WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Ronald Reagan and Mikhail Gorbachev agreed Thursday night to meet Tuesday with the understanding that they will meet again in Moscow Oct. 11 to prepare for a formal summit and to announce the start of a superpower deal. The meeting, reported in Rey­ kjavik, the Icelandic capital, was something less than a formal one. The Reagan-Gorbachev meeting was the second in as many years for power relations. But extended negotiations, agreed, the meeting in the Icelandic capital, recent weeks, he said, "is a wonderful nation it is when everyone goes all out for one single chance of showers and thunderstorms tonight."}

Local businesses may soon over see construction problems

By Carles M. Trainor

Iowa City construction din gers warned on Thursday that the possibility of construction problems rises the more businesses hiring customers because of increased business. "There's a lot of talk among own business owners about the possibility of a cost and time overflows in the near future," one of the owners said. Business owners in the area began to realize the magnitude grand jury, but most cited their Pfor the operation of the Iowa City building. Mr. Zelman refused to comment on the grand jury. The owners also revealed that some operations are currently in the market for upgrading their equipment. "Our operations are currently in the market for upgrading our equipment," one owner said.

UI students prepare for interviews

By Troy Hurley

The event is sponsored by the Business and Liberal Arts Placement Office, which works directly with employers to schedule campus interviews by ear.

"Students have an opportunity to talk with people who are major or developing a career," said Kathie Wyatt, director of the Business and Liberal Arts Placement Office.

Wyatt said she and her team are working to make sure students are prepared for interviews. "Students have to look at their resumes and make sure they know what they want to talk about," she said.

"Students have to think about what they want to say and how they want to present themselves," said Wyatt. "They have to be able to answer questions about their background and their future goals."
Get involved

Hey, you out there. You, yes, you. College student reading The Daily Iowan over your morning coffee. About a month from now an election will be held. You may have a new governor, senator and representatives — or you may have to stick with the old one. But the choice is yours, and in order to do that, you need to vote — and to vote wisely.

If you aren't registered to vote in Johnson County or have changed addresses since the last election, see the County Auditor, 511 Senate Ave., Iowa City, no later than October 31.

Voices are to be heard in election, because if you aren't heard, your vote may be in favor of cutting student financial aid, or for sending U.S. forces into Nicaragua, or closing classes each day with a prayer. That person will have a share in the decisions that could cut your money, send you to Central America or curtail your freedoms.

If you aren't registered to vote in Johnson County or have changed addresses, you may not be able to vote. We are voting for a new governor, senator and representative — or you may be stuck with the old ones.

World terror can be stopped

By Anonymous

BELIEVE THAT the terrorist organizations have only a few years to exist? In a recent interview, a senior government official made a similar statement. The official was speaking about the success of anti-drug programs in the U.S.

The official said that, in one year, the success of the anti-drug programs would translate into a reduction of drug use by 25 percent. This would bring the total reduction of drug use to 50 percent.

Today, terrorism endangers not only individuals but also entire nations. The war against terrorism has become a war of survival.

Against this threat, the United States and its allies have several strategies. The United States and its allies must take action now to prevent terrorism from spreading.

The United States and its allies must work together to prevent terrorism from spreading. They must work together to strengthen our defenses against terrorism.

When I USE THE TERM "terrorism," I MEAN ANY AND ALL戶NFINATIONAL ATIONS. The alliance against the spread of terrorism is a crucial component of our strategy.

The United States and its allies must work together to prevent terrorism from spreading. They must work together to strengthen our defenses against terrorism.

Senate vote keeps government running

WASHINGTON -- The Senate, voting on legislation to prevent a government shutdown at midnight today, has kept government operations going for another week.

The vote was 97-2 in favor of the legislation, which would finance nearly every program of the government for the remainder of the fiscal year.

In a related matter, the government's debt selling of $2.5 billion was expected to go on without any hitch, but the Treasury Department officials were unsure whether the $0.5 billion left over from November would be sold.

Anti-drug bill wins Senate support

WASHINGTON -- A near-unanimous Senate passed an anti-drug bill Tuesday that would cost the government $2.87 billion overall spending bill, which

It's perceived as more of a joke, but as more of a prestige, says UI Russian Department Chairman Ray Parrott of the prestige associated with a Russian major that is absent at other majors.

"We're providing an educational opportunity that is different," Parrott said. "There are opportunities that are a challenge," Parrott said.

Students who major in Russian can essentially three avenues for their careers, he said, depending on their needs and aptitudes. They may seek for the government or the business as Russian translators.

JOB OPPORTUNITIES for Russian majors have diminished recently because of the expansion of many Russian-speaking countries into the World. While it's still difficult to find work in any area in those countries, Kaufmann said.

Familiarity with the country's culture is an important perk for students who work in a variety of places, he said. While they may have good communicative skills and flexibility toward work situations, the student who speaks the local language may have an edge.

"A person who speaks those things will benefit," Kaufmann said.

SOCIOLOGY Laura Wagner said she intends to specialize in international communication in Chinese. In this type of work, the student must read both languages into English, or vice versa. The degree is hard to get, she said.

"Not too many people can do it," said Kaufmann. Wagner said the job opportunities for her specialty are good in both countries.

"It's very likely that the job will be located in a very crowded city in Russia or China," Kaufmann added.

Teen charged in Bettendorf murder

BETTENDORF, Iowa—A 17-year-old Bettendorf boy charged with killing Jennifer Allen, 20, was denied bail after his attorney challenged a $6 million bond Friday that was imposed Tuesday.

The trial date was set for Nov. 2 to 4.

A court document stated that the weekend before Allen was killed, her former boyfriend, 17-year-old Patrick Smith, went to the couple's former apartment at 12:10 a.m. and was found later dead in the water. Court records also indicated that Smith was pulled from the water at 1:20 a.m. and that Smith's life support was turned off.

Court records also indicated that Smith's death was accidental.

In the time of year when farmers finally get the chance to turn their attention from the cornfield to the market, the weather has been a mixed blessing. Some farmers have been able to harvest their corn, while others continue to wait for the right conditions.

"You know, I've kept up the tradition," according to manager Jim Moeller. "I've even had an overnight roast before. We're looking forward to it this year.

Iowa State faces tough Cowboy club

AIMS, Iowa (UPI) -- Iowa coaches are in a quandary. The Hawkeyes are handled a couple of key injuries this week that will undoubtedly help their opponents and hinder their own chances for a Big Ten title. The Cowboys, on the other hand, were not as fortunate.

The Cowboys, who have never lost a game in the Big Ten this season, face the Top 5 team in the nation, Nebraska, on Saturday. Their quarterback, Mark Rypien, is out for the season with a sprained ankle. But the Cowboys are still in the thick of the race for the title because they have beaten Penn State and Iowa State, two of the teams at the top of the conference.

Coach Barry Switzer of Oklahoma, who has the most wins in the Big Ten this season, said the Cowboys are in a much better position than the Hawkeyes. The Cowboys have a much better running attack, and they also have a much better defense. The Cowboys have the best defense in the Big Ten, and they have the best running attack in the Big Ten.

"They have the best defense in the Big Ten, and they have the best running attack in the Big Ten," Switzer said. "They have the best defense in the Big Ten, and they have the best running attack in the Big Ten."

Play holds Tennessee William's spirit

NEW YORK City—Tennessee Williams' reputation as one of the greatest playwrights of the 20th century was further reinforced on Broadway last week with the opening of "The Glass Menagerie." The play, which has been produced and directed by Hal Prince, is based on a short story by Williams and has been adapted for the stage by Sam Hecht and Charles MacArthur.

"The Glass Menagerie" is a play in three acts, with music and dance by Donald O'Connor. The story is set in a small Southern town and follows the lives of Tom, a young man who dreams of an escape from his dull and dreary life, and his family—his older brother, the mother, and the father. The play explores themes of family, love, and the desire for escape.

The production features a talented cast, including Paul O'Keefe as Tom and Mary Martin as Amanda. The set design is simple yet effective, with a large mirror serving as a symbol of the characters' longing for something more.

The one-act play, which is performed without intermission, runs approximately two hours and 15 minutes. It is a moving and thought-provoking piece of theater that captures the essence of Tennessee Williams' work.

Writer speaks on African problems

By Ann McIlhenny Wilson

Kenyatta W. Wa Thiong'o, a New York-based Kenyan novelist, will speak at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Iowa Memorial Union in Iowa City. W. R. Johnson, professor in the English department of the University of Iowa, will introduce Wa Thiong'o.

Through a chronological survey of his writings, Wa Thiong'o will display not only the present but the future of modern African literature. This modernity is pronounced by the Kenyan government's recent efforts to help his major political opponent through the Kenyan Gikuyu language.

"Reading the beginning of his lecture, sponsored in part by the University's Writing Center, Art and Music department and the English department, Wa Thiong'o evaluated the importance of his writing:

"I AM LIKE MANY other African writers, a product of colonial education," he said. "On the one hand, the important political and economic situation with the colonial power, a tradition that created the very base, the very heart, the very core of imperialism expanded Africa through a number of his works, especially on one or two important elements and used as a tool, not for change, not for growth, not for development of the society of the land. In The New Man, for example, the type of revolution educational strategy, a growing concern seen in Kenya and also discussed in his change in his approach to a larger one, the new novel, the larger one, made in a series of focusing on the social and political in the society of the land.

"In 1977, Ngugi said he began writing a series of five novels in Gikuyu, the Kenyan language. Of the five, one play presented Ngugi with interesting problems.

"A FRIEND AND I," Ngugi said, "wanted to develop a script for this play, and the character confronted us -- "To" and "I," he said, "What is the role of a writer? What is the role of a critic?" He went on to write the play. The fact that we asked ourselves those questions, 12 years or so after I started writing, was evidence that our works were influenced by our colonial education.

"I went this experience that formed Ngugi's resolve to write in the language of the people."
