Faculty fears water contamination cover-up

By Dan McClain
Staff Writer

UI faculty and staff members in Van Allen Hall are voicing health fears this week as warning signs against drinking the building's unsafe water remained posted.

Faculty members in the building said difficulty getting information about the building's contaminated water supply has left them wondering whether the problem is more serious and has been going on longer than UI officials have indicated.

Wednesday marked the ninth day UI students and employees have not been able to drink the building's water after a contaminant identified as "an oily substance" was discovered in the water supply July 14.

"IT WOULD HAVE been appropriate for them to give us the information, but we have had to ask for it so far," said one faculty member who declined to be identified. "It seems to me they owe the people who have been drinking the water here a complete explanation."

The faculty member said a number of people in the building are upset about the polluted water and feel building officials have not kept them adequately informed.

The lack of information and past plumbing problems have generated a number of rumors in the building, including a story that the contaminant contained traces of DDT and a rumor that water exposed to harmful radiation levels was circulating in the main plumbing network.

"I WANT somebody to tell me with assurance that this is the only time this has happened," the professor said. "There are still a lot of questions that we don't have the answers to."

UI Department of Physics and Astronomy Chairman Dwight Nicholson said he had not heard any of the rumors and said they were incorrect. Information is not being deliberately withheld from UI employees in the building, he said.

The extended period of time it has taken to correct the problem is not an indication the problem is more serious than was originally thought, he said, but is a result of the care UI Physical Plant workers are taking to ensure the plumbing work is done correctly.

Physical plant personnel have spent the last nine days replacing the improper plumbing connections thought to be the cause of the problem and flushing the building's pipes.

WHETHER THE improper plumbing connections were actually the source of the contaminant, still identified only as "an oily substance," may never be known, he said.

Physical plant workers "have replaced those problem valves, but they were only possible sources of the problem," Nicholson said.

Acting UI Physical Plant Director James Howard said although the actual source of the contaminant may never be identified, impurities have never been detected in the Van Allen water supply in the past.

"This is the only time that we've been aware of some cross contamination," he said.

Iowa National Guardsmen and prison inmates help load hay bales onto pallets Wednesday morning for shipment in an Air Force C-141 jet from the Cedar Rapids Municipal Airport to drought-stricken farmers in the Southeast. Twenty inmates from Mount Pleasant, Anamosa and Oakdale and approximately 30 guardsmen helped load hay donated by farmers from the Eldora and La Porte City area.

Iowa pitches hay bales to Southeast

DES MOINES (UPI) — Iowa National Guard troops, farmers, prison inmates and Gov. Terry Branstad teamed up Wednesday to help drought-stricken farmers in the Southeast by sending them 3,600 bales of hay to feed their animals.

Dozens of volunteers gathered at National Guard hangars in Des Moines and Cedar Rapids at 6 a.m. Wednesday to load the hay onto three Air Force C-141 transport planes for shipment to South Carolina.

Leon Harper, an Air Force flight engineer from Mason City, said he was proud to be part of the volunteer effort.

"I think it's great because the Iowa farmers are having a hard enough time as it is, but they still are able to help other people out," Harper said. "I'm glad I got a chance to help."

Guard officials said more than 50 troops volunteered to help in the airlift.

BRANSTAD, WHO cast off his suit coat to load a bale onto a pallet, said the effort demonstrated the generosity of Iowa farmers.

"The farmers have had a really difficult time. But I think the farmers in Iowa, even though they have their own problems, they're willing to help somebody else that has a more severe problem right now," Branstad said. "This effort shows the willingness of Iowa farmers to pitch in when help is needed."

The effort, called "Operation Haylift" was organized by the Iowa Farm Unity Coalition after several member farmers offered to donate hay to drought victims in the Southeast.

The Iowa Motor Truck Association donated trucks and services to transport the hay to airports. The state also sent 50 inmates from prisons in Mount Pleasant, Newton, Anamosa and Oakdale to help load the planes.

Peres' visit hits barrier in Morocco

IFRANE, Morocco (UPI) — Moroccan King Hassan II said Wednesday that Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres refused during their surprise two-day summit to accept Arab proposals for bringing peace to the Middle East.

Hassan, in a national television and radio address, said he told Peres during their talks that Israel must withdraw from occupied lands and hold talks with the Palestine Liberation Organization, but Peres rejected both steps.

The statements appeared to leave the Middle East peace process deadlocked, although Hassan said the 10 hours of meetings at his summer palace in central Morocco were worthwhile for making contact with the Israelis.

Peres, meanwhile, flew back to Israel and was to hold a press conference on his arrival, officials said.

"I TOLD HIM, 'you must evacuate the occupied lands,'" Hassan said of the meetings. "Shimon Peres responded, 'No.' Then I asked him, 'You should recognize the PLO.' He responded, 'I do not recognize the PLO.' Since he refused, why I should I speak to him?"

"I will go back to our Arab brothers and others and tell them what occurred here, and they will consider the consequences," he said.

Despite the king's harsh analysis of the talks, a joint communique was to be released Thursday — the first Arab-Israeli document to be released since the 1979 Egypt-Israeli peace accord worked out with President Jimmy Carter at Camp David.

Syria acted quickly as news of the meeting spread, severing relations with Morocco Tuesday to protest the talks. Libya, Algeria and Iraq expressed outrage at Hassan's actions, which were seen as the most dramatic gesture towards Israel by an Arab leader since Egyptian President Anwar Sadat visited Israel in 1977.

IN BEIRUT, LEBANON, about 150 chanting Moslem fundamentalists burned American and Israeli flags outside the tightly guarded Moroccan Embassy Wednesday to protest Israeli-Moroccan peace talks.

"Down with the Hassan II... Death to America and Israel," the marchers chanted in Arabic during the angry demonstration organized by a coalition of Shiite and Sunni Moslem religious leaders known as the Ulama grouping.

"I knew there would be Arab reactions, but it has been several years since I have met with the Israeli authorities," Hassan said in his televised address. "Shimon Peres asked to see me, and my response was that I could receive him on a legal basis" as president of the Arab League.

"We are fighting an enemy that lives on occupied land," Hassan said. "To inform them of this, without an intermediary — it was absolutely necessary for direct contact."

THE MONARCH SAID he discussed with Peres the so-called Fez peace plan, a document approved by 20 Arab nations in September 1982 that calls for an independent Palestinian state and implicitly recognizes the existence of Israel.

Israel has rejected creation of an independent Palestinian state and has refused to negotiate directly with the PLO, which Hassan had said was the sole legitimate Palestinian representative.

Israeli delegation sources said Peres would return to Israel and brief his government on Hassan's explanation of the Fez peace proposal, so named because it was approved during an Arab summit in Fez, Morocco.

Dole engineers Manion appointment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, with Vice President George Bush casting an unneeded tie-breaking vote, made conservative Daniel Manion an appeals court judge Wednesday in a 50-49 vote the administration called a victory over liberal extremists.

Manion will be the first Vietnam veteran to serve on the federal appeals bench. The Indiana lawyer won tentative approval, 48-46, in a June 26 showdown but spent a month in limbo because Democrats used Senate rules to force a new vote.

"Today's vote vindicates him and his election," said Attorney General Edwin Meese, congratulating the Senate "for resisting extremist attempts to politicize the judicial confirmation process."

President Ronald Reagan, aboard Air Force One, called Republican leader Robert Dole to thank him for "a great engineering job," a Dole spokesman said.

LATER, AT A GOP fundraising speech in Miami, Reagan characterized Manion's opponents as "a little lynch mob."

Opponents, mostly Democrats, charged Manion, son of noted conservative Clarence Manion, is too conservative to be impartial as a judge and they questioned his skills and his respect for the Constitution. Manion has never argued a case before the court where he will serve, the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago.

With the Senate deadlocked, 49-49, Bush announced he was voting for Manion. His vote was unnecessary since opponents needed a majority — not a tie — to block Manion. The roll call, whether to reopen the June 26 vote, was the last obstacle between Manion and the lifetime appointment.

Appeals courts are the second-highest federal courts in America. The 7th Circuit hears cases from Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin.

"Close only counts in horseshoes," said a disappointed Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., leader of Manion's opponents. "We lost it straight up. We lost a tie vote."

OPPOSITIONERS SAID political muscle and deal-making helped the White House win the vote. President Anthony Podesta of People for the American Way said the Senate's integrity was tarnished by the administration.

Opponents, mostly Democrats, said Manion exemplified a trend by the White House to put ideology ahead of courroom ability. Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., read a letter from a judge on the 7th Circuit who said Manion had "mediocre writing skills and analytical abilities."

Supporters said Manion, 44, of South Bend, Ind., is a hard-working, respected lawyer who will strive to be fair.

DOLE CALLED the vote, despite the sudden illness of Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., who held a key vote for Manion. Opponent Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., agreed to withhold his vote to make up for the absence. That, along with a decision Tuesday by Sen. Daniel Evans, R-Wash., assured Dole he would win.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., the only undecided senator, voted against Manion but that only gave Democrats a tie.

At the time of the June 26 vote, Metzgerbaum said, Sen. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., changed his vote in order to get Seattle lawyer William Dwyer okayed by the White House for a district court judicial appointment in Washington state.

U.S. and Bolivian forces hit 16 drug labs

LA PAZ, Bolivia — A U.S.-financed Bolivian narcotics strike force captured a complex of 16 narcotics laboratories in a central Bolivian jungle, Information Minister Herman Antelo said Wednesday.

In a separate raid, U.S. soldiers and Bolivian police seized a cocaine "installation" in the remote wilderness of northern Bolivia, Antelo said.

Narcotics police also arrested 15 suspected drug dealers in the southeastern city of Santa Cruz, three of them suspected major narcotics traffickers, Antelo said.

End to Detroit strike 'only inches away'

DETROIT — A judge ordered union and city negotiators in Detroit to bargain for at least 10 hours Wednesday to try to settle an 8-day strike by municipal workers that has halted public transportation and left 28,000 tons of garbage uncollected.

A union official said a settlement was "only inches away" when Tuesday's bargaining session recessed at 2 a.m. Wednesday.

About 7,000 members of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees union walked out in a contract dispute July 16. Another 5,000 workers, including bus drivers and trash haulers, have honored the picket lines.

Estelle pelts Hawaii with 20-foot waves

HONOLULU — Hurricane Estelle smashed homes on Hawaii Island with 20-foot waves and forced evacuation of about 200 residents, then blustered off into the Pacific Wednesday, trailing a drenching rain storm.

High winds and raging surf on the southeast corner of the island severely battered 10 buildings, knocking five of them off their foundations as the hurricane's outer edge battered the island.

Researchers cautious of AIDS findings

BOSTON — Researchers Wednesday criticized as "premature" a study that concluded people living with AIDS victims are highly unlikely to catch the deadly disease through non-sexual contact.

"We are not arguing that the risks are in fact high, and we share the... hope that they are close to zero," said Clement J. McDonald and Michael P. Rogers of the Indiana University School of Medicine.

"But the small sample size on which the authors based their conclusions does not ensure that the risk is inconsequential," they said in a letter to The New England Journal of Medicine.

The pair wrote one of three letters questioning the results of a New York study in the Feb. 6 issue involving 101 people who lived with AIDS victims for at least three months.

Aftershocks continue to rattle California

CHALFANT VALLEY, Calif. — Aftershocks kept rattling eastern Sierra Nevada communities every few hours Wednesday, although diminishing in intensity, and officials said damage from this week's earthquakes could reach $3 million.

While residents had not felt any tremors late in the afternoon, seismographic equipment in the area was still recording regular aftershocks, U.S. Forest Service spokesman Ray Schaaf said from his post in Bishop.

Retail price index rises slightly in June

WASHINGTON — Retail prices rose 0.5 percent in June to finish the first half of 1986 0.2 percent lower than they were at the end of last year, the first time the index has declined in 30 years, the Labor Department said Wednesday.

Following a 0.2 percent gain in May, June's figure was the steepest monthly rise in the seasonally adjusted price index since November 1985, when it rose 0.6 percent, analysts at the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

Reagan stumps for Southern candidates

MIAMI — Blaming Democrats for an economic tailspin in Texas and railing against "enemies of freedom" in Central America, President Ronald Reagan cut a wide swath across the South Wednesday in hot pursuit of GOP gains this fall.

With continued control of the Senate a No. 1 GOP priority in November, Reagan flew to Miami from Dallas to deliver a needed boost to Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., whose re-election is imperiled by a strong challenge from popular two-term Gov. Bob Graham.

UI may limit enrollment in liberal arts

By Michael O'Connor
Staff Writer

A tentative plan to limit the number of students admitted each year to the UI College of Liberal Arts received mixed reviews Wednesday at a meeting of the college's faculty assembly.

The plan, developed by the College of Liberal Arts Admissions Committee, was designed to offset the imbalance between the college's decreasing budget and increasing enrollment, Associate Dean James Lindberg said.

UI College of Liberal Arts Dean Gerhard Loewenberg said the college is unable to maintain its educational standards because of the imbalance between budget and enrollment.

The committee, formed last fall, examined numerous short-term proposals, Lindberg said.

TIGHTENING the state Board of Regents admission policy and changing the application deadline were among the proposals considered, he said.

But, spurred by a University of Northern Iowa proposal to revise its admission standards and a projected bleak budgetary outlook for the college, the committee felt a renewed sense of urgency to develop a plan by this fall, Lindberg said.

Under the proposed enrollment cap, a merit-priority admissions criterion will be implemented, Lindberg added.

Students with the the highest high school class rank and standardized test scores would be admitted first, Lindberg said. The academic intensity of the student's high school curriculum would also be considered, he added.

Minority and disadvantaged students would also be included in this first priority group, Lindberg said.

Students who do not fit into this priority category would be put on a waiting list, he said.

THE COMMITTEE has not determined how much the plan would reduce enrollment each year, but Lindberg speculated the level might be around 10 percent to 15 percent.

Although the plan met with approval from some faculty members, others expressed doubts. UI Associate History Professor Jeff Cox said the loss of tuition dollars resulting from the enrollment cap might aggravate the college's problems.

"I want to make sure that it is not a financial disaster for the university," Cox said. "What will the precise loss be?"

Lindberg admitted the validity of Cox's point, adding that the committee had not thoroughly addressed the issue.

Only a "fanatical faculty would cut its own budget," Cox said.

But Loewenberg said any financial loss from the plan would be offset by the ability of faculty members to offer a higher quality education to students.

Jury finds man guilty of sexual abuse

By Julie Eisele
City Editor

The trial of a man accused of sexually abusing an Iowa City woman ended Wednesday after a jury returned a guilty verdict following 28 minutes of deliberation.

Thomas Michael Rubert, 37, of West Liberty, was found guilty of third-degree sexual abuse in connection with an incident at the home of an Iowa City woman on May 6. He is being held without bond in the Johnson County Jail where he awaits sentencing.

Johnson County District Court records state Rubert, who was an acquaintance of the victim, went to her home on the evening of May 6. The two reportedly conversed, drank beer and made a trip to a liquor store.

After returning to the victim's home, Rubert reportedly grabbed the woman, forcibly removed her pants and committed a sex act despite the woman's verbal and physical attempts to stop him, court documents state.

The victim eventually terminated the assault by hitting Rubert with a telephone, records state.

Iowa City police were summoned to the scene and Rubert's arrest followed. Iowa City Police Sgt. William Cook, who responded to the incident, testified at the trial that Rubert did not appear intoxicated at the time of arrest.

Third-degree sexual abuse is a class C felony, punishable by up to 10 years in prison and a fine up to $10,000.

Jerry E. Sehr, 20, of Route 3, Iowa City, made an initial appearance in Johnson County District Court Wednesday on a charge of assault causing bodily injury.

Sehr is accused of assaulting an Iowa City woman in her home July 19. He allegedly went to the woman's home and was "angered with her about other men she may have dated." Sehr then struck the woman in the face, knocked her to the floor and struck her again, according to court records.

Sehr was ordered to restrict his travel to Iowa and to have no contact with the victim. A preliminary hearing is scheduled for Aug. 6.

Kirkwood wins grant

The Gannett Foundation has awarded a $9,494 grant to the Iowa City Adult Literacy program. The Kirkwood Community College program provides free, one-on-one tutoring in reading and writing. The program is funded as part of the Gannett Foundation's nationwide 1986 Adult Literacy Project.

Finance chair named

The Republican Party of Iowa announced Wednesday the appointment of Des Moines businessman Joe Batten as finance chairman for the state party. He will assume the duties of that office immediately.

Batten is chairman of the board of Batten, Batten, Hudson and Swab Inc., a human resources company engaged in management research, film production and educational services. He is also a corporate consultant, author and public speaker.

Scholarship awarded

UI junior Bette Ann Sorenson has been awarded an Iowa Centennial Memorial Foundation Scholarship for the 1986-87 academic year. Sorenson, a liberal arts major, is a graduate of Durant High School.

The scholarship awards were established by the governor in 1949 to honor outstanding students in the state. Members of the Iowa Centennial Memorial Foundation include Gov. Terry Branstad, Attorney General Tom Miller, state Board of Regents President John McDonald and other notable Iowans.

Local firm ranks high

A national engineering firm that houses an Iowa City office has been listed among the top 40 design firms in the nation in 1986 rankings compiled by an industry trade publication. Shive-Hattery Engineers, Highway 1 and Interstate 80, is listed 21st among the nation's top 40 firms ranked annually by Building Design & Construction. The firm was also rated 232nd among 500 firms ranked annually by Engineering News-Record, the McGraw Hill Construction Weekly.

Bob DeWitt, vice president of Shive-Hattery in Iowa City, said the firm was involved in engineering projects in 1985 that produced billings worth more than $10 million. The Iowa City office serves a four-state area.

Locally, the firm was project design engineer for renovation of the Iowa Avenue bridge and construction manager for the new UI Law Building, which was a $21 million project.

State allows margin of error in alcohol tests

DES MOINES (UPI) — State officials do not have to prove a blood alcohol test is 100 percent accurate when using the test results as the basis for revoking the license of a suspected drunken driver, the Iowa Supreme Court ruled Wednesday.

In making the ruling, the justices upheld the 1984 license revocation of Martin Nugent of Story County, based on a blood test showing he had an alcohol level of .102 percent.

Nugent argued the test had a margin of error of .005 percent which could have meant his blood alcohol level was below the state's .10 percent limit.

However, the justices ruled the Iowa Department of Transportation is not required to consider the .005 percent margin for error and need only cite the test results when making license revocation decisions.

The court rejected arguments by the three men that state law requires the IDOT to issue temporary work permits to any convicted drunken driver over the age of 19.

The justices Wednesday also upheld the second-degree murder conviction of a Scott County man, even though the jury in his case was wrongly given an affidavit from the foreman of a co-defendant's jury.

Mark Sauls was convicted in the December 1982 death of Steven Estabrook, who was stabbed while driving his Volvo. Sauls was sitting in the back seat of the vehicle. Another defendant, Michael Marit, who was sitting next to Estabrook, was convicted in a separate trial.

SAULS ARGUED he should be granted a new trial because the jury in his case was allowed to see an affidavit from the foreman of Marit's jury who described an experiment by jurors to see whether Estabrook could have been stabbed by someone sitting in the back seat of the car. The court also upheld the third-degree sexual abuse conviction of a Linn County man, ruling his retarded victim may have been mentally incapable of consenting to engage in sex acts with him.

The justices rejected arguments by Ronald Clancy that a social worker should not have been allowed to testify the teenage girl was too retarded to understand the nature of her actions.

Iowan faces Tipton bank heist charge

CEDAR RAPIDS (UPI) — An Iowa man was charged with one count of bank robbery in U.S. District Court Wednesday after he was arrested at a Geneseo, Ill., motel for allegedly robbing a Tipton bank on Tuesday, officials said.

Illinois authorities were holding Rick Pottebaum, 18, of rural Earlville, Iowa, without bond after about two dozen federal and Illinois law officers converged on the Oakwood Motel and arrested the jail escapee at about 8:30 a.m.

Pottebaum was wanted as a suspect in a heist at the Tipton branch of the United Federal Savings Bank of Iowa in which a masked man robbed a teller of about $3,000. He also was sought for escaping from custody in Delaware County July 10 and other charges were pending.

The suspect, who eluded Iowa authorities in a 50-mile chase through eastern Iowa Tuesday, checked into the Geneseo motel at about 2 a.m. Wednesday, Mary Hon, who owns the Oakwood Motel with her husband, Arnold, said.

"It was just like he was a weary traveler," Hon said of the man who registered under the name Randy Wilson and paid for two days' stay with three $20 bills.

FEDERAL AND Illinois authorities were summoned to the motel about six hours later when a Geneseo police officer spotted a stolen pickup truck parked outside the motel, said Geneseo Police Chief Lou Bervid.

"One of our officers was checking area motels because he knew about that bank robbery yesterday and he was checking the area motels for possible vehicles involved and he came upon that vehicle," Bervid said.

Authorities called the motel managers Wednesday morning and asked them to tell lodgers near unit No. 8 to leave quietly and no one was to go near that unit, Hon said.

She woke her husband to alert him to the situation and half-jokingly told him "you know, there's a bank robber loose and he just might be here." Hon said her off-the-cuff remark proved to be accurate a short time later.

AFTER CLEARING people out of the area, up to 25 law officers moved in and arrested Pottebaum without incident at around 8:30 a.m., Bervid said.

The suspect was taken to the Henry County Jail in Cambridge, Ill., and held in connection with the escape, the alleged theft of vehicles in Linn and Scott counties in Iowa and the Tipton bank robbery, the police chief said.

Bob Tieg of the U.S. attorney's office in Cedar Rapids said the federal bank robbery charge was filed Wednesday afternoon.

Pottebaum allegedly led law officers on a 50-mile chase at speeds exceeding 100 mph through three eastern Iowa counties before eluding authorities near Folletts, Iowa. During the chase, a Scott County sheriff's deputy fired a shot at the speeding vehicle and at least one officer's car was damaged.

Peace marchers trek toward Iowa City

LADORA, Iowa (UPI) — Participants in the Great Peace March, rejuvenated by a $10,000 donation from Yoko Ono, continue their cross-country trek toward a weekend of celebration in Iowa City.

The marchers, still numbering about 500 after five months, will reach the 100th campsite in their journey for nuclear disarmament sometime tonight when they arrive at South Amana for an overnight stay.

Kathy Belge, a march spokeswoman from Syracuse, N.Y., said some rumors of financial difficulties were partly true but that much of the problem was eased by Ono's contribution.

"That helped a lot, and we were really grateful," Belge said.

Most of the money will be used to buy food, but march organizers continue their appeal for donations of food, clothing and hot showers as the march goes from town to town.

THE MARCH will launch another weekend of events when it pulls into the Iowa City area Saturday. Events include the Marcher For a Day program, whereby residents can join the march from Tiffin to Coralville. A 3 p.m. parade is scheduled to greet marchers upon entering Coralville.

A peace celebration on the marchers' campsite, Northwest Junior High in Coralville, is planned for 7 p.m. Saturday.

Sunday events include visits by marchers to area churches, a 1 p.m. potluck dinner at the campsite, followed by a 5 p.m. wedding and a musical performance at The Mill Restaurant, 120 E. Burlington St., at 6 p.m.

MARCHERS discovered Wednesday that they will be housed on a 5-acre pasture in Oxford, Iowa, on Friday night. The group considered staying at F.W. Kent Park, but decided against it when it was determined that their water trucks are too heavy for county roads near the park.

Instead, marchers will set up their campsite — known as Peace City — on land owned by Merle and Marguerite Stockman, rural Oxford. Marguerite Stockman said Wednesday that marchers approached the farm couple earlier this week.

"They're a very friendly bunch. They're from all walks of life," she said.

Senator denounces S. African policy

George Shultz

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., led a bipartisan assault Wednesday on the administration's no-sanctions stand on South Africa, angrily telling Secretary of State George Shultz the U.S. policy lacks "moral backbone."

In a table-thumping denunciation of President Ronald Reagan's renewed declaration of opposition to sanctions against the white-minority government in Pretoria, Biden told Shultz, "I hate to hear an administration and a secretary of state refusing to act on a morally abhorrent point."

Shultz, responding to Biden's complaints during a Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing, argued the senator had misconstrued his testimony and said the president's policy evolved on a bipartisan basis and has "tremendous moral backbone."

The House has passed legislation calling for an economic boycott of South Africa to end its system of racial segregation known as apartheid. The Senate is considering sanctions, with its Republican leaders leaning toward a milder package but parting with Reagan's policy.

THE WHITE HOUSE flatly denied reports Wednesday that the United States has provided secret reports on the anti-apartheid African National Congress in exchange for intelligence on Soviet and Cuban activity in Africa.

Deputy press secretary Larry

Speakes said the report, appearing in Wednesday's New York Times, is "not true."

Shultz also denied the report during the Senate hearing, saying he spoke Wednesday morning with CIA director William Casey about the allegation.

"He told me categorically it was not true and that it was not true in the course of his administration there," Schultz said.

According to the Times, however, current and former administration officials, who declined to be named, said both political intelligence and specific warnings about planned guerrilla attacks by the ANC were passed on to the South Africans by the United States under Reagan at least into the mid-1980s.

U.S. businessmen caught selling airplanes to Libya

ATLANTA (UPI) — Two Libyans and five American businessmen were charged Wednesday with selling two civilian transport planes worth almost $60 million to the government of Moammar Gadhafi.

A seven-count indictment released in Atlanta said the Libyans — acting on the orders of that nation's top military official — paid $57.4 million for two Lockheed L-100-30 planes and spare parts.

U.S. Attorney Stephen Cowen said the Libyans planned to buy equipment to modify the aircraft so they would have aerial refueling capabilities similar to military planes.

"This is the largest diversion of military equipment to Libya ever discovered," said Steven Hooper, resident agent in charge of the U.S. Customs Service.

Three American companies and two West German firms, headed by the Libyans, also were charged in the conspiracy. Investigators said they uncovered the plot in time to stop the men from buying two more planes worth $60 million.

THE UNITED STATES has prohibited the sale and export of military materials to Libya since February, 1978.

Abu Bakr Yunnis Jaabir, chief of staff of the Libyan Armed Forces, was named as an unindicted co-conspirator, but Cowen said, "I don't believe there's any evidence that Moammar Gadhafi is personally involved."

Cowen said Jaabir wrote a letter to the two Libyans ordering them to buy the planes.

No charges were lodged against Lockheed, the nation's largest defense contractor, although the indictment said a company official warned some of the suspects they were being investigated last summer.

"We took a hard look to see whether or not Lockheed and Lockheed officials were criminally involved in these indictments," Cowen said. "There was insufficient evidence to charge anyone from Lockheed."

Lockheed spokesman Dick Martin said his company, acting on information from a secret government source, tipped authorities that Libyans had bought the planes.

Eight cent tax set for cigarettes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Finance Committee, in an unexpected move to comply with the Gramm-Rudman Balanced Budget Act, voted Wednesday to increase the cigarette tax by 8 cents beginning in October, upping the total tax to 24 cents a pack.

The committee voted 11-8 for the tax hike, part of a $13.5 billion three-year package needed to meet the Gramm-Rudman target of reducing the deficit to $144 billion in fiscal 1987, which begins Oct. 1.

Hiking the cigarette tax would raise $5 billion over three years, officials said, and was approved instead of an increase in the telephone excise tax, which had been proposed earlier by the committee.

Concurrently with the committee's action, Senate budget leaders began their attempt to fix up Gramm-Rudman.

Sens. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, Warren Rudman, R-N.H., and Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., introduced the repair amendment to the bill needed to lift the federal debt ceiling from $2 trillion to $2.3 trillion. They want to fix the automatic budget cutting procedure by putting the director of the Office of Management and Budget in charge of cuts. The Supreme Court said the original method, which employed the comptroller general, was unconstitutional because the comptroller is a legislative, not executive, officer.

Andrew, Fergie wed amidst rose petals and royal pranks

LONDON (UPI) — Commoner Sarah Ferguson, radiant but nervous, married Prince Andrew amid great splendor Wednesday and the new Duke and Duchess of York began their honeymoon trip in a carriage filled with rose petals and a huge teddy bear — a royal prank by the prince's brother Edward.

Robert Runcie, the Archbishop of Canterbury, married Queen Elizabeth's second son and his bride, both 26, in Westminster Abbey — filled with 30,000 pale pastel flowers that set off the red-haired bride's dazzling light ivory gown.

After the solemn ceremony and appearance on the balcony of Buckingham Palace, where the newlyweds obliged the cheering crowd with a kiss, the royal couple started on their honeymoon trip in an open carriage showered with rose petals by Princess Diana and the palace staff and loaded with the big brown teddy bear.

Strapped to the rear of the carriage and festooned with flags and balloons was a fake satellite dish with the message "Phone home" — again the work of Prince Edward, Prince Andrew's younger brother and best man.

A ROYAL JET with "Just Married" painted across the tail-fin waited at Heathrow Airport. It took the newlyweds to the joint Portuguese-U.S. Lajes Air Force Base on Terceira, in the Azores, where they were to transfer to the royal yacht Britannia.

Just before the wedding ceremony, the queen gave Andrew the titles of Duke of York, Earl of Inverness and Baron Killyleagh — making "Fergie," the bride's nickname, "Her Royal Highness the Duchess of York."

The Duke of York title, created in 1385, traditionally goes to a monarch's second son and according to royal protocol has precedence over the titles of prince or princess, a palace spokesman said.

U.S. to aid Aquino in paying off debts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Foreign Affairs Committee voted overwhelmingly Wednesday to give the Philippine government an immediate $250 million to help the fledgling democracy pay its debts.

The measure, approved 26-2 as part of the "Assistance for Democracy Act," would transfer $250 million in unrestricted funds to the new government of Corazon Aquino before October, the end of the 1986 fiscal year, by adding the money to the 1986 budget.

The measure's principal backer, Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., said the money would make little difference in the budget deficit despite criticism it would violate balanced budget targets.

"THEY NEED THIS additional money and they need it now," Solarz said, calling the funds a "one-shot appropriation... which will leave them in very good shape" before approved long-term funds begin flowing to the Philippines.

Rep. Gerald Solomon, R-N.Y., questioned whether the measure had a chance of passage considering administration directives to hold back spending.

He said the bill could embarrass Philippine President Corazon Aquino if it fails before she travels to Washington in September to address a joint session of Congress.

But Solarz spokesman Stanley Roth said the overwhelming vote "is an indication of the depth of the support for the Aquino government" that "bodes well of possibilities for floor action."

On June 26, Congress approved the administration's request for $150 million in Philippine aid, including $50 million for military assistance, in addition to $236 million already allocated. The same day, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved a bill for another $100 million in economic aid.

James Taylor

Jackson Browne

Singer-songwriters adapt their styles

By Allen Hogg
Staff Writer

JACKSON BROWNE and James Taylor both rode to fame in the early 1970s during the peak of the singer-songwriter era. Like others of their time, Browne and Taylor broke musical conventions by creating relatively simple, sparsely arranged music accompanied by first-person, confessional lyrics.

Browne, who will be playing at Cedar Rapids' Five Seasons Center this Friday, emerged with such songs as "Doctor My Eyes" and "Here Comes Those Tears." He served as a veritable "voice of the 1970s," surveying the "Me Decade" universe from its Southern California epicenter.

With songs such as "Fire and Rain," Taylor, who will appear at the Five Seasons Center on Aug. 5, presented a darker view of life at the edge of the Music

Baby Boom. Battles with mental illness and drug addiction marked his life and his music, and the breakup of his marriage with Carly Simon stood as a symbol of the failure of his generation to find romantic bliss.

AS THE singer-songwriter era of the early 1970s transformed into the world of flamboyant pop that dominates music today, both Browne and Taylor changed their styles. Each has grown less personal, although in different ways. And these different ways have brought markedly different results.

As Taylor grew out of the early 1970s, his career turned into that of a sweet-voiced cover artist finding his greatest glory singing the words of others. Remakes of Marvin Gaye's "How Sweet It Is," Jimmy Jones' "Handy Man" and the Drifters' "Up on the Roof" have been his most familiar tunes of the past 10 years.

This continues; the single off Taylor's most recent album, That's Why I'm Here, was a cover of Buddy Holly's "Everyday." While it, like his other remakes, is pleasant, it has not helped him carve out a clear identity. Therefore, equaling his past successes has been difficult, and Taylor probably remains largely unknown to much of the MTV generation.

BROWNE, ON THE other hand, has begun to gaze more and more at the horizon, seeking what is beyond it as well. No longer an introspective artist, he has transformed himself into a concerned rock 'n' roller, attempting to wake up America and make the nation aware of what Browne sees as its problems.

"I was made for America/I can't let go 'till she comes around," he sings on his current album, Lives in the Balance.

This approach does not always lead to the best commercial ends. Browne's most successful single remains the frivolous "Somebody's Baby" from the Fast Times at Ridgemoor High soundtrack. It has, however, kept him near the heart of popular music. More than a decade after floating to the surface in the singer-songwriter era, Jackson Browne remains in the mainstream.

Tickets for Jackson Browne are reserved at $15. Reserved seats for James Taylor are available from the Five Seasons Center for $15.50.

Motherhood takes spotlight for actress

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — While many working women can remain on the job almost until their babies are born, film actresses usually cannot.

There have been occasions when a leading lady in a TV series has had her pregnancy written into the script, thereby adding another dimension to the show.

Lucille Ball was the first on network TV to incorporate her pregnancy into the story line and "I Love Lucy" drew enormous ratings when little Ricky Ricardo was born.

But it's another story in the movies. On the big screen, it is almost impossible to photograph a pregnant woman to hide her condition.

Some actresses, early in their pregnancies, purposely avoid telling their directors they are expecting and sometimes get away with it.

As often happens, a pregnant movie actress will forfeit a plum role or two, parts that could add luster to her career. Therefore, many are reluctant to become pregnant fearing they will lose a dynamic, career-building part.

THAT IS the experience of Bess Armstrong, one of the stars of Nothing in Common in which she co-stars with Tom Hanks and Jackie Gleason.

The blonde beauty, who starred with Tom Selleck in High Road to China, abandoned all hope of starring roles this spring when she discovered, to her surprise, that she was expecting a baby.

"I did miss out on a very appealing part," said Armstrong, who was eight months along during lunch recently on the Sunset Strip. "But that's life. I'd rather not discuss the picture."

"The pregnancy was unexpected, but very welcome," Armstrong said. "There is a pitfall among actresses who delay having children because there is always some part coming along that she wants to play. Years go by and then it's too late."

"That's why I'm glad about this baby," she continued. "As an actress you give up a little to gain a lot. If you want children, you gotta get pregnant. You've got to take the plunge.

"I'VE SEEN too many women I like and admire miss the opportunity and they spend their lives looking back with regret," said Armstrong. "They let some big breaks stand in the way of motherhood."

The choice between motherhood and career is tougher for actresses like Armstrong than for major stars in great demand.

Established actresses — Jessica Lange, Meryl Streep, Sissy Spacek and Shelley Long — find the decision easier. Good roles will await them after they become mothers.

Years ago, stars often tried to hide the fact that they were parents. Their children were hidden from the media. Some actors and actresses even kept their marriages secret to preserve their public images as sex symbols.

THE CURRENT generation of movie stars can live more openly. "Motherhood certainly hasn't hurt Sally Field's and Jane Fonda's careers," said Armstrong.

"I don't know if it is important for every woman to have a baby," she said. "But we all have to make the choice. Some actresses, like many women, are better off without children. There's no doubt being a mother will complicate my lifestyle and career. I will try to strike a balance between my work and motherhood."

The actress' chief concern is "having a housekeeper and a nanny, sloughing off the baby on the help ... I'd be jealous of another woman raising my baby. I couldn't accept the presence of a third parent in the family," she said.

Armstrong, who starred last year in the canceled "All is Forgiven" TV sitcom, says a TV series is ideal for a new mother. It would enable her to stay in Hollywood and work regular hours. But in movies there is always the possibility of faraway locations.

"Right now my baby is more important to me than my career," said Armstrong.

'Alternative' plays offered

By Beth Lucht
Staff Writer

IOWA CITY has always been lucky to have a quality and quantity of theater disproportionate to the size of the population. Theater-going options include University Theaters, the Riverside Theater and the Iowa City Community Theater, not to mention various touring plays which are performed at Hancher.

But too much is not always enough, at least in the eyes of local playwrights and directors. Student directors Steve Brown and Frank Bartella sought scripts, actors and a place to perform. What they ended up with was Alternative Theater, a night of two one-act plays: "The Gamesters," by Frederik Norberg and "Manifest Destiny," by Melvyn Jones.

The plays and the direction are both excellent. "The Gamesters" tells the story of a married couple and the games they must play to communicate with one another. From the start it is clear that communication is not Larry's (Giff Hardy) forte. Rather than openly admit to Sandy (Trish Duncan) what is bugging him, he wanders around the living room, expounding on the possibilities that lie hidden on a piece of moldy cheese.

"THERE MAY BE a teeny-weeny civilization with weather satellites all their own. Their own country, their own congress. There may be an abscam trial taking place on this very piece of cheddar," he says, as his wife frantically works on her thesis.

Sandy, of course, takes no notice of him, so he resorts to nastier tactics — singing "Yellow Submarine" while marching around on his knees. Finally, he forces Sandy into a mock trial situation which turns into an all-out battle.

But Larry is not the only person with problems. Sandy, despite her plea of innocence, is really guilty of contributing to the problems of the marriage in a much larger way than Larry. Husband and wife work out their aggressions in a sexually charged scene at the end of the play, and, for better or for worse, resume the same regular routine that led to their argument in the first place.

Norberg's script, except for a few exceptions, is quite real. Larry and Sandy are just typical people involved in an atypical situation. Steve Brown directs the play with this realism in mind, and actors Hardy and Duncan carry it off convincingly.

THIS IS A promising effort from first-time playwright Norberg, who explained that the production "The Gamesters" marked the first time he had seen his work onstage. Norberg was happy with the production and response but said he was "a little numb."

"Manifest Destiny" is much more surreal than "The Gamesters," but succeeds just as well. It is a speculative tale of two men trying to "settle" the salt flats of Utah. They are taught by the government to shovel salt all day from one pile to another. Jim (Terry Walcutt) realizes the futility of this, but Audie (Barry Wyatt) has been brainwashed into believing he is somehow making the flats more inhabitable.

More than about Jim and Audie, "Manifest Destiny" is about acceptance of stupidity in the name of "progress." What starts as inane becomes violent and Audie's gullibility makes him a victim of this pointless brutality.

The only problem with the production is the ridiculous southern accent used by all the characters. These people are basically rednecks, so an accent is appropriate, but to do one convincingly requires more rehearsal time than the three weeks the actors had.

DESPITE THE unnatural accents, the actors are very well-directed by Frank Bartella. Barry Wyatt is especially notable in his religious zeal for "settlin' the flats."

No one is certain at this point if Alternative Theater is a one-time event or if it will become another fixture on the growing dramatic scene. One can only hope it will continue providing variety and texture for local audiences to enjoy.

"The Gamesters" and "Manifest Destiny" will be performed this evening, as well as Friday and Saturday, at 8 p.m. at 10 S. Gilbert St.

Wynne's double halts Padres' drought

CHICAGO (UPI) — Marvell Wynne's one-out tie-breaking double in the eighth inning Wednesday gave San Diego a 7-5 victory over the Chicago Cubs and snapped the Padres' five-game losing streak.

With the score tied 5-5, Steve Garvey led off the eighth with a single off Ray Fontenot. Dave Gumpert relieved and pinch-hitter Bruce Bochy sacrificed pinch-runner Bip Roberts to second. Wynne followed with a double to left-center, scoring Roberts, took third on left fielder Garry Matthews' throwing error and scored on Gumpert's wild pitch.

Craig Lefferts, 7-4, pitched the seventh to get the victory while Goose Gossage worked the final two innings for his 16th save. Gossage struck out three straight batters in the ninth. Fontenot, 3-5, was the loser.

Infield single gives Yankees 3-2 win

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ron Hassey beat out an infield single with two out and the bases loaded in the 10th inning to score Willie Randolph Wednesday and give the New York Yankees a 3-2 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Randolph's pinch-hit triple with one out in the 10th finished Charlie Hough, 9-5, who had allowed three hits over the first nine innings.

Mitch Williams replaced Hough and retired pinch-hitter Gary Roenicke on a flyball to shallow right field. He then walked Don Mattingly and Dave Winfield intentionally to bring up Hassey. The designated hitter hit a slow grounder to first baseman Pete O'Brien wide of the bag. Williams did not cover first and Hassey beat O'Brien to the bag.

Dave Righetti, the fourth Yankees' pitcher, improved to 7-4 after retiring the side in the 10th inning.

Oakland completes sweep of Red Sox

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Carney Lansford went 4-for-5, including a pair of two-run homers, and Tony Phillips added three hits and three RBI Wednesday, sending the Oakland A's to a 9-2 victory and a series sweep of the Boston Red Sox.

In dropping their fourth straight — their longest losing streak of the year — and seventh in the last eight games, the Red Sox saw their lead in the American League East slip to just three games over the Yankees, who beat Texas 3-2. Boston is 1-6 on its West Coast swing.

Dave Stewart, 3-0, allowed just five hits over eight innings. He struck out six and walked just one to lead Oakland to its fourth straight triumph and eighth in the last nine contests.

Jay Howell pitched the ninth in his first appearance since May 26.

McEnroe returns after hiatus

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — John McEnroe, who went on sabbatical to tend to actress Tatum O'Neal and their newborn son, Thursday night will play No. 1 ranked Ivan Lendl in his first competitive match in six months.

The best-of-three sets match will be for $100,000 and the championship of a year-long, round-robin Forum tournament.

"You give it your best shot," McEnroe said when asked about beginning his comeback against Lendl, the French Open champion and a Wimbledon finalist. "I'm sure I'll play a little better because I'm playing him. I hope he goes out and gives 100 percent effort. I don't want to see a nonchalant effort. It would bother me if I saw that."

McEnroe, a four-time Wimbledon winner, spent the early summer at his New York and Malibu, Calif., homes getting ready to return. He lifted weights, practiced yoga and admittedly worked out hard for the first time in his life.

"You always have your doubts (about coming back)," he said. "You never know for sure, but I feel confident. It may not come immediately, but I feel it will come in time. I don't think it's going to take that long, but there's no way of knowing."

"I'm trying to prepare myself for the next couple of years. I'm not as worried about the immediate future. I'm trying to get myself ready for the rest of the '80s."

THE SO-CALLED tennis brat credits domestic life for his somewhat new approach.

"Family life changes you," he said. "It's the best thing that's ever happened. It's a broken record for anyone who has children. I thank God everyday. It's wonderful."

McEnroe, who will be on the circuit full time beginning with a Volvo tournament in Stowton, Vt. next month, unabashedly said the sport was not the same without him.

"People came up to me and said, 'We miss you, tennis misses you and we hope you come back,'" he said.

NCAA charges 'surprise' ISU's Criner

AMES, Iowa (UPI) — Iowa State football coach Jim Criner, surprised and disappointed over an NCAA probe of his team, said Wednesday a former player "better be prepared to prove" charges that ISU athletic boosters offered loans to players.

Iowa State President Gordon Eaton also said he will ask the NCAA for more time to respond to the football investigation because there are too many allegations and too many people implicated to complete a report before the team's season opener.

However, he indicated the list of 33 allegations are less critical of the ISU basketball team and said that an in-house probe should be finished by the NCAA's Sept. 5 deadline. Criner, in his first public comment on the controversy, said he is "surprised and disappointed" by the reports of wrongdoing at the Big Eight school.

"We have tried hard to run a clean program — an up-and-up program," he said in a private interview with United Press International.

"We have made a lot of progress since I've been here both in academic achievement of players working toward degrees and the attitude of the players. We are starting to make some real headway toward fielding a competitive football team. It is very unfortunate we have to go through this," he said.

JERRY QUICK, a former Cyclone who said he transferred to Wichita State in 1984 following an argument with Criner, told UPI players were offered loans from athletic boosters in violation of NCAA rules.

"They were pre-set up for you. They didn't give you any specifics (before transferring to ISU). They just said that things would be taken care of," Quick said. But Criner said Quick's report was news to him.

"I knew nothing about it. If he is going to make those charges, he better be prepared to prove them," Criner said.

The fourth-year Cyclone coach said he would have been aware of any illegal booster involvement with his players.

"This is a small community. When things like that are going on the players know about it, everybody in the community knows about it," he said.

Criner also disputed Quick's version of his departure. Quick said Criner threatened him and told him "if I didn't play there (at ISU), he would make sure I didn't play any place else." Criner said that was not true.

"Jerry just didn't show up for fall drills. I never spoke to him after summer school," he said.

CRINER SAID he has been contacted by an NCAA investigator, "but I didn't put a whole lot of stock in it. Because of what I heard, there was no reason to."

He declined to say when that conversation took place. Iowa State administrators also have refused to place a time frame on the investigation, although some players and former coaches say the probe began more than 18 months ago.

American retains Tour de France lead

ST. ETIENNE, France (UPI) — In another day of mountain racing, Spaniard Julian Gorospe won the 19th stage of the Tour de France cycle race Wednesday while American Greg Lemond retained the overall leader's yellow jersey.

Gorospe was ahead most of the 111.5-mile stage, covering the distance in five hours, six minutes, and 10 seconds.

Lemond, the first American ever to lead the 83-year-old Tour, finished eighth in the pack, at 2:27 back. He retained a lead of 2:43 over five-time Tour champion Bernard Hinault of France, who finished in the same time as Lemond.

Also: 24. Steve Bauer, Canada, 50:39; 66. Bob Roll, U.S., 1:34:54; 75. Jeff Pierce, U.S., 1:42:23; 100. Norm Kestel, U.S., 1:56:04; 113. Alex Steida, Canada, 2:23:07.

Despite keeping the lead for a third straight day, Lemond continues to feel pressured by the intense rivalry between himself and his La Vie Claire teammate Hinault.

"I'm very nervous and the tension keeps mounting," the 25-year-old Californian said. "I hope the public will act normally from here to the end. I'm tired of watching out for Bernard Hinault."

THE DUEL between the two stems from Hinault's promise, after winning his fifth Tour last year, to help Lemond in his bid to become the first American ever to win cycling's most prestigious race.
