Hijackers face trial in Pakistan

KARACHI, Pakistan (UPI)—President Mohammad Zia ul-Haq said Sunday the four hijackers of a Pan Am jetliner were young Palestinians operating without state support and will be tried in Pakistan for the bloodbath that claimed 18 lives.

Zia ruled out extradition of the hijackers to the United States, which has issued arrest warrants for the hijackers, or any other country. They face the death penalty if convicted of the hijacking, which also wounded more than 150.

"These hijackers have committed a crime on the soil of Pakistan," Zia told a news conference. "We will try them here. I hope that the courts will take full note of this and they receive the full punishment that such a crime deserves."

Sources in Pakistan's internal security agency said at least one person was jailed on charges of renting the van the hijackers used to reach the Boeing 747 on the airport tarmac and shoot their way aboard early Friday.

ZIA'S FIRST public comments on the hijacking came two days after the conclusion to the 16-hour ordeal aboard Pan Am Flight 73 but they did little to clear up the confusion surrounding its final bloody moments Friday night.

The four hijackers held 383 people aboard the plane, making various demands, until the power died and the lights went out. The hijackers panicked, herded people into the middle of the plane, and then hurled grenades and sprayed gunfire through the cabin, officials and survivors said.

Confusion over details of the drama persisted Sunday, with conflicting reports on when Pakistani commandos reached the plane to end the hijacking. About 300 survivors vivors of the hijacking left Karachi Sunday aboard special flights to Bombay, India, and some to their original destinations in New York and London via Frankfurt, West Germany. Diplomats made arrangements for the bodies of the victims to be transported to their homes.

Pakistani policemen keep a close watch on a badly wounded hijacker in a Karachi, Pakistan, hospital. The man was shot by commandos as they stormed the hijacked Pan Am airliner, flight 73, Friday night. The hijacking left 18 people dead and 150 wounded.

ELEVEN people seriously wounded in the hijacking arrived Sunday at a U.S. Air Force base in West Germany for treatment. Officials said 37 wounded passengers remained in Karachi for medical care.

One American, a newly naturalized Indian man, was killed early in the hijacking, 16 people of various nationalities died in the gunfire that ended the ordeal and an Indian man died late Saturday night from his injuries. The U.S. Embassy has refused to confirm initial reports that two Americans were killed.

Chile under siege after leftist strike

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)—Suspected leftist rebels ambushed President Augusto Pinochet's motorcade Sunday evening with hand grenades and automatic weapons, the government said. The military leader escaped unscathed and declared a nationwide state of siege.

Five of Pinochet's escorts were killed and nine others were injured when three cars in the motorcade were blown up and overturned as they crossed a bridge and one car exploded in flames, government spokesman Francisco Cuadra said.

"The presidential motorcade was ambushed by a terrorist commando of at least 12 people with weapons of different types and calibers," said Cuadra, the government spokesman. "The president escaped unhurt and is in good health at his residence."

One of the three cars that burst into flames was one of two Mercedes-Benzes used by the 70-year-old military ruler, but authorities said the car the president was traveling in was not hit.

Interior Minister Ricardo Garcia later announced to the nation in a television broadcast that the military junta, led by Pinochet, was imposing a state of siege to control subversive activity.

The state of siege grants the military government wider powers in arresting suspects, censoring the press, restricting the right to assembly and disseminate information, tapping phones and opening mail.

Pinochet last resorted to a state of siege on Nov. 6, 1984, to curb a mounting wave of unrest and violent protests by opponents seeking the restoration of democracy. That state of siege was lifted June 17, 1985.

Cuadra said leftist guerrillas were responsible for Sunday's attack, but did not elaborate.

Press reports said a communist urban guerrilla group called the Manuel Rodriguez Patriotic Front claimed the attack, but a telephone caller claiming to be a spokesman for the group told United Press International that he was its only official spokesman and had made no such announcement.

Shortly after the attack on Pinochet's motorcade, a radio station later reported that the president appeared on the balcony of the presidential residence and waved to supporters to quell rumors that he had been wounded in the first reported attempt on his life during 13 years in power.

His appearance could not be independently confirmed.

Five escorts — an army sergeant, a police motorcyclist, a second policeman and two secret police bodyguards — were killed in the attack, Cuadra said, and nine other people in the motorcade were wounded by gunfire, four seriously. The injured included three army officers and six police.

The attempt on Pinochet's life followed a wave of violent protests against military rule that broke out Thursday and Friday. Four people were killed in shootings and officials deployed army troops to disperse demonstrators in slum areas where residents blocked streets with burning tires.

The ambush occurred in a river valley 30 miles south of Santiago at 5:40 p.m. as Pinochet was being driven back to the capital from his weekend retreat in the Andean foothills 10 miles farther south.

Board to argue volleyball issue

By Bruce Japsen
Staff Writer

Iowa City School Board members face a difficult decision tonight when they discuss whether to let a boy play on the West High School girls' volleyball team.

School Superintendent David Cronin said even if the board supports 17-year-old Trevor Adamson's bid to play on the team, area schools may oppose the move, which may force the issue into the courtroom.

"It seems to me that the resolution of this issue will only come out of litigation," Cronin said. "It's a difficult issue, no matter what they decide. I think everyone is aware of what is involved here, and we'll try to avoid spending dollars on going to court."

If the board allows Adamson to play, Cedar Rapids officials say they'll file a protest.

William Rainbow, executive director of Cedar Rapids secondary schools, said the school district will lodge a protest with the Mississippi Valley Conference and the Iowa Girls' High School Athletic Union if the school board supports Adamson.

"There's quite a difference between men's and women's volleyball," Rainbow said. "We don't feel any danger to men's teams to allow women to play on them, but there is danger if men are allowed to take the place of women on women's teams. And the courts have ruled that way."

RAINBOW cited a similar example that was ruled upon in several lower courts and finally the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The 1979 case, Petry vs. the Illinois High School Athletic Association, says boys are not to be on girls' volleyball teams.

The main difference in the rules is the height of the net. In men's volleyball, the top of the net is 7 feet, 11½ inches from the floor, while the net is only 7 feet 4 inches high in women's volleyball.

Iowa City school officials who favor Adamson's participation on the team say he should be allowed to play because West High doesn't have a volleyball program for boys and girls.

Trevor's father, Ken Adamson, said he and his son will await the school board's verdict.

"I'm supportive of whatever the board decides," Ken Adamson said. "I think he (Trevor) is also going to wait until the board makes a decision."

Adamson has been practicing with his team, which plays Cedar Rapids Washington High School in its opening match Tuesday. Pending board approval, Adamson said he would play in a junior varsity match against Washington Tuesday.

"My friends and family are still supporting me," Trevor said. "Nothing has really changed since all of this came about. I don't want to talk about it much more. I'd rather wait until after the board meeting to see what the board has to say."

Rainbow said the Washington team will "go ahead and play the game, but we'll advise them that they are in violation of the rules."

Cronin said the board will spend 20 to 30 minutes discussing the issue. The board is scheduled to meet at 7:30 p.m. at the Iowa City Community School District administrative offices, 509 S. Dubuque St.

'Friends of Old Brick' protest sale

By James Cahoy
Staff Writer

A citizens' group that rallied to preserve historic Old Brick threatened to take legal actions to halt the proposed sale of the building to two local religious groups.

The organization, Friends of Old Brick, issued a statement Sunday concerning the future of Old Brick, 26 E. Market St., and Carol Christensen, group president, said a lawsuit will be filed in Johnson County District Court this week.

Old Brick is owned by Old Brick Associates, a group of local investors that saved the building from demolition in the late 1970s. Two Old Brick Associates shareholders are also Friends of Old Brick members.

In the statement issued Sunday, Friends of Old Brick charge that improper procedures were used at a special meeting called June 17 by Old Brick Associates, during which shareholders voted to sell the building to Lutheran Campus Council of Iowa City and the Episcopal University Chaplaincy.

"Any vote to sell Old Brick must be by a unanimous, not a majority vote," the Friends of Old Brick statement says.

"AS A SALE of Old Brick would operate to dissolve the partnership of Old Brick Associates, the sale requires the unanimous support of all limited and general partners pursuant to Iowa law," the document states.

David Huston, general partner of Old Brick Associates, said the vote to sell the building was not unanimous. "Essentially, the vote was for the sale by a two-thirds majority," he said.

Huston said the vote was conducted on the advice of legal counsel and that he saw nothing unfair about it. "The majority of shareholders cannot be ignored," he said.

Huston said the impending suit was "based on the feeling of the Friends of Old Brick that they should have controlling interest in the building.

And that's all it is — a feeling."

But Christensen said the suit will be "based on the vote on the sale, though we have other concerns besides the vote about the sale of Old Brick."

THE GROUP STATEMENT cited other issues, among them a question about whether the Lutheran Campus Council would have funds needed for the upkeep of Old Brick, which is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

"Unfortunately, our analysis of the income and expected expenses does not confirm that the ministries will have the means to continue to invest in improvements and restoration," the statement says.

Lutheran Campus Council spokesman Dennis Bielfeldt called the charge "blatantly false."

"We are going to invest $100,000 into the building, which is a lot more than is invested now. We're going into this thing with our eyes open," he said.

Friends of Old Brick also charged that the council would transfer the Old Brick from "a public forum to a private sanctuary."

But Bielfeldt countered: "Everybody in the Old Brick now is invited to stay. We are not going to turn the Old Brick into a parish church."

UI conference examines nursing issues

School budgetary constraints and changing health care trends are shaping a new role for the school nurse.

To help school nurses understand these and other issues affecting their roles, the UI is sponsoring the 12th Annual School Nurse Conference, "Challenges in the Professional Role," Oct. 3-4 in Iowa City.

The two-day program will provide school nurses with strategies for promoting their role in school nursing and address issues of importance to their function in the educational setting.

Topics will include children's stress — causes, manifestations and strategies; integrating handicapped children into regular educational settings; and infectious diseases such as Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome and herpes.

Concurrent sessions will be offered on the assessment of psychosomatic complaints, depression, suicide and hyperactivity.

The keynote speaker will be UI Associate Nursing Professor Joanne McCloskey. Other speakers will include representatives from the Iowa City Community School District, Area Education Agency 7 in Cedar Falls, Iowa State Department of Health and the UI Hospitals.

Historic building re-opened as new Commerce Center

By Darin E. Baker
Staff Writer

Iowa City residents celebrated the rejuvenation of a landmark and ushered in a new era of community involvement Saturday during Celebrate Iowa City Day.

The purpose of the event, sponsored by the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce, was to dedicate what was once the Elks Club House as the city's new Commerce Center, 325 E. Washington St.

More than 200 people attended the event, which included an appearance by Iowa football Coach Hayden Fry. Fry fielded questions from children during a 30-minute press conference.

IRVING WEBER, known by some as Iowa City's unofficial historian, said the children's involvement brought back memories of Elks Club Christmas parties.

"Remember (parties) and the big sacks of candy made by member J.D. Reichardt at his candy store," said Weber, a retired businessman who spent much of the day recounting the building's history.

Weber said the Elks Club No. 590 was organized in Iowa City in 1900 and rented office space for a mere $25 per month in the building that now houses Iowa State Bank and Trust.

Additional memberships forced the group to relocate to a larger building, and the organization later purchased the J.J. Freeman property at 319 E. Washington St. in 1906. The club borrowed $3,000 for the $5,000 purchase.

Despite the group's newly acquired space, talk of a new club house began as early as 1907. Members purchased the lot next door — where the Commerce Center now stands — for $4,800 in 1908.

ON NOV. 1, 1909, the new building was dedicated. The gala event included music, dancing and a seven-course meal enjoyed by more than 350 guests, and the Elks Club House became a regular celebration site.

The parties and celebrations ended 20 years ago, Weber said. The club sold the building in order to purchase yet another site, and restaurants such as The Bull Market and The Bread Line have since populated it.

In 1983, Southgate Development purchased the building to develop new office space for its own purposes and to house the Chamber of Commerce. The cost of the project exceeded $1 million.

"We built a new building inside of this building," said Harry R. Wolf, an accountant for Southgate Development.

CAC to air concerns about location of regents meeting

By Joseph Levy
Special to The Daily Iowan

The location of the state Board of Regents discussion concerning possible UI tuition increases is expected to be the major agenda item at the UI College Associations Council meeting tonight.

CAC President Mike Reck said the CAC will talk about the location of the regents meeting designated for discussion of tuition increases.

The regents meeting is scheduled to take place in Council Bluffs.

"I'm concerned that students don't lose their ability to voice their concerns on this issue," Reck said, pointing out that most students would be unable to travel to Council Bluffs.

REGENTS Executive Secretary R. Wayne Richey said last week the meeting discussing a tuition increase won't begin until October or November because of scheduling difficulties.

The November regents meeting is currently scheduled to take place in Council Bluffs.

UI Student Senate Vice President Staci Rhine agreed that Council Bluffs would be a poor location for the meeting. "It's a good distance from here," she said. "That's a five-hour drive."

Richey said the regents are considering changing the location of that meeting but Reck said that won't necessarily solve the problem.

"If it's delayed two months it has the potential of landing in the middle of finals week," he said. "That makes it difficult for me to get to the meeting, let alone the average student."

RHINE SAID she wasn't sure the meeting would conflict with the UI final exam schedule.

"I had not heard that it would be moved all the way to December," she said. "They're still talking October and November."

Richey said last week the final decision may not be made until December.

Although the senate probably will not discuss the tuition issue at its Tuesday meeting, senate executives are concerned about the issue, Rhine said.

Reck said the CAC will not take a stand on the possibility of a tuition increase yet.

"We're going to wait until we have all of our information," he said.

26 new dryers will lighten the load in UI residence halls

By Dan McClain
Staff Writer

Efforts led by student leaders and the UI Department of Resident Services have resulted in a $40,000 program that will make life a little easier for students living in the UI residence halls this year.

The program, aimed at improving laundry facilities in the 10 UI residence halls, includes the replacement of outdated steam dryers with gas-operated models, balancing the ratio between washers and dryers and the installation of vending machines selling tokens that operate the washers when residence hall stores are closed.

Associated Residence Halls President Larry Pearlman said the residence halls group began its drive for better laundry facilities last spring in response to complaints about long lines for dryers, hot laundry rooms and other problems.

The Associated Residence Halls is the student government body that has jurisdiction over residence halls affairs. It is composed of representatives from each hall.

"It was just an unpleasant, inconvenient situation in those facilities," Pearlman said. "As far as I'm concerned those dryers only had two settings: fry and not dry."

A committee began working on the problem last April and presented a proposal to improve laundry facilities. The department reacted by funding the laundry program, now in its initial phases, that is scheduled to be completed by next summer.

UI Assistant Resident Services Director Wayne Graeve said 26 new gas dryers have already been installed in Hillcrest and Currier Residence Halls to replace the unreliable steam systems and balance the washer to dryer ratio.

The steam dryers "are really kind of dinosaurs. They're obsolete. You can't even buy that kind of dryer anymore," he said.

The new gas dryer system will also remedy student complaints about high temperatures in laundry rooms, Graeve said. The pipes carrying steam to the old dryers made laundry room temperatures so hot in Currier that paint was flaking off the walls only two years after the room had been painted, he said.

Pearlman said his group is very satisfied and impressed with UI response to the committee's analysis and proposal.

"The department has really helped us out with this," he said. "ARH is here to serve the residents, and this was one way we were able to meet that goal."

Court hearing

Trevor Adamson wants to play volleyball — and why shouldn't he?

The 17-year-old boy has been practicing with the West High girls' volleyball team, but his full-fledged membership on the squad hinges on a decision the Iowa City School Board will make tonight.

If board members follow precedent — and there's no reason they shouldn't — Adamson will be allowed to compete with the Iowa City team. Just three years ago, West High student Amy Chu won the board's support when she wanted to play on the boys' soccer team.

Opposition to Chu's participation on the boys' team primarily came from outside the school district. Cedar Rapids schools refused to play West High and eventually filed an injunction against the coed team. The school board stood strong and Iowa City later started its own coed soccer league.

Adamson's case isn't identical to Chu's. But there are similarities.

The most obvious difference between men's and women's volleyball is net height. Women's nets are 7 feet 4 1/4 inches high; men's stand at 7 feet 11 1/4 inches. So, why not compromise?

UI intramural officials say they typically use women's nets for coed games. The United States Volleyball Association suggests men's nets be used for coed match-ups.

Whatever the rules, the principle is the same. All Adamson wants is a chance to play volleyball. Since no men's or coed teams exist in the area, his request to play on the West High girls' team is a reasonable one.

The Iowa City School Board should support Adamson and stand behind him as area teams decide whether or not to play the West High team.

Here's hoping Adamson gets his day on court.

Ducking the issue

Gov. Terry Branstad's statement that a possible tuition increase for Iowa's state university system shouldn't be an "election issue" betrays a lack of understanding of one of the fundamental purposes of elections. An election is not simply a contest between personalities, each with their vaguely drawn philosophies. An election should be a test of ideas, as candidates square off in debates and in their media imagery. An election is an opportunity to gather a consensus on issues. Issues like the affordability of our state university system for Iowa tax-payers and their offspring.

If indeed a possible tuition increase is, in the governor's words, to be "judged on its own merits," let it be judged by voters. Let the voters' judgment attach itself to Branstad, who is ultimately responsible for maintaining a state university system that was once considered one of the nation's best.

As the lifestyle of young Iowans is increasingly beginning to resemble an old Ronald Reagan movie, with the boys trudging off for glory to Honduras and the rest of the gang toasting them with cherry Cokes, the impact of the state's decisions on students is being downplayed. Clearly, however, the governor has not forgotten that 18-year-olds vote.

Unfair lock-out law

It's a real sweet deal for employers — a bonanza — like taking candy from a cripple. The Iowa code, explains Paul Moran, administrator of the Job Insurance Bureau, seems to clearly state that a lock-out is a labor dispute, and workers involved in a labor dispute don't qualify for unemployment compensation.

What that means, of course, is that employers have a sure-fire way to avoid paying wages and unemployment compensation. They, for example, ask workers to take a cut in pay and benefits, and when the workers refuse they lock them out. That is a labor dispute and the workers get no salary and no unemployment benefits.

It's rather like saying that the mugger and the muggee are both involved in a dispute and so neither can press charges. But of course there is a big difference in choosing to go on strike and being told you can't work.

In a time of high unemployment, the traditional worker tool of a strike is of restricted utility. If a lock-out by the employers can be used to force them to accept a bad contract, then workers are completely powerless in a labor dispute. They can be mugged and left to bleed with no recourse.

The question is not academic. John Deere workers at some plants in Iowa have been locked out, apparently because a few other plants have been struck. The law is clearly unfair and clearly discriminates against workers. It should be changed and if the Job Insurance Bureau can find loopholes to give the locked out workers benefits, it should.

The danger of New Right isolationism

By James W. McCormick

LIBERAL-internationalism, it would seem, is fast becoming a moribund concept in American politics. As the doctrinal foundation of American foreign policy since 1945, liberal-internationalism embodied a set of principles dedicated to the creation of a more peaceful and just world order within which the United States and international society might prosper.

Its aims were free world trade, national self-determination and the freedom of self-government for all peoples, and the preservation of an orderly international society. Internationalist means largely consisted of the United Nations, the expansion of international law, and collective security. In recent years, though, liberal-internationalism has ceased to be a credible political doctrine. As Thomas L. Hughes, president of the Carnegie Endowment observed recently, traditional internationalist themes are today "the objects of derision and contempt."

THE NEWEST AND most formidable opponent of liberal-internationalist thought is neoconservatism. Neoconservatism is generally perceived as a movement of disillusioned liberals. More particularly, neoconservatism is an ideologically self-conscious movement of highly political intellectuals dedicated to the defense of American liberal-capitalist values.

... a neoconservative foreign policy looks very much like the isolationism of the 1930s

Until the early 1980s, neoconservatism's critique of American foreign policy remained largely inchoate. Currently, however, there are two identifiable strands of neoconservative foreign policy analysis. The first is what Charles Krauthammer, senior editor of the New Republic, calls "neo-internationalism" and mainly takes the form of a defense of interventionism. The second strand, to be examined here, concerns "nationalist-unilateralism."

PERHAPS THE foremost advocate of nationalist-unilateralism is Irving Kristol. Described as the "Patron Saint" of the New Right, Kristol is an intellectual mentor and supporter of Republican presidential aspirant Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y.

The point of departure for nationalist-unilateralism is that world politics generally, and Soviet-American relations in particular, is dominated by intense ideological conflict. Liberal-internationalism is condemned as naively utopian and tragically inadequate in an ideological age.

Post-war American diplomacy, dominated by the internationalist's vision of maintaining a rational and harmonious world order, is portrayed as woefully unable to cope with the anarchic tendencies and ideological rifts in world politics. In contrast, a nationalist-unilateralist foreign policy would dedicate itself to the defense of American national interests.

But unlike the "realist" school's exclusive preoccupation with accumulating and protecting American national power, nationalist-unilateralism would recognize that our foreign policy requires an ideological dimension. Hence, it would explicitly assert the vitality of "traditional values" imbued in neoconservatism's conception of American liberal capitalism.

THE CENTERPIECE OF this neoconservative foreign policy would be an intensification of the conflict with world communism and the Soviet Union. Within the context of heightened Cold War tensions, however, Kristol envisions a selective disengagement from our commitments to regional defense arrangements and organizations which allegedly impinge American freedom of maneuver.

Thus, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Southeast Asian Treaty Organization, the Organization of American States and even the United Nations are viewed as foreign entanglements which have turned out to be "ineffectual barriers against aggression," but "very effective hindrances to American action."

It should be self-evident that nationalist-unilateralism is little more than a new form of right isolationism. Indeed, except for the prominence of the Soviet-American rivalry in Kristol's formulations, a neoconservative foreign policy looks very much like the isolationism of the 1930s.

Redrawing America's security perimeter around the continental United States would introduce a new level of uncertainty and instability into international politics and therefore make the world less — rather than more — secure. It would perversely work to enhance the power and influence of the Soviet Union. And, it would stand for a defensive and small-minded vision of America inconsistent with the ideals to which our foreign policy has traditionally sought to aspire.

U.S. should value its bond with Israel

By Joel Plofsky

THIS YEAR MARKS the 38th year that the United States has had a steady and reliable friend in the Middle East. The advantages we have because of our alliance with the State of Israel far outweigh any problems that might have occurred over the years. The United States and Israel are natural allies. Like our country, Israel is a country of immigrants which fought for its independence. Both countries are democracies with elected officials from all portions of society. The greatest advantage is that both nations protect each others' interest.

An advantage for the United States in this relationship is that the Israeli army is in the Middle East to protect our interests there. Oil from the Middle East has become so important to the United States and our allies and it is vital that the Persian Gulf remain open to the flow of oil to Japan, Europe and the United States. Without the Israeli army there to protect our interests, we would be forced to take one of two unfavorable courses of action.

WE WOULD HAVE TO either base our men in the Middle East, or ship them over in the case of an escalation. The importance of us of basing men in the Middle East is seen in the terrorist bombing of the Marine base Lebanon. If the United States would choose not to base men in the Middle East, it would take months to move men and equipment to stop a Libyan or Iranian blockoff of the Gulf.

The State of Israel is assuring us that our young men will not be in the vulnerable position as terrorist targets, and our interests in the area will still be protected.

All advantages aside, however, Israel has not been without its problems. Over the years it has suffered from a poor economy. Unemployment and double digit inflation have been Israel's greatest problems. Israeli industry is hoping to turn the economy around. With the help of the United States and Israel's own initiative and hard work, that nation will soon be able to fully compete in world markets.

to protect their nation from foreign invasion. Egypt, Syria, Jordan and Iraq have all tried to invade Israel, who does not wish to be at war.

Rather, it has called out to its neighboring nations with a prospect for peace. This call was answered in part by President Anwar Sadat of Egypt. Sadat, who led the Egyptian Army three times against Israel, came to the realization that common goals existed and that peace could be reached. It was the United States who brought these two nations together in the holy city of Jerusalem.

Israel continues its call for peace to nations like Jordan. If an agreement with Jordan can be reached, Israel will have peace to the East to go along with peace to the South, peace to the West, and peace from within.

Seeing that the State of Israel is one of our greatest allies on the globe, we as Americans should stand behind this friend because friends in the world are hard to find, especially in the Middle East.

Nicaragua ousting of U.S. priest chided

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo condemned Sunday the government's refusal to allow a U.S. priest to return to Nicaragua and said other clerics may be threatened.

"It is lamentable," Obando y Bravo said. "They want to remove all the priests of a centered line and leave those belonging to the Popular Church," which supports the leftist government.

In an interview with United Press International shortly before his weekly mass at a suburban church, Obando y Bravo confirmed that the government on Tuesday barred the Rev. Evaristo or Everett Brown from returning to Nicaragua, his home of 12 years.

Brown, a U.S. citizen, was from the diocese headed by Bishop Pablo Antonio Vega, an outspoken critic of the government who was accused of supporting U.S.-backed rebels and expelled July 4.

Peres blasts comments on massacre

JERUSALEM — Prime Minister Shimon Peres suspended Cabinet meetings Sunday until Trade and Industry Minister Ariel Sharon withdraws his statement that the massacre of 22 Jews in Turkey was "the Palestinian answer" to Israeli concessions to Arabs.

Saturday's synagogue attack was the latest incident to shake Israel's fragile coalition between Labor and the right-wing Likud bloc.

Peres cut short the weekly cabinet session and demanded an apology after Sharon said the synagogue attack was "the Palestinian answer to Israeli concessions to the PLO, King Hussein of Jordan and King Hassan of Morocco" as well as what he called "Israeli concessions" to Egypt in a border dispute.

Teachers in 3 states to end walk-out

Striking teachers in three school districts in New Jersey, Illinois and Pennsylvania prepared to return to work Monday with tentative contract agreements, while nearly 105,000 students idled by strikes in 27 other districts nationwide faced another week without school.

Strikes disrupted classes for 18,275 students in Illinois, 5,000 in Massachusetts, 21,635 in Michigan, 6,000 in Ohio, 45,496 in Pennsylvania, 1,900 in Rhode Island and 6,650 in Washington state.

At the college level, walkouts by professors in Illinois and New Jersey have left 24,000 students without regular instructors.

Professor says Waldheim used Iowans

CEDAR FALLS — A group of Iowa college students may have been the first American delegation received by newly elected and controversial Austrian President Kurt Waldheim in what was seen as an image-building visit last month, a University of Northern Iowa professor said during the weekend.

The 13 students from UNI, Iowa State and the UI were part of a summer German language program. One of them, Andy Oxley of Ossian, wrote Waldheim requesting a meeting.

Waldheim's staff called the group following his July inauguration and asked if the students could meet with the new president Aug. 2 in the resort town of Bad Voeslau south of Vienna.

UNI foreign language Professor Juergen Koppensteiner said Waldheim may have agreed to the meeting as a way to begin mending fences with Americans following weeks of allegations that he participated in World War II Nazi atrocities while serving in the German Army in Yugoslavia.

Iowa 'Debtbusters' to redo U.S. budget

DES MOINES — Most Americans probably know what they would do if they were president, and this week 16 Iowans will get a chance to live that fantasy when they try to balance the federal budget in a nationwide simulation.

The game called "Debtbusters" was created by the Roosevelt Center for American Policy Studies. The exercise allows role playing by the 16 people who attempt to eliminate the red ink but also protect their special interests.

The game will be played in all 50 states Wednesday. The results will be tabulated by the Roosevelt Center within several days. The resulting "people's budget" is supposed to give Congress and the administration some guidance on national priorities.

400 Soviets protest U.S. nuclear tests

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union Sunday accused the United States of secretly setting off an underground nuclear test in Nevada last week, and about 400 demonstrators marched in front of the U.S. embassy in Moscow to protest it.

The Nevada explosion would be the fourth unannounced test in a year and the 19th underground explosion since the Kremlin announced its own nuclear testing halt in August 1985, said reports in major Soviet media.

A U.S. embassy spokesman said Sunday about 400 people carrying signs condemning nuclear testing and chanting "we want peace" in English paraded in front of the embassy as Soviet police looked on.

AN EMBASSY SPOKESMAN said the demonstration was probably arranged by the Soviet government.

The Soviet media condemned what it said was a secret test and said it proved Washington was not serious about reaching an arms control agreement.

The official Tass news agency said the test took place Sept. 4 at the U.S. nuclear testing range in Nevada and registered 3.5 on the Richter scale.

In Washington, a Defense Department spokesman declined comment early Sunday and said, "I really don't have anything at all on that."

The dispatch said the test demonstrated that even unannounced nuclear events can be detected with existing technology, contrary to U.S. claims that verification of a comprehensive nuclear test ban is impossible.

THE TASS REPORT said the blast was first recorded by the American Peace Test — a private anti-nuclear testing group in the United States.

Tass, the daily Pravda newspaper and Radio Moscow all joined in condemnations of the blast Sunday but did not mention any independent verification by the Soviet Union itself.

"The way they are treating the blast, as a fact, and the comments in today's press indicates to me they have it confirmed by their own means," a western diplomat said. "They would not react so publicly if they did not know it was true."

The United States has formally announced 15 underground nuclear tests since Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev announced his moratorium on Aug. 6, 1985. The moratorium was extended at least three times and now expires Jan. 1, 1987.

THE SOVIET UNION, however, claims that including last Thursday's secret blast the United States has conducted 19 tests — four of which have been unannounced.

Gorbachev said if he meets President Ronald Reagan later this year in a second superpower summit in Washington he will make signing of a comprehensive nuclear test ban the goal of the meeting.

The United States claims the ban would be impossible to verify and continued testing is necessary to upgrade and modernize its nuclear arsenal.

U.S. reporter faces Soviet spy charge

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union Sunday charged jailed U.S. News & World Report correspondent Nicholas Daniloff with espionage, which makes him the first American reporter to be formally accused of spying.

Daniloff, who has been held on suspicion of spying since Aug. 30, telephoned his office in Moscow from his prison cell Sunday evening and said he was told by Soviet authorities that formal charges were filed.

Magazine officials said the indictment came during a formal proceeding at the prison.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman called the announcement "very bad news indeed" and said he was unaware of any American journalist previously being formally indicted for espionage in the Soviet Union. Convicted spies can be executed in the Soviet Union.

The nightly television news program Vremya, or Time, also announced the indictment. "An investigation is being carried out in strict compliance with Soviet law and the norms of international law," the television report said.

The charges mean Daniloff can be held for up to nine months — and will probably be unable to consult a lawyer — while the KGB investigates the case. The case then would go before a military tribunal. In California, where President Ronald Reagan was winding up a three-week summer vacation, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said there had been "no final notification" from Moscow that Daniloff had been charged and tried.

"DANILOFF IS innocent," Speakes said. "This could have serious implications for U.S.-Soviet relations if it continues."

Daniloff, 52, was arrested by eight KGB agents in Moscow moments after a Soviet acquaintance handed him a package. He has been detained on suspicion of espionage, an accusation the administration dismissed as "trumped-up charges" and said could harm U.S.-Soviet relations.

Trumble said Daniloff told him he had received "oblique hints" from the KGB that the case would "end" before it came to court — apparently a reference to a possible swap of Daniloff for Soviet U.N. employee Genadii Zakharov, now being held in a New York jail on espionage charges.

Speakes said Sunday "there will be no trade" of Daniloff for Zakharov. U.S. officials have said, however, something other than a trade — for instance, Daniloff's release and a new U.S. consideration of a request that Zakharov be released into the custody of the Soviet ambassador — was suggested to the Kremlin.

Aid to Contras dominant in Senate race

By Phil Thomas
Staff Writer

WATERLOO — The Contra aid issue dominated the debate between the Iowa candidates for U.S. Senate Saturday.

Democratic candidate John Roehrick, a Des Moines lawyer, said Republican Sen. Charles Grassley is dissembling by voting to give the Nicaraguan Contra forces $100 million that could be better spent domestically.

"You can talk about political stability, but I think we need $100 million in this central America more than in Nicaragua," he said.

But Grassley insisted Contras need the money to preserve democracy in their country.

"It is a fact that there are Soviets in Nicaragua," Grassley said. "It is a fact that there's Cubans there."

Roehrick said the United States is worrying too much about the presence of communism in other countries.

"The point is we have to stop looking behind every bush to see if there's a Russian there," he said.

ALTHOUGH GRASSLEY said he supports military aid for the Contras, he said: "We will not send troops. The president does not have the authority to send troops."

The candidates also argued over which federal agencies and programs should be cut in the federal budgeting process.

Election '86

Roehrick said the first thing he would cut would be the Strategic Defense Initiative program, known as Star Wars, favored by Grassley and Reagan.

But Grassley contended he has worked for defense spending cuts and would continue to do so where necessary.

THE CANDIDATES also differed on plans to improve the state economy.

Sparking the interest of foreign countries and large companies in Iowa can make big improvements in the state economy, Grassley said.

But Roehrick charged those kinds of events were gimmicks that would not work in the long run.

Grassley's plans were nothing more than "press-release politics" Roehrick said.

The candidates also dealt with the issue of drug use in the United States and drug testing of government employees.

Grassley said the issue was a sensitive one that should be looked at carefully.

The United States should deny foreign aid to any country that will not help fight the drug trafficking problem, he added.

Roehrick said he would stress education about the dangers of drug use.

Both candidates said they would submit to a drug test if asked.

Education key gubernatorial debate issue

By Phil Thomas
Staff Writer

WATERLOO — Sparks flew Saturday as the two major Iowa gubernatorial candidates haggled over education and economic development issues in their first formal debate of the campaign.

Democratic candidate Lowell Junkins criticized Republican incumbent Gov. Terry Branstad's across-the-board cuts in state education funding, but Branstad said the cuts were his only option.

"I didn't have any choice. The governor has to cut equally across-the-board, and that's what I did to keep the budget in balance," Branstad said. "It's either that or raise taxes."

The candidates argued extensively over state economic development. Both offered plans for enhancing the economy through funding programs.

JUNKINS SAID bonding proposals and economic programs that have worked in other states were part of his platform. Branstad said he wants to continue using Iowa Lottery money for research to enhance the state's economy.

The exodus of young people to jobs in other states also led Junkins to attack Branstad.

"The facts are that Iowans are leaving the state because they don't have opportunity," he said.

Junkins said he wanted to use programs similar to those used in Illinois and other states to keep the state economy thriving.

But Branstad said there is no evidence that Junkins' plans will work.

"I have studied my opponent's plan in detail, and I've noticed what he has done is just taken the programs that are already working and he's added the indebtedness to it," Branstad said.

BUT JUNKINS SAID Branstad's administration has caused a turn for the worse.

"You lost 10,000 jobs since 1984," Junkins told Branstad. "You're on the downturn right now in this state."

Junkins said he wanted to use Iowa Lottery revenue to buy bonds to finance education and other projects.

But Branstad said there is no way Junkins' plans for the lottery money would work.

"That's one of the fallacies of his plan," he said. "What he wants will be a disaster."

The candidates also argued about abortion but eventually agreed that tax dollars shouldn't be used to fund them.

Agriculture, state park user fees, the clean air act and ending the state's liquor monopoly were other issues that were put before the candidates by a panel of three journalists.

After the debate, both candidates were pleased with their performances.

Junkins said he thought Branstad was defeating himself. "It's obvious to everyone," he said.

But Branstad said he was excited about the outcome of the contest. "I'm real fired up about it," he said.

Blues hit fewer Iowa elderly

Stable lifestyles, communities help rural 'old folk'

By Pat Lammer
Staff Writer

The sense of community and stability in Iowa's rustic communities may be responsible for the low incidence of depression among the state's elderly population, according to a UI researcher.

Nearly 3,200 elderly Iowans from two rural counties were interviewed as part of the Iowa 65-Plus Rural Health Study, the results of which were published recently in the Journal of Nervous and Mental Disease.

Although the study revealed that 9 percent of participants had "fairly high" levels of depressive symptoms, the levels were about one-half of those obtained in similar studies in other states. And only 1 percent to 3 percent of the sample had some type of clinical depression, which results in impaired functioning and depressive symptoms.

"LIVING IN A RURAL setting, particularly where there is a lot of support available from the community, where there is a sense of community and people are involved in the community, may protect the individual from depression," said Michael O'Hara, who headed the depression study. O'Hara is an associate professor in the UI Psychology

The Daily Iowan/Gregory McCallum

Department.

The study was based on interviews conducted from December 1981 through June 1982 in Washington county and other Iowa counties.

"Depression is a very common problem among the elderly, and researchers have reported somewhat higher rates of depression than were found in this case," O'Hara said. "I fully expected it to be much higher than that."

RURAL COMMUNITIES involved in the study were highly stable. The median length of time participants had lived in their respective communities was nearly 53 years.

Kathleen Buckwalter, associate professor in the UI College of Nursing, said, "Depression is the largest emotional problem among the elderly."

However, Buckwalter said, "the notion of kin and big Sunday dinners may be a myth and not reality. Many of the elderly are in fact isolated, and they just don't seek the necessary help for their problems."

The study also showed income levels may be strongly related to the incidence of depression; persons with higher incomes are significantly less likely to be depressed than those with lower incomes, results indicate.

A GREATER proportion of women than men experienced significant levels of depression, and subjects who were divorced, separated or widowed also were more likely to have higher depression levels than those who never married or were currently married. Subjects living alone were almost twice as likely to suffer depression than those not living alone.

Because the elderly represent an increasingly larger proportion of the population, O'Hara said it will become more important to study further the prevalence of depression among that age group.

The larger study examines a series of categories related to health issues of elderly Iowans. It is headed by Robert B. Wallace, chair of the UI Preventive Medicine and Environmental Health Department. Frank J. Kohout, an associate professor in preventive and community dentistry, is Wallace's principal assistant.

A heart to heart talk about Health and Meat.

Today's heart-healthy diet often means cutting down on saturated fat and cholesterol. But, according to the American Heart Association, that doesn't mean cutting out pork and beef. Americans can continue to enjoy their favorite red meats as part of a healthy, balanced diet.

For meats, like all foods, the key is selection and moderation. By selecting the leaner cuts of meat, trimming away as much fat as possible, and limiting your intake to 5 to 7 ounces a day, you can continue to fulfill your heart's desire and still enjoy red meat.

To find out more about meat in a heart-healthy diet, check out the American Heart Association's Food Festival, Sept. 7-13, or send a self-addressed, business size, stamped envelope to Lean Meat Recipes, Box 7, Clive, Iowa 50053.

Temp housing assignments bring tensions, friendships

By Ed Dana
Freelance Writer

Temporary can't be temporary enough for some UI students eager to end their time in the make-shift housing of UI residence hall lounges.

Since the mid 1970s, many incoming freshmen and transfer students have had to deal with temporary housing.

Created in residence hall lounges because there weren't enough normal rooms available, temporary housing units provide make-do homes for nine or 10 students.

"There are no good things to say about temp housing — get us out of here," said Kristina Roff, a UI freshman from Chicago who recently became a Burge Residence Hall temporary housing resident.

UI Residence Services Director George Droll said Roff is one of 522 UI students who began the 1986 school year in temporary housing.

The number of people in temporary housing has been reduced to 295. But there is no certain date when the last student will be moved into a permanent residence hall assignment or off-campus housing, he said.

"There are no good things to say about temp housing — get us out of here," says Kristina Roff, one of 522 UI students who began the 1986 school year in temporary housing.

That day can't come soon enough for some temporary housing residents.

Lori Meyers, a UI freshman from Itasca, Ill., said tension runs high in the 10th-floor Rienow lounge she stays in.

"People get on your nerves; you can never get to sleep; there's nowhere to put your things," she said.

Living in temporary housing also means being without necessities, said Mark St. Germain, a UI freshman from Fairfax, Va.

"They don't give us enough," St. Germain said. "There are not enough dressers or places to hang our clothes, and the little bitty desks don't have half the room that anyone needs for their stuff. They won't even let us make phone calls home on the lounge phones."

BUT OTHER temporary housing inmates say they are making the best of their situation.

Matt Himmelgarn, a UI freshman from Glen Ellyn, Ill., who lives in a temporary housing room on Rienow's ninth floor, said living in temporary housing can be fun.

"The nine of us in the lounge are getting to know each other pretty well," he said. "We are going to rearrange the lounge this weekend and make it a real party place."

A former temporary housing resident told those who followed him into lounge life that things get better with time.

"It was scary at first," said Kendall White, a UI senior from Harvey, Ill., who lived in temporary housing for his entire first semester. "But several of the people that I lived with then are my very best friends today."

Singin' the roommate blues? All you need is a little respect

By Steve Collins
Special to The Daily Iowan

Placing more than 13,000 students, many of whom have never had to share a bedroom, in a residence hall inevitably causes problems.

"For most students, it's a whole new situation," Chris Bessenecker, the resident assistant for the males on Burge Residence Hall's fifth floor, said. "Most people are used to having their own room, and when you stick them in a room with one or two people there can be problems."

According to Maggy Van Oel, manager of housing assignments for the UI residence halls, roommates — sometimes with the help of their resident assistant — solve many of the problems themselves. Sometimes a situation requires the hall coordinator's involvement, and if the problem remains unresolved, one or more of the roommates may request to move to a different room.

BUT BECAUSE MANY students still live in temporary housing, those already in a permanent room can move only if a person-for-person switch is arranged and approved by all roommates involved.

"There are so many people in the lounges that the emphasis for the university is on getting these people into rooms," Bessenecker said.

If the past is any indication, students could be stuck in temporary housing for a while.

"I don't think anyone has an idea how long it will take," Bessenecker said. "It's just a matter of who drops out and when. The last two years people have been in the lounges until Christmas."

Because the outlook for students seeking a new room is dim, Van Oel and Bessenecker have several tips for roommates to help avoid or resolve problems.

COMMUNICATION IS the key to co-existing in the

"I'd like to stay here because my roommates are great, but it's too noisy," says Leighton Christianson of her Burge Residence Hall floor. "Our hall is like living with a bunch of primates."

dorms, according to Van Oel. Most problems occur when one person is upset about something and doesn't tell her or his roommate. Often the offending party is unaware that their actions are disturbing someone else.

"Most of the time one person gets put out and clams up," Van Oel said and added that ignoring the problem causes unnecessary tension. "I've seen roommate blowups that were pretty severe over little things. Nine times out of 10 the roommate is willing to change; they just didn't realize they were bothering anyone."

"It's trite and old as the hills, but like the saying goes, if you just talk about your problems it will help you get along," Van Oel said.

VAN OEL ALSO suggests roommates discuss things such as drugs, alcohol, when it's OK to have guests and any other issues of concern.

"It's a good idea to set up some ground rules, and if necessary the resident assistant or hall coordinator can help draw up a contract to be signed by each roommate," she said.

According to Bessenecker, respect is another key ingredient in a successful roommate relationship.

"When I say respect, I mean that everyone has the right to study in their own room but every once in awhile realize your roommate has a need to blast the stereo or do something like that," Bessenecker said.

THE "ROOMMATE Bill of Rights" in the Residence Halls Handbook stresses that roommates don't have to be friends but should consider each others needs.

"You have the right to have your roommate turn down the stereo or turn off the TV if you need to get some sleep," Bessenecker said, "but don't ask them to do it just to get them mad."

Van Oel said assertiveness is important in gaining a roommate's respect.

"We have people going to the resident assistant and asking them to have their roommate turn down the stereo because they're afraid to do it on their own," Van Oel said. "What we try to do is get these people to be more assertive."

NOISE CAUSES the majority of problems for new roommates.

"At this point the RAs are handling problems with roommates partying while the other person is trying to sleep," Bessenecker said and added that things get a little out of hand because most students have never lived away from home. "We ask them to give it some time and it should get better in a week or two," he said.

Leighton Christianson, a freshman living in Burge, is hoping to make a person-for-person switch to a room on a quieter floor.

"I'd like to stay here because my roommates are great, but it's too noisy here," Christianson said. "Our hall is like living with a bunch of primates. I asked some people down the hall to turn down their stereo, so they turned it up."

Tutu inaugurated as new archbishop

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — Nobel peace laureate Desmond Tutu was enthroned Sunday as the first black archbishop of Cape Town and leader of South Africa's 2 million Anglicans.

In a policy address known as a "charge," Tutu told about 1,350 local and foreign guests "all the violence we are experiencing ultimately stems from apartheid."

Tutu delivered his charge from the pulpit and called Pretoria's system of institutionalized racial discrimination, known as apartheid, "this vicious evil."

"I abhor all violence. I condemn the violence of an unjust system such as apartheid and that of those who want to overthrow it," he said.

Reaffirming his most controversial political stand, Tutu said he could not withdraw his support for Western sanctions against Pretoria until blacks were given political and civil rights.

WHITE OPPONENTS and a mostly black crowd of supporters of the controversial black clergyman pushed and shoved against each other and swapped insults as Tutu emerged from the vestry and walked to the door of the St. Georges Cathedral.

A group that said it belonged to the Gospel Defense League handed out pamphlets listing Tutu's most controversial political statements alongside what they said were contradictory quotations from the Bible.

The Sunday Tribune newspaper said the Gospel Defense League was run by Rev. Charles Scarborough, whose earlier Christian League movement was funded by the white government a decade ago to oppose left-wing tendencies in South Africa's English churches.

A WHITE WOMAN who said she represented a movement called "Victims against Terrorism" said blacks in a crowd of about 400 onlookers tore up a handful of anti-Tutu pamphlets and scattered the shreds over her.

No injuries were reported. Guests in the cathedral included world Anglican leader Dr. Robert Runcie, Coretta Scott King, whom blacks outside the church welcomed loudly, and Winnie Mandela, wife of jailed African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela.

Mandela was welcomed with shouts of "Amandla," which means power, and responded with a clenched-fist "black power" salute.

American and European television networks vowed to buy-cott the church ceremony in protest against demands that they pay a minimum of $2,700 to record scenes of the investiture.

Dozens of cameramen waited outside the cathedral but said they would not pay to record images from a private company given exclusive rights to film indoors.

South Africa is five days into a third year of nationwide black opposition to white rule in which more than 2,300 people have been killed, about half of them by security forces.

Tutu walked in a light drizzle from the vestry of the cathedral alongside the 100-year-old Cape Town Parliament to the main door and banged three times with his staff.

He was admitted by Dean Edward King, his senior assistant, with the words "most reverend father in God, we welcome you in the name of the Lord."

Tutu, wearing cream robes embroidered with gold, a cream mitre and carrying a golden staff, was led to his throne by Bishop Kenneth Oram of Grahamstown.

Jordan, Bulls face Hansen's Jazz in Arena

By Mike Trilk
Special to The Daily Iowan

A whole new breed of basketball will hit Carver-Hawkeye Arena in October.

Michael Jordan and the Chicago Bulls will be making an exhibition stop at the Arena against former Hawkeye Bobby Hansen and the up-and-coming Utah Jazz. Tickets for the contest go on sale today at 8 a.m. at the Arena, the Union box office and the Five Seasons Center box office in Cedar Rapids. The price is $10 per ticket.

The game is scheduled for Oct. 15 and will be the Bulls' second trip to Iowa. Last year Chicago played Milwaukee in Des Moines, but this year they decided to come to Iowa City because of Utah guard Hansen's ties with the UI.

"The Bulls like to play in a lot of different cities throughout the midwest during the exhibition season," a spokesperson for the Chicago NBA team said. "When we knew we were going to be playing Utah, Iowa City became a target arena because we knew that Hansen would attract fans."

THE UI Athletic Department didn't have a whole lot to do in getting the game here, but it is in charge of tickets.

"I'm not exactly sure who decided to bring the Bulls to Iowa City, but we're looking for a sellout crowd," Larry Bruner, an Iowa Associate Director of Athletics, said. "We gave season basketball ticket-holders first shot at the tickets and the rest will go on sale Monday."

Even though it counts as a home game for the Bulls, the Jazz seemed pretty fired up about playing the game in Iowa City also.

"We like to play in places that mean something to our players," Bill Kreifeldt, director of public relations for the Jazz, said. "Last year we lead the NBA in exhibition miles traveled. (Jazz Head Coach Frank) Layden says that,

'We're America's team, but America just doesn't know it yet.' We hopped the country from San Antonio, Texas to Miami, Florida to Green Bay, Wisconsin to Anchorage, Alaska.

"OBVIOUSLY the University knows that Mikey (Jordan) and his Nikeys will attract a good crowd, but Bobby Hansen will give them some insurance."

Hansen and Jordan won't be the only worthwhile match-up. The Jazz also features former Louisville all-American Darrell Griffith, who almost single-handedly knocked Iowa out of the NCAA tournament in the semi-finals in 1980. Also playing with the Jazz is former Notre Dame great Kelly Tripuka, who will match up with former Irish teammate Orlando Woolridge, should the Bulls sign Woolridge before the Oct. 15 game date. NBA rookie Brad Sellers will also make the trip with the Bulls. Sellers lead Ohio State to the National Invitational Tournament championship a year ago.

"The Bulls bring out the best in us," Kreifeldt said. "Jordan is a great attraction, but by the time the game is over we want people saying, 'Hey, those Jazz can play, too.'"

Even though it is only a pre-season contest, the big names will see their share of playing time.

Hawks romp in Kickoff Classic

By Steve Williams
Staff Writer

The Iowa women's volleyball team got its season off to a flawless start this weekend, defeating all three opponents en route to the Hawkeye Kickoff Classic title at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

The Hawkeyes started the tournament in dramatic style Saturday, using all of a five game match to upend the University of Nebraska-Omaha 8-15, 15-7, 15-7, 3-15 and 15-6.

Following their two hour match with the Lady Mavs, the Hawkeyes disposed of Eastern Michigan 15-12, 15-5, 13-15 and 15-9, and wrapped things up on Sunday with a 15-6, 15-10, 15-12 win over the Lady Braves from Bradley.

"I'm very pleased with the way things went this weekend," Iowa Coach Sandy Stewart said. "We were able to come back against a very tough Nebraska-Omaha team, and keep our poise throughout the entire weekend."

ONE OF the big weapons for the Hawkeyes this weekend proved to be serving, as the ladies in black and gold came up with 54 service aces in their three matches including 15 by sophomore Toni Zehr.

Zehr's serving ability proved to be just what Iowa needed against Nebraska-Omaha as she strung four aces together in game five to carry the Hawkeyes to victory.

"We've been trying a new serving technique that has been both good and bad for us so far," Stewart said. "Toni's serving couldn't have come at a better time for us yesterday, and Ellen (Mullerkey) seemed to get on a roll today against Bradley."

The Hawkeyes were forced to take the good with the bad from the service line however, as they recorded 67 service errors to go along with their 54 aces.

Another question that was answered positively for the Hawkeyes was in their passing. Setter Kathy Griesheim engineered Iowa's offensive attack well throughout the tournament and gave nothing but good indications to Stewart.

"OUR PASSING was probably the best part of our game this weekend," Stewart said. "We had only two receiving errors against Nebraska-Omaha, which was a major contributor to that win."

"It really felt good to finally get into some real competition," sophomore Cheryl Zemaits said. "We stayed fired up throughout every match which is something we didn't do last year. I think that was the difference in the tournament for us."

Sunday's game with Bradley was a perfect culmination to this weekend's festivities.

Ex-Czechs dominate U.S. Open

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ivan Lendl and Martina Navratilova, two Czechoslovakians who have found new homes in America, joined in another common cause Sunday when they swept to victory in the U.S. Open Championships.

Lendl, once criticized for his inability to win the big ones, made it back-to-back titles in the Open when he methodically took apart Miloslav Mecir, 6-4, 6-2, 6-0, in what was basically a baseline duel.

In another disappointing final that came almost as an anticlimax, Navratilova crushed Helena Sukova with consummate ease, 6-3, 6-2, to claim her third Open championship.

Lendl, winner of the French Open earlier this year, swept the final nine games from Mecir and Navratilova had a seven-game skein against Sukova in a pair of finals that brought together four Czechoslovakian born players.

Lendl and Navratilova both eased their way to the title with the loss of a single set in the two weeks, and the reward for each was $210,000, the largest winner's purse in tennis history.

For Navratilova, this was her 15th Grand Slam singles crown and her 30th consecutive victory overall since dropping the French Open final to Chris Evert Lloyd. Her one-hour rout also enabled her to surpass $11 million in career earnings, while Lendl is closing in on $10 million.

Mecir, at No. 16 the lowest seeded player to gain the U.S. final since unseeded Jan Kodes did so in 1971, did extremely well just to reach the final inasmuch as he rarely plays on hard courts, does not enjoy being in America and is coming back from double knee surgery last fall. "It's such a great feeling for me," said Lendl, who ended the one hour and 53 minute runaway with his 10th ace. "When I lost in the final three times I always promised I would come back until I won it. It felt so great I wanted to do it again."

LENDL, WHO NOW lives in Greenwich, Conn., gained the advantage in the opening set with another break in the seventh game as Mecir sent a backhand long, then emphasized his command with a pair of aces in the next game.

The duel became progressively easier for Lendl as he broke in the third game of the second set with a backhand pass down the line, and after Mecir saved a break point and held in the fifth game, Lendl swept the last nine.

Mecir said later he lost his confidence and was unable to keep up with Lendl, who wore him down with his steady and strong baseline game.

Following Saturday's semifinal, when she fought off three match points to edge Steffi Graf in a third set tie-break, Navratilova had little reason for doubt as she beat Sukova for the 16th time in 17 meetings.

WITH THE VICTORY, Navratilova completed a Wimbledon-U.S. double for the third time.

Sukova, who had upset Chris Evert Lloyd in the semis, jumped off to a 3-1 lead in this 100th women's championship of the U.S. Nationals, only to watch almost helplessly as Navratilova ripped off seven games in a row. In the last five games of that streak, Sukova managed a mere four points.

"I expected a closer match and I think you people did too," Navratilova said.

New NFL coaches battered on opening day

United Press International

The four men making their NFL head-coaching debuts Sunday took poor first steps.

Buddy Ryan with Philadelphia, Jim Mora with New Orleans, Gene Stallings with St. Louis and Jerry Burns with Minnesota suffered opening-game losses as the NFL began its 67th season.

At Washington, Jay Schroeder passed for two touchdowns and ran for another and former U.S. Football League star Kelvin Bryant scored twice to help the Washington Redskins rip Philadelphia's "46" defense in a 41-14 rout.

The Redskins accumulated 433 yards in total offense against the Philadelphia defense — an alignment he made famous as the Chicago Bears' defensive coordinator.

NFL Roundup

"I didn't have the best game mentally. I made a couple of bad calls and should have known better," Ryan said. "I've been in the business for a long time. This was a tough loss, but I know we're going to be tough."

AT NEW ORLEANS, Atlanta held the ball for the first 12 minutes, 39 seconds of the second half on a drive that ended with a 1-yard touchdown run by training-camp holdout Gerald Riggs — highlighting an overwhelming effort that produced a 31-10 victory over the Saints.

The Falcons gained 442 yards to 176 for the Saints, converted 12 of 16 third-down attempts and dominated the Saints, who lost on opening day for the 17th time in 20 tries.

"We took a pretty good whipping," Mora said. "When you stay on the field for 13 minutes like our defense did at one time, you tend to get tired."

At Minneapolis, James Jones rushed for a career-high 174 yards, including a 2-yard TD run, to lift the Detroit Lions to a 13-3 victory over the Vikings. "You're not going to win every game — I know that," Burns said. "I just hate to prove that right off the bat. We're a solid club. We've just got to play the run a little better and get our offense going a little better."

AT ST. LOUIS, Eric Dickerson rushed for 193 yards and two touchdowns to lift the Los Angeles Rams to a 16-10 victory over the Cardinals.

In three games against St. Louis, Dickerson has rushed for 532 yards on 79 carries. He scored on runs of 1 and 16 yards.

The Cardinals had a late opportunity to make Stallings a winner in his first game. But time ran out on a last-ditch drive as Stump Mitchell rushed to the 1-yard line.

Elsewhere, Chicago defeated Cleveland 41-31, Houston whipped Green Bay 31-3, San Francisco crushed Tampa Bay 31-7, the Jets edged Buffalo 28-24, Seattle ripped Miami 50-28, Kansas City defeated Cincinnati 24-14, Denver nipped the Raiders 38-36, Seattle blanked Pittsburgh 30-0 and New England crushed Indianapolis 33-3.

At Chicago, Walter Payton

rushed for 113 yards and scored twice to help the Bears overcome an unexpected shaky defensive performance. Dennis Gentry returned a kickoff 91 yards and Wilbur Marshall returned an interception 58 yards for scores as Chicago produced its 11th straight victory at Soldier Field.

AT GREEN BAY, Wis., Warren Moon passed for two touchdowns and ran for a third to guide Houston. Moon threw touchdown passes of 44 yards to Drew Hill and 29 yards to running back Butch Woolfolk, and ran 3 yards for a score.

At Tampa, Fla., Joe Montana shredded Tampa Bay's young secondary for 356 yards, and San Francisco's eager defense set a club record with seven interceptions.

At Orchard Park, N.Y., Ken O'Brien threw touchdown passes of 71 and 46 yards to help the Jets overcome the sparkling NFL debut of Jim Kelly. Kelly completed completed 20 of 33 passes for 292 yards and three touchdowns.

At San Diego, Dan Fouts threw for three touchdowns and Buford McGee ran for two scores to spark the Chargers. Fouts was 23 of 35 for 297 yards. The Chargers mixed in a 224-yard ground attack and controlled the ball for 38:50 to Miami's 21:10.

At Kansas City, Mo., safety Deron Cherry and tight end Walt Arnold recovered fumbles in the end zone for touchdowns to help the Chiefs to their fourth straight season-opening victory while the Bengals lost their fourth consecutive opener.

VIP to be held again at Finkbine in '87

AMANA, Iowa (UPI) — Amana Refrigeration said the 21st annual VIP Golf Tournament will be held next year on June 29 at Iowa City's Finkbine Golf Course.

Amana President Henry Meyer said the tournament serves as a valuable promotion for its dealers and provides Iowans an opportunity to see professional golfers and sports and entertainment celebrities.

The 1987 event will be held between the Greater Hartford Open and the Canadian Open. The tournament started in 1967 in White Sulfer Springs, W. Va., and moved to Finkbine in 1968.

Jim Dent won this year's VIP over 42 other professional golfers.

Davis names final assistants to staff

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — New Iowa basketball Coach Tom Davis has rounded out his staff by naming Rich Shrigley and Lance Ivey as graduate assistants.

Shrigley started for Davis four seasons at Boston College and is studying for his MBA at Iowa.

Ivey earned National Catholic academic all-America honors at Siena Heights College in Adrian, Mich. He's been president of the Detroit Basketball Academy since 1982. He has a B.A. in English.

Iowa women in 4th place at Minnesota

The youthful Iowa women's golf team is in fourth place after two days at the Minnesota Invitational in Minneapolis, after a strong second round showing.

South Florida is running away with the tournament, which will be completed today. The Lady Brahms shot a 325 total over the first two days, 15 strokes ahead of Minnesota's 640.

Iowa State is in third place with 643 strokes, followed by Iowa (653), Michigan (655), Bowling Green (658), Wisconsin (671) and Northern Iowa (684).

The Hawkeyes shot a first round total of 332, but improved Sunday to a 321 score. Jeannine Gibson has led the team both days, firing an 82-78-160, followed by Kelley Brooke (84-78-162), Mary McDermott (81-82-163), Kristi Heatherly (85-83-168) and Amy Butzer (89-90-179).

"We played well the second round, so we picked up a little bit," Iowa Coach Diane Thomason said.

Brooke and Heatherly are both freshmen playing in their first collegiate golf tournament. There are no seniors on Thomason's squad.

Field hockey team crushes three foes

By Julie Deardorff
Staff Writer

Despite the new, young faces, the Iowa field hockey team picked up right where it left off last season with a three-game weekend sweep in Toledo, Ohio.

In the first competition of the year, the Hawks trounced host Toledo 12-0. Saturday they edged Penn State 3-1 and Sunday they downed Lockhaven 2-0.

"I'm very pleased with the way we played this weekend but we still have a long way to go," Coach Judith Davidson said. "The freshman did very, very well for their first collegiate competition."

The eight freshman, the most Davidson has ever had at one time, played a key role in the offense over the weekend. Erica Richards scored four goals, Aileen Trendler notched three and Missy Sanders added two.

THE TOLEDO game started the team off on the right foot. Eight goals were scored in the first half and four were added in the second. The Hawkeyes scored every five minutes of the game after the first 12 minutes.

"It sounds like more than it really was," Davidson said. "Toledo was playing shorthanded with only ten players on a side which left the left side open for us a lot. Nevertheless, it was a good game, it got out the first game jitters and it was a good one to start with."

Goals were scored by Richards, Trendler, Sanders, Liz Tchou, Frederique Kock, Michelle Murgatroyd and RosAnna Salcido.

Davidson knew Penn State would provide more competition the following day, and they did. The Nittany Lions were ranked eighth in the preseason polls, behind sixth-rated Iowa, and they didn't lose any players from a year ago.

Iowa scored first with 11:30 left to play in the first half. Salcido took the ball down the right sideline and crossed to Murgatroyd.

"It was a good weekend for her (Salcido)," Davidson said. "She set up goal after goal."

SALCIDO assisted on the second goal of the game when she passed it to Tchou who scored with 25 minutes left in the first half to give the Hawkeyes a 2-0 lead.

Stacia Palahnek scored five minutes later for Penn State to cut the lead in half, but Iowa came back with a goal by Salcido.

Neither team could score in the second half.

"The passing was good, we moved the ball around very well," Davidson said. "I was very excited we executed well. In the second half we let down a little and got frazzled but that's expected this early in the season. Defensively Deb Robertson and goalie Karen Napolitano played strong and kept us in the game."

Sunday the Hawkeyes recorded their second shutout of the young season. "Lockhaven actually played us tougher than Penn State," Davidson said. "They put us under more individual pressure. I thought we'd score more than we did."

Richards scored the first goal of the game on a penalty corner assisted by Tchou and Salcido with 18 minutes left in the first half. At the 24-minute mark a penalty stroke was called and Patti Wanner capitalized by scoring the other goal.

Although they got off to a slow start in each game, the Hawkeyes were able to rally and win each game going away.

In game one, Bradley jumped out to an early 4-2 lead, but the Hawkeyes, with the help of four service aces, came back to score the next 12 points and went on to win 15-6.

Things went much the same in game two, as the Lady Braves took another 4-2 lead and watched Iowa score the next seven points and hang on for the 15-10 win.

The third game was a little closer as Bradley was able to come back from a deficit and take an 11-9 lead. But once again Iowa got the momentum and turned the tide and the score in its favor to complete the three game sweep.

"WE WERE pretty tired today after a couple of tough matches on Saturday," Stewart said. "We tried not to let down today, but we were a little flat."

Illinois opens with easy win

United Press International

Duke and Hawaii spoiled the head coaching debuts of two Big Ten coaches while Illinois earned the distinction of posting the first win of the season in the conference.

The Blue Devils turned back Northwestern 17-6 in Francis Peay's first game as coach of the Wildcats while Hawaii stunned Wisconsin 20-17 in Jim Hillis' debut as coach of the Badgers.

Mike White after an interception by Bobby Dawson. The Illini recorded three interceptions during the game.

against Louisville, gained a yard to put the ball at the 2. On the next play, he scored.

SIAMBEKOS KICKED a 20-yard field goal after McClellan was stopped for no gain on the Louisville 3 early in the second quarter. Siambekos converted field goals of 36 and 29 yards in the fourth quarter.

Illinois' defense frustrated Louisville's two quarterbacks. Ed Rubbert was sacked five times in the first half — three times by defensive end Ray Hairston — and reserve Jay Gruden was intercepted three times in the second half.

Lamb's 51-yard touchdown pass to Gordon came on the first play following Gruden's third interception. Lamb, a senior playing his first college game, completed 13 of 24 passes for 223 yards — all but 59 of the yards in the second half.

Louisville crossed midfield only once in the first half and in that possession Danny Cerione's 31-yard field goal attempt was partially blocked.

THE CARDINALS moved to the Illinois 40 following a 31-yard punt in the third quarter, but Gruden's pass for Eric Vaughn was intercepted by Greg Boysaw.

In Hawaii, Gregg Tipton scored from the 1-yard line with 13 seconds remaining to cap a two-touchdown burst in the final 3:27 Saturday night that lifted Hawaii to a 20-17 victory over Wisconsin.

Tipton, who passed for a school record 370 yards on a 32 of 49 performance, marched the Rainbows (1-1) 79 yards in nine plays with 1:53 remaining for the winning score. On the drive, he hooked up with David Dyas three times for 59 yards, the last a 17-yarder with 37 seconds left that put the ball on the 2-yard line.

The defeat offset a brilliant performance by Wisconsin cornerback Nate Odomes, who returned a pass interception 73 yards for a touchdown and picked off two other Tipton passes in the end zone. In addition, he had a 55-yard kickoff return.

Wisconsin's other points came on a 2-yard run by Larry Emery and a 37-yard field goal by Todd Gregoire, which was set up by a fumble recovery.

Northwestern was actually leading 6-0 before the Blue Devils scored a touchdown late in the first quarter to take the lead in the game for good.

Big Ten Roundup

Chris Siambekos kicked three field goals Saturday night and Illinois forced four turnovers, turning two into touchdowns, to help the Illini to a 23-0 victory over Louisville.

SIAMBEKOS' FIELD goals came from 36, 29 and 20 yards. Lynn McClellan ran one yard for a touchdown following Louisville's fumble of the opening kickoff and Shane Lamb threw a 51-yard touchdown pass to James Gordon

Triathlon winner braves cold

By D.R. Miller
Photographer

The cool weather Sunday morning did not keep Joel James of Canton, S.D., from reaching his goal of three years, to win a half-ironmen triathlon.

James, along with 75 other participants, took to the chilly waters on the first leg of the sixth annual Iowa Triathlon at Lake MacBride State Park. James, 18, did a 1.2 mile swim, a 53-mile bike ride, and a 13.1 mile run in a time of 4 hours, 37 minutes and 18 seconds. Joe Hageman of Estherville, Iowa, placed second in a time of 4:39.13.

"I thought it was going to be way too cold. I was worried but it wasn't too bad. It wasn't that cold on the bike. The sun came out and that helped a lot," James said.

ACCORDING TO Bill Foy, the triathlon assistant race director, 310 people had registered for the two individual classes and relay teams, but 36 of the contestants were no shows.

Two courses were run during the co-ed event. The shorter course consisted of a 3/4-mile swim, a 25-mile bike ride, and a 10,000-meter run.

A swimmer nears the finish line during the first leg and swam in the sixth annual Iowa Triathlon. 274 participants ran, biked Sunday morning at Lake MacBride State Park.

Don Berry, Mason City, Iowa, captured first in a time of 2:15.11. Brad Hildebrandt of Omaha, Neb., finished second in a time of 2:16.25.

In the women's division,

Melinda Silbernich was first in a time of 2:24.47. Jennifer Arnold of Omaha, Neb., was second with 2:29.54. Sheryl Tucker, senior in exercise physiology at Iowa, took fifth place in a time of 2:44.0. The first five finishers in each class would qualify for the National Triathlon Championships at Hilton Head, S.C., on Sept. 27.

Blue Jays slide in standings with loss

United Press International

Jerry Hairston drew a bases loaded walk with two out in the seventh inning Sunday, helping the Chicago White Sox damage Toronto's title hopes with a 4-3 triumph over the Blue Jays.

The decision, coupled with Boston's 9-0 victory over Minnesota, dropped the Blue Jays 6 1/2 games behind the first-place Red Sox in the American League East.

Jim Clancy, 14-9, suffered the loss, while Gene Nelson hurled three innings to even his record at 6-6. Bobby Thigpen pitched two innings for his fifth save.

With the White Sox trailing 3-2 in the seventh, Jack Perconte drew a one-out walk. Daryl Boston singled Perconte to second. Mark Eichhorn replaced Clancy and struck out Steve Lyons. Harold Baines singled to right, scoring Perconte with the tying run. Ron Hassey walked to load the bases and Hairston then walked on a 3-1 count to force in Boston with the tie-breaking run.

The White Sox took a 2-0 lead in the third when Perconte and Boston walked and Hassey doubled home two runs.

The Blue Jays took a 3-2 edge in the fourth on a run-scoring by Garth Iorg and a two-run single by Willie pinch.

At Houston, pinch hitters Davey Lopes and Jim Pankovits combined to drive in three runs Sunday and pitcher Jeff Calhoun won his first game of the season to rally the Houston Astros to a 6-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Phil Garner homered and Dickie Thon went 3 for 4 as the West Division-leading Astros increased their lead to eight games over second place Cincinnati.

Calhoun, 1-0, pitched the sixth inning in relief of starter Danny Darwin and struck out two and walked one. Dave Smith pitched the ninth inning and recorded his 29th save.

With the score tied 3-3 in the sixth, Houston's Kevin Bass led off with a double and with one out, Alan Ashby was intentionally walked by loser Greg Mathews, 10-5. Thon singled to load the bases and Pankovits followed with a grounder that forced Thon at second. But second-baseman Tommy Herr could not turn the double play and Bass scored, leaving runners at the corners and chasing Mathews, who gave up nine hits and five runs.

Reliever Greg Bargar hit Billy Hatcher with a pitch to load the bases and Bill Doran singled to right to drive in Ashby.

The Astros added a run in the seventh when Glenn Davis led off with a triple and scored on a wild pitch by Bargar.

St. Louis took a 1-0 lead in the first. Herr hit a one-out single, Willie McGee drew a walk and with two outs, Terry Pendleton lined an RBI-single to right.

Show proves 'Wonder'ful

By Teresa Heger
Arts/entertainment Editor

SINCE HE WAS "discovered" at the age of 12, Stevie Wonder has been performing for adoring fans around the world. His name and his music have become as well-known — and as loved — as Coca-Cola.

Friday night at Carver Hawkeye Arena, Wonder lived up to his reputation and gave a concert well worth the $18.50 admission price.

The concert, sponsored by the Student Commission on Programming and Entertainment, was filled with almost four hours of both vintage and newly released Wonder hits.

Although Wonder himself is blind, his show is stunningly visual. There was, quite literally, not a bad seat in the house. Wonder performed on a circular, revolving stage surrounded by four large video screens.

Not only was the concert highly visible, but the sound was also clear and, most importantly, not too loud. Wonder's voice is rich, and on some of his slower ballads such as "You are the Sunshine of My Life" and "Overjoyed," his tone was pure and simple. His version of the folk song "Blowin' in the Wind" had the audience cheering and singing along.

On his faster songs, Wonder made compelling use of his range. In a jazzy rendition of "Ribbon in the Sky," Wonder dipped from high to low notes with amazing ease and smoothness. During some of his more up-tempo songs, Wonder, led by his brother, danced and moved about the stage. At one point, during "Shout," Wonder clapped and fearlessly jumped along with the audience.

Wonder has made innovative progress in the use of electronic and computerized instruments, and he showed off with a few technological tricks during Friday's concert. By singing "I love you, Iowa City" into an electronic keyboard, he was able to copy and then accompany his own voice, which created a strange electronic harmony.

Wonder seemed determined to keep the audience entertained. One song was interrupted as he ate an ice cream cone, at another point he threw his pink sequined coat to eager fans.

Wonder's back-up singers also added to the dynamic feel of the evening. Not only did they sing, they also danced and moved about the stage, encouraging the audience to sing and dance along.

Dancers accompanied three songs from Wonder's latest album, In Circle Square. While Wonder sang "Spiritual Walkers," dancers dressed in preachers' robes circled him, imitating the frenzy of a revival meeting. During "Overjoyed" a single dancer, bathed in an eerie, water-like light, performed a modern ballet piece while Wonder sang.

The last song of the evening, "It's Wrong (Apartheid)," was also accompanied by dancers dressed in native African costumes. Wonder introduced this song with another song: a "Happy Birthday" to Martin Luther King Jr. The spirit of King must live on, Wonder said, and the injustice of apartheid must end.

Gee, look Wally! 'The Beav' returns in a new TV series

NEW YORK (UPI)—Ward and June Cleaver were the perfect television parents, except for one unforgivable mistake — they named their son Theodore. No wonder everybody just called him "the Beav."

Theodore "Beaver" Cleaver was a well-scrubbed, wide-eyed boy overflowing with innocence who occasionally got into trouble, and whose home life was shared by millions thanks to the magic box in the living room.

The Beav was America's kid, the child for the TV generation who aged before our eyes, beginning in 1957 when his show, "Leave It to Beaver," first aired on network television.

He was the first lasting child star produced by network TV. His 234 reruns still air, and have been popular now for three generations.

"GEE, WALLY," as the Beav might say.

For most, the Beav has been frozen in time since the 1950s, forever remaining the fresh-faced boy who lived in a warm and homey place at 211 Pine St. in Mayfield, U.S.A.

Now the Beav is back as a grown-up.

Starting Sept. 8, Ted Turner's SuperStation (WTBS) will start running episodes of "The New Leave It to Beaver" every Monday and Sunday on more than 200 independent stations.

The show will feature most of the old cast, including mother June Cleaver (Barbara Billingsley), older brother Wally (Tony Dow), creep Eddie Haskell (Ken Osmond), and a few more kids.

The initial order by Turner was for 74 shows, the largest advance order in television history. This assures the Beav a place in living rooms until 1990.

The living room is familiar turf for Jerry Mathers, who played the Beav from 1957 to 1963. His show aired at a time when television and people were becoming friendly, more at ease with each other. And the Beav's home was the friendliest place in the world, stocked with loving relationships and old-fashioned values.

BUT GROWING up on network television did not give Mathers an ordinary life as a child — or an adult.

"I can go anywhere in the United States and when I walk off the airplane people come and today.

Television

up to me and say, 'Hi, Jerry, or 'Hi, Beav.'" Mathers said. "To be honest with you, I'm a pretty friendly guy; I have friends all over the country.

"People don't think of the Beaver as an actor," he said. "They think of him as somebody they grew up with, someone who has been with them in their homes all their lives.

"It was not a normal life," he said.

As soon as Mathers finished the series, he went to high school, the first time he attended classes with other students. He played team sports and started a band, "Beaver and the Trappers," that became popular at sock hops and proms.

He graduated, went into the Air Force and then attended college at Berkeley, where he majored in philosophy.

"I PUT myself through Berkeley with money I made from the show," Mathers said. "I had been buying commercial paper and treasury bills. Because of that experience, I got an offer with Security Pacific Bank, the 10th largest bank in the country. I ended up being a commercial loan officer."

From there he went into real estate, which gave him time to get back into acting. It was then he realized how popular the Cleaver characters still were.

He married Rhonda, the public relations director of a theater in Cincinnati, and they had three children, Noah, 8, Mercedes, 4, and 9-month-old Gretchen. They live in California.

In the original series, Beaver sometimes got into trouble, although it was nothing like the trouble kids get into today. He didn't do drugs, but he might forget to wash his hands before dinner.

ONE TIME his older brother Wally got in big trouble when he backed the car out of the driveway and got it banged up.

Guilt was a major theme, too. When the kids did something wrong, even if they got away with it, they felt miserable. Eventually, they would confess to Dad and feel better.

This time around, the Beaver is divorced with two sons and living at the old home at 211 Pine St. with his mother. June is widowed (her TV husband, Hugh Beaumont, has passed away in real life) and she has become a real '80s woman. "She's dating now," Mathers says.

Wally is a lawyer, married, with a 9-year-old daughter and another child on the way. He lives next door at 213 Pine St.

EDDIE has a son named Freddie (played by his own son Eric) who continues the Haskell tradition of being a creep.

In "The New Leave It to Beaver," there will be mild humor and warm family relationships. There will be no junkies, no guns, no homosexuality, no nasty business.

"There's one episode where my daughter wants to get a bra before she needs one. That's about as rough as it gets," says Dow.

Instead, there will be the same warm humor contained in the original series.
