Board limits local boy's volleyball play time

By Bruce Japsen
Staff Writer

Iowa City School Board members voted unanimously Monday not to allow 17-year-old Trevor Adamson to play in conference games on the West High School girls' volleyball team.

But Adamson will be able to participate in volleyball practices and in non-conference games, according to a resolution passed by the board. The West High team plays only four non-conference games in its 14-game schedule.

The board's decision came after principals of the 10 Mississippi Valley Conference schools voted 8-0 Monday against allowing boys to play on girls' volleyball teams. Principals of the two Iowa City high schools in the conference abstained from the vote.

If the board had supported Adamson's bid to play, West High could have been removed from the conference altogether, West High Principal Jerry Arganbright said.

"We'd be accused of knowingly not obeying conference bylaws," Arganbright said.

"AS A BOARD, we have to look at the benefits to the whole district and not just one person," board member Lynne Cannon said.

"I'm happy with what the district said, but I'm disappointed with what the MVC said," Adamson said after the meeting.

Adamson said he'll decide later this week whether he will play in the four non-conference games. Non-conference schools may protest if Adamson plays, which could land the matter in court.

"I hope he comes to the board with a request first," John Cruise, attorney for the Iowa City Community School District, said.

A motion by board member David Woodruff to assess any future court costs to the athletic budget failed on a 3-3 vote. The proposal would have forced the athletic budget — rather than the district — to cover any legal fees.

"ANY AND ALL legal fees to the district would affect 8,000 students," Woodruff said.

Duane Kramer, athletic director at Cedar Rapids Washington High School, said the conference vote was based on a constitutional bylaw prohibiting boys from playing on girls' volleyball teams.

"The resolution was that only girls can play on interscholastic volleyball teams," Kramer said. Similar cases have arisen in Arizona, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Indiana, he said.

"We want to protect the integrity and the equal opportunity for the young females," Kramer added.

The West High School volleyball team is scheduled to play the Washington High School team tonight.

Chilean police arrest leftist leaders

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Security forces, empowered with state-of-siege authority following an assassination attempt against President Augusto Pinochet, arrested leftist leaders Monday, cracked down on the opposition press and surrounded the radical slums of Santiago.

"This is a war between Marxism and democracy," Pinochet said at the presidential palace in Santiago, where he returned Monday after spending the night at a villa southeast of the capital.

"The country must decide between the chaos promoted by that flock of degenerate politicians and the government, which is seeking a logical road to democracy," Pinochet told hundreds of cheering supporters.

Interior Minister Ricardo Garcia declared the state of siege Sunday night, hours after 15 suspected leftist rebels attacked Pinochet's motorcade with machine-gun and rocket fire. Five security guards were killed and 10 were wounded. Pinochet was slightly wounded

THE CRACKDOWN began during the night, when police arrested Socialist Party leaders Ricardo Correa and German Correa in their homes, and troops sealed the slums ringing Santiago, traditional centers of anti-Pinochet unrest. Gunfire was reported.

Roman Catholic Church workers said troops raided two south slum areas, including the staunchly anti-Pinochet neighborhood of La Victoria, the scene of rioting during two days of demonstrations last week that claimed four lives.

"We have heard intermittent gunfire in La Victoria but nobody can get in or out," said one church human rights worker, who spoke on the condition that he not be named.

UI may get $2.5 million for libraries

By Phil Thomas
Staff Writer

Gov. Terry Branstad decided to rejuvenate underfunded libraries and research programs at the UI Monday by releasing as much as $2.5 million in unused state money to make up for this year's budget cuts.

Branstad's press secretary Dick Vohs said the money came from savings made in the UI's utility budget, which enabled the governor to redirect funds to needy programs.

Normally, the money would be circulated back into the state budget unless an executive decision directs the money elsewhere, Vohs said.

"He was pleased to have the ability to use these funds," he said.

Although the news elated some UI officials, others were skeptical.

UI VICE President for Finance Dorsey Ellis said the UI saved a lot of money last month because air conditioning bills were unusually low in August.

The reversion of money from utilities to academic programs is a complex procedure and he was "absolutely certain" the UI would not receive as much as $2.5 million, he said.

Last week UI President James O. Freedman said the library budget was reduced $350,000 because of inadequate funding the state Board of Regents received from the Iowa Legislature.

The governor's action was prompted by news of a library funding crisis, Vohs said. "This was a step to be immediately taken to alleviate these problems," he said.

In addition to the money given to the UI, Vohs said the governor approved freeing $1.5 million in utility savings to offset overcrowded classrooms at Iowa State University.

UI VICE President for Educational Development Duane Spriestersbach said the money would be more than welcome.

"I think this would just be wonderful," he said. "I can't think of any other response."

UI Associate Speech Pathology Professor Richard Hurtig, who spoke out last week against library cuts in an open letter addressed to Freedman, said he was pleased state officials are showing concern for UI programs.

"I think that represents a wonderful thing on the part of state government to recognize problems at the university," he said.

Sunday evening as Pinochet drove back to Santiago with his grandson from a weekend retreat in the Andes, 30 miles southeast of the capital.

An escort car was hit by a rocket and burst into flames and two other cars overturned in the heavy submachine-gun fire. The rebels sprayed the 70-year-old president's car with gunfire but the slugs failed to pierce the bullet-proof glass and armor.

PINOCHET WAS whisked back to his villa at El Melocoton, where he later appeared on television shaken and with his hand bandaged. Film of his damaged car was broadcast.

Contrary to official reports that Pinochet was safe at the presidential residence in Santiago, he spent the night at El Melocoton and was flown by helicopter to the capital Monday morning under heavy security.

Iowans react to detention of Daniloff

By Jay Dutton
Special to The Daily Iowan

The arrest of American reporter Nicholas Daniloff by the Soviet Union is more than a case of one man facing spy charges.

The effects of the arrest stretch from hampering arms talks to restricting reporting future affairs between the United States and Soviet Union, Des Moines Register Editor James Gannon said Monday.

"(The arrest) outrages me. It's hard to explain. Everything Gorbachev was trying to do dealt with trying to make better relations with the United States. He wanted an easing of tensions. It's hard to figure out in that sense," Gannon said. Gannon spent two weeks in the Soviet Union as part of a journalism exchange in July.

ALTHOUGH GANNON BELIEVES arms talks between the two countries will cease until Daniloff's release, UI Political Science instructor William Reisinger said this is doubtful.

"The Reagan administration is trying to play the arrest down. It may have little effect six months down the line, and in the short term, it could increase tensions in the arms negotiations and be harmful to them, but I think this is unlikely," Reisinger said.

When the Soviet Union announced last week it had arrested Daniloff only a short time before he was to return to the United States, UI Associate Botany Professor Richard Sjolund said he was shocked.

Sjolund, who spent one month this summer in the Soviet Union on a scientific exchange program, ran into few difficulties overseas.

"We didn't have any incidents where we were being compromised or were under any constraints in any way," said Sjolund. "As an exchange scientist, I couldn't have found more of what I wanted anywhere."

WHILE THE DIFFERENCE in treatment for Gannon and Sjolund may have come because they were formal members of exchange programs, Reisinger sees Daniloff's arrest as a bargaining tool for the return of Gennadi Zakharov to the Soviet Union.

Zakharov is awaiting trial on an espionage charge in the United States.

But the Daniloff arrest was possibly a lone action of the KGB, the Soviet intelligence agency, which would explain the political loopholes it leaves open, Gannon said.

THE EFFECTS the incident will have on arms talk is uncertain. So are its effect on journalistic relations between the two countries.

"The case has very, very serious implications. It puts all journalists at risk," Gannon said. "It shows that they have no respect for the role of the journalist."

American journalists in the Soviet Union could have their contacts and ties within the country shut down, Gannon said.

Reisinger said the action could lead to retaliatory measures by the United States, including the removal of Soviet journalists from the United States.

Spriestersbach recognized by scientists

UI Vice President for Educational Development Duane Spriestersbach was presented an award last week by the Iowa Microbeam Society in recognition of his support of electron microscopy.

The society, composed of scientists from Iowa's colleges, universities and industry, honored Spriestersbach Friday at its annual meeting in Iowa City. Kenneth Moore, society president and director of the UI Central Electron Microscopy Facility, cited Spriestersbach as a UI official who has made a variety of scientific research possible.

"I feel privileged to have been able to work with Dean Spriestersbach, because the opportunities that I have been afforded in the electron microscopy facility I feel are fairly unique to the University of Iowa," he said. "They have allowed me to accept challenges and dream about things that have been allowed to come to fruition with Dean Spriestersbach's support."

Girl Scouts registration under way

Girls between the ages of 5 and 17 who are interested in Girl Scouts can register now in the Iowa City area.

Five age groups are represented within the organization: Daisy Girl Scouts, kindergarten; Brownie Girl Scouts, grades 1-3; Junior Girl Scouts, grades 4-6; Cadette Girl Scouts, grades 7-9; and Senior Girl Scouts, grades 9-12.

Girls who hold part-time jobs, participate in sports activities or have other responsibilities that prevent them from attending meetings may also join and participate in all local Girl Scout activities.

Parents interested in further information should call 338-9794.

Citizens' committee accepts nominations

Nominations are being accepted by the Johnson County Citizens' Committee for awards to recognize county residents with disabilities as well as employers who hire disabled persons.

The recognitions are part of events scheduled for Employ the Handicapped Week, Oct. 5-11. Nominations will be accepted until Sept. 19, and the awards presentation will be made Oct. 7.

Nominations are being accepted for awards in the following seven categories:

- Distinguished service award. Will be made to any person who has made an outstanding contribution toward employment, equal opportunity and services for handicapped persons on a volunteer basis.

- Employer of the year. Awards will be made to employers who have made outstanding achievements in improving employment opportunities for disabled persons. Two categories will be recognized — one to an employer with more than 200 persons, and one to an employer with fewer than 200 persons.

- Handicapped Iowan of Johnson County. This award will be made to a person who has met a physical or mental challenge and has been active in the community. The recipient of this award is eligible for a nomination to the state awards committee and, if recognized, is eligible for nomination for a presidential award.

- Handicapped state employee. This recognition will be given to a person who has adapted well to his or her employment and living environment.

- Outstanding handicapped students. Two awards will be made to students who have excelled in their learning environment. Open to all age groups.

- Physician's award. A physician will be recognized who has made an outstanding contribution toward promoting public understanding of the employment capabilities of disabled persons, or has helped with rehabilitation.

- Local commendations. Persons, groups, churches or schools who help enhance employment possibilities will be recognized. Examples include a church that installs an elevator, students who help disabled persons and an employer hiring an interpreter to facilitate the work of employees with hearing problems.

For information about nomination forms, contact Marjorie Hayden Strait at 337-5847, or Lori Bears at 337-2120.

County Democrats open campaign office

The grand opening of the Johnson County Democratic campaign office, 328 S. Clinton St., will be held today at 5:30 p.m. During the event, the Lorada Cilek Courthouse Fund will be presented to Johnson County Board of Supervisors candidates Robert Burns and Harold Donnelly. Each will receive $250 for their campaigns. The fund was established in Cilek's memory to assist Democrats in county elections.

Petersen enters new plea of guilty in Slager shooting

By Ann Szemplenski
Staff Writer

A man charged in connection with the shooting of 23-year-old John Slager pleaded guilty to accessory after the fact Monday in Johnson County District Court.

Ralph S. Peterson, 23, Council Bluffs, was charged in connection with the Aug. 3 shooting. Peterson appeared in court with his attorney Dennis Clark to withdraw his earlier plea of not guilty.

Peterson turned himself over to authorities Aug. 4. Ramone Joseph DeSantiago II, 18, also of Council Bluffs, was charged with attempted murder in connection with the shooting.

Peterson's judgment and sentencing is scheduled for Oct. 31.

A local man who was arrested for allegedly entering a vehicle illegally and carrying two knives made his initial appearance in Johnson County District Court Saturday.

Randall Gene Hughes, 26, Cor-

Courts

alville, appeared on charges of first-degree burglary and carrying weapons. According to court records, Hughes illegally entered a car and cut wires under the dash, but removed nothing from the car.

Hughes was being held Monday in Johnson County Jail in lieu of $12,000 bond. His preliminary hearing is scheduled for Sept. 15.

An Iowa City man who was arrested for attempting to steal a car and for possession of marijuana made his initial appearance in Johnson County District Court Monday.

Michael Owen Maxey, 24, of 1515 Ridge St., was charged with second-degree theft and possession of a controlled substance.

Court records state Maxey was trying to steal a car when the owner heard it start and apprehended Maxey. While searching Maxey, police observed a plastic bag containing a "greenish brown plant material" drop out of his underwear.

Maxey's preliminary hearing is scheduled for Sept. 23.

A $1 million lawsuit filed by a UI student against the UI for an accident that occurred on a hayrack ride sponsored by a residence hall was settled in Johnson County District Court Monday.

Joan K. Gannon, 409 S. Dodge St., Apt. 2, accepted a $40,000 settlement for the Oct. 5, 1984, incident that occurred at Pleasant View Stables.

Court records state that while Gannon was a passenger on a Burge Residence Hall hayrack ride, she was severely burned when a caldron of hot chocolate was tipped over onto her.

Included in Gannon's claim were negligence charges of failure to ensure her safety, failure to ensure that the caldron was located in an area where it would not cause injury and failure to investigate and ensure the container was safe.

Two residents reported car vandalism incidents to Iowa City police early this week.

A car owned by Dave Kuntz, 321 Koser Ave., was tipped over on its side in the parking lot of The Vine Tavern, 330 E. Prentiss St., on Saturday, according to Iowa City police reports. Kuntz's car suffered $1,000 in damages.

Also, a vehicle belonging to William K. Ajram, Coralville, was vandalized Sunday while parked outside the Campus Standard Service station, 102 E. Burlington St. Damage was estimated at $300, according to Iowa City police reports.

Theft report: Marysue Miller, 728 E. Washington St., told Iowa City police Monday that an $800 gold necklace was taken from her room at the Holiday Inn, 210 S. Dubuque St., during rush week activities. Miller, a rush counselor, stayed at the hotel during the week of activities.

Theft report: Brent Feller, 411 Hawkeye Court, reported to UI Campus Security officials Saturday that his gym bag and contents were stolen from the UI Field House locker room. The items were valued at $188.

Burglary report: Fries BBQ and Grill, 5 S. Dubuque St., was burglarized early Sunday, according to Iowa City police reports. An employee reported to police that $163 in cash was taken overnight. As of Monday, police had no suspects.

Theft report: Jason Nicholson, 519 N. Gilbert St., told Iowa City police Sunday that two stereo speakers, worth approximately $80, and about 12 cassette tapes were stolen from his unlocked vehicle overnight.

Burglary: Anne Patrick, 3200 Burge Residence Hall lounge, reported to UI Campus Security officials Friday that clothing worth $110 was stolen from the lounge, where Patrick is temporarily housed.

Report: UI Campus Security officials received a report of a dead body wrapped in a pile of rags under the east end of the Iowa Avenue bridge Saturday, but discovered only a sleeping bag and blankets, reports state. Officers believe someone had been sleeping there.

H & R Block Income Tax Course Begins Sept. 15
Thousands of people with spare time are earning money as tax preparers in the growing field of Income Tax Service.
H & R BLOCK is offering a Basic Income Tax Course starting September 15th. Classes will be held at the H & R BLOCK offices in Iowa City.
For 13 weeks students will study all areas of tax preparation and receive actual experience in preparing individual returns. Experienced Block personnel will teach current laws, theory and application as practiced in their offices coast to coast. There is a classroom lecture on each subject and practice problems at every level. The course is programmed to teach students increasingly complex tax problems as study progresses. Students find this course interesting and challenging.
Anyone may enroll. There are no restrictions or qualifications of any kind. The course is ideally suited for housewives, retired persons, teachers or anyone wanting to increase his tax knowledge.
While qualified students of the course may be offered job interviews they are under no obligation to accept employment with H & R BLOCK. There are franchises available to residents of small cities as well as job opportunities locally.
The modest fee charged for this course includes all textbooks, supplies and tax forms necessary for completion of the school. Certificates are awarded to all graduates.
Registration forms and brochures for the Income Tax Course may be obtained by contacting the H & R BLOCK office at 109 E. Burlington, Iowa City. Phone 354-1750.

Lackluster race frustrates both candidates

Orville Townsend

By James Cahoy
Staff Writer

The lack of opposition in today's Iowa City School Board election is a disappointment, say candidates Orville Townsend and Ellen Widiss.

The two are unopposed in their bids to win seats on the board. Widiss is seeking reelection as board president, while Townsend will be new to the board, if elected.

"It's always nice if voters have a choice of candidates," Widiss said.

Townsend said the race may reflect the "apathy of the district. People just don't seem interested this year."

An important issue in his camaign is improving communication between the board and the district, Townsend said.

"We must improve communication with our staff and our public," he said. Townsend addressed what he calls a "morale problem."

"IT SEEMS a lot of staff members and teachers complain they have no input in what is going on in the district," he said, also expressing concern about the district's curriculum.

"We are a college community, and I think sometimes we tend to concentrate on college prep courses," he said. "We should try to have more extensive vocational courses to make sure those kids not college-bound have some fair share."

But Widiss disagreed with Townsend on the curriculum issue.

"I would say the vast majority of our graduates are college-bound, and I think we need to have that emphasis on college prep courses," she said.

Townsend said the district "must achieve the maximum benefit for our money. I think we must look at the programs we use in the curriculum to see how much value they are to the district."

BUT WIDISS said the district has cut programs "pretty close to the bone already. I think the board has been as cost-conscious as we can possibly be."

Widiss is a 25-year Iowa City resident and graduated from Harvard University with a master's degree in regional studies. She and her husband Alan have three children who are attending Iowa City schools.

Townsend is a former Iowa football running back who has lived in Iowa City since 1962. He works as a counselor for the Iowa City Area Rehabilitation Office of the Iowa Department of Public Instruction. He has two children who are graduates of Iowa City schools.

Polls open at 7 a.m.

UI students' opinions differ on issue of premarital sex

By Phil Thomas
Staff Writer

The dorm room is empty. The roommates are out of town and mom and dad are 500 miles away. Temptation is knocking at the door.

Part of being an independent college student is the freedom to make sexual decisions.

While many agree that promiscuity among young people continues to be prevalent, UI students differ on the dos and don'ts of sex.

Some say premarital sex is dangerous, others say it is justified in certain situations and some say it is just plain fun.

Colette Broderson, director of the Iowa City Free Medical Clinic, said sex is definitely popular with college and high school students in Iowa City.

"Most of the teenagers we see are already sexually active," she said. "It's my personal opinion that there is pressure out there to be sexually active at a young age."

"WE SEE A LOT of teenage pregnancies," Broderson said. "I think it's a problem."

But some UI students said they think sex is just another part of life in a college town.

Several UI students agreed they are on a hunt for sex when they make a trip to

This is the first in a four-part series examining sex on campus. Wednesday's article will focus on birth control, pregnancy and abortion.

"Everybody needs stuff like that every once in a while," she said.

But UI junior Jeni Hurt said promiscuity shows disrespect for the sex act.

"It just ruins the whole aspect of it," Hurt said. "It turns something that's supposed to be special into another pastime entertainment."

UI junior Pat Bender said he thinks promiscuity is wrong, but said he would not go into a marriage sexually inexperienced.

"I think it would be a mistake going into a marriage not knowing what to expect," he said.

THE REV. Edward Fitzpatrick, director of the Catholic Newman Center, said sexual discussion is important, but talking about sex in moral terms tends to cut off communication prematurely.

"If you just look at morality, people just say 'I'm for it or against it' and that is the end of the discussion," he said.

"If I stood on the corner and said 'no premarital sex,' people would say, 'that guy is out of his mind,'" he said.

But Fitzpatrick, who leads discussions on the topic at the Newman Center, said recreational intercourse is wrong within and outside of marriage.

downtown bars.

"I think people who go to the bars for that scene meet people who are there for the same reason," UI sophomore Mike Kircher said.

UI freshman Laura Frimml said intercourse is only appropriate in what she defined as a "love" relationship, but did not criticize those who decide to be promiscuous.

"IF TWO PEOPLE love each other, I think it's OK and go ahead," Frimml said, but she added it was occasionally all right to have a "one-night stand."

CAC urges Board of Regents to speed up tuition decision

By Joseph Levy
Staff Writer

The UI Collegiate Associations Council Monday night unanimously passed a resolution objecting to the state Board of Regents schedule for tuition discussions, although no action is planned.

The regents plan to begin considering tuition increases in October or November. Their November meeting is scheduled to take place in Council Bluffs, a considerable distance from any state university.

"We have been assured by the Board of Regents that they will not hold the meeting in Council Bluffs," CAC President Mike Reck said at the meeting.

The council's resolution asks the regents to hold any meeting concerning tuition on the campus of either the UI, Iowa State University or the University of Northern Iowa.

The CAC is also concerned about the timing of the meeting.

"THEY ARE still talking about not dealing with the tuition increase until December," CAC Executive Associate Jim Vogl said. Vogl was a co-sponsor of the resolution.

"What's happening is that the tuition question is not coming up until after the November election. Then Governor Branstad won't have to deal with it. It is a political issue, whether you like it or not," Vogl said.

In other action, CAC members passed a resolution requesting UI officials withdraw part of the UI's newly revised sexual harassment policy on a 3-7 vote.

The council is particularly concerned with the clause in the policy prohibiting "amorous relationships" between faculty and students. The policy includes teaching assistants.

Graduate Student Senate President Craig Canby, who wrote the resolution, said he feels a stand on amorous relationships should not be addressed in a sexual harassment policy.

"I see these as not being synonyms of each other, but as being total opposites," Canby said, adding amorous relationships are a question of ethics, not sexual harassment.

UI Assistant Vice President for Finance Mary Jo Small said it is possible for the policy to be revised.

UI Counseling Services to work with needs of learning disabled

By Pat Deninger
Special to The Daily Iowan

The UI Counseling Service, in conjunction with its other academic skills programs, has created a new program specifically aimed at UI students with learning disabilities.

According to Cathy Staley of the Counseling Service, the program will be held from 4 to 5 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays in 304 Calvin Hall.

The sessions, Staley said, are designed to deal with "specific areas of study," including time management, organizational skills, reading comprehension, lecture-listening and note-taking skills, writing skills and memory strategies.

Staley said the programs aren't unique. They are offered to UI students without learning disabilities, but the approach is different in this one.

"The programs are not to show how to do things," she said. "We teach ways to compensate and to cope."

DONNA CHANDLER, director of the UI Services for Persons with Disabilities, said beyond academic help, the learning-disabled student also faces impediments that physically-disabled students do not face.

"For the physically disabled, barriers sometimes are physical. Remove them, and they do fine in an academic setting," Chandler said.

"It's more difficult to remove barriers for the learning-disabled students. Sometimes they are attitudes," she said.

Among faculty members, she said, sometimes there is "resistance, reluctance, or disbelief." But with time and proof of a learning disability, "most of the faculty come around," she said.

LIKE MANY OTHER UI departments in tough budgetary times, Chandler said the program needs more resources.

"What we don't have is personnel for academic-skills training, but there's interest here. The administration has been supportive."

Learning-disabled students need not register for the sessions. A time schedule of topics will be posted in the Counseling Service office, Room 701 in the Union.

School board sets agenda, goals for new school year

By James Cahoy
Staff Writer

During the final meeting of the 1985-86 fiscal year, a host of goals for the upcoming academic season were outlined by the Iowa City School Board Monday night.

The goals were drafted by Randy Jordison, board vice president, and were submitted to be approved at the next meeting.

"The goals are meant to be an outline of board goals for the next year," Jordison said.

The objectives include visits to area schools on a regular basis and a move to establish board-administrative and staff-teacher conferences. In addition, a commitment was made to review the amount of time spent by members on school board activities.

Relations with the state were a prominent part of the goals, as members stated intentions of appointing a committee to keep state legislators informed of educational matters. Members also developed a goal-setting retreat for the board and administrative staff.

FINALLY, THE board announced plans to enact a process for long-range planning and reaffirmed a commitment to informing the public on issues the board covers.

Whether to allow private school students to participate in extra-curricular activities sponsored by the Iowa City Community School District was also discussed Monday night. The board approved a policy by a 6-0 vote that allows participation by private school students, provided space is available and similar programs are not offered at the private school.

Plans to replace school board member Kathy Hiratzka were also discussed. Board President Ellen Widiss said the body will appoint someone to the seat, rather than hold a special election.

"It would be fiscally irresponsible to offer the seat in a special election," Widiss said. "The precedent is to appoint somebody to the board who has already served."

Out of control

The Daily Iowan didn't make many friends in the UI Athletic Department last week. First, the DI ran a sports story on Sept. 4 chronicling Iowa wrestler Brad Penrith's recent run-ins with law enforcement officials. The following day, two more controversial pieces appeared — one on the Viewpoints page calling for Penrith's dismissal from the wrestling squad and another on the Op-Ed page criticizing the university's decision to give a substantial raise to the football coach at the same time as it makes a major cut in the library budget.

The results were predictable. Letters-to-the-editor defending Penrith arrived and others defending Football Coach Hayden Fry are sure to come. That's fine. Free and open debate on such issues is welcome.

But, there is more at issue than whether the DI is giving "bad press" to the UI's athletic teams, as one of the letter writers claimed. To simply ignore the substance of the charges made about the UI Athletic Department does no service to the university community. In fact, failing to investigate any alleged discrepancies indicates the degree to which athletics has come to dominate our notion of "college life" — our adoration of sports heroes has become so complete that we no longer know their proper role in the university.

The concerns expressed in the DI articles raise serious questions about the priorities of the university. Is the UI more concerned with extending its string of nine consecutive NCAA wrestling titles than instilling a sense of social responsibility in its students? Is the UI as committed to satisfying the needs of faculty members as it is to placating the demands of I-Club members?

When all the figures are tallied, it seems the proper balance has been lost at the UI. The incidents concerning Penrith and Fry are just two examples of how athletics has assumed a disproportionately large stature in the university community. Another testimony to the imbalance is the fact that while virtually everyone associated with the UI knows where former football standout Chuck Long is these days, few could comment on the whereabouts of UI Rhodes Scholar Jeffrey Scott McKinney.

In a state without major professional teams, perhaps inordinate attention on university athletics is to be expected, but it shouldn't be allowed to proceed unchecked. The UI should remember that it has a more basic responsibility to educational excellence than it does to athletic excellence.

Enough already

It's starting again. Tuition increases are an inevitable event in the history of the three Iowa universities, as are protests staged against them by student leaders. A look back at the last five years of tuition inflation is, to say the least, disillusioning.

In 1981, students paid between 13.7 and 83 percent more to attend Iowa universities than they did the previous year.

In 1982, they paid an additional 9.5 to 9.8 percent. In 1983, the state Board of Regents tacked a whopping 12 percent for resident students and 25 percent for non-resident students onto the already-inflated price of education.

Tuition was hiked by 5 percent and 12 percent in 1984 and yet again by 6.5 percent last year.

Got that? What it all means is that since the beginning of this decade, the price of higher education at Iowa's "public" universities has spiraled at an alarming rate. At the same time, the average number of years it takes to meet graduation requirements at the UI has increased because many of the same classes that were once offered for four credit hours are now offered for only three.

So we have a right to be bitter upon learning from state Board of Regents Executive Secretary R. Wayne Richey that the regents are going to hit us in the pocketbook again next year. Actually, we have a right to be furious. "To be honest, I'm just disgusted with the whole tuition issue," UI Collegiate Associations Council President Mike Reck says. He should put his disgust — and that of others — to productive use.

Student leaders' somewhat inconsistent efforts against tuition increases have been unsuccessful in the past. But the regents are giving students a break — albeit disguised — this year. Because "scheduling problems" have pushed the annual tuition-increase discussion back a month or so, students have ample time to organize and lobby against the hikes.

It is the responsibility of student leaders to arm themselves with documentation on the effects of spiraling tuition and to thrust this propaganda into the public eye — where it must remain. It is the responsibility of all students to make their voices heard and take part in an extended campaign against inflated tuition.

We have the time, we have the ability. Maybe this year we could change the course of history.

Democrats chart progressive agenda

By Arthur Davis

NEARLY 25 YEARS ago, columnist Walter Lippman said, "The lesson of the tremendous days through which we are passing is that we cannot live upon the achievements of our forefathers, but must ourselves renew them."

In 1980, the nation sent a Republican, Ronald Reagan, to the White House and a Republican majority to the United States Senate. The message those candidates delivered to the American people was simple — elect us and we will help you by getting the government off your back. The inference was that government, with the exception of the Pentagon, was evil.

The results have not kept pace with the promises. Government services have been taken away from those most in need, while government action and inaction has created tremendous burdens for future generations. The federal government has led this country into a staggering $2 trillion dollar national debt, a $148.5 billion trade deficit in 1985 and a $209 billion budget deficit in the last fiscal year.

OUR ACHIEVEMENTS were not renewed.

The 1986 elections have the potential to bring about a change in this state and nation, not in rhetoric but in policies.

The combination of aggressive Democratic candidates working toward solutions to the problems we face can make 1986 a year when promises begin to move toward action. Democrats have outlined a challenging agenda of what must be done to rebuild the human infrastructure of our country in the areas of education, employment, agriculture, the environment and family life.

While Republicans continue to reduce student aid, Democrats propose to strengthen programs to help young people acquire a higher education.

The quality of education must also be improved by increasing faculty salaries in Iowa so they are competitive with other states.

The Reagan administration seems unconcerned that our largest export product is jobs. Democratic candidates in Iowa have fought for ways to keep American products competitive abroad and have proposed innovative programs to invest state resources in the creation of jobs for Iowans.

An average of five Iowa family farms per day have been lost since Reagan's election. That is one reason many Democrats have supported giving farmers the opportunity to control their own destiny through referendum-approved farm programs designed to increase farm income.

After years of Republican inaction about toxic waste, groundwater contamination and acid rain, Democrats are pushing for increased funding to the Superfund toxic cleanup program, stronger regulation of landfill sites and legislation to cut down on the polluting emissions which create acid rain.

The current administration has slashed programs for low-income families and children. Democrats are proposing that we expand day care services, improve maternal and child health care programs and create job programs designed to help unemployed youth.

The Republicans have tried to convince us that the debate over government should be whether it is big or small. It is not. The debate must be about whether it is good or bad.

Iowans can decide that debate at the polls in November. The voters can repudiate the Reagan policies and the have they are creating by voting Democratic and sending a message to the nation that we want a change for the better.

Voters have a chance on November 4 to begin this nation's renewal, to bring opportunity to a broad base of the population. It is time to narrow the ever widening gulf between the United States and the rest of the world and between the wealthy and those struggling to live the American dream here at home.

Federal judges' life tenure should end

By Doug Bandow

THE NAMES William Rehnquist and Antonin Scalia strike terror in the hearts of liberals across America. Because Supreme Court justices are appointed for life, both men will probably affect the direction of our jurisprudence well into the next century.

Yet it is those on the left, who have most doggedly opposed President Ronald Reagan's High Court appointments, who have also guaranteed Justice Rehnquist's and Judge Scalia's influence by championing the independence of judges. And with the president likely to fill roughly half the federal bench before he leaves office, liberals may increasingly regret the fact that judges have well-nigh absolute power for their entire lives.

The judiciary was intended to play a key role in the original constitutional scheme: James Madison said that the courts were to be "an impenetrable bulwark against every assumption of power in the legislative or executive." Life tenure was supposed to shield judicial decision-making from hostile popular or legislative majorities, allowing judges to place fundamental constitutional liberties beyond the government's reach.

HOWEVER, UNDER pressure from the Democrats who dominated the executive and legislative branches during the Great Depression, the judiciary abandoned its role of protecting economic freedom from an expansive state. In succeeding years, the Supreme Court took a leading role in implementing the social vision of the New Deal. The judiciary became an active policy-making branch, expanding the size and reach of the public sector by taking the initiative where elected officials refused to act.

As judges created "rights" out of constitutional whole cloth and demanded that taxpayers fund faddish social policies, conservatives attacked "government by judiciary" and proposed bringing the courts under the control of majoritarian institutions. The left, happy to achieve in the court room what it could not win in the voting booth, defended the icon of "judicial independence," resisting any restriction on judicial authority. But now conservatives are appointing federal judges. And it is jurists on the right who wield enormous, largely unreviewable authority.

Since neither conservative nor liberal judges can be trusted to fulfill their constitutional role of protecting all forms of liberty, we should make judges more accountable for their decisions. Executive and legislative abuses are constrained by popular will and judicial review; judicial excess is restricted by little other than judges' own sense of propriety.

THE EASIEST WAY to trim judicial authority without destroying the institution in the process would be to end life tenure for federal judges.

A 10-year term for federal jurists would guarantee significant court autonomy; judicial terms would extend well past the normal presidential or congressional term and Congress still could not overrule court decisions. But a judge who had consistently exceeded his authority, or who had exhibited a severely restrictive view of the Constitution, could be refused reappointment or reconfirmation, allowing his removal without the trauma of an impeachment trial. Making judges serve a set term would also guarantee the independence of the federal bench. The judicial branch, no less than the legislature and executive, should be answerable for its conduct. The courts are to be independent, not divine.

YET JUDGES WOULD still be sufficiently insulated from political pressures to protect the constitutional rights of unpopular individuals or groups. Some who want to limit the power of the courts suggest that we make judges stand for election or strip them of jurisdiction over controversial issues. Limiting judicial terms would be a far more effective way to achieve the same goal, for it would curb activist abuses without eliminating court autonomy.

Today, civil libertarians are having nightmares about the Rehnquist court in the year 2010. But if federal judges were no longer appointed for life, those bad dreams might disappear with a new president and Congress 10 years from now.

8 hostages taken at Paris airline office

PARIS — Kurds threatening to detonate dynamite took eight people hostage today at an Iraqi Airways office but surrendered after a brief protest against an Iraqi offensive in an area they call their homeland, officials said.

None of the hostages were injured in the hour-long incident, police said.

Kurds reportedly demanded publicity from French television. They gave up when they felt they had received what they wanted.

Kurds are a minority group fighting for autonomy in a rugged mountainous region they call Kurdistan that straddles the borders of Iraq, Turkey and Iran.

U.S. helps bust big Bolivian cocaine lab

LA PAZ, Bolivia — An elite Bolivian narcotics strike force backed up by U.S. troops captured the biggest cocaine laboratory in Bolivian history Monday near the nation's border with Brazil, a top official said.

The abandoned laboratory contained more than 12,000 gallons of ether, a highly flammable compound used in processing cocaine, and several airstrips, Interior Minister Fernando Barthelemy said.

No cocaine was found and no arrests were made, he said. The laboratory is situated in the highlands of the Huanchaca national reserve about 480 miles northeast of the capital of La Paz, he said.

Black leaders threaten not to meet King

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — Two anti-apartheid leaders said Monday they will refuse to meet with U.S. civil rights activist Coretta Scott King if she visits President Pieter W. Botha today.

"Botha's hands are dripping with the blood of our children," said the Rev. Allan Boesak, president of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches and a major anti-apartheid leader. "If she sees him, I will not see her."

Boesak said Winnie Mandela, wife of jailed black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela, also will refuse to see King if the wife of slain American civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. meets with Botha.

King, who came to South Africa for the enthronement of the Rev. Desmond Tutu as the archbishop of Cape Town Sunday, plans to meet with Botha today.

Dubuque workers prepared for walkout

DUBUQUE — About 1,750 union workers at two FDL Foods Inc. plants in Iowa and Illinois Monday were poised to set up picket lines on Thursday if negotiations with the company failed to produce a new three-year agreement.

Some 1,200 members of United Food and Commercial Workers union Local 150A in Dubuque voted Sunday to reject a final company offer increasing hourly wages by 50 cents during the first year and 25 cents the final two years, said Mel Mass, president of Local 150A. Along with wages, Maas said health benefits and overtime pay have been sticking points during contract talks.

The Dubuque workers have given the company a 72-hour strike notice with a deadline set for midnight Wednesday, Maas said. The two sides have been negotiating on a day-to-day basis since a contract deadline passed earlier this month.

Petitioners want surplus to go to south

DES MOINES — The Iowa Farm Unity Coalition announced Monday it will be mounting a petition drive against the federal government to allow surplus corn to be shipped to drought-stricken farmers in the southern United States.

Spokesman David Ostendorf said his group would be lobbying Iowa's congressional delegation and the U.S. Department of Agriculture to ease federal rules concerning surplus grain.

Officials have estimated more than 350 million bushels of grain will be turned back to the federal government this fall that will not be able to be stored because of bumper crops.

Daniloff accused of host of spying acts

MOSCOW (UPI) — A government newspaper said Monday that U.S. News & World Report correspondent Nicholas Daniloff is guilty of a string of spying acts, including attempts to gather secrets about Soviet military strength in Afghanistan.

Ruth Daniloff, wife of the detained reporter who was charged Sunday with espionage, dismissed as "preposterous" the Izvestia newspaper allegations that Daniloff passed on information to the CIA long before his arrest on Aug. 30.

After a 90-minute meeting at the U.S. Embassy, she also hinted that talks may be under way between the U.S. and Soviet governments to engineer at least an easing of the terms of confinement for Daniloff and a Soviet employee of the United Nations who has been held since Aug. 23 in a New York jail on espionage charges.

"There are probably top-level meetings going on," Ruth Daniloff said. "I have no solid indication, but I think they will release Nick into custody of the American Embassy here and let (detained Soviet spy Gennadi) Zakharov into the custody of the Soviet Embassy there until their trials. It would be a step, but it would still be unsatisfactory."

In Washington, State Department officials said they have "made no other proposals" beyond the now-dead U.S. offer to free Zakharov pending his trial if the 52-year-old journalist is allowed to leave the Soviet Union with his family.

IZVESTIA, apparently quoting from the KGB investigation, said Daniloff is guilty in a string of espionage incidents. The newspaper said the spying included efforts to obtain secret information about Soviet involvement in Afghanistan from a Soviet acquaintance identified only as "Misha" and contact with a U.S. diplomat — "a CIA staffer" — expelled last year for alleged spying.

"Like in a typical or trivial detective story there are secret places, special marks and means of communication, do you need more proof?" the article concluded. "We have them."

The newspaper said Daniloff was caught with maps and photographs of military installations in Afghanistan. The documents were marked "secret," a classified grade in Soviet intelligence parlance used to denote important material but several grades below the highest and most restricted classification, a diplomat said.

"It's a third-rate script for a spy novel," she said. "It is so preposterous no one can take it seriously. Imagine Nick skulking around in the bush."

The State Department said the earlier deal to free Daniloff was crushed Sunday when the reporter was formally indicted on espionage charges.

State Department and White House officials said Reagan has not decided on possible retaliation for the arrest.

Police: Accused hijackers were 'trained'

KARACHI, Pakistan (UPI) — Four Palestinians have been charged with murder and hijacking in the 16-hour siege of Pan Am Flight 73 and another victim died Monday, pushing the toll to 19, law enforcement sources said.

The four hijackers were seized by Pakistani commandos Friday after they hurled grenades and sprayed gunfire at 383 passengers held inside the Pan Am jumbo jet for 16 hours.

Federal investigative sources said the four men admitted under interrogation they wanted to take the jet to Cyprus, where they planned to exchange the hostages for three accused Palestinian guerrillas charged with the Yom Kippur killing of three Israelis on a yacht in Larnaca.

But the hijack plot was botched at its outset when the airliner's captain and cockpit crew escaped through an emergency hatch, leaving the plane immobilized on the runway.

A Pakistani security source said the four suspects, called "trained hijackers," were charged Sunday with murder, illegal arms possession, hijacking and conspiracy. The source said the hijackers had two submachine guns, two pistols and grenades.

PRESIDENT MOHAMMED Zia ul-Haq said the suspects, who he identified as Palestinians ages 19 to 25, will be tried in Pakistan, where a conviction can carry a punishment of death by hanging.

Other sources from Pakistan's Federal Investigation Agency said the four men — one hospitalized and three reportedly held at an undisclosed army camp — were placed back in custody for 14 days without bail.

Nineteen people died in the hijacking and more than 150 were injured. Hospital sources said the 19th victim, Jose Alvarez of Mexico, died Monday. They also said another man, a Pakistani, was declared brain dead at Jinnah Hospital and would probably die once his brother gives permission to shut off his respirator.

In Perugia, Italy, police sources said they believed the accused hijack leader, identified as Gomer Hussein, was enrolled in 1984 at the Perugia University for Foreigners. But police officials later said they have no conclusive evidence Hussein attended the school.

Italian media have dubbed Perugia a "crossroads of terrorism." Turkish gunman Mehmet Ali Agca enrolled there before his May 13, 1981, assassination attempt against Pope John Paul II.

Members of the Black September Palestinian guerrilla group met at Perugia to plan the 1972 massacre of Israeli athletes at the Olympics in Munich, West Germany.

MEANWHILE IN New York, 115 of the surviving hijack victims arrived at Kennedy International Airport. A Pan Am spokesman said many of the hijack survivors were "agitated and frightened" when they boarded a 747 jetliner that took them to the United States late Sunday.

One angry passenger returned to America with a "bitterful of hate" and called for the execution of the terrorists who hijacked the Pan Am jetliner in Pakistan Thursday.

Another passenger called the experience a "nightmare." Within minutes of landing, the passengers were rushed to a building in a restricted area where they were reunited with hundreds of family members and friends.

West German officials survey the damage Monday, of a car bomb that exploded next to the building which houses the West German's counter-intelligence agency.

Bomb attacks jolt Europe

United Press International

Bomb attacks, including a car bomb claimed by rival terrorist groups, inflicted heavy damage and killed at least one person in four cities across Europe Monday, police said.

In Paris, a bomb exploded just before closing time in the crowded post office at city hall, killing a woman and injuring 18 other people, including a 3-year-old girl, police said.

The explosion at the city hall post office came as Prime Minister Jacques Chirac was meeting with senior officials at the prime minister's office to discuss ways to combat terrorism. The focus was a threat last week from a shadowy Arab group to renew a bombing campaign in France.

Police said a witness told them he saw two "Arab-looking" men enter the post office shortly before the explosion, deposit a parcel on a bench and leave quickly.

POLICE SAID one woman was decapitated in the blast, a 26-year-old man was seriously injured with multiple bone fractures and 17 other people, including a 3-year-old girl, were slightly injured, mainly by flying glass.

Police Commissioner Jean Paolini said the blast was the result of a bomb of undetermined origin. No group claimed responsibility.

A remote-control car bomb blasted a gaping hole in the facade of the headquarters of West Germany's version of the FBI early Monday, authorities said. One person was slightly hurt.

The blast at the Cologne headquarters of the Agency for Protection of the Constitution caused an estimated $500,000 damage and was the third in recent weeks against federal agencies in the Cologne area.

THE 26-YEAR-OLD driver of a passing truck was slightly hurt by flying shrapnel but there were no other injuries, police said.

Police said a note found in a nearby park claimed responsibility for the "Fighting Unit Christos Tsoutsouvis."

The previously unknown group, named after a terrorist killed in a May 1985 battle with Athens police, appeared to be associated with the Red Army Faction as the note demanded the release of a jailed member of the terrorist organization also known as the Baader Meinhof Gang.

An anonymous caller to the Cologne Stadt-Anzeiger newspaper also claimed responsibility for the rival domestic terror group Revolutionary Cells.

A bomb in the Netherlands went off outside the offices of a civil engineering and construction firm that peace activists say is a contractor for Dutch cruise missile installations. No injuries were reported.

THE BOMB shattered glass and sparked a small fire at the entrance of the Hollandse Beton Groep near Gouda. Damage was estimated at up to $8,600. Police said there were no injuries.

Police spokeswoman Nellij DeRuijter said no one claimed responsibility, but the blast could have been the work of cruise missile protesters.

In Stockholm, a bomb damaged the Swedish offices of the African National Congress, South Africa's main black nationalist guerrilla group, but caused no injuries. No one claimed responsibility for the bombing.

Japan backs U.S. Star Wars in spite of Soviet opposition

TOKYO, (UPI) — Japan, the only nation ever to suffer an atomic attack, announced a long-awaited decision today to take part in the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative, saying it was aimed at the "total abolition of nuclear weapons."

The announcement was made by Chief Cabinet Secretary Masaharu Gotoda immediately after the decision was made at a morning Cabinet meeting.

Japan's entry into SDI came more than 18 months after the United States formally invited its participation and made it the last major U.S. ally to issue a decision.

Gotoda said the Japanese government would enter into formal talks with the United States to set up a framework for a Japanese role in research on the space-based missile shield project, popularly known as "Star Wars."

Any formal agreement, however, is expected to face stiff opposition in the Diet, or parliament.

JAPAN'S PARTICIPATION has already provoked resistance from pacifist and anti-nuclear elements that say it violates the country's formal ban on arms exports and nuclear weapons research, and a 1969 resolution by the Diet that space would only be used for peaceful purposes.

"The U.S. government consistently stressed that SDI will be carried out in parallel to disarmament negotiations with a view to attaining the total abolition of nuclear weapons," Gotoda said. "This basic concept conforms to Japan's position to build itself as a peaceful nation."

The government also has been concerned about warnings from the neighboring Soviet Union at a time when Tokyo is trying to improve relations with Moscow. The Kremlin has said it would consider the decision to join SDI "anti-Soviet."

But Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone and other officials argued that Japan was virtually committed to taking part because of its joint security agreement with the United States, which has been asking Japan to contribute more to defense.

Gotoda said Japan was convinced SDI "is not designed to achieve U.S. supremacy over the Soviet Union" and "technological development achieved in the search for a non-nuclear defense system will help strengthen the deterrence of the entire West."

Senior officials have said Japan likely will not become a full partner, like Britain, and will follow the West German model, in which Bonn agreed to allow private companies to take part but decided against a direct governmental role.

Turkish massacre investigated

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI) — A nine-man Israeli intelligence team arrived Monday to help police identify the gunmen who massacred 21 Jews in a synagogue and then killed themselves, police officials said.

"The Israelis will cooperate with our officers in the investigation," officials said, adding they had few clues about the two gunmen found dead inside the burning Neve Shalom Synagogue Saturday morning.

The terrorists sprayed machine-gun fire and threw grenades on Sabbath worshippers as prayers were under way, killing 21 Jews and wounding several others. The two men then blew themselves up with hand grenades.

Police studied the gunmen's weapons for clues to their origin.

"The grenades used in the attack are of a similar Soviet make like those found in the possession of two heavily armed Libyans arrested in May outside an American military club in Ankara," a police official said.

guns used in the synagogue massacre were similar to a cache of Polish-made grenades and machine guns found in a forest near Istanbul earlier this year.

"In both cases," he said, "the serial numbers of the weapons have been filed off."

Three Arab groups claimed responsibility for the attack, including two unknown groups and the Islamic Jihad, or holy war, which has claimed responsibility for many recent terror attacks in the Middle East.

Turkish officials have yet to say who they believe was responsible.

A spokesman at the Israeli Mission in Ankara said he could not confirm the Israeli investigators' arrival and could not provide any details. "Even if it is true, I wouldn't know," the spokesman said.

Witnesses said there were four gunmen and two got away, but authorities have said they believe only the two dead men were responsible. Two automatic weapons and 102 spent cartridges were found on the synagogue floors, police officials said.

Rafi Saul, 17, who survived the attack by playing dead inside the synagogue, returned to the scene with police to re-enact the massacre. The youth's father was killed in the attack.

Jewish leaders said a funeral for the 21 worshippers will be held Wednesday inside the blood-spattered synagogue, Turkey's largest.

"We do not intend to clean the blood off the wall and the ceiling for the funeral service," Erol Dilek, chairman of the synagogue council, told United Press International.

DILEK SAID Istanbul Chief Rabbi David Asseo would officiate at the funeral. Turkish officials, delegates of Istanbul's other religions and Israel's Chief Rabbi Iliahu Mordehai are also expected.

Jewish leaders in Istanbul first said Israel will send a delegate to Wednesday's funeral, but the decision to send the chief Rabbi apparently ended a controversy over which official the nation should send, if any.

Bhutto freed from jail but fears new charges

KARACHI, Pakistan (UPI) — Opposition leader Benazir Bhutto and other dissident leaders were released Monday after weeks of detention in a crackdown on opponents demanding democratic elections.

Bhutto, 33, was freed 12 hours before she was scheduled to appear in court today to contest her Aug. 14 arrest and detention without charges as "illegal, unconstitutional and malafide."

Bhutto, head of the influential Pakistan People's Party, was arrested while talking to reporters in her Karachi home, which authorities said violated a public gatherings ban issued on the eve of nationwide anti-government rallies.

Looking harried and tired, she told reporters in her home after her release that she was kept in solitary confinement in a filthy, vermin-infested cell.

BHUTTO SAID she was let go because the government knew her detention was unlawful and a court would have freed her.

The government rounded up hundreds of dissidents in a nationwide crackdown that began Aug. 13, on the eve of protests planned nationwide to demand democratic elections. Dozens of people were killed in the unrest.

"Forty innocent people lost their lives... simply because they believed in democracy," Bhutto said.

Bhutto, who returned from self-imposed exile in April and vowed to return democracy to Pakistan, said she was not tortured or mistreated but was threatened with a sedition charge.

"WHILE I was in jail they tried to threaten me with a sedition case. They said they could put me away forever," she said.

Bhutto said she fears her freedom will be short-lived.

"I am sure they are trying to cook something up even now," she said.

Bhutto is the daughter of former Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, who was overthrown by President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq in 1977 and executed two years later. She heads the strongest component in the 10-party opposition coalition known as the Movement for the Restoration of Democracy.

Heavy agenda in store for Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Members of Congress returned Monday from a three-week break and at the top of their agenda this week are decisions on drug abuse and two Supreme Court nominations.

The first day back saw little action in both chambers of Congress and most of the lawmakers were not expected to return to their offices until Tuesday.

The pace will pick up later in the week when the House takes up a bipartisan bill to crack down on illegal drugs, and the Senate turns to the nominations of William Rehnquist and Antonin Scalia to fill seats on the Supreme Court.

The drug bill is a combination of several bills drafted by various House committees. The cost is estimated at $2.9 billion over the next three years. The measure would increase penalties for most drug-related offenses; provide substantially more money for federal, state and local law enforcement efforts, plus funds for more federal prison construction; and bolster programs for drug abuse education, treatment and prevention.

THE SENATE plans to begin debate Wednesday on the nomination of Rehnquist to be chief justice and Scalia to replace Rehnquist as associate justice of the Supreme Court.

Both men are expected to be confirmed, but not until after Rehnquist's critics have aired what they see as serious shortcomings in his civil rights record. The actual votes could be delayed until next week.

Congressional leaders have set Oct. 3 as the target date for adjournment of the 99th Congress, but so much work remains to be done there is increasing doubt the target can be met.

The alternatives would be to delay adjournment — interfering with members' plans to go home and campaign for re-election — or to come back after the Nov. 4 election to finish up the congressional agenda in a lame-duck session.

Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas told reporters just before the Senate convened Monday he believes Congress can finish its work without a post-election session.

BUT DOLE DID reel off a long list of bills that have to be acted on, and said he will give Republicans a questionnaire to see if they want to quit Oct. 3 and leave some things undone or "come back."

One of the major items of unfinished business is passage of the 13 regular appropriations bills needed to keep federal agencies in business during 1987. None of the bills has yet won final approval and it appears likely Congress will have to lump most of them together in a catch-all "continuing resolution" that would be passed just before adjournment.

The resolution likely would be the largest spending bill in U.S. history.

Approval of the historic tax reform bill is expected this month, although some members of Congress say the voters back home do not particularly like the plan.

"On balance, it's a step in the right direction. But if you're looking for a reason to vote no, you could have found it at home," Dole said.

Season's fourth storm hits Caribbean

MIAMI (UPI)—Tropical storm Danielle, last spotted about 380 miles south-southeast of San Juan, Puerto Rico, and heading west, may reach hurricane force, forecasters said.

Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami said conditions over the Caribbean were favorable for the storm to become the season's third hurricane.

"We don't see anything that would prohibit this storm from strengthening," Neil Frank, director of the hurricane center said. "It has gone through the Windward Islands and is moving in the open Caribbean, right down the center."

Frank said forecasters had "very little confidence" in predicting the storm's immediate future.

"I think the best way to describe our position now would be to say we're not going to be surprised if this strengthens to hurricane force, nor would we be surprised if it stays the way it is now or even weakens some," he said.

THE STORM will become a hurricane if its sustained winds reach 74 mph.

Earlier Monday, Danielle swept through the Windward Islands into the Caribbean Sea with 50-mph winds Monday, grounding a Barbados coast guard boat and knocking out electrical power on St. Vincent Island.

Radio Barbados, monitored on St. Vincent, reported the crew of the coast guard boat George Ferguson had to abandon the vessel when it ran aground near the Tobago Cays in the Grenadines chain of islands. Two crew members were rescued by a French yacht and several others managed to escape to Petit Ramos, one of the Tobago Cays, the broadcast said. No loss of life was reported nor any estimate of damage to the coast guard boat.

Officials in Kingstown, capital of St. Vincent, said the tropical storm caused widespread power outages for the island's 136,000 residents.

DANIELLE, the fourth tropical storm of the season, formed Sunday east of the Windward Islands and pushed through the island chain late Monday morning without weakening.

The storm unroofed at least four homes in the St. Garden residential district outside Kingstown, St. Vincent, and also damaged homes in Dorsethill, Upper Endinboro, Sharpes and Newmontroes. The island's schools suspended classes.

Barbados felt the initial blow from Danielle, which damaged zinc roofing on a number of homes in Bridgetown, damaged some truck-farm crops and caused minor disruptions in power and telephone service.

Two of the four tropical storms of the season, which runs from June 1 to Nov. 30, developed into minimal hurricanes that touched the U.S. mainland with little damage.

Hurricane Bonnie swept ashore on the Texas-Louisiana coast in mid-June and Hurricane Charlie brushed North Carolina's Outer Banks in mid-August. Tropical Storm Andrew remained at sea and died in the north Atlantic in late May.

Politician's broadcast causes nuclear panic

SEABROOK, N.H. (UPI) — More than a dozen frightened and some "hysterical" residents, reminiscent of the 1938 broadcast classic "War of the Worlds," called police during a simulated news broadcast of a meltdown at the Seabrook nuclear power plant, police said Monday.

Seabrook Police Chief Paul Cronin said the Sunday night radio broadcast, a political advertisement for an anti-Seabrook Massachusetts Democrat, was "irresponsible."

The Seabrook Police station received 15 to 20 calls from Massachusetts and New Hampshire residents who heard the evening broadcast and believed a real nuclear disaster had occurred, Cronin said.

The ad depicted an explosion and widespread panic as a huge radioactive cloud headed from the coastal New Hampshire plant south toward Boston. The unlicensed nuclear reactor, which had been the focus of massive protests 10 years ago, has become a campaign issue since the Chernobyl nuclear accident earlier this year.

"PEOPLE WERE very hysterical," said Seabrook police dispatcher Blanche McCallion. "I told them it was a sick joke from one of them Massachusetts politicians."

"Some wanted to know where they should go, what's happening and is there really a meltdown," Cronin said of callers. "We had one or two that we thought were hysterical."

JoAnn Shotwell, a Massachusetts attorney general candidate, aired the $4,000 broadcast over five Massachusetts radio stations despite warnings by Civil Defense officials who feared a "War of the Worlds" reaction.

"I felt that there was an inherent danger that there may be a misinterpretation of the political advertisement," said Massachusetts Civil Defense Director Robert Boulay.

Orson Welles' Mercury Theater broadcast a version of H.G. Wells' "War of the Worlds" on CBS radio on Oct. 30, 1938, prompting widespread panic among residents who believed Martians had invaded New Jersey.

THE SEABROOK broadcast began with Shotwell discussing nuclear power and the New Hampshire reactor, according to Charles Glazier, Shotwell's press secretary.

The program then cut to a simulated Memorial Day newscast of an explosion at the Seabrook plant. The newscast included reports from a radio station helicopter flying over the reactor and a "reporter holed up in a Seabrook gas station taking shelter" and waiting for a rescue crew, Glazier said.

Shotwell interrupted the broadcast at five-minute intervals to explain the simulation, but Cronin said that did not stop residents' calls. He said his department was not notified prior to the broadcast.

Glazier said police and fire officials within 25 miles of Seabrook were notified and the ad had received media coverage prior to its airing. He said his office received 60 to 70 calls from listeners who reacted favorably to the advertisement.

"We're very pleased," he said. "I certainly had no complaints."

Seabrook management spokesman John Kyte said the ad was "highly irresponsible."

The advertisement was broadcast on Massachusetts radio stations WCEA in Newburyport, WFNX-FM in Lynn, WNEB in Worcester, WARE in Ware and WIXY in Springfield.

The ad is scheduled to be broadcast again Sunday on more stations, Glazier said.

Conductor talks about his life, career

By B. Gordon
Staff Writer

FOR SOME PEOPLE, classical music is simply a soothing accompaniment to the morning's gearing up or the evening's winding down. Not so for Christian Tiemeyer, conductor and music director of the Cedar Rapids Symphony.

"As far as I'm concerned, music is an absolutely necessary part of life," Tiemeyer said in a recent interview. "I believe a better life is lived if one is sensitive to that particular kind of beauty."

Tiemeyer, an athletic man with pale, arresting blue eyes, is beginning his fifth season as the Cedar Rapids Symphony's maestro. He is a former principal cellist for several major orchestras, including the Utah Symphony Orchestra and the famous Leopold Stokowski's American Symphony Orchestra, and a former associate conductor of the Dallas Symphony Orchestra.

A native of a small suburb of Baltimore, his musical career did not exactly begin with a clash of cymbals.

"I STARTED CELLO twice. The first time was when I was in fourth grade in public school, and that lasted a few months," Tiemeyer said. "The teacher had some notion that one should practice, and the parents had some notion that one should practice, and I thought that one should go out and play in the woods."

In high school, Tiemeyer was encouraged to play again but was still "somewhat incorrigible" when it came to the lonely hours of practicing. "I got a paper route and decided I would pay for my lessons; if I paid for my lessons, then I didn't have to practice," he said.

Having found a top-notch cello teacher, Tiemeyer decided to take only three or four lessons because "there were just a few things I didn't know."

"I took three or four lessons, and then rather than knowing more I figured there were eight or nine things I didn't know," he said. "Then I got hooked and started to get up at 5:30 in the morning to practice before school started."

ONCE HE GOT under way, his musical activities proliferated: he won a full scholarship to the Peabody Conservatory of Music in Baltimore, which he began attending while still a senior in high school; he won several competitions; he soloed with the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra and he began to play with Stokowski before his college graduation.

"It's not that I'm so talented," he said as he leaned back with his eyes twinkling, "but I sure worked hard."

When talking about Stokowski, his suave self-possession — a necessary and almost invariable characteristic of a good orchestral conductor — begins to give way to almost evangelical enthusiasm.

"I think there are as many opinions about Stokowski as there are people who played with him. For me, there are no words to describe..." he trailed off.

"I'VE NEVER UNDERSTOOD what he did, because he sure didn't do much. The hands just moved," he gestured slightly, gracefully. "But when his hands moved, I had to play." As Tiemeyer said "had," he brought his hands into a deeply cupped position as if bringing an orchestra to a final chord.

"I can remember walking out onto 57th Street (in front of Carnegie Hall in New York City) and literally not feeling the sidewalk," he said.

"I was interested in conducting even then, and I figured I have two years with Stokowski to figure out the Stokowski magic," Tiemeyer continued. "And I watched and I thought and I played for him and I got to know him a little bit, and I don't know what he did. I don't know what his genius was. I don't know what made Stokowski Stokowski."

Tiemeyer did not become a conductor himself until well into his career as a first-flight cellist. A professor at the University of Utah Music Department and principal cellist with the Utah Symphony Orchestra, he began by conducting the university chamber orchestra. Within a few years he was asked to be associate conductor of the Dallas Symphony Orchestra.

"IT WAS PURGATORY," Tiemeyer said. "I was second among five conductors, I was doing a hundred concerts a year, and I was learning repertoire all the time — I had to stay up until two in the morning just to stay even. I had my hundred concerts, and I was backup conductor for everything else."

Now, after four years in Cedar Rapids, "everything is beginning to come together."

Tiemeyer has broken new orchestral ground by establishing a Visiting Artists program whereby distinguished string players can be a part of the orchestra while still receiving the prestige their talent and high level of performance deserves. The orchestra is also establishing an orchestra school under the direction of Doris Preucil of Iowa City's Preucil School of Music, which is fast becoming known as a training ground for the next generation of virtuosos.

Tiemeyer credits Iowa City with a great deal of the Cedar Rapids Symphony's growth. "We have a wonderful relationship with the UI. The strength of our orchestra, in a large part, comes from that."

According to Tiemeyer, almost half the Cedar Rapids Symphony is from Iowa City. "For a city of this size to have an orchestra of this quality is very rare. That's because of Iowa City."

"The people of Iowa City should think of the Cedar Rapids Symphony as their orchestra, too," he said. "It is, even if they don't think of it that way."

Entertainment Today

David Rappaport, Fran Ryan, Doug Barr appear in "The Wizard," a new sitcom on CBS.

At the Bijou

The Joke (1969). Director Jaromil Jires presents an ironic, post-World War II tale about a man who returns to his small village seeking revenge against a man who had him expelled from the Communist Party 15 years earlier. At 7 p.m.

The Birth of a Nation (1915). The first full-length feature film, D. W. Griffith's cinematic epic paved a place for itself in movie history. Starring Lillian Gish and Henry Walthall, the still-controversial Birth of a Nation is considered appallingly racist by today's standards. At 8:45 p.m.

Television

On the networks: Oh boy, here come the new sitcoms. "The Wizard" (CBS at 7 p.m.) stars David Rappaport as a toymaker whose inventions come to life. Quite the talented fellow. Meanwhile, the battle of the miniseries rages on in the second part of "The Winds of War" (ABC at 7 p.m.) as a love triangle between Byron, Slat and Natalie (Jan-Michael Vincent, David Dukes, Ali MacGraw) is sidelined by the Nazi invasion of Poland. Better luck in the next war. Moscow on the Hudson (CBS at 8 p.m.) is a bittersweet comedy starring Robin Williams as a Russian saxophone player who defects to the United States. A new "Dr. Who" (IPT at 10 p.m.) episode kicks off with part one of "The Leisure Hive," while on "Star Trek" (ABC at 10:35 p.m.) the Enterprise is attacked by twinkling lights that no one seems able to see. Hey crew, who forgot to take down the Christmas decorations?

On cable: Cary Grant plays a widower with three children who becomes involved with a conductor's daughter (Sophia Loren) in Houseboat (TBS-15 at 7:05 p.m.). Nigel Terry stars as the ill-fated king in Excalibur (Cinemax-13 at 7 p.m.), a rather overblown and self-important cinematic interpretation of the Arthurian legends. In Silverado (Cinemax-13 at 10 p.m.) Kevin Kline, Scott Glenn and Linda Hunt all star in a current tribute to the tradition of Westerns.

Art

Souvenirs, an exhibit of weavings and artifacts from Ecuador, will be on display at the No Regrets Hair Salon, 11½ S. Dubuque St., through Sept. 30.

Marjorie Hier will display watercolors, prints and drawings through Sept. 30 at Boyd Tower East Lobby as part of UI Hospitals Project Art.

John Cord will display prints at Boyd Tower West Lobby through Sept. 30 as part of UI Hospitals Project Art.

The Old Capitol Doll Club will display dolls in the Main Lobby through Sept. 30 as part of UI Hospitals Project Art.

Micki Soldofsky will display fiber art through Sept. 28 in the Carver Pavilion Links as part of UI Hospitals Project Art.

Donald J. Martin will display woodcuts and intaglio prints through Sept. 30 at the Solo Space in the Arts Center.

Nina Liu and Judith Cooper Skorton will display essays in clay and metal through Sept. 30 in the Arts Center.

Theater

The Iowa City Community Theatre will hold auditions at the Unitarian Church, 10 S. Gilbert St., for its first musical of the season, Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat. Auditions for the youth choir will be from 7 to 7:45 p.m.; auditions for adults will be from 8 to 10 p.m.

Fry unsure Hawkeyes are on schedule

Iowa football Coach Hayden Fry and his Hawkeyes began their last week of practices before the team's first game. But even with the Iowa State game less than a week away, Fry isn't convinced his team is ready for its first contest.

"We started concentrating on Iowa State's plays and formations today," Fry said. "Monday's practices are always very tough and today preparation was very difficult indeed."

As far as being ready for the Cyclones, "We've got to be timing and execution to go through yet before we'll be ready for Iowa State," Fry said. "I don't think we'll be ready to play until we start smoothing out some of the mistakes we're making."

Redskin lineman may play quarterback

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chicago's William "The Refrigerator" Perry made a 300-pound splash at running back last season. Now, Washington Redskins offensive guard Russ Grimm might get his chance to enter the spotlight at quarterback.

Redskins coach Joe Gibbs said Monday that Grimm, the 6-foot-3, 275-pound offensive lineman, will be the team's third-string quarterback. Reserve quarterback Mark Rypien, a rookie, was placed on injured reserve last Saturday with a bone chip in his knee and will be unavailable for at least four weeks.

"This is no joke," said Gibbs, explaining that the three-time Pro Bowl guard has taken snaps in practice. "If there's a pass rush, so what. He'll put the guy's lights out. It would be the first time a quarterback won," Gibbs added.

Grimm, a six-year NFL veteran, was a quarterback at Southmoreland (Pa.) High School, but abandoned the signal-calling role once he enrolled at Pitt, which featured a quarterback named Dan Marino during his senior year.

Ryan defends Philadelphia after opener

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The addition of defensive mastermind Buddy Ryan to the Philadelphia coaching staff resulted in the worst Eagles defensive showing in over a decade Sunday.

Still, the ever-optimistic Ryan remained confident a day after the Washington Redskins' 41-14 rout and was not worried about his team.

"I've been in this business 18 to 20 years and I'd be dead if I did that," Ryan said a day after his NFL head-coaching debut. "I worry about things I can do something about and that's during the game. After the game, I can cry and moan all I want but that's not going to do anything about it."

Ryan's famed "46" defense gave up more points than any Eagles team had surrendered in 11 years and his offense managed only 66 yards rushing.

"I've been around bad football teams and, you may not believe it, but this is not a bad football team," Ryan said. "We had some guys, believe it or not, who played real well and we had some guys who played worse than I thought. We're going to get better every week — at least I hope so."

Two plead guilty to Tulane point shaving

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A Tulane student and another man pleaded guilty Monday to the lesser charge of gambling in the point-shaving scandal that caused the university last year to end its basketball program.

Tulane business student Kenneth Turkel and Craig Bourgeois, 24, of New Orleans, both admitted to the lesser charge in return for the dismissal of conspiracy and sports bribery counts.

A gambling conviction carries a maximum fine of $500 and six months in prison, while a bribery conviction carries a maximum fine of $2,000 and three years in jail.

The scheme involved the exchange of drugs and money for point-shaving during Tulane's home game against the University of Southern Mississippi on Feb. 2, 1985 and during a second Metro Conference game on Feb. 20, 1985 against Memphis State.

Prosecutors said the conspirators planned to shave points in a Feb. 16, 1985 game against Virginia Tech, but did not carry out their plan.

Durham, Moreland power Cubs to win

CHICAGO (UPI) — Leon Durham hit a three-run homer and Keith Moreland drove in two runs with a sacrifice fly and a single Monday, lifting the Chicago Cubs to a 7-4 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

The Phillies got a two-run homer from Milt Thompson and a solo homer from John Russell.

Chicago starter Ed Lynch, 5-4, gave up four runs over 5½ innings for the victory. Scott Sanderson pitched 2½ innings before giving way to Lee Smith, who pitched the ninth for his 26th save.

Mike Maddux, 2-6, lasted only three innings in absorbing the loss. He gave up five runs — four earned — with one strikeout and one walk.

The Cubs took a 3-0 lead in the first inning on Durham's three-run homer. Ryne Sandberg beat out an infield single and Moreland moved him to third with a single before Durham clobbered his 17th homer of the season into the top row of seats in the right field bleachers.

Sports

Nebraska to clash with NCAA

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The schedule shows Nebraska has a week off from competition this week, but actually the Cornhuskers face a battle that could make or break their entire season.

Nebraska squares off against the NCAA Tuesday as the Cornhuskers appeal the suspensions of 60 players for improper use of complimentary passes.

An NCAA subcommittee on eligibility is to stage a meeting via telephone beginning Tuesday morning, and Nebraska is expected to submit a mound of evidence in its defense. It is not known how soon the NCAA will announce the results of the hearing.

Coach Tom Osborne, who saw his Cornhuskers climb Monday from eighth to sixth in the rankings on the strength of a 34-17 victory over Florida State, said his staff pushed self-disclosure by the players. It was felt that if they came clean to the NCAA, no eligibility would be lost, he said.

"The decision (today) will really have far-ranging implications," Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne says of the anticipated NCAA ruling. "I'm sure everyone is aware of what's at stake."

BUT LAST WEEK the NCAA ruled that 53 players would be forced to sit out for one game and seven others would miss two games because of the ticket problems.

"It really has become, because of the magnitude, an institutional penalty as well," Osborne said. "It's not just a penalty against the players because when you lose 60 players it's impossible to run a football team."

Osborne said if he has all the players sit out the same game, Nebraska cannot possibly win that contest. "And if you spread (the suspensions) out, you may lose two or three games."

"Then you begin to get into finances. The cost of losing one or two games can result in no TV (appearances) later in the season, no bowl games."

Osborne can count Colorado Coach Bill McCartney among his allies in the match against the NCAA. McCartney said the problems experienced by Nebraska have a lot of people "running scared" looking at their ticket programs.

"THE PEOPLE in our ticket office feel Nebraska was as good as there is in the conference as far as checking," McCartney said, "and they had a problem." Barry Switzer, the coach of the top-ranked Oklahoma Sooners, said he doesn't like the current rule on complimentary tickets, but "it can be followed."

"Yeah, it's a problem," he said. "The logistics and mechanics of it are terrible and it's a lot of work and it probably needs to be changed. I don't like it, but we've adhered to it."

"I can't be on the pass gate. But you've got (to have) people from the business office that are assigned there at the gate and check the mothers and fathers and brothers and sisters and those people who can be identified as students who are allowed to use the tickets," Switzer said.

The problem now is Nebraska's, but Osborne said it could spread.

"THE DECISION (today) will really have far-ranging implications," Osborne said. "I'm sure everyone is aware of what's at stake."

On The Line is back. It's new, it's improved, it tastes great and it has a third less calories than your regular column. And featured in the 1986 edition of On The Line are three rookies — you might say virgin — prognosticators, Sports Editor Brad Zimaneck, staff writer Steve Williams and Assistant Sports Editor Dan Millea.

Look for the trio's first attempts at prophesy in the On The Line column this Friday, as well as the picks from our very extra special secret guest picker.

UI Rugby club dumped twice by Iowa Falls

By Marc Bona Special to The Daily Iowan

The UI Rugby Club faced the Iowa Falls Rugby Club on Sunday and came away empty-handed, losing both games by scores of 9-6 and 14-0.

Iowa Falls drew blood first when Todd Tysdal swept around the right side to score a try, worth four points. Moments later Jeff Marquard added the conversion, making the score 6-0.

But Iowa fought back when Butch Umble scored on a play set up by a 20-yard run up the middle by teammate Rick Floyd. The conversion tied the score at six apiece.

The score remained tied late in the second half of play when Iowa drove deep into Iowa Falls territory, only to fall within inches of the goal line. Iowa Falls kicked to midfield, taking themselves out of danger.

With the ball deep in Iowa's zone, the two teams fought each other in five scrums. A serum is a moving, huddled mass of players with their heads down and arms around each other, leaving an opening underneath to kick the ball out to a teammate. Often a penalty is called, resulting in another scrum.

IOWA AND IOWA Falls battled fiercely in the scrums before an infraction called on the Hawkeyes gave Iowa Falls a penalty kick. Jeff Marquard angled the ball from the right side of the field, lifting Iowa Falls over the Hawkeyes 9-6.

The Hawkeyes failed to score in the remaining 20 minutes.

Iowa Falls Coach Jim Murra credited the Hawkeyes with a well-played game. "We played sloppy. Iowa played good," Murra said. "They got the ball out well."

The win for Iowa Falls was their first, after losing last week to Cedar Rapids 20-18. The game marked the start of the season for the Hawkeyes.

Next week the Hawkeyes will play Iowa State a day after the two schools meet in football. The game begins at 1:30 p.m. at the field behind the Hawkeye Drive Apartments.

THE UI SOCCER Club saw action this weekend, beating the Hawkeye Soccer Club 8-5 Sunday and boosting their record to 2-0 after a win last week against Loras in Dubuque, Iowa.

In the opener Ken Neubauer led the way for the Hawkeyes, scoring a hat trick while teammates Martin Illingworth, Peter Jebson and Darlington Edu each scored a goal as the Hawks defeated Loras 6-3.

Against the Hawkeye Soccer Club player-coach Andre Bourgeois scored a hat trick to lead the UI team to an 8-5 victory. Pat Bourgeois, Francisco Alarcon, Ken Neubauer, Darlington Edu and Martin Illingworth each scored goals for the UI.

The Hawkeye Club saw first half goals from Raul Curto, Billy Claverie and Kit Powers, but were down 5-3 going into the second half. Jose Aguayo and Mike Rosenberg scored two quick goals, tying the score at five.

THE UI SAILING Club will be competing in the Notre Dame Intercollegiate Sept. 13-14. Coach Bob Woodward said 18 teams will be involved in the regatta.

The weekend of Sept. 20-21, the club will host the Davis Cup Regatta at Lake Macbride State Park. Woodward said 16 teams will be competing.

In addition to the upcoming regattas, the club will hold a fundraiser Wednesday night at Mago's in an attempt to raise money for the Heart of America challenge.

The Heart of America is a crew from Chicago who are in Perth, Australia, gearing up for the America's Cup challenge.

The club will feature a sail which people can sign for a donation. The sail will be ready to the group in Australia.

"We've already got between 10 and 20 percent," Woodward said. "I'm optimistic we'll get the 500."

All sportsclubs applying for financial aid through Recreational Services must have their budgets approved and all required documentation turned in to E216 Field House by 5 p.m. Monday, Sept. 15.

The Canoe House located south of Hancher on the Iowa River will be open for canoe rental Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. this fall.

THE CANOE HOUSE is closed on afternoons of home football games and in cases of inclement weather. For more information call Recreational Services at 353-3494 or the Canoe House during scheduled hours at 353-3307.

The UI Ski Club will be having membership meetings every other week starting Sept. 17, 121A Schaeffer Hall, at 8:00 p.m.

The UI Lacrosse Club will be holding practices today, Wednesday and Thursday at the field west of the Field House from 4 to 6 p.m.

The DI's Sportsclubs column appears every Tuesday. If you are interested in having information printed in this column contact Marc Bona at 353-6210.

Chicago leader out with injury

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (UPI)— Jim McMahon, Chicago's injury-prone quarterback, will be out at least three weeks because of a second-degree shoulder separation suffered in the season-opener, Coach Mike Ditka announced Monday.

Mike Tomczak, who relieved McMahon in the fourth quarter of Sunday's 41-31 win over Cleveland, will get the start against the Philadelphia Eagles at Soldier Field next Sunday.

"(McMahon) won't come back until he's totally ready to come back," Ditka said. "Three weeks is an optimistic estimate."

McMahon, who completed 10 of 20 passes for 135 yards and one touchdown against the Browns, fell on his arm in the opening minutes of the fourth quarter.

McMahon said someone fell on the shoulder. He remained in the game for two more plays after the injury.

Trainer Fred Caito said McMahon, who has missed parts of each of his four NFL seasons with a variety of injuries, originally diagnosed the injury as a bruised shoulder.

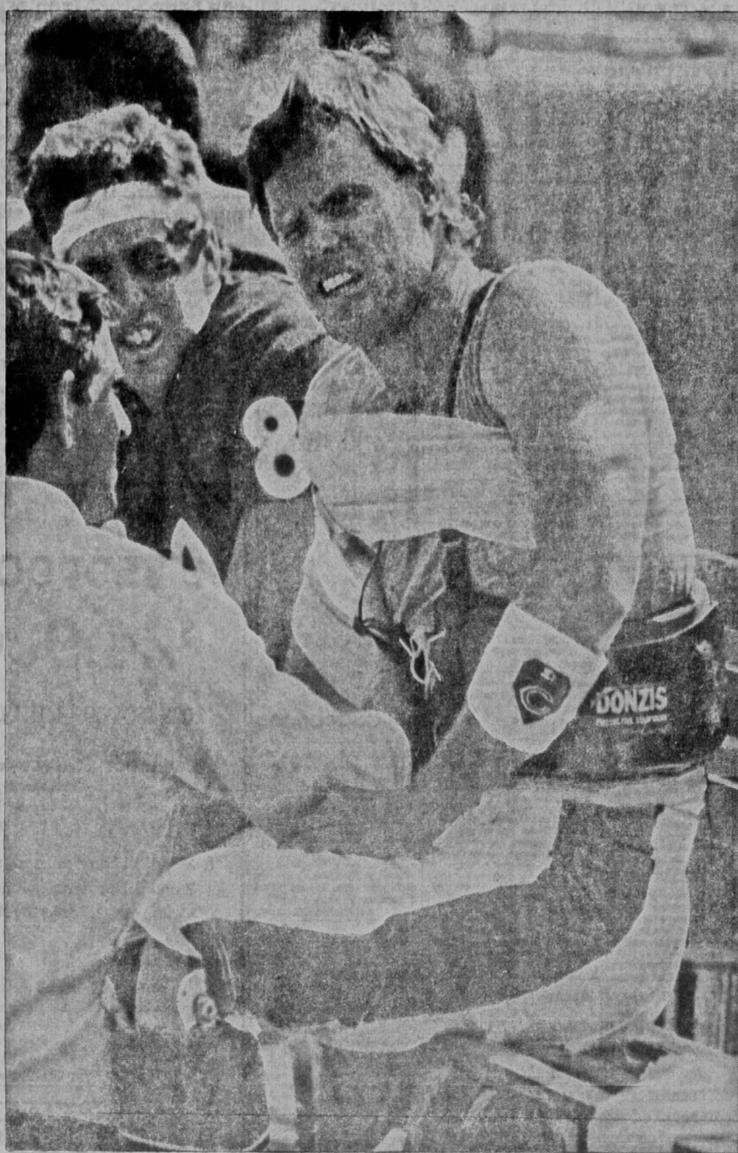

"We wanted to see how it responded on Monday," Caito said. "A second-degree separation is more serious than a first degree. If he were any other (position) player, he'd be playing next Sunday."

MCMAHON DID NOT suffer any damage to his rotator cuff, meaning there is no permanent injury, according to Caito.

"It's tender and sore," Caito said. "We think in 10 to 14 more days he will be able to progress and start throwing."

McMahon's arm was in a sling Monday. During preseason, Ditka criticized McMahon for not being in proper shape but Caito insisted McMahon's physical condition had nothing to do with the latest injury.

"It's one of those things," Caito said. "He's not injury-prone."

Chicago Bears' quarterback Jim McMahon will be out of the starting lineup for at least three games. McMahon injured his shoulder during the fourth quarter of Sunday's win over Cleveland.

Ditka said he was leaning heavily toward using Tomczak but would not rule out using third-string quarterback Steve Fuller in certain situations. Fuller replaced McMahon for three games last year.

TOMCZAK, WHO guided the Bears to a touchdown in the final quarter Sunday, said he was looking forward to the challenge.

"I thrive on pressure. It was the case on Sunday. I didn't have a lot of time to think about things and I went in and did the job," said the former Ohio State quarterback, who was third string for the Super Bowl champions last year.

Tomczak said he talked with McMahon, who had a hip injury in the preseason, at the Bears' Lake Forest site earlier in the day.

"He just said go out and keep winning until he (McMahon) came back," Tomczak said.

A total of 349 yards total offense, including 280 through the air, were rolled up on the Bears by the Browns.

Bear defensive coordinator Vince Tobin might look to the Bears next opponent with a little revenge. Tobin replaced, Buddy Ryan — who is the coach of the Philadelphia Eagles.

Tobin has gone away from Ryan's "46" defense that was the tops in the NFL over the past two years.

Oklahoma keeps lock on top spot

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Oklahoma Sooners, coming off a dominating performance against UCLA over the weekend, overwhelmingly retained their top spot Monday in the UPI Board of Coaches' voting.

The Sooners, relying on their wishbone offense and smothering defense, ripped then-No. 4 UCLA 38-3 Saturday in the season-opener for both teams.

Oklahoma's performance helped it hold onto its preseason status as No. 1 in the first week of regular-season voting. The Sooners, the defending national champions, earned 44 first-place votes and 727 points. Forty-nine of the 50 coaches cast ballots.

Miami, with a 23-15 victory over powerful state rival Florida Saturday, climbed five places to No. 2. The Hurricanes, who earned one first-place vote and 627 points, play at Oklahoma Sept. 27.

Michigan, which opens its season at Notre Dame Saturday, dropped a notch to No. 3. Alabama garnered one first-place vote and moved up two places to No. 4 and Penn State earned two No. 1 votes and held on at No. 5.

ROUNDING AT the top 10 were Nebraska, Texas A&M, Tennessee and, Brigham Young and Baylor, who shared the No. 9 ranking.

Arizona was the lone new team to enter the ratings. Florida State, with a loss over last weekend to Nebraska, tumbled from No. 11 out of the Top 20.

The UPI Board of Coaches is:

- Atlantic: Jack Bicknell, Boston College; Mike Gottfried, Pittsburgh; Dick MacPherson, Syracuse; Dick Anderson, Rutgers; Don Nehlen, West Virginia; Jim Young, Army; Gary Tranquill, Navy; Bruce Arians, Temple; Bill Dooley, Virginia Tech; Bobby Ross, Maryland.
- South: Dick Crum, North Carolina; Danny Ford, Clemson; Vince Dooley, Georgia; Johnny Majors, Tennessee; Ray Perkins, Alabama; Pat Dye,

Hawk effort pleases coach despite fourth place finish

By Dan Millea
Assistant Sports Editor

The Iowa women's golf team finished in the middle of the pack at the Minnesota Invitational in Minneapolis Monday, but Coach Diane Thomason said the performance of her young team in the three-day tournament was reassuring.

South Florida ran away with the invitational title, shooting a 54-hole team total of 954.

Golf

well ahead of Minnesota's 976 second-place score. Iowa State was third with 984 strokes, followed by Iowa (993), Wisconsin (1000), Michigan (1008), Bowling Green (1009) and Northern Iowa (1041).

"I feel comfortable about the season now," Thomason said. "The freshmen are playing well and I have a little bit better feel for what we have to work on. It was our first time out and I just wanted to see how well we could do."

Thomason said the Hawkeyes adjusted well to the tougher play on Monday, when the teams switched courses.

"We played on a different course today ... a much tougher course, which is why our scores were a little higher," Thomason said. "But actually, in comparison with the rest of the field, we did quite well and even moved up a stroke."

Diane Thomason

THE TEAM was led in the tournament by Kelley Brooke, a freshman from Bettendorf, Iowa. Playing in her first collegiate tournament, Brooke fired an 84-78-84-246, two strokes ahead of teammate Jeannine Gibson's 82-78-88-248.

A second freshman, Kristi Heatherly of Lennox, S.D., turned in the third best score for Iowa with an 85-83-85-253. Amy Butzer, who played poorly due to sickness, according to Thomason, carded an 89-90-83-262.

Mary McDermott, who shot an 81-82-163 over the first two days of play, did not play Monday's final round "for disciplinary reasons," Thomason said, who did not elaborate on the situation.

Thomason said she was not surprised by the play of Heatherly and Brooke, because she knew they were capable of playing competitively at the collegiate level.

"I knew they had that kind of potential," Thomason said, "but I didn't know if they would have problems at first, or if they would come out roaring. I'm not as worried now about losing four seniors."

BROOKE AND Heatherly have been thrust into the starting lineup this fall, charged with the task of making up for the loss of four players off the 1985 team, which finished third in the Big Ten last spring.

Thomason said Butzer's performance early in the meet was uncharacteristic for her, and was probably due to sickness and a lack of sleep. Butzer recovered Monday, however, to fire the low score on the team.

"I was surprised Sunday," Thomason said of Butzer's round of 90. "She just had a bad day. She's been sick, so she hasn't been sleeping well, but she's going to be a strong player for us."

The Hawkeyes have this weekend off before returning to action Sept. 19-21 at the Ford Intercollegiate in Atlanta, Ga.

MABOU MINES

IMAGINATION DEAD IMAGINE

SEPTEMBER 30-OCTOBER 1

Imagination Dead Imagine, a production by the Mabou Mines Theatre Company which combines the reading of a work by Samuel Beckett with a hologram, will be featured the week of September 30 through October 4.

Considered one of the foremost interpreters of the works of Samuel Beckett, Mabou Mines uses a four-page novel by the author as a basis for its theatrical installation, Imagination Dead Imagine. During the reading of the text, a large-scale hologram of a young woman suspended over a bier-like sculpture dissolves, reappears, and turns slowly, while the bier is transformed from icy marble to a golden translucence.

The piece, with music by John Lennon, lasts approximately fourteen minutes.

As part of the Next Wave series, the award-winning Mabou Mines collaborative theater will also present two other productions in Hancher Auditorium during the same week.

Imagination Dead Imagine will be shown at the Museum of Art once each hour from noon to 4 p.m., Tuesday through Friday.

JAPANESE WOODBLOCK PRINT

EXPERT TO BE FEATURED

SEPTEMBER 23-SEPTEMBER 28

Roger Keyes, internationally recognized Japanese woodblock print expert will be in residence at the Museum of Art as an Ida Beam Visiting Professor during the week of September 23. His visit to the University of Iowa is sponsored by the School of Art and Art History, the Asian Languages and Literature Department, and the Museum.

On Wednesday, Sept. 24 at 12:30 p.m., Keyes will speak at the Museum's "Nourishing the Lunchtime Connoisseur" program, informally guiding visitors down the Tokaido Road.

On Thursday, Sept. 25, at 7:30 p.m. Keyes will lecture on "The Inner Journey: New Ways of Looking at Traditional Japanese Prints."

On Friday, Sept. 26, at 7:30 p.m. he will discuss "Collecting Japanese Prints."

On Saturday, Sept. 27, Keyes will present an all-day seminar/workshop on connoisseurship entitled "Japanese Prints and the Art of Seeing."

On Sunday, September 28 at 2 p.m., Keyes will lecture on "Hiroshige and the Tokaido Road."

For times and locations, contact the Museum (319-353-3266).

JAPANESE ART & CULTURE FESTIVALS

SEPTEMBER 28 AND OCTOBER 11

In conjunction with the newly established Center for Asian and Pacific Studies and the Office of International Education, the Museum of Art announces a series of events designed to promote a greater understanding of Japanese art and culture.

Celebrations are an important part of Japanese culture, and the Museum of Art will join with the Japanese people in celebrating two particular events this semester—the Autumn Equinox, and Health and Sports Day.

The Museum's Autumn Festival will be held Sunday, September 28, and will culminate a week-long series of lectures and seminars on Japanese prints, led by Ida Beam Visiting Professor Roger Keyes. (Keyes' schedule of lectures is listed on the calendar.) The Autumn Festival will feature the multi-faceted culture of Japan and will include demonstrations, films, music performances, exhibition tours, and a lecture by Keyes.

Health and Sports Day will be celebrated on Saturday, October 11, the day after the official Japanese Health and Sports Day), and will highlight our own University of Iowa Homecoming celebration. This pre-festival will include demonstrations of Japanese sports such as making i-do, films, tours of the Museum exhibitions, and a kite-brochure.

For details, call the Museum (319-353-3266) for a brochure.

PACIFIC CONNECTIONS

ARTIST TO BE FEATURED

SEPTEMBER 12-SEPTEMBER 14

Philip Cornelius, an American artist whose work is featured in Pacific Connections, will be the Museum's honored guest on the weekend of September 12-14. Participating in the Museum's Arts Overture will be Cornelius at the Museum opening of Pacific Connections and Tokaido: Adventures on the Road in Old Japan.

On Saturday, September 13, Cornelius will demonstrate charcoal firing techniques and discuss the forms and surfaces which lend themselves to charcoal firing. Cornelius, who has studied in Japan, will bring both his knowledge of Japanese techniques and his own professional mastery to bear on the sessions.

The demonstrations are jointly sponsored by the Museum and the Ceramics Department of the School of Art and Art History.

Cornelius will give a public lecture entitled "Pacific Connections" on Sunday, Sept. 14, at 2 p.m. in the Museum. In his lecture he will explore the various influences that Japanese art and philosophy have had on American art, and particularly on American ceramics.

PACIFIC CONNECTIONS

SEPTEMBER 12-NOVEMBER 2

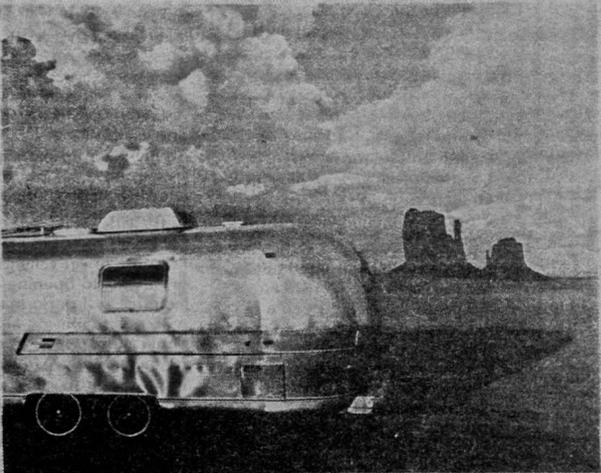

Pacific Connections, ninety-eight works by ceramic artists from California and Japan, will open on September 12 and continue through November 2. Ten artists from Japan and ten from the United States were selected to represent the cultural values of the two areas.

Ancient ceremonial articles form the points of reference for the Japanese works in the exhibition. Using techniques that are more than 500 years old, the artists have shaped vessels that reflect their interest in making beautiful objects for use in daily activities.

By contrast, the California artists work from a tradition that began less than fifty years ago and that echoes the attitudes and visual influences pervading the throw-away society of contemporary Southern California.

Pacific Connections emphasizes the way that artists from the two cultures have attempted to redefine the traditional craft of the pottery medium by using it to achieve new experiences, images and forms. Although vessels and teapots are prominent in the show, many works also illustrate the sculptural possibilities of clay.

The exhibition, organized by the Los Angeles Institute of Contemporary Art, is supported in part by a major grant from the National Endowment for the Arts. A catalogue accompanies the exhibition.

Roger Minick. Airstream at Monument Valley, Arizona, 1979, from the portfolio American Roads. Silver print, 10 3/8 x 12 15/16 in. (26.3 x 31.3 cm.). University of Iowa Museum of Art. Gift of Louis Landweber, 1983.95q.

AMERICAN ROADS

SEPTEMBER 12-NOVEMBER 2

American Roads, a portfolio of photographs compiled by Victor Landweber, will be on display in the Curatorial Gallery from September 12 through November 2.

Landweber, a graduate of The University of Iowa, has curated photography exhibitions throughout the United States and has also assembled several portfolios by art photographers. He is currently a member of the photography faculty at Otis Art Institute, Los Angeles.

American Roads includes works made by twenty photographers during the period 1972 to 1981. The images depict road scenes familiar to contemporary travelers, some wryly humorous, others harsh and even threatening. In an essay which accompanies the exhibition, author James Huginin recalls several writers who have concerned themselves with the theme of the road as a metaphor for life.

The portfolio of photographs was a gift from Louis Landweber to the Museum in 1983.

TOKAIDŌ: ADVENTURES ON

THE ROAD IN OLD JAPAN

SEPTEMBER 12-NOVEMBER 2

An exhibition of woodblock prints by the nineteenth-century Japanese artist Andō Hiroshige will begin September 12 and continue through November 2. Entitled Tokaido: Adventures on the Road in Old Japan, the exhibition presents seventy scenes of the famous highway which for several centuries served as the principal connecting route between Tokyo and Kyoto.

Along the great Tokaido Road, a 307-mile stretch that runs the length of Japan's scenic eastern coast, travelers once walked or rode on horseback or in palanquins. They passed through picturesque villages and over mountain passes, and crossed swift rivers and stretches of sea in boats.

According to Stephen Addiss, professor of art history at the University of Kansas in Lawrence and organizer of the exhibition, "Everyone used the Tokaido . . . for pilgrimages, the government certainly used it for its purposes, it was a merchant road . . . people traveled it just for fun."

Hiroshige first traveled the Tokaido in 1832, and thereafter he created many woodblock prints depicting life and landscapes along the road.

Hiroshige's prints portray all classes of people who traveled on the road, from the feudal lord and his entourage to the lowly pilgrim on his way to a shrine.

There are breathtaking landscapes and scenes of inns and way stations along the road. The Tokaido had fifty-three "stations," or stopping places, where travelers could either stop to refresh themselves momentarily, visit one of the many shrines, or stay for the night.

A set of three catalogues containing essays on the historical and cultural importance of the Tokaido will be available with the exhibition.

As a highlight of the exhibition, the Museum of Art will sponsor a week-long symposium with Ida Beam Visiting Professor Roger Keyes, international authority on Japanese woodblock prints. In addition, the Wednesday noon series, "Nourishing the Lunchtime Connoisseur," will feature several programs on the theme of the journey.

ROSALYN DREXLER: INTIMATE EMOTIONS

NOVEMBER 15-JANUARY 11

Rosalyn Drexler: Intimate Emotions, a group of thirty-eight paintings by Pop artist Rosalyn Drexler, will open at the Museum on November 15 and run through January 11. Drexler, who has exhibited in group shows with such major Pop Art figures as Roy Lichtenstein and Jasper Johns, is notable as one of the first artists to employ the cut-out photograph as the basis for a painting.

On Sunday, November 16, at 2 p.m., the artist will read excerpts from her novels Bad Guy and Starburn.

A graduate of the University of Iowa Writers' Workshop, Drexler has published several plays and more than ten novels. She is currently at work on a New Wave musical adaptation of her novel Starburn.

She has received Obie awards for two off-Broadway plays and an Emmy for her contribution to a Lily Tomlin production. Under the pen-name of Julia Sorel, she has written novelizations for the films Rocky and Dawn, Story of a Teenage Runaway.

Rosalyn Drexler: Intimate Emotions was co-organized by the Grey Art Gallery and Study Center of New York University and the Greenville County (South Carolina) Museum of Art.

ROBERT WILSON DRAWINGS

NOVEMBER 1-NOVEMBER 30

A group of seventeen drawings by Robert Wilson will be on display at the University of Iowa Museum of Art throughout the month of November.

Wilson, regarded as one of the foremost contemporary performance artists, is best known for his collaboration with the composer Philip Glass in the innovative opera Einstein on the Beach. The exhibition of his drawings, which are settings for stage productions and which emphasize the role of light in his art, correlates with the Hancher production of Wilson's The Knee Plays to be shown on November 7 and 8.

Wilson, who has been called "the artistic visionary of the century," is noted for his interest in combining actors and dancers, many of them untrained, to create panoramic and time-lengthened productions. The sets are also major protagonists in his productions, and his drawings provide important clues to his thought.

Dealman Gance, which premiered in Iowa City in 1970, used a group of local residents in the original seven-hour production.

According to Michael Sokoloff, who appeared as a dancer in Dealman Gance, Wilson's aesthetic is linked to his interest in graphic art. "During the early seventies, when performance art was beginning to develop," says Sokoloff, "all the arts were spilling into each other and, as with many of the works of that time, Wilson's plays defy definition. He begins with the visual panorama, and adds people to make it come alive."

THE GUILD OF BOOK WORKERS

80TH ANNIVERSARY EXHIBITION

OCTOBER 3—NOVEMBER 30

An exhibition of contemporary works by members of The Guild of Book Workers, which is celebrating its eightieth anniversary this year, will open October 3 at the Museum of Art. Featured will be sixty works created by members in the five craft categories of the guild.

Examples of fine binding, conservation binding, artists' books, calligraphy, and fine printing will be on display in the Maytag Gallery.

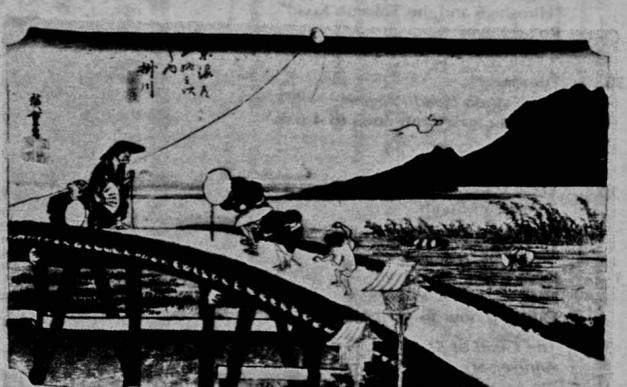

The Guild of Book Workers was founded in 1906 after several Americans visited T.J. Cobden-Sanderson's bindery in England. Sanderson, with William Morris one of the leaders of England's nineteenth-century Arts and Crafts Movement, established Doves Bindery for the purpose of binding the publications of Morris' Kelmscott Press.

Currently, the guild includes over 300 members from the United States and several foreign countries.

Experts in the five categories chose the entries for the exhibition at a recent meeting in Washington, D.C. The jurors were William Anthony, fine binding; Gary Frost, conservation binding; Hedi Kyle, artists' books; Sheila Waters, calligraphy; and Pat England, fine printing.

The annual meeting of The Guild of Book Workers, which is scheduled for October 3 and 4 in Iowa City, will feature seminars on subjects pertaining to the art of bookbinding.

The Guild of Book Workers 80th Anniversary exhibition will continue through November 30.

THE PRINT AND DRAWING STUDY CLUB

All friends of the Museum are invited to join the Print and Drawing Study Club. Since its organization in 1975, the club has maintained a special focus on graphic art. Activities include trips to exhibitions at other museums, visits to art dealers and private collections, lectures, and artists' demonstrations.

ARTS OVERTURE

This year's Arts Overture (September 12, 7 p.m. to midnight) begins at the Museum of Art with champagne and Philip Cornelius, one of the California ceramic artists featured in Pacific Connections. José Feghali, winner of the 1985 Van Cliburn International Piano Competition, will present a concert at Hancher, and the evening will conclude with dancing and dessert on the Hancher stage. Proceeds from Arts Overture '86 will be used to establish graduate assistantships at the Museum of Art and at Hancher Auditorium. Tickets are $25 per person and are available at Hancher Box Office (353-6255).

NOURISHING the LUNCHTIME CONNOISSEUR

In You Can't Go Home Again Thomas Wolfe stated that modern man was happy only when he was in motion, when he was going somewhere, on the road to a place that might bring him stasis. Artists and writers of many different locales and cultures have been metaphorically on the road with their characters and their work throughout the centuries.

This fall, in conjunction with the exhibition Tokaido: Adventures on the Road in Old Japan, the "Nourishing the Lunchtime Connoisseur" programs will be devoted to a series entitled "On the Road: The Journey in Art and Literature." Individual lectures in the series will be held each Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. in the Museum and are free of charge. People wishing to brown-bag are invited to eat their lunches in the Museum's Members' Lounge prior to the day's program.

GENERAL ADMISSION TO THE MUSEUM IS FREE

- Sept. 10 "America's Lincoln Highway: Place, Travelers & Photographs"
Drake Hokanson, photographer and UI faculty member in Journalism, will discuss America's first transcontinental highway, its history, its travelers, and its geographic and cultural aspects.
- Sept. 17 "The Journey in Twentieth-Century Art" Museum director Robert Hobbs will present a slide lecture and discuss the journey metaphor and its place in twentieth-century artistic thought.
- Sept. 24 "Journey Down Tokaido Road"
Roger Keyes, Ida Beam Visiting Professor and international authority on Japanese woodblock prints, will informally "guide" visitors down Tokaido Road.
- Oct. 1 "American Roads"
Jo-Ann Conklin, assistant curator of graphic arts, will discuss the Museum's photographic portfolio American Roads, which will be on display in the Curatorial Gallery.
- Oct. 8 "The Idea of Pilgrimage as Metaphor for Life: Dante's Spiritual Journey"
Valerie Lagorio, professor of English and editor of Mystics Quarterly, will give an illustrated lecture on Dante's use of the idea of pilgrimage as metaphor for life.
- Oct. 15 "The River in American Literature"
For generations of American writers the river has been a place where dreams come naturally and where character finds its assay. Paul Baender, professor of English, will discuss the place of the river in American literary history.
- Oct. 22 "Road to Santiago: France"
This 30-minute film follows the path of a pilgrimage to the burial place of the Apostle James. It covers the four main pilgrimage routes in France and explores many aspects of twelfth-century France.
- "Road to Santiago: Spain"
Covering the single dusty road which led from Puenta de la Reina, Spain, across the remote hills of Galicia to Santiago de Compostela, this 21-minute film looks at the architecture, art and music of the area and the role of pilgrimages as a medium of cultural exchange before the Renaissance.

MUSIC IN THE MUSEUM

A varied program of events featuring music from the early Renaissance to the Romantic era will be presented during the fall Music in the Museum series beginning in September. Music in the Museum events take place at 2 p.m. on the first Sunday of each month, usually in the Museum Sculpture Court. The schedule for fall is as follows:

- September 7 Richard Caplan, piano, and James Christensen, cello
- October 5 Collegium Musicum
- November 2 Violin students of Leopold LaFosse
- December 14 Holiday Fanfare: The Cantores

THE AFRICANS

Visitors who have been fascinated by the Museum's collection of African sculpture will be interested in a forthcoming television series to be broadcast on the Iowa Public Broadcasting Network in October. "The Africans," a series of nine one-hour programs, centers on the thesis that contemporary Africa is a product of three major influences: an indigenous heritage, Western culture, and Islamic culture. The co-existence of these three legacies helps to explain the diversity of the African continent and its people. "The Africans" is produced by WETA-TV, Washington, D.C., and the British Broadcasting Corporation with major funding provided by The Annenberg/DPB Project.

PERMANENT COLLECTION

In addition to special exhibitions, major works from the permanent collection will be on view during the fall semester.

The Museum's collection of African art, which was reinstalled during the spring, is on view in the African Galleries. It includes more than 100 works of art from all the major regions of the continent.
