President snubbed by three networks

NEW YORK (UPI)—President Ronald Reagan was hard pressed to reach a wide audience Tuesday for his last-ditch pitch on aid to the rebels in Nicaragua, with the ultimate rejection coming from the three big commercial TV networks.

ABC, CBS and NBC all passed up the chance to televise Reagan's 26-minute speech live just one day before a crucial vote in the House. Network officials said the political nature of the address was a decisive factor in not broadcasting the speech.

"We knew what he was going to talk about," said Carol Olwert, spokeswoman for ABC News. "We felt in order to do the broadcast fairly we should have a Democratic response."

She said the White House told ABC about 9:15 a.m. of Reagan's intention to speak at noon, but the White House did not officially request that the networks carry the president's speech.

"WE DID NOT have enough time to pull together an opposing point of view," Olwert said. "Normally, they (White House officials) tend to give us a bit more notice."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes, when asked about the networks' decisions, said, "It was not a blackout. It's a matter of their judgment."

The last-minute nature of the speech may have caused the networks to balk at airing it live. Reagan had hoped to speak before the House, but his bid was rejected Monday by House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., on grounds it would be an "unprecedented" attempt to lobby for legislation.

Only CNN, the 24-hour all-news cable operation, and SIN, a Spanish language network, televised the speech live.

The only new evidence of increased Soviet influence in Nicaragua in Reagan's address on behalf of his Contra aid package Tuesday was the claim that four Soviet ships had sailed directly to Nicaragua, presumably carrying military cargo.

The most recent voyage, according to a White House official, was a ship that sailed from the Soviet Black Sea port of Nikolayev, which is strictly a military port and therefore implies a military cargo.

WHITE HOUSE officials said they had no new information supporting several possibilities that Reagan mentioned: the introduction of a Soviet training brigade, the deepening of a Nicaraguan harbor so that a Soviet submarine could be accommodated, and the lengthening of an airfield to permit its use by Soviet transcontinental "Backfire" bombers.

ArtsFest provides activities from art, music and theater

By Teresa Heger

If it's entertainment, ArtsFest '86 includes it.

The annual Iowa City ArtsFest began in 1983 as an effort by local businesses to support area artists. Since this year's festivities began on June 21, the theme "A Midsummer Night's Dream" was chosen.

One of the highlights of this year's ArtsFest is the "Stars in Bars" series.

"We tried to get a real balance in what kinds of performers and acts we got for "Stars in Bars," said Tim Larson, one of the planners for the nightly shows.

THIS EVENING'S "Stars in Bars" program begins at 8 p.m. in Cheers, 211 Iowa Ave. Classical guitarist Tom Nothnagle, the jazz trio Crystal Silence, blues artist David Moore and the country music duo of Nathan Bell and Susan Shore will perform.

WR Gaff, a six-member comedy group, is slated for this evening's show, as well as a Friday evening appearance. "All of their skits are original," Larson said. "Their humor is kind of wry ... earthy."

Rip Russell, one of the members of the group, concurred with Larson, saying WR Gaff's humor ranges from poking fun at politics to doing send-ups of musicals. Upper West Side Story — a yuppie version of West Side Story — is one of the group's current works.

THE MILL, 120 E. Burlington, will host Thursday night's "Stars in Bars." A blend of classical and folk music highlights the program, including the chamber group Canzo Camerata, the folk duo of Guy Drollinger and Dave Hicks, and the Harvest Home bluegrass band. ArtsFest is also a good opportunity for actors to hit the streets and the Iowa City Community Theatre will be doing just that. The group will perform "I'm Herbert" in the Pedestrian Mall at 11 a.m. today.

Dee Thayer, a member of the company, explained the play: "It's really very funny," she said. "It's about two elderly people, each of whom has been married twice before." Confusion ensues when the pair begin to forget with which spouse they have done what.

Friday night ArtsFest '86 will close with a "Midsummer Night's Revel." Shows will be run continuously on two stages constructed in the Pedestrian Mall.

"There'll be non-stop action," Larson said. "There'll be (bratwurst), jugglers, mimes. We hope to get a Shakespearean flavor to the event."

Democrats blast 'negative' campaign

By Lewis Wayne Greene
University Editor

The state Democratic Party Chairman Tuesday called on Gov. Terry Branstad to disassociate himself from a negative advertising campaign aimed at gubernatorial candidate Lowell Junkins.

State Democratic Party Chairman Arthur Davis compared the "Iowans for Effective Government" campaign, led by Campus Review Editor Jeffrey Renander and Mid-American Conservative Political Action Committee (MACPAC) chairman Leroy Corey, to Lyndon LaRouche candidates who ran in the Democratic primary last month.

"I find this approach to politics abhorrent," Davis said. "I believe that MACPAC is to the Republican Party what Lyndon LaRouche is to the Democratic Party."

DAVIS CALLED on Branstad to refute Renander and Corey's efforts or take full responsibility for them. "That's what we did with LaRouche," he said.

Referring to a 1982 Des Moines Register story in which Branstad refused conservative political action committee money, calling the groups "turkeys," Davis said the governor is balking at a similar disassociation.

"Turkeys don't change their spots either," Davis said.

Renander, chairman of Iowans for Effective Government, described his organization as an independent group of conservative Iowans trying to make Junkins "be honest" about his economic recovery plan.

Junkins has proposed a major economic development plan heavily dependent on the sale of bonds and Iowa Lottery revenues.

RENANDER SAID the group plans to spend about $100,000 for advertising their views of Junkin's plan. "They call them negative, we call them truth-telling," he said.

"There is nothing behind Junkin's bonding proposal, nothing at all, except Junkin's moral commitment," he said.

Renander and Corey were involved in a similar campaign against Iowa Democratic Sen. Tom Harkin in 1984, which turned into a bitter personality battle.

But Renander said he didn't think this campaign against Junkins would degenerate to that level.

"We think he's a great guy, but his so-called economic recovery plan is an economic disaster plan," he said.

Branstad's campaign manager Susan Neely said she encourages anyone who wants to point out flaws in Junkin's economic recovery plan to do so, but made it clear that Iowans for Effective Government is not related to the governor's re-election campaign.

"WE'RE NOT ASSOCIATED with them in any way," Neely said.

But Davis said he thinks Neely isn't doing enough to emphasize the differences between Corey's campaign and Branstad's campaign.

"Obviously Messrs. Cory and Renander can do anything they want to do. My basic question is what is the governor going to do," Davis said.

U.S. tax bill passed by 97-3 vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate approved a historic tax reform bill Tuesday, virtually guaranteeing Congress will complete the most sweeping rewrite of the nation's tax code since World War II.

Passage of the bill by the Republican-led chamber came on an overwhelming 97-3 vote. The legislation now goes to a conference with the Democratic-dominated House, which last year approved its own version of tax reform.

Both measures, hailed as the most drastic changes in the nation's tax laws since the 1940s, would curtail popular tax deductions and loopholes in return for the lowest tax rates in about a half century. They would also raise business taxes to help pay for lower individual rates and take about 6 million poor people off the tax rolls.

THE SENATE BILL would exchange the current 14 individual tax brackets in return for a two-rate scheme of 15 percent and 27 percent. The House measure, however, has a four-rate structure of 15 percent, 25 percent, 35 percent and 38 percent, along with a number of other differences.

When the Senate and House try to reach a compromise on the bill, fights can be expected not only over the tax rates, but also over the sensitive deductions — such as those for individual retirement accounts — that would mostly be gutted by the Senate measure. They would be kept intact by the House.

President Ronald Reagan, who has made an overhaul of the tax code his top domestic priority, was exuberant after the vote and said he hoped a bill could become law "by Labor Day."

HOUSE WAYS and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., who molded the House bill, added, "I don't see anything stopping tax reform from being on the president's desk this year."

The Senate plan, pieced together by Finance Committee Chairman Bob Packwood, R-Ore., revived the tax reform issue, which has suffered setbacks time and again in the past year and appeared moribund less than two months ago.

Closing debate, Packwood called the bill "a great victory for America."

"All I can say is thanks to every one of you because this country is in your debt," he told his colleagues just minutes before they passed the bill.

Senate Republican Leader Robert Dole, R-Kans., a key force behind the measure, hailed it as a "near miracle ...

Bob Packwood

(considering) this bill was dead as a dodo bird six or seven weeks ago."

THE THREE SENATORS who voted against the bill were all Democrats: Sens. Carl Levin of Michigan, John Melcher of Montana and Paul Simon of Illinois. All said they felt the bill was unfair, especially to the middle class.

The ability of sponsors to guide their measure through the Senate floor seemed to almost guarantee that the conference committee would, perhaps by September, emerge with a compromise proposal to reform the nation's tax laws.

However, there remain several key problem areas, including the arguments that the Senate bill does not do enough for the middle class, while the House measure is too tough on business.

PACKWOOD SAID Tuesday he expected a conference with the House to join the best parts of both bills. However, he has stressed in the past that he plans to hold firm to the rate level included in the Senate bill.

The Senate bill has been hailed as being very good for the poor and the wealthy, but some critics have charged it would do little for the middle class and could cause large-scale tax hikes for middle-income Americans.

Although it is designed to be "revenue-neutral" — not raising nor lowering government revenues over the next five years — the bill would hike business taxes by about $100 billion in that period and use that money for individual rate reductions. It would, however, cut the top corporate tax rate from 46 percent to 33 percent.

It would virtually tear apart often-abused tax shelters and enact a strong minimum tax to make sure the wealthy and corporations could not avoid taxes. But it also would gut some popular middle class deductions, such as those for IRA contributions.

Larger Iowans must obey seatbelt law

DES MOINES — Hefty Iowans who say they can't buckle-up because their belts are too snug will not be exempt from the state's new mandatory seat belt law effective July 1, state transportation officials said Tuesday.

Gus Horn, a spokesman for the Iowa Department of Transportation, said he has received dozens of telephone calls from Iowans who are concerned they will not be able to abide by the new law because of their size.

"I've told them they can buy seat belt extenders which are available at all auto dealers and parts departments," he said.

Britain gets $10 million for SDI study

WASHINGTON — The Defense Department awarded Britain a $10 million contract for studies relating to a Star Wars anti-missile defense of Western Europe, the U.S. and British governments announced Tuesday.

The contract to the British Defense Ministry is the biggest given to Britain under the program since London agreed in December to participate in the Strategic Defense Initiative.

Subcommittee votes to impeach judge

WASHINGTON — In the first such action since the Watergate scandal, a House panel voted four articles of impeachment Tuesday against federal Judge Harry Claiborne, who has refused to quit the bench despite his imprisonment on tax evasion charges.

A House Judiciary subcommittee approved the four articles of impeachment on voice votes. In a final 15-0 vote, it sent the impeachment resolution against the Nevada judge to the full committee, which may consider it as early as Thursday.

Syria may attack Golan, says Jane's

LONDON — Syria may use the political upheaval of a change in power in Israel this fall to time a military attack aimed at regaining the Golan Heights region it lost 19 years ago, Jane's Defense Weekly Magazine reported Tuesday.

Under the scheme, the Soviet Union would push for a cease-fire through the United Nations as soon as Syrian forces had attained their objectives — a move that might leave Israel "little choice" but to accept, the magazine said.

British official meets with ANC leader

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Two bombs exploded Tuesday within a 25-minute period in central Johannesburg, destroying a snack bar packed with office workers and shattering windows in a hotel shop. Hospital sources said 22 people were injured.

In London, Minister of State Lynda Chalker opened talks Tuesday with ANC leader Oliver Tambo in Britain's first high-level contact with the group leading an armed struggle against the government of South Africa, where a two-year wave of racial unrest has left some 1,700 people dead.

WJC: Waldheim initiated secret report

WASHINGTON — Austrian President-elect Kurt Waldheim initiated a secret German proposal in 1943 to topple the government of Greece and replace it with direct military rule, the World Jewish Congress charged Tuesday.

The document, a report by the German secret field police dated Nov. 10, 1943, was sent to the Nazi SS and the intelligence section of the high command of Army Group E, the unit in which Waldheim has acknowledged serving.

Police may have shot robber's victim

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Authorities said Tuesday it was "very possible" the third hostage killed in an attempted robbery of a chic jewelry shop on exclusive Rodeo Drive may have been slain by a police sniper as the gunman tried to flee the scene with three hostages under a blanket.

Authorities also disclosed that the gunman, Steven Livaditis, 22, of Los Angeles, was taken into custody and transferred to the jail ward of Los Angeles County-USC Medical Center, where he was listed in satisfactory condition with burns to his face and hands.

Supervisors to name roads

By Carol Monaghan
Staff Writer

Naming of the secondary roads in the county is under way by the Johnson County Board of Supervisors in order to quicken emergency response in rural areas.

Under the current system, the sheriff, ambulance and fire departments must rely on directions from citizens, often to unnamed roads, in order to respond to an emergency call. The proposed naming system would combine historic names of roads and a numerical address for each dwelling.

"In coming up with street names the county tried to accommodate local historical names," said Douglas Edmonds, Johnson County Sheriff's chief deputy. "Those without have fallen into a street-avenue grid system."

County Attorney J. Patrick White is drawing up the necessary legal plans to implement the road system, board chairman Dick Myers said during Tuesday's informal meeting.

"I'd like to have it functioning by Sept. 1," Myers said.

A proposal by the Iowa Legislature to install a 911 emergency response across Iowa was the catalyst for naming the rural roads, county officials said. If state legislation is passed and a 911 system is installed in the county in the future, the rural address system would be necessary for the computer's data base.

The enhanced version of 911 would immediately route the calls to appropriate answering services, Edmonds said.

"Even if a person wouldn't be able to talk, their address would be displayed on computer's screen," Edmonds said.

WITHOUT THE computer system, such a call would take 20-40 minutes to trace, said Ken Hartman, who coordinates the 911 system for the state.

"That's a big waste of valuable time," he said. Implementing the emergency system would be costly if the system were made mandatory, as proposed by previous legislative attempts, he said.

The Iowa Telephone Association opposes the expense of the system, especially if made mandatory, and has effectively buried legislation for the first five years of its existence, Hartman said.

In such a case, public support would have to be generated to implement the 911 system in local communities. But Hartman said he has encountered large public support for the emergency system in communities across the state.

"The program . . . will touch every life of every resident in the state of Iowa," Hartman said.

Funding of the program may involve a surcharge to phone customers amounting in about 55 cents to 60 cents a month. Under such a plan, the phone companies would give the money to the state. The state would pay the phone company 5 percent for the cost of operation and the remaining 95 percent would be dispersed to Iowa counties for the cost of operating the emergency system.

WHETHER THE 911 emergency system is implemented in the state or not, the naming of the county roads "will still facilitate response to emergency situations" in the county, Edmonds said.

Linn County implemented a similar naming system a year and a half ago for their county roads and have installed sign posts at each crossroads.

"The system has really helped a lot" in terms of response time saved in emergency situations, said Sherri Brown, a dispatcher with the Linn County Sheriff's Department.

Residents ask supervisors to limit local development

By Carol Monaghan
Staff Writer

A dozen residents of the Rapid Creek Road residential area urged the Johnson County Board of Supervisors to consider stricter guidelines for development in that area during the board's informal meeting Tuesday.

Residents said overdevelopment of the area, located north of Iowa City, would cause problems with existing septic systems and water wells. It would further increase traffic on an already dangerous road, endangering the lives of area residents.

The complaints were in response to a zoning request that would allow for more homes to be built in the area and was seen by board member Betty Ockenfels as "the hottest, most controversial zoning area in the county."

"WE URGE THE BOARD to act on this," Mark Rhodes, a resident on Rapid Creek Road, said. "We are against large-scale developments coming into the area where the rest of us would have to suffer for it." Many residents complained that current zoning by the supervisors has been haphazard.

"It's just helter-skelter out there," said Richard Borchard. "It just doesn't make sense. We go out there and build on nice lots and then you have some one-acre lots."

Current zoning requirements suggest that homes be built at a density level of one home to every 15 acres. But spot zoning occurs, allowing three houses to be built on three one-acre lots. Builders are allowed to construct houses on adjacent lots as long as the remaining acres are left open.

RHODES SAID the county's zoning commission has voted against similar zoning developments in the past, but the board ignored recommendations.

"I'd think it would be wiser for you than to accuse the board of some kind of shenanigans," said board chairman Dick Myers. "We are not parrots or robots."

"We're just trying to determine the best policy out there," Myers said.

But Borchard said rights of the property owner ends when area residents are affected.

"It's kind of like smoking," he said. "When the smoke drifts on to you and endangers your health, a smoker's rights end."

John Oaks, who owns farmland west of Rapid Creek Road, has requested zoning for development of 13 to 16 homes on more than 35 acres.

RESIDENTS SAY such a development would increase traffic on a road that will soon be converted to gravel and is already a hazard because of its curves and poor visibility. The development would also inhibit future improvement of the roads, they said.

Oaks denied that his proposed development would cause problems for residents in the area and said he is prepared to donate land in order to make needed road repairs.

The road is not the only concern of residents, said Celeste Holloway, who had to dig a new well because of the nearby construction.

Activists invade Evans' office, order vote against Contra aid

By Lewis Wayne Greene
University Editor

A small group of activists confronted the staff of 3rd District Democratic Rep. Cooper Evans on the issue of Contra aid Tuesday.

Six members of the Central American Solidarity Committee and the Caucus on Central America gathered in Evans' Iowa City office to demand Evans vote against President Ronald Reagan's $100 million Contra aid package.

Three key votes on the issue will come before the U.S. House of Representatives today.

UI Associate Professor Sheldon Pollock read a statement to an Evans aide by phone.

"We ask that he vote according to the will of his constituents, as he has done in the past," Pollock's statement said. "The fact that Rep. Evans is not seeking re-election does not release him from this fundamental responsibility."

MEMBERS OF THE group said they are afraid Evans' desire to receive an appointment from Reagan in the U.S. Department of Agriculture may change his vote on the issue. Evans has voted against Contra aid packages in the past.

"If he's trying to advance his own career, this is a pretty nasty way to do it — on the coffins of the people of Nicaragua," Pollock said.

Patrick McNamara, a member of the Central American Solidarity Committee, said there is evidence Evans may change his vote.

"We can see how Cooper Evans has a different constituency," he said.

Pollock agreed. "His agenda is very different now than when he had to stand for re-election every two years," Pollock said.

The confrontation was part of a nationwide grass-roots effort to sway votes on the aid package.

Members of the group said they expect a majority of Iowa's congressional delegation to vote against the aid package.

After speaking with Evans' aide, Pollock said there was still no indication how the congressman might vote on the issue.

"As of today Rep. Evans has not disclosed how he is going to vote," Pollock said.

Gays: Many suffer 'phobia'

By Lewis Wayne Greene
University Editor

"For him not telling me he was gay from the start is enough for me to just pound the shit out of him," the letter says. "My name and reputation could be ruined for all I know, because of his fucking state of mind."

The letter, sent to the UI Gay People's Union and released this week by a GPU official, purports to be from a man who has just discovered his roommate is gay.

The violent anger it expresses is an example of the sort of homophobia that Iowa City suffers from, a leader of the gay community said.

BUT LOCAL law officers say they haven't observed homophobia-turned-violent locally. GPU adviser Joel Gray said while Iowa City is fairly progressive, it still has a long way to go.

"I still think there's a lot of homophobia here," he said.

As an outspoken leader of the Iowa City gay community, Gray has received dozens of threatening phone calls.

The types of homophobia encountered range from snide remarks to actual physical violence, Gray said.

But Iowa City Police Chief Harvey Miller said he sees no pattern of violence directed against gays in Iowa City.

"I know there are homosexuals that are beaten up," he said. "I don't mean to be uncharitable, but in Iowa City everybody has a cause."

Acting Director of UI Campus Security William Fuhrmeister agreed. "We have not received that many complaints," he said.

But Gray said physical violence against homosexuals is often unreported because gays don't trust the straight community to give them a fair hearing.

Violence against gays calls into question the UI human rights policy, he said. While the UI officially condemns discrimination based on "affective preference," in practice, homosexuals can count on little protection from the UI, he said.

Demand to know

It is time again. Time for the Democrats to blast the Republicans and the Republicans to blast the Democrats. If the Democrats say it is black, the Republicans say it is white. If the Republicans say it is day, the Democrats say it is night.

With the gubernatorial election in Iowa this November, look for incumbent Gov. Terry Branstad and challenger Lowell Junkins to attack each other until election day.

The gubernatorial election should be considered one of the most important elections in Iowa's history, simply because of the issues in the race. The economy is on the rocks, farmers go bankrupt on a regular basis, industrial plants and packing houses continue to close, education in the state is being cut to the bone and unemployment remains high.

The voting public needs to press the candidates on what they intend to do to get Iowa back on track. The public cannot allow them to sidestep the issues of this campaign. Far too much is at stake in November for Iowans to make their choice for governor on the basis of which candidate did a better job of criticizing the other.

Maybe neither candidate can solve Iowa's problems, but before the votes are cast, the public deserves to know, and should demand to know, how the candidates propose to govern the state.

It is only a matter of time before Branstad and Junkins come rolling through Iowa City asking for votes. Demand answers, not campaign rhetoric from the candidates. The issues are vital to Iowa's future and should not be overlooked in this campaign... Demand to know.

Snuff stuff

A federal jury Friday refused to find the U.S. Tobacco Co. liable for the death of an Oklahoma teenager who developed oral cancer after dipping snuff for six years.

Betty Marsee had sought $147 million from U.S. Tobacco — makers of Skoal and Copenhagen — for the death of her 19-year-old son, Sean.

Marsee didn't win the case. What she did win was the support of hundreds of health professionals, consumer rights activists and the attention of the mass media; that may ultimately harm the tobacco industry more.

Marsee filed the lawsuit against U.S. Tobacco because the company manufactured the smokeless tobacco her son used without placing warnings of the product's potential danger on its package. She contended throughout the five-week trial that the company was thus responsible for her son's death.

She upholds her belief that U.S. Tobacco and other smokeless tobacco manufacturers have a responsibility to warn consumers about the possible health hazards of using snuff.

Marsee is right: To know of a product's potential danger and leave it unreported is wrong.

"The kids will think that this is another safe product... there will be another nine or 10 or 25 Seans," Marsee cried after the jury announced its verdict.

But thanks to Marsee and others who are drawing attention to the link between snuff and cancer, consumers have been warned. And, even though the jury failed to hold U.S. Tobacco accountable, consumers should not let the case go unnoticed.

Betty Marsee may have lost the battle, but with the support of consumers, consumer rights groups and the families of other cancer victims, she won't lose the war.

Crop rotation

With a degree of regularity that makes even the change in seasons seem inconsistent, a plan to aid Nicaraguan rebels has sprouted once again in the U.S. Congress. Today, for the second time in three months, the House of Representatives will vote on the Reagan administration's proposal to send $100 million in aid to the Contras battling the government of Nicaragua.

While the administration so far has been denied the bountiful harvest it seeks, — namely, the overthrow of the Sandinistas in Nicaragua — the seeds President Ronald Reagan has planted and nurtured are now showing the first signs of bearing fruit.

In the administration's effort to win approval for the package, Reagan has proven himself to be a master cultivator. He has referred to Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega as "the little dictator" and warned Americans of a "sea of red eventually lapping at our borders."

Along with Secretary of State George Shultz, who has denounced Nicaragua as the "cancer" of the Western Hemisphere, Reagan has pledged to weed out the Sandinista "malignancy."

Now, after years of such rhetoric — fertilizer, as it were — the administration's ideology seems to have taken root. Newspaper articles routinely identify the government of Nicaragua as "the Marxist-Leninist regime" and this little Central American nation is now better known to many Americans as "the communist threat."

When the House casts its votes today, let's hope it can plow under this excess fertilizer spread by the Reagan administration and, in its place, plant the seeds of truth.

Helmet law needed in Iowa

By Julie Eisele

It seems the Iowa Legislature was on a mission to save lives during the past session. Next week, Iowans will become subject to several laws that will, in effect, protect them from themselves.

One of them includes the safety belt law. Beginning July 1, motorists and their front seat passengers who don't buckle up will be fined $10. Some persons will be exempted, such as mailmen and other workers who leave their vehicles frequently. The law also spares drivers of cars built before 1966 because many older models do not contain seatbelts.

Lawmakers said the measure will save the lives of 150

From the Metro Desk

Iowans each year. Seatbelts save more lives than they take, to be certain, but there are cases where safety belts can be a hindrance to the safety of a driver or passenger.

What about a passenger trapped in a burning vehicle? Or the strapped-in driver whose car is struck from the operator's side? I have been in that situation, and doctors said my legs would have been crushed and mangled, had I worn my seatbelt.

BUT IF IT SAVES lives — and ultimately it will — it's worth the hassle of buckling up. However, the law makes little sense when one considers that motorcyclists are not required to wear helmets.

An Iowa law requiring safety helmets was repealed in 1976 only 10 months after it was passed. During its enactment, only eight persons died of head injuries sustained in motorcycle accidents. In the 10-month period before the law was enacted, 22 died of head injuries, and 19 persons died of similar injuries in the 10 months after the law was repealed.

Lawmakers admit the move contradicts their aim in passing the seatbelt legislation and say the efforts of helmet proponents have been muffled by a dynamic motorcycle lobby.

"When there's even a whisper of helmet legislation, they are very vocal," said Gus Horn, program planner for the Iowa Department of Transportation.

The law was repealed after hundreds of motorcyclists rode their bikes to the state capitol and made themselves be heard. Maybe the doctors and nurses who tend to the caved-in heads of accident victims should drive ambulances to Des Moines and push for another helmet law.

STATISTICS COMPILED by IDOT indicate that 89 percent of all motorcycle fatalities during 1985 involved riders or passengers not wearing helmets.

In 1985, 57 Iowans died while riding or driving motorcycles and 21 motorcyclists have died so far this year. In each case, fewer than one-fourth of the victims wore helmets.

Motorists were responsible for a majority of the fatal accidents last year, but helmet usage could definitely alleviate the number of deaths.

Our legislators need to take a hard look at transportation safety in their mission to protect Iowans. Pavement can look pretty formidable from a headlong dive.

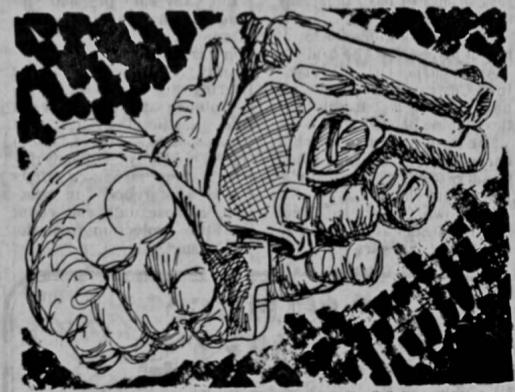

Limits on guns will save lives

A STUDY published this month in the New England Journal of Medicine confirms that guns kept in homes are far more likely to kill the people who live there than intruders. Of gun deaths in the home, 97 percent were suicides, homicides and accidents — with most fatalities involving family members. Two percent of the deaths did involve self-defense, of which one half of one percent were intruders shot during attempted entry.

The study is sure to spark further debate on the recently passed McClure-Volkmer Gun Decontrol Bill which weakened the Gun Control Act of 1968, which was passed after the assassination of Robert Kennedy and Martin Luther King.

Gun control focuses on restricting handguns, especially the cheap, snub-nosed Saturday Night Specials used in 51 percent of all crimes involving firearms. More than 10,000 Americans will be murdered with such pistols this year. Shotguns and rifles, which are most often used for legal purposes like hunting, are not meant to be unduly restricted.

THE WEAKENING of the nation's gun laws was a slap in the face to thousands of police officers who went to Washington to support reasonable control measures. Most Americans — 91 percent in the most recent Gallop poll — support

The Daily Iowan/Jeffrey Sedam

Digressions

some gun control.

The main opponents of gun control are the 3 million members of the National Rifle Association, which includes President Ronald Reagan and Vice President George Bush. The NRA was chartered in 1871 by Yankee Civil War veterans who were embarrassed that southern rebels had been much better shots. Throughout most of its existence the NRA has promoted marksmanship and provided excellent gun safety programs. The NRA also endorsed the Gun Control Act in 1968.

Unfortunately, control of the NRA has become increasingly concentrated into the hands of a group that opposes all gun control. Only a small fraction of the group's largest contributors are allowed to vote in NRA affairs.

AS CONTRIBUTIONS from arms manufacturers have grown the association has taken increasingly radical stands defending sales of machine guns, silencers, snub-nosed pistols and teflon coated "cop-killer" bullets designed to penetrate protective vests worn by police.

In support of its views, the NRA frequently cites the Second Amendment which states, "A well-regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed."

The Supreme Court has ruled five times, and the American Bar Association agrees, that the amendment applies to National Guard troops. But many historians disagree, saying the founding fathers were suspicious of regular armies and wanted the citizens themselves to comprise this country's militia.

Gun control has worked well in other countries. The number of murders involving guns in all of England, a country with strong gun control, equals the number in just one major American city.

Stronger controls on snub-nosed pistols would not interfere with Americans' use of rifles and shotguns for hunting or to defend themselves. Let's face it, when was the last time a hunter in Iowa used a snub-nosed pistol with armor piercing bullets to hunt pheasants? Hopefully, sometime in the future it will be possible to totally eliminate all manufactured weapons. Meanwhile, in our less than perfect society, excessive gun control will only disarm law abiding citizens while criminals will find access to guns.

The American people should have the right to keep and bear arms such as rifles and shotguns. But cheap, snub-nosed pistols used by criminals should be banned.

Ill-fated romance examined in film by director Ophuls

By George Yatchisin
Staff Writer

ALTHOUGH a brilliant film director, Max Ophuls can be accused of horrible timing.

First, he had the misfortune of being a European Jew during World War II; he immigrated to the United States but couldn't get a film project for seven years. Second, he returned to France for the final years of his life, 1950-57, only to direct during the worst years of the French cinema — the years of the Tradition of Quality, the stodgy, window-dressing cinema that Truffaut, Godard and their fellow New Wave friends would attack and overcome.

IT'S SOMEHOW FITTING Ophuls was always a cog out of place, as his films are preoccupied with the tension between the ideal and the real, the romantic and the common.

Such a film is The Earrings of Madame de ..., nominally the story of an ill-fated love affair. As directed by Ophuls, and acted by the fine trio of Danielle Darrieux, Charles Boyer and Vittorio de Sica, the film becomes a treatise on the inability to reconcile eternal love with our temporal bodies. Ophuls, perhaps more than any other director, was obsessed with the moving camera. Many scenes in his films are shot in one long, fluid take. The lyricism of his camera movements — sweeping up steps, peering through windows — perfectly expresses the unstoppable flow of time and the beauty that time offers us.

The Earrings of Madame de

Directed by Max Ophuls. Produced by Franco-London Films, Industfilms, Rizzoli. Written by Marcel Archand. From the novel by Louise de Vilmorin. In French with English subtitles.

In Madame de ... this flow is paralleled by the passing of a pair of earrings, which ultimately wind full circle to incriminate Madame de ... — her husband is sure of her affair with the Baron.

THE PASSING OF THE EARRINGS parallels the engulfing love of Madame de ... and the Baron. Ophuls chronicles their falling into love with a montage of waltzes; it seems the center of the film is nothing but a long dance. Dialogue permits us to learn the meetings accelerate — from four days apart to two days, to a day — yet the cinema only allows for the moments of love, the dance.

These are the moments closest to fulfillment for the pair. From this point on they struggle to express their passions, to overcome both the rigid social rules of Ophuls' favorite film setting, fin-de-siecle Vienna and the huge gap between emotion and language. In one scene Madame de ... tries to write of her love but tears up the letter, sure of its inadequacy. She throws the pieces out her train window, and through editing they become flakes of snow. It's a move of touching pathetic fallacy, for her words are as fragile and beautiful as the snow.

Danielle Darrieux pulls off the complex role of Madame de ... by expressing the pain between the aristocratic woman at the surface and the passionate woman beneath. Charles Boyer, as her husband the General, is suitably heavier and more substantial than in his 1940s period as a dashing and continentally romantic lead. Vittorio de Sica, the famed Italian director, elicits both sympathy and dislike as the Baron, caught in love and a battle between diplomats and the military. In the world of this film, all conflict and resolution relates directly to love.

'Karate Kid Part II' leads at box office

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The Karate Kid Part II and Legal Eagles, a pair of new releases, provided the one-two punch at the nation's box offices last week.

The Karate Kid II, capitalizing on the runaway hit of the first martial arts film starring Pat Morita and Ralph Macchio, opened to a booming first week bonanza of $12.6 million, the largest non-holiday debut of the year.

Karate Kid II opened in 1,323 theaters for an impressive $9,536 average per house. The original film, which made its debut two years ago, grossed only $4.8 million in its opening week.

Robert Redford, along with Debra Winger, powered Legal Eagles to second place in the weekly rankings with a gross of $8 million in its opening frame.

Rodney Dangerfield's Back to School, which was No. 1 the previous week, slid to third spot last week. It grossed $7.8 million for a two-week total of $22.6 million in 1,610 theaters for a per-screen average of $4,852.

Although dropping to No. 4 in the rankings, Top Gun remained the biggest hit of the summer thus far with a six-week gross of $63.7 million. Last week the action-adventure thriller starring Tom Cruise as a Navy fighter pilot collected $5.8 million for a marginal drop of only 7 percent from the previous week.

Malone wants revenge on 76ers

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI)—Moses Malone said Tuesday he wants to "go back and get revenge" on the Philadelphia 76ers and owner Harold Katz, who last week dealt the three-time NBA Most Valuable Player to Washington.

A smiling Malone, introduced to the Washington media in a ceremony at the Capital Centre, said he relishes the opportunity to show up Katz.

"It's a deal I'm glad was made because dealing with Harold is a real problem," said Malone of last Tuesday's trade that sent him to the Bullets. "I'm just looking forward to shutting his mouth," Malone said of Katz.

In a deal worked out directly between Katz and Bullets owner Abe Pollin, Malone, first-year power forward Terry Cadege and two first round draft picks were shipped to Washington in exchange for center Jeff Ruland and forward Cliff Robinson.

"Like I told Harold, I'm going to be ready. I'm looking forward to playing against Philly and I just hope the players checking me will be ready, too," Malone, 31, said. "I want to go back and get revenge."

"When I played for him (Harold) I was great. I don't know why he don't want to admit it, but he's got a little psycho problem," said Malone, who spearheaded the 76ers' 1983 World Championship team his first season after being acquired from the Houston Rockets.

"I figured they'd trade me to a team in the same division on the Coast because he's very cocky. He's very cocky. He's got a point to prove," continued Malone of Katz.

NFL's Davis testifies for USFL

NEW YORK (UPI)—Al Davis, controversial owner of the Los Angeles Raiders, testified Tuesday as a witness for the USFL in its $1.5 billion antitrust suit against the NFL, and said his league tried to destroy the USFL's Oakland, Calif., franchise.

Davis testified for about two hours in U.S. District Court in Manhattan. Although the USFL completed its questioning, Davis said he was willing to come back to testify for the NFL, which is expected to begin presenting its case Wednesday after the USFL calls its last witness, former ABC Sports commentator Howard Cosell.

Davis, general managing partner of the Raiders, won his own antitrust case against the NFL in 1983 after the league sought to block Davis from moving his team from Oakland to Los Angeles.

The NFL was "in illegal collaboration with the City of Oakland and the Oakland Coliseum from the very beginning in 1980 when the Raiders announced their intention to move) to destroy the Raiders," Davis said he told the NFL's attorneys when they took his deposition seven months ago in preparation for the USFL trial.

World Cup narrowed to 4 teams

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—Argentina and France will have revenge in their hearts Wednesday when they attempt to reach the World Cup final.

Belgium will challenge Argentina in the 115,000-seat Azteca Stadium, scene of Sunday's championship. West Germany will face France at Guadalajara.

When the month-long finals opened May 31, Argentina was ranked second behind Brazil by London bookmakers to win its second title. Brazil fell to France in the quarterfinals, leaving only Argentina to try to preserve Latin America's perfect record in World Cup competition held in the Western Hemisphere.

Sports

Ryun attitude may have saved runner

INDIANAPOLIS—It is only a bridge, the New York Street bridge, to be exact.

This bridge though is different. Three weeks ago on June 4 North Carolina State runner Kathy Ormsby jumped off in attempt to take her life after leaving the track during the women's 10,000-meter final at the NCAA Track and Field Championships.

When I walked closer and closer to the bridge my heart started pumping rapidly. I was definitely shaken.

I stood there and looked down at the tracks the ambulance had left in the grass. I then looked back up at the University of Indiana-Purdue at Indianapolis track facility, which was a quarter of a mile away.

I THOUGHT TO myself that if she never would have left that track and headed in this direction she wouldn't be permanently paralyzed from the waist down.

What was in her mind when she left the race with 3,500-meters to go? Why didn't she just drop out of the race and try again some other time, because there is always another race, right?

Apparently, at the time, she didn't think so. The pressure to succeed put on her by herself, and possibly her coach, was too great.

Former Olympic Silver medalist Jim Ryun understands what Ormsby was going through at the time.

Ryun was the first high school runner to break the four minute mile. He held the world record in the mile, the half mile and the 1,500-meters between 1966 and 1975.

One day Ryun showed he definitely had enough.

AT THE NATIONAL AAU Track and Field Finals in

Brad Zimaneck

Miami in 1969 Ryun was in the middle of a mile race with Marty Liquori, who two weeks prior had defeated him at the NCAA Championships for Ryun's first loss in the mile in four years. After 660 yards he left the track.

He not only quit that race, but running, for an entire year.

He was criticized extensively by the press and labeled as a "quitter" for quite some time. But the decision in the end has proven to be a quite important one for Ryun.

Ryun eventually went back to competitive running and even qualified for the Olympics in 1972. Now he is nearing 40 and actually enjoys the sport again, even though some of his competitive times now are still only dreams for most people.

I wish Ormsby, the 10,000 collegiate record holder before that day, would have taken a similar course of action and just quit.

If she did, Ormsby still would have the chance to prove what she could accomplish in the sport.

An athlete's career is not judged on one performance and Ormsby now, sadly enough, will have to live with the fact that June 4 was her last.

Ryun, incidentally, will be in Davenport, Iowa, July 26, to compete in the Bix 7 race. Also don't forget that registration for the Fifth Season 8K is due by June 27. The July 4 race is scheduled to begin at 8 a.m. in Cedar Rapids.

Brad Zimaneck is DI assistant sports editor. His running column appears every other Wednesday.

Official report says cocaine killed Bias

BALTIMORE (UPI)—University of Maryland basketball star Len Bias died of "cocaine intoxication" that interrupted his heartbeat and caused cardiac arrest, the state medical examiner said Tuesday.

Bias, an all-American forward and the second pick overall in last week's NBA draft by the Boston Celtics, collapsed Thursday in his dormitory room at the College Park campus and was pronounced dead two hours later.

Bias died of "cocaine intoxication, which interrupted the normal electrical control of his heartbeat, resulting in the sudden onset of seizures and cardiac arrest," said Medical Examiner Dr. John Smialek.

THE COCAINE in Bias' blood measured 6.5 milligrams per liter. Smialek said such a concentration "might not kill one individual, but a lower level could kill another."

Prince George's County Attorney, Arthur Marshall, who is investigating Bias' death, said the medical report did not surprise him.

"It's exactly very clear what I thought it was going to be.

There's no surprises there at all," he said. "Anybody that takes a damn straw to their nose ought to think, 'It can happen to me if it can happen to Len Bias.'"

Both Marshall and Smialek said there was no evidence that Bias had ever used cocaine before the day he died. Friends of the 6-foot, 8 inch forward said they believed if Bias was indeed using cocaine the day he died, it was the first time he tried the drug.

"HE WAS IDOLIZED by the other students," Marshall said. "He was not into drugs or anything. He liked to dance. He liked to drive. He wanted a Mercedes. That's what his whole life was about."

Smialek's report comes a day after Marshall said he would convene a grand jury to elicit testimony from two of Bias' Maryland teammates — Terry Long and David Gregg — who were with Bias when he died.

Marshall said university officials were "not cooperating with law enforcement (authorities). That's why we decided to go forward with a grand jury."

'Triple-header' stars face career-ending decisions

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Thomas Hearn, Roberto Duran and Barry McGuigan left the ring in pain Monday night and with their futures unclear.

Hearn was the only winner among the trio, who headlined a closed-circuit TV triple-header at Caesars Palace. Hearn defended his World Boxing Council super welterweight title by stopping Mark Medal in the eighth round.

Still, Hearn could not consider it a great night. He learned before the fight that Marvin Hagler will leave him hanging several more days because the middleweight champion pushed back his announcement of who he will fight next.

Hagler sent word that he had the flu and could not come to Las Vegas for Tuesday's scheduled news conference. Hagler is expected to announce in several days whether he wants to fight Hagler or Sugar Ray Leonard next.

HEARNS THEN had his often-injured right hand swelled up in the second round and was the target of boos from the estimated crowd of 10,200 in later rounds. "I felt something tonight that I have never experienced in my entire career," Hearn said of the boos. "It shook me up."

Hearn, 42-2 with 36 knockouts, now turns his attention to a rematch with Hagler. Hagler stopped Hearn in three rounds April 15, 1985.

The delay of Hagler's announcement could be bad news for Hearn. Although he had Medal down in the first round, Hearn's lackluster showing did not spark interest in a Hagler-Hearn rematch. Hagler-Leonard is the talk of the boxing world.

Duran dropped a 10-round split decision to Robbie Sims, who is Hagler's half-brother. Duran, 35, spoke of continuing his 19-year professional career.

"If the people, if the press wants me to come back, I come back," said Duran, who bled profusely from the mouth and had a mouse under his right eye. "If you like to see Duran fight, Duran will fight."

McGuigan lost his World Boxing Association featherweight title on a unanimous 15-round decision to Steve Cruz. McGuigan, who went down three times and had to be helped from the ring, was hospitalized with a mild concussion.

"I'm tired," he said. "It's been a long, hard haul. I want to take a long rest, then I'll make my decision."

Watson looking for PGA victory

By Brad Zimanek
Assistant Sports Editor

Tom Watson has not been tearing up the PGA tour lately, but after playing in the Amana VIP at Finkbine Golf Course Monday he believes his luck just might be turning around.

Watson will be competing in the Hartford Open in Connecticut this weekend and the British Open in Scotland the next. The five-time British Open Champion said to be sure not to count him out of either tournament just yet.

"You bet I see a victory coming, and hopefully in the next couple of weeks," Watson said after carding a 4-under par 68 which put him in a seven-way tie for eighth place. "I'm going into one of my favorite golf courses in this year's British Open at Turnberry (Scotland)."

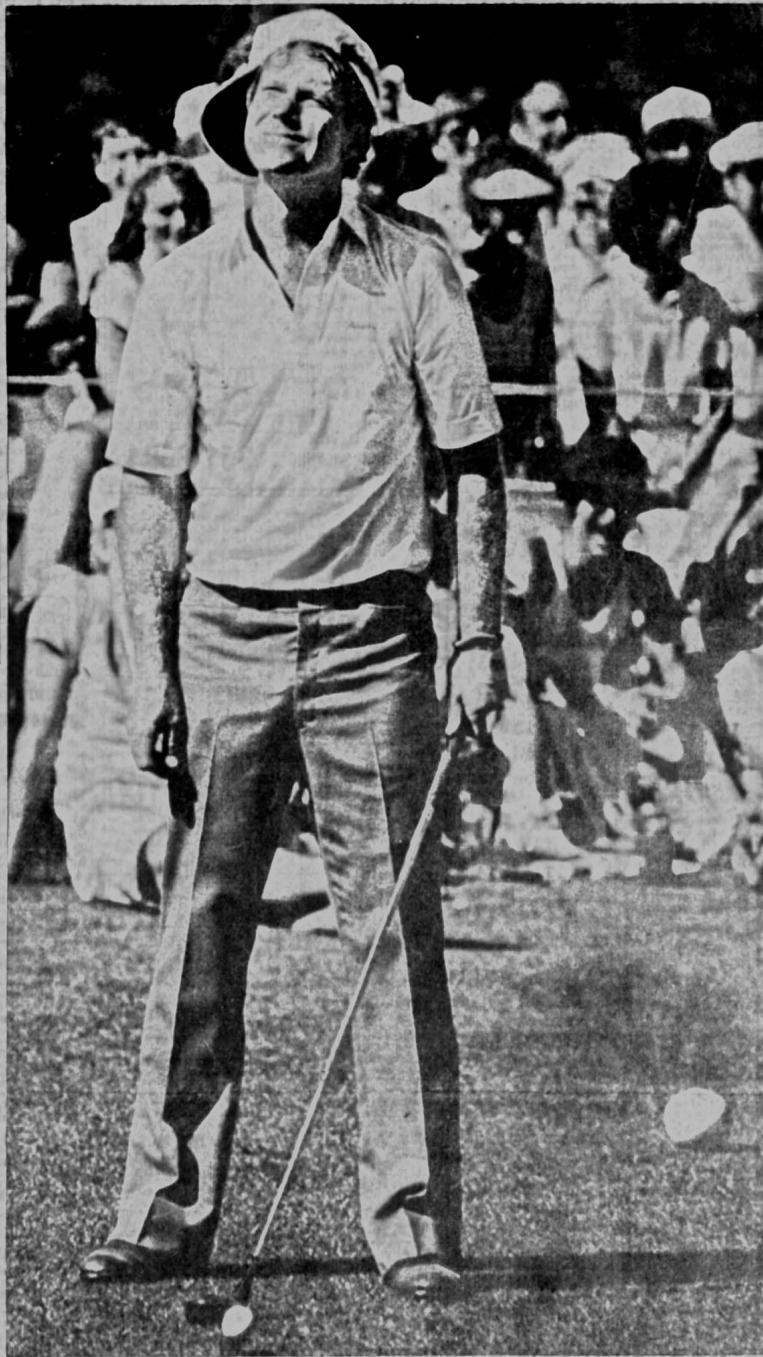

Watson has not scored a tour victory in two years, since the 1984 Western Open, and has slipped from No. 1 on the tour money list in 1984 to 18th last season.

"I have had a pretty good season so far except that I have not won," Watson said. "I have played some good tournaments but I have not put four good rounds together and that's what you need to win a golf tournament."

Watson has had a very large following at the VIP in recent years, partly because of his exciting 1982 U.S. Open victory over Jack Nicklaus at Pebble Beach.

To go along with his British Open titles and U.S. Open title, Watson also has two Masters victories to his credit.

The only major championship which Watson has not won is the PGA and he will get his chance August 7-10 when the tournament will be played at the Inverness Club in Toledo, Ohio.

Tom Watson does his impersonation of Jack Nicklaus on the 16th tee Monday during the 20th Annual Amana VIP Golf Tournament. Watson finished in a seven-way tie for eighth place.

Watson is impressed with the attention he receives from Iowa golf fans and believes this is because they do not have any other opportunity to view professional golf in this area.

"The fans here create a lot of excitement. The kids, the young girls and the old girls," Watson added. "It was a lot of fun this year and I know I don't sign more autographs anywhere than I do at Amana."

Tough loss may force star to retire

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Jimmy Connors suffered the most stunning loss of his distinguished career Tuesday, falling in the opening round of Wimbledon to strong-serving Robert Seguso.

Connors, 33 and seeded third, who has been toying with the idea of retirement, got an unwelcome push in that direction when he was eliminated by Seguso, 6-3, 3-6, 7-6 (7-5), 7-6 (10-8).

It marked the first time since the 1972 U.S. Open that Connors was eliminated in the first round of a Grand Slam championship, and he was knocked out by a man he had beaten little more than a week ago at Queen's Club.

Jimmy Connors

"LET ME MAKE my own decision on whether I'll play anymore or not or whether I play Wimbledon again," Connors said when pressed to disclose his plans. "It's not for you to worry about. It's only my concern."

While favorites Ivan Lendl, Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert Lloyd were straight-set winners, four seeds were eliminated along with Connors on a day when the sun made occasional appearances over the All England Club.

Among the seeded victims was No. 5 Pam Shriver, who fell to Betsy Nagelsen, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4. Following her first loss in eight meetings against Nagelsen, Shriver was able to joke, in a reference to the Lloyds, "There's only one thing to do — take John away from Chris and start a family."

tomy, upset 15th seed Guillermo Vilas, 6-4, 6-2, 6-3, and John Fitzgerald ousted No. 9 Andres Gomez, 6-1, 3-6, 7-6 (8-6), 6-4.

The other women's seed to fall was No. 14 Wendy Turnbull, bowing to fellow Australian Jenny Byrne, 7-6 (7-2), 6-2.

Earlier in the day, Lendl completed a 7-6 (7-2), 6-3, 6-4 victory over 18-year-old Mexican Leonardo Lavalle, Navratilova recovered from the loss of the first two games to beat Amanda Tobin Dingwall, 6-3, 6-2, and Evert Lloyd defeated 14-year-old Mary Joe Fernandez, 6-4, 6-1.

Seguso, a doubles specialist ranked 31st in the world, used his big serve to record the biggest victory of his career. He registered 14 aces, the final one coming on a second serve to even the fourth set tie-break at 5-5.

Owner saves Jazz from franchise shift

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Larry Miller, who rescued the Utah Jazz 14 months ago by buying 50 percent of the NBA team, announced Tuesday he has purchased the other half of the franchise for a reported $12 million and will keep the club in Utah.

"Everybody will think I'm crazy," said Miller, who owns nine car dealerships in Utah, Idaho and Arizona, and rejected the profit of $4 million he could have made by selling his half of the team to Minnesota buyers.

"I don't see a number that will interest me," Miller said of the reported $25 million offer from buyers who wanted to move the Jazz to Minneapolis for the 1987-88 season.

MILLER ADMITTED he and Sam Battistone, whose StrataAmerica Corp. had owned the other half of the team, were "real close" to selling the club. Miller had purchased 50 percent interest in the team in April 1985 from Battistone, enabling the Jazz to remain in Utah.

The last weeks have been a very emotional time," Battistone said. "On the one hand, we wanted to do what is right for Utah. But we also faced a business opportunity that was very difficult to turn down."

The deal will need the approval of the NBA Board of Governors.

Miller said as long as the team at least breaks even financially "we want to keep it here" if more support is given from fans and the community.

Last season Utah had its best attendance record, with 22 home games sold out and an average attendance of 11,600 in the 12,250-seat Salt Palace.

Jackson to begin career with Chicks

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Bo Jackson will begin his baseball career with the Memphis Chicks next week, team officials said Tuesday.

Avron Fogelman, a Memphis businessman and co-owner of the Kansas City Royals, made the announcement from his office four days after Jackson said he would sign with the Royals.

"All along it's been the Royals' philosophy not to push players, and we think double-A is where Bo should start," Fogelman said at a news conference.

But, "We want to see him in the major league before Sept. 1," Fogelman added.

In addition to easing Jackson into the world of baseball it was hoped that the announcement would give the Southern League Memphis Chicks, who have seen poor attendance at their games, a big boost.

JACKSON WILL play in the Chicks' game Monday against Columbus, Ohio, which begins at 7:15 p.m. in Memphis.

"Bo knows he needs some fine tuning. He knows he needs some help. We hope while he's in Memphis he'll be able to get that fine tuning," Fogelman said.

"Bo will be in the lineup. We want to see him playing as soon as possible."

Fogelman said he was still surprised that the Royals were able to persuade Jackson to join the team and to begin in Memphis.

Jackson announced last week that he was choosing baseball over football, ending a long period of speculation.

"I just can't possibly describe the caliber of player he is," Fogelman said. "We didn't push him a whole lot."

Of Jackson's double-A debut, Fogelman said, "The worst thing that could happen to Bo is to bring him up too quick. He's got to work hard."

Jackson was in Kansas City on Tuesday but was expected to arrive in Memphis over the weekend.
