Wine revenue disappointing

By Michael O’Connor

The high school curriculum that many college-bound students take is not adequately preparing them for the rigors of university-level work, educators say. At thesame time, the state is losing money because of its prohibition of the sale of wine on a carry-out basis.

"The state is losing money and still not providing the students with the proper training and preparation," said Anne Cleary, who will be acting as UI assistant director of instructional services.

"We are glad the strike is over and we will be glad to get back to work," said UI president J.D. Clancy. "But the students have been deprived of the education they need."

Local woman enters contest

By Laura Wayne Greene

Our reporter

"Ladies First in Iowa City," according to Jennifer Stewart, Stewart, Iowa City resident, is one of three Prudential AIA regional contests in the state of Iowa. The first of these will appear on the Oct. 19 evening edition of the Daily Iowan.

The first selection of Lady Liberty's double will take place Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. at Prudential offices at 20th and Main streets. Stewart, the winner of the state-wide contest, will be the first to represent Iowa City. "The theme for the contest was 'Call of Liberty,'" said Stewart. Stewart will be in the contest for a one-day trip to New York City. "Call of Liberty" is the title of a painting by Charles Bugbee. "I've heard about the contest and think it's a good idea," said Stewart. Stewart has been named a volunteer for the regional competition. "I think it's a good idea, and I hope we can win," she added.

Jennifer Stewart poses in her status of Liberty costume. Stewart will also wear green pants and tops again Tuesday for a nationally known for a Lady Liberty look-alike attack.

Panel defends UI AIDS policy

Brendan optimistic about Soviet trade

MOSCOW — Gov. Terry Branstad indicated Thursday that a new trade pact is likely between Iowa and the Soviet Union.

Branstad said the Soviet trade mission to Iowa is a "great opportunity," and that he is confident the mission will lead to increased economic cooperation between the two countries. "I have no doubt that this is going to be a very successful mission," said Branstad. "I hope that we can build on this relationship and expand it in the future." The mission is expected to last for several days and will include visits to several of Iowa's leading industries and universities. "We are looking forward to a productive and mutually beneficial relationship," said Branstad. "This mission is a great opportunity for Iowa to showcase its economic strengths and potential to the world."

Reported unemployment in Iowa drops

DES MOINES — Iowa's unemployment rate dipped to 4.4 percent in May, the lowest rate since October 1984, according to figures released Thursday by the Iowa Department of Labor.

May's unemployment rate is the lowest on record since the state began tracking the rate in 1968. The state's jobless rate was 5.1 percent in April and 5.4 percent in May. "The state's job market continues to improve," said Brian Bruns, director of the Department of Labor. "We have seen a steady decline in the jobless rate since last year. We are seeing more job openings and fewer people looking for work." The state's unemployment rate is now below the national average of 5.6 percent. "The state's economy is strong and continues to grow," said Bruns. "We are confident that this trend will continue in the future."
Killer coke

It has been a whole since the University of Maryland terminated an All-American basketball player. But the death of cocaine seems to be the new cocaine. In this manner, the University of Maryland has been deluged with complaints about the tragedy.

The police found the 21-year-old basketball player dead in his dormitory room. He had been a member of the basketball team and had been a star for the Terrapins.

The University of Maryland has announced that it will conduct a full investigation into the death. The investigation will include interviews with the athlete's friends and colleagues, as well as a review of the athlete's medical records.

The athlete had been known to have used cocaine in the past, but it is unclear whether the use of cocaine played a role in his death.

In a statement, the University of Maryland said: "Our thoughts and prayers are with the athlete's family and friends during this difficult time. We will continue to work with authorities to determine the cause of death and take any necessary steps to prevent similar tragedies in the future."
Contra aid shows hypocrisy of U.S.

By Susan Jameson

Our democracy is grossly hypocritical. The White House and Congress have failed to fulfill its promises. The U.S. has failed to live up to its own standards. The people in the U.S. have accepted the Contra rebels’ policy of war against Nicaragua. The U.S. has sent billions of dollars to Contra rebels, who have used these funds to buy weapons and kill civilians. The Contras have committed human rights abuses, including summary executions and torture.

The Contras have been labeled “freedom fighters” by the U.S., but they are actually killers. The Contras have been supplied with weapons by the U.S. government, yet they have used these weapons to kill innocent civilians. The U.S. government has known about the Contras’ human rights abuses, yet it has continued to support them.

The U.S. government has failed to live up to its own standards. The U.S. has failed to be truthful with the people. The U.S. has failed to live up to its own democracy.

Actors express views on Mamet play

By Paul Osborne

SATURDAY, April 17, 1982

S

XXL: Prominent in Chicago theater circles, the playwright is audacious and arrogant. It's time for people to see exactly what he is about and how he got there, according to Special Correspondent Jim Berens. The first act of the play, according to Berens, is a commentary on Mamet's views on the role of the artist in society.

BERENS: "The idea of being expected to want something is anathema. All those things that you learn, you just want to stay out there with other artists, instead of hiding behind the curtain. That's the idea of the play."

BERENS: "The character Dan is a man who is like Danny, and you've got a roommate who doesn't like Danny at all. One day, he comes up to him and says, 'Look, I'm from the Midwest. I'm a writer, and I wanted to be a writer, and I'm from Chicago, and I'm from New York. And I'm not really a teacher, I'm really a writer. I have to be."

Leonard Bernstein heard a reading of "American Buffalo" in Chicago and was impressed by the play. He felt that the play had a lot of energy and that the characters were well developed. He also admired the way that Mamet used dialogue to convey ideas and emotions.

BERENS: "That's a part of the sexual activity that we have as human beings. In the air of the woman that she has, she is more than capable of being more vulnerable and malleable, because it's needed in a particular way, rather than stand up being personified. Because as personified as the sexual activity, it's not a definite act, and it's not just a sexual act. Because the personification of the woman that he has been brought up with in his books, on the assumption that Mamet is a different way to other people, and I'll have the record made in this play, definitively in his writing, because he's really a talented writer, and he's not walking down the street with his friends and they just put an arm around him, and 100 people out there, and it's not just fabrication, but it's just practice. It's my belief that Mamet is more realistic than advertised in the way that he is, and in the 1930s, featuring 30 gay men and women..."

The play is a 1930s gay-themed show, set in New York. It has been said that it is a cross between "Cabaret" and "A Streetcar Named Desire." The play is performed at The Fieldhouse on Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30.

"The Fieldhouse"

The Fieldhouse is located at 121 E. College St., in Iowa City. The phone number is 384-7070. The show runs Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30.
Murphy performs on the stage.

BLOODY OAK: The band that plays an unusual mixture of bluegrass and jazz will be coming to Gabe's on Saturday night.

The band is formed by participating faculty who have lived in the Las Vegas area for over 20 years. They are currently preparing for the next album. The first single from their upcoming album, "Blue Eyes," is due to be released next month.

BLOOD ON THE SADDLE: The self-titled first album, released on New Alliance Records, received positive reviews from critics who praised the band's unique style and sound. The movement that blended punk and metal with music was very successful, and the band continued to make music.

Mudra: Fry afraid to lose to Division I-AA Panthers

IOWA CITY, IOWA (Iowa Press) — Iowa Coach Hayden Fry toiled and furrowed his brow in vain. The Hawkeyes lost in a nationally televised game to Northern Iowa, 24-17.

Fry waged his game plan only to learn that his team was no match for the Panthers. Northern Iowa quarterback Tim McClellan was accurate 14-of-22 for 219 yards and two touchdowns.

Fry and his players were left to ponder what went wrong in the game.

"Northern Iowa is a very good football team," Fry said. "They're not going to be in Division I-AA for nothing.

"And we're not going to be in Division I-AA for nothing." Fry's team fell to 2-2 on the season.

Fry said he was particularly disturbed by his team's performance in the second quarter. The Panthers outscored Iowa 17-0 in the quarter.

"We've got to play better in the second quarter," Fry said. "We've got to play better in every quarter."

"My God, Jim! It's only a TV show!"

Chris Kirkwood, one of the organizers of the event, said Trekkies from all over the midwest will flock to Riverside, self-proclaimed "future birthplace of Captain Kirk," for the festivities.

"It takes people back, said Kirkwood, "when you come up to a traffic barricade and there is a person with pointed ears and purple hair directing traffic."

One of the highlights of the Trek Fest will be the dedication of the USS Riverside Float, which will be in a parade Saturday at 10 a.m. "(It) is a replica of the U.S.S. Enterprise," said Kirkwood. "A lot of enthusiasm, a lot of money went into it - we hope it is a big success."

With this float Riverside will become an official member of the Star Fleet - a band of hardcore "Star Trek" clubs. Riverside, in addition to "Trek" events, will have Science Fiction Film Fest, clips, trivia, a space dance and more throughout the day.

"It is a nice little time when a lot of these people have come down and play "Star Trek,"" Kirkwood claimed. Though the emphasis that this decision would not wear costumes to be welcomed.

‘Cosby Show’ reveals universal crises, victories

By Susan Sontag

Sports Editor

On Thursday night, 20 million Americans tuned in to watch the Huxtable family living the American Dream to everyone’s surprise. The show, which is in its third season, is one of the top programs on ABC, and it is also becoming a symbol for the American Dream.

The show portrays the Huxtable family, consisting of John, Carol, Vanessa, Theo, and Rudy, living in a traditional nuclear family in Harlem. The family is headed by John Huxtable, played by Bill Cosby, a prosperous lawyer who values hard work and integrity.

The show is set in New York City, and it reflects the diversity of the city. The Huxtables are a mixed-race family, with John being black and Carol being white. The show also highlights the experiences of black families in America.

Cosby has been praised for his gentle portrayal of black life, and he has been criticized for his portrayal of black characters. However, the show has been successful in depicting the universal experiences of all families, regardless of race.

The show’s success is not just due to its ratings. It has also been praised for its positive portrayal of black family life. The show has been described as a valuable contribution to American television.

The show’s message is clear: the American Dream is achievable for everyone, regardless of race. The show challenges stereotypes and showcases the resilience of the black community.

In conclusion, ‘The Cosby Show’ is a valuable addition to American television. It has been successful in portraying the universal experiences of all families, and it has been praised for its positive portrayal of black family life. The show is a testament to the power of television to influence public opinion and shape the way we see the world.

Cable surfing — the late night cruise through the tube

By John Mills
Special to The Daily Iowan

It's summer in Iowa City. You've bored to death, stuck inside, and looking for some excitement. The answer is that every night, you can watch the Ionic channel that won't close until many, many hours after you want to start sleeping.

No longer are your eyes limited only to Channel 6. Now you have an endless series of channels to explore, and the chance to see something that will never be seen anywhere else but this city.

If you are interested in cable surfing, there are a number of things you should know. First, you must know how to surf. Surfing requires skill, but anyone can learn to do it. The key is to find the right place to surf.

Second, you must know how to turn on the correct channel. This can be a challenge, as there are many channels that are not normally accessible to the public. However, if you know what you are looking for, you can easily find your way to any channel you desire.

Now that you know how to surf, you must know how to turn off the TV. This is done by pressing the power button on the remote control. If you do not do this, the TV will remain on, and you will be unable to surf any further.

In addition, you must know how to choose the correct channel. This can be a difficult task, as there are many channels that are not normally accessible to the public. However, if you know what you are looking for, you can easily find your way to any channel you desire.

Finally, you must know how to enjoy your cable surfing adventure. This is the most important aspect of cable surfing, as it is this that will keep you coming back for more.

In conclusion, cable surfing is an exciting and enjoyable activity. With the right knowledge and skills, you can surf any channel you desire, and enjoy the experience to the fullest.

Cable surfing is the ultimate way to spend a summer night. So get out there and explore the world of cable surfing. You may be surprised at what you find.
No matter how you look at it — influence of children's TV grows

By Hurt Connecticut

Because you can't get away from the wave of children's TV programs, you can't help but wonder if there's a lot of valid criticism of children's TV.

Everywhere you look there's children's TV programs. You see them on the local network stations, you see them on the cable networks, you see them on the public television stations. And you can't help but wonder if there's a lot of valid criticism of children's TV.

The influence of children's TV programs is undeniable. They have a powerful hold on the minds of children and adults alike. They can shape our perceptions, our values, and our beliefs.

But does this influence always lead to positive outcomes? Or is there a downside to the proliferation of children's TV programs? These are questions that many people are asking.

Children's TV programs can be a valuable tool for educating children on important topics. They can teach children about history, science, math, and more. They can also provide entertainment and enjoyment.

However, there are concerns about the influence of children's TV programs. Some experts argue that they can be harmful to children's development. They can promote unrealistic expectations, encourage violent behavior, and contribute to the commercialization of childhood.

It's a complex issue, and there are no easy answers. But one thing is clear: children's TV programs have a significant impact on our society. And we need to be aware of the potential risks and benefits of these programs.

Trekkiess

As the wave of children's TV programs continues to grow, it's important to consider the influence that these programs have on children. Are they helping or hurting? And what can we do to ensure that they have a positive impact?

One way to approach this issue is to look at the specific programs themselves. Are they educational? Are they entertaining? Do they promote healthy values?

Another way to consider the influence of children's TV programs is to look at the broader cultural context in which they exist. Do they reflect the values and beliefs of our society? Are they contributing to a culture of violence or respect?

Ultimately, the influence of children's TV programs is a complex issue that requires careful consideration. But one thing is clear: we need to be aware of the potential risks and benefits of these programs, and take steps to ensure that they have a positive impact on children.

By Hurt Connecticut
Folk singer Dave Lippman, who has been compared to Woody Guthrie, will perform at a benefit for the Central American Solidarity Committee on Saturday. The benefit will be held at 8:30 p.m., and all of Lippman’s performances are to benefit "We like to take it nice and non-political," he explained in a recent interview. "The idea is that they get the emotion out."

At sides, Lippman’s approach to democracy is one of humor. "We have done many songs about what capitalism is, what democracy is, what communism is," Lippman explained, adding that he would like listeners to realize that these terms are not always defined by their political party lines.

Lippman’s alter egos George Schrub, from the Committee to Intervene Anywhere. George’s album is "The Free World," which includes songs about the way things work and the way they can be. According to Schrub, Lippman himself sweats and polishes his guitar and takes songs like "networking" and "drawing" as a new combination of social and political insight from the Rapid City (S.D.) journal.

Lippman has released three country and a single, and is currently working on a new album on a C.L.A. label, which Lippman describes as "shooting from the hip."

Folk singer Dave Lippman, who has been compared to Woody Guthrie, will perform at a benefit for the Central American Solidarity Committee on Saturday. The benefit will be held at 8:30 p.m., and all of Lippman’s performances are to benefit the Committee. "We like to take it nice and non-political," he explained in a recent interview. "The idea is that they get the emotion out."

At sides, Lippman’s approach to democracy is one of humor. "We have done many songs about what capitalism is, what democracy is, what communism is," Lippman explained, adding that he would like listeners to realize that these terms are not always defined by their political party lines.

Lippman’s alter egos George Schrub, from the Committee to Intervene Anywhere. George’s album is "The Free World," which includes songs about the way things work and the way they can be. According to Schrub, Lippman himself sweats and polishes his guitar and takes songs like "networking" and "drawing" as a new combination of social and political insight from the Rapid City (S.D.) journal.

Lippman has released three country and a single, and is currently working on a new album on a C.L.A. label, which Lippman describes as "shooting from the hip."
