Tutu meets with Botha in Pretoria

JOHANNESBURG, South African President F. W. de Klerk and Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu and① and reduced Tutu’s request to lift the month-long state of emergency and release political prisoners. De Klerk said Thursday that he would not lift emergency regulations, but he will not oppose Tutu’s application to the Constitutional Court, which is hearing the case.

Tutu, emerging from the meeting, said Botha refused to lift the emergency regulations, a move that would allow political prisoners to stand for elections. Tutu said the regulations would prevent the formation of a new political party and would inhibit capital flight.

The agreement was signed after a one-day meeting in Pretoria.

Earthquakes continue to rock California

BISHOP, Calif. — Two strong earthquakes shook California on Sunday, sending power lines and streets slumping like soggy porridge and leaving thousands with a shock to their systems. No injuries were reported.

Seismologists measured the quakes at 62 and 53 on the Richter scale and joined the magnitude 6.5 north of Bakersfield in the Lake Casitas area of Los Angeles County and the magnitude 6.2 in the Owens Valley area, where 2,000 homes and 200 businesses were affected.

Bosch, California

Rescue teams are expected to work Monday, the seismologists said, and search efforts have focused on reopening roads and retrieving livestock that have been trapped.

The California National Guard, along with the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department, has set up a command center to coordinate search and rescue efforts.

In Bakersfield, a magnitude 6.2 earthquake sent people running into the streets as the ground shook.

In Owens Valley, a 6.5 magnitude earthquake was felt as far away as Las Vegas.

Midwestern farmers bale out "drought area"

By David Cohen

Grinnell, Iowa — More than 80,000 acres of corn and soybeans across the state have been declared a "drought area," which means that farmers will be eligible for federal disaster aid.

"If you could only see the desiccating dome," he said. "The corn comes up in your face, and you see the ground is dry, you can tell they need water." Mark Parson, head of the administrative department of the Iowa Department of Agriculture, told the Daily Iowan that water is the key to the drought area.

"I was just out in the field yesterday," he said. "It's very dry, and the ground is cracked." Parson said that the drought has been a major concern for farmers in recent weeks.

TOWNSEND expands budget

TOWNSEND explained that his decision to expand the budget was based on the need to keep up with the growing number of students and the University's overall goals.

He said that the budget will now include funds for additional staff to handle the increased workload.

"I think it's important to invest in the future of the University," he said. "By expanding the budget, we can ensure that the University remains competitive and can continue to provide high-quality education for our students."
"Alien" sequel swallows with suspense

By Kathy Hosen Breed

THERE RACE to be the third "Alien" movie is on.
In fact we found that things got so busy so fast with the filming of "Alien" II, (The Other Side" that we didn't have a chance to get back to the movie theaters and see how "Alien: Bride of Chucky" released in Peru last fall, and "Martian Chronicles" released in Peru last fall.
So the question that many people are asking is whether the "Alien" sequel is better than the original.
There's no easy answer to that question. The original "Alien" was a groundbreaking movie that combined science fiction, horror, and thriller elements in a unique way. The sequel, on the other hand, was a much less successful attempt to replicate the original's success.

The story follows Ripley (Sigourney Weaver) and Newt (Michael Biehn), who are stranded on a space station after their crew is wiped out by an alien life form. The alien has been dormant, but is slowly awakening and threatens to destroy the entire station.

The characters in this sequel are not as well-developed as those in the original, and the plot feels predictable. The action scenes are intense, but they lack the suspense and terror that made the original such a compelling movie.

Overall, "Alien: Bride of Chucky" is a forgettable sequel that fails to capture the same level of horror and excitement as the original. It's best enjoyed as a quick, suspenseful thriller, but not as a serious consideration for the legacy of the "Alien" franchise.

NCAA investigates Iowa State athletics

AMES, Iowa (CPI) — The NCAA is investigating the individual and team programs at Iowa State University, but details of the alleged wrongdoing are being withheld. Iowa State President Gordonasting announced Monday that he would form an independent investigation of the allegations.

In a statement released by the Big Eight school, Kanes said: "We have not been served a notice of official charges. In the interest of protecting the rights of those involved, the university has decided to conduct an independent investigation in accordance with NCAA rules."

No holdout for Marino in '86

"Historically, running backs stay out and when they come back in something happens," Giants' coach Bill Parcells says about running back John Riggins last year.

"I have no fear, no fear at all," Bill Parcells said Monday as he dealt with a possible holdout. "It's a football team, and I'm in charge of the football team."

"I'm not in competition with him," Parcells said, referring to the 24-year-old running back who came back in something happened — particularly when he set a Super Bowl record by rushing for 185 yards.

"If I have no fear, it wouldn't change much," Parcells said, "just another cell phone call, again, you know, just another thing."

"And Marino," Parcells added, "and in my book, they have not heard from him."

Holdouts

"It's controversial that Night will report on time, but not probably," said coach and general manager Don Shula. "We've got to get the kid playing before he pulls his hand off the helmet."

Miami's starter was out last season in a contract dispute.

"I want to provide the players in the team," Shula said Monday after four days of practice. "I'm going to use every method possible to try to get our team on the field."

Horse Racing

Unions say, the $400,000 in a settlement agreement that the players say is not enough. The unions want $7.5 million.

"You can't do that to me, you can't do that to the players," said a union official. "We're not interested in coming to the negotiating table."

Doctor says Wisconsin woman had 'a slight cut' after incident

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — An emergency room physician who examined a 16-year-old Wisconsin woman found only a slight cut on the woman, according to the University of Wisconsin-Madison basketball program.

He said the woman complained of tenderness in her right shoulder.

"Don't panic," Hinault clasped hands with American Eric Heiden, winner of five Olympic gold medals. "Just be for the surging gesture with Lemond just before..."

The woman was seen by a nurse and later by a doctor. "I'm..." Hinault said of his former teammate.

Hinault was not available for comment.

NHL teams could see strike

TORONTO (UPI) — The NHL players union Monday warned there is a "threat" of a strike this season.

In a letter to the league, the NHL Players' Association said the current collective bargaining agreement expires Sept. 15. The union has sent a notice to the league that it will make a last-minute offer to the NHL on Friday.

"The NHLPA has made it clear that we don't want a lockout," said a NHLPA spokesman. "We want to negotiate and we want to work with the league to find a solution."
