventh when Hamilton Medical's bats came back to life.

Joe Auer and Mike Conners each reached base on errors. John Auer then doubled in both runners to send Hamilton Medical up for good. Bunting knocked in John Auer for an insurance run, which, as it turned out, was not needed.

"We came out and we quit trying to place the ball so hard," Bunting said of the difference between Hamilton Medical's first and second games. "Our defense came together a lot better, too."

Can you believe the clothes these kids wear around campus? I saw one girl's jeans that looked like they were put on with a spray gun. The only thing holding up her top was a city ordinance. It was so tight, I could hardly breathe. I bet she wears less downtown than her mother wears to bed. And the boys aren't any better. I saw one guy dressed like he was fleeing from a burning building. These guys look like a bad photograph—overexposed and underdeveloped. And how about when they lay out? These swimsuits are like barbed wire. They protect the property without obstructing the view. I saw one that was so small it looked like the girl was poured into it and forgot to say when I met this one girl at the theater. Her clothes looked like she dressed in front of an airplane propeller. She said whenever she's down in the gym she buys a hat. So that's where she got it. I don't ask her to remove it in the theater. It will come off than the movie.

Wilkins or Boston

ATLANTA (UPI) — Dominique Wilkins remains scoring touch in a hurtful loss to the Boston Celtics Friday night and afternoon in Games 3 and 4 of their best-of-seven series. Wilkins, who kept on spinning wheels against the Celtics in the NBA playoffs, scored 20 points in Game 3 and 19 in Game 4. The Hawks, who hosted the Celtics Friday night and afternoon in Games 3 and 4 of their best-of-seven series, lost Game 3 by a score of 103-97 and Game 4 by a score of 103-97. Wilkins, who kept on spinning wheels against the Celtics in the NBA playoffs, scored 20 points in Game 3 and 19 in Game 4. The Hawks, who hosted the Celtics Friday night and afternoon in Games 3 and 4 of their best-of-seven series, lost Game 3 by a score of 103-97 and Game 4 by a score of 103-97.

"I'VE GOT to end this slump and get back in rhythm," said Wilkins, who connected on only 37 percent of his shots in the four games that followed a 50-point performance in Detroit the last time Hawks played at home two weeks ago. "I've been pressing a little too hard and got to pass the ball a little more."

Atlanta coach Mike Fratello concedes that the Hawks win without Wilkins as a major point-maker. "One time you could beat without Dominique as a best," said Fratello. "But he's going to get it consistent. He's got to get his points." Boston star Larry Bird had 36 points in Game 3 and he's been surprised by his performance. "He's got shots that don't help the team," said Bird. "I shouldn't say that, but now it's probably going to come back and haunt me."

"We're going positive after the way we played them." Playing with the Lakers beating them, however, two different things. Mavericks found out in of their best-of-seven series semifinals.

Dallas led the Lakers much of their second before falling Wednesday at The Forum. Los Angeles thus own lead and will try to win the series without having play again at home.

THE SERIES moves to the arena Friday night as the Mavericks hoping new-found confidence their noisy fans will give the boost they need to an upset.

"Reunion will be roared Dallas coach Dick Motta whose team won both games in its opening series against the Utah Jazz. "I'm proud of our stance after our first series was a tough series and didn't get much rest."

Wilkins must star or Boston will roll

ATLANTA (UPI) — Unless Dominique Wilkins recovers his scoring touch in a hurry, it looks like the Atlanta Hawks will keep on spinning their wheels against the Boston Celtics in the NBA playoffs.

The Hawks, who host the Celtics Friday night and Sunday afternoon in Games 3 and 4 of their best-of-seven series, are down 2-0. Wilkins, who led the NBA in scoring during the regular season with a 30.3 average, would be the first to admit that a big reason for that deficit is that he scored only 13 and 19 points respectively in the two losses in Boston.

"I've got to end this little slump and get back in my rhythm," said Wilkins, who has connected on only 37 percent of his shots in the four road games that followed his 50-point performance against Detroit the last time the Hawks played at home nearly two weeks ago. "I've been pressing a little too hard. I've got to pass the ball around more."

Atlanta coach Mike Fratello concedes that the Hawks can't win without Wilkins as their major point-maker. "Maybe one time you could beat them without Dominique at his best," said Fratello. "But if we are going to do it consistently, he's got to get his points."

Boston star Larry Bird, who had 36 points in Game 2, said he's been surprised by Wilkins' performance. "He's taking shots that don't help his team," said Bird. "I probably shouldn't say that, because now it's probably going to come back and haunt me."

THE CELTICS have to be confident as they try to wind up the Eastern Conference semifinal series. They have beaten the Hawks eight straight times this season and haven't lost to them in Atlanta's Omni since the Hawks pulled off a 95-93 upset in the second game of a three-game playoff series in 1983.

"They've got size, they're physical, they shoot, they pass, they've got high basketball intelligence," said Fratello. "But what makes it even harder to beat them is that they've got pride and a high level of intensity."

The Celtics showed that pride and intensity Tuesday night in Boston when, after letting a late third-quarter 18-point lead dwindle to one with just under four minutes to play, they ripped off the last 10 points in the contest.

Tuesday's game was also the scene of a couple of rhubarbs — one between Boston's Danny Ainge and Atlanta's Scott Hastings which got Ainge ejected, and another between Fratello and a couple of Boston fans.

"I'm sure I'll get a warm welcome in Atlanta," joked Ainge, who had 13 points, six assists and two steals before being ejected in Tuesday's third quarter.

"I expect another war when we get to Atlanta," said Celtics center Robert Parish. "Atlanta never gives up no matter what the score is. They have a lot of explosive people off the bench. When you get them down, you have to keep them down."

"You can't afford to respect Boston too much," said Hastings. "In the past, we've had sort of a hands-off attitude. I'm not saying we played dirty (Tuesday), but we've learned if you respect Boston too much, you'll get beat by 35."

After scare, Lakers look to take series

DALLAS (UPI) — The Dallas Mavericks, having given the Los Angeles Lakers their first scare of the playoffs, return home Friday night in hopes of doing more than that.

"We know we can play with the Lakers," said the Mavericks' Dale Ellis. "We're thinking positive after the way we played them."

Playing with the Lakers and beating them, however, are two different things as the Mavericks found out in Game 2 of their best-of-seven conference semifinal series.

Dallas led the Lakers for much of their second game before falling Wednesday evening at The Forum, 117-113. Los Angeles thus owns a 2-0 lead and will try to wrap up the series without having to play again at home.

THE SERIES moves to Reunion Arena Friday night with the Mavericks hoping their new-found confidence and their noisy fans will give them the boost they need to pull off an upset.

"Reunion will be rocking," said Dallas coach Dick Motta, whose team won both its home games in its opening round series against the Utah Jazz. "I'm proud of our team. We were in a difficult circumstance after our first series. It was a tough series and we didn't get much rest."

"That is not an excuse, but we showed we could play with the Lakers."

To a man the Mavericks talked of renewed confidence after giving the Lakers such a spirited battle in the second game — a result which followed a one-sided loss in Game 1.

NBA Playoffs

"Losing hurts," said guard Derek Harper. "But we now realize we can play with these guys. If we can put together a couple of more games at home like the one we played in Los Angeles, we'll have a good chance of tying things up."

"WE CAN HOLD our heads high," said the Mavericks' Mark Aguirre. "We can play with Los Angeles. It's just a matter of cleaning up a few things and getting back after it."

During the Dallas-Utah series, Jazz coach Frank Layden proclaimed the atmosphere at Reunion Arena to be the best in the NBA, but such petty nuances as rowdy fans usually do not bother the Lakers.

"Our team is used to taking a crowd out of a game," said Earvin "Magic" Johnson, who along with center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar paced a Los Angeles comeback in the second game. "I don't know if we are just about to shut them out of our minds or what, but a hostile crowd doesn't seem to bother us."

"We take care of business."

One of the things Dallas hopes will happen before its home crowd is a better ratio of foul shots. The Mavericks shot 17 less free throws than did the Lakers in the second game and made a dozen less.

Golf

improvement could be the fact that the Hawkeyes got relatively few rounds in early this spring while many of the teams they faced at the Kepler and other meets were well into their seasons.

"We should know a little bit more after this weekend," Ziener said of Iowa's improvement. "We'll be meeting up with a lot of those teams," that outshot the Hawkeyes in April.

Ziener said his team is not exactly on schedule for the year, but the recent improvement is promising.

"I don't think you ever feel that way," Ziener said when asked if he was satisfied with the team's progress. "But I think we're getting closer. We still have to do a little better job of putting and some of those things so we don't blow the pars when we've got them."

In order to help prevent those blown holes, the Hawkeyes have been "working on our short game," this past week, Ziener said.

Can you believe the clothes these kids wear around campus? I saw one girl's jeans that looked like they were put on with a spray gun. The only thing holding up her top was a city ordinance. It was so tight... I could hardly breathe. I bet she wears less downtown than her mother wears to bed. And the boys aren't any better. I saw one guy dressed like he was fleeing from a burning building. These guys look like a bad photograph — overexposed and underdeveloped. And how about when they lay out? These swimsuits are like barbed wire. They protect the property without obstructing the view. I saw one that was so small it looked like the girl was poured into it and forgot to lay when I met this one girl at the theater. Her clothes looked like she dressed in front of an airplane propeller. She said whenever she's down in the gym she buys a hat. So that's where she got it. I asked her to remove it in the theater. It was warmer than the movie.

Criner shows off Cyclones in 1986 spring scrimmage

AMES, Iowa (UPI)—The Iowa State Cyclones will cap an exhaustive spring football schedule Saturday with the annual Cardinal-Gold intrasquad scrimmage.

Kickoff is set for 1:30 p.m., with several festivities also scheduled. Halftime activities will include the introduction of more than 160 former Iowa State football players who have indicated they will attend Saturday's game as part of an Iowa State football lettermen's reunion.

"We've got a really big weekend scheduled and we're really excited about it," Iowa State Coach Jim Criner said. "We started planning this almost a year ago and at that time we were in hopes of having an alumni game. Because of the problems with insurance we were not able to get anyone to insure the alumni game and had to go from an alumni game to a reunion."

THE ACTUAL GAME will find quarterback Alex Espinoza in the starting role. Juniors Derek DeGennaro and Brett Sadek will head the second team. The contest pits Iowa State's top offensive and defensive units against the rest of the squad.

"The competition (between Espinoza, DeGennaro and Sadek) has been very good for Alex and he's opened up a cushion between the three right now," Criner said. "Alex is performing better right now than he ever has on our field. He's doing better things with the football. He's making not only the right decisions but he's not thrown the ball to the different colored jersey all spring."

Espinoza will throw to a trio of receivers Criner described as impressive this spring. Senior Robbie Minor will open at split end, sophomore Dennis Ross is slated to start at flanker ahead of Tom Schulting and junior Tom Stawniak has appeared to have nailed down the starting tight end job over Marcus Lester. Criner said junior college transfer Eddie Brown, reportedly the fastest man on the squad, will also see action at split end.

"THE WIDE receiver position has been like night and day in the way we're catching the ball now and the way we caught it last year," Criner said. "The competition has made our secondary better and has certainly made our receivers better. It's given our quarterbacks a great deal of confidence."

Complimenting Espinoza in the backfield will be tailback Andrew Jackson and fullback Sylvester Nickerson. Jackson was the Cyclones' No. 1 tailback at the conclusion of last season and Nickerson is playing in place of Joe Henderson, who suffered a slight concussion in a collision with linebacker Jeff Braswell in last Saturday's scrimmage.

Other players missing Saturday's game include wide receivers Hughes Suffren and David Tallauli and linebacker Randy Richards. Criner said No. 2 cornerback John Dozier is questionable with a sprained ankle but should play.

Sophomore John Cinefro and redshirt freshman Don Edwards apparently have earned starting positions at defensive end, an area of concern to Criner.

The Cyclones open the 1986 season against Iowa.

guy high and waited for us to put the puck in the slot. But he'll have a hell of a time beating us next year, I'll tell you that."

THE MOST OBVIOUS key to Calgary's success was hustle.

"There is no doubt about it, the system was there," said rookie Mike Vernon, who provided outstanding goaltending during the series. "But the victory came from the 23 hearts in this room. I think we were the hardest working team out there and deserved to win."

For Calgary, there were other critical elements in the series: — denying Edmonton's Paul Coffey.

— playing tough without excessive penalties.

— avoiding the intimidation presented by Wayne Gretzky.

— using more players more often and changing lines quickly. — preventing the Oilers from scoring first.

"The sad thing about the playoffs is that just to beat Edmonton is far more important for the city of Calgary than to win the Stanley Cup," Calgary forward Lanny McDonald said. "For us to beat Edmonton is just unbelievable for the city of Calgary. It's a special high for us but we've worked too hard to turn back now."

being repaired. Mexicans also relied on the theory that major quakes generally occur in the same area only every 50 to 80 years, during which time earth plates gradually crunch up against each other until the tension must be relieved by the sudden movement that causes most quakes.

Yet eight months after September's quakes, one nearly as severe rocked Mexico City, with its epicenter in the same general area off the Pacific Coast.

"It could have been worse," said Jose Esparza, one Mexican soccer fan. "We could have had the quake during the World Cup when the city was filled with visitors."

Soccer officials, while publicly voicing confidence, must shudder at that possibility. Then again, if a quake occurred during a big game, nobody might notice it.

During the 1970 World Cup played in Mexico, people still talked of the match between Italy and West Germany before 110,000 fans in Aztec Stadium in Mexico City.

"At one goal, all 110,000 jumped up and down and screamed at the same time," said the architect who designed the stadium, Pedro Ramirez Vasquez, who attended the match. "The whole stadium actually moved up and down."

Kahane interprets with skill

By Maria Deligiorgis
Staff Writer

Award-winning pianist Jeffrey Kahane gave an extraordinary performance Wednesday night, delighting the Hancher Auditorium audience with both his technical wizardry and his marvelous musicality.

Kahane's program could have been construed as merely a display of his technical capacities, but he also offered perceptive interpretations by coherently enlarging and expanding on the individual character of each selection. Mozart's Sonata in B-flat Major, K. 570, began Kahane's program by immediately establishing the depth of his musical comprehension. A lovely piece, the simplicity found in the composition became expressive through Kahane's inspired musical understanding.

IN THE SONATA, Kahane enraptured the audience with his fluid phrasing. The Allegro first movement developed Kahane's sense of direction, focus and character.

In the Fauré selections, Kahane displayed ease in transitions, originating succinct and credible direction, direction that was especially clear in the Nocturne in E-flat Major, Op. 36. He played the Impromptu in F Minor, Op. 31, with an amazingly light touch, his technique motivated by the nature of the impromptu.

Perhaps the most inspired interpretation came with Elliott Carter's Piano Sonata, composed around 1945 in Carter's transitional period. A rereading of Freud led Carter to feel the neoclassical aesthetic evaded areas of feeling and expression. In this work, Carter freed himself from traditional schemata by deriving his compositional matter from tone-color interrelations and the actual capabilities of the piano. Carter's hierarchical superimposition of octaves, 5ths, 4ths and 3rds incorporate the overtone resonance of the piano.

THE OVERTONES Kahane created through his masterful control of both keyboard and pedals floated through Hancher. Adding to Carter's harmonic tirade, Kahane explored with caressive phrasing the constant pulse which Carter varied only with complex rhythmic configurations.

The second movement fugue also exploited the possibilities of the piano, evolving out of and merging back into the fundamental chords on which the Andante movement is based.

Kahane concluded the recital with the Schuman Fantasia in C Major, Op. 17. Kahane promoted Schuman's structure which emphasizes the importance of the theme for its own sake. The variations Schuman structured are not quite ornamental; rather, the theme is almost restructured with each development. The majestic texture of the Fantasia is individual and Kahane drew on the effect of separate melodies in the most convincing manner.

The audience rewarded Kahane with warm applause and yells of "Bravo." Kahane, in turn, awarded his ecstatic listeners with two exquisitely-played encores.

Hüsker Dü's 'Apple' tastes bland

By Beth Lucht
Staff Writer

HÜSKER DÜ'S record, Candy Apple Grey, has aroused quite a bit of attention even before its release. The album is the band's seventh record, and their first on a major label. Instead of their previous labels like New Alliance and SST, the Hüskers are now in the Warner Brothers stable, and this change has caused a lot of alarm and suspicion. Is the band selling out? Are they bidding for Top 40 airplay? Will they sacrifice their style or roots for popularity?

I'm not quite sure what the answers to those questions are. I am pretty sure, however, that this record would sound the same way on Warner Brothers or on SST. It seems a natural progression in the development of their style, regardless of whether that development is seen as positive or negative. Personally, I don't like the sound on Candy Apple Grey as much as earlier albums like Metal Circus or Zen Arcade, but that still doesn't make the group a sellout.

LIKE HÜSKER DÜ'S past two records, New Day Rising and Flip Your Wig, all the material on this album seems rushed and not as well-done or well-thought-out as the songs on earlier records. The songs tend to blend together, with very few standing out as unique or particularly good. Most of them are a bit too formulaic — they fit into the Hüsker Dü mold neatly. What made the Hüskers writing great was that it seemed Bob Mould and Grant Hart broke their molds and started new with each song. Now it turns out that they just put them away in their closets for when they were burned out or tired and needed to make an album. Just pour the chords in and — presto! — you have a sure-fire college radio hit.

BOTH OF MOULD'S impressionable songs, "Too Far Down" and "Hardly Getting Over It," deal with depression and are slow and primarily acoustic. I like them because they are sincere and different than the other material on the record.

"And you don't want the emotion/ Because the taste it leaves is for real/ But nothing's ever real until it's gone/ And I might be too far down," Mould sings. And he means it, you can tell. It would be nice if other songs had the same impact.

Hart's writing subject has changed from the sappy love songs of earlier records to bitter put-downs of a relationship that seems to have just ended. Gone also are the joyous word-games which made songs like "Terms of Psychic Warfare" almost reminiscent of Bob Dylan. Instead of lines like "Come on, babe, can't you think of anyone but me?" Hart comes up with dull platitudes like "Time heals, time goes on and time really flies/ Time hurts and time can cut you, cut you down to size."

LIKE MOULD'S SONGS, most of the riffs are hackneyed reminders of earlier, more original tunes. "Candy Somehow" is enjoyable because of its commerciality — it even has an organ and a catchy refrain. I hope this song gets Top 40 airplay; if it does, it will be one of the most unique and heartfelt songs heard on those airwaves for a long time.

The question of Hüsker Dü's potential commercial viability is difficult to answer. Some of the material on Candy Apple Grey stands a chance of wide acceptance, but people have pointed out that the Replacements, a band at its heart more commercial than the Hüskers, failed to receive mainstream attention. If the Replacements couldn't make it, how could Hüsker Dü?

It's hard to say why what "makes it big" does so. I would guess that not this album but the next will win wider approval. But I don't think that Hüsker Dü is producing commercial music intentionally. This is the way the band is going, like it or not.

I don't particularly like it. Candy Apple Grey has its moments, but overall it is lackluster. Oh well.

THE DAILY IOWAN ENTERTAINMENT SUPPLEMENT

FRIDAY MAY 2, 1986

In W.P. Kinsella's novel The Iowa Baseball Confederacy, Oakland Cemetery's Black Angel fills in at right field.

The Daily Iowan/Rodney White

W.P. Kinsella: Of baseball, Indians, the Black Angel

By Allen Hogg
Staff Writer

Award-winning novelist W.P. Kinsella has gained a reputation for writing about baseball and Indians, and, at this point in his career, it doesn't look like that's going to change.

"I don't know if I can write about anything other than baseball or Indians," the 50-year-old author of Shoeless Joe said. "You develop fans who are waiting for your next book and if it's not (what) they expect, they stay away in droves.

"I do write other stories," said the 1978 graduate of the UI Writers'

Workshop. "But I don't think I could get national exposure with something that wasn't about baseball."

The Canadian-born author, who still owns a home in Iowa City but now resides in White Rock, British Columbia, was in town last Friday on a promotional tour for his latest novel, The Iowa Baseball Confederacy.

HIS TENTH book, The Iowa Baseball Confederacy combines Kinsella's two main writing interests. It tells the story of Gideon Clarke, a native of Onamata, Iowa, who has inherited from his father knowledge of the complete history and statistics of a minor league baseball organization that operated in Johnson County at the beginning of the century. The only problem is that no one else believes the league existed.

"The idea was this fellow waking up with the complete history and statistics of a baseball league in his head. That was the point at which I started," Kinsella said. "What would he do? He would have to spend his life trying to prove this league existed."

"I just kept saying, 'What if? What would he do?'" he continued. "Well, he'd write a thesis as history, and the academics would suggest that it was fiction."

Eventually, Kinsella has Gideon slip back through a "crack in time" to see the all-stars of his league play an exhibition game against Frank Chance and the 1908 Chicago Cubs. From there, as Kinsella said, "Things just keep getting stranger and stranger."

THE GAME ends up going on for 40 days and 40 nights, with everyone from Teddy Roosevelt to Leonardo da Vinci stopping by to watch the action. Eventually, it is learned the game is really an epic battle between the gods and a giant

Students belly up to (the serving side of) the bar

By Louise White
Special to The Daily Iowan

Most UI students — unless they have been living in a hole during their college careers — are aware that Iowa City offers some pretty decent watering holes and night spots.

Many students not only drink in these establishments, however, but are also able to bring home some extra bucks serving beer and mixed drinks in them.

Several of these student bartenders and waitresses are kept very busy on Wednesday through Saturday nights at the Fieldhouse, 111 E. College. Owner Mark Eggleston said he keeps 20 bartenders on the payroll — understandable for a bar with a seating capacity of 500.

UI student Kim Funk has worked at the Fieldhouse for three and one-half years, and claims she has loved every minute of it.

She said the Fieldhouse offers a convenient downtown location, large dance floor, nightly specials and a sports-like atmosphere. In addition, she said it is a well-established hangout for UI students, having opened its doors in the summer of 1976.

"At the Fieldhouse the most popular drink at the moment seems to be a toss-up between the boysenberry kamakaze and the fuzzy navel. Beer, of course, being the cheapest, is the ultimate favorite with the college crowd," Funk said.

FUNK SAID the strangest drink she has served during her bartending career is, "without a doubt, a brain. Seeing the look of puzzlement on my face, my customer explained the process by which such an oddity is concocted. Simply mix together, slowly, Bailey's Irish Cream and strawberry schnapps."

Across the street from the Fieldhouse, at 118 E. College, is a fairly new establishment called Vito's, which was opened two years ago by Jim Mondanaro, can accommodate as many as 400 people.

Five bartenders and several cocktail waitresses are kept hopping on Thursday nights, when the bar offers two drinks for the price of one. Included are such "call" liquors as Crown Royal, Chivas Regal and Yukon Jack.

UI student Eric Johnson, who has been tending bar at Vito's for more than a year, said: "I work four nights a week, and if my studies could stand it I would work more. Nothing compares to bartending in a college town because, for one thing, everyone knows everyone else. You can't walk into any bar in Iowa City and feel anything but welcome. You get to know not only the people you work with, but also the employees in all the other bars."

Johnson said the strangest drink request he has had to produce was a concoction called a flaming purple Jesus, which consists of three-quarters of an ounce of Southern Comfort, Yukon Jack, Grand Marnier and 151 rum with just a drizzle of grenadine.

FOR THOSE whose taste runs toward smaller hangouts, a visit to Micky's, located at 11 S. Dubuque, may be preferable. The pub is also owned by Mondanaro, owner of Vito's.

UI student Steve Ward is happily employed at Micky's, a cozy neighborhood-type bar that seats about 80 people. "I feel honored to have been selected from among the numerous applicants to work at Micky's. The greatest thing about working here is the sincere affection all the employees have for each other. When stopping at Micky's on a night off, I find at least one other off-duty employee," he said.

"With three excellent imports on tap, the most popular of the three being Bass ale, there doesn't appear to be a favorite in the mixed drink department," said Ward.

Across the street is another smaller drinking establishment called the Sports Column, which celebrated its second anniversary in business on April 4. The bar, located at 12 S. Dubuque, keeps UI student Tom Pape busy working as full-time bartender/manager.

"WORKING AT the Sports Column is always an adventure, although something better money-wise might come along at a later date. No job could be more satisfactory fun-wise, though, or compare with the closeness and respect shared with my boss and the other employees," he said.

Pape and owner Don Stalkfleet attribute the success of the business to hard work, as well as the easy-going, laid-back, down-home attitude its employees have toward their customers.

"There's a good business here even during the summer and at other break periods," Pape said. "Those are the times when more of the regulars — as we call the Iowa City non-students — stop in to see us. They have nothing against the students, of course, it's just that at those times they don't have to push through the crowds to find a seat that is not occupied. We love it — all of it and all of them."

While The Shy starts fresh with new name, record

By Allen Hogg
Staff Writer

With the release of a new record, an Iowa City trio of musicians is hoping to soon make a name for itself on the music scene — a new name, that is.

Formerly known as the Shy, the group, consisting of guitarist and vocalist Doug Roberson, bass player Scott Stecklein and drummer Jim Merrick, is now called the Shy Strangers. It is under that moniker that the band has just released Indian Name, a six-song E.P. on Chicago's Pravda Records label.

The four-year-old band decided to drop its old name because other groups were recording under that title and the members saw potential copyright problems in the future. Besides, with the release of Indian Name, the time just seemed right.

"This is a fresh start with a 12-inch" record, Stecklein said.

Indian Name includes "Skeletal Emotions" and "Fall Rain," two songs originally released on a Hot Fudge Records single last year. In addition, there are four new tunes recorded at Catamount Studio in Cedar Falls early last fall.

THE HIGHLIGHT among the new cuts is the title track, about "a one-horse town with an Indian name" that bears a not-so-strange similarity to the band members' hometown of Maquoketa, Iowa. The song mixes folk-rock instrumentation with some hoarse, bluesy vocalizing by Roberson.

"It's all about our small, rural town upbringing. I think it has a good punch to it," the singer said.

The other new tracks fit in well with the band's style, featuring the sort of jangly pop sound that usually gets college radio programmers drooling.

The band members had hoped to release Indian Name earlier, but spent a lot of time shopping the tapes around before settling on Pravda, a company set up by members of the Chicago band the Service. They believe bigger independent labels were reluctant to sign them because they didn't have enough songs recorded for a full-length LP, but thought Pravda would do a good job promoting the record and arranging for distribution.

"They're making a pretty big promotional push for us on sort of an alternative market," Roberson said.

OF THE 2,000 records pressed, about 50 have been given to magazines for review, while 300 or so have been set aside for radio stations. "We're hoping to make quite a few playlists," Roberson said.

After determining where the record has been getting reviewed and played, the band will start booking dates. They hope to spend this summer playing on the East Coast.

"The more deals you get, the more breaks you get," commented Roberson. "It's been a lot easier since the record came out to get shows."

The Shy Strangers just played in Omaha, Kansas City and Manhattan, Kan., last week, and already gigs have been booked in Minneapolis in May and Chicago in June. Longer-range plans include getting a European release for the record.

In fact, if all goes well, the band may have to end up moving its base of operations to Chicago or some other large city. "We think maybe our time is up here in Iowa City," Roberson said, "but we're going to see what this record does for us before we make any big decisions."

Iowa City music fans can, however, hear the Shy Strangers this weekend at Gabe's Oasis. Friday the band will be heading up its second "Caves-tomp," a night of live music that will include record give-aways and performances by a Des Moines group, Slum Party, and two local bands, Sign of the Ju Ju Man and Four Million. Saturday night the trio will again be at Gabe's, opening for the Wallets, a popular Minneapolis act.

The Mill offers musicians 'place to play, hang out'

By Michael McCarty
Special to The Daily Iowan

A bearded man is singing and playing an old folk song on guitar and harmonica. It is 9 p.m. Monday at The Mill Restaurant; the musician is part of a four and one-half year tradition called Open Mike.

The gruff-looking man on stage is J. Knight, master of ceremonies and founder of the Open Mike program, a forum where local performers can practice their acts for 30-minute stretches.

Knight starts the evening playing a few songs to warm up the audience, then introduces the performers, helps them set up their equipment and runs the sound system.

Knight, in cooperation with Mill owner Keith Dempster, started Open Mike to give resident folk musicians a place to play and hang out.

According to Knight, who works as an elementary school guidance counselor by day, the performers who participate in Open Mike are a melting pot of amateurs and professionals.

"You get a real mixture of locals, professionals, former professionals — combinations of combinations of all kinds. It's really amazing how good they are," Knight said.

ALTHOUGH THE entertainers have fun on stage, Knight insists the restaurant has the atmosphere of a coffee house during the 1960s rather than that of a party house.

"It's not a drinking party. That's why we don't give them free drinks. It's a place to play, a place to improve — where amateurs can act like professionals, and professionals can act like amateurs," Knight said.

Although most of the performers are amateurs, Knight said Open Mike night provides some good entertainment. "There's a lot of good-quality half-hour shows. They might have trouble doing a whole evening, but they make do of their 30 minutes. It's also a place to develop," he said.

Dempster said he enjoys having the music in the restaurant. A supporter of folk music and a harmonica player, Dempster said he's glad the Open Mike program gives novice musicians an opportunity to play in public.

"It gives people a chance to play in front of people more than their immediate family," Dempster said. "The program offers them a chance to enjoy the business side of it. It's also for professionals to enhance their craft."

The audience is made up predominantly of music lovers and musicians. "Seventy-five percent of the audience plays the guitar, 20 percent of them are real good," Knight said. The audience members generally converse quietly, drink and even sing along with the performers, but they're very respectful to the musicians.

LAURA HUDSON has been playing 12-string guitar, piano and singing for the Open Mike since the program began. She plays original material, as well as songs by Gordon Lightfoot, Judy Collins, Joan Baez and Jim Croce.

"J. Knight is a good driving force. He helped me out with the music, suggestions, and was a good influence, very encouraging," Hudson said. Her work at the Open Mike program has paid off: her band Passenger has since been booked to play at The Mill.

Mary Talcott, a substitute teacher from Iowa City, has been playing her 12-string Martin guitar at Open Mike for about a year. She sings mostly folk songs, performing such artists as Peter, Paul and Mary and Dan Fogelberg.

Talcott said she returns to Open Mike week after week because, "I love the people, the kind of acoustic music and because I'm a ham."

Boys With Toys makes final Iowa City appearance

By Allen Hogg
Staff Writer

In a three-year career that will reach its Iowa City end Saturday night at Amelia's, Boys With Toys have released a full-length LP, toured with the Alarm and Charlie Sexton and played everywhere from Canada to San Antonio to CBGB's in New York City.

So what does Tommy Meyer think has been the highlight of it all?

The food.

"People ask us, 'How was it?' and the first thing we tell them is, 'The food was good,'" the trio's drummer said. "We really enjoyed getting around the country and eating some great food."

Great cafeteria meals could not, however, hold the band together, and at the end of May, the group that has stood as Iowa City's most successful rock outfit for the last couple years will disband, making this Saturday's gig its last ever in town.

"It's the old 'logical conclusion' cliché," said singer, guitarist and songwriter Brad Jones. "Boys With Toys has been going really well, but I think we've carried it about as far as it can go."

"Each of us is musically starting to think of other things," Jones continued. "We could metamorphose Boys With Toys into some other sort of thing, but it's almost better to let it rest — positively, I hope — in everyone's minds as what it was."

JONES DESCRIBED Boys With Toys as "the hard-working journeyman's rock 'n' roll band, playing in bars and at colleges every night." But while the band members agreed this life had its pleasures, it also took its toll.

"We've stayed in more hotels while this band's been going than most people would stay in in three or four lifetimes," bass player Pat McGraw said.

"You get better every night at playing rock 'n' roll live," Jones added. "But there's other parts of the musical world, and when you're on the road like that you can't really explore them."

So now the members of Boys With Toys will go their separate ways and embark on new musical directions. McGraw already is working on starting a new band this summer with Devin Hill of Letters From the Circus, while Meyer and Jones are planning to take some time off to travel.

"If you're into music too much, you almost need to give yourself a break from it. That's why I'm glad I'm doing this traveling this summer. I hope to come back at music with a fresher perspective," Jones said.

For Jones, at least, the musical future will probably involve a move away from Iowa City. "Iowa City's a beautiful, comfortable, great place to live, but I almost feel like I need to go somewhere where there's a more challenging environment and more variety in influences," he said.

"It's the old 'logical conclusion' cliché. Boys With Toys has been going really well, but I think we've carried it about as far as it can go," says Brad Jones, singer, guitarist and songwriter with the band now breaking up.

ALL THREE group members are, however, confident it will be easier to start a new band than it was to get Boys With Toys off the ground. "We've got enough friends now, so it wouldn't be too hard to find some support," McGraw said.

"We've been able to infiltrate the network," commented Meyer.

Boys With Toys' album Big House was, in fact, reviewed in many publications, and the band was able to make enough money touring that the members did not have to hold day jobs — a rarity for groups without record contracts playing original music.

"Most bands of our stature are really struggling. Boys With Toys has been very fortunate in that the type of original music we've been doing is pretty immediately accessible. It tended to go over with a lot of different types of crowds. We could do a bill in Chicago with a couple of hardcore-ish bands, then play with a teen idol like Charlie Sexton, and we could pretty much relate to both crowds," Jones said.

Shows on the East Coast this spring were particularly successful. "We found out the Midwest is stylish this year, so we went over great," the singer noted.

Boys With Toys' chances to make it big were, ironically, one of the things that caused the group to break up.

"The closer you get to the big time, the more you see exactly how the big time works," Jones said. "You realize you have to be sure that you're in the kind of band and situation in which you won't have to compromise yourself. You want to have enough leverage to be able to call the shots on your own."

HE DID NOT believe Boys With Toys, if signed to a major label, would have been in such a position.

The band members are, however, looking forward to their last month on the road together, during which they will travel to Chicago, Milwaukee and Nebraska. They are especially anxious about the Amelia's date, which will be opened by a Chicago band called Reaction.

"We're really excited because most people in Iowa City have never seen us live like that before," Meyer said.

In most of its Iowa City dates, the band has played at the Crow's Nest, where the high stage has made it difficult for the group to relate to the crowd.

"For us, it would have worked better all along if we had played at a smaller place," Jones said. "We gained the popularity we did by looking the crowd in the eye and making them think, 'Hey they're kind of like us.'"

THE BAND DOES NOT, however, harbor any bad feelings against the Crow's Nest. "It's too bad we can't finish it off at the Crow's Nest because that is sort of where we got our start; we've had all kinds of great times there. But this is just the way it worked out," Jones said.

Although the band is breaking up, the group members have been working on new material, so old fans who come to Amelia's are likely to hear some unfamiliar songs. The band members also hinted at the possibility of finishing off with an "all-star jam" session featuring some older Iowa City musicians who helped them when they were just starting out.

But the members of Boys With Toys aren't just thinking about Iowa City's musical past, they're also hoping for its future.

"I remember when the Ones (an Iowa City band of the early 1980s) broke up, I went to their last gig," Jones recalled. "They said to me, 'Now you've got to make the rock 'n' roll happen in Iowa City.' Hopefully, we've done that to some extent."

Things just keep getting stranger and stranger...

Indian named Drifting Away over the fate of the Native American's long-lost love.

Included in the book are numerous references to actual Iowa City locations and persons. At one point, Oakland Cemetery's Black Angel comes down and fills in at right field for the Confederacy all-stars.

"I thought the people who know Iowa City would get a kick out of having Max out there trying to move the buildings before they got washed away," Kinsella said.

Kinsella, however, leaves himself out his books. "Most of our lives are so dull that no one would be interested in them anyway, so there's no point in writing your life story and passing it off as fiction," he said.

BUT WHILE Kinsella does not share his characters' beliefs in "cracks in time," he does share their love for baseball. He never played the game, but he and his wife do own a team in a "fantasy league" in British Columbia.

He thinks the sport is ideally suited for fiction. "The other sports, like football and basketball and hockey, are twice enclosed, first by time and secondly by the rigid playing field," he said. "Baseball is not enclosed by time and the true baseball field is indeed a field with the foul lines diverging forever. Theoretically, there is no distance a great hitter couldn't hit the ball or a great fielder couldn't run to retrieve it.

"That makes for mythology and larger than life characters," he continued. "I think that is why baseball has produced such great fiction and the other sports virtually none at all."

Apparently there are many people who would put The Iowa Baseball Confederacy right up there in the ranks of great works of baseball fiction. Sports Illustrated recently published an excerpt from the book and Sport magazine is planning to do the same.

The novel, published by Houghton-Mifflin, has already appeared on Iowa City's best-seller lists, and reviews have appeared across the country. "All that I have seen have been really positive," Kinsella said.

HE DOES, however, get "a little appalled" when critics take his work too seriously. "I set out to entertain first," he said. "Everything I write is humor of some kind."

"But," he admitted, "if I can write a story with two or three layers of meaning and throw in things to give the 'lit-crit' people a cheap thrill, that's fine, too."

The author, who didn't begin college or serious fiction writing until he was 35, won many awards for Shoeless Joe, including the 1982 Books in Canada First Novel Award and a Canadian Authors Association $5,000 Prize for Fiction.

He is also working on a book he is planning to call Butterfly in Winter, an adaptation of a short story he wrote called "The Battery."

Another half-completed work is If Wishes Were Horses, in which an investigative reporter whose career is ruined after he falls for an untrue story.

At the Bijou

The Grapes of Wrath (1940). Henry Fonda, John Carradine and the inimitable Jane Darwell star in John Ford's classic rendering of John Steinbeck's novel about the victims of the Oklahoma dust bowl. Friday at 7 p.m.

Dim Sum (1985). Wayne (Chan is Missing) Wang gently explores the cultural gaps between two generations of Asian-Americans in San Francisco. Friday and Saturday at 9:30 p.m.

The Texas Chainsaw Massacre (1974). This is definitely not a manual for the proper handling of power tools. Friday at 11:15 p.m. and Saturday at 11 p.m.

The Ploughman's Lunch (1983). Tim Curry, Jonathan Pryce and Rosemary Harris star in this drama about the political awakening of a girl-chasing journalist. Saturday at 9 p.m. and Sunday at 7 p.m.

The Milky Way (1969). Luis Bunuel directs this surrealist, anti-religious drama. Sunday at 9 p.m. and Monday at 7 p.m.

Seraphita's Diary (1982). Documentary-style drama about the conflicts between the inner turmoil and outer beauty of a famous fashion model. Monday at 9 p.m.

The Talk of the Town (1942). Ronald Colman, Jean Arthur and Cary Grant form three corners of an off-beat triangle in a mixture of screwball comedy and social commentary. Tuesday at 7 p.m. and Wednesday at 8:30 p.m.

Killer's Kiss (1955). A fledgling Stanley Kubrick honed his eye for stylization in this flashy low-budget film noir. Tuesday at 9:15 p.m. and Wednesday at 7 p.m.

Cat on a Hot Tin Roof (1958). Everyone talks funny and has sexual problems, so this must be Tennessee Williams country. Sure enough, but it's worth the effort just to see Elizabeth Taylor at the top of her form. Thursday at 7 p.m.

Zabriskie Point (1970). No one quite got the point to Michelangelo Antonioni's artsy look at crumbling American values, but any film that makes the list of "The Fifty Worst Films of All Time" deserves investigation. Thursday at 9 p.m.
