Terrorist bombings kill five in separate European raids

PARIS (UPI) — Five persons were killed and 15 injured Sunday in separate bombings that occurred at least three separate locations in central Europe. The explosions killed five and injured 15, police said.

In Munich, West Germany, a man armed with an automatic weapon attacked a group of pedestrians who were gathered on a sidewalk near the city's main train station. The attacker was shot and killed by police officers.

In Brussels, Belgium, police said they had arrested a man suspected of being involved in the bombings.

In Paris, France, a man armed with a automatic weapon attacked a group of pedestrians who were gathered on a sidewalk near the city's main train station. The attacker was shot and killed by police officers.

In Brussels, Belgium, police said they had arrested a man suspected of being involved in the bombings.

No group claimed responsibility for the Munich bombing, but the outlawed Irish Republican Army, which is fighting for independence from the United Kingdom, has been blamed for similar bombings in the past.

The explosions killed five and injured 15, police said.
Storm leaves some in city powerless

By Mark McCormick

The heavy rain that continued throughout the city for nearly 12 hours and dropped 1.66 inches of rain from midnight to 6 a.m. left many without power Tuesday morning.

The storm brought the city to a standstill, with many schools, businesses and homes left without power. The storm also caused flooding in some areas, with several roads closed due to high water.

Police

The thunderstorms caused widespread power outages throughout the city, leaving many without power for hours. The storm also caused several accidents, with several cars and trucks involved in collisions.

Courts

The 9th District Courtroom was filled with people waiting for the trial to begin. The trial was expected to last for several days, with many people coming from out of town to attend.

Term plan for UI jobs examined

By Michael O'Connor

A UI ad hoc committee examining the possibility of term appointments for UI administrators has not received any feedback from the president or the president's vice president on its preliminary report, the committechairman said Wednesday.

"We want to find out what is happening nationally and rec-te that information here," committee chairman Michael Ford said.

If feedback suggest that term appointments could be beneficial for the UI, the committee could recommend that department heads, dean's vice presidents, and the president be consulted.

If such a plan were implemented, there could be some positive benefits, he said.

"Term appointments could make it easier to find people with the potential of making administer. They also provide more opportunity," Ford said. "Reviews of administrator's performance are done each year, and they are linked with the appointment of a second term."

The board has never wanted term appointments, or at least evaluating term appointments, he said.

"It should always be seen that there should be continuous appointments," he said.

Although term appointments have some pitfalls, there would undoubtedly be some drawbacks to term appointments, he added.

"Although one policy could introduce another policy," committee chairman, who is the chair of the Committee on Academic Affairs, Ford said.

The committee is not suggesting a member of the committee might be against term appointments, said the negative aspects of term appointments will be carefully considered.

T he members of the group are aware of the fact that setting term appointments could make it difficult to fill top UI positions, he said.

"The UI president will not have the opportunity to stay for a second term if the Secretary of Education, they might be reluctant to take the position," he added.

But the increased number of UI administrators who could be healthy for the possibility of term appointments, he said.

"The issue of term appointments is based on a larger number of UI positions, said Colangelo.

"The possibility of offering a recommendation to the UI board on that issue," he said.

The committee is not suggesting a member of the committee might be against term appointments, said the negative aspects of term appointments will be carefully considered.
AIDS panel recommends stockpiling blood

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The bipartisan U.S. Senate panel considering a legislative response to the AIDS epidemic urged the federal government Wednesday to stockpile blood and blood components for victims of AIDS and for research and development purposes.

The panel, convened by the National Institutes of Health, outlined serious questions about the blood supply for the new disease. It recommended that federal experts examine every aspect of the blood supply, from donation to use.

"We agree with the blood banking community that stockpile your own blood is a good idea," panel chairman and Democratic Senator Joe Biden of Delaware said. "The panel could not agree that it should be done by individual hospitals or that it should be done by the military." But said new, more sensitive tests are under development and would render this approach unnecessary in a few years.

AIDS is caused by a virus that destroys white blood cells and weakens the immune system. It is believed to be transmitted from person to person through contact with blood or body fluids. The virus can also be transmitted through sex and from mother to child.

The panel, composed of experts from the Department of Defense, Health and Human Services, Interior, Agriculture and Veterans Affairs, recommended that the Defense Department develop a program to stockpile blood and blood products for research and development and for potential military use.

The panel was also concerned that the federal government, which has been stockpiling blood for military use, might not have enough blood to meet the needs of the AIDS epidemic.

"We believe that the federal government should stockpile blood and blood products for research and development purposes," panel member and Republican Senator Richard Lugar of Indiana said. "We also believe that the federal government should stockpile blood and blood products for potential military use." But said new, more sensitive tests are under development and would render this approach unnecessary in a few years.

AIDS is a deadly disease that has no cure. It is believed to be transmitted from person to person through contact with blood or body fluids. The virus can also be transmitted through sex and from mother to child.

The Gabe's gets 'Outnumbered'

By Kent Schulte
Staff Writer

I T SEEMS most bands in this area are trying to be something new and exciting. To be honest, there doesn't apply to The Outnumbered.

Consisting of a lot of "original" bands that are pretentious, pseudo-artistic and don't fit in with any of the other bands, they don't try to stay in line with anything else. At least, that's what they say;

The band that is scheduled to bring a sort of change to Gabe's tonight.

There are only three things that make up the band. Guitarist/vocalist Don Ginoli stated Ginoli said the band has written original material that consists of "the punk and skinniwig rock."

"We're not a punk band we don't get up and scream all night... we're not a pop band; we don't go up and jump and 'la la'. Punk rock is the only thing. Why?... We're just three people. We have one drummer and one bass player. During these three years past, they have recorded one album for New York's radio station and another for their home town of Iowa's social barometer for the 80's. We don't have a song that could be played on the radio. We don't care."

The band has a fine line between summit, dangerous rock 'n' roll and the guitar-oriented brand of rock.

"If we play songs very fast and you can't stand to sit there with a yell every now and then. Ginoli, is the type we won't worry too much for the audience. We don't feel the need to have a fan club. We don't need a fan club."

"But then people are appreciable as such. Ginoli continued, "but they're not as we'll sit around and have our heads together."

The OUTNUMBERED formed as an object for the member's frustration. They aren't looking for fame as much as they were hoping to find a receptive ear.

"We don't want to end up playing for audiences that aren't ready for us. Ginoli said. "I'm not worried about trying to appeal to everyone. We find our niche with the people that like us."

This band only plays one song and if you can't stand to sit there with a yell every now and then you won't be able to stand this one. Only one song tonight and Friday at the Boyd Tower West Lobby at 8 p.m.

"We're just destiny", Ginoli said. "I think we make a song, and if we find we have the ears up to it."

The secret thing about the Outnumbered is that they have come up with an original sound but they have not lost their accessibility. They have not lost their "pity". The second half of the band's tour is a must. Come in and listen to the song of the 80's.

Nicholson movie takes five on society

The latest is from George Morlock, director of the Fyfe Series of Lectures at the University of Iowa, who predicts by the next decade it will be a "ake out the box office, see movies, tell wonderful stories, and everyone will be dead, having so much fun they'll forget they're dead."

The series was put together by Richard Carlson, librarian at the University of Iowa. The program begins with "Forest Bells", a composition by violinist Neil Gabe, followed by "Appalachian Jig: A Song of the South", and "Waltzes for Strings: A Symphony in C minor" by Brahms.

"I was impressed by the music of this Philharmonic so much that I decided to try something different," said Neil Gabe, composer of the suite.

"The piece I chose is the movements that reflect each composer's individuality." Gabe explained.

"I was particularly interested in the works of Brahms and his colleagues. I decided to use the music of their work in this piece."

Triple play helps Cubs to 4-3 win

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) - Terry Francona's one-out sacrifice fly scored Keith Moreland in the top of the ninth inning Wednesday to lift the Chicago Cubs to a 4-3 victory over the San Francisco Giants in a game that featured a triple play by the Giants.

With one out, the teams reached for center field. Francona's sacrifice fly scored Moreland. The Giants scored two more runs on a solo home run by Wally Joyner and a single by Tony O'Dell.

Terry Pendleton hit the 36th of his career.

In Chicago leading 3-2, Chili Davis and the game went into the 11th inning with a hard-hit hitter at the center of the second base. Pendleton hit a triple play to preserve a 4-0 win in the 11th inning.

Chicago manager Tony La Russa let the series third on third Chris Brown's single. With Brown running on a 3-2 pitch, Mike Greenwell lined to first for the first out. Pendleton picked off Brown at second base to make the second out. Pendleton's fourth putout of the inning and Lopes' throw to first clinched the double play for the Giants. Pendleton received Brown.

It was Chicago's first triple play and first since Aug. 28. It is the first triple play for the Giants since their 1-0 win against the Mets in the 11th inning of a double game. Giants manager Clevenger Hendry was born.

ROOKIE JOYNER GRABS ALL-STAR STAR

NEW YORK (UPI) - California's Wally Joyner was named Wednesday to start for the American League baseball league, city of Denver or P. Denver.

The announcement on Monday triggered a flurry of other suggestions and alternatives by baseball fans, including manager Larry Borenstein and GM Bobo Johnston.

According to the Associated Press, the game will be played during the All-Star Game at Milwaukee's County Stadium. The game will be played during the Milwaukee Brewers' home game.

The regular form of the All-Star Game is a most lucrative baseball game throughout the season because its winning team is the top half of the National League and the All-Star Game at Milwaukee's County Stadium is the same as the last time (UPI).

Detroit second baseman Lou Whitaker, Baltimore shortstop Cal Ripken, Chicago's leading home-ringer Greg Walker and Kansas City third baseman George Scott will make up the NL team. The 25th NL team will be announced Thursday.

Chicago again hit by camp holdouts

CHICAGO (UPI) — Superbowl MVP Richard Dent and first-round draft choice Simeon Singletary were holdouts. Singletary said he has not been on the practice field and that he had missed the start of training camp since Tuesday.

"Things really don't look all that different," said Vainisi. "We expect to get a few of our free agents back in the next few days. Hopefully, we can be closer to a deal before the end of the week."

"I think Dent or Anderson will be the last to come back," said Singletary.

Singletary said that he has not been on the practice field and that he has been holding out for a contract. "It's not that I don't want to be here. I just want to get paid," said Singletary.

"We still have holdouts," said Vainisi. "We have had a few of our free agents hold out in the past, and it's something that we have to be prepared for."

"We're not going to change our strategy," said Vainisi. "We have told our free agents that they have to be willing to sign with us or we will move on."

"This is a business," said Vainisi. "We have to be prepared for these situations."

Young wrestlers swarm to Iowa City for Gable's camp

BY LISA HANES

Wrestlers from across the United States are flocking to Iowa City this week to train under the watchful eye of Olympic champion and former Iowa wrestler Dan Gable.

"We're excited to be here," said Gable. "This is a great opportunity for us to work with some of the best wrestlers in the country."

The camp, which is open to wrestlers of all ages, is held annually in Iowa City. It is one of the most prestigious wrestling camps in the country and attracts wrestlers from all over the United States.

"I've been coming to this camp for years," said Dan. "It's an opportunity to work with Dan Gable, one of the greatest wrestlers of all time."

The camp is divided into two sessions. The first session is for wrestlers aged 10 through 14, and the second session is for wrestlers aged 15 through 18.

"We try to make sure that each session is tailored to the needs of the wrestlers," said Gable. "We want to give each wrestler the best opportunity to improve."

One wrestler said that they were excited to be at the camp. "I've always wanted to train with Dan Gable," said the wrestler. "This is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity."

"We have encountered a number of political problems in the past few years," IOC President Juan Antonio Samaranch says.

"We may not disappear by the year 1988," said Gable. "We're working hard to make sure that our wrestlers are able to compete."
