Iowa candidates break spending records

By J. Cahoy
Staff Writer

As 1986 general election campaigns draw to a close in Johnson County, candidate spending has reached record proportions in many local races.

"We're spending more money on our candidates than ever before," Rayleen Cozine, co-chairwoman of the Johnson County Republican Party, said. "We felt the extra effort was worth it."

Cozine said the party has put a lot of money into local candidates' campaigns to increase name recognition.

"We have a lot of first-time candidates in this campaign," Cozine said. "New candidates need more support from the party. We want to make it easier on them politically."

UI STUDENT Mike Ketchmark, Republican state representative candidate for Iowa's 46th District, spent almost $5,000 during the period from July 16 to Oct. 15, according to the Iowa Campaign Funding Office in Des Moines.

Ketchmark spent more than twice as much as his opponent, Democrat Mary Neuhauser, who spent about $1,335 during the same period. Ketchmark said he thought the spending was necessary.

"When you look at the fact that I have to try to get my message across to 20,000 voters in the district, I think it's very justified," Ketchmark said.

Neuhauser said she did not think spending less than Ketchmark has hurt her in the campaign.

"I could have used some more money, but it hasn't been too much of a hardship," Neuhauser said.

BUT THE state legislative contests are not the only races that are funneling money into the races in Johnson County.

The 3rd District congressional race between Democrat Dave Nagle and Republican John McIntee has resulted in heavy spending in the county.

"Johnson County is important to a Nagle victory," Nagle's campaign manager Tim Raftis said. "We've made more of an effort across the board than in any other county and that would include spending."

McIntee forces have also pumped a lot of money into the county economy, Paul Ruppert, McIntee's campaign manager, said.

"Because there is a predominance of Democrats in Johnson County and we want to cut our losses wherever possible, we've concentrated very heavily on it," Ruppert said. "We have a great deal invested in the county in the form of radio and newspaper advertisements."

Even UI organizations have spent their share on today's election.

"I never remember a year we've spent as much money," UI College Republicans President Don Feeney said.

Iowa City sues area cable TV company

By Ann Szemplenski
Staff Writer

Iowa City is suing a local cable television company for more than $78,000 in unpaid fees.

The petition filed Monday in Johnson County District Court against Heritage Cablevision Inc., 546 Southgate Ave., and Cablevision Associates VII states that Heritage has not paid a 5 percent franchise fee to the city.

Court records state that it was agreed between the city and Heritage to raise the franchise fee from 3 to 5 percent. The franchise fee gives the city a percentage of the cable television company's gross revenues.

The fee was agreed upon after the company took over the assets of Hawkeye Cablevision in 1984, according to claims made by the city in court records.

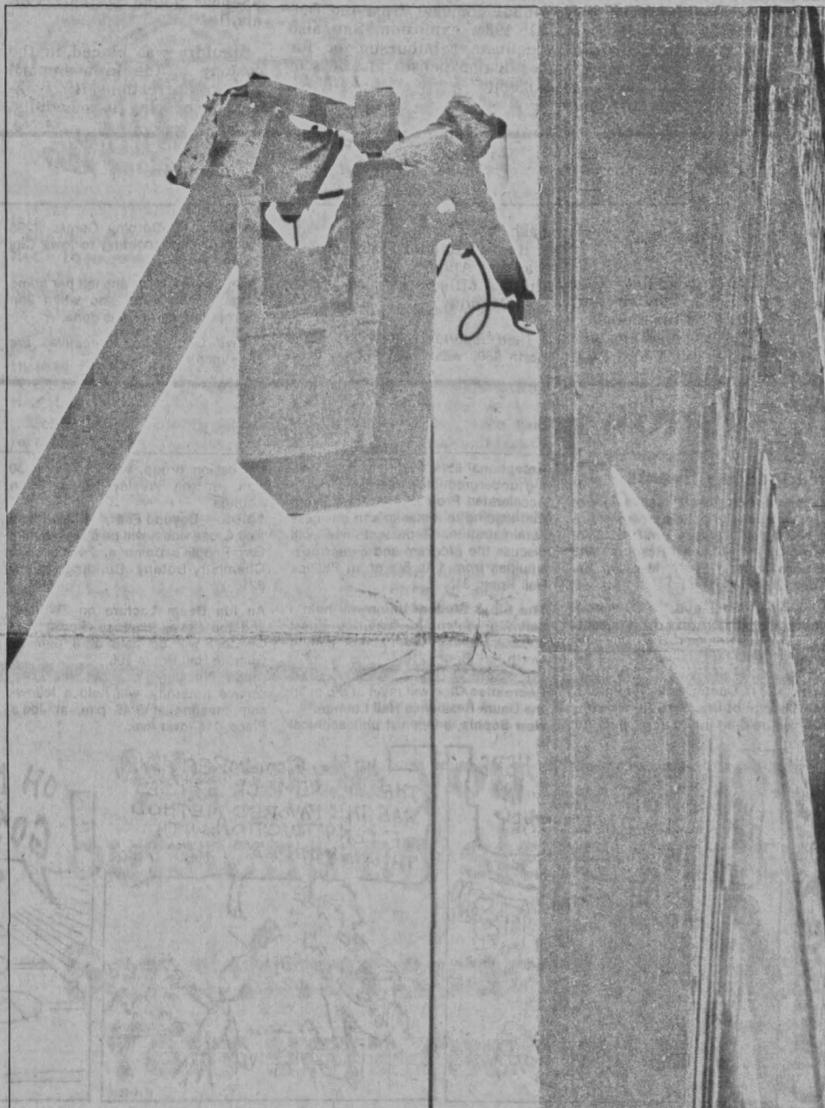

However, in a Dec. 18, 1984, memo to the Iowa City Council, Vice President of Heritage Communications Inc. Wayne Kern, of Des Moines, urged the council not to adopt amendments that would raise the fee to 5 percent. Kern stated the Iowa City Heritage company would never pay the fee.

"WE SAID THAT we would petition with the city council to the Federal Communications Commission and if the commission said the city could charge us a 5 percent fee, then we would pay," Kern said Monday. "But they never took it that far."

The 2 percent increase was supposed to take effect Dec. 26, 1984. Heritage owed the city $78,611.44 as of June 30, 1986, court records state.

But Kern claims the city has no authority to charge the company the increased fee because the issue never reached the FCC.

"The city council is without the authority to amend the franchise fee," Kern said. "They passed the amendment unilaterally and we believe it is contrary to state and national laws."

Released hostage Jacobsen gives first news conference

LARNACA, Cyprus (UPI) — David Jacobsen, "feeling just absolutely great" after his release by the Islamic Jihad organization in Beirut, stopped briefly at Larnaca airport Monday before continuing his journey to Frankfurt, West Germany.

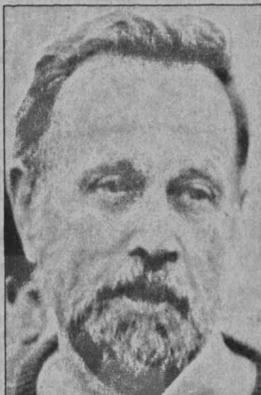

Jacobsen, accompanied by Church of England hostage mediator Terry Waite, boarded a chartered red-and-white Lear jet, which took off from Larnaca airport at 8:30 a.m., reporters at the scene said.

Waite's departure with Jacobsen seemed to dash hopes for the immediate release of more American hostages.

"I hope to be back in Lebanon soon to pursue the course of the other hostages," Waite said at a joint, brief news conference with Jacobsen.

Looking haggard but otherwise healthy, the bearded Jacobsen declined to answer questions about his 17-month-long ordeal.

"I FEEL just great, absolutely great. "It is a tremendous pleasure to be here," he said with a

Jacobsen later asked for a representative of the Associated Press to "just tell you that Terry's fine, too."

Terry is AP Middle East correspondent Terry Anderson, another American hostage still in the hands of the Islamic Jihad organization.

At a brief news conference at Larnaca airport with Waite and U.S. Ambassador to Cyprus Richard Boehm, Jacobsen praised the American administration and the Church of England trouble-shooter.

"This man," said Jacobsen, turning to Waite, "did one thing we appreciate.

"LAST CHRISTMAS Eve as we sat on the floor with our underwear, he gave us hope that we would be free men again.

"In spite of my video appearances, I'm darn proud to be an American. I'm proud of our government."

Jacobsen said his joy was marred by the continued detention of other Americans and Westerners in Lebanon.

"I am looking forward to seeing my loved ones, but my joy is somewhat diminished because captives are still being held in Lebanon," Jacobsen said at his 20-minute news conference.

He said it was only "yesterday that I heard about the other American hostages who were captured recently," including Joseph James Ciccipio, an American colleague of his at the American University Hospital in Beirut, who was kidnapped Sept. 12.

French find documents of Nazi era

PARIS (UPI)—A former chief of French intelligence claims he has discovered 10 tons of Gestapo files locked in the Paris secret service building and that they could implicate surviving Nazi collaborators who escaped execution after the war.

The claim by Alexandre de Marenches threatens to resurrect one of France's deepest traumas: its dark history during the German occupation.

In addition, it comes at a time when French authorities are planning to try accused-Nazi war criminal Klaus Barbie, the Lyon Gestapo chief who has threatened to identify Nazi sympathizers if he is put on trial.

De Marenches, head of the secret service from 1970 to 1981, made the disclosures in a book-length interview with French media personality Christine Ockrent. He said a quick look at the documents revealed "distressing discoveries" of betrayal by people who now hold respected positions in French life.

"ONE DAY ... I was shown enormous bundles that seemed to be papers and were packed together in the bottom of this place," he said. "They were all tied up, in bulk, in a clutter.

"These were the famous Nazi archives of the Gestapo and the Abwehr (German counterespionage), seized in the Liberation, and the Germans had not succeeded in carrying them away when they pulled out.

"I asked, 'How many of them are there?' Ten tons. In 25 years, no one had the idea or the courage to look at them and go through them.

"I found some people who are very well set up now, who seemed to have been patriots and resistance fighters and who in fact were being paid by the Germans," he said without identifying them.

DE MARENCHES supposes the archives were abandoned in Paris by Nazis fleeing the oncoming Allied invaders. De Marenches' claims have been met with skepticism from various quarters. The French counterespionage chief from 1935 to 1945, Col. Paul Paillole, said whatever papers have been found had already been used to identify Nazi collaborators and that de Marenches had simply rediscovered them.

He said the resistance leaders left no stone unturned in their zeal to find those who had betrayed their country to the Nazis. In the end, 4,598 men and women were charged with treason and 756 condemned to death.

Paillole suggested de Marenches hyped the story to impress Ockrent.

"This disgusts me," he said. "The 'famous' archives of the Abwehr and the Gestapo seized by my services in 1944 and 1945, the period in question, were exploited," Paillole said.

FRENCH DEFENSE Minister Andre Giraud ordered the files transferred to the defense ministry for examination. A commission representing old Resistance groups is to recommend whether they should be released for public consumption.

Reagan wants maid back at White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

Nancy Reagan is pleased smuggling charges against her maid, Anita Castelo, have been dropped and wants her back at work at the White House as soon as possible, the first lady's press secretary said Monday.

Reached by telephone in California, spokeswoman Elaine Crispin told United Press International that Reagan "is very happy Anita is innocent. She is anxious to have her back at work as soon as possible."

Castelo, 45, had been accused of trying to help smuggle 350,000 rounds of .22-caliber ammunition to Paraguay. Federal prosecutors dropped the case Monday, citing lack of criminal intent on her part.

Castelo had expressed her desire to return to work at the White House, where she had served as Reagan's personal maid since 1981. She went on leave, with pay, when she was arrested Aug. 7.

"I AM VERY, very happy," Castelo said in Richmond, Va., where the case was being prosecuted.

Castelo, a naturalized U.S. citizen from Paraguay, maintained she fell into the ammunition scheme when she tried to help a friend who did not speak English.

Castelo's lawyer, Michael Morchower, said in Richmond, "The first lady provided an affidavit attesting to her good character and reputation."

U.S. Attorney Henry Hudson, who served as chairman of Attorney General Edwin Meese's Commission on Pornography, said he decided to drop charges against Castelo based on statements by the other two defendants in the case.

"We began to realize Mrs. Castelo had been an unwitting participant in this incident," Hudson said.

City manager to talk with voter group

Iowa City Manager Stephen Atkins will speak at a meeting of the League of Women Voters of Johnson County at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Iowa City Public Library Meeting Room A, 123 S. Linn St.

Atkins' topic will be "State and Federal Policies: How They Have Changed and Their Effect on Local Government." A question and answer session will follow his talk.

Admission to the event is free of charge.

Students gain dentistry office, award

Two UI College of Dentistry students were named president and delegate of the year at the American Student Dental Association's 15th annual meeting last month.

Steve Nelson was elected president of the association and Bruce Anderson was named delegate of the year at the association's Kansas City, Mo., meeting.

Nelson, who served as vice president of the association last year, was chosen by fellow delegates from four candidates seeking the position.

Anderson was chosen from 118 delegates to win his award.

More than 17,000 dental students nationwide are association members. Two delegates from each of the 59 dental schools in the nation attended the annual meeting.

Peace association will hold conference

The UI Global Studies Program will sponsor "Celebrating the International Year of Peace: Where Do We Go from Here?" in the annual conference of the Consortium of Peace Research, Education and Development.

The conference will be held Nov. 6-9 in the old Law Building.

COPRED is the association of peace studies programs in the United States and Canada and a network of exchange among peace researchers, educators and activists.

For further information contact the UI Center for Conferences and Institutes at 353-5505.

Hospital to host child protection course

The American Heart Association's Heartsaver Baby Class to be held at Mercy Hospital in Iowa City this month teaches parents or child care providers how to respond to emergency situations involving infants and children.

Emergency responses for a choking infant or child and CPR will be taught in the class.

Classes will be held Wednesday, Nov. 12, from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m., and Wednesday, Nov. 19, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Mercy Hospital's American Heart Association Basic Cardiac Life Support instructors will teach the classes.

Fee for the class is $5 and includes all materials. For more information contact Mercy's Education Office at 337-0670.

Conference to deal with broken homes

A conference for displaced homemakers will be held in Iowa Hall at Kirkwood Community College on Nov. 18 at 1 p.m. and 6 p.m.

The conference will be sponsored by the "New Directions" displaced homemaker program and is designed for divorced and widowed people, single parents and people whose spouses are unemployed or underemployed, program coordinator Patricia Otis said.

Topics included in the conference will be self-esteem, stress management, job-seeking skills, goal setting, money management, resume writing and self-directed job search methods.

Otis said people eligible for displaced homemaker services may qualify for education aid, child care, counseling and job-seeking skills training.

The conference is free, but interested people should pre-register by telephone at 398-5634.

Diabetes victims invited to workshop

Mercy Hospital will hold a Diabetes Education Workshop Nov. 8-9. The workshop is open to people with diabetes and their families.

The program will present information on diabetes control and diet, exercise, planning, urine and blood testing, medications and lifestyle adaptations.

Pre-registration is necessary and there will be an attendance fee of $12 per person or $20 per couple. Contact Mercy's Education Office at 337-0670 to register.

Candidates beg voters: Hit the polls

United Press International

Amid predictions that voter turnout in Iowa will be lower than in any general election in 40 years, Republican Gov. Terry Branstad and his Democratic opponent, Lowell Junkins, pleaded with their supporters Monday to go to the polls.

Branstad, appearing with a team of Republican candidates at news conferences in Iowa towns including Oelwein, Dubuque, Mason City, Burlington and Ottumwa, said he is confident he will beat Junkins, despite a Des Moines Register poll Sunday that showed Junkins has gained ground on the first-term governor during the past two weeks.

The poll showed Branstad, who led Junkins by 53 percent to 35 percent Oct. 20, now leads Junkins by only 48 percent to 40 percent, with 12 percent undecided.

"I still believe I have a strong lead," Branstad told reporters in Dubuque.

Branstad also said he disagrees with Secretary of State Mary Jane Odell's prediction that only 48 percent of Iowa's 1.6 million registered voters would cast ballots today.

He said based on the number of absentee ballots turned in at county auditors' offices, at least 50 percent of the state's registered voters will turn out today.

JUNKINS SPENT Monday meeting with labor leaders in Dubuque and Ottumwa, Iowa, and visiting senior citizen centers in Cedar Rapids, urging his supporters to get to the polls.

Junkins ended his campaign with a speech to students and faculty at Des Moines' Alternative High School, the site where he announced his candidacy Oct. 28, 1985.

"There's a clear choice tomorrow. Iowans won't have any difficulty in seeing what those choices are," Junkins said.

"You can stay the same under the present administration. You can stay the course you're on, or we can choose to grow," he added.

Junkins left Des Moines Monday evening to return to his native Montrose, Iowa, where he will vote this morning. He plans to return to Des Moines this evening to await the results.

Branstad is scheduled to cast his ballot at Lake Mills, Iowa, this morning and return to Des Moines this afternoon.

An employee at Sheller-Globe Corp., U.S. Highway 6 East, filed a lawsuit in Johnson County District Court against several chemical manufacturers after she was allegedly injured in a 1984 explosion at the factory.

Judie M. Parsons filed the petition Friday against Bee Chemical Company, Chemorse Ltd., Sales Midwest, Gummed Paper of America Inc. and Chemtrol Adhesives Inc. for an undecided amount.

The companies did not manufacture, distribute and provide a safe product, Parson states in her petition. It also states that the manufacturers did not provide sufficient warning about possible hazards when using the chemicals.

Parsons states that she has suffered physical and emotional damages from the Oct. 31, 1984, explosion. She also requests reimbursement for medical expenses and loss of income.

A Coralville man arrested for stealing a compact disc player from a local store made his initial appearance Saturday in Johnson County District Court.

Jeffery Wade Mauldin, 23, was charged Friday with third-degree theft after he allegedly stole the player and accessories valued at about $350 from Spencer Sound Systems, Coralville.

Mauldin was placed in the custody of the Iowa Department of Corrections. His preliminary hearing is scheduled for Nov. 28.

A UI student arrested for stealing a video cassette recorder valued at more than $260 made his initial appearance Monday in Johnson County District Court.

Garry Darrel Henry, 18, of 513 Slater Residence Hall, was charged with third-degree theft after he allegedly took the VCR from another residence hall room Oct. 18.

Henry's preliminary hearing is scheduled for Nov. 19.

UI turns siblings into friends

By Monica Seigel
Special to The Daily Iowan

A brother or sister who terrorized you as a child may become one of your best friends when you attend the same college, UI Counseling Service Senior Staff Psychologist Sam Cochran said Monday.

Cochran said having brothers and sisters on campus can make a difference in determining how well a new student adjusts to college.

"Siblings can offer a very special kind of support system to a student as he makes the big transition from the nuclear family to the much larger community of a school this size," Cochran said.

Cochran said. "It helps to have someone that you're not just friends with, but with whom you've developed a strong relationship based on trust."

Cochran added, however, that having a brother or sister at school can be hard for a student if there isn't a sense of trust and caring in the relationship.

"IF TWO SIBLINGS don't have a positive relationship, there is potential for excessive competition and jealousy between them in the college environment," he said.

UI freshman Jeffrey Hayek said that he likes having an older brother at school with him.

"It's nice having someone you know you can always talk to and do things with. It's no big deal, I guess, but I really look up to him," he said.

Cochran said that it can be detrimental for a student to have too much admiration for an older sibling.

"When a student respects and admires an older brother or sister too much, it can impede on his own development of a sense of identity," he said.

Cochran said he wouldn't advise a student who admires a brother or sister to an excess to stop admiring the sibling, but rather to recognize his own qualities as an individual.

UI SOPHOMORE Kristin Vanourney said her relationship with her older sister has improved since she has come to the UI.

"We've always gotten along pretty well, but I think we've come to rely on each other a lot more since we've been in school together," she said.

But younger siblings aren't the only ones who can benefit from a relationship with a brother or sister at college. UI College of Law student Rachelle Ziemba said that she is glad to have her younger sister at the UI with her.

"We talk to each other at least every other day. I'm three and a half years older than she is, but we still go out and do things together. We get along really well," Ziemba said.

Old Capitol's front: Students see 'both sides' of the issue

By Joseph Levy
Staff Writer

UI students said Monday they can't make "heads or tails" over which side of the Old Capitol is actually intended to be the front entrance.

Discussion on the issue has left some students confused and others in debate.

"I just never thought about it," UI freshman Terri Cushman admitted after some thought. "I'd say the west side. It makes more sense just from the way it looks."

UI freshman Greg Schulze agreed, adding that the west side was probably a much more practical entrance when the structure was built in 1840.

Schulze said access to the Iowa River was probably an important consideration when the building was built.

"IT SEEMS TO BE built so that the river side was the front," he said. "It's much more extravagant. The steps lead up from the lawn."

Schulze believes construction developments on all sides of the Old Capitol make it confusing to figure out which side is the front today.

But even an official at the Old Capitol said she was uncertain. Old Capitol Program Assistant Bette Thompson offered a convenient speculation. "There is no front," she said. "Both sides are identical."

The Daily Iowan/Jeffrey Sedam

According to Thompson, when the building was constructed in 1840, the east end was built first, so many people assume that it is the main entrance.

UI SENIOR Bill Perrin has his own theory why the east side is the main entrance.

"It's the most commonly used entrance," he said. It faces the more traveled part (of Iowa City)," Perrin added that the west side just doesn't look like a main entrance.

UI sophomore Stacy Dalton agreed.

"The west side looks like a porch," she said

UI History Professor Greg Zieren said the east side must be the front "only because it's more approachable."

"Unless there were boat landings or something like that back then, it would be fairly hard to get to (from the west)," he added.

Because early American pioneers came from the east, it would seem appropriate that the building's main entrance is on the east side.

"That makes more symbolic sense," he said. But some students refuse to be caught up in the "great Old Capitol mystery."

"It personally doesn't make any difference to me," UI sophomore Otto Hart said. "As long as there is a door to go in."

Today's the day. For months we've been subjected to political rhetoric, mudslinging and prognosticating. We've heard about economic development, bonding and agricultural diversification.

The candidates have had their chance. Now it's our turn.

They say politicians are elected to represent the public. They're not. They're elected to represent voters. Go to the polls today and cast your vote. Take a friend; take two friends. Exercise your power as a voter.

And remember: Don't bitch if you don't vote.

Voice for freedom

People in Iowa City may not be feeling very friendly toward those in Michigan after the Iowa football team's last-second loss to the Wolverines this season. But on another more important level, the people of Ann Arbor, Mich., deserve our applause.

In April, the city of Ann Arbor passed a referendum denouncing U.S. policy toward Nicaragua and encouraging the development of a sister-city relationship with a Nicaraguan town. This week, a group of 17 people from Ann Arbor, including Mayor Edward Pierce, are visiting their sister city, Juigalpa, carrying medical supplies and a condemnation of U.S. aid to the anti-government Contras.

This is a brave move on the part of these people. At a time when up to $500 million in American money is beginning to flow to the Contras, when the FBI is investigating American mercenaries operating in Central America, when the Army's 82nd Airborne Division is training for a possible invasion of Nicaragua, it is certainly easier to go along with the crowd. But going along is also irresponsible.

Iowa City should follow the lead of Ann Arbor and go on the record as being opposed to U.S. policy in Central America. The prevailing sentiment in Iowa City seems to be one of resistance to American military presence in the region, so adopting an official stand on this issue would add another voice to those calling for a different approach.

The people of Iowa City have a tradition of speaking with progressive voices — the declaration of the city as a nuclear free zone is one excellent example. Now, the time has come for Iowa City to speak again.

Voting booth is the place to speak out for education

By Craig Canby

IN RECENT YEARS, UI faculty, staff and students have been displeased with the attitudes and policies of higher education at the state and federal levels. Typical complaints concern insufficient state appropriations, low faculty salaries and difficulty in obtaining sufficient financial aid to cover spiraling increases in educational expenses.

Concerns specific to graduate students are taxation of assistantships, scholarships and fellowships and taxation of the difference between non-resident and resident graduate tuition.

Higher education state appropriations in Iowa have increased 92 percent in the past 10 years. However, when this change is adjusted for inflation it becomes 0 percent. This 0 percent figure ranks Iowa 44th among the 50 states. Over the past two years, state appropriations decreased 2 percent when adjusted for inflation. This ranks Iowa 43rd in the nation.

THESE FIGURES indicate our state legislators have not given higher education the priority it deserves.

Average UI faculty salaries do not compare favorably with other Big Ten institutions. Unfortunately, this has caused some high quality faculty members to resign and move on to universities that offer higher salaries. The low faculty salaries are the result of insufficient state and federal appropriations.

From 1980 to 1986, tuition increased 57.1 percent. During the same time period, the average amount of financial aid per student increased only 3.5 percent. This abhorrent situation is the result of insufficient state and federal financial aid support. Over the past two years, Iowa has suffered a decrease of 2 percent of the total amount of financial aid appropriated to higher education. This figure ranks Iowa last in the nation, tied with Alaska (of the 30 states that reported financial aid information). In addition, federal appropriations for financial aid have not kept up with inflation.

IN ADDITION TO the aforementioned issues on higher education, graduate students will be hurt financially when the provisions of the new tax law take effect.

Previous provisions of the tax code allowed graduate students to declare their teaching or research assistantships as tax-exempt income provided certain criteria were met. The new tax code, on the other hand, will not exclude assistantships, fellowships or scholarships as taxable income. However, tuition and course related expenses can be excluded from the amount of the scholarship, fellowship or assistantship.

The new tax law no longer allows teaching and research assistantships to exclude tuition reductions as income. Nonresident TAs and residence hall assistants pay resident tuition, thus tuition reduction is the difference between non-resident tuition and resident tuition. However, some members of the Senate say it was their intention to maintain the tax exemption of such reductions. If it was the intention of the Senate and House to do so, an amendment declaring so will be possible.

These policies on higher education are eroding the quality of Iowa's universities and this cannot be allowed to continue. But what can we do to bring about favorable changes? The answer is simple.

Exercise your right to vote today. Take a close look at each candidate's position on issues of higher education and vote for the individual that will give higher education the priority that it deserves.

It is time to stop complaining and time for action. So, go out and get them before they get us. Vote today for higher education.

Craig Canby is UI Graduate Student Senate President.

Some last words on elections

By Arnold Sawislak

TODAY IS a lucky day. Today you can vote people to run government for the next couple of years.

If you want to know why makes you lucky, close your eyes and put your finger on a map of the world. The chances are you touched a place where people either don't get to vote or don't have a choice if they do.

There is a modern theory of political science that a turnout on election day means people are satisfied with the public officials already in office. There is an older theory that could be applied to voting. "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

The second one probably older because it is truer.

Some people who don't go to the polls say one vote more or less isn't going to make a difference.

Two years ago, four voters decided a congressional election in Indiana. The man who lost says he was robbed and is running again this year. All he needs to do is find five people who believe their votes don't mean much and change their minds.

Jack Paar used to tell the story about an elderly woman who, when asked how she cast her ballot in the presidential election, replied, "Oh, I never vote for any of these candidates. It just encourages them, you know."

That's probably as logical a reason as anyone has ever given for not voting.

We celebrated the centennial of the Statue of Liberty last July 4, but the true 100th birthday of the great symbol of freedom was just last week.

If it seems to be a bother to go out of your way to vote tomorrow, you might reflect on the distance that was traveled by the millions of people who passed the Liberty Bell in the Harbor on their way to new homes... and, for many, the new privilege of voting.

If you don't like the way things are being run in this country, remember:

Bullets are the ballots of tyranny. Ballots are the bullets of democracy.

Think of it this way: Voting is a way to celebrate the end of all those 30-second television commercials telling you who you should vote for.

If the public opinion polls show the candidate you support is losing, that is a very good reason for voting and talking a few friends into joining you.

As anyone who voted for Harry Truman way back in 1948 can tell you, there are few experiences more gratifying than to make money off the experts.

In some countries, you can be fined for not voting in this country, nobody can make you vote. That's another good reason why you should.

Marathon campaign closes as voters make the choice

RECENT POLLS conducted around the state and around the country are predicting one of the lowest voter turnouts in years.

However, polls do not decide elections — voters do. Despite the fact that polls are often right, they only provide information about a limited sampling of people who plan to vote. Much like the sports cliché "games are not won on paper," elections work the same way. A certain minority sampling does not determine the outcome of an election, just ask anyone who remembers the 1948 presidential election between incumbent President Harry Truman and Republican nominee Thomas Dewey.

In 1948, nearly everyone concluded Dewey would win the election because polls showed him running clearly ahead of the president. In addition, the Democratic Party at the time was severely split. Thus, the Chicago Daily Tribune, believing that Dewey would be victorious, ran a headline reading: "DEWEY DEFEATS TRUMAN." Of course, American voters proved the polls and the Tribune wrong by returning Truman to the White House.

Digressions

THE TIMES HAVE changed and so have the methods of informing voters about the candidates positions on the issues. The media, television in particular, serves as a double edged sword — on one hand it is a means of informing the voter, but it also can lead to distaste for politics and the political process in general.

By the time election day arrives, many voters are annoyed by politics. The political advertising starts out gradual, but by mid-October has turned into a non-stop barrage of "vote for me." Following two months of intense campaigning, the public often greets the day after elections with a sigh of relief.

However, politics and the media go hand in hand. If voters are concerned with the electoral process, we as voters must take the lengthy electoral process, the mudslinging by candidates and the annoyance of repeated political advertising in stride.

MUCH OF THE PUBLIC

does not care about politics and elections, and that is fine. The United States is a democracy in which freedom of choice plays a vital role. If you don't care, don't vote. But if you don't vote, don't complain. By refusing to use your right to vote, you are refusing your right to be represented in government.

Like running the marathon — as long and tiring as it may be — voters have to finish the political race with the candidates, and that finish takes place when the vote is cast in the voting booth. Election day is the day for voters to make their preferences known.

Don't leave the choice to "the other guy" — the other guy may decide not to vote either. "My one vote will not make a difference" is just a lazy person's excuse for not getting to the voting polls.

Voting is not a privilege in this country... it is a right, a right that citizens in some countries are willing to fight and die for.

Today is election day, the day that the electoral marathon of 1986 concludes. Finish the electoral marathon and use your right to vote.

Innocent fan

To the Editor:

Though it is true that fans attending Hawkeye home football games tend to become unruly, I think an incident that occurred at last weekend's Ohio State University game was uncalled for.

Toward the end of the game, a fan sitting at the ground level in the north end zone left his seat. He walked out toward the endline, not on the actual playing field, retrieved what appeared to be a sharp metal object and pitched it under the bleachers.

Obviously he was concerned about the possibility of injury to players, cheerleaders and anyone else who might happen to stumble upon it. No harm done. However, in almost no time at all, security guards were around him, ready to take him away. They refused to listen to either his or his friend's explanation. When he refused to go, more security guards were called in and he was forcefully dragged out of the stadium.

Though I understand security personnel want to control the crowd, this incident was very innocent, as the man did nothing wrong except attempt to prevent injury. I am sure there are much more serious happenings that security can be concerned with than just people doing nothing wrong.

Calorie count

To the Editor:

The article, "Running proven to increase life span," which appeared in The Daily Iowan Wednesday, Oct. 29, misinterpreted the conclusions and fostered several misconceptions about the study by Paffenbarger, et al., "Physical Activity, All-cause Mortality and Longevity of College Alumni," which appeared in the March issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

Specifically, Paffenbarger estimated caloric expenditure from all forms of physical activity, including walking, stair climbing and other activities which might include running. The 2,000 caloric figure included all of these activities and, in fact, could be attained by most college students merely by walking to classes and around town.

A person running as much as 20 miles per week would most certainly fall into the group expending more than 3,500 calories and be at greater risk for death than those with less physical activity.

It should also be pointed out that the activity necessary to increase the lifespan does not have to be vigorous nor is there a two for one hourly exchange of exercise for increased life. Paffenbarger did provide estimates which showed increased life expectancy of two years or more for active subjects under 60 years of age versus their non-active cohorts.

Never before a shoe like this.

Comfortech plain toe, 4-eye tie in wine or black leather. $71⁹⁵

Never before a guarantee like this.

The Florsheim Comfortech® shoe is not just another dress shoe. It's a totally new concept in men's footwear. The shoe is not designed by man alone... computer technology helped Florsheim to custom-contour these shoes so that they look and feel as though they were made just for you. Without becoming too technical, let's just say that these are absolutely the most comfortable dress shoes ever. Here's why: 1) The last (the form around which the shoe is made) is contoured to follow the natural curve of your foot. 2) The polyurethane outsole contains millions of tiny air bubbles to provide an "air" cushion between your foot and walking surfaces. 3) An exclusive contoured heel insole provides maximum support, resiliency and shock absorption. 4) An additional layer of sponge foam padding between the upper and lining material surrounds your foot for total comfort. You'll feel the difference the moment you try on the Comfortech shoe.

Florsheim is introducing Comfortech shoes with an unprecedented dress shoe guarantee. If you purchase your Comfortech shoes between now and November 15, 1986, you have 30 days from date of purchase to decide whether or not you're totally satisfied. If not, bring them back to us with your sales receipt and receive a full refund. What could be more reassuring? But remember, this offer ends November 15, 1986, so come in soon and be fitted with the most comfortable dress shoes you've ever known.

Hasenfus set to testify before tribunal

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — Former U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell said Monday that captured U.S. flier Eugene Hasenfus will be "throwing himself on the mercy of the court" when he testifies before a People's Tribunal today.

On Oct. 5, Hasenfus, 45, of Marinette, Wis., parachuted from a crippled supply plane that was carrying munitions to the Contras. He was captured the next day.

Bell, who served as attorney general under President Jimmy Carter and is advising the defense, apparently plans for Hasenfus to plead guilty on certain specific charges, such as the illegal transport of weapons, but to avoid broader charges, such as terrorism.

"It's quite obvious he's going to be convicted," Bell said in a news conference. "After all, he didn't fall out of the sky. He was on an airplane carrying guns."

Chissano voted Mozambique president

MAPUTO, Mozambique (UPI) — Mozambique's ruling party Monday elected Foreign Minister Joaquim Chissano, a moderate Marxist, to succeed Samora Machel as president and party leader two weeks after Machel died in a plane crash in South Africa.

Political commentators said Chissano, 47, would continue the policies of Machel.

A reporter said Chissano was a member of the Frelimo leadership for more than 20 years, advising Machel and, prior to independence, fighting alongside him against the Portuguese.

"There is no perceptible difference between Machel and Chissano on matters of political importance," he said.

Machel's jet crashed on the way home from a meeting with the leaders of other black-ruled southern African nations and the region's leaders have accused the South African government of complicity in the crash. South Africa has denied the accusations.

Philadelphia underworld boss arrested

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Nicodemo "Little Nicky" Scarfo, the reputed underworld boss of Philadelphia and southern New Jersey, and his top aides were arrested Monday, prosecutors said.

Scarfo, 57, was arrested without incident in a 3:30 a.m. raid at his girlfriend's Atlantic City apartment, state police said. His 11 top aides were taken at various locations in New Jersey and Philadelphia.

Scarfo, 43rd on a recent Fortune magazine list of the nation's richest and most powerful gangsters, was charged with heading an organized crime enterprise and two counts of conspiracy.

The Scarfo family allegedly loaned thousands of dollars at interest rates of 5 percent a week, or 260 percent a year, and used violence and threats to collect its loansharking, gambling and bookmaking debts.

General Assembly criticizes Contra aid

UNITED NATIONS — The General Assembly adopted a resolution Monday calling on the United States to comply with a world court ruling that bans support of Nicaragua's Contra rebels.

The United States, Israel and El Salvador voted against the Nicaraguan resolution, which was approved 94-3 with 47 abstentions. Resolutions in the 159-nation body are not binding.

The resolution "urgently calls for full and immediate compliance with the judgment of the International Court of Justice" handed down June 27.

The Reagan administration, which recently received congressional approval of its $100 million aid program to the rebels, did not recognize the jurisdiction or the competence of the world court in the U.S. dispute with Nicaragua.

"The resolution before us today is based on a fundamentally flawed interpretation of the significance and validity of the decision of the International Court of Justice," U.S. Ambassador Herbert Okun said.

Cancer researcher Hammond dies at 74

NEW YORK — E. Cuyler Hammond, who published the first study linking cigarette smoking and cancer and found a connection between asbestos and cancer, died Monday at his home from lymphoma, a form of cancer. He was 74.

In 1952 Hammond, who worked for the American Cancer Society for 31 years, published the first results of a study of 188,000 men that showed cigarette smokers had a higher risk from all causes of death, particularly from lung cancer and heart disease.

Hammond himself smoked four packs of cigarettes a day until 1952, when his own work convinced him of the hazards of tobacco, the Cancer Society said.

Aquino voices optimism for communist cease-fire offer

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — President Corazon Aquino Monday hailed an offer by communist rebels for a 100-day cease-fire as a step toward peace and government negotiators said they are optimistic a truce is possible in the 17-year-old insurgency.

In a brief statement released by Press Secretary Teodoro Benigno, Aquino said she appointed a special task force to "refine the government's position" before presenting it to rebel negotiators in a meeting Wednesday.

Since taking office in February, Aquino has been urging a negotiated settlement to the country's 17-year-old communist insurgency.

The National Democratic Front, an underground umbrella group representing the outlawed Communist Party and its 17,000-member military arm, the New People's Army, proposed this past Saturday a 100-day cease-fire effective as early as Dec. 10.

AQUINO SAID the rebels have "taken a step forward in acceding to my proposals to a cease-fire."

"Peace-keeping, public safety, police operations and law enforcement functions of responsible agencies of the government shall continue during the period of any cease-fire in any peace talks," Aquino said.

The statement was issued after a 2 1/2-hour meeting of the 11-member National Security Council, including Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and Armed Forces Chief Fidel Ramos.

Noel Soriano, a former University of the Philippines president and close Aquino adviser, attended the meeting as an observer. He said Enrile, who has repeatedly expressed doubts that peace initiatives can succeed, "asked a lot of questions," but the "whole gist of the conversation was 'let's explore it.'"

Aquino's special task force includes three military advisers, all of them generals, Ramon Mitra, a member of the panel that has been negotiating with the National Democratic Front, said.

ALTHOUGH presidential palace officials said the military has been constantly briefed on the status of the peace talks, which began Aug. 5, the negotiating panel has been limited to civilian representatives.

"I'm optimistic," Mitra said. "I have a feeling that all the way to the elections for the ratification of the constitution we will have a cease-fire."

A referendum to ratify a new constitution for the Philippines, which Aquino regards as a critical component of her efforts to restore full democracy after the 20-year rule of deposed President Ferdinand Marcos, has been set for Feb. 2, the Commission on Elections announced Monday.

The constitution was drafted by a panel appointed by Aquino after she was swept to power in a military revolt led by Enrile and Ramos that ousted Marcos last February.

Although members of the Council on Community Needs and city staff had some ideas on how to use the $700,000 in federal money, Iowa City councilors left people wondering Monday night how the money would actually be spent.

"It's real clear what Council members are recommending and what I'm recommending," Councilor Karen Kubby told councilors Monday night. "I needed to discriminate proposals more than before."

But an hourlong discussion left Community Development Block Grants going down the creek, up elevators around "broken-down" houses as councilors, committee members and city staff argued support of their own projects.

Councilor John McDermott saying he inherited the erosion problem from previous councils, he thought some of the money could be used to "start the job" started by councilors more than a decade ago.

If you really want to know how to improve your grades, your career, and your life, there's an upcoming lecture you shouldn't miss.

His Holiness Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, Founder of the Transcendental Meditation Program

Dear Student,

There's something you can do for a short time each day that will improve every aspect of your life—your grades, your future career, your relationships, everything—all at the same time. What's more, it's easy to do. Over 1,000,000 students have experienced the benefits. And you can too.

You'll learn about it soon at a special free lecture on the Transcendental Meditation technique, and regardless of what you've already heard about TM, this entertaining talk will surprise and enlighten you. More than that, it may well change your life.

My name is Kevin Blair. I'm president of the student government at Maharishi International University, where students, faculty, and staff all practice the TM technique. I want to tell you three things about the upcoming lecture:
1. At the lecture, you'll learn how the simple, natural TM technique, which is practiced for 15-20 minutes twice a day, brings profound benefits to mind and body, and how these benefits automatically improve one's social behavior, school and job performance, and much more.

"Experiencing the unified field through the TM technique really gives me more support of nature. As soon as I began TM, everything became easier, and my grade-point average went up a whole point!"
—Sam Boothby
Ph.D. candidate
Education
Harvard University

Scientific Research
2. You'll also learn about the vast amount of scientific research that's been done on TM (more than 350 studies worldwide over the past 15 years).

And you'll learn that a lot of the research findings are directly relevant to your personal and academic development as a student. Here, for example, is a partial list of the research results in the field of education:

- increased intelligence
- improved comprehension, concentration, and memory
- increased learning ability
- increased speed in solving problems
- increased creativity
- broader comprehension and ability to focus attention
- improved academic performance
- reduced stress and anxiety
- decreased use of drugs, alcohol, and cigarettes
- increased happiness
- improved relationships between students and teachers
- improved mind-body coordination
- improved athletic performance

Now, I'm sure you'd like to have some of those qualities growing in your life. Well you can. And the beautiful thing is that these qualities grow naturally, simply as a result of practicing the TM technique.

World Peace
3. Finally, if you are concerned not just with your own future, but also the future of our nation and the world, there's even more reason to attend the lecture.

This is because the TM technique doesn't just help the individual. The coherence generated when people practice TM extends to society as a whole. Research has shown that when as little as the square root of one percent of a population practices the TM program and its advanced aspects, the entire population becomes more orderly, peaceful, and progressive.

"TM is the best antidote to stress I know of. When individuals are free of stress, they behave more harmoniously. I'm convinced that if people practiced TM, world peace would be a reality."
—Karligh D. King
Director, Institute for World Leadership
Former Director-General, Caribbean Community and Common Market

This "Super Radiance Effect" has been demonstrated in communities, cities—even entire nations. This brings great hope for the future, because it means that the age-old problems of world peace may at last have a solution.

It Works!
If you're wondering how one simple technique can bring so many benefits to mind, body, behavior, and even the world as a whole, I urge you to attend the free lecture. The explanation you'll hear is at once simple, scientific, and profound.

"TM is the single most important part of being a peak performer. It gives you the ability to excel in an environment of stress, to make rapid decisions based on rapid changes, and to do so functioning very well."
—Christopher Hegarty, President
Hegarty and Associates
San Francisco, CA

You'll hear, for example, about the unified field of all the laws of nature as described by modern physics and by ancient Vedic science. And about how the TM technique lets you experience the unified field within your own consciousness. And about how that experience, gained regularly, brings you the support of all the laws of nature.

"When you practice TM, you can experience the full range of education—not just gaining classroom knowledge, but developing the knower, and that's yourself!"
—Karen Blasdel
Ph.D. candidate
Neuroscience
Maharishi International University

The main thing, however, is that TM works. I know from my own experience. I've been practicing the technique for 6 years, and it's made me more relaxed, yet more dynamic and productive. As a result, I'm enjoying greater success—both in and out of the classroom!
Of course, whether you start the TM technique or not is up to you. But doesn't it make sense to at least attend the lecture? If even ten percent of what I've said about TM proves to be true, think what it could mean for your achievement and happiness for the rest of your life.

The date and time of the lecture is given below. I hope you'll be there, and don't hesitate to bring your friends; you'll be doing a great thing for them as well!

Wishing you success in all that you do,

CAC votes funds for student research

By Joseph Levy
Staff Writer

The UI Collegiate Associations Council approved more than $9,800 in allocations Monday night aimed toward aiding individual UI researchers.

According to CAC Executive Associate Jim Vogl, 21 students at the UI will have their research projects backed by CAC money.

Vogl said 48 applicants sought a total of more than $70,000 in funding, but the CAC could only afford to allocate $10,000.

"What we're looking for is to give people their first break," Vogl explained, explaining that the CAC Research Grant Allocation Committee sought to fund as many researchers as possible with the amount of money available.

But Vogl admitted choosing the individuals who would receive the grants was not an easy process.

"It's difficult to decide," he said. "It's kind of like comparing apples and oranges."

THE APPLICATIONS were open to all UI students, and proposed projects varied from a study of conceptual behavior among pigeons to associations between low birth weight incidence in Iowa and exposure to nitrate in drinking water.

According to Vogl, the applications were screened by a group of designated referees before coming to his committee for final screening.

The "referees" were appropriate faculty and graduate students who were able to give educated opinions on the feasibility of the projects.

"The process ran very smoothly this year," Vogl said, adding that he was happy the CAC was able to fund more individual research than ever before.

"THAT'S SOMETHING we can be proud of," he said.

CAC Councilor and Graduate Student Senate President Craig Canby agreed with Vogl, adding that he also found the decision-making process difficult. But Canby admitted that some of the decisions were more obvious than others.

"Some were easy ones," he said. "Some were obviously out of line."

Canby gave an example of one person who requested a motorcycle.

"That's an easy one," Canby said, adding he believed that individual was funded for all of his requests except the vehicle.

Vogl agreed. "That's an example that we look at as a luxury item," he said, adding that most requests not funded were for extravagant items, travel expenses or compensation.

Councilors debate best use for funds

Although members of the Committee on Community Needs and city staff had definite ideas on how to spend $700,000 in federal money, Iowa City councilors left many people wondering Monday night how the money would actually be spent.

"It's real clear what CCN is recommending and what staff is recommending," Chairperson Karen Kubby told councilors Monday night. "We needed to discriminate among proposals more than ever before."

But an hourlong discussion left Community Development Block Grants going down a creek, up elevators and around "broken-down" houses as councilors, committee members and city staff argued in support of their own preferences.

Councilor John McDonald, saying he inherited the Ralston Creek erosion problem from previous councils, said he thought some of the CDBG money could be used to "finish the job" started by councilors more than a decade ago.

"WE GET CALLS from people who say half their backyard is in the creek," City Planner Marianne Milkman said. "You can put quite a few more dollars into the creek if you want to."

McDonald said past councils spent about $1 million in an effort to resolve the problems at Ralston Creek. "It wasn't a very happy CCN that year they had to use about all the CDBG's for that," McDonald said.

But Kubby told the council that her committee thought it was best to use the funds "to benefit people more directly" and that she was aware of the Ralston Creek problem.

Kubby then voiced her support to grant Youth Homes $100,000. Youth Homes maintains two staffed houses that provide emergency shelter for children.

"IT WAS GETTING obvious that if something wasn't done real soon for Youth Homes, we may not have it around very long," Kubby said, calling the allocation "the most controversial" of the funding requests.

But an equally controversial proposal came from council members who want an elevator for the handicapped to be installed in the Iowa City Civic Center, 400 E. Washington St., using CDBG funds.

"The civic center is an embarrassment to Iowa City," CCN member David Leshtz told councilors. He said the handicapped haven't had easy access to the center's second story.

Law library hours limited by budget

By John M. McClintock
Staff Writer

UI students complained Monday that the law library in the new Boyd Law Building closes too early in the evening, but officials said the new library is without operational funds to keep it open past 11 p.m.

"We don't have any money to keep it open later," UI Executive Law Librarian Kathie Belgum said. "Everything boils down to the budget."

UI College of Law Dean N. William Hines said although the facility was a multi-million dollar project, it is still hurting for operational funds like other departments at the UI.

"We have very severely restricted acquisitions," Hines said.

"It's a problem," he said. "It's unfortunate we can't supply our students with a library past eleven o'clock."

"I don't think it's a disabling problem," he said.

BELGUM SAID that if students want to study till 2 a.m. they should try the Main Library.

Some UI officials raised the question of who should be able to use the law library.

"This library is for the law students not the undergrads," Belgum said. "These are law books."

Hines said the library is open to everyone, but law students will receive first priority.

"It is a public facility, but the people who use the materials get first call," said Hines.

"It's one of the finest library facilities that people have ever seen," he said. "If everyone decides that the law library is the best place to study, then there will have to be restrictions."

UI FIRST-YEAR law student Chris Schneider said the closing time for the new law library causes problems for him.

Schneider said first-year law students don't have access to carrels because they're competing with students from the dorms for table space.

"When you get so many of the students from the dorms (Rienow and Slater), it crowds out the first-year law students," he said.

But UI law student Kathy Sampson said there are some advantages with the early closing time.

"It gets you to bed at a decent hour," she said. "Leaving at 11 is safer for women."

Iowa City ice cream parlor leads award-winning chain

By Bruce Japsen
City Editor

An ice cream company that gained popularity from its patrons in Iowa City has been named Ice Cream Retailer of the Year.

Great Midwestern Ice Cream Company, with a store at 126 Washington St., was named Saturday in St. Louis by the National Ice Cream Retailers Association as the best, according to Holly Manon, a spokeswoman from the company's headquarters in Fairfield, Iowa.

"We absolutely could not have done this without our Iowa City customers and Iowans in general," Manon said.

In 1980, the Iowa City parlor opened as the company's first store. It is now one of eight in the Great Midwestern chain, which includes a network of ice cream supermarkets in 10 Midwestern states.

Great Midwestern President Fred Gratson founded the company in Fairfield, but company officials maintain that they couldn't have acquired their success without Iowa City.

"MOST OF OUR history has taken place in Iowa City," Manon said. "We consider Iowa City the mainstay in our company as far as our parlors are concerned."

Since January, the company has opened five stores and begun ice cream production at a new Fairfield manufacturing plant, according to Iowa City Great Midwestern Manager Tina Mazula.

Because the new plant removed the burden of making ice cream from the stores, the five-store expansion was possible, enabling the company to cop the national award.

"The success of the Iowa City store gave birth

"The success of the Iowa City store gave birth to all of the other stores," says Tina Mazula, manager of the Iowa City Great Midwestern ice cream store. "We're the example for all of the other stores. Our store is the most successful that Great Midwestern has."

to all of the other stores," Mazula said. "We're the example for all of the other stores. Our store is the most successful that Great Midwestern has."

Great Midwestern has also been honored by Chocolatier Magazine as one of the top 25 ice cream parlors in the United States.

"THEY ACTUALLY TRIED to find the best, but they couldn't, so they just listed us and others in alphabetical order as the top 25," Manon said.

The company was also recognized in Interior Design Magazine by the Institute of Business Designers for having the best restaurant design. Manon said company officials were surprised to get the award from the institute.

"Those guys are so 'hoity-toity' that they didn't give the award last year because they didn't think anyone deserved it," Manon said.

Hagler to be

NEW YORK (UPI) — Marvin Hagler and Ray Leonard called their April 6 fight in Las Vegas, Nev., "inevitable" despite a long road of ups and downs that had to be cleared before the richest fight in boxing history was set.

The fight came about after both fighters had a change of heart about the bout. Leonard underwent a battery of medical tests and a six-month negotiation period. As a result, Hagler was guaranteed $12 million and Leonard $11 million. Hagler defends his middleweight title in a bout scheduled for 12 rounds at Caesars Palace.

Saturday's 31-10 Hawkeye victory over Ohio State has brought about several questions as the Iowa football team's holiday plans are concerned.

Where will the Hawkeyes spend New Year's Day? Florida? Texas? or maybe Louisiana? According to Coach Hayden Fry, should the Hawkeyes win their next three games, the possibility of a Happy New Year is very good.

At least three New Year games still have Iowa on the lists. The Sugar, Florida and Cotton Bowls all say Iowa is still very much in the running for invitations to those bowls but it is still too early to say.

THE ENTIRE BOWL game is centered around the national title. If things go the way they stand now, Penn State and No. 1 Michigan will participate in the Bowl. That would leave spots open on New Year for the newcomer, the Orange Bowl, and one spot each for the Cotton, Sugar and Orange Bowls.

"Iowa is certainly still in the list," Dylan Thomas, executive director of the Orange Bowl, said. "We are on two of five conference runner-ups or maybe Atlantic Coast Conference Champion this year."

The conferences that participate in the Orange Bowl include the Southwest, Big Ten, Big Eight, Big Ten, and Big Ten.

Even if Iowa finishes and winds up third in the Big Ten, the Hawkeyes still stand a pretty good chance to be included in Jan. 1 festivities.

"IOWA IS A special tradition in our eyes," Thomas added. "They are from the Big Ten, and the Big Ten is a special tradition in our eyes."

Hagler, Leonard battle to be richest in history

NEW YORK (UPI) — Marvin Hagler and Ray Leonard Monday called their April 6 bout in Las Vegas, Nev., inevitable, despite a long road of obstacles that had to be cleared before the richest fight in history was set.

The fight came about only after both fighters had a change of heart about retirement. Leonard underwent a battery of medical tests and a tough six-month negotiating period. As a result, Hagler will be guaranteed $12 million and Leonard $11 million when Hagler defends his middleweight title in a bout scheduled for 12 rounds at Caesars Palace.

"I've always wanted to fight Marvin, and Marvin's always wanted to fight me," Leonard, a 4-1 underdog in the opening odds posted Monday at Caesars Sports Book, said. "Marvin was on the brink of giving it up himself. So I figured I'd better do it now."

LEONARD, A FORMER welterweight and junior middleweight champion, retired from boxing in 1982 and again in 1984 after a one-bout comeback against Kevin Howard. He underwent surgery in 1982 to repair a damaged retina in his left eye. Hagler last defended his title March 10 in an 11th-round knockout of John Mugabi, and he said that might have been his last fight if Leonard had not challenged him.

"I've been looking forward to this fight for a long time," Hagler said. "I've been saving my mind and body just for this occasion."

"I did a lot of searching inside myself and thought if I really wanted to fight again. If it was anyone else, I'd probably say no."

LEONARD HAS talked about fighting Hagler since before his first retirement, but it was a surprise when he issued a challenge to Hagler May 1. Hagler publicly accepted in August.

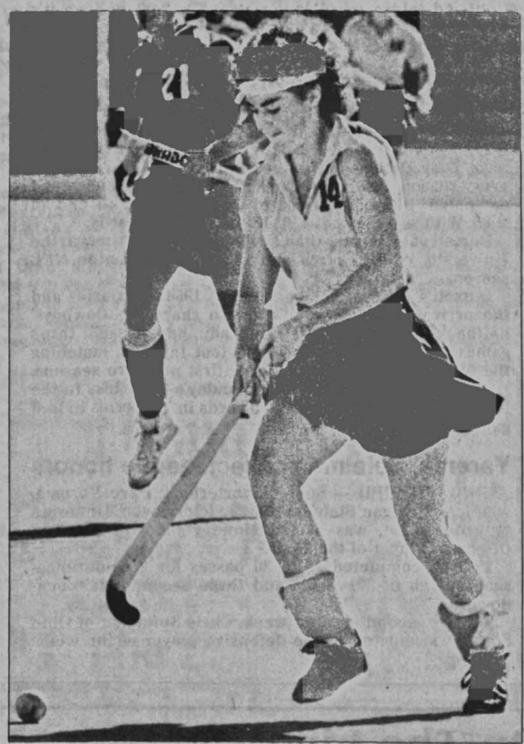

Leonard said the distance, date and site of the bout are in his favor.

"If the fight had come off in November (as he originally wanted), I'd probably be over my head," Leonard said. "In April, it will be over a year since Marvin was in the ring. I wanted 12 rounds. I said give the little man a chance. And Caesars is my home away from home. I defeated Thomas Hearns in the biggest fight of my career there."

Hagler wanted a 15-round bout, but the World Boxing Council — which is sanctioning the fight — calls for 12-round title fights.

"I still believe in 15-round fights, especially with the magnitude of this one," Hagler said. "But I looked at the contract and when you have $12 million looking you in the face, are you going to argue about three rounds?"

Hawks focus on bowl picture

By Mike Trilk
Staff Writer

Saturday's 31-10 Hawkeye loss to Ohio State has brought about several questions as far as the Iowa football team's holiday plans are concerned.

Where will the Hawkeyes be on New Year's Day? Florida? Texas? or maybe Louisiana? According to Coach Hayden Fry, should the Hawkeyes win their next three games the possibility of a Happy New Year is very good.

At least three New Year's Day games still have Iowa on their lists. The Sugar, Florida Citrus and Cotton Bowls all say that Iowa is still very much alive for invitations to those bowls, but it is still too early to tell.

THE ENTIRE BOWL picture is centered around the national title. If things pan out the way they stand now, No. 2 Penn State and No. 1 Miami will participate in the Fiesta Bowl. That would leave two spots open on New Year's Day for the newcomer, the Citrus Bowl, and one spot each open for the Cotton, Sugar and Orange Bowls.

"Iowa is certainly still on our list," Dylan Thomas, associate executive director of the Citrus Bowl, said. "We are keying on two of five conference runner-ups or maybe the Atlantic Coast Conference Champion this year."

The conferences that the Citrus Bowl is looking for include: the Southwest, Southeast, Pacific Ten, Big Ten and the Big Eight.

Even if Iowa finishes at 9-2 and winds up third place in the Big Ten, the Hawkeyes still stand a pretty good chance to be included on the Jan. 1 festivities.

"IOWA IS A special exception in our eyes," Thomas added. "They are from the Big Ten, and the Big Ten is the strongest conference in America in a lot of different ways. We also know that Iowa has a good following and would fill up our stadium."

The Sugar Bowl is another possibility for the Hawkeyes, with a possible Iowa-Alabama match-up, or the eventual winner of the Southeast Conference should the "Tide stub their toe" in the next few weeks.

"We haven't written anybody out of the picture yet that has two losses or better," Mickey Holmes, a Sugar Bowl representative, said. "When we look at the Big Ten, we are looking in terms of three teams — Iowa, Michigan and Ohio State. There is no way we can strive toward the loser of the Ohio State-Michigan game. Iowa is no less a team than Ohio State or Michigan. It's just too early to tell. Every week we want to narrow down our choices, but this year we seem to keep expanding."

THE BIG TEN always seems to have an edge on some of the other conferences because of the level of competition. Something that might give Iowa an edge in receiving a Cotton Bowl invitation is the fact that Fry is from the state of Texas, as are five current Hawkeye players.

"Iowa is still in our picture," Field Scovell, chairman of the Cotton Bowl selection committee, said. "We could be looking

Gator Bowl looks to land title matchup

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — The Gator Bowl, in fervent pursuit of a Miami-Penn State matchup, is negotiating with a potential sponsor to provide the millions necessary to land an anticipated battle for the national championship.

The Gator Bowl, which paid a total of $1.5 million last year to Florida State and Oklahoma State, is scheduled to be played Dec. 27 and televised nationally by CBS. The Citrus Bowl and the Fiesta Bowl have both indicated a strong interest in a Jan. 1 matchup between top-rated Miami and Penn State, two 8-0 independents.

"We figure for a game like that we'd have to pay more than $2 million apiece to the teams," said John T. Bell, president of the Gator Bowl Association in confirming ongoing talks to attract a sponsor. "The additional money would have to come from a sponsor or from television or a combination of the two. We're very, very close on an international sponsor, and such a deal would make us competitive."

Murgatroyd's plans 'luckily' went awry

By Julie Deardorff
Staff Writer

Sometimes it's almost better if things don't work out as planned. Such was the case with Iowa field hockey player Michelle Murgatroyd who had originally wanted a tennis scholarship.

"My results didn't come out exceptionally well. So I just decided to switch to field hockey," Murgatroyd, a sophomore from Pretoria, South Africa, said. "But if I had to choose between the sports now, there's no doubt I would definitely play field hockey."

According to Murgatroyd's father, Ernest, Michelle was very athletic as a child, which enabled her to easily change her mind. "She was very good at all sports. So obviously she picked it up quite quickly," he said in a phone conversation from South Africa. "She's a very determined girl, very independent. If she decides to do something, chances are she's going to do it."

"WE DID IT through the Universal Services of America," Ernest said. "They get scholarships for people in any country. That's how we made the first contact. She had to apply through the normal channels and then send a videotape."

"I came here because my Dad told me about America," Murgatroyd said. "I wanted to travel and get my education paid for and take field hockey more seriously. Here you have to push all the time. At home you have to do everything yourself in the clubs. Someone is always pushing you here, making you get better."

Now, after adjusting to the United States, Murgatroyd has blossomed into one of Coach Judith Davidson's most dangerous players.

She began to get used to practicing twice a day instead of twice a week. "You play it so much as a child you get used to it, but I really began to get tired by the end of last year," Murgatroyd admitted. "When we lost the last game last year, I didn't play very well at all. I didn't do a thing on the field. I took a month off. And after that, I was that much more eager to play."

"IN SOUTH AFRICA because of the political situation, we don't play other countries," she said. "The only way to get better is to come over here."

True to her word, Murgatroyd has improved, scoring six goals this year and lead-

Illinois suspends two players

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — Two Illinois football players charged with being involved in a fight following a weekend loss to Michigan were suspended from the team Monday, Coach Mike White said.

Linebackers James Finch and Jay Lynch pleaded innocent in Champaign County Circuit Court Monday afternoon to the misdemeanor charges. Lynch was charged with four counts of battery and one count of damaging property. Finch was charged with three counts of battery.

FINCH AND LYNCH are accused of becoming involved in altercations late Saturday and early Sunday at the student union building and later at a fraternity house. Police said up to 40 people, some armed with ax handles, canes and baseball bats, were involved in the fight at the fraternity house.

About six people suffered minor injuries in the fight, police said. Finch and Lynch were arrested because they were immediately identified, police said, adding more arrests were possible.

Finch, a senior from Indianapolis, and Lynch, a senior from Oakland, Calif., turned themselves in to authorities Sunday night.

Finch and Lynch returned with the team to Champaign Saturday evening following a 69-13 loss to Michigan.

Finch was a starting inside linebacker. Lynch was a second-string inside linebacker who shared time with starter Jason Guard, a freshman. Finch will likely be replaced by freshman John Wachter. Illinois, 2-6, plays Iowa, 6-2, Saturday in Champaign.

Rams' field goal tops Bears

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mike Lansford kicked a 50-yard field goal with four seconds left in the fourth quarter Monday night to lift the Los Angeles Rams to a 20-17 victory over Chicago and snap the Bears' 14-game home winning streak.

The winning drive started at the Los Angeles 35-yard line with 47 seconds remaining. Rams' quarterback Steve Dils completed two straight passes to move the ball to the Bears 40, then Eric Dickerson caught another pass to move the ball to the 33 and set up Lansford's kick.

The Bears received Lansford's ensuing kickoff but did not come close to running it in.

The decision — which left both teams at 7-2 — avenged the Rams' 24-0 loss to the Bears in the NFC championship game in January. The Rams increased their lead over second-place San Francisco and Atlanta to 1½ games in the NFC West while the Bears, despite the loss, lead second-place Minnesota in the NFC Central by two games.

DILS, SUBBING for the injured Steve Bartkowski, completed six of 25 passes for 137 yards and one interception. Dickerson broke Lawrence McCutcheon's Rams career rushing mark of 6,187 yards, rushing for 111 yards on 29 carries.

The Rams had tied the score with 1:28 remaining when Dils hit Ron Brown at the Chicago 30, and the wide receiver broke loose to complete a 65-yard touchdown play. The drive was kept alive by a personal-foul penalty against Chicago's William "The Refrigerator" Perry.

Chicago had grabbed a 17-10 lead after Gary Fencik intercepted Dils at the Bears 44 and returned the ball to the Rams 35. The interception was the 37th of Fencik's career, tying him with Richie Pettibone for the team record.

On the next play, Thomas Sanders — replacing Walter Payton, who left the game with an injured big toe — ran around right end for a 34-yard touchdown with 4:23 remaining.

Sanders, who rushed for 69 yards on eight carries, had also scored 83 seconds earlier on a 10-yard run, tying the score 10-10. The touchdown was set up by an 84-yard kickoff return by Dennis Gentry to the Bears 15.

Pittsburgh quarterback lost for season

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Panther quarterback John Congemi is likely to miss the remainder of the season with a hairline fracture to a vertebra, Pittsburgh Coach Mike Gottfried said Monday.

Congemi, a senior who was having his best year at Pittsburgh, was hurt Saturday in Pittsburgh's 24-20 loss to Syracuse.

"Apparently, John Congemi is lost for the season," Gottfried told a news conference. "Doctors believe it's best if he doesn't play again."

The Panthers, 4-3-1, play No. 1 Miami in Pittsburgh Saturday.

Dorsett's impressive streak in jeopardy

DALLAS (UPI) — Beginning with his junior year at Hopewell (Alquippa, Pa.) High School, Dallas running back Tony Dorsett has gained more than 1,000 yards in every season except for the NFL's 1982 strike-shortened campaign. But that streak is almost certain to end in 1986. With seven games left, Dorsett has 349 yards.

Dorsett gained more than 1,000 yards all four years at the University of Pittsburgh and in eight of his nine NFL seasons.

Dorsett's yardage has been cut in 1986 by injuries and the arrival of Herschel Walker to share the Cowboys' halfback position. Dorsett already has missed three games this year with ankle and foot injuries, matching the total of games missed in his first nine pro seasons. Dorsett reinjured his knee in Sunday's 17-14 loss to the New York Giants. He gained 45 yards in 10 carries in that game.

Yarema, Spielman collect league honors

CHICAGO (UPI) — Senior quarterback Dave Yarema, who led Michigan State to a 52-23 victory over Minnesota Saturday night, was named Monday the UPI Big Ten Offensive Player of the Week.

Yarema completed 25 of 30 passes for a conference-season high of 321 yards and three second-half touchdowns.

For the second straight week, Chris Spielman of Ohio State was selected as the defensive player of the week.

Sportsclubs suffer in weekend losses

By Marc Bona
Staff Writer

Keeping in tune with the football team, Iowa sportsclubs turned in less than stellar performances in weekend action.

The Ice Hawks' Gold squad lost 9-4 to Loras Friday night in Waterloo.

This weekend the Ice Hawks will see action against three different conference foes. The Gold squad will take on Grinnell while the Black squad will skate against Cornell Friday night in Waterloo. The Black squad will face Palmer in Dubuque on Sunday.

The Hawkeye Soccer Club will meet Palmer in Davenport on Saturday at 1 p.m.

The Iowa Soccer Club lost its second match of the season 3-1 to Palmer Saturday in Davenport. Iowa's record falls to 9-2-1. The club will compete in the UNI Tournament Saturday and Sunday. The 10-team field will include Big Ten and Big Eight schools as well as host school Northern Iowa, Mankato St., Palmer and Nebraska-Omaha.

The Iowa Lacrosse Club was the lone winner this week, beating rival Iowa State 11-3.

Sportsclubs

"It was all-around team play that did it for us," Iowa midfielder Rob Reed said. The victory evened Iowa's record at 1-1.

The Iowa Sailing Club will be holding nominations for 1986-87 executive officers Nov. 5 and 12 at 7 p.m. in EPB Room 10. All members are urged to attend. Elections will be held Nov. 19 at 7 p.m. in EPB Room 10.

The Iowa Kayaking Club will meet today at 7:30 p.m. in Trowbridge Hall Room 21.

The original date for the Big Ten Rugby Tournament in Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 1 and 2, has been changed to Nov. 8 and 9. The Iowa club will sponsor a bus, open to the public, at a cost of $50. The fee includes transportation, hotel and refreshments. For more information contact Scott McDonough at 337-8641.

The DI Sportsclubs column appears every Tuesday. To get information printed in this column contact Marc Bona at 353-6210 before 2 p.m. on Monday.

ing the team with six assists. It all seems to stem from increased confidence "She's 100 percent more confident," Davidson said. "It shows in her play. She's physically stronger, and she's taking much more control of what she's doing. I think Michelle is playing more like a senior, attacking the ball. Eight times out of 10 she'll be the one to come away with it."

"I don't think I had enough confidence in my play last year," Murgatroyd said, echoing her coach. "This year since I've been around I'm more experienced."

MURGATROYD DIDN'T go home to Pretoria, a city of 50,000, this summer, but stayed in Iowa City. "I worked at the Arena this summer lifting weights and running a lot," Murgatroyd said. "Just the fact that I'd been through it all seemed to help."

Another factor that seems to have helped her game was a switch in positions. "Last year I played on the left wing, and you barely get any balls over there because our right side is the strong side," Murgatroyd said. "I really never touched the ball unless it was to score a goal. And then that was only for a second. It got very frustrating; I never had the chance to do anything."

This year Murgatroyd is playing in the center midfield position, a place where she seems much happier.

"She's extremely dangerous this year. She's much more of a playmaker," Davidson said. "Last year she would take it to the end line, but this year she really makes things happen."

"I didn't think she'd improve this quickly," Davidson said. "It's very exciting. She can only get better."

at any number of teams with up to three losses. We know Hayden has a good team up there. And he has a lot of friends down this way, but I don't know for sure that is going to be enough to sell tickets."

A spot in the Orange Bowl or the Fiesta Bowl are possibilities as is the Fiesta Bowl should Penn State or Miami lose in the upcoming weeks. But as of now Iowa's best bet lies with either the Cotton, Florida Citrus or Sugar Bowls.

IF IOWA SHOULD lose another game, a New Year's Day game would be doubtful, but that doesn't mean the Hawkeyes would be off to a particularly "bad" bowl game. Spending the holidays in Hawaii is something Hawkeye fans could learn to like.

"We'll just have to wait and see what happens," a spokesman from the Aloha Bowl said Monday. "We've never had a Big Ten team at the Aloha Bowl, but it is something we would like to try. I don't want to give any misleading expectations. Iowa may get a bid from one of the bigger bowls, but as of right now they are still on our list."

On The Line

Earle Bruce has slimmed down a little no matter what DI Assistant Sports Editor Dan Millea thinks.

On The Line had a chance to talk with Mr. Bruce last weekend, and we found out that he wasn't too pleased with his stomach gracing our fine sports pages.

Bruce emphatically stated that he no longer can put down 20 to 30 wienies. Actually it is closer to only four or five. Bruce, the former Iowa State Coach, hung tough after breaking his ankle this past summer to shed 30 pounds, which has left him only a shadow of his former self.

Bruce, after witnessing Millea eat at the Union recently, questioned, "Who really weighs more — Millea or myself?"

We have decided to leave it up to you our faithful readers to decide this mesmerizing question. Put it on this week's ballot, and we'll report the results.

A few clues: Bruce is not very tall — maybe 5-foot-7 on his tippy toes — while Millea stands 5-11 and was formerly a Graettinger (Iowa) High School football star.

Bruce has shed 30 pounds in the past few months while Millea isn't quite in his playing shape.

Stefan Millea, Dan's two-year old son, lays his money on the fat man. Now it is your turn to decide who the fat man is.

Millea's wife Ann is also pushing at both Bruce and her husband. Ann, though, has a very good excuse. She's eight months pregnant. What's your excuse Dan?

Enough about Bruce and Millea (who are probably setting up a dinner date at this very moment).

This week's On The Line contest offers a lot of opportunities to screw up. Trust us we've seen a lot of horrendous ballots in the past few weeks.

Usually we only print the winner of the keg in Monday's column. But watch out because next week we will also print the most inept ballot — score by painful score. Remember you will have only your terrible prognosticating ability to blame.

On to the keg which will be donated by the potato people at the Super Spud Food Shop located at the Old Capitol Center Mall. We thank you, and Idaho thanks you.

Also before we sign off, remember the rules. Circle all of the winners, including the tiebreaker. Turn in the ballots at the business office in the Communications Center by noon on Thursday. Only five ballots per person. Any more and they will be devoured by Bruce and Millea, with cheese sauce being provided by the Super Spud. We're serious.

A few days ago Millea easily downed two soft shell tacos with everything, a Hostess chocolate pudding pie, a chocolate mousse and a grape soda. His poor stomach.

Slump

Now that the Big Ten has reduced to the big two only thing still in question how many teams will bowl bids during one conference's worst years.

During the last two seasons the Big Ten has flourished the eyes of the nation, six teams to postseason. But this season, the league has been on a self-destructive as mediocrity has become the norm. While Michigan, Ohio State slug it out with national elite, the rest of the conference is struggling to receive enough recognition to earn bowl berths at the season.

But even though the Big Ten is down in comparison to recent years, bowl scouts still hot on the heels of like Iowa and Michigan.

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — The Buffalo Bills, stung through yet another losing season, made their second season head coaching change in as many years Monday. Hank Buhlhoff and Marv Levy are his successors.

Levy, former coach of the Las Vegas Raiders, took over the position of director of operations with the Canadian Football League Montreal Alouettes to become the 13th coach in the history of the Bills, said he signed a year contract to lead the club. Terms of the pact not disclosed.

"I'm very excited and to be coming to the Bills organization," said who guided the Chiefs to a 31-42 record from 1978 to 1985. "They have an outstanding quarterback prospect (Kelly), and it's a pleasant prospect."

Schedule

DES MOINES (UPI) — Iowa basketball team could suffer another loss Saturday but end up with a record because the schedule is so much tougher, Coach Gary Garner said Monday.

Garner also said he expects Drake to field a very strong starting line-up but is concerned about a lack of depth at the forward position.

The Bulldogs posted a mark in the Missouri Conference last season. Garner's fifth year at Drake qualified for the National Invitational Tournament, lost to Marquette in the first round.

"We've been down to 10 players because of injury practice, but they've given their best effort since I've been here. Last year was their really successful season. It's that old thing, 'buds breed success,'" Garner said at his annual media day.

Slumping Big Ten still eyes bowl openings

Now that the Big Ten has been reduced to the big two, the only thing still in question is how many teams will receive bowl bids during one of the conference's worst years ever. During the last two seasons, the Big Ten has flourished in the eyes of the nation, sending six teams to postseason play. But this season, the league has been on a self-destruct course as mediocrity has become the norm.

Steve Williams

in the hopes of landing a well known team for their postseason activities. In light of the way things are going, here's a list of Big Ten teams who should be receiving Christmas invitations this year for some of the warmer parts of the country. Ohio State — The Buckeyes seem to be the favorites to take the Big Ten championship after their 31-10 drubbing of the Iowa Hawkeyes this weekend. With a possible victory over Michigan looming on the horizon, a trip to Pasadena seems to be in the cards for Earle Bruce's squad, quieting his critics until Jan. 1 when the men in silver and red disappoint the Big Ten again with a loss to whoever the Pacific Ten decides to send over. Michigan — Regardless of whether the Wolverines win their final Big Ten game, Bo Schembechler's men in blue are still one of the best teams in the nation, and as a result will be given high consideration for a prestigious bowl. If Miami and Penn State match up in the Fiesta Bowl, look for Michigan to head to the Sugar Bowl or even the Orange Bowl, which hasn't had a Big Ten representative since 1977 when Ohio State beat Colorado 27-10. Iowa — Hayden Fry's Hawkeyes are struggling, but attendance at Kinnick Stadium is still dynamite. However, whether or not the men in black and gold attend a New Year's Day bowl depends on how they do in their final three conference games, in particular the Minnesota matchup in Minneapolis. If the Hawkeyes finish the season at 9-2, a trip to the Cotton Bowl could still be in the cards. However, a more likely outcome will be an appearance in the Florida Citrus Bowl, which has expressed interest in Fry's squad all season. If Iowa loses any of its remaining games, a trip to the Gator Bowl is the most likely outcome. No matter where they go, however, expect a large contingent of Iowa fans to follow, something every bowl director loves to see.

Michigan State — George Perles has survived tough early season losses and is ready for his team to make a run at a third place finish in the league. With Indiana, Northwestern and Wisconsin left on its schedule, Michigan State should increase its stock greatly in the weeks to come. If Iowa spurns an offer from the Gator Bowl, look for the Spartans to snatch it up. Otherwise, they could be headed to Honolulu for the Aloha Bowl, which certainly wouldn't be an insult to anyone from East Lansing, Mich. Indiana — The Hoosiers have survived the rugged part of their schedule and need only win two of their last three games to earn a shot at a bowl berth, something they haven't done since 1979 when they lost to Brigham Young 38-37 in the Holiday Bowl. While a return to the Holiday Bowl is a possibility, the Peach Bowl is much more likely. Also expect people from the Hall of Fame Bowl to be sending letters to Coach Bill Mallory. Minnesota — The Gophers round out the the Big Ten teams who have a shot at a bowl bid. However, playing both Michigan and Iowa in its final two games will do much to hamper Minnesota's chances of postseason action. Should the Gophers finish 6-5, the Bluebonnet or All-American Bowl might be interested. Look for a team from the Pacific Ten to fill Minnesota's place quite neatly instead as the Gophers stay home for the holidays. Steve Williams is a DI Staff Writer.

Bumbling Bills boot Bullough after embarrassing NFL start

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — The Buffalo Bills, stumbling through yet another losing season, made their second in-season head coaching change in as many years Monday, firing Hank Bullough and naming Marv Levy as his successor. Levy, former coach of the Kansas City Chiefs who left the position of director of operations with the Canadian Football League Montreal Alouettes to become the 13th head coach in the history of the Bills, said he signed a multi-year contract to lead the 2-7 club. Terms of the pact were not disclosed. "I'm very excited and thrilled to be coming to the Buffalo Bills organization," said Levy, who guided the Chiefs to a 31-42 record from 1978 to 1981. "They have an outstanding quarterback prospect (in Jim Kelly), and it's a pleasant prospect."

NOT EVEN THE presence of Kelly, who signed a five-year, $8 million contract with the Bills before the start of the current season, could turn around the early-season fortunes of a team which had consecutive 2-14 records the past two years. Bullough, a defensive coordinator elevated to head coach after the fourth game last season, struggled to a 2-10 record the remainder of the season and finished with a 4-17 record overall. Bullough could not be reached for comment. He was the second NFL coach to be replaced this season, with Don Coryell stepping down from the San Diego Chargers last week. The Bills problems came to a climax in Sunday's 34-28 loss to the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. The mistake-prone Bills stumbled and fumbled through a first half which left them trailing 20-0 at halftime. They rallied in the second half behind Kelly's 342-yard passing performance, but the effort fell short. BILLS OWNER Ralph C. Wilson Jr., who did not attend the news conference to announce Levy's appointment, was said to be visibly upset while watching the game. As little as two weeks ago, however, the Bills owner gave Bullough a vote of confidence. "Everybody has lost patience with Hank but me," Wilson said at the time. "I haven't lost patience with him." The team's frequent mistakes, and a fan outcry to unleash Kelly's passing arm, apparently were the major factors leading to Bullough's release. "In our commitment to excellence," said David Olsen, Bills executive vice president, "as I would assess it, we've made substantial progress on the administrative side."

Schedule may hurt Bulldogs

DES MOINES (UPI) — Drake's basketball team could be better than last year's 19-11 squad but end up with a worse record because the schedule is so much tougher, Bulldog Coach Gary Garner said Monday. Garner also said he expects Drake to field a very quick starting line-up but is concerned about a lack of depth at the forward position. The Bulldogs posted a 10-6 mark in the Missouri Valley Conference last season, Garner's fifth year at Drake. They qualified for the National Invitational Tournament but lost to Marquette in the opening round. "We've been down to 10 players because of injuries in practice, but they've given the best effort since I've been here. Last year was the first really successful season we've had. It's that old thing, success breeds success," Garner said at his annual media day.

and our schedule is four or five games tougher. We can have a better team this year and not win as many games," Garner said. "Our schedule is a heck of a lot tougher than it looks on paper, beginning with Southwest Missouri State in the opener at the Hawaii Pacific Tournament," he said. "Southwest Missouri State beat Pittsburgh and Marquette in the NIT and lost to Florida by one point last year. They've got all their good players back. "HAWAII PACIFIC is ranked third in the NAIA. Southeast Louisiana is picked to win their league, Texas A & M tied for the Southwest Conference title last year and Wyoming is picked to win the WAC this year," Garner said. "We've really got to be ready to win that first game. If you go 0-3 or 1-6, the confidence of your basketball team affects you the rest of the year," he said.

Gary Garner DRAKE'S SCHEDULE includes Iowa State, Missouri, Iowa, Southwest Missouri State, Southeast Louisiana, Hawaii Pacific, Texas A & M and Wyoming. "We won 19 games last year

Author uses 'stop-time' for title, theme of novel

By B. Gordon Staff Writer

EVERYONE KNOWS Holden Caulfield, J.D. Salinger's teenage persona from The Catcher in the Rye. But Frank Conroy, while not quite as universally renowned, has one up on Caulfield: He's real.

Frank Conroy

self almost mystically. In one episode, he lies beside his dog Flossie in the doghouse:

It was a microcosmic world, closed on all sides. Within it my body was so large as to be meaningless — the way the sky is large outside — an immense thing so vastly out of scale it could be forgotten. A fingernail was huge, one hair a complete and engrossing entity, the cement under my head like a close-up of the surface of the moon...

CONROY'S TECHNIQUE is to at once analyze and mythologize his own life. His narrative style, and the exactitude of remembered dialogue, gives the lie to autobiography; but it is the adult's perspective on the adolescent's experience that is one of the most striking features of the book.

Conroy, most recently the author of Midair, a novel, is currently head of the National Endowment for the Arts Literary Fund.

Conroy, who will read in English-Philosophy Building Room 304 at 8 tonight, is best known for his book Stop-Time, a memoir of his childhood and adolescence. Originally published in 1967, Stop-Time was nominated for the National Book Award that year.

The phrase "stop-time" is never mentioned in the book, leaving its meaning somewhat mysterious, but in a fruitful way.

Stop-time could refer to the entire time of adolescence, a time in the growth of the psyche in which the child and adult are poised, like the point after the tide has reached its peak, yet before it begins to recede.

BUT FOR CONROY, stop-time is much more than that. It is also a time when the child's mind perceives all that is about to happen just before an event, by sensing how the next moment has changed this one. In one episode, Frank remembers a surprise visit from his father, an alcoholic who never knew his son:

Perhaps children remember only waiting for things. The moment events begin to occur they lose themselves in movement, like hypnotized dancers... The arrival home of my father late one night. I ran down the hall, opened the door, and looked up at him. My last memory is that something was wrong. The outlines of his body spread a corona of power. He emanated force. I've been told that on that night he got rough and chased me all over the apartment... But my memory ceases at the opening of the door. The image is vivid and detailed to the point of remembering the weave of his suit — gray-blue herringbone — and the smell of his breath. Bourbon, but after that, nothing.

OTHER MOMENTS of stop-time occur when Frank attempts to escape the emptiness of life with his selfish mother and irresponsible stepfather by entering him-

Burt Lancaster

Lancaster, Douglas make rare journey into comedy

By Kevin C. Kretschmer Staff Writer

BEFORE Newman and Redford, before DeNiro and Duvall, there was Lancaster and Douglas.

Burt Lancaster and Kirk Douglas are teamed for the sixth time in Tough Guys, a comedy directed by Jeff Kanew.

Lancaster and Douglas play criminals who have the distinction of pulling the last train robbery in the United States, a heist that ultimately landed them in prison for 30 years. Tough Guys follows their parole from prison and their readjustment to life on the "outside."

The film careers of Lancaster and Douglas both started in 1946 and include dozens of films over that 40-year period. They were paired for the first time in 1947 in I Walk Alone, a film typical of the crime melodramas with which they became strongly identified.

In the late 1950s and early 1960s, they co-starred in several films that have become American classics, including Gunfight at the O.K. Corral, The Devil's Disciple, The List of Adrian Messenger and Seven Days in May.

NOW, IT appears that Lancaster and Douglas are content to parody their images in Tough Guys, a rare excursion into comedy for both men. One would think they might have held out for a better script than the one by James Orr and Jim Cruickshank. Also, the choice of director Kanew, best-known for such lightweight fare as Revenge of the Nerds and Gotcha!, seems questionable.

Lancaster and Douglas still have the presence and magnetism that made them stars decades ago and their performances are funny and charming. However, the predictability of many of the situations and gags seems beneath them, even if the intention is to parody their images.

Harry Doyle (Lancaster) and Archie Long (Douglas) are 72 and 67 years old, respectively, when paroled. They are met outside the prison gate by Richie Evans (Dana Carvey), their rather innocent 28-year-old parole officer, who idolizes them.

RICHIE FINDS a place for Harry and the Golden Sunset Retirement Home and a job for Archie at an ice cream and yogurt parlor. Archie is considered a "disruptive influence" because he leads a protest for better food at the retirement home after refusing to eat his spinach souffle. Meanwhile, Archie gets fired after throwing a dish of ice cream at a smart-alecky kid. "What kind of job is that anyway, selling bacteria to children?" he explains later.

It isn't long before both men realize things might not work out as well as they had hoped. As if their readjustment isn't going bad enough, they are being followed by foul-mouthed hit man Leon B. Little (Eli Wallach), who is still trying to fulfill a contract on Harry and Archie made 30 years before.

SOON THEY come to believe that the only thing they are good at is crime and they go out to round up the "old gang." Unfortunately, for them, the "old gang" is exactly that — old. Harry and Archie decide they only have each other and set off to reassert themselves and regain some pride.

The film has a major split in its structure: The first half deals with Harry and Archie's attempts to assimilate on the outside while the second half shows their return to crime. The scenes of Harry and Archie rediscovering the world are fairly amusing, if none too original, but their return to crime and the forced, "high energy" ending don't quite come off.

The film boasts a fine supporting cast that, in addition to Carvey and Wallach, includes Alexis Smith, Darlanne Fluegel and Charles Durning, as the cop who wants to put them away a second time.

History isn't likely to regard Lancaster and Douglas' Tough Guys in the same class as some of their earlier pairings, but the duo is still pretty funny here, and plenty "tough enough."

Dancer tells story in moves

By Therese Teasdale
Staff Writer

HEMA Rajagopalan, an internationally acclaimed expert in Indian dance, demonstrated her mastery of the Bharat Natyam style of dance at her performance Sunday in Macbride Auditorium.

Rajagopalan has studied the Bharat Natyam style since the age of 6 and currently teaches it at her school in Chicago.

During the performance, Rajagopalan showed her mastery of the complex system of facial expressions, intricate hand movements and rhythmic forms that comprise the dance. She communicated well with the audience both through the dance and outside it.

In Bharat Natyam, each dance has a story, told in accompanying lyrics. Rajagopalan took time between selections to explain story lines from the pieces she performed. She also spoke about the devotional nature of the dance style. The lyrics praise the divine, and the dance is an aid in meditation.

THREE MUSICIANS from India accompanied Rajagopalan. The traditional Indian music is atonal, and differs from Western music in the emphasis of rhythm over melody. Rajagopalan noted that although the dance strictly determines the rhythmic patterns, the musicians do have a chance to do some improvising.

Rajagopalan's dance combined "pure dance" movements with sculptural poses, geometric forms and interpretive movements that told the story.

This unique opportunity to experience South Asian culture in Iowa City was provided in part by Kala Mandali, Friends of South Asian Arts. This "arts circle" is open to members of all nationalities and aims to bring South Asian art to southeast Iowa.

KALA MANDALI was formed last year because "after having been taking and taking and taking from the community," Satish Khera, one of the founding members, saw "an opportunity to give something back." Khera is the group's president and a professor in the UI Department of Operative Dentistry.

The non-profit organization depends on contributions and ticket sales to fund its programs. The next scheduled event is an art exhibition in the lobby of Iowa State Bank and Trust Co., 102 S. Clinton St. The showing will be on display January through March and is free to the public.

In conjunction with Ravi Shankar's sitar performance at Hancher Auditorium in April, the group will host a lecture-demonstration. Proceeds will go to future Kala Mandali events.
