LASA wants probe of UI defense research

By Joseph Levy
Staff Writer

UI professors conducting research for the U.S. Defense Department may be violating UI policies, UI Liberal Arts Student Association President, Gordon Fischer said Wednesday.

According to Fischer, military researchers here may be developing different types of nerve gases and toxic contaminants designed to kill large populations of people.

"We are not sure if this research is going on, but we intend to find out," Fischer said. "We really wonder if this does not violate the university human rights policy."

LASA passed legislation Tuesday ordering its Students In Society Committee to investigate and report on what kind of Defense Department research is being done at the UI. Fischer said the report would probably be published in a few weeks.

The UI Pharmacology Department received $317,151 from the Defense Department between September 1985 and September 1986 intended for Army medical research, a UI official said last week.

FISCHER SAID "some very substantive leads" had informed him that a poison tablet was being researched in UI labs designed to be introduced into water supplies. The lethal drug would destroy the human central nervous system.

But UI Acting Associate Vice President for Educational Development and Research Derek Willard said he did not know of any such research taking place at the UI.

Willard said it is the decision of the faculty members what they want to research, but no research at the UI is classified.

"WE DO NOT create a policy for what could be researched on this campus," he said. "That is vested in the faculty.

"War is a pretty ugly business," he added. "I'm not sure what way the university can be involved in the avoidance of war."

If such research is taking place, Fischer said it could stir up controversy. "I would not be surprised to see a lot of students and faculty upset," he said.

LASA member Marianne Cherni said she understood that some UI professors were doing such research in UI laboratories on their own time.

"If they're doing it on university property using university equipment, then they're doing it for the university," she said.

Cherni said she hoped the LASA study will prompt others to examine the issue more closely. "As many people as possible should be looking into it," she said. "That type of research would be in violation of several university policies."

Senators, Reagan need to unite: Byrd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd urged President Ronald Reagan Wednesday to abandon his "bitterly partisan" politics and avoid two years as a lame duck leader of the United States.

"If he is not obstructionist we will work together," Byrd told reporters. "I have never seen so partisan a White House as with this president. I hope the president and his people will not be so bitterly partisan."

"President Reagan does not need to be a lame duck, if he is realistic," he said, adding that the "loud and clear" message of the election was that the American people want more balance in the government's decision-making.

After six years in the minority, Democrats seized control of the Senate in Tuesday's election, producing a remarkably strong 55-45 margin and ousting incumbent Republicans from coast to coast.

DESPITE PLEDGES of cooperation with Reagan, Senate Democrats appeared headed for a confrontation with the White House on numerous issues and there was no indication of an administration give and take.

White House Chief of Staff Donald Regan said on ABC's "Good Morning America" that, "I think (Byrd will find) that something he'll have to figure out is where to get enough votes to override a veto."

Even Senate Republican leader Robert Dole, who will stay on as GOP minority chief, said with the Democrats in control of Capitol Hill, trade and farm legislation "may be different" and Byrd strongly indicated the change would extend to economic and foreign issues. Byrd and Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, chairman of the senatorial campaign committee, said White House appointments, specifically the lifetime judicial nominations, will be more severely scrutinized.

Byrd predicted that Senate Democrats will work "more closely" with the House, under Democratic domination for the past 32 years — "even more" than when Jimmy Carter was president.

Based on seniority, the committee chairmanships are all but settled with some liberals moving into key positions.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., probably will take over the Judiciary Committee, bumping Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., a 1988 presidential hopeful.

Other liberals in line for chairmanships include: Sen. Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio, Labor and Human Resources; Sen. Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island, Foreign Relations.

State constitution changed by voters

United Press International

Iowa voters have approved a change in the state's constitution eliminating a requirement that certain bills be printed in newspapers before they become law.

Nearly 60 percent of voters who cast ballots Tuesday supported the amendment. A majority was necessary for the change.

The amendment repeals a provision in the constitution requiring bills that take effect any time other than the beginning of a fiscal year be published in two newspapers before they can take effect.

Outgoing Secretary of State Mary Jane Odell, a backer of the constitutional change, said her office spent between $5,000 and $10,000 annually in advertising expenses to have bills printed in weekly newspapers. She added the ads appeared to be of little public interest.

IN OTHER BALLOT issues Tuesday, voters in Dubuque and Davenport rejected measures to levy a 1 cent local option sales tax on themselves. But a similar measure was approved in Ames.

Ames officials said the sales tax measure approved by their voters 5,951-4,847 will raise between $1.9 million and $2.2 million for the city. Sixty percent of the new money will go toward reducing property taxes.

In Dubuque, a similar referendum failed 6,487-8,461, although voters in 13 other Dubuque County towns approved it.

Voters in Davenport and Bettendorf also defeated sales tax referendums proposed to restore funds lost through cuts in federal aid. In Davenport the measure failed 9,733-13,268. Bettendorf voters rejected the proposed tax increase 4,453-2,769. McCausland was the only Scott County town to approve the local option tax.

Johnson County vote figures in GOP losses

By James Cahoy
Staff Writer

In the wake of poor Republican showings in local elections, many GOP leaders say they're becoming frustrated with the Democrats' stronghold on Johnson County.

Johnson County leveled the biggest blow to Republican 3rd District congressional candidate John McIntee in his loss to Democrat Dave Nagle Tuesday, according to Paul Ruppert, McIntee's campaign manager.

"Of course it was heavily responsible," Ruppert said. "We lost the county by 6,000 votes. That was almost half of the total number of votes we lost by."

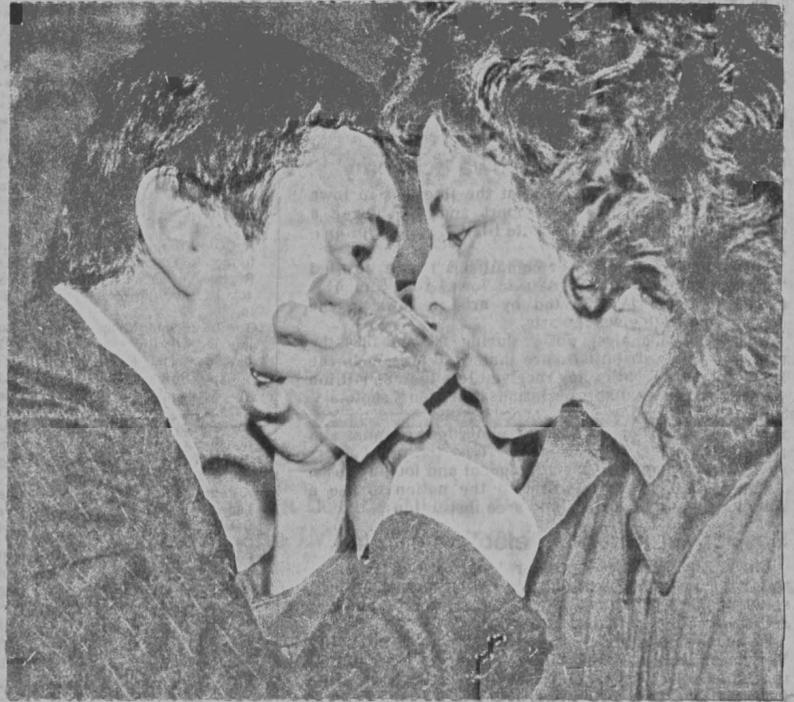

Nagle will be the first Democrat sent to Washington, D.C. to represent Johnson County in 10 years, and the first Democrat to hold Iowa's 3rd District congressional seat in 52 years. Johnson County was part of Iowa's 1st District prior to congressional district boundary realignment in 1980.

"I think Dave Nagle did an extraordinary job of targeting his message to students and other Johnson County voters, but I also think there's no question that Johnson County is a heavily Democratic county," Ruppert said. "Republicans just don't want to seem to get out and vote there."

FORMER IOWA City Mayor John Balmer, who chaired McIntee's campaign in Johnson County, agreed that Johnson County hurt McIntee's campaign.

"This county has historically been Democratic," Balmer said. "I think the only reason Cooper Evans was able to win the county the last election was because he ran against taken opposition."

"Republicans can't win here," Balmer said. "I think what you're going to see is less Republican interest in fielding candidates in the county. It's very frustrating to me because I believe in the two-party system and you just don't have it here."

Dave Nagle and his wife, Diane, share the first of Republican John McIntee broke a 52-year GOP toast after Nagle's victory Tuesday. Nagle's defeat hold on the 3rd District congressional seat.

Johnson County Republican co-chair Brian Miller admitted the performance of local Republican candidates in Tuesday's general election was "terrible."

"I THINK THE degree of our losses in Johnson County were surprising," Miller said. "We really didn't expect to do that badly. The Democrats just were better organized."

Johnson County Elections Commissioner Jeff McCullough said there is a reason why Republican candidates find it difficult to win in Johnson County.

"This is one of the most heavily Democratic counties in the state by registration," McCullough said. "It's not surprising that, for example, we haven't had a Republican on the board of supervisors since 1962."

But Miller said he doesn't think the Republican cause in Johnson County is hopeless.

"Republicans can win in Johnson County," Miller said. "Chuck Grassley, for example, won in Johnson County. But I think it's very hard to win here unless you are an incumbent and have name recognition."

"It's too bad in some ways that the Democrats have such a stronghold on the county," Miller said. "I think they really take the student vote for granted."

Deserted Moscow 'hostages' claim neglect by government

MOSCOW (UPI)—Five Americans caught in a battle with Soviet authorities over their dual U.S.-Soviet citizenship appealed to Washington on Wednesday "not to forget its hostages in Moscow" and to help them return to the West.

In a hastily called press conference in a dingy Moscow apartment timed to coincide with the Vienna meeting on European security and human rights, the five Americans said their case was no different than the U.S. Embassy hostages once held in Iran or the Americans still captive in Lebanon.

The five — Andrei Efremov, Kim Lewis, Janet Kotlyar, Abe Stolar and his son Michael — all hold U.S. passports by virtue of being born to American citizens. However, all either hold Soviet citizenship or did until it was revoked because of their efforts to emigrate. The Soviet Union does not recognize their U.S. citizenship.

They said Soviet authorities have refused them all exit visas and the U.S. government has done little to help.

THEY SAID A letter of appeal to President Reagan has gone unanswered. The group has also written for help to U.S. News & World Report correspondent Nicholas Daniloff, an American citizen arrested in August and later released in a swap involving a suspected Soviet spy in the United States and a Soviet dissident.

"Daniloff was a hostage and so are we," said Lewis, a Soviet-trained biologist who is the unofficial spokesman of the group and who voted in Tuesday's congressional elections by absentee ballot. He proudly displays a photocopy of the ballot on his apartment wall.

A signed statement by the group said, "The protection we receive from the U.S. government falls far short of what any American can reasonably expect under the circumstances."

"In effect, we are being left to the mercy of the Soviets," it said.

A SPOKESMAN FOR the U.S. Embassy in Moscow said the five "are recognized by this embassy as American citizens."

"We do everything we can to help them. Official representation has been made on their behalf to the Soviet government on several occasions and we will continue to do all we can to help them," the spokesman said.

Gas and electric franchises OK'd

Iowa City voters Tuesday overwhelmingly approved two local ordinances that will grant Iowa-Illinois Gas & Electric Co. the right to use public properties when installing utility services.

The ordinances — known as franchise agreements — will take effect next year and run for 15 years, according to city officials.

A majority of the city council backed the 15-year pact, calling the referendum a show of confidence for the local business community.

However, those who opposed the proposals said the gas and electric company would be less accountable to the city, which wouldn't be able to renegotiate with another franchise until the year 2003. The city would not have the option of buying the utility and providing its own services until after the turn of the 21st century.

Mayor William Ambrisco said the city could not afford to buy the franchise, worth about $166 million and was also against charging Iowa-Illinois a fee for using city property because the fee-cost would be passed along to local utility users.

Center helps to 'cope with mid-life'

Mercy Spiritual Center in Cedar Rapids will present a double look at "Coping with Mid-life," at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 13.

Marriage and family therapist Ken Owen will survey the psychological events that mark the middle years, while the Rev. James Duster, pastor of St. John's Church of Independence, Iowa, will focus on the spiritual implications of those events.

In their dialogue they will examine what enables apparent "dead ends" in middle age to become opportunities for spiritual and emotional growth.

The seminar costs $8 to attend if registered by Nov. 11. Those who register late will be charged $10 for admittance. For further information call 366-3638.

Harvest evensong benefits farmers

A harvest festival evensong will be presented at 5 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 9, at Trinity Episcopal Church, 320 E. College St., in an effort to assist area farmers with food and health care needs.

The Cornell College choir will perform music by English composers, including works by Herbert Howells and William Walton.

A free-will offering will be taken for the benefit of the Farmer Helping Farmer Program of Iowa.

After the service, an exhibit of textiles reflecting the harvest season will be on display in the parish hall. The public is welcome.

UI study: Fine arts aid Iowa economy

A recent UI study showed that the fine arts in Iowa receive significant public support and are having a growing economic impact despite limited state appropriations.

UI Professor John Fuller compiled a report entitled "Economic Impact of the Arts in Iowa" that compares economic support generated by arts in Iowa to the support the state gives the arts.

In a 12-month analysis period during 1983 and 1984, the arts in Iowa contributed more than $110 million to the state's economy while they received less than $1 million in state and federal appropriations, the report shows.

Fuller analyzed various facets of economic impact, including direct factors such as admission revenues and performers' income taxes, as well as indirect factors such as audience transportation, meal and lodging costs.

The UI study was the first in the nation to use a statewide survey of artists and area institutions.

Speech on American electorate today

Ida Beam Visiting Professor Frances Fox Piven, a specialist in women's studies and political science, will speak at 4:30 p.m. today at the UI International Center in Jefferson Building Room 204.

Piven teaches political science at City University of New York. Her lecture, titled "Political Culture, Parties and the Demobilization of the American Electorate," will be followed by a $2 buffet supper and a discussion, both at the International Center.

Piven has written four books that deal with welfare, poverty and lower-class struggles. Her visit to the UI is sponsored by the Women's Studies Program and the Graduate Program in Urban and Regional Planning.

Councilors ponder uses for refund

By Carlos M. Trevino
Staff Writer

When the city received an insurance refund check for more than $20,000 at Tuesday's council meeting, Mayor William Ambrisco called it "pennies from heaven."

Councilors agreed the money could be put to good use, but didn't know who would get it. "What a horrible time for it to come," Councilor Ernest Zuber said, referring to the refund. "Right when everybody is asking for money."

But people are asking for more than pennies.

During a public hearing to determine the use of a projected $700,000 in Community Development Block Grant funds, citizens requested more than $100,000.

One of those requests came from the Miller-Orchard Neighborhood Group for sidewalks and flood control barriers costing $161,000. The neighborhood is located near Benton Street on the city's west side.

Karen Hradek told councilors that the flooding problem is so bad, people are finding water in their homes as well as their yards.

"Put on your boots and I'll show you around," Hradek offered councilors.

Hradek said her neighborhood project needs an additional $30,000 to be completed. "We're about $30,000 short," she said. "It's not going to get the job done."

But the creek problem in that neighborhood is not the only

The Daily Iowan/Jeffrey Sedam one the council is trying to resolve.

Councilor John McDonald reminded councilors of problems on the city's east side surrounding the Ralston Creek area.

McDonald said nearly $1 million was spent on flood control at Ralston Creek and "with all the money we spent, we just walked away from it," before the task was completed.

THAT TASK began more than a decade ago.

Councilor Kate Dickson said she remembered when the Committee on Community Needs, one group which advises the city on how to spend the funds, saw nearly an entire year's allocation spent on Ralston Creek.

McDonald criticized the committee for "not even considering using any more of their money for that specific problem."

Committee chairwoman Karen Kubby countered by saying the funds were allocated this year to benefit people more directly and because the financial needs of Ralston Creek far exceeded what her group could recommend.

The committee did not recommend $100,000 for Youth Homes, which provides emergency and short-term shelter for teenagers in two Iowa City houses.

Youth Homes deals with about 130 troubled youths a year, according to Director Bill McCarty.

The council is expected to make final approvals on allocations before the year ends.

An Iowa City man arrested for exposing himself to two women near a local apartment complex made his initial appearance Wednesday in Johnson County District Court.

Doug D. Vandamme, 18, of 547 Emerald St., Apt. A-19, was charged Tuesday with two counts of indecent exposure.

He was also arrested at the scene for carrying weapons when Iowa City police officers discovered Vandamme carrying a 10-inch knife in his coat, court records state.

Court records state Vandamme exposed himself to two women in separate incidents Tuesday night at the Emerald Street Apartment parking lot, 535 Emerald St.

Vandamme allegedly approached one woman while she was in her car, "unzipped his trouser fly" and exposed his genitals to her. Court records state she "started her car and left before he had a chance to do more."

Vandamme was being held Wednesday at the Johnson County Jail in lieu of $2,000 bond. His preliminary hearing is scheduled for Nov. 14.

Dinucci, 21, of 637 S. Johnson St., was also arrested in the incident. Dinucci was charged with public intoxication.

Vandalism report: Two tires were slashed on a car belonging to Mark Mangels, 713 Iowa Ave., Iowa City police reports state.

Mangels told police he believes the incident occurred sometime last Friday night. No damage estimate was given in the report.

Theft report: A black John Deere brand bicycle valued at $100 was stolen Tuesday from the residence of Julie Ann Weber, 902 N. Dodge St., Apt. A5, according to Iowa City police reports.

Report: Ann Marie Van Vooren, 21, of 505 E. Burlington St., Apt. 9B, was arrested by Iowa City police early Wednesday near the intersection of Burlington and Johnson streets and was charged with operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated and speeding, police reports state.

Religious cults may be seen as a UI student official said Tuesday.

Katherine Gannon, UI representative of Students for Education and Awareness, said members of a local religious group may be seeking signatures for a petition to attempt to gain names of students they will contact later date.

"They may be using the names for a recruiting strategy," Gannon said. "It's so they don't tell you what they're going to do."

"When you ask too many questions they walk away," Gannon said. "When I ask questions they call me a communist."

Gannon said the signatories may be members of the National Federation for Association of the Societies of America and that there is a direct link between the federation and the Unification Church.

Gannon said CAUSA solicited the UI campus and is trying to collect student signatures in order to recruit Rev. Sun Myung Moon, head of the Unification Church and his followers, some referred to as "Moonies."

Petition may be cult recruiting tool

By John M. McClintock

Religious cults may be seeking UI students as new members, a UI student official said Wednesday.

Katherine Gannon, UI Representative of Students for the Education and Awareness of Psychological Totalism, said members of a local religious group may be seeking signatures for a petition in an attempt to gain names of students they will contact at a later date.

"They may be using the signatures for a recruiting scam," Gannon said. "It's so vague they don't tell you what they're going to do."

"When you ask too many questions they walk away," Gannon said. "When I ask questions they call me a communist."

Gannon said the solicitors may be members of the Confederation for Association and Unity of the Societies of the Americas and that there is a direct link between the confederation and the Unification Church.

Gannon said CAUSA solicitors on the UI campus may be trying to collect student signatures in order to recruit for Rev. Sun Myung Moon, head of the Unification Church and his followers, sometimes referred to as "Moonies."

Kevin Crawley, co-director of Unbound Incorporated, an organization that counsels those who have left cults, said CAUSA has a close link with the Unification Church.

"I know there's CAUSA on campus and CAUSA is a Moonie front group," Crawley said. "They're all the same."

But Crawley said Unification Church members have not been successful at the UI.

"As a recruiting organization, I don't think they have been very effective at all," Crawley said.

RICK LAMARTINA, a Unification Church member from 1979-82, agreed CAUSA is directly tied with the Unification Church.

"CAUSA is a push for further movement of the Unification Church," LaMartina said. "The Unification Church is trying to get a foothold in the government, the universities and the business world."

"Make sure you ask a lot of questions," LaMartina advised. "If someone approaches you and you haven't received everything you wanted, you should feel justified in moving on. Most people don't make the link."

UI course covers problems of elderly

By Shawn Plank
Staff Writer

A new UI program, funded by a $549,561 grant from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, will help health care professionals deal with problems that face Iowa's elderly, UI College of Medicine Professor Ian Smith said Wednesday.

The UI Geriatric Education Center will provide elderly health care information to health care professionals through a series of courses beginning next September, said Smith, who will also direct the activities of the center.

"We hope and expect our center to gain national recognition which could help Iowa researchers in their efforts to obtain additional funding for studies on the elderly," Smith said.

The center will coordinate research data on Iowa's aging population and establish a resource center dealing with problems of the elderly. Nationally, Iowa has the largest proportion of people over the age of 80, Smith said.

UI INSTRUCTORS WILL teach a 180-hour, 10-month course attended by five UI faculty members and five health care professionals from Iowa communities who will receive educational fellowships.

Methods acquired during the 10-month course will in turn be taught in communities around Iowa, Smith said.

Topics covered in the course include Alzheimer's disease, pneumonia, bladder control problems, medications, treatment of dry skin irritation, heart attacks, oral diseases and economic and social concerns affecting care of the elderly.

In addition, a two-week summer course will be offered to professionals and faculty from other colleges unable to attend the 10-month program.

"Within a very few years, care for the aged should be better understood and applied throughout Iowa because of this program," Smith said.

ALTHOUGH SIMILAR programs exist in about 20 other states, the UI center will be unique because of the rural nature of the state, UI Aging Studies Coordinator Hermine McLeran said.

"Most of the other centers are in large metropolitan areas," she said.

A geriatric resource center which will offer more than 400 books, 12,000 journal articles and instructional films will also be established at the UI College of Medicine, Smith said.

The center will draw on the resources of five of the ten UI colleges, including medicine, pharmacy, nursing, liberal arts and dentistry. Eight faculty members will work with Smith to operate the center.

Nothing could have prepared me for the first few moments with my roommate. "Anique"—nothing more, just "Anique"—was her name. Change the "A" to a "U" and you've got a description.

When they asked what type of roommate I wanted, I didn't know that I needed to be more specific than non-smoker. I could swear I saw a picture of Anique on a postcard I got from London. Within five minutes, I found out that she was an Art History student, into the Psychedelic Furs, and totally, totally against the domestication of animals.

I was just about ready to put in for a room transfer when she reached into her leather backpack, pulled out a can of Suisse Mocha and offered me a cup. Okay, I decided I'd keep an open mind.

As we sipped our cups, I found out that Anique and I share the same fondness for Cary Grant movies, the same disdain for wine coolers, and the same ex-boyfriend. That gave us plenty to talk about.

In passing

The long election process is past, but, despite some changes in the nation's political alignment, neither party can claim unqualified victory — the Democrats won control of the Senate, but the Republicans made big gains in governorships.

Bittersweet election results such as this are often the most difficult to accept, as both sides wonder what more could have been done to win complete victory. But now it is time to move ahead with those we have elected. And, as both winners and losers said Tuesday night, the most important lesson from the election is that the system for choosing leaders in our country — for all its flaws — is still the best.

Planting the seed

A lone seed, carefully and painstakingly nurtured, was mowed down in Portland, Ore., Tuesday.

Members of the Oregon Marijuana Initiative put in years of labor to plant this seed: a referendum asking voters to decide whether adults should be allowed to grow and possess marijuana solely for private use. Sadly, it was smothered in the great "war on drugs" herbicide so heavily used this fall, and this week it withered.

Oregon voters overwhelmingly defeated the proposed referendum Tuesday. But the Oregon Marijuana Initiative workers promise that doesn't mean the end for the fight to reform marijuana laws.

The measure had a few flaws that could have turned potential supporters into opponents. Its timing obviously wasn't ideal, it mandated a legal age of 18 that wasn't in sync with the 21 drinking age and it placed no limit on the amount of marijuana citizens could legally grow.

Oregon Marijuana Initiative Director John Sajo said Wednesday his organization is aware of these snags and will begin working immediately to present a more digestible referendum to voters. Next time such factors will be considered, he said.

It's heartening that those who worked for the initiative haven't given up the farm — they're working on a strong premise that should be allowed the chance to flower.

Approximately 14,000 tons of marijuana are consumed in the United States every year, and studies say fewer young people are doing the consuming. That means a sizable majority of the adult population is illegally enjoying a substance that could easily become one of the country's largest cash crops — if legalized.

In fact, a University of Missouri economist recently estimated that legalizing marijuana would increase the gross national product by $10.1 billion to $30.3 billion a year. This could produce 270,000 to 816,000 new jobs and add $2.4 billion to $7.2 billion to annual tax collections. In addition, the federal government could save about $500 million a year in enforcement costs.

Tuesday's election results seem to indicate that the public is not quite ready to accept legalized marijuana use, but the seed was not completely blown away. The Oregon initiative attracted national attention and laid the groundwork for further efforts.

The United States has come a long way since the "reefer madness" hysteria of 25 years ago. Perhaps in 25 more years Americans will wake up and allow themselves a basic right they've been too long denied.

Fundamentalists' threaten diversity in the classroom

YOU ARE certainly as good as you are beautiful! But you have not yet told me how to get back to Kansas."

These popular words from Frank Baum's The Wizard of Oz have been read by millions of children and adults since the book's creation in 1900. Millions more have viewed the classic 1939 film, shown each year on the national networks.

Since the early years of my life — when the 64-color box of crayons, "kooties" and long recesses were the mainstay of my existence — I have faithfully watched the annual showing of the movie. And once I mastered the basics of reading, Baum's book was one of the first "big people" books I completed.

Apparently, I have not been alone in my fascination with the yellow brick road and Emerald City — The Wizard of Oz, which was given the Lewis Carroll Shelf Award in 1968, is one of the most popular children readers at the Iowa City Public Library. And last Friday evening many versions of Dorothy and her friends were seen on the streets of Iowa City. Indeed, most would agree that The Wizard of Oz belongs in the childhood classics category along with Beauty and the Beast and Charlotte's Web.

SEVERAL PARENTS in Greenville, Tenn., however, think otherwise. Two weeks ago, a federal court judge ruled in favor of the group's claim that hundreds of passages from a textbook reader series offended their religious beliefs. The judge, in his decision, wrote that the group's First Amendment rights had been violated by the Hawkins County School District.

By Suzanne McBride

Digressions

One of the works criticized by the group was Baum's classic. They objected to The Wizard of Oz because it promotes witchcraft and shows children that such traits as courage, intelligence and compassion are developed rather than God given.

The district must now find a different way to teach the reading program, and next month a jury will determine how much the group is entitled to in damages.

WHILE THIS CASE is only one of many currently pending in the nation's court system, some legal scholars, school officials and citizens are alarmed by the ruling. They believe this victory may serve as a precedent, causing more school curricula to be banned.

Indeed, removing books and films from schools is reason for concern. But what is more alarming than the possible spreading of similar action to other districts is the demand of many groups to reduce, if not eliminate, diversity in the classroom.

Diversity is an important classroom component because it helps construct a realistic learning environment for students. By offering a wide range of stories, facts and pictures, a teacher is able to provide students with a broad spectrum of ideas. Such variety in the classroom is needed so that students will have the opportunity to master the invaluable skill of making decisions — a vital skill students need to learn in order to successfully live in today's complex world.

IN THIS PARTICULAR case, no books will be banned. Instead, the children of "concerned" parents will be allowed to leave the classroom during the time the "offensive" passages are taught. As a result, however, the rest of their classmates will suffer. Although they will continue to study the readers, the diversity the restricted children offered during the discussion of the material will be lost. Both parties will miss out on potential learning, which after all, is the primary reason all students, regardless of belief system, attend school.

Educators and legislators alike should be concerned that diversity in the classroom has been restricted. While the physical pulling of books and films from school shelves is reason for worry, it is the reduction in variety that will most harm all students involved. This is the real tragedy.

Digressions are comments from Daily Iowan staff members. Suzanne McBride is a DI editorial writer.

Wonderful thoughts about life

By Scott Raab

Although Andy Rooney scholars may disagree, I believe that Dion and the Belmonts were the first to "wonder" publicly. Today, the tradition continues...

I wonder why the UI doesn't merge with the Sharon Doran Academy of Science and Hairdesign. Why mess with laser labs and Asian Studies when you can create the world's first doctoral program in Creme Rinsing?

I wonder why people who say "if you don't vote, don't complain" don't realize that most elections in this country feature two flunkies who have sludge for brains and the ethics of mosquitos.

I wonder why every bonehead with a shotgun suddenly becomes a constitutional scholar whenever gun control is attempted. I mean, don't you tend to mistrust any Bill of Rights interpretation made by people who kill for fun?

I WONDER WHY everyone in Iowa City says, "you bet" after I say "thank you" or "see you around" or "say Hi to the gerbils." Is this the corn belt's answer to "shalom?"

I wonder why fundamentalist Christians are always complaining about an anti-Christian bias. It couldn't be because so many of them are happily ignorant bigots trying to force a backward set of ethics upon a pluralistic society, could it?

I wonder why more instructors don't scream directly at their erring students, the way Professor Hayden Fry got into Mark Vlasic's face during the Ohio State game. Can you imagine the extra time you'd spend on math if you knew you'd get reamed on national television for a wrong answer? Talk about building character...

I wonder why television stations run the majority of public service announcements at 2 or 3 in the morning. The warnings to children about suspicious adults are especially meaningful at that time of night, aren't they?

AND ISN'T THAT Bruce Willis, the fabulous male lead of "Moonlighting," quite a guy? First, he's all over prime time, whoring his talent-free soul for Seagram's wine coolers. Then he makes a 30-second spot begging kids not to use drugs. You're beautiful, Bruce baby. It's so rare to see your kind of commitment and integrity in Tinseltown.

I wonder why Moda Americana hired the star of Eraserhead to model their fashions. Couldn't they have found some local guy to hit in the face with a shovel and dress up?

I wonder why folks fuss about Kurt Waldheim's war service. After all, isn't Austria's passion for Nazis one of our century's great love affairs? And isn't having a lousy memory a prerequisite for public service in the United States, too? The way people talk, you'd think the guy helped slaughter civilians or something.

I wonder why so many people go to college. Is it to make conversation easier at the gym and the tanning salon? If it's simply to get a good job, why don't they just find a trade school? Is it because trade school's don't have fraternities? Just wondering...

After the campaign, focus must be on recovery

By Gary Hart

Comment

AT THE END of the movie The Candidate, as exuberant supporters celebrate election night, Senator-elect McKay plaintively asks his campaign manager, "What do we do now?"

The real debate over the future of our country cannot end on election night; it must begin. Now that this season of negative campaigning and political action committee influence is mercifully behind us, we need an agenda for regional economic recovery and investments in our future.

First, we must acknowledge the dark side of Reaganomics' legacy: California's Silicon and Pennsylvania's Monongahela valleys are both reeling from a quadrupled trade debt. Steel employment has been cut to half. Farm foreclosures are at record levels. The march toward energy independence is in chaotic retreat, with net oil imports up 36 percent in one year. Bulging bank debts threaten Latin American democracies and United States financial institutions from the oil patch to the Farm Belt.

Forward looking leaders must now seize the initiative with the following five proposals for economic renewal and reform.

• Regaining trade competitiveness. The place to start is comprehensive trade legislation. It would call for new investments in education, training and research to help American industries produce world-class products. It would provide tough and automatic penalties against foreign producers who flout existing United States trade laws.

The custom service's budget should be increased and enforcement standards — for the interception of counterfeit and illegal imports — should be raised. By converting existing quotas to revenue-producing tariffs, we can finance investments to narrow the trade deficit without widening the national debt. This approach would restore a competitive edge to our workers and firms without igniting an explosion of protectionism.

• Recapturing energy security. Declining prices have brought exploration for oil and domestic production of energy to a screeching halt. As consumers enjoy the short-term benefits of lower energy prices, our dependence on foreign fuel is approaching the dangerous levels of the years before Arab embargo in 1973.

To respond, the Senate should adopt an oil import fee. Such a fee would reduce the deficit, renew our drive to energy independence and provide insurance in case of a Persian Gulf war. A portion of the revenues should be dedicated to low-income energy assistance and to research and development of new energy technologies — ranging from clean-coal projects to conservation.

• Rebuilding the farm economy. The plight of America's family farmers defies description. Eleven months after passage of the administration's $30 billion farm bill, corn costing $3 a bushel to produce is now selling for 96 cents.

Neither untargeted subsidies to huge corporate farms nor wholesale reductions in price to boost exports are the answer. Instead, we need a system of supply management, accompanied by reforms in international agricultural trade policies. Supply management would save billions of dollars in current farm spending, providing funds to finance relief for the farm credit system. This proposal would stabilize prices and keep farm families on the land.

• Restoring financial stability. The budget, trade, Latin American debt and farm debt crises threaten financial stability and hammer already troubled sectors of our economy. Bank failures are at record levels. As Latin American governments send dollars to overextended banks — instead of spending dollars for American products — our workers lose their jobs. The $200 billion budget deficit overvalues the dollar, thus taxing our exports and subsidizing foreign imports. We risk an international depression unless we break the current fiscal and financial deadlock.

We must replace the fantasies of supply-side economics and Gramm-Rudman-Hollings with real revenues and real choices about how to spend them. We must tell our largest banks that full repayment of all their international loans simply isn't in the national interest. And we must ensure that our agriculture and energy economies aren't crushed by a mountain of debts.

• Investing in our future. America has always prospered when forward-looking leaders proposed investments in education, infrastructure and opportunity. From the land grant colleges to the space program, the visible hands of progressive government have been key to economic progress.

The capstone of the Senate agenda should be a Strategic Investment Initiative. From expanded investments in schools and training programs to the creation of the best research laboratories in the world, America must prepare to meet the challenges of the next century.

Tuesday night, the victors enjoyed their celebration. But there are momentous economic challenges facing this country and we have to address them. Leaders with vision won't worry about standing up to a personally popular president. His administration has failed to provide a blueprint for an era of great change. He had his turn and now it's time to move on. This is the time to offer a hard-headed program for economic modernization and competitiveness to a country that is willing and waiting to change.

English Department to offer honors students new option

By Jeff Rynott
Freelance Writer

UI English majors will have a new departmental honors program beginning next semester.

Under the current program, English majors seeking to graduate with honors take an Honors Proseminar in their junior year and write an honors thesis in their senior year. The new program will offer four honors seminar courses every year. Honors candidates will have the option of taking three honors seminars and revising the three required essays as a final honors project, or taking two honors seminars and still completing a senior year honors thesis under faculty supervision.

Professor Miriam Gilbert, chairwoman of the English Honors Committee, said the current honors program has been in effect for five years.

"What we're doing now marks a real change in the move to more emphasis on course work," Gilbert said of the new program.

"I THINK WE were looking for a way to make the honors program more effective, to interest more students in it and also, in a way, to make it more rigorous," she said. "The emphasis on course work would allow people to make the work for their English major more meaningful."

Professor Katherine Hayles, an English Honors Committee member, said she favored the shift to course work.

Hayles said only 13 of 90 possible candidates for the current departmental honors program had enrolled in the thesis-oriented program.

"We thought there were more students who would be interested and would benefit than were currently enrolled," Hayles said of the reasons for the change.

English majors must have the collegiate honors requirement of a 3.2 grade point average, but must also have a 3.5 in English courses to be eligible for the departmental honors program.

"WE'RE ESSENTIALLY saying we want the 'A' students, in English, to do the honors work," Gilbert said.

Those students who are eligible for the new program are being contacted through the mail and in their English courses, Gilbert said, a practice she expects will continue at the beginning of each semester.

The honors seminars will meet for three hours a week, be worth four semester hours of credit and will include final essays of 15 to 20 pages. Courses are limited to 15 students per seminar, and registration for the seminars will be on a first-come, first-served basis, Gilbert said.

The spring seminars will explore "Theory of Literature" and "The American Social/Political Novel." Courses are only open to English honors students, and those interested in registering for the seminars should contact the English Honors Committee before spring registration.

Hayles said it was "a little early to tell" if there will be more student response to the new program, but she expects there will be.

Gilbert said the faculty has responded favorably as well, turning in twice as many proposals to teach seminars as were needed.

Extension requested in Hasenfus trial

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — Prosecutors asked a Nicaraguan court Wednesday for more time to present evidence against captured American flier Eugene Hasenfus, charged with terrorism and gunrunning for U.S.-backed rebels.

Assistant prosecutor Ivan Villavicencio said he asked for a four-day extension so state investigators can further inspect the area where Hasenfus's C-130 cargo plane crashed on Oct. 5, after being shot down by Nicaraguan troops.

Hasenfus was on a supply run, carrying supplies and ammunition to the Contras.

Former U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell, who is advising the defense, suggested the prosecution is trying to delay the verdict and sentencing to keep the case from interfering with the 25th anniversary of the founding of the ruling Sandinista National Liberation Front.

Shultz, Shevardnadze speak in Vienna

VIENNA — Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze preceded a private meeting Wednesday with tough public speeches.

Following their speeches on the 1975 Helsinki Agreement of European Security and Cooperation, they met for 90 minutes at the U.S. Embassy.

In his speech, Shultz quoted President Ronald Reagan in a reference to Soviet violations of the Helsinki provisions on human rights by saying, "A government that will break faith with its own people cannot be trusted to keep faith with foreign powers."

Shevardnadze used an even tougher tone, accusing the United States of stirring up the arms race by insisting on going ahead with the Strategic Defense Initiative.

He accused the United States of violating the Helsinki agreement by creating a society with high unemployment and large numbers of homeless people.

Mozambique to receive new leader

MAPUTO, Mozambique — Former Foreign Minister Joaquim Chissano will be sworn in today amid new accusations that South Africa was responsible for the plane crash death 18 days ago of his predecessor, officials said Wednesday.

His predecessor, Samora Machel, died Oct. 19 with 33 other people when their Soviet-built jet crashed in the mountains of eastern South Africa.

In Harare, Zimbabwe, Prime Minister Robert Mugabe today accused South African Defense Minister Magnus Malan of being directly involved in Machel's death. Mugabe's charge came in answer to a question from a parliament member.

In his reply, Mugabe said, "Of course we realize that as they sniff for more blood they are earmarking a number of us for assassination."

South Africa denies the accusations and says it is cooperating in an international probe of the causes.

France refuses to break ties with Syria

PARIS — France will not break off diplomatic relations with Syria despite charges from Britain that the Damascus government sponsors terrorism, Prime Minister Jacques Chirac said Wednesday.

Chirac, indicating France was not prepared to reduce its diplomatic involvement in the Middle East, said there is no proof that Syria sponsored international terrorism.

He said that although France expressed its "solidarity" with Britain in its decision Oct. 24 to break ties with Damascus, he warned such "aggressive" actions could turn Arab nations against the West.

He said Damascus was "an obligatory channel through which any solution to the Lebanese problem must pass."

Britain said it had proof of Syrian government involvement in an attempt by Jordanian Nezar Hindawi to blow up an Israeli jumbo jet at London's Heathrow airport.

Indonesia ponders elephant mating

JAKARTA, Indonesia — Indonesia is considering the introduction of elephant-mating shows to promote tourism, the Antara news agency said Wednesday.

"Such a show is certainly attractive to foreign tourists who are fond of strange things not existing in their country," Indonesian Travel Agencies Association Chairman Sri Mulyono told a parliamentary hearing on the plan, the agency said.

Truman Bakri, a member of parliament, said an elephant-mating show was no less attractive than the typical "goatfight" in Java or the "turtles-lay-eggs" show elsewhere in the country.

U.S. sailors hit Chinese port

QINGDAO, China (UPI) — Hundreds of U.S. sailors, warned to stay sober, peaceful and polite to women, strolled the streets of Qingdao Wednesday on the first American port call to China since the communist takeover in 1949.

Three U.S. Navy warships carrying nearly 1,000 sailors steamed into the northeastern port city shortly after dawn to begin a ceremonial weeklong tour that American officials say is evidence of growing military ties between the two nations.

"Fantastic doesn't describe this place," said Aerographer First Class Bill Conroy, 36, of Philadelphia.

"The first chief I ever worked with used to tell me about his liberty days in Shanghai back in the 40s and I've wanted to come here ever since. We are really privileged to be here," Conroy said.

CONROY AND about 200 other crewmates were given liberty following a colorful morning welcoming ceremony that featured a booming 21-gun salute, navy bands from both nations and a Chinese honor guard of 120 rifle-toting sailors.

The three American ships — the guided missile frigate Rentz, the destroyer Oldendorf and the guided missile cruiser Reeves — tied up alongside a pier as the U.S. band played "Happy Days," "Hey Look Me Over" and "Anchors Aweigh."

Two Chinese destroyers and a submarine were moored opposite, their decks lined with sailors at attention.

A formal welcoming ceremony on the wharf was delayed for more than an hour when Chinese officials complained U.S. ships had not hoisted their ceremonial flags for the occasion.

U.S. NAVY officials said it was customary to raise the colorful flags only after docking, but acknowledged the delay had caused some embarrassment. The U.S. ships are the first to visit China since the USS Dixie evacuated Americans from Qingdao in May 1949 on the eve of the communist takeover.

Qingdao was the headquarters of the old U.S. Asiatic Fleet in the 1930s and, after World War II, was home to some 2,500 Marines and 600 sailors who were supporting the Chinese nationalists against the communists.

Many older Qingdao residents still remember the American military presence in the city, not all favorably.

Ting Xin, 39, said some of the Americans had a bad reputation because they "grabbed women and didn't follow traffic rules."

TO PREVENT such incidents on the current visit, crewmen were issued a small handbook titled, "A Sailor's Liberty Guide for China." It warns sailors to stay out of fights, keep sober and be polite to women.

"China does not have bar girls," the booklet says. "The culture in China is very different from what we're used to, so be on your toes and treat the gals like real ladies."

"It doesn't look too hopeful," one sailor quipped when asked if he expected to find some female companionship.

The vessels are under Pacific Fleet Commander Adm. James Lyons, who noted "the large and growing" Soviet naval and air force presence in the region and said the United States and China believe that "no one country should dominate Asia or the world."

Among the small group of Americans on hand to greet the ships was Gilbert Luna, 58, a Los Angeles resident who served with the Navy in Qingdao in 1946-47.

"Sailors had a ball here," said Luna. "It had dance halls, lots of girls, great beaches and even a race course."

Waite calls speculation lethal

LONDON (UPI) — Anglican Church envoy Terry Waite complained Wednesday that interference and reckless speculation are threatening his efforts to win the quick release of more American hostages held in Lebanon — and perhaps endangering his life.

Waite, who raised hopes Tuesday for the swift release of Terry Anderson and Thomas Sutherland, both captive in Lebanon, told a news conference he remains "hopeful and, to use that awful phrase, cautiously optimistic."

"But the rumors and misinformation in the past few days — that really hasn't helped," Waite said at the U.S. Air Force hospital in Wiesbaden, West Germany, where newly freed hostage David Jacobsen underwent medical and stress checkups. Waite later flew back to London.

JACOBSEN, 55, former administrator of Beirut's American University Hospital, was released Sunday by his Moslem captors in Moslem West Beirut after 17 months in captivity.

News media speculation has "made the whole scene now extraordinarily complicated," Waite said at London's Heathrow Airport. "All I can say is, do those people who write such speculative comments realize that sort of comment will cost me my life?"

In Washington, White House chief of staff Donald Regan assailed the media for reporting that more hostages might be freed. But diplomatic sources in the Middle East said immediate prospects of freedom for other captive Americans were damaged by leaked reports of a secret U.S. mission to Iran and the possibility of an arms deal.

IRAN CLAIMED Tuesday that former national security adviser Robert McFarlane illegally flew to Tehran on a secret White House mission in September and was detained with other members of his delegation.

Iran's state-owned Islamic Republic News Agency originally said McFarlane and four other men carrying false Irish passports flew to Iran in a plane carrying spare parts for weapons. But Wednesday, the Iranians said they are not sure it was McFarlane. The White House did not comment.

Waite said Tuesday he would probably know from his contacts within 24 hours whether Anderson and Sutherland might be released soon. But Wednesday, he announced he will not return immediately to Beirut.

"Frankly, I wish it had been different," he said.

"SPECULATION in the last 12 hours has been speculation bordering on the incredible," he said. "Quite frankly, the speculation is dangerous because we are dealing with the lives of hostages in Lebanon."

Waite said he is concerned that many of his contacts will be frightened by speculative news reports and it may take some time before he can get in touch with them again.

"I am one of the very few people, if not the only person, who has met the captors of Terry Anderson, Tom Sutherland and the others. I know them. I know how sensitive they are.

"I know how they read into these situations things that are not there, and I know the danger of speculative comment.

"All I'm saying is please be careful. I don't want to go yet, and don't want those men to go. That's all," he said.

Waite said he will "drop out of sight" for awhile and renew his contacts in an effort to win freedom for the captives.

Anderson, 38, and Sutherland, 54, are being held by the Islamic Jihad, a pro-Iranian group also thought to have kidnapped U.S. Embassy official William Buckley, 56. The group claims it killed Buckley but no body has been found.

Anderson, an Associated Press correspondent, was seized March 16, 1985. Scottish-born Sutherland, an American University of Beirut professor, was abducted June 29, 1985.

Other Americans still missing in Lebanon are Joseph Cioppio, 56, Edward Austin Tracy, 55, and Frank Reed, 53.

Secrecy of Aquino

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Secrecy surrounded dined talks between the Philippine government and communist rebels Wednesday. Officials expressed "reasonable optimism" for an "extended cease-fire" and a 17-year guerrilla insurgency.

President Corazon Aquino said earlier this week representatives would with rebel emissaries Wednesday and present a "response to a guerrilla for a 100-day truce beginning as early as Dec. 10 and ending through the constitutional referendum.

The government agreed news blackout on the negotiations. Officials said an announcement will be made as soon as an accord is signed.

As she left the presidential palace Wednesday, Aquino said she had not from her chief emissary talks, Agriculture Minister Ramon Mitra. Asked whether the talks were held, she said "I would imagine so, otherwise he would have called here."

THE REBELS did not comment on whether the talks place.

Secrecy surrounds meeting of Aquino aides, insurgents

MANILA, Philippines (UPI)—Secrecy surrounded scheduled talks between the Philippine government and communist rebels Wednesday, but officials expressed "reasonable optimism" for an unprecedented cease-fire in the 17-year guerrilla insurgency.

President Corazon Aquino said earlier this week her representatives would meet with rebel emissaries Wednesday and present a "refined" response to a guerrilla offer for a 100-day truce beginning as early as Dec. 10 and extending through the constitutional referendum.

The government agreed to a news blackout on the negotiations. Officials said a joint announcement will be made if an accord is signed.

As she left the presidential palace Wednesday night, Aquino said she had not heard from her chief emissary to the talks, Agriculture Minister Ramon Mitra. Asked whether the talks were held, she said, "I would imagine so, otherwise he would have called me here."

THE REBELS did not comment on whether the talks took place.

"This is so sensitive — so much depends on this," a senior aide to Aquino said.

Corazon Aquino

The talks were a result of an offer made last Saturday for a 100-day cease-fire by the National Democratic Front, the underground umbrella organization representing the Communist Party and the 23,000-member New People's Army. Aquino hailed the offer as a "step forward" in responding to her appeals for peace.

After a Cabinet meeting Wednesday morning, Mitra said he was optimistic a cease-fire agreement would be reached at the meeting, to be held at a secret location in the capital. Press Secretary Teodoro Benigno cited a "sort of consensus" for a shorter truce, but said that compliance with the cease-fire terms could lead to an extension.

"I WOULD say that there is reasonable optimism available to indicate that the momentum will continue toward the possibility of a cease-fire agreement," Benigno said.

"I can't go as far as saying a cease-fire agreement is imminent," he said. "I understand that it might take the other side some time to be able to inform the various groups and organizations belonging to the National Democratic Front."

Armed Forces Chief Fidel Ramos said the military submitted its recommendations on the truce and was willing to "help in giving peace a chance." But he refused to discuss reports the military favors a shorter truce period.

"We would still really like to see concrete evidence of their (rebel) sincerity," Ramos said. The Philippine News Agency reported soldiers killed 10 rebels in the past 24 hours in scattered fighting in the countryside, pushing to more than 2,120 the number of people killed in the insurgency since Aquino came to power in a civilian-backed military revolt in February.

Soviets foresee end of 'Reagan era'

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet media said Wednesday that the U.S. mid-term elections showed "the Reagan era is on the wane" and tied Republican defeats to the administration's failure to reach an arms agreement with Moscow.

"The elections have thus marked a serious setback for the ruling Republican Party," the official Tass news agency said.

In U.S. elections Tuesday, Democrats regained control of the Senate from the Republicans and now have a majority in both houses of Congress.

"The defeat of the Republican Party in the U.S. mid-term congressional elections is a significant event. It shows that the Reagan era is on the wane," the Novosti news agency said.

Novosti, the country's second official news agency, said the results showed the American electorate had become "dispirited with the Republican

"The defeat of the Republican Party in the U.S. mid-term congressional elections is a significant event. It shows that the Reagan era is on the wane," says Soviet news agency Novosti.

Party's unkept promises to bolster prosperity in the land."

THE NEWS AGENCY said the results amounted to a rejection of President Ronald Reagan's "might makes right" foreign policy.

"By giving the Democratic Party a majority in both houses of Congress, the people of the United States have clearly demonstrated their negative approach to the foreign policy which the Republicans have followed so far," Novosti said.

"It can be argued that had the U.S. side assumed a reasonable stance on the 'Star Wars' issue in Reykjavik... the outcome of the mid-term elections could have been more favorable for the White House," Novosti said.

The Oct. 11-12 summit between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Iceland broke down when Moscow insisted any agreement on arms control had to include a U.S. guarantee to limit research on Star Wars.

In addition to superpower relations, Novosti said the U.S. electorate also displayed second thoughts about Reagan's foreign policy in South Africa, Central America and Chile.

TASS SINGLED out the defeats of Paula Hawkins for a Senate seat in Florida and Linda Chavez for the same post in Maryland, since both were staunch Reagan supporters and he personally campaigned for them.

"Paula Hawkins, who is notorious for her zealous support for the administration's policy, particularly for such aspects as the war against Nicaragua and the spiralling arms race, has been defeated in Florida.

"Linda Chavez, the Republican's candidate, former ranking staff member of the White House, has suffered a defeat in Maryland," Tass said.

"The Republicans' defeat has been viewed here as evidence of the voters' discontent over the policy of the Republican administration and of its most zealous supporters in Congress," Tass said from Washington.

S. African workers, students boycott

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — The government Wednesday ordered closed 43 Port Elizabeth schools that black students are boycotting to protest inferior education.

Also in Port Elizabeth, union officials met company managers for less than 10 minutes about an eight-day strike by black auto workers protesting General Motors' plans to leave South Africa. No progress was reported in the dispute.

In Pretoria, Sam de Beer, deputy minister for black education, ordered 43 schools in the Port Elizabeth region shut down until boycotting pupils "prove their willingness to return to school and receive meaningful education."

The school closures around the south coast city doubled the number of black schools shut down in four months by officials seeking to end the boycotts. Black activists have called the boycotts to protest inferior, segregated education under the white-minority government's apartheid policies of racial segregation.

OFFICIALS DECLINED to say how many pupils would be affected by Wednesday's order. A reporter in Port Elizabeth estimated more than 20,000 students attended the state-run schools. Some 1.7 million pupils attend 7,000 state-run schools for blacks.

The government closed about 40 other schools near Port

Elizabeth and Johannesburg in the past four months, seeking to end sporadic boycotts by up to a million black pupils at times.

The boycotts continued in the Port Elizabeth region despite negotiations with some black clergymen and parents to get pupils back to classrooms.

"It is regretted that despite the positive attitude and the hard work done by (the clergymen) and the support and understanding displayed by the department and myself, the pupils have refused to return to school," De Beer said.

IN THE GM DISPUTE, about 2,400 black staff stopped work Oct. 29 and occupied two plants to protest plans to sell GM's South African operations and assets to a local syndicate led by former corporation executive Robert Price, an American.

The country's largest labor umbrella, the 600,000-member Congress of South African Trade Unions, has backed the striking auto workers and insisted that multinational corporations leaving South Africa negotiate pullout terms with workers.

"GM has enjoyed 60 years of good business in the land of apartheid and made huge profits from the sweat of South African workers," the labor group said in a statement in Johannesburg.

Institute: Powers equal in arms race

LONDON (UPI) — A respected "think tank" said today that chances for a superpower arms control pact are "not very good" in the wake of the Iceland summit and warned that Moscow is steadily building up its military arsenal.

In its annual publication "Military Balance," the International Institute of Strategic Studies said the superpowers have a rough equality in destructive firepower.

But the independent and privately funded institute said that while the Soviets are maintaining steady growth in sophisticated military hardware and the United States is deploying new missiles and bombers that were previously ordered, "The Reagan administration's defense buildup is over."

The well-respected institute said after the October superpower summit in Iceland, Washington and Moscow have "many basic differences" on arms control. The summit collapsed when President Ronald Reagan refused to accept concessions on Star Wars as demanded by Moscow.

"IT'S NOW BACK to basics since the chances of an agreement are not very good," said Institute Director

Robert O'Neill at a news conference.

O'Neill said military budget cuts in the United States will cause problems for Washington's strategic effort, but he refused to predict when or if the military balance might be tipped in Moscow's favor.

"The Soviet program can be seen as one of steady growth and modernization," O'Neill said.

He said as a result of increased defense budgets of the early 1980s, U.S. buildup is now reaching its peak and the future of the U.S. program is in doubt because of budgetary pressure.

The survey put the number of U.S. nuclear warheads at 12,846 against 10,716 for the Soviet Union.

But the Soviets lead in the number of vehicles deployed to deliver the warheads. Counting intercontinental ballistic missiles, submarine-launched missiles and nuclear bombers, the Soviets have 2,502 compared to 1,910 for the Americans.

"Overall, we judge that U.S. and Soviet strategic forces are in rough balance," O'Neill said.

O'Neill said the Soviets, like the Americans, are carrying out research and development of space-based defense systems.

Lanier gets top manager honors in first year

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hal Lanier, protege of Whitey Herzog who guided the Houston Astros to the National League West title in his rookie year as manager, Wednesday was named NL Manager of the Year by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Lanier, 44, was a runaway winner over Davey Johnson of the New York Mets, even though Johnson's club won 108 games and captured the NL East crown by 2 1/2 games over Philadelphia. In a balloting conducted by 24 members of the BBWAA — two from each National League city — Lanier received 19 first place votes and 108 points while Johnson picked up three first place votes and 62 points. It marked the third straight year that Johnson has finished as an also-ran in the voting.

Roger Craig of the San Francisco Giants finished third with two first place votes and 42 points. Jim Felske of Philadelphia, who had one second place mention, and Jim Leyland of Pittsburgh, who garnered one third place vote, were the only other managers to receive votes.

LANIER AND Johnson were the only managers to be named on all 24 ballots. Points were awarded on a 5-3-1 basis for votes from first through third.

"You really have to give credit to the ballplayers," Lanier said. "They're the ones who went out there and performed. They played hard. They did everything we asked of them, and that's all anyone can ask for. I'm really excited about the awards I've received. They do mean a lot to me and this organization."

Since the award was established by the BBWAA in 1983, Lanier is the first manager to win the award in his rookie year. Under Lanier's direction the Astros posted a 96-66 record and finished 10 games ahead of second-place Cincinnati. Houston was eliminated by the Mets in six games in the league championship series, but only regular season records count in the voting.

ONE FACTOR TO which voters obviously gave major consideration was that Houston was not expected to win the National League West while the Mets were considered heavy favorites to win the National League East. Many baseball experts picked the Astros to finish in the second division, coming off the team's mediocre 83-79 record in 1985.

However, Lanier, a former minor league Manager of the Year who tutored under Herzog as part of the Cardinal skipper's staff from 1981-85, utilized his personnel very effectively and got production from all areas of the club.

A stickler for fundamentals, Lanier adapted some of Herzog's principles by establishing a running game to generate more offense and relied heavily on sound defense and strong pitching. The pitching staff of Cy Young candidate Mike Scott, Bob Knepper, Nolan Ryan and rookie Jim Deshaies was one of the league's best while speedsters Billy Hatcher and Kevin Bass set the table for power-hitting Glenn Davis.

Though Houston did not have a quality left-handed reliever, Lanier got excellent saves from set-up man Charlie Kerfeld and closer Dave Smith.

Jane Keating, a junior from Wheaton, Illinois and a Big Ten record holder for the women's swim team, works out Wednesday afternoon in the Field House pool. Keating is being counted on by Coach Pete Kennedy to be a mainstay for the Hawkeyes this season.

Hawkeye swimmers expect big season

By Scott Reifert
Staff Writer

The Iowa women's swimming team opens its season Friday by hosting Big Ten rival Wisconsin in the Field House pool.

After finishing in a second place tie at last year's Big Ten championships, Coach Pete Kennedy said this year's team is just as powerful heading into the Big Ten season.

"We're a very good team," Kennedy said. "We have upper class maturity and can combine that with enthusiasm from our freshmen."

Kennedy recruited nine freshmen for a team that is anchored by two Big Ten champions, senior Kim Stevens and junior Jane Keating.

BUT IOWA MAY have suffered a damaging blow when Stevens suffered a shoulder injury during early season practice. She was operated on Wednesday and could miss anywhere from two weeks to the remainder of the season.

"Hopefully I'll be back practicing hard by Christmas and be ready for meets after break," Stevens said.

Kennedy said he's counting on with midterms coming," Keating said. "In the preseason, meets seem so far away that it's tough to keep a positive attitude every single day, for every single practice and every single interval. We really act as big sisters for the freshmen, making sure they get enough sleep and things like that."

"IT'S IMPORTANT to not just stress your performance but to get in the habit of swimming the same way every day. That way when the big meets come you can swim the same way but faster," Keating added.

"One thing that will help us this year is our being a unit instead of 20 individuals," Allison Lloyd said. "Basically we're all really close. It's more like a family than just teammates."

Lloyd stressed that attitude is often as important as performance in Big Ten swimming.

"Not performance but attitude, not swimming faster but having good attitudes, that's what's important," Lloyd said.

In the preseason Big Ten poll of coaches, Iowa was picked third behind top-ranked Ohio State and Michigan. Minnesota is fourth followed by Michigan State, Wisconsin, Indiana, Illinois, Purdue, and Northwest-ern.

Iowa's Stevens and Keating are both Big Ten record holders — Stevens in the 200 yards freestyle and Keating in the 500. And Kennedy is counting on their leadership rubbing off onto the freshman.

A third strong upperclassman for the Hawkeyes is Lloyd, who holds the school record in the 100 butterfly.

IOWA DOES LOSE two divers from last year's team, but Kennedy said returning divers Terri Millmier, who placed in last year's Big Ten championships, and Vicki Ramseyer should provide the Hawkeyes with another strong diving class.

Kennedy also said that Friday's meet with Wisconsin, which begins at 6 p.m., will be a tough early test for his Hawkeyes.

"Wisconsin only lost two players from last year's team," Kennedy said. "And Coach Carl Johansson has his best all-around team since he's been there."

his upperclassmen to give this year's freshmen guiding leadership during the season.

"With nine freshmen and 12 upperclassmen, we are going to need to jell as a team," Kennedy said. "I know we will. It's just a question of when. Either way we'll still have a good team."

Keating echoed Kennedy's words and said one of her roles on the team is that of being a "big sister."

"Just being there for questions is important, especially

Hamel plays key role for Stewart's club

By Steve Williams
Staff Writer

The Iowa women's volleyball team controls its own destiny this weekend when it travels to Champaign, Ill., to take on the Fighting Illini of Illinois.

And for sophomore Kari Hamel, this is just the position she wants her team to be in.

Hamel, who is known for having the most positive attitude on her Hawkeye squad, has been awarded the Big Ten Player of the Week twice this season, and according to Coach Sandy Stewart, she has just begun to tap her potential for the future.

"Kari has anchored our outside hitting attack most of the season and seems to be getting better with every game she plays," Stewart said. "The thing that most impresses me about Kari, however, is that she's been playing on raw ability so far, and it's a great feeling to know that she can only get better in the years to come."

Kari Hamel

Volleyball

"I'VE LEARNED A lot in the time I've been here," Hamel said of her personal progress. "But I know I still have a long ways to go, especially as far as consistency is concerned."

Hamel has seen the Hawkeyes progress from an also ran in the Big Ten last season to one of the premier squads in the conference. But while the team has yet to reach its goals of a Big Ten championship and an NCAA berth, which were set at the beginning of the season, Hamel is confident that Iowa is well on its way to doing both.

"This is one of the most aggressive teams I've ever been on, and we'll do whatever it takes to achieve the goals we have set for ourselves," Hamel said. "We know what we have to do this weekend against Illinois, and that if we don't win, we will have to rely on someone else to knock them off, and that's not the position we want to be in."

HAVING A positive attitude is something Hamel has grown accustomed to throughout her high school career and home life as well. A graduate of Dubuque (Iowa) Wahlert, the 5-foot-9 outside hitter quickly learned that having a good mental attitude can sometimes make up for deficiencies in a person's game.

"That's just the way I was taught while I was growing up and during high school," Hamel said of her aggressive, carefree spirit. "It's not something I learned when I got here, but it has worked out for the benefit of our team."

"Kari is the kind of player every team needs," Stewart said. "She never gets down on herself or anyone else on the team, even when we make some big mistakes."

An all-state selection her senior season, Hamel has gone on to lead the 1986 Hawkeye squad in hitting efficiency as well as rank fourth in the conference at .350. According to Stewart, her potential is still unlimited.

Big Ten coaches differ on bowls' importance

By Scott Reifert
Staff Writer

Bowl bids and the impending Ohio State-Michigan match-up were major topics of discussion during Wednesday's Big Ten coaches' tele-conference.

The Big Ten coaches drew up on opposite sides of the fence on whether or not a bowl-bound opponent necessarily has more incentive heading into a conference game.

Among the coaches who didn't think being a bowl-bound team had any great motivating advantage were Ohio State's Earle Bruce, Iowa's Hayden Fry, and Michigan's Bo Schembechler.

"It's tough to play anybody in the Big Ten on the road. If there's any letdown, you'll pay for it — that's the challenge in the Big Ten," Bruce said, shrugging off suggestions that his team had any extra advantage over Northwestern in this week's contest.

SCHEMBECHLER said he didn't think a team's bowl status made a difference when they were playing the Wolverines.

Big Ten Football

"It doesn't matter what stadium or what team. If they're playing Michigan, they'll be fired up," Schembechler said. "It doesn't make that much difference if they have a bowl opportunity or not."

Whether or not a team is heading to a bowl game doesn't enter the picture, Michigan State's George Perles said. "A team puts its own pressure on itself to perform and goes after the best record possible."

But Illinois' Mike White said he believed there is an advantage to teams heading into postseason play.

"I think it's an advantage to be heading to a bowl," White said. "I know when I was coaching in the NFL, whenever we played a playoff-bound opponent, they always had more incentive. The advantage is their's, and that's part of our problem this week. We're playing a nationally ranked team in Iowa, and most of our incen-

Split decision for Chisox on stadium

ADDISON, Ill. (UPI) — The Chicago White Sox were dealt a setback by voters who narrowly defeated the team's proposal to build a new stadium in the northwestern suburb.

Howard Pizer, White Sox executive vice president, said the team would push ahead with its plans despite the defeat.

"It's not the end at all," Pizer told the Chicago Sun-Times in Wednesday's editions. "This shows we still have some work to do. I see this as something very positive. We came from a long ways back."

White Sox owner Jerry Reinsdorf owns 140 acres in Addison and wants to move his baseball team from Comiskey Park on the South Side of Chicago to the northwestern suburban area.

Reinsdorf has said the White Sox need to relocate because of the high cost of maintaining the 76-year-old Comiskey Park, named for the first owner of the club.

America II wins 'Cup' challenge

FREMANTLE, Australia (UPI) — America II overcame an early British rally Wednesday to keep White Crusader in third place with a one-minute win in America's Cup challenger races dominated by U.S. victories.

Irish helmsman Harold Cudmore found his luck dissipating with a broken spinnaker pole slowing his Twelve down against the New York Yacht Club's America II skippered by John Kolius.

The NYCC triumph tightened America II's grip on first place, shared with New Zealand's KZ7, both 15-1, and left White Crusader, 11-5, alone in the No. 3 spot.

Bulls start season with three wins

CHICAGO (UPI) — Doug Collins went a little crazy for the first time in his NBA coaching career, and the outburst worked in his favor.

Collins, coach of the Chicago Bulls, rallied his young club Tuesday night to a 111-104 victory over the San Antonio Spurs that gave the unbeaten Bulls their third win in a row. The Bulls got 16 fourth-quarter points from star guard Michael Jordan, who finished with 34 points after scoring only eight in the first half.

Four times in the second quarter, the Spurs held a 19-point lead, the last time at 55-36 with 3:16 left in the half. At that point, Collins tossed a pen and clipboard by the Bulls bench in frustration.

On The Line

Inquiring minds want to know. What is the payoff for the winner of The Daily Iowan staff pickers' race?

Are these three less than brilliant guessers — Sports Editor Brad Zimanek, Assistant Sports Editor Dan Millea and Staff Writer Steve Williams — printing their picks each Friday for a reason or what?

It's certainly not because the trio wants to be a guide for our contest pickers because the final column comes out after the contest is over.

So what's the deal here guys? What's the point? Is there some sort of inside betting going on here like the winner gets free tickets to see Jay Leno? Huh.

It seems absolutely worthless to keep a tally if there isn't any sort of competitive spirit. Incidentally, Millea is ahead at this point with a two-game lead over Williams and Zimanek.

Rumor has it the three pickers made a deal that goes as follows: If Williams wins, the other two have to pay for his upcoming wedding. If Zimanek wins, the other two have to pay for his upcoming wedding. And if Millea wins, the other two have to pay the doctors' fees when Millea and his wife, Ann, have their second child.

However, that rumor was dispelled after it was learned that all three felt the stakes were too low.

Another rumor was that the two losers would have to seek jobs in Alaska, reporting bobsledding and husky racing. This rumor ceased after it was learned that all three felt the winner would get the raw deal out of it.

The third rumor to spread around the DI offices was that the winner would win a lifetime supply of Milk Duds. Williams, however, nixed that deal because he prefers M&M's. Zimanek, it was learned, was pushing for a supply of Mountain Dew.

The latest rumor, which according to an inside source is true, is that the winner gets That's going to knock 'em out of their socks. They'll be so confused. They won't know the difference between Fred "Gopher" Grandy and Soleil Moon-Frye. You know, the one who was elected to Congress in Iowa Tuesday and the one with her own cartoon.

The rest of the sports staff can't wait to see the outcome of this monumental contest between the three who believe the only real teams in America have names like Vikings, Patriots and Cubs.

Now that all of that stuff is finished here are the rules. Circle all of the winners, including the tiebreaker. Only five ballots are allowed per person. But hurry because deadline for turning in ballots is noon today at the Communications Center Room 111.

Crimson Tide ready for Tiger showdown

United Press International

Alabama (minus 10) over Louisiana State — Last year, Alabama and LSU denied each other a chance at the Sugar Bowl with a tie. Faulty field-goal kicking cost the Tigers that contest, and they are having trouble with that phase of their game again.

The Tide is angry after blowing a chance at an undefeated season by getting blown out by Penn State. It came back to rout Mississippi State last week. In Bobby Humphrey, Alabama has one of the hottest running backs in the country.

LSU Coach Bill Arnsparger is a defensive mastermind, but if the Tide is able to get its passing game going early and put the ball into the hands of game-breaker Al Bell, the Tigers will have a tough time stopping Alabama. Redshirt freshman Tom Hodson has had success at quarterback for LSU. But in the Cornelius Bennett-led Tide defense he faces an extremely fast unit that should, at the very least, confuse him. A victory here would assure Alabama no less than a tie for the best record in the Southeastern Conference.

East

Maryland (plus 18) over Penn State — In the best of times, Maryland has been unable to beat the Nittany Lions; its last victory over Penn State was in 1961. In the midst of an unexpectedly poor season and the controversies besetting its athletic department, the Terrapins are at least their best. However, Maryland is better than its 4-4 record, and Penn State's uninspired 19-0 win over West Virginia last week could be a signal that the Nittany Lions are looking down the road at Miami for the national title.

Midwest

Michigan State (minus 13½) over Indiana — With Lorenzo White as the focal point, the Spartans can still show up at more than a run-of-the-mill bowl. After beating up on a weak early-season schedule for the second straight year, Indiana has shown its true colors of late.

Michigan State 38, Indiana 14
Notre Dame (minus 8½) over Southern Methodist — While others are gearing up for bowls, Southern Methodist is facing the reality that probation will keep it from the postseason again. Meanwhile, Notre Dame players are aware that the school's name can move it into a bowl with a few more victories.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — The Atlantic Coast Conference Wednesday banned Maryland football Coach Bobby Bowden from the sidelines during the team's next ACC game as punishment for grabbing a following the Terrapins to North Carolina.

Rowden's fifth year at land, who has been given a reprimand by the union for his actions.

ACC Commissioner Bowden said Ross will be limited to the press box for a limited game against Clemson in more's Memorial Stadium. Ironically, Clemson's Danny Ford also is limited from the sidelines during game as a result of an incident in last season's game against Maryland.

"The behavior of Coach at the conclusion of the in question has caused a disreputable assessment to this institution of the University of North Carolina and the Atlantic Coast Conference," Maryland Athletic Director Charles Ross said. "I do acknowledge this is the first incident, a very serious one, of per behavior in Coach nearly five years of other exemplary coaching for university."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Johns Hopkins Medical School Wednesday unveiled plans for an unprecedented $1 million four-year study into the risks faced by amateur boxers.

Walter Stewart, a professor of epidemiology with the Hopkins School of Public Health and the study's investigator, said the study will involve some 300 amateur boxers aged approximately 15-18 to find whether some medical risks are associated with amateur boxing.

"Our basic objective is to determine if there is a risk of permanent neurological damage in amateur boxers," Stewart said in an interview. "I think most of the studies are fairly conservative for the professional boxers showing some risk, although not in all professional boxers. In the studies of amateurs, which are less frequent, the results are mixed — show risks and some do not."

Maryland's coach punished for tirade

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI)—The Atlantic Coast Conference Wednesday banned Maryland football Coach Bobby Ross from the sidelines during his team's next ACC game as punishment for grabbing a referee following the Terrapins' loss to North Carolina.

Ross is in his fifth year at Maryland, and has been given a reprimand by the university for his actions.

ACC Commissioner Bob James said Ross will be limited to the press box for a Nov. 15 game against Clemson in Baltimore's Memorial Stadium. Ironically, Clemson Coach Danny Ford also is banned from the sidelines during that game as a result of an on-field incident in last season's game against Maryland.

"The behavior of Coach Ross at the conclusion of the game in question has caused embarrassment to this institution, the University of North Carolina and the Atlantic Coast Conference," Maryland Athletic Director Charles Sturtz said. "I do acknowledge that this is the first incident, albeit a very serious one, of improper behavior in Coach Ross's nearly five years of otherwise exemplary coaching for the university."

FURIOUS THAT GAME OFFICIALS

"The behavior of Coach Ross at the conclusion of the game in question has caused embarrassment to this institution," Maryland Athletic Director Charles Sturtz says of Bobby Ross.

Officials had allowed North Carolina what he believed was an additional timeout. Ross dashed across the field at Kenan Stadium after the game and shoved past one referee before grabbing referee Don Safrin by the shoulder as he was leaving the field.

A stadium security officer stepped in and pushed Ross aside.

Ross was livid when game officials granted the Tar Heels a timeout in the final seconds, allowing North Carolina to stop the clock for Lee Giarminis' 28-yard field goal that dealt Maryland a 32-30 loss in Chapel Hill, N.C.

Doctors unveil plans for boxer health study

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Doctors from the prestigious Johns Hopkins Medical School Wednesday unveiled plans for an unprecedented $1 million, four-year study into the health risks faced by amateur boxers.

Walter Stewart, a professor of epidemiology with the Johns Hopkins School of Public Health and the study's chief investigator, said the study will involve some 300 amateur boxers aged approximately 15-18 to find whether excessive medical risks are associated with amateur boxing.

"Our basic objective is to determine if there is an excess risk of permanent neurological damage in amateur boxers," Stewart said in an interview. "I think most of the studies are fairly consistent for the professional boxers showing some risk, although not in all professional boxers, which are less frequent, the results are mixed — some show risks and some do not."

THE STUDY IS being conducted amid national pressure for reform of boxing.

The American Medical Association, citing its own study saying many boxers suffer brain damage as a result of cumulative blows to the head, is demanding a ban of the sport, while legislation was approved earlier this month in the House of Representatives to establish a quasi-public commission to regulate boxing.

Over the next 12 months, amateur boxers from the District of Columbia, Houston and two other undetermined cities will be given a series of medical tests focusing on the impact boxing has on the brain.

The study is being funded by the U.S. Olympic Foundation, which handles the nation's Olympic boxing program, and is endorsed by the USA Amateur Boxing Federation, which has close ties with the Olympic program.

Erving plans to go peacefully

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—For the longest time, Doctor J was the basketball player and Julius Erving was the man.

Gradually, the two personalities merged as Erving became appreciated for himself, rather than for the instantly recognized nickname attached to the skywalking legend of the old American Basketball Association.

When the time came to announce his retirement, however, it was Erving — not Doctor J — who said the time had come to pinpoint the end of his career.

"Last season was a season spent evaluating the toll the game of basketball takes on my family life, and with each passing day, I saw the effect it had on the kids," Erving, the father of four who has announced he will retire at the end of the current season, said.

ERVING HAD GIVEN some thought to quitting at the end of the 1985-86 season but decided to return for at least one more year. During the summer, the Utah Jazz offered Erving, who was a free agent, a two-year contract, but he chose to sign a one-year deal with the 76ers because he did not want to uproot or be away from his family.

"I didn't want people to persuade me one way or another," retiring Philadelphia star Julius Erving says. "It was a decision I had to make and did make. And upon making it, I knew this was it. I look over the history of the game and the number of times the decision has been made in a wishy-washy way versus a concrete way and I kind of shudder."

Through training camp Erving had hedged when asked if he intended to play only one more year. He did not announce his decision until Philadelphia opened the season, distributing a one-page statement during the first quarter of the 76ers' first game.

"I didn't want people to persuade me one way or another," he said. "It was a decision I had to make and did make. And upon making it, I knew this was it. I look over the history of the game and the number of times the decision has been made in a wishy-washy way versus a concrete way and I kind of shudder."

IT WAS IMPORTANT to Erving that he leave the game on his own terms and with his skills intact. At age 36, he has lost a step or two, but he can still show some of the old flashes.

"He can do it for stretches of time," Philadelphia Coach Matt Guokas said. "Even if he can't do it like he could when he was 23, 24 or 25, he still has some life in his legs and can make some great plays to get the crowd alive."

"He realizes he is productive. He wants to go out on a high note, not a sliding note."

He also wants to go out on a happy note.

"I'm going to enjoy every minute of this season," Erving said. "Coaches hollering, players in disarray, I'm going to enjoy it all. If it ever looks like I'm not enjoying it, tell me 'Hey, you said it was all going to be fun.'"

ERVING SAID the decision to retire was a gradual one, not caused by any bad game or single event.

"It was no individual thing associated with the game," he said. "It is what it is — a real peaceful feeling inside of me that it should be my last year. The timing is right for me. It may not be for the fans or my teammates, but this is an individual decision."

Flutie would prefer to postpone debut

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (UPI) — Doug Flutie, faced with being drafted into immediate combat, would just as soon wait before he faces his first NFL fire.

Flutie is a candidate to see action as early as next Sunday against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. With the continued shoulder problem of Jim McMahon and the inefficiency of reserves Mike Tomczak and Steve Fuller, Flutie could be pressed into service sooner than he anticipated.

"I know I would just as soon wait to be ready," Flutie said. "I could come in with a limited number of plays and do the job that is asked of me."

Flutie was signed two weeks ago and formally activated on the Bears' 45-man roster Tuesday afternoon. Chicago Coach Mike Ditka has promised more snaps for Flutie in practice this week.

Flutie isn't likely to start this week, something that takes some of the pressure off the former Heisman Trophy winner.

"I WOULD JUST AS soon come off the bench right now than start," Flutie said. "There is the extra added burden that comes along with being the starter."

Even with the Chicago quarterback woes, Flutie doesn't anticipate seeing much action before next month. He said Fuller and Tomczak are very familiar with the offense and have the edge in experience.

"I don't anticipate playing a lot right now," he said. "The only way I think I'll get in is through injury or necessity."

If he should play, he admits the Bears will likely stay with a ground-oriented attack.

"I could run a limited number of plays," he said. "I know that I'm still needing additional time to learn the system. I sat in the booth the other night and knew what the plays were by the formations, but it's still a learning process."

THE BEARS WOULD probably prefer to have Flutie see action against a struggling Tampa Bay team than the following week against a playoff contender like Atlanta. Ditka may find growing fan and media pressure to press the former Boston College signal caller into service. Chicago has lost two of its last three games after starting the season 7-0 in defense of its world championship.

"I was told by Mike Ditka when I signed that I should go out and give it my best shot and that no one was going to rush things along," Flutie added. "Mike Ditka isn't going to be pressured by the media or the press into playing me."

Possibly hedging against a rocky start, Flutie said he has always been faced with trying to produce miracles in the wake of his nationally televised "Hail Mary" touchdown pass against Miami (Fla.) in his senior season.

'Color of Money': ace in the pocket

By Kevin C. Kretschmer
Staff Writer

Film

The Color of Money

Directed by Martin Scorsese. Produced by Irving Axelrad and Barbara De Fina. Screenplay by Richard Price. Production Designed by Boris Leven. Director of Photography Michael Ballhaus.

Eddie Felson..... Paul Newman
Vincent Lauria..... Tom Cruise
Carmen..... Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio
Janelle..... Helen Shaver

Showing at the Astro

A QUARTER of a century has passed since Paul Newman first played pool shark "Fast" Eddie Felson in Robert Rossen's classic film The Hustler. In a career filled with great roles and fine performances, Newman is probably more closely identified with that role than any other. The film garnered nine Oscar nominations (it won two) and received the British Film Academy's award for best picture.

All things considered, it came as a surprise when plans were made public that a sequel, titled The Color of Money, would be made by Touchstone Pictures, a subsidiary of the Disney organization. Even more of a surprise may have been the disclosure that Martin Scorsese would direct the film. Scorsese, best-known for such controversial films as Mean Streets, Taxi Driver and Raging Bull, had never worked with a mainstream star like Newman or on a well-known property before.

ANY RESERVATIONS one might have had concerning The Color of Money are easily dispelled upon viewing the finished product. The contributions of Scorsese, Newman, won is twice as sweet as money earned."

But Vince has a different attitude. "It's only a game, man, balls and a stick," he says. Another problem is that Vince is an "incredible flake." Eddie tells him that "you couldn't find the big time with a road map."

EDDIE STARTS to apply pressure, and, with the help of Vince's thrill-seeking girlfriend Carmen (Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio), convinces Vince to join him on the road.

Eddie becomes Vince's "stake horse" — he covers all expenses in exchange for 60 percent of all gambling profits — and teacher. In the process he also becomes a father figure to Vince and a business partner with Carmen, whom Eddie realizes exercises more control over Vince than he does.

Eddie, Vince and Carmen travel the pool hall circuit together with Eddie trying to instill the "killer instinct" in Vince and teach him a few "lessons" along the way. One of these lessons — "sometimes if you lose, you win." — begins to have greater meaning for Eddie as he starts to look at his life in perspective. It isn't too long before Eddie picks up a pool cue again and starts to put his philosophies to work in his own life.

SCORSESE GETS top-notch performances from the well-cast actors. Newman is perfect in recreating his famous role, 25 years older, but perhaps not 25 years wiser. Cruise is able to avoid Newman's large shadow and stand as his equal. Mastrantonio provides a striking presence and radiates a sharp intelligence that is used well to contrast Carmen to the "flaky" Vince. Helen Shaver as Janelle, and John Turturro as Julian, provide admirable support.

The Hustler won Oscars for cinematography and for art direction and The Color of Money does not suffer by comparison. Michael Ballhaus (director of photography) makes the usually sedentary game of pool come alive. A roving camera is employed to record the stalking movements of the pool players that gives the sense of a ritual dance.

Production designer Boris Leven creates a view of the seedy and disreputable world of the pool hall where the green of the pool table looms as a garden in the midst of a jungle.

This may trigger a rash of new sequels to classic films, something many would rather not see occur. However, in defense of The Color of Money, this film succeeds in adhering to the standards of the original while remaining quality entertainment in its own right.
