Official ceremony marks new school year

By Tom Hunter
Special to The Daily Iowan

Students were let out of their early morning classes Wednesday for a program of good will speeches marking the opening of the new school year.

UI President James O. Freedman took the podium on the steps of the Old Capitol to urge students to view college as an opportunity, not as forced labor.

"Without that spirit and enthusiasm, the vital years of college or professional education may be mistaken for an arbitrarily required interlude of pointless drudgery," Freedman said.

Freedman called the effect of enthusiasm on a classroom one of the "great mysteries about teaching."

"The difference between a stimulating class and a dull one is often no more than the enrollment of one or two students whose eager, inquisitive attitudes spark debate and fire up the intellectual atmosphere of the classroom," Freedman said.

UI NURSING Professor Joanne McCloskey spoke, giving advice to students on setting realistic goals.

Students should control their social drinking habits, McCloskey said.

"An occasional tailgating party provides a fun change of pace, but making this a regular weekend-long habit is a danger to your goals," McCloskey said. Students tend to relax at the start of the school year, allowing their homework to pile up, she said.

"It's easy at the beginning of a new year to fool yourself that there is a lot of time," McCloskey said. After the slow start, student morale fades when midterms arrive, McCloskey said.

Students should rely on realistic hopes for the future to get them through their fears of the present, she said.

Senior Andy Weise, representing UI students, spoke last on the program. Weise told his peers they are in the prime of their lives and must not waste this time.

WEISE RELATED an anecdote about a 92-year-old man who had impressed him with the value of every minute of the day.

"Don't take these opportunities, nor your precious minutes, for granted," Weise said.

After the program ended, Weise said he had never been to an opening ceremony before Wednesday, but he felt the program was a nice way to begin the school year.

With about two dozen top UI administrators in full academic regalia standing with him, Weise said he felt somewhat out of place during the ceremony.

"I felt a little like Sesame Street: One of these things doesn't belong," Weise said.

Reactions from students in the audience tended to agree with the positive intent of the speeches.

UI student Dan Meade said he came to the program with a bad attitude, but he was encouraged by seeing the faculty's concern.

"It's nice to see the bigwig care," Meade said.

Slager suspect requests inquiry

By Ann Szemplenski
Special to The Daily Iowan

A man accused in the Aug. 3 shooting of an Iowa City man will request that a private investigator look into his case at a hearing today in Johnson County District Court.

Ramone Joseph DeSantiago II, 18, Council Bluffs, who was charged with attempted murder in the shooting of 23-year-old John Slager, filed an application Tuesday requesting that the investigator be paid by the state.

DeSantiago, who pleaded innocent to the charge last week, will appear in court at 10:30 a.m.

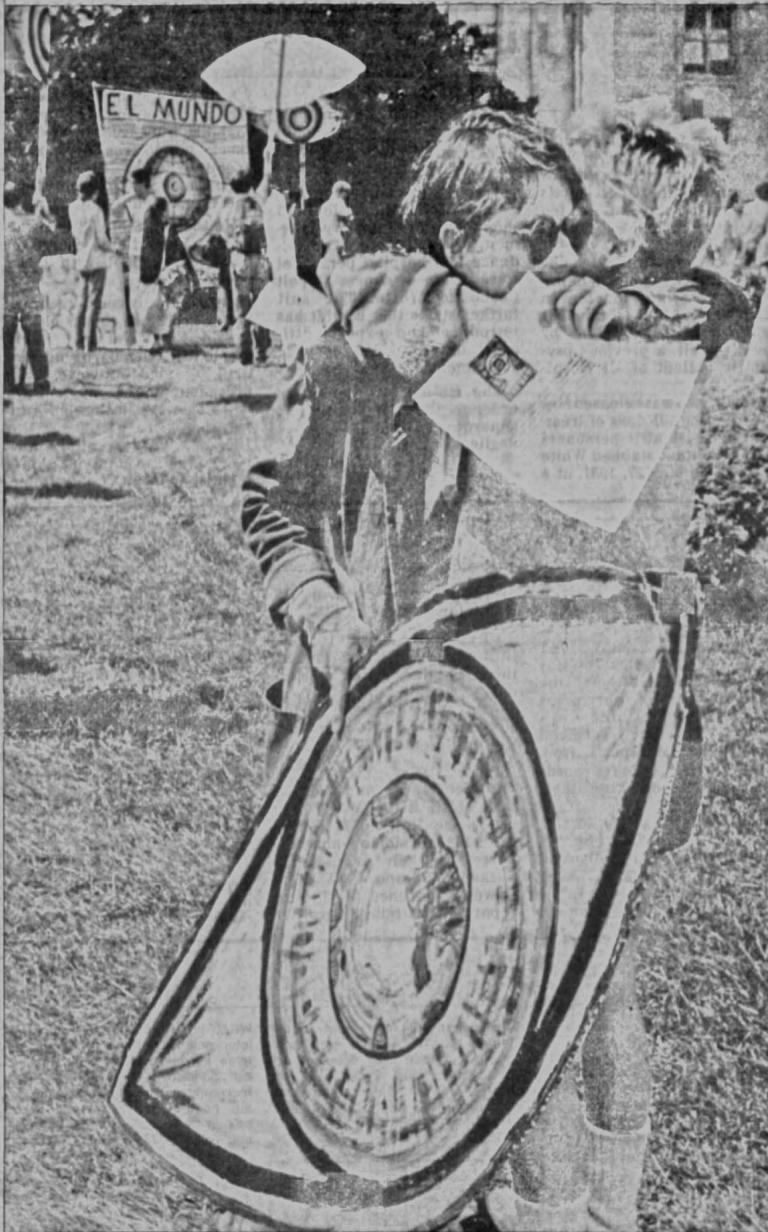

Slager, 650 S. Dodge St., was shot in the head when he approached a man who was apparently trying to steal his motorcycle, according to Detective Sgt. Craig Lih of the Iowa City Police Department. Slager's condition was upgraded Wednesday from serious to fair at UI Hospitals.

THE INCIDENT occurred shortly before 2 a.m. on Clinton Street outside Old Capitol Center. Iowa City police detectives interviewed several witnesses, one of whom attended high school with DeSantiago and recognized him as the assailant.

DeSantiago was arrested Aug. 5 in Omaha, Neb., and charged with attempted murder. He is being held in the Johnson County Jail in lieu of $111,525.

Two other Council Bluffs men charged in connection with the murder will also appear in court today. Steven Wayne Brickey, 20, and Ralph Peterson, 23, both charged with accessory after the fact, will appear for arraignment at 1:30 p.m. today.

On Tuesday, Brickey filed a written plea of innocence to the accessory through his defense attorney, Clemens Erdahl.

Survey reveals city gas prices high

By Bruce Japsen
Staff Writer

Recent gasoline price increases have left Iowa City motorists paying about a nickel more than residents in other parts of the state, an official said Wednesday.

Larry Dombrowski, an economic analyst with the energy bureau of the Iowa Department of Natural Resources in Des Moines, conducted a price-per-gallon survey that revealed Iowa service stations were selling regular gas at 84 cents per gallon and unleaded gas at 88 cents per gallon.

Iowa City stations averaged about 89 cents for regular gas and about 94 cents for unleaded, but Dombrowski said he doubts prices are related to the student population.

"I don't think there would be a price hike just because college students happen to be coming back to school," he

Iowans may pay at pump for IDOT plan

The Iowa Department of Transportation is studying plans for a $1.1 billion highway improvement project unveiled this week, an undertaking that could cost Iowans more at the gas pump.

The possible increase on gasoline tax comes in addition to prices that have increased in the Iowa City area by about 10 cents in the past month.

The project, which IDOT officials say will create thousands of jobs in Iowa, would require at least a 2 cent per gallon increase in the state motor fuel tax. Monies from established highway funding sources also would be used.

The two-stage project would include improvements to be made on U.S. Highway 218 from Iowa City to Mount Pleasant. David Plazak, IDOT transportation planner, said plans for the highway have not been finalized, despite reports that the roadway would be revamped to accommodate four lanes.

said. "Iowa City is high, but it certainly is not out of line with the rest of the state."

DOMBROWSKI said the price increase came about because the Organization of Petroleum Export Countries announced earlier this month that member countries will cut production by 20 percent, effective Sept. 1.

The announcement itself is the reason U.S. petroleum companies are raising prices, Dombrowski said.

"Emotions are running high because of the announcement," he said. "It's not a market problem. Right now, there's just oil everywhere, it's not like they're in short supply."

OPEC countries have been producing about 20 million barrels of crude oil per day, which is 2 to 3 million barrels more than they have been able to sell. That oil glut will continue until Sept. 1.

"They (OPEC countries) are trying to recoup their losses," Dombrowski said.

WITH THE excess crude oil this summer, OPEC prices went down along with the price at the local gasoline pumps. Recent price hikes by local gas suppliers and service stations have been made at the request of their main offices. "We just have to go with the flow," said Kevin Bell, an employee of Bob Bell's Standard, 2315 Muscatine Ave.

"Amoco usually calls us and tells us to reset our prices. There's not really that much we do ourselves to change the prices."

Local gas prices have risen about 10 cents per gallon during the month of August, Bell said.

But Dombrowski said he does not think the price increase will continue. Gas prices will eventually level off to where they were before the summer oil glut, he said.

Bob Stevens, owner of Stevens Petro, 2331 E. Washington St., said he has little control over oil or gas price increases at his business, which primarily sells fuel for farming and commercial interests.

"Major oil companies control prices," Stevens said. "Our prices operate on the same type margin. It's just a crazy market."

U.S. denies 'provoking' Gadhafi

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Administration officials said Wednesday there is "hard evidence" of recent Libyan terrorist plots, but denied there is a U.S. plan to provoke Moammar Gadhafi into action that could lead to American retaliation.

With President Ronald Reagan relaxing in Los Angeles and planning evenings out with friends Wednesday and Thursday, officials tried to walk a thin line between publicly warning of new U.S. military action and backing up their charges by revealing intelligence information.

"There is hard evidence that the Libyan government is involved in planning and seeking to execute terrorist activities," a senior administration official said.

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes denied a Washington Post report that the National Security Council intended to provoke an unstable Gadhafi into rash action by making public threats against the Libyan leader.

"OUR GOAL IS to prevent Gadhafi from doing things, not to provoke him," Speakes said.

The USS Forrester was headed for the Mediterranean coast off Libya, but Speakes said its new orders were part of "a routine, long-planned naval exercise."

A senior official said the aircraft carrier was not posted off Libya to either provoke Gadhafi or to take part in any military action, like the April 15 U.S. raid against Tripoli and Benghazi.

Rather, he suggested, there might have been security concerns about giving the crew liberty in the Mideast during a scheduled port call in Haifa, Israel.

Ronald Reagan

The senior official, who declined to be named, denied a New York Times story suggesting that administration spokesmen working with the president in California had used the news media to overstate the case against Libya.

THE OFFICIAL denied the administration was engaged in a campaign of "disinformation" aimed at scaring Gadhafi or building support for any new action among European allies.

U.N. Ambassador Vernon Walters is discussing possible economic, diplomatic and military actions against Libya with European leaders this week and is sharing some U.S. intelligence with them, Speakes said.

The Journal cited evidence of Libyan involvement in several terrorist plots, and the administration official said he does "not disbelieve any of them," although each instance had a varying degree of credibility.

Longtime UI minister plans retirement

After more than 30 years of ministry in the Iowa City area, the Rev. Sally Smith, campus minister at United Ministries in Higher Education, will retire Friday.

"She's touched the lives of many people in this community, especially in the university community," Iowa City United Ministries in Higher Education Chairwoman Hermine McLeran said.

Smith, 62, first came to Iowa City in 1955. Her work in the subsequent four decades concentrated on social activism and community service.

She was instrumental in the establishment of the Melrose Daycare Center, the longest running non-profit daycare center in Iowa City.

Retirement does not mean the end of her long ministry, Smith said. "I'll probably do church work for nothing," she said.

Smith's position will be filled by Darrel Yeane, from the United Ministries in Higher Education at the University of California-Santa Cruz.

Four inducted in women's hall of fame

Four notable Iowans, including one UI graduate, were named to the Iowa Women's Hall of Fame in Des Moines Wednesday.

In a ceremony commemorating the 66th anniversary of the day American women first received the vote, UI graduate Marguerite Esters Cothorn of Des Moines, Willie Stevenson Glanton of Des Moines and Dorothy Schramm of Burlington were inducted into the hall of fame.

Accepting the posthumous award for Jessie M. Parker of Lake Mills, Iowa, was her niece, Normakay Marthinson of Minneapolis.

Gov. Terry Branstad and Chris Branstad presented the women with awards at the ceremony held in Des Moines.

Cothorn received a master's degree in social work from the UI in 1954. Schramm received the UI Distinguished Service Award in 1971.

Hawkeye Express bus service expands

Iowa City Transit has begun additional rush-hour service to the Hawkeye Apartment area.

The Hawkeye Express route provides direct service from both Hawkeye Drive and Hawkeye Court Apartments to the UI medical complex and downtown area.

The express makes five trips in the morning from 7 to 9 a.m. and four trips in the afternoon from 4 to 6 p.m.

For more information on the Hawkeye Express schedule, call Iowa City Transit at 356-5151 or pick up a schedule on any Iowa City Transit bus.

Drop-in film series tops WRAC schedule

The UI Women's Resource and Action Center, 130 N. Madison St., will begin a drop-in film series with showings of The Women's Film on Monday from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. and next Thursday from 10:30 a.m. to noon.

The film provides a view of women's struggles against sexist oppression from various social and economic classes.

The drop-in film series allows people to view films at any time during the several hours of showing at the center.

Other WRAC events planned include a lunch discussion of the roots of sexism.

The Sept. 3 Brown Bag Lunch will feature UI Assistant Anthropology and Women's Studies Professor Florence Babb and a discussion of "The Patriarchy: The Fundamental Cause of Sexism?"

The discussion, which begins at 12:10 p.m., is part of a month-long series of programs on the theme of sexism.

UI study seeks to help hearing-impaired

Combining video and computer technologies in a new way, a UI College of Medicine research team is developing educational materials that could help hearing-impaired children improve their classroom performance.

The UI team is developing and evaluating three training programs in which hearing-impaired children can use a computer and special software to control a series of video sequences stored on a laser videodisk.

The three-year, $23,000 grant for the project was awarded by the Easter Seal Society of Iowa to UI Assistant Research Scientist Nancy Tye-Murray and UI Associate Professor of Otolaryngology and Maxillofacial Surgery Richard Tyler.

Tye-Murray plans to test the materials on moderately to severely hearing-impaired children who spend part or all of their school day in classrooms with unimpaired children.

These students often are in the position of trying to learn in a setting where teachers and classmates are unaware of their special needs, she said.

Ketchmark and Neuhauser condemn PAC contributions

By James Cahoy
Staff Writer

State House of Representatives candidate Mike Ketchmark held a news conference Wednesday to denounce the use of political action committees and call for his opponent to join him in refusing all PAC contributions.

Ketchmark, Republican candidate for the 46th District seat, said his decision will cost him $2,000 to $4,000 and might ultimately cost the election.

"But it is so engrained in my nature that these contributions are wrong that this is a chance I must take," Ketchmark said in a prepared statement.

But Johnson County Democratic Chairman Ron Bohlken called Ketchmark's statement "a joke."

"If you look at campaigns here in the past, $50 total is about the most any candidate could hope to get from political action committees," Bohlken said.

"IT'S JUST A POLITICAL

ploy, a publicity stunt on his part," he added. "It doesn't have any validity in this race."

Mary Neuhauser, Ketchmark's Democratic opponent, said she has no plans to solicit contributions from PACs and would not accept money from any special-interest PACs.

"I might accept a contribution from a good government PAC, but that's about it," she said.

"I don't like PACs. I think some kind of public funding program for campaigns would be a much better way of doing things. I don't think PACs should be necessary in a political campaign," she said.

She added that she has not been offered any PAC money so far. "I doubt I will be offered any," she said.

KETCHMARK CALLED Bohlken's charge "a very uneducated thing to say. There are over a 100 PACs in Iowa, and if I would have approached any one of them, I could have gotten a contribution from them. It just doesn't make sense to say that $50 is the most any candidate could get from a PAC."

Ketchmark said he has been solicited by over 20 PACs wanting to make contributions to his campaign. "There was a PAC reception in Des Moines for Republican candidates and I turned down an invitation to go there," he added.

Ketchmark said he talked with incumbent legislators who claimed that some PACs will contribute $100 to $200 automatically.

Bohlken said Neuhauser had no plans to call a press conference and announce she would not be accepting PAC money.

"It's not worth the trouble. Why go through the games?" he said.

Ketchmark claimed that very few candidates will take a stand on PACs in Iowa. "You don't see very many coming out and saying they won't take PAC contributions," he said.

Neuhauser said she admires Ketchmark. "I always appreciate anyone who takes a stand," she said.

Courts

By Ann Szemplenski
Special to The Daily Iowan

A motion for summary judgment filed by the state of Iowa in connection with an earlier suit accusing the UI Hospitals of breach of duty was denied Wednesday in Johnson County District Court.

The earlier suit, filed by Nancy L. Ewoldt as administrator of estate for Steven Scott White, followed the 1981 stabbing death of White by David Oppelt, a previous psychiatric patient of UI Hospitals.

Oppelt, who was released May 4, 1981, after 191 days of treatment by psychiatric personnel at UI Hospitals, stabbed White to death on May 27, 1981, at a local convenience store.

The suit filed by Ewoldt questioned whether Oppelt should have been diagnosed as being a danger to the public.

According to court records, on Feb. 12, 1986, the state filed the motion for summary judgment alleging there is no evidence that hospital personnel were aware of danger Oppelt posed to White. The suit further states that Ewoldt has introduced no expert testimony to prove that hospital personnel were negligent.

The motion was denied in order to allow Ewoldt time to generate evidence to prove negligence.

A local man who purchased $120 worth of food and merchandise from area stores with checks issued from his closed account made his initial appearance in Johnson District Court Wednesday.

Matthew C. Stelly, 31, Coralville, appeared on a charge of third-degree theft with false checks.

According to court records, Stelly wrote two checks on his closed First National Bank account to Fries Barbecue and Grill for food deliveries and presented one check to Payless Cashways in Coralville in July.

On Wednesday, Stelly was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond at Johnson County Jail.

Area police received 11 reports of burglaries Tuesday and Wednesday, bringing the total number of burglaries reported this week to 15.

Iowa City police received eight burglary reports from local residents, but records did not indicate the items stolen or their values. Burglaries were reported at: 1624 E. Court St., 1147 E. Court St., 114 N. Dodge St., 1321 Hollywood Blvd., 1308 Muscatine Ave., W25 Towncrest Mobile Home Court, 2010 Broadway St., and at That's Rentertainment, 918 E. Washington St.

UI Campus Security records indicate officers received three burglary reports Tuesday. Two vacuum cleaners worth $246 total were reported stolen from the Afro-American Cultural Center, 303 Melrose Ave.

Robin Reaves and Melissa Rockhold, 206A Mayflower Residence Hall, told officers that $153 was stolen from their purses in their dorm room. Suzanne Reitano, 326B Mayflower Residence Hall, also reported a burglary after her purse was stolen.

Assault report: A woman living in Burge Residence Hall reported to UI Campus Security officers Tuesday that several male subjects entered her room and crawled into her bed about 1:45 a.m. The incident is under investigation.

Theft report: A fire hydrant worth $6,500 was reportedly stolen from the Riverside Drive storage lot Tuesday night, according to UI Campus Security reports. An employee of the UI Physical Plant Office reported the hydrant missing.

Theft report: Debbie Jefferies, 632 S. Dodge St., Apt. 4, reported to Iowa City police Wednesday morning that her bicycle was stolen from her residence. The item is valued at $300.

Large crowd protests Contra aid; senator absent from symposium

By Phil Thomas
Staff Writer

About 150 UI students and faculty members gathered on the Pentacrest Wednesday to protest Republican Sen. Chuck Grassley's support of Nicaraguan Contra aid.

At the same time, about 30 foreign dignitaries were touring the Old Capitol as part of the Iowa International Trade Symposium, sponsored by Grassley.

Protesters held large signs and banners while shouting at dignitaries as they entered the west door of the building.

Protesters shouted "thank you for supporting Nicaragua" to dignitaries who represented nations that have condemned U.S. legislation authorizing $100 million in Contra aid.

But others shouted "stop the killing" as the entourage walked up the west stairs of the Old Capitol.

Grassley, who has been touring with the group, had other commitments, Grassley spokesman Phil Thomas said Tuesday.

BUT PROTEST ORGANIZER
Suzanne Janssen, a member of the Central American Solidarity Committee, said Grassley was avoiding Iowa City because of the protest.

Chuck Grassley

"If he's going to be on and off the tour, this is a good place to be off," Janssen said.

When the trade group entered the Old Capitol, protesters began singing and a UI professor spoke to the crowd.

"Grassley has consistently supported this war," UI Associate Professor Sheldon Pollock said in a prepared statement he read to the crowd. "These policies have been disastrous for the United States' economy."

After Pollock spoke, the crowd dispersed quickly.

Although the shouting lasted less than 10 minutes, Janssen said the demonstration should increase awareness of Central American issues on campus.

"I THINK PEOPLE ARE going to be forced to stop and look at what's happening," she said.

New Wave member Bruce Nestor, who has organized several protests at the UI, said he thought the size of the protest crowd was surprising.

"It's damned good for this early in the semester," he said.

Inside the Old Capitol, the dignitaries were shown slides depicting the accomplishments of the UI and were addressed by senior UI administrators, including President James O. Freedman.

UI Vice President for Finance Dorsey Ellis said he felt the tour was a success, adding the protest caused no problems.

Freedom of expression

One month after the first call for "whistle blower" protection, top UI administrators show no sign of taking the proposal seriously.

A top UI official contacted last week said no action had been taken on the suggestion that the UI Code of Fair Practices be amended to include protection for students and employees criticizing the institution or their superiors.

UI Vice President for Finance Dorsey Ellis said existing guarantees already assure members of the UI community of the right to speak their mind. Such rights are basic to the foundation of an academic institution, he added.

But the evidence suggests those guarantees are not working.

After the first editorial ran July 28 in the DI, students, faculty and staff members commented that fear of reprimand was choking off free thought.

They testified to the truth of the allegation that an atmosphere of fear was deteriorating the UI's reputation for fostering free and open expression of ideas.

Ellis is right. Free expression is fundamental to an academic community.

But he is also wrong. Further codification of the right to criticize is necessary.

Let the UI know.

The UI Student Senate, Collegiate Associations Council, Faculty Senate and Staff Council should call for "whistle blower" protection.

Those who know the pain of reprimand should write their concerns — anonymously, if need be — to UI President James O. Freedman.

His address is 101 Jessup Hall.

The UI is strong enough to guarantee freedom of expression to its internal critics.

Minority movements

The Black Student Union is a university organization whose purpose is to provide cultural awareness for both blacks and the university. BSU aims to give a sense of community to black students while involving the community and administrators.

BSU will make some changes this semester. These changes hopefully will make black students more aware of how the organization can benefit them during their stay at the UI.

BSU President Kelvin Burton is concerned that blacks do not have a central meeting point to discuss problems within the university. The BSU can act as this meeting point.

In the past BSU had very little participation from black students, causing the organization to accomplish few of their goals. Under the presidency of Burton, BSU has already increased its membership to 50 and the number continues to grow.

Another concern of the BSU is that there are not enough visible minority role models at the UI. BSU would like to change this.

There will be a big brother/big sister program in which an upperclassman will act as a guide and friend to a freshman. Also, The Challenger, a black newspaper which was once published at the UI, will resume publication. Annual functions such as the Chocolate Affair and the Survival Conference will continue to take place.

The theme of the Survival Conference will be "commitment to the cause" — the cause is to make the UI a better place for black and other minority students.

Justified joking

The "final chapter" in the controversy over Republican Congressional candidate Fred Grandy's "Tonight" show appearances closed last weekend. It's about time.

Grandy, better known as Gopher on "The Love Boat," hopes to win Iowa's 6th District seat this November. The Democratic opposition, of course, hopes he won't — and subsequently engineered "Grandy-gate."

The episode began when Grandy's opposition charged he insulted Iowans during appearances on Johnny Carson's talk show. The Democrats demanded Grandy release the tapes so the public could scrutinize them. Grandy eventually complied.

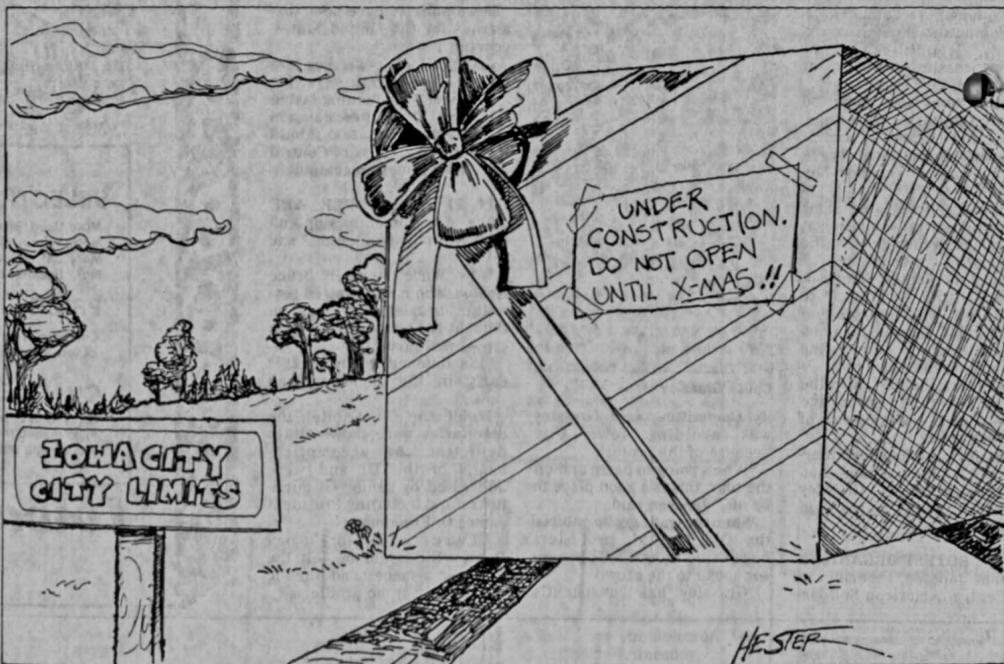

The tapes showed only mild joking about Grandy's Sioux City childhood and life in Iowa. On one show, Grandy told the audience he grew up in Sioux City's only "ghetto" — which was so tiny that a photo processing kiosk later replaced it. A Democratic Party spokesman conceded the remarks were "not major but minor insults."

Minor aptly describes both the insults and the crime. Face it, there is not one Iowan who hasn't cracked a few jokes about this state. And with good reason: Iowans put up with unbearable heat and humidity all summer, arctic cold in winter and outsiders who couldn't point out Iowa on a map if their lives depended on it. A sense of humor is almost a survival technique here.

Whatever Grandy's other qualifications for Congress, he has shown a sense of humor about himself and his home state. Instead of another self-important, stuffy representative, voters in the 6th District should consider sending Grandy to Washington, D.C.

Iowa City: A potpourri of crazy drivers

By Scott Raab

Welcome to Iowa City, town of three seasons — winter, mud, and construction. Construction's my favorite, a time to relax at the wheel, honk at your neighbor, and discover the subtler joys of sharing — truly sharing — the road with all sorts of interesting drivers, young and old, rich and poor, slow and slower.

To the newcomer, Iowa City drivers may seem pretty much alike: indecisive, sloppy drunk, perhaps a tad parched, brainwise. But knowing the facts about the joker who just turned south on a one-way northbound street may just save your life.

There's no better time to study driving styles than the beginning of fall semester, known locally as The Closing of the Roads. So, whether you're rushing a comatose friend to the emergency room or just leaving I-80 for fuel, food, and a 2-MPH breather, sit back and ignore the temperature light. Enjoy the smell of the pitch, the jackhammers' hum, the engine shimmers; feel the oneness of skin, shirt, and vinyl. Go ahead, curse that moron in front of you. It's all part of the zen of blacktop anthropology.

OKAY, WE'RE OFF THE interstate, motoring south on Dubuque Street (there was a time, oh yes, when you could hop on old Dubby and drive for minutes in any direction). Destination: Old Cappy.

The first folks we meet are state and university employees. Those drawing an hourly wage tool along about 5-7 MPH, usually in a dark green van or a pick-up with a refrigerator lashed upright in the bed of the truck. They load on Monday and spend Tuesday through Thursday showing the appliance around. Fridays they unload and decide it's too late to pick up another piece. Maybe Monday.

A second type of employee, the parking patrolperson, drives much faster, occasionally achieving speeds of 20 MPH. You'd hurry, too, if you were paid seven cents for each ticket you wrote. They'll drive white subcompacts with orange tops, and may be seen en masse around the Main Library. Students majoring in Meter Bashing or Creative Parking should avoid.

AT ABOUT THE 10-15 MPH range, we slow behind a black and gold van with a Tiger Hawk spare tire cover. These are generally driven by out-of-towners, dressed to match their vehicles, in frantic search of Kinnick Stadium or Carver-Hawkeye Arena. Don't be cruel and tell them they'll have to park in West Branch — they'll learn this on their own.

Even if you can't personally interact with them, you can still enjoy guessing the English meaning of the county name on their license plate. (Did you know, for instance, that "Cerro Gordo" means "fat chance," and refers to an old Indian custom of greeting the new year by sending a warrior band to the Western Coastal Territory for a humiliation rite?)

Stepping things up to 17 MPH or so (except in the bar zone, where the standard cruise-and-ogle speed of 3 MPH applies), we enter Trans-Am and Z-28 range. Habits die hard — boys drive the metallic-blue, girls the black or white with pink sorority decal.

Note the preponderance of Illinois vanity plates here; these serve as excellent ice-breakers in case of an accident or gridlock situation. Simply ask, "Are you from Schaumburg or Lake Forest?" Or, "Hey, what are you doing with a license plate that says 'Foxee?'"

JUST A NOTCH OR two faster and we're next to the football player astride his Elite motorscooter. Wait for a red light to check his quadriceps, just to be sure it's really a "student-athlete" before requesting autographs. Or look to see if he's toting any books. If not, ask for the autograph. But be patient — they aren't recruited for writing ability or graciousness.

Finally we're sailing, the wind a 25 MPH roar in the ears, journey's end in sight. (No one drives faster than 25 in Iowa City, unless it's to pass a pig farmer who got lost on the way to Tiffin.) Home free. But wait, what the hell is this, pulling crossways into our lane, filling the eye with soot and yellow visions of highway death? The choking fumes, the whine of padless white-hot brakes, the multi-eared specter scowling at the wheel: CAMBUS!

These drivers, culled from among the offspring of New York City's angriest cabbies, locked in a death race with brain atrophy, are our town's most exotic, and most dangerous.

To get a sense of their driving style, spend four hours each day driving continuously back and forth from Hancher Auditorium to the Mark IV apartments while a friend blasts a referee's whistle in your ear and drops hot briquets onto the floor mats. You'll see why they don't back down. On the bright side, you can give them the finger and, unlike the football player, they can't catch you.

Freedman's praise of Rehnquist unwise

By Bruce Nestor

THIS SUMMER, UI President James O. Freedman traveled to Washington, D.C. His purpose: to provide the highest praise for William Rehnquist, President Ronald Reagan's nominee for Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

Who is Rehnquist? What type of man deserves the praise, "William H. Rehnquist is a person of rare qualities... (which) the nation should cherish in the chief justice of a court with the ultimate responsibility for administering those wise restraints that make us free?"

These are Rehnquist's wise restraints:

- In 1972, Rehnquist was the lone justice not to condemn President Richard Nixon's "Mitchell Doctrine," which allowed for indiscriminate wiretapping of Americans, particularly political groups, black organizations, community activists and personal enemies of the president.

- In a case involving Bob Jones University, Rehnquist gave constitutional sanction to federal funding of colleges and universities which bar the admission of blacks.

- While a Republican party official in Arizona, Rehnquist was observed harassing black voters, demanding that they pass literacy tests, challenging their qualifications and otherwise interfering with their right to vote.

- In dissent after dissent, often alone, Rehnquist has stood far to the right of the court in sanctioning discrimination against women, gays, people of color and illegal aliens. Further, his positions on civil liberties and the right of the government to intrude in people's lives mean that these reactionary views threaten us all.

FREEDMAN DESCRIBED this man as bringing "distinction to the office of the chief justice of the Supreme Court." The fact that Freedman bases his views about Rehnquist on a two-week stay with him during 1979 in the exclusive resort of Salzburg, Austria, indicates the poverty of his brand of well-connected, East Coast liberalism. As long as a man is nice to his wife and kids, he can leave his moral conscience at home, go to his job, and then return home to dinner. It is a view which denies any notion of personal responsibility for one's public actions, no matter how atrocious they might be.

Doubly damning for Freedman is the state of affirmative action programs at the UI, particularly since Rehnquist has consistently voted to strike down such measures. For instance:

- Of 56 UI departments which set affirmative action goals in 1985, only 12 of them met their goals, or about 21 percent.

- From 1979 to 1985, there was a total gain in women faculty of 1.5 percent. At this rate, it will take several decades to achieve any level of parity between male and female faculty. The situation is even worse when women's severely lower salaries are factored in.

- Minority faculty constitute only 4 percent of tenured faculty.

- In its appointment of a new Physical Education department head, the UI passed over several qualified women to promote a man with no academic experience within the department.

- UI Vice President for Academic Affairs Richard Remington, in commenting on the fact that 10 percent of the top administrators appointed by the State Board of Regents have been women, calls this "an exceptional record." In a university dedicated to affirmative action, 10 percent would not be "exceptional."

THE STATE OF IOWA'S affirmative action efforts and Freedman's endorsement of Rehnquist make one thing clear: real change will not come from the top down, but will be a result of pressure from the bottom.

Present day affirmative action efforts, women studies programs, and Afro-American studies departments are a result of the progressive movements of the 1960s. It is increasingly clear, as minority enrollment falls across the country and as these academic departments are cut, that a similar movement is necessary in the '80s.

This essay will undoubtedly provoke letters-to-the-editor saying, "I have worked with President Freedman for years and find him to be a great man, of large conscience, etc..." Freedman may indeed be a fine man, a humane man, but that is no excuse for either his public actions, or inactions. In a time of rising racism and militarism, we need a president who will stand up for what is right, not sit down and let the world pass by.

Goals propel students into academic year

By Pat Deninger
Special to The Daily Iowan

Students sitting on the Pentacrest Wednesday agreed goals and optimism, along with avoiding the pitfalls of college life, are key to success this year.

Meditating on the beginning of another school year, UI graduate student Amy Merdinger said planning is all-important.

"I want to stay atop my classes this year," Merdinger said. "I don't want to get behind."

Merdinger said she also hopes to "see my professors when problems come up," saying in the past she avoided speaking to them because of their sometimes intimidating nature. "I talk to people who do, and they say how much help it is," she said.

Her plans to change seem to echo UI President James O. Freedman's warning to students to avoid the "ruts" of college life which hinder them from achieving their goals.

FREEDMAN GAVE his advice Wednesday morning during the UI's opening ceremonies on the Old Capitol steps. Optimism and clear goals are the best way to achieve expectations, he said.

UI senior Roger Butler, like Merdinger, has a goal of speaking up more. "I would like to get some dialogues set up with my professors," he said.

"Professors sometimes are inaccessible. I'd like to talk with them about things other than courses," Butler said.

Butler said he hasn't been able to discuss issues enough, because "classes do become drudgery, while balancing work and a personal life," he said. "I tend to throw myself into my studies."

MOTIONING TOWARD a young woman wearing a red, white and blue posterboard reading "No! more Contra aid," Butler said he respects people who make their point of view known. They have a "way to stand up for issues. It's frustrating; I want to," he said.

"What I try to do is follow the issues, then find a way to establish ties with people who do stand up," Butler said.

UI sophomore Micheal Kennedy was honest about his goals for this year.

"I haven't thought about it yet," he said. "I just want to keep my head above water, avoid getting behind in classes."

UI freshman Karen Yates, on the first day of her college career, also was cautiously optimistic.

"I want to study better, learn how to study and not party too much," she said. "I'd like to possibly make the honors list, get to know the university better and just get into the groove of things."

Safety plan heard by city council

By Darin E. Baker
Special to The Daily Iowan

On March 6, 1985, a 1974 white semitrailer driven by John Cline, Winfield, Iowa, collided with a 1981 Chevrolet Citation at the intersection of Highway 6 and Keokuk Street in Iowa City.

Mary E. Byler, Kalona, Iowa, driver of the car, was killed instantly. Byler had just visited her new grandchild and was returning to work at the time of the accident.

One and one-half years later, Byler's daughter is leading a fight to reduce the 45 mph speed limit to 35 mph on Highway 6 between Riverside

"Legalized murder occurred. It wasn't premeditated and it wasn't intentional, but it was just as deadly," says Lynda Bishop of the traffic accident that killed her mother.

Drive and Heinz Road. Lynda Bishop, 1820 H St., asked the Iowa City Council Tuesday to investigate the safety of the intersection where her mother was killed, as well as other intersections in the area. Bishop's attempts to convince the Iowa Department of Transportation to reduce the speed have failed, she said.

"IOWA DEPARTMENT of Transportation (officials) never reacted in writing, but they did serve a verbal reaction to the effect, 'Not enough people have been killed,'" she told the council.

"That's cold," Bishop said, as she stood teary-eyed before the council. "Enough people have been killed in our family."

Bishop claims her father's death earlier this month was related to her mother's fatal accident. "When she died, Dad started to die. He was buried last Wednesday," she said.

According to Bishop, traffic signals at the intersection of Keokuk Street and Highway 6 — where the fatality occurred — allow only three seconds when changing from yellow to red.

"There is no way to stop in three seconds at 45 mph," Ron Stoddard, a truck driver, testified.

IOWA CITY Police Department records indicate Cline was within the legal 45 mph speed limit. He did receive a citation for running a red light at the scene of the accident.

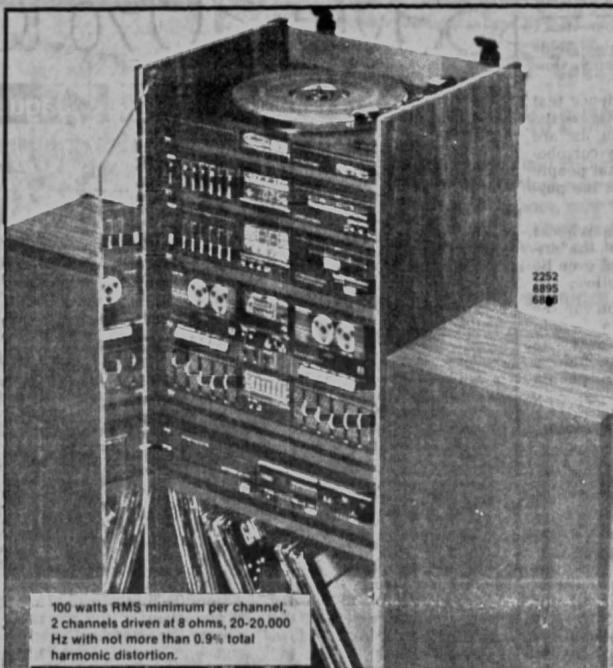

"Legalized murder occurred," Bishop said. "It wasn't premeditated and it wasn't intentional, but it was just as deadly."

The council voted enthusiastically to investigate Bishop's case and appeal the situation to the IDOT until the speed limit on that section of the highway is reduced. Councilor Kate Dickson said the city staff is looking into the situation.

The council will make a recommendation to IDOT, which holds jurisdiction over Highway 6 and sets the speed limit.

"I am pleased the council is so receptive," Bishop said. "We've got to change it so that people don't get killed."

Money plays 'major' role in students' choice of career

By Jay Dutton
Special to The Daily Iowan

Money talks when it comes to choosing undergraduate majors, UI officials say.

Once again, business, communications and computer science will probably be three of the most popular majors among UI students, according to Associate Vice President for Academic Affairs Kenneth Moll.

"Business can bleed into more reputable employment, and the general public relations education is the reason students select communications," he said. "Computer science is just in such a demand that it has become very popular."

And, of course, those three majors offer big salary payoffs in the future.

One reason money has become such an important criterion in selecting a major is the stress society places on it, said UI English Department Chairman John Raeburn.

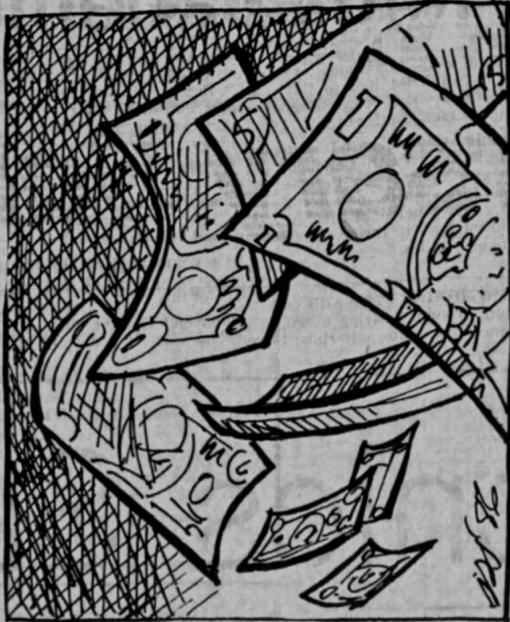

"THIS CULTURE is becoming even more materialistic. We define success of life by whether or not we have a BMW," Raeburn said.

UI freshman Julia Severson said the economy, in addition to society, plays a direct role in students' selections of majors.

"The economy forces people to think twice about going into a field, if they want to live like they are accustomed to living," she said. Severson, a music major, said she only needs to earn enough to "get by."

UI junior Carolyn White, an elementary education major, agreed that the economy plays a part in the selection of a major.

"Parents are used to growing

up in the Depression, so they didn't feel the need to make lots of money. But people nowadays are used to having enough, and they want to make more than their parents did," she said.

WHITE SAID she feels the number of students aiming for big salaries will remain on the rise.

UI freshman Chris Vonderhaar admitted he went into engineering for the money, but he feels the "make money" whirlwind will soon die down.

"People aren't looking quite as much for the big bucks," he said, and therefore the number of people entering fields such as business may slow down.

Raeburn sees evidence that may support this. "Across the country, English majors are going up, which may corroborate with the idea that people may not be going for the pay-offs," he said.

To obtain the large paychecks, according to Raeburn, the business major might not even be the correct path to follow.

"In Fortune 500, you can see that the really top people didn't major in business," he said. "Instead, it's the middle-management type of people who did."

Learning to wait in line patiently is first lesson for many students

By Joseph Levy
Special to The Daily Iowan

Certain intellectuals say most people spend at least one year of their lives waiting.

Many UI students probably feel like a great deal of that year is spent right here in their first few days on campus — waiting in lines.

UI officials say they recognize this problem and will try to shorten many of the long lines.

"We have done several things to try to minimize the lines," UI Dean of Student Services Phil Jones said. He said the IMU Bookstore has made modifications to speed up lines this year, and other UI departments have temporarily increased their staffs to handle the start-of-semester rush.

"Lines at registration are a very temporary phenomenon," Jones explained. He added that the UI considers converting to an over-the-phone registration process.

AIDED BY the UI's December switchover to a new telecommunications system, this move would completely eliminate registration lines, he said.

The IMU Bookstore has added seven more cash registers to its fleet to further speed the book-buying process.

According to bookstore manager George Herbert, having 19 registers in the store helps. "We strived to (speed up the lines) this time," he said. "It seems we've accomplished our objective."

Randy Hanson, an employee at the bookstore, agreed. "It doesn't seem quite as crowded as last year," he said.

Students also appear to be lining up at UI residence hall cafeterias. But most of the halls report few problems getting through the lines.

"It's slower than it will be in a couple of weeks," admitted Connie Murray, Hillcrest Residence Hall food service manager. She explained that new employees in the hall take time to get used to the cafeteria system.

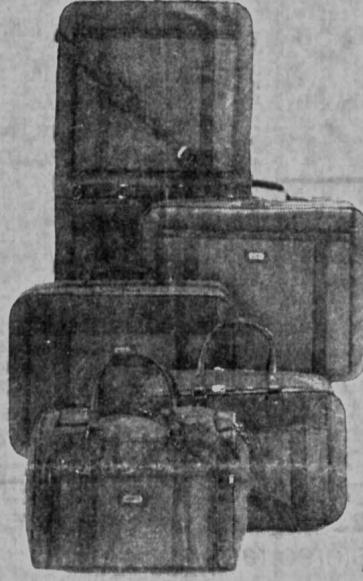

THERE ARE SOME lines on campus that, no matter what officials try, remain busy. UI student Val Torgerson reported standing in line nearly two hours Tuesday waiting for a financial aid check.

Despite this experience, she wasn't too upset about lines. "You get used to them," she said.

Businessman sues Saudi captors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An American businessman said Wednesday he was held captive for 133 days in Saudi Arabia where he was accused of being a CIA agent, asked if his mother were Jewish and then handed a $400,000 check and freed.

Sam Bamieh, owner of a financial management consulting firm in San Mateo, Calif., said he was given the money in the form of a check moments before being set free.

Bamieh said he filed a $58 million damage suit against former and current Saudi officials — some allegedly with ties to King Fahd — and others for mental suffering and loss of business.

Neither State Department or Saudi Arabian officials commented on the alleged incident.

U.S. Embassy open to Chilean spying

SANTIAGO, Chile — Two former Chilean secret police agents revealed in a video tape this week that the U.S. Embassy there is particularly vulnerable to spying.

They said the U.S. Embassy was hiring Chilean security personnel through an American security firm whose local branch recruited people linked to the secret police.

Chile's military government has tapped telephones, opened mail and sent agents scavenging through garbage to monitor contacts between foreign embassies and government opponents, political and diplomatic sources said.

Mexico admits police abused agent

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Eleven policemen have been charged in connection with the detention and alleged mistreatment of a U.S. drug enforcement agent two weeks ago, the attorney general's office announced Tuesday.

The announcement was the first time the Mexican government acknowledged that Drug Enforcement Administration agent Victor Cortez Jr. was mistreated while in police custody, as the U.S. government charged. Local officials have vigorously denied Cortez was tortured.

The statement requested the 1st District Court in Guadalajara, 300 miles northwest of Mexico City, to obtain a formal complaint from Cortez, currently in the United States, in order to proceed with the arrest and charges against the 11 policemen who detained Cortez for six hours on Aug. 13.

Jury clears jailers in Vargas death

IOWA CITY, Iowa — A Cerro Gordo County grand jury Wednesday said it found no evidence of wrongdoing by county jail officials in the July 10 death of inmate Richard Vargas.

The grand jury, which last month indicted inmate Larry Fielding for first-degree murder, said it found no evidence lax security at the jail may have contributed to Vargas' death. Fielding is now at the Jefferson City, Mo. prison serving a life sentence for kidnapping and armed robbery.

Vargas, 18, of Alden, Minn., died of asphyxiation July 10. Authorities have alleged his death stemmed from a botched scheme to stage a sex act with Fielding so Vargas could sue the county for negligence.

Parker pleads innocent in Mingo case

DES MOINES, Iowa — The attorney for state Rep. Ed Parker, D-Mingo, entered a plea of not guilty for his client Wednesday at the Jasper County courthouse.

Parker is scheduled to stand trial Oct. 8 on charges he violated the state's gift law. He was the guest of honor at a bachelor party given at the Back Forty Tavern in April. A sex act between a legislator and an exotic dancer allegedly took place at the party.

Parker is one of five people indicted earlier this month by a Jasper County grand jury.

Cameroonians scramble to bury dead

BAMENDA, Cameroon (UPI) — Soldiers raced against the threat of pestilence Wednesday to bury hundreds of villagers felled by a volcanic poison gas cloud as scientists worked to identify the vapors that killed more than 1,500 people.

Officials said some 2,000 Cameroonian soldiers and policemen, their mouths covered by surgical masks, were burying the dead in mass graves in the northwestern villages of Nios, Cha, Sobum and Fang.

International aid continued to pour into the western African nation of 9.5 million people, where relief workers based in Bamenda, 40 miles south of the lake, were providing medical aid and comfort to the survivors and homeless evacuated in the disaster. The leader of an Israeli medical team that arrived on the scene Monday said the death toll could reach 2,000.

Frontier Airlines may still find buyer

DENVER (UPI) — A deal to sell beleaguered Frontier Airlines to United Airlines collapsed Wednesday night but a second potential buyer expressed interest in acquiring the People Express subsidiary.

United Airlines spokesman Tom Germuska said his company rejected a new offer from People Express and ended attempts to buy the Denver-based Frontier, which was shut down Sunday and faces bankruptcy.

"We believe it is impossible to resurrect the deal after the damage done by the closure of Frontier," Germuska said. "The airline we attempted to purchase doesn't exist anymore."

United offered July 10 to buy Frontier for $146 million from People Express, which itself reported a second-quarter loss of $74.5 million, following a first-quarter loss of $58 million.

PEOPLE EXPRESS representatives said earlier Wednesday they expected to file for reorganization of Frontier under Chapter 11 bankruptcy laws by the end of the day in Denver, but then resumed negotiations with United.

A New Orleans investment consulting firm, meanwhile, said it told People Express that an unidentified trust is interested in buying Frontier for $150 million but needs time to bring together investors for the purchase.

Ellis Haughton, president of Gerred's Enterprises in New Orleans, said he was told People Express would file for reorganization of Frontier Wednesday afternoon or Thursday morning in Denver. If the company files for reorganization, Haughton said it would give them "enough time to maybe put together a group of investors to buy the company outright."

Haughton would not identify the investors he represents but said, "They are people associated with a major trust."

Co-op houses give students an alternative to dorm life

By Diana Morton
Special to The Daily Iowan

When visions of family-style meals and a real yard come to mind, most students long for their homes away from school. But for those living in River City Housing Collective houses, all the comforts of home are a bit closer to classes.

The collective, a non-profit organization founded nine years ago, offers an alternate type of college life for 35 members in six houses. The collective owns two houses on Lucas Street and one on East Washington Street, while it leases three houses on Grove Street from the UI.

According to member Jim Barfuss, the primary benefit of a cooperative living arrangement is that students have more direct control over their living environment because everyone takes part in forming the rules governing each cooperative house.

"At the start of every semester, we all sit down with a bucket of ice cream and go through things like the needs you have or what would be hard for you to live with," Barfuss said.

THE RESULTS OF these discussions vary with each group's different needs and can often influence the appearance and character of each house.

"Sometimes they'll look chaotic and sometimes they'll look spic-and-span. It depends on the time of year you catch them at and who lives in it," said Barfuss, who admits he is sloppy but tries to confine the mess to his own room.

The collective has officers and a board of directors, which is made up of representatives from each house. This board oversees the finances and general well-being of the co-op. Vice President John Welter said.

"Important and controversial decisions are voted on by all active members of the co-op," Welter said. "Examples are raising rent, investments and changes in standing rules."

The only requirement for co-op residents is they must be willing to work as part of the system, Barfuss said. This includes becoming part owner and landlord upon signing the semester-long leases, Welter said.

THE CO-OP HAS a work credit system whereby members are required to put 16 hours of work per month into the house. The type of work depends on the worker's preferred duties such as mowing the lawn, shoveling the walk, painting the house or cooking the communal meals.

"Taking care of the house and protecting the investment are some of the responsibilities of ownership," Barfuss said. "The first time I had to change the seal underneath the toilet, I discovered one of the disadvantages. Others don't have it so bad. They just call up their landlords."

However, member David Hughes said sharing responsibilities is an advantage to cooperative living.

"It's a lot easier because the responsibility for maintaining the residence is shared among a number of people," Hughes said.

"In this house, it means that once every two weeks you have to spend the afternoon cooking for nine people," Barfuss said. "It works out very well because the other nights you can come home at dinnertime and supper's on the table. Then you can eat and split."

Rents at the collective's houses range from $155 to $220 per month depending on bedroom size and includes utilities and laundry facilities.

"You have to put a little more into it than you might at other places, but you have the potential to get a whole lot more out of it," Barfuss said.

Administration pulls funding from U.N.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration has decided to withhold contributions from the U.N. Fund for Population Activities because some funds may be used for involuntary birth control programs in China, including abortions, a senior official said Wednesday.

The decision means that the UNFPA will lose $25 million, or about 20 percent of its annual budget. Last year, the U.S. Agency for International Development held back $10 million in U.S. contributions for the same reason.

Sharon Camp, vice president of the Population Crisis Committee, called the U.S. withdrawal "an unmitigated disaster." The PCC is a private organization that advocates voluntary family planning worldwide.

"It says to the world that we are willing to dismantle our family planning programs abroad to keep happy a small, but noisy, anti-family planning constituency at home," she said.

BUT DOUGLAS Johnson of the anti-abortion National Right to Life Committee said,

"We think most Americans can think of better things to do with their tax dollars than fund a U.N.-supported program of compulsory abortion."

Withholding of the U.S. funds would be technically required under the Kemp-Inouye amendment to the Foreign Aid Act.

A U.S. official said that the cutoff of funds would not have been automatic, but that the administration decided to apply the law because of its continued objections to coercive birth control practices in China.

A senior AID official, speaking anonymously, said the withheld funds would be applied, dollar-for-dollar, to bilateral family planning programs in other countries in next year's AID budget.

In next year's AID budget request, $80 million is earmarked for voluntary family planning programs in other countries, mainly in Africa.

The Chinese government, which had instituted a one-child-per-family policy, denounced the AID decision last year as interference in China's internal affairs.

Reagan maid indicted for smuggling

Anita Castelo

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI)—Nancy Reagan's personal maid and three other people were indicted Wednesday in an alleged scheme to smuggle small-arms ammunition from the United States to Paraguay.

In a seven-count indictment, the U.S. District Court grand jury charged the maid, Anita Castelo, 45, of Takoma Park, Md., with one count of conspiring to export .22-caliber ammunition to Paraguay without a license and one count of the willful exportation of 70 cases of ammunition.

Also named in other indictments were Julio Cesar Baez-Acosta, Hernan Duarte and Eugenio Silva, who were charged with illegal handling of ammunition.

Authorities said the plot began last November and ended Aug. 4 in Richmond, Va. with the seizure of a Paraguayan freighter with 350,000 rounds of ammo aboard.

Castelo, Silva and Baez-Acosta were arrested after agents boarded and searched the Mariscal Jose Felix Estigarribia while it was docked at Deepwater Terminal on the James River in Richmond.

FEDERAL AGENTS SAID Castelo, a naturalized American citizen, bought 10,000 rounds of ammunition for the ship's captain, Baez-Acosta, from a Best Products store in Richmond.

That same day, Silva bought 135,000 rounds of ammunition in two trips to the same store.

Castelo has been on administrative leave from her White House job since Aug. 7 and will continue to collect her $17,430 annual salary while the case is pending, White House officials said. Castelo has been on the White House staff since 1981.

Castelo helped Nancy Reagan with her wardrobe and traveled extensively with the first lady. Castelo's most recent trip was to England for the wedding of Prince Andrew and Sarah Ferguson.

The Secret Service, which investigated the case, said Castelo's duties did not involve any responsibility for classified information and she did not breach national security.

Even today, there are still a few students who don't have an HP calculator.

Burning the midnight oil may be necessary. Burning the 2:00 or 3:00 or 4:00 AM oil is absurd. Especially when an HP calculator can get the answers you want—in time to get a good night's sleep.

For instance, our HP-15C Professional Scientific Calculator has more built-in advanced math and statistical power than any other calculator. Our HP-41 Advanced Scientific Calculators have even more potential.

That's because there are better than 2500 software packages available for them—more than for any other calculator. There's even a special plug-in software package (we call it the Advantage Module) that's designed to handle the specific problems an engineering student has to solve in his, or her, course work. No wonder professionals in engineering and the physical sciences widely regard HP calculators as the best you can get. So check one out. Then, when your mother calls to ask if you're getting enough sleep, you won't have to lie.

U.S. nuke plants to undergo review

VIENNA (UPI) — A report prepared by Soviet officials on the Chernobyl nuclear disaster provides evidence that a similar accident cannot occur at a U.S. reactor, senior U.S. officials said Wednesday.

Nonetheless, the officials said, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission will be asked to review whether adequate safeguards exist to prevent the possibility of humans overriding safety systems, as occurred at Chernobyl.

The officials, members of the U.S. delegation attending a weeklong conference of international technical experts analyzing the April 26 accident, stressed the Soviet report definitively showed the Chernobyl graphite reactor was unlike any in the United States.

"There is no doubt in anyone's mind now that this machine is very different indeed in its characteristics from one we would use in our nuclear power program," one official said. "This is not the kind of accident we would have with our types of machines."

machines."

AFTER A DETAILED two-day presentation by the 28-member Soviet delegation, the International Atomic Energy Agency conference moved behind closed doors Wednesday. The Soviets began responding to more than 600 questions submitted by technical experts on the causes and responses to the accident at Chernobyl, 80 miles north of Kiev in the heart of the Soviet breadbasket.

"This delegation believes nothing we have seen thus far ... would cause us to express concern about the safe operation and condition of machines of ours," one official said.

ALTHOUGH THE United States has no water-cooled graphite reactors like the Soviets, American scientists earlier had been unsure whether there might be some similarities that could lead to an accident in the United States.

Russia distributes anti-radiation drugs

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet health officials are giving victims of the Chernobyl nuclear disaster anti-radiation drugs and advising them to stay inside to counter the effects of radiation exposure, Pravda said Wednesday.

The Communist daily newspaper said if residents in the Ukraine and neighboring Byelorussia follow the recommendations, they will greatly reduce the long-term risk from radiation emitted by the damaged reactor.

It said the precautions included taking anti-radiation drugs being distributed, reducing time spent in the open air, cleaning clothes and shoes, frequent dusting and house-sweeping and a careful use and washing of food.

The exact type of anti-radiation drugs being distributed was not mentioned.

"THE MEASURES being taken in some areas of the Ukraine and Byelorussia ... are aimed at bringing down possible risk effects," Pravda said.

Soviets predict anywhere from 5,000 to 26,500 could die in the next 70 years from cancer caused by the radiation exposure.

The Soviets say at least 31 people already have died as a result of the accident and another 203 people have been hospitalized — 40 with potentially fatal doses of radiation.

Pravda published an article by two senior doctors which played down the long-term dangers stemming from the April 26 accident, and defended nuclear power plants as less damaging to the health than conventional coal-fired ones.

The article appeared as scientists at the International Atomic Energy Agency meeting in Vienna debated several sets of projected figures of increased cancer following the accident.

The newspaper said pollution from coal-fired power plants was 100 times greater than from a nuclear power station.

It said exposure to intense radiation such as suffered by firemen and plant workers was indeed very dangerous but the effects of relatively lengthy exposure to small doses of radiation would "manifest themselves only in a small section of people and are of a casual nature."

Blast rips Afghan ammunition depot

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI) — Explosions ripped through an Afghan army ammunition dump and killed an undetermined number of people in a major rebel attack against the Soviet-backed government, western diplomats said Wednesday.

Official Radio Kabul, however, said the explosions Tuesday night at the depot 4 miles west of the capital of Kabul were caused by an industrial accident and no one was killed.

The diplomats in Islamabad said the attack on the 8th Afghan Army Division ammunition dump was the government's "most dramatic setback" in its attempt to repel Moslem rebels trying to oust the communist regime and end seven years of Soviet occupation.

The diplomats said the ammunition dump blew up in a "spectacular display" that began rocking Kargha about 11 p.m. Tuesday, shattering windows and damaging buildings.

THEY SAID a column of smoke billowed from the ammunition dump and burning fuel still could be seen at dawn today as intermittent explosions were heard.

Afghan rebel resistance fighters rocketed the base Aug. 17-18 and hit nearby fuel tanks Monday but they did not explode, the diplomats said.

Radio Kabul, monitored in New Delhi, said the explosions were caused by "technical reasons" and said there were no deaths. There was no mention of injuries, but the radio said nearby residents were evacuated.

"The Western propaganda media like usual will attribute motives and spread falsehood about the incident of the explosion," the radio continued. "Countrymen are warned not to believe such falsehood and propaganda."

The radio said residents living in the area of the ammunition dump were evacuated and later were allowed to return.

Violence in Soweto kills 13, injures 70

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Raging street battles between police and Soweto residents left 13 blacks dead and 70 other people injured in the latest outbreak of violence since emergency rule was imposed in June, authorities said Wednesday.

Church officials and dissidents said there were indications the casualty toll was higher than the government reported following Tuesday night's fighting. Black activist Winnie Mandela said she believed at least 20 people died.

Residents said the violence began as a protest against eviction of people defaulting on rent payments in South Africa's largest black township, 10 miles southwest of Johannesburg. The government denied any evictions had occurred.

THE RENT BOYCOTT in Soweto began 11 weeks ago to protest apartheid and poor housing conditions. One leading cleric called the rent boycotts a "political time bomb."

Police and troops Wednesday patrolled Soweto with the Bureau for Information in Pretoria saying, "The situation in Soweto is normal today."

Government officials reported that eight blacks were shot to death in one area and four others were killed when police fired on a group of youths attacking occupants of a car with knives.

THE DEATH TOLL reached 13 when township council member Sydney Mkwanaza, who was attacked by machete-wielding youths during the unrest, died Wednesday morning, officials said. Seventy others were injured in the violence.

It was the worst outbreak of violence since 11 people died on June 16, four days after the nationwide state of emergency was imposed by the white-led government to quell escalating unrest. More than 250 people have died in political unrest since the emergency began.

U.S. agrees to disclose troop arrivals

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — The United States agreed to give notice of troop arrivals in Europe in return for reports from the Soviets on their troop concentrations, delegates at the Stockholm security conference said Wednesday. The move was considered a breakthrough at the 2-year-old talks.

"The Americans have never reported troop arrivals before. It is such a key part of their operation," said one Western delegate to the 35-nation conference aimed at finding ways of preventing accidental war in Europe.

The concession and the agreement by the Soviet Union pledging the Warsaw Pact would notify other nations of troop concentrations represented a breakthrough in the final phase of the conference, Western and neutral delegates said.

"We now have a comprehensive list of what military activities should be notified," a Western delegate said. "It is a major move."

THE SECURITY conference, which began in January 1984, aims at adopting military confidence-building measures that would reduce the risk of war breaking out by accident in Europe. Under the timetable, delegates must reach final agreement by Sept. 19.

Delegates said under the latest agreement, each of the 35 nations at the talks would be required to report the start and end dates of each phase of a military activity subject to prior notification.

Nations would have to report tactical purposes and where troops would be transferred, deployed, concentrated or exercised, they said.

The compromise followed a Soviet concession a week ago to accept one or two on-site inspections on its European territory every year to verify compliance with measures agreed upon.

Controllers restricted during drug tests

PALMDALE, Calif. (UPI) — Twenty air traffic controllers who had been assigned to desk jobs because of suspicions they used drugs, passed urine tests and should be returned to radar screens, a union official said Wednesday.

Preliminary tests were negative on 20 of the 34 controllers assigned to desk jobs last week while federal investigators determined whether they used cocaine and hashish while off duty, Air Traffic Controllers' Association spokesman Kelly Candaele said.

The tests, conducted by personal physicians and at hospitals, have not been completed on the other 14 controllers, Candaele said.

The Federal Aviation Administration said the 34 controllers will not be allowed to return to radar screens until after FAA-administered urine analysis tests are complete, probably this week.

THE CONTROLLERS were placed in desk jobs last week because of allegations of off-duty drug use based on information gathered from "internal and external sources," said Don Early, manager of the FAA traffic control center 65 miles northeast of Los Angeles.

Early said there is no indication the controllers used drugs while on the job or that air traffic safety was compromised. Early said the controllers will not be fired even if they test positive for drug use but will be required to undergo rehabilitation.

But Candaele said: "We're concerned that a lot of the allegations against the controllers are based on hearsay and rumor. We've been denied access to the alleged evidence."

At a news conference Wednesday, two of the reassigned controllers demanded immediate reinstatement and charged that a number of the controllers were denied access to lawyers while questioned by superiors.

Space society warns of NASA budget woes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — America's space program is already sliding backward and current budget policies will ensure that the U.S. becomes and remains a second-class power in space, a professional aerospace society said Wednesday.

The American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics said the Challenger accident and subsequent failures of two unmanned satellite launchers "demonstrated that the U.S. civil space program no longer enjoys its former preeminence."

Jerry Grey, publisher of the AIAA's Aerospace America magazine and president of the International Astronautical Federation, said the Jan. 28 explosion that destroyed the shuttle and killed its crew of seven was a "direct consequence" of past budget restrictions imposed on NASA.

The association of 40,000 engineers and scientists said in a 85-page report that politicians must decide whether the United States should be a space leader and whether to provide the money necessary to accomplish that goal.

THE AIAA, CITING long-term commitments made by the Soviet Union, Western Europe, Japan and China, called for a doubling of NASA's current $7.6 billion budget and said the increased spending should grow annually at a rate at least equal to that of the gross national product.

The AIAA report said budget policy since the Apollo moon landing program began to slow in 1970 "created a steady trend toward making the United States a second-class space nation."

"The current NASA budget is less than a third (in constant dollars) of what it was in the Apollo era, whereas most other federal agency budgets have increased significantly. This year's projected farm program costs, for example, are 10 times higher than in the late 1960s."

Aries rocket destroyed in air after malfunction

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N.M. (UPI) — An Aries research rocket carrying an X-ray telescope was destroyed early Saturday after an apparent guidance system malfunction, the fifth U.S. space failure this year, officials said Wednesday.

NASA officials said the Aries sounding rocket launched early Saturday from White Sands Missile Range was carrying a 2,300-pound X-ray telescope and reached an altitude of about 70,000 feet when it was blown up on ground command.

Had all gone well, the telescope would have conducted six minutes of space observations at an altitude of about 182 miles before parachuting to Earth.

"A NASA Aries sounding rocket carrying a scientific payload was destroyed by range safety," said a NASA statement. "There appeared to be a problem in the launch vehicle's guidance system. The order to destruct came 50 seconds after liftoff."

Blasoff for the much larger Atlas was postponed because tests taken Tuesday to confirm that a propellant leak was fixed found a second leak, said Jim Elliott, a NASA spokesman. He said no final decision on a new launch date was made.

"It could cause an explosion," Elliott said of the fuel leak.

NASA is taking no chances with the old Atlas in light of a record string of launch failures that began with the explosion of the shuttle Challenger on Jan. 28.

IT WAS THE SECOND failure of a research rocket this year and it marked the fifth U.S. rocket failure in 1986. Of 27 Aries launches since 1973, only three have failed, the last in April 1976.

"An investigation into the failure is under way," a NASA spokeswoman said.

'Mature' Becker cruises in Open

NEW YORK (UPI) — Boris Becker, feeling older and wiser than a year ago, advanced to the second round of the U.S. Open Wednesday along with Chris Evert Lloyd.

Becker, still a young lad of 18, believes he has matured since making his initial appearance in the Open last year and says this helped him in earning a 6-2, 5-7, 6-4, 6-2 decision over Canadian Glenn Michibata.

Evert Lloyd, the very image of maturity, had less difficulty in disposing of Barbara Gerken, 6-2, 6-1. It was a record 84th victory in the U.S. Open for Evert Lloyd, a six-time champion.

"I feel great," the 31-year-old Floridian said following her 57-minute workout. "I'm in a good frame of mind. I haven't overplayed to this point. I feel very fresh at this stage of the year. I'm real optimistic."

"MY KNEE (tendinitis) feels good and I think everything is falling into place nicely."

Swedes Mats Wilander and Stefan Edberg, seeded second and fourth, also won their opening round matches on a windy, overcast afternoon, as did Steffi Graf and Pam Shriver, Nos. 3 and 5 among the women.

Wilander, yet to get past the third round in nine previous attempts, defeated Todd Nelson, 6-3, 6-1, 4-6, 6-4; Edberg crushed Stephane Bonneau, 6-0, 6-3, 6-0; Graf beat Susan Mascarin, 6-0, 6-1; and Shriver routed Terry Holladay, 6-1, 6-0, in 41 minutes.

"It was the quickest match I can ever remember at the Open," Shriver said. "Actually, I was trying to finish under 40 (minutes), and I got down 15-40 on my last service game and blew it."

Mats Wilander lunges for a passing shot during Todd Nelson at the U.S. Open, Wednesday. The second set of an opening round match against Wilander defeated Nelson 6-3, 6-1, 4-6, 6-4.

SIXTH SEED Jimmy Connors, a five-time champion, was scheduled to play Sweden's Henrik Sundstrom in the feature evening match, although there was a threat of rain.

Becker, the two-time Wimbledon champion looking to extend his list of conquests to New York, remembers all too well his upset loss to Joakim Nystrom in the fourth round of the 1985 Open. The memory of it continues to haunt, as well as help, him.

"I lost my head completely in that match," Becker said. "There was no way I could win it by just playing tennis. You have to be mentally better. I learned a lot from those kind of matches.

"Today, when I lost the second set, I said, 'Well, it happens to everybody.' I just hung in there. I broke him right away and the match changed."

Becker served 13 aces against Michibata, but was successful on only 56 percent of his first serves. He was troubled only in the second set, when the Canadian broke him in the eighth and 12th games.

MICHIBATA was unable to break again, though, and Becker regained the momentum with a break in the opening game of the third set, and he followed with breaks in the first and seventh games of the fourth set.

Evert Lloyd, who was guilty of a disturbingly high number of double faults during the time her right knee bothered her, served only three Wednesday. She broke Gerken's service six times while losing hers once.

Mikael Pernfors, the surprise finalist at the French Open and No. 11 seed here, gained the second round with a 6-4, 6-3, 6-3 win over fellow Swede Jan Gunnarsson, and No. 16 Miloslav Mecir beat Tim Gullikson, 7-5, 7-6 (8-6), 6-4.

Tide drops Ohio State in 'Classic'

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — Mike Shula hit Albert Bell with a 3-yard touchdown pass with 9:33 to play Wednesday night to carry No. 6 Alabama over No. 9 Ohio State 16-10 in the Kickoff Classic, the start of college football's 118th season.

With Ohio State leading 10-6, Shula shook off three-quarters of poor play to lead the Crimson Tide 73 yards in 12 plays for the winning score. Gene Jelks carried five times for 32 yards in the march and Shula completed a 16-yard shuffle pass to fullback Doug Allen to key the drive.

On 3rd-and-goal at the 3, Shula found Bell hooking in the front of the end zone and completed his first pass all game to a wide receiver.

The Buckeyes received one last chance when Darryl Thomas interfered with Cris Carter on consecutive pass plays with no time remaining, pushing Ohio State to the Alabama 17. Jim Karsatos then hit Carter in the hands in the end zone, but Alabama's Britton Cooper and Chris Goode knocked the ball away to end the game.

THE CRIMSON TIDE also received three field goals from Van Tiffin, including a 28-yarder with 1:02 left to make it 16-10. Ohio State scored on a 26-yard run by Jamie Holland and a 44-yard field goal by Pat O'Morrow. However, O'Morrow, a freshman playing his first college game, missed two field goals and a faulty snap stopped another field-goal attempt.

The game, before a Giants Stadium crowd of 68,296, was a messy affair with seven turnovers and numerous false start penalties.

Neither Shula nor Ohio State's Karsatos — senior quarterbacks considered Heisman

Alabama	— FG Tiffin 28 at 1:02, 50 yards on 13 plays. Key plays: Shula 10-yard pass to Richardson on 3rd-and-9 from Ohio State 35. Shula 5-yard pass to Goode on 3rd-and-4 from Ohio State 19. Alabama 16, Ohio State 10.
Attendance — 68,296

Trophy candidates — was particularly sharp. Shula completed 11-of-19 passes for 83 yards and two interceptions. Karsatos was 20-of-31 for 193 yards and 2 interceptions. Although he did not play well for most of the game, Shula excelled in the fourth quarter. He was 3-for-3 in the drive that culminated with Tiffin's 28-yard field goal, as Alabama killed most of the final seven minutes.

Jelks rushed for 70 yards on 14 carries. Carter, the Buckeyes' outstanding receiver, caught three passes to extend his streak of consecutive games to 25 with a reception.

Alabama had won the only previous meeting between the two teams, 35-6 in the 1977 Sugar Bowl.

Alabama strong safety Ricky Thomas set up the Crimson Tide's first score by intercepting a Karsatos pass and returning it to the Ohio State 40.

Wolves, Gophers hope to continue success

Michigan club not satisfied with '85 effort

By Brad Zimaneck
Sports Editor

CHICAGO — In 1984 the Michigan football team was anything but a national power. Coach Bo Schembechler, though, has regrouped the Wolverines to the point where in 1986 he may field his best team ever.

Two years ago the Wolverines finished with a disappointing 6-6 record which was the worst in Schembechler's 17 years with Michigan. Last season, unranked in almost every pre-season poll, the Wolverines reversed their direction and finished second in the nation with a 10-1-1 mark.

Schembechler, although admitting 1985 was one of his most enjoyable seasons as a coach, will not accept anything less from this year's squad.

"I want to make it clear, and the players will reiterate if you ask them, Michigan did not win the national title, we did not win the Big Ten and we did not win the Rose Bowl," Schembechler said. "We have plenty of incentive. If you think we're going to be happy by everybody saying we're going to win it this year your wrong."

MICHIGAN QUARTERBACK Jim Harbaugh believes this year's Wolverine team can accomplish anything if they set their minds to it.

"Last year's team was a great team and they had a great attitude. If we can match that attitude and that desire to win I think we'll be a tough team to beat," Harbaugh said.

He added, "We enjoyed last year. Our backs were up against the wall. People were telling us that our players were not as good as the other players in the Big Ten, saying that Coach Schembechler was over the hill. Everybody had a lot to prove and it was very satisfying to win 10 games, but we still finished second in the Big Ten and second in the country."

To see the Wolverines to their goal Schembechler will have 15 starters returning, including Harbaugh, from a squad that was separated from a national championship by a pair of field goals.

ONE WAS KICKED by Iowa's Rob Houghtlin in the Hawkeye's 12-10 victory over the Wolverines last October and another from Illinois' Chris White which produced a 3-3 tie in Memorial Stadium in Champaign, Ill., last November 2.

Harbaugh this season should be able to lead Michigan away from such low scoring contests. Last season Harbaugh was the nation's passing efficiency leader while he set Michigan single season records for passing yards, completions and touchdowns.

"There is really nothing from an offensive standpoint that we would be reluctant to attempt because of our quarterback situation. I feel he could do almost anything, run an option play, pro pass... he has leadership, toughness," Schembechler said. "There is no quarterback in America that I would rather go into the season with to lead my team than Jim Harbaugh."

ALSO RETURNING FOR the Michigan offense is tailback Jamie Morris, who became only the 13th 1,000-yard rusher in Michigan history last season, and fullback Gerald White.

One of the key losses for the Michigan offense is that of tight end Eric Kattus, who was the Wolverines' leading receiver last year with 38 receptions for 582 yards. The Wolverines have only one returning letterman with tight end experience.

At split end Harbaugh will still have one of the largest targets in college football today to throw to in 6-foot-8 Paul Jokisch. Jokisch caught 37 passes for 681 yards last season.

At flanker the Wolverines have another starter in John Kolesar, who clinched Michigan's regular season-ending victory over Ohio State last year with a 77-yard touchdown reception.

On defense it appears that Michigan will not be able to equal its performance in 1985, but don't sell the Wolverines short just yet.

LAST YEAR THE Wolverines had the No. 1 ranked scoring defense in the country, allowing only 6.8 points per game, and the second ranked total defense in the country allowing an average of only

Minnesota discovers life after Holtz

By Brad Zimaneck
Sports Editor

CHICAGO — Minnesota football Coach John Gutekunst was literally "thrown" into the head coaching job last December but he would like to continue right where he left off.

When former Gopher Coach Lou Holtz left for the Holy Land of Notre Dame and handed the job to Gutekunst there was one thing that Holtz left unattended — Minnesota's first bowl appearance since 1977.

Gutekunst rose to the challenge. He rallied the Gophers to 20-13 victory over Clemson in the Independence Bowl giving Minnesota its first bowl victory since the 1962 Rose Bowl.

"It was quite a challenge for all of us," Gutekunst said. "We are pleased with the progress we have made and now we're looking to take the next step. We have to appreciate the fact that the young men who played for us realized they had a game staring them in the face, with a coaching staff of only two weeks, and were unselfish enough to worry about winning a football game."

GUTEKUNST, a defensive coordinator under Holtz, was recognized throughout the league even before coaching Minnesota to a bowl victory.

When Gutekunst was hired by Holtz to be in charge of the defense in 1984 he inherited a club which allowed 518 points the previous season, an NCAA record for points allowed and an average of over 47 points per contest.

In 1985 Gutekunst helped reduce the number of points allowed to 316 and last season Minnesota finished fourth in the Big Ten in total defense.

Obviously the Gophers' record during that time improved. Minnesota was 1-10 in 1983, 4-7 in 1984 and then finally they improved to 7-5 last season. Gutekunst believes this winning trend at Minnesota can continue.

"We want to take that next step and become legitimate contenders," Gutekunst said. "To do that one thing we have to do is continue to get better on defense."

THAT'S DEFINITELY A good possibility because nine of the 11 Minnesota defense starters return from a year ago.

The Gophers will be led by outside linebackers Mark Dusababek and Larry Joyner. Also all four members of the Minnesota secondary return and that will definitely improve the Gophers pass defense this season.

One area that worries Gutekunst is the depth of the Gopher defense at the linebacker position after Joyner and Dusababek. Gone from a year ago is Peter Najarian, who was Minnesota's leading tackler for the last three years, and reserves Joe Christopherson and Steve Gibbons.

On offense the Gophers may provide more scoring punch than a year ago because of Rickey Foggie, who will be one of the most explosive quarterbacks in the Big Ten in 1986, and an experienced offensive line which will be led by center Ray Hitchcock, who is a preseason all-American pick.

IN 1985 FOGGIE rushed for 451 yards and passed for 1,370 yards on only 65 completions. Last season Purdue's Jim Everett, a first round NFL pick by the Houston Oilers, completed 85 passes in the Boilermaker's first three games.

Minnesota's rushing offense last year, though, was third in the conference and they led the Big Ten with 25 rushing touchdowns.

For Minnesota to accomplish the same ground gaining consistency again this year they are going to have to keep Foggie healthy. Last year Foggie played most of the season for the Gophers with two fractured legs.

"I actually had them from the winter of '84 from playing basketball and they started to get sore halfway through the season," Foggie said. "I used to ice them and they told me they were shin splints but right before the bowl game I had x-rays and they told me I had stress fractures in both legs."

"OUR QUARTERBACK averaged almost 50 percent of our offense last year and we have

Fall exercise times, prices clarified

Some times and prices in Wednesday's story "Health clubs keep off 'freshman 15'" which appeared in section C, page four, were incorrectly listed.

The weight room at the Field House will provide weights at a charge of $5.00, with proper student identification.

Also aerobics classes are offered at $1.75 for a drop-in session. Workout times are 3:30 p.m., 4:40 p.m. and 5:50 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Tuesday and Thursday classes are offered at noon in addition to the times listed above.

Saturday a class is offered at 10:30 a.m. and Sunday a class is offered at 4:40 p.m.

Hearn criticizes Leonard, Hagler

NEW YORK (UPI)—Thomas "Hitman" Hearn, upset at the prospect of being shut out of a shot at the middleweight championship by a Marvin Hagler-Ray Leonard bout, Wednesday took verbal shots at both Hagler and Leonard.

Unfortunately for Hearn, it may be the only jabs he gets at the two men who have knocked him out in the ring.

"I don't think it (Hagler-Leonard) should happen," the World Boxing Council 154-pound champion said Wednesday at a news conference. "I don't think Ray Leonard deserves a shot at Marvin Hagler. I think if anybody deserves a shot at Marvin Hagler, I do."

"I see a great deal of fear," continued Hearn. "I knew all along Ray Leonard was afraid, now I see Marvin Hagler is afraid. I want to send these guys to the wizard for some new hearts."

Leonard stopped Hearn in 14 rounds in a 1981 welterweight unification bout, and Hagler defended his undisputed middleweight title with a third-round knockout over Hearn in 1985. Those were Hearn's only losses in 43 bouts.

Morris, Manley end NFL holdouts

Joe Morris of the New York Giants and Dexter Manley of the Washington Redskins have decided they want to play pro football in 1986.

Morris, although still not signed, reported to camp Wednesday because his agent Tom Toner said "there is reason to have faith in the club."

Conceding that reporting weakens Morris's bargaining strength, Toner said the move should bring a swift end to the contract dispute.

"We didn't feel Joe's absence should impede the negotiation process but the club felt his presence was necessary in order to negotiate," he said.

"Joe and I agreed Joe would walk into camp without anything established as far as Joe is concerned. He has been communicating with his teammates and he wants to be involved this season. This season is supposed to be a successful one."

At Washington, Manley, the flamboyant defensive end who set a Washington Redskins' club record with 15 sacks last season, ended a 33-day holdout Wednesday.

"I'm pleased — see that smile," Manley joked after practice. "You didn't think they'd leave the franchise out."

White Sox snap five-game losing streak

CHICAGO (UPI) — Rookie Ron Karkovics hit his first major league home run, a three-run shot in the second inning, Wednesday night to help the Chicago White Sox snap a five-game losing streak with a 3-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Chicago starter Floyd Bannister, 8-10, gave up five hits, struck out five and did not walk a batter in going the distance for the victory. It was his fourth complete game of the season.

Danny Jackson, 9-9, allowed 10 hits and three runs over six innings in suffering the loss.

Karkovics, called up Aug. 16 from Birmingham of the Class AA Southern League, hit the first pitch to him from Jackson in the second inning into the left field seats, following singles by Russ Morman and Ozzie Guillen.

253.6 yards per contest.

Michigan does return its leading tackler of a year ago, with Defensive Coordinator Gary Moeller's son, Andy. Last year Moeller amassed 138 tackles from his inside linebacker position.

"Our defense is going to be a good defense," Moeller said.

"ALTHOUGH statistically it might be damn near impossible to repeat, I think we can be just as effective and help our offense out in the same respect."

Other than Moeller, Michigan will also be returning starters in free safety Tony Gant, strong safety Ivan Hicks, cornerback Garland Rivers, defensive tackle Mark Messner and middle guard Billy Harris.

Michigan is striving for a Big Ten and a national championship but before they get there and to its regular season finale versus arch rival Ohio State there is one game that still sticks in the minds of the Wolverine players.

"We have been beaten by Iowa the last two years and I can't recall a team in that has beaten Michigan in back-to-back years, although they have both been at Iowa we look at that as no excuse," Moeller said. "The one was a drubbing when we went in there and laid an egg and the other one was a last second game which has to rank as one of the classic collegiate games ever. We got them in our stadium and we have to beat them and of course that will be in our minds."

Harbaugh also looks fondly to meeting the Hawkeyes at Michigan Stadium Oct. 18.

"Certainly our lowest moment last year was when Rob Houghtlin kicked that field goal," Harbaugh said. "It was like somebody reached in and pulled everything from my insides. It cost us the Rose Bowl, it cost us the national championship, so we'll be definitely looking for that game."

not finished either season (since Gutekunst has been with Minnesota) with a healthy quarterback," Gutekunst said.

"If we are going to compete for the championship we are going to have to be prepared to win games in November and we can't do that without our first team quarterback."

To take some of the pressure off of Foggie's running ability Minnesota will have to be able to deliver the ball to both split end Mel Anderson and flanker Gary Couch and he should have the time to throw with four starters on the offensive line returning.

BUT ONE BIG QUESTION mark that remains on Minnesota's offense is who is going to run the ball besides Foggie?

Only one letterman for Minnesota returns at tailback and after spring drills no Gopher back, besides Foggie, has been assured of a starting position.

"We do have some inexperience at both tailback and full-

The place kicking assignments for the Gophers will be in good hands, or "feet", because two-year starter Chip Lohmiller, who was Minnesota's leading scorer last season, is returning. The punting duties for Minnesota will be handled by Paul Carlson or Rich Buendorf.

East German sets cycle mark

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — Michael Huebner of East Germany set a world record in the 200-meter time trials Wednesday while qualifying for the match sprints on the first day of races at the World Cycling Championships.

Huebner, 27, finished the 200 meters in 10.11 seconds, bettering the world mark of 10.19 set by his German teammate, Lutz Heschlich, in 1985 on the same track.

Heschlich had the second-fastest time Wednesday at 10.191, and two other East Germans, Ralf-Gudo Kuschy and Bill Huck, were third and fourth.

In the women's qualifying for match sprints, Connie Paraskevin of the United States also set a world record in 11.245 seconds, bettering a mark of 11.392 set by two Frenchwomen earlier this month in Colorado Springs.

Connie Paraskevin of the USA Cycling team set a world record in the women's match sprints at the World Cycling Championships Wednesday in Colorado Springs, Colo.

THE RECORDS BY Huebner and Paraskevin are unofficial until verified by the International Cycling Union.

Track events on the 333.3-meter velodrome will continue through Sept. 1, with road races at the Air Force Academy north of Colorado Springs to be held Sept. 4, 6 and 7.

Twenty-four of the 49 cyclists who rode against the clock advanced to the second round of the match sprints Thursday. This is the first year the individual format has been used for the qualifying round instead of seeding based on last year's championships. The rest of the event will be run as 1,000-meter matches.

"I thought I was going to set a record when I was warming up," Huebner said, "but I didn't when I woke up this morning and saw the clouds.

Hot weather is best for me."

HUEBNER ALSO SAID that a time under 10 seconds is possible in the 200 meters on the Colorado Springs track.

"This track has a good feeling, and I like racing here," he said. "I could have shaved a few more hundredths of a second, but I got too high on the curve."

Mark Gorski of the United States, the 1984 Olympic gold medalist in the match sprints, led three American qualifiers into the next round. Gorski's 10.396 was the fifth-best time while Scott Berryman had 10.646 for the 10th best time and Nelson Vails 10.745 for 14th.

Paraskevin, like Huebner, said she was a little worried about the cool, overcast weather on the first day of racing.

The gentlemen of Tau Kappa Epsilon cordially invite all interested women to their little sister rush party, Thursday, Aug. 28 & Friday, Sept. 5 8pm-1am

'Golden Cub' makes pro golfing debut

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—The 29th annual St. Jude Classic opens today with five of the PGA's top money winners vying with 151 other players — including Jack Nicklaus II — for a purse of $500,000 plus.

The heavyweights this year include PGA champion Bob Tway, Andy Bean, Payne Stewart, John Mahaffey, Fuzzy Zoeller and defending champion Hal Sutton. But a rookie may get most of the attention. Jack Nicklaus II, son of golf's

"Golden Bear," is making his professional debut in the classic.

"We're set to go and it ought to be a great one," said H.H. 'Dutch' Akers, vice president of Youth Programs Inc., which directs the championship.

Tournament officials do not expect the lateness of this year's tournament to affect attendance at the Colonial Country Club, noting good crowds at Tuesday's and Wednesday's pro-am events.

"We're getting compliments from everyone about the golf course and the caliber of the field of players," Akers said.

The tournament used to be called Danny Thomas Memphis Classic, then the St. Jude Memphis Classic, reflecting the beneficiary of the revenues, St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. The new corporate sponsor, Federal Express, will contribute $1 for each package over 500,000 that the company handles on Friday, thus the "plus" in $500,000-plus purse.

The lateness of the event did cause some problems with getting caddies for pro-am events, because teens who helped out in the past were in school. But the heart of the event isn't affected, tournament officials said.

Death and illness have brought the only difficulties. General Chairman Don Drinkard died of an apparent heart attack Aug. 16.

Krantz takes Manhattan

By Teresa Heger
Arts/entertainment Editor

WRITER Judith Krantz will never be remembered for her great literary themes. She'll never be mentioned in the company of Emily or Leo Tolstoy.

None of her works will ever be taught as American classics. Instead, Krantz will be fondly recalled (if she is recollected at all) as the queen of sleaze, the writer who almost turned the epic, sprawling romance into a literary art. Almost.

I'll Take Manhattan, Krantz's latest novel, delves into the world of publishing. Not small-time publishing — no small hometown newspapers litter the pages of Manhattan. Instead, her book deals (loosely, a la Krantz) with the entire New York publishing world.

Krantz's fashionably named, fashionably dressed and fashionably rich main character, Maxi Amberville, has inherited a failing magazine from her father's estate. Her mission (and sole desire) is to make the little magazine, Buttons and Bows, as successful as her dead father's other publications. (The Amberville Publishing House owns, incidentally, 10 or 12 other magazines — all of them shady parallels to Time, Newsweek or Redbook.)

TO MAKE THINGS even

more interesting, poor Maxi must achieve this fantastic turnabout within a year's time, or her evil stepfather/uncle will put the magazine on the shelf forever. It's sort of a "poor little rich girl" story.

Add to this basic plot Maxi's rags to riches father, her ex-ballerina mother, her blind — but determined — brother and her best friend who is a famous movie star. Then throw in a little deceit, a bit of scandal and a lot of sex. Voila! The activity never ceases. If nothing else, the novel is busy.

I'll Take Manhattan is typical of Krantz's other ambitious novels. Her first novel, Scruples, captured thousands of readers with its steamy — very steamy — portrayal of life in the glitter and glitz of Hollywood. The fact that her characters, while rich and beautiful, were still human and likeable aided Krantz's rise to popularity. One of the main characters of Scruples is an ugly duckling heroine; she spends a fat adolescence in rejected solitude. But then she grows up, loses about a hundred pounds and instantly becomes popular and beautiful. Krantz is no fool; she knows her readers.

PRINCESS DAISY and Mistral's Daughter followed the popular Scruples. Both cover generations of characters; love conflicts are often not resolved until the third generation. Krantz fits about anything she can research into these novels; she glides easily from the artistic world of Paris in the 1920s to the second world war, from modeling agencies in New York to displaced royalty hiding their blue blood.

I'll Take Manhattan is disappointing, it is in relation to Krantz's other works. Much of the novel's vitality is undercut by its use of a third person voice, and through the second- or third-hand telling of episodes that would have been much more interesting if told in an active voice. For example, Maxi is married three times, but only one marriage is given much coverage. The other two husbands — a rich seaman and a rich Scottish earl — are never developed fully, and for the most part only mentioned in relation to divorce proceedings.

Of course, to expect great stylistic flair out of a work like I'll Take Manhattan is a bit too much. After all, despite the glamour and glory, Krantz's work is simply an elevated Harlequin. The fact that her novels are fun and fast-paced is sufficient; I'll Take Manhattan, as well as Krantz's other works, achieve what they were written to do: they provide an entertaining escape from the mundane world of everyday living.

NBC wins No. 1 spot in ratings

NEW YORK (UPI) — NBC squeaked by CBS for the No. 1 spot in the prime-time ratings last week and ABC again finished last, figures showed Tuesday.

For the week ending Aug. 24, NBC's four Thursday night sitcoms — "The Cosby Show," "Family Ties," "Cheers" and "Night Court" — were the four most-watched prime-time shows, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co. CBS had the next four slots and ABC had the bottom two of the top 10.

Each ratings point represents about 859,000 households and a share is the percentage of sets tuned to a particular show.

The top 10 prime-time shows for the week ending Aug. 24, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co., were:

1. "The Cosby Show" (NBC)
2. "Family Ties" (NBC)
3. "Cheers" (NBC)
4. "Night Court" (NBC)
5. "Murder, She Wrote" (CBS)
6. "Newhart" (CBS)
7. "Kate & Allie" (CBS)
8. CBS Sunday Night Movie (CBS)
9. "Moonlighting" (ABC)
10. "MacGyver" (ABC)

Recorder virtuoso performs Renaissance, modern music

By B. Gordon
Special to The Daily Iowan
IOWA CITY is not a surprising place to come to for Early Music," says Evelyn Nallen, a recorder soloist from Cambridge, England, who will be performing tonight at 8 in Harper Hall. "It's quite well known," she said.

Music

Nallen will be performing Renaissance and contemporary music for recorder and harpsichord. Her accompanist will be Sven Hansell, harpsichord, a professor in the UI Music Department. The concert is sponsored jointly by the Music Department and the Iowa City Recorder Society. "Recorder playing is very healthy here," said Nallen. She added that the chief organizer of the concert, Miriam Laster, is a "keen recorder player" herself. Laster's husband is UI Professor of Physics and Astronomy Howard Laster, and Nallen says it was the "science connection" that brought her here from a major Early Music conference in Wood's Hole, Mass. Her first tour of the United States has included workshops at Amherst College, Mass., and Cape Cod.

LIKE MANY whose parents have dreams of raising the next Jean-Pierre Rampal, Nallen's first instrument was the recorder. Picking the instrument up again in her 20s, she studied in Amsterdam and Vienna. Currently she has a trio and quartet in England, as well as teaching privately and concerting.

The recorder is the wooden predecessor of today's flute, which is generally made of solid gold or silver. Playing a dozen or more recorders in a single concert is not unusual. The Renaissance instrument is constructed differently from the Baroque, and both are different from a modern instrument: The trend has been toward fuller tone and greater range of pitch.

Interest in Early Music has been growing recently in this country. Advances in scientific methods have made it possible to recreate the music 17th century composers heard with greater exactitude than ever before.

Entertainment Today

At the Bijou

Shoot the Piano Player (1962). Charles Aznavour is a down-and-out piano player in a Parisian cafe until his pushy girlfriend urges him to resume his once prominent concert career. Yet this ambition is thwarted when Aznavour becomes involved in a group of gangsters. In French. At 7 p.m.

The Palm Beach Story (1942). Director Preston Sturges directed this hilarious screwball comedy starring Mary Astor, Joel McCrea and Claudette Colbert. When Colbert runs away from her husband (McCrea), she eventually finds herself in Palm Beach in the company of a nutty millionaire (Astor). At 8:45 p.m.

Television

On the networks: Alex (Michael J. Fox) is pitted against a Soviet chess player in "Family Ties" (NBC at 7:30 p.m.). On "Star Trek" (ABC at 10:35 p.m.) the Enterprise encounters a huge spaceship that is, unknowingly, on a collision course for a planet.

On cable: For those of sentimental tastes, The Cockeyed Cowboys of

Michael J. Fox

Calico County (TBS at 7:05 p.m.) is a slightly sappy and slap-happy western starring Dan Blocker and Nanette Fabray. Stranger's Kiss (HBO at 8 p.m.) tells the tale of low-budget filmmaking in 1955 Hollywood.

Music

Recorder virtuoso Evelyn Nallen, accompanied by harpsichordist

Sven Hansell, will perform at 8 p.m. in Harper Hall.

Readings

The Iowa City Public Library will hold a storytime at 10:30 a.m. and will also show the films "Incy Wincy Spider," "Floats" and "Really Rosie" at 3 p.m. and 7 p.m.

Art

R. Steve Benson will display watercolors with mixed media through August 31 in the Boyd Tower East Lobby as part of UI Hospitals Project Art.

Charles K. Fisher will display oil paintings through August 31 in the Boyd Tower West Lobby as part of UI Hospitals Project Art.

Marguerite Chinn will display sculptures through August 31 in the Main Lobby as part of UI Hospitals Project Art.

Maryl Mitchell will display watercolor and oil paintings in the Hawkeye State Bank through August 30.

Nicki Soldofsky will display fiber art through September 28 in the Carver Pavilion Links as part of UI Hospitals Project Art.
