Proposal would change UI break schedule

By Shawn Plank
Staff Writer

A proposed UI Liberal Arts academic calendar that would shorten semesters and require classes to start after Labor Day will be discussed by the UI Faculty Senate today.

The proposed schedule, which may also trim one day from Thanksgiving break, would require all semesters to be 14 weeks long and include 70 regular class days, UI Faculty Senate Vice President Bruce Gronbeck said.

Semester lengths now vary between 72 and 75 days, based on a 15-week schedule.

The calendar could go into effect as early as the summer session of 1988 if it is approved by the UI Council on Teaching, the UI Office of Academic Affairs and the state Board of Regents, Gronbeck said.

THE NEW CALENDAR would put the spring semester final examination week in the first week of May, which Gronbeck said would be a plus for students and faculty.

"It would give a chance for students to get a jump on summer jobs and for faculty to work on research projects," he said.

Other Big Ten universities have similar semester lengths, UI Registrar Jerald Dallam said.

Two schools in the Big Ten have less than 70 days per semester, while three schools have more than 70. Four operate on the quarter system.

The proposal to change the UI calendar follows a new state law effective this year that forces Iowa public elementary and secondary schools to begin classes after Labor Day.

TEACHERS IN THOSE schools would be unable to attend UI summer session classes because the UI courses currently begin before most public schools finish their terms, Gronbeck said.

Under the new plan, UI summer sessions would begin in mid-June, about one week later than in the past, Gronbeck said. The summer session, which would remain eight weeks long, would end in mid-August.

Gronbeck said the UI may be forced to make the change by the Iowa Legislature.

"There were some legislators who talked about changing the universities' calendar at the same time as public schools," he said.

The length of Christmas break would remain the same, despite complaints the UI has received from parents of students, Gronbeck said.

"THE PARENTS SAY, 'You let my kids hang around home too much and drink beer. Send them back to Iowa City to drink beer,'" he said.

Spring break would also remain one week long. With the new plan, fall semester final examinations may start later in the week than they usually do, Gronbeck said.

"I suspect we would end classes on Thursday and begin exams on Friday," he said.

Final examinations may also be scheduled on Saturday to avoid conflicts with the holidays, Gronbeck said. Jewish students, who recognize Saturday as the Sabbath, will probably be able to reschedule any tests on that day.

Finals week during the spring semester would remain the same, he said.

Reagan denies shakeup of staff

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Ronald Reagan, grappling with his worst foreign policy crisis, declared Monday he was "not firing anybody," and insisted it would be a "lie" to say his secret project to send weapons to Iran was a mistake.

But Reagan—who summoned key aides to a strategy session on Iran and his overall Middle East policy—was ambiguous in answering impromptu questions about whether heads would roll among his top foreign policy advisers.

During an Oval Office picture-taking session, Reagan appeared to be struggling to control his anger as reporters pressed the issue.

"I'm not firing anybody," he said tersely. But when asked later about staff changes, Reagan replied, "I'm not commenting either way."

ASKED IF HE was satisfied with his staff, he murmured, "Uh-huh."

A CBS-TV affiliate in Philadelphia, WCAU, reported Monday that former Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis had been offered the job of White House chief of staff, now held by Donald Regan, but turned it down.

Also Monday, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said he has talked to Merrill Lynch & Co. Inc. about a public relations job but he denied he has accepted the post.

Amid reports his coterie of California supporters was urging a purge to halt the damage to his credibility, Reagan was asked if he would heed suggestions he "cut his losses" and admit a mistake in the covert 18-month project that included sending arms to Iran and resulted in the release of three Americans held prisoner by pro-Iranian groups in Lebanon.

"I'm not going to lie about that," Reagan said with feeling. "I didn't make a mistake."

A NEW WRINKLE in the controversy was exposed Monday when Justice Department officials confirmed they are investigating shipments of American weapons to Iran in 1985, before Reagan gave himself permission in a secret intelligence "finding" Jan. 17, 1986, to waive President Jimmy Carter's embargo on arms to Iran.

Reagan said earlier Monday he was considering resigning and did not believe there would be any changes in Reagan's top staff this week.

The secret Iran project, exposed by Iranians whom Reagan called "hostile" to better relations with the United States, has been assailed both on Capitol Hill and in Europe. Critics claim it violated the Carter arms embargo, a pledge of neutrality in the Iran-Iraq war, requirements Congress be notified of such activities and repeated vows of never making deals with terrorists.

Thanksgiving holiday leaves foreign students out in cold

By James Cahoy
Staff Writer

While UI students journey home to enjoy a Thanksgiving dinner, some of the more than 1,700 foreign students will remain in Iowa City with a misunderstanding of the holiday.

"I think at some point in time all foreign students feel left out or confused by Thanksgiving," said Abeer Dajani, a Palestinian exchange student. "It's just something you have to adjust to when you come to this country."

Dajani said many UI foreign students don't understand the significance of Thanksgiving.

"Some don't really notice it at all," Dajani said. "They think of it as just a vacation from class."

But Joe Hansen, an international student from Denmark and president of the UI Student Senate, said foreign students who want to celebrate Thanksgiving usually can.

"AMERICANS have this thing about inviting foreign students to their houses to celebrate Thanksgiving with their families," Hansen said. "There hasn't been a year gone by when I haven't received at least five invitations to eat with somebody's family."

Hansen said Iowa City doesn't offer many places for foreign students to eat Thanksgiving dinner.

"There used to be a restaurant that offered a Thanksgiving dinner for foreign students, but it's a Pizza Hut now," Hansen said. "I doubt Pizza Hut will be offering much in the way of Thanksgiving dinner."

But an Iowa City organization, Friends of International Students, may give UI foreign students an option for Thursday's holiday.

GROUP MEMBER Dorothy Frank, who is in charge of assigning foreign students to families in Iowa City for Thursday's holiday, said the organization gets a lot of requests from foreign students to have Thanksgiving dinner with a local family.

"We get more requests than we have families," Frank said. "We have about 225 individuals who have agreed to take foreign students for Thanksgiving, and we have about 100 more to find places for."

Frank said Iowa City could offer more for foreign students on Thanksgiving Day.

"In the past, some places like churches and restaurants offered Thanksgiving dinners, but I haven't heard about anything this year," she said. "In many cases for foreign students, Thanksgiving amounts to just a couple of days off. It's nice to allow them to experience a traditional American holiday."

Aquino stops coup attempt in Philippines

MANILA, Philippines (UPI)—A small band of military officers conspired with political allies of ousted President Ferdinand Marcos to overthrow President Corazon Aquino and "bump her off," Aquino's chief spokesman said Monday.

Press Secretary Teodoro Benigno told reporters that officers involved in the failed weekend plot were associated with Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile.

Benigno said Aquino's firing of Enrile Sunday removed "one of the three daggers aimed at the heart" of her 9-month-old government but that Enrile's role in the reported conspiracy was "vague."

Enrile has made no public comment on the matter.

IN WASHINGTON, the State Department said the U.S. government has no information that would suggest that Marcos was actively involved in trying to overthrow the Aquino administration. Earlier, State Department officials warned they would not accept Marcos violating U.S. laws by using his residence in Hawaii to try to overthrow another government.

Benigno said 180 politicians allied with Marcos and a small group of officers identified with Enrile plotted a power grab Saturday but were "checkmated" when Armed Forces Chief of Staff Gen. Fidel Ramos declared support for the government and ordered troops not to take orders from the Defense Ministry.

The conspirators planned to reconvene the Marcos-controlled National Assembly, abolished after Aquino came to power, Benigno said. The plan then called for the Assembly to name Nicanor Ynguez—Assembly speaker under Marcos—acting president until elections could be held or to pledge allegiance to the Aquino government pending new elections.

Corazon Aquino

"BUT THAT WAS just a ploy. Eventually their target was to bump her off," Benigno said, speaking to reporters in English.

Aquino Sunday warned communist rebels they have a week to reach a peace agreement with the government and told her negotiators to break off talks at the end of the month if no cease-fire pact is reached.

Aquino, facing the most serious challenge to her presidency, summoned Enrile to her office Sunday and demanded his resignation. She said it was part of a total revamping of her government and ordered the resignations of all 25 Cabinet members so she could get a "fresh start."

Asked Monday how many more Cabinet resignations would be accepted, Benigno replied, "Probably between two and four... that's the most."

Death scene proves fatal for actress

TOWSON, Md. (UPI)—An actress collapsed and died on stage during her character's death scene in The Drunkard after singing "Please Don't Talk About Me When I'm Gone."

Edith Webster, 60, of Baltimore collapsed of an apparent heart attack on stage Saturday during the play's performance at the Towson Moose Lodge.

"Night after night, she died and she died, and last night she died and she really did," said Richard Byrd, director of the comedy. "There was tremendous applause. Hearing that, she died."

Byrd, who also played the role of the villain in Saturday's performance, said the stage was blacked out after the death of the grandmother character at the end of the second act. Byrd said he went onstage as the villain and realized Webster had not moved.

Corporation asks for $150,000 city loan

An expanding Iowa City corporation that monitors Soviet television for local viewers is asking the Iowa City Council for a $150,000 low-interest loan for capital investments that could create 30 new jobs, city records state.

A special city council meeting will be held at 12 p.m. today to authorize a loan application for the Iowa Community Economic Betterment Account program on behalf of Worldview Inc., 150 Court St.

Worldview, which provides Soviet programming with English translation and subtitles and uses UI facilities to monitor Soviet satellites, may become a 24-hour news service.

Worldview would also like to provide local viewers with programs from China in the future, company founder Dodge Fielding said.

The loan application is expected to be approved and sent to the betterment account, and the council will also consider the project at its Dec. 18 meeting.

Iowa City commission wins TV award

An Iowa City commission recently received an award for its public programming on cable television, according to Heritage Cablevision, 546 Southgate Ave.

"A Civil Tongue," the recipient of a community programming award, shows weekly on Channel 29.

Since 1985, the program has been shown 11 times, with topics covering housing discrimination in Iowa City, the gay and lesbian communities, sexual harassment in the work place, the deaf in Iowa City and apartheid in South Africa.

It is the third award presented by Heritage Cablevision.

UI accountants to receive $10,000 grant

UI researchers will receive $10,000 a year for the next 10 years from the UI Alumni Association and the national accounting firm Touche Ross and Company.

The alumni association and Touche Ross have each agreed to give the UI $5,000 for the next 10 years. The money will go to UI faculty research in the accounting field.

"This fund is a way for Touche Ross to preserve the record of achievement of the UI Accounting Department," Touche Ross partner Michael E. McCreery said.

The money will also be used to recruit quality faculty in the accounting field, McCreery said.

UI Accounting Department Head John Smith said the new contribution will greatly enhance the UI accounting program.

"The faculty are ecstatic at the support from Touche Ross and our alumni," Smith said. "It's really gratifying to have alumni look back at this school and think enough of it that they want to financially support it."

Educator wins award for aiding children

A UI pediatrics and special education educator has won the Ross Education Award from the American Academy of Pediatrics.

UI Division of Developmental Disabilities Chairman Alfred Healy won the award based on his contributions to Project BRIDGE, an education program for health care professionals who serve disabled children and their families. Healy is also a UI College of Medicine professor.

The award, presented to Healy during the annual meeting of the American Academy of Pediatrics this month, recognizes outstanding pediatrics education programs and ongoing contributions to the field of pediatrics.

Phone books to be distributed today

The new Iowa City phone directory will come out today according to an announcement made by US WEST Direct, which publishes the book for Northwestern Bell.

About 75 temporary employees will begin delivering 100,000 copies of the 1986 phone directory over a two-week period beginning today.

Consumers who haven't received a directory by mid-December, or those who would like additional copies, should contact Northwestern Bell business offices.

Regents grant lease of UI space to firm

The UI Technological Innovation Center will be getting a new tenant after the state Board of Regents approved a lease this past week to the A-JEM Company.

The company specializes in the development and manufacture of technological devices. A-JEM plans to lease approximately 655 square feet of office space from Dec. 1, 1986, through November 1987.

The addition of A-JEM brings the number of businesses currently in residence at the center to 14.

The center was established in 1984 by the UI to nurture new businesses and foster new projects by existing companies in different fields of technology.

Rieks will head Students First ticket

By Phil Thomas
University Editor

The Students First party named UI junior Jim Rieks this week as its candidate for UI Student Senate president.

Rieks' responsibilities will include choosing the other party executives and organizing the campaign for the senate elections in March. Rieks will also head up all party affairs and help choose the Students First slate of senatorial candidates.

Rieks served on the unsuccessful Students First campaign this past year when the Allied Student Advocacy Party, headed by Senate President Joe Hansen, was victorious.

This past month, Rieks won an At-Large seat on the senate in a special election.

Sen. Mike Gainer, a staunch Students First party member, said Rieks' skills and familiarity with party workings will be a definite plus for Students First.

"THEY WANTED to get some new ideas in there," Gainer said. "They wanted some new life."

Rieks could not be reached for comment Monday.

Sen. John Gengler, also a Students First party member, said Rieks was chosen because he has not taken part in quarrels within the party.

"Jim has not been involved in any of the inner-party rivalries," Gengler said.

Gengler, who has been outspoken at senate meetings this semester, said he also vied for the position, but lost in the party election.

Although Rieks has only served on the senate for about a month, Gengler said Rieks is equipped with the skills necessary to make a good senate president.

"I THINK HE has the charisma and the leadership abilities," Gengler said. "He knows what is going on in the senate."

The Students First party was founded in the fall of 1984 by Steve Grubbs. Students First ousted the incumbent Phoenix party in the 1985 election and Grubbs served as senate president.

Students First suffered a major loss to ASAP in this year's election.

Senate Treasurer Mark Hess of ASAP said he was disappointed that her party has not decided on their executive candidates.

Hess said the party should begin discussion on the new slate before the end of the semester.

Courts

A judge ordered a foreclosure and sheriff's sale on 80 acres owned by a local farmer who killed three people and then himself about one year ago.

Johnson County District Court Judge William R. Eads ruled last week that the acreage of Lone Tree, Iowa, farmer Dale N. Burr must be sold in order to pay off a judgment of more than $170,000 against his estate.

Last December, Burr shot and killed his wife, Emily; the president of Hills Bank & Trust Co., John Hughes; a neighboring farmer, Richard Goody; and then himself.

The Burrs' surviving son, John Dale Burr, who is listed as executor of the estate, is a defendant in the lawsuit filed by Columbus Junction State Bank.

According to court records, the Burrs owe all of the money to the Columbus Junction

State Bank except for about $36,000 owed to Cedar-Johnson Farm Service.

Eads ruled that the 80 acres be put into a receivership until a sheriff's sale is held.

A man who was arrested for firing gunshots at two men while they were duck hunting on the Iowa River made his initial appearance Sunday in Johnson County District Court. Mark Allen Petersen, 33, Coralville, was charged Saturday with terrorism by Johnson County sheriff's deputies after he allegedly shot at two Iowa City men while they were duck hunting from a boat near the Izaak Walton League clubhouse, RR 3, Iowa City.

Both men were hit, but did not suffer serious injury, according to court records.

Petersen was released on his own recognizance and is scheduled to appear for a preliminary hearing Dec. 11.

Bomb-toting man threatens to kill pope

BRISBANE, Australia — A man with a history of mental illness, carrying five gasoline bombs and threatening to kill Pope John Paul II, was arrested today at City Hall, hours before the pontiff was to appear there, police said. Officers stopped and searched the man, who was acting strangely and holding cardboard box under one arm, Assistant Police Commissioner Ron Redmond said. "The box had five petrol (gasoline) bombs inside," Redmond said. "They were soft-drink bottles filled with gasoline and cloth wicks."

The man, identified only as a 24-year-old Irish native living in Sydney who recently had been released from a mental institution, told the officers he came to Brisbane on Saturday to assassinate John Paul because "the pope has too much money," Redmond said.

Redmond said the man was still being questioned and that charges depended on his mental condition.

British bank sells S. African holdings

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Barclays Bank of Britain said Monday it has sold its South African holdings, and Johnson Controls Inc. of Milwaukee announced it will divest its interests in the racially divided nation.

The Barclays pullout, the biggest in a series of major corporate withdrawals, and the Johnson Controls announcement followed a weekend brawl between blacks at a gold-mining community in which 11 people were killed.

Barclays became the first major British investor to pull out of South Africa under political pressure from opponents of apartheid.

Johnson Controls, a world leader in automated building controls, said its board of directors voted Friday for the divestiture, citing difficult economic conditions associated with continuing to do business in South Africa.

Judge rejects delay in war crimes trial

JERUSALEM — A judge rejected an American lawyer's appeal Monday to delay the war crimes trial of retired U.S. autoworker John Demjanjuk.

Demjanjuk, 67, accused of herding hundreds of thousands of people into Treblinka gas chambers as a death camp guard known as "Ivan the Terrible," was ordered last week to stand trial on Jan. 19.

But that date was abruptly moved up to Wednesday during the weekend, prompting defense lawyer Mark O'Connor to file an appeal asking Supreme Court Justice Shoshana Netanyahu to order a delay. Netanyahu gave no reason for the rejection.

O'Connor argued that without fluent Hebrew he could not understand the legal proceedings.

Demjanjuk was extradited to Israel by the United States on Feb. 28. He swears he was never in Treblinka and is a victim of mistaken identity.

Groups sue government over speed law

WASHINGTON — An auto safety group and a consumer organization sued the government Monday, charging it failed to require states to enforce the national 55 mph speed limit law and neglected to fine them.

The Center for Auto Safety and Public Citizen alleged the government engaged in "excessive and unwarranted delays" in failing to notify states that they were violating the law.

The groups said the government also failed to withhold federal funds, as required by legislation, from states that violate the 55 mph law.

The federal court suit named the Transportation Department and its two agencies entrusted to deal with highways and automobile safety, the Federal Highway Administration and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

A Transportation Department spokesman declined comment on the suit.

Iran focus of Weinberger trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger departs next week on an eight-day trip to three European countries and Morocco for discussions that likely will center on arms control and U.S. policy toward Iran, Pentagon officials said Monday.

As one of President Ronald Reagan's top advisers on national security policy, he is certain to be peppered with questions in Paris, London, Brussels, Belgium and Rabat, Morocco, about the administration's Iran affair, although Pentagon officials said the issue is not on his official agenda.

The long-scheduled trip, which will include two days of meetings with NATO defense ministers in Brussels, will take Weinberger out of Washington at a time of upheaval in the administration over Reagan's secret decision to supply weapons to Iran

Caspar Weinberger in exchange for hostages and an opening to Tehran's government.

WEINBERGER, who disagreed with Reagan's decision but supported it publicly following the president's disclosure of the initiative, has kept out of the debate. He has been close to Reagan since their days together in California.

The Pentagon chief leaves Dec. 1 for Paris for talks with his French counterpart, Andre Giraud.

France is in the midst of a war on terrorism and, following disclosure of the Iran affair, officials there are likely to question Weinberger closely about U.S. policy — overt and covert — toward governments that support terrorists.

Reagan reportedly plans to continue overtures to Tehran despite its support of terrorist organizations, though the president has said he will discontinue supplying weapons to Iran.

AT ALL OF HIS EUROPEAN stops, Weinberger also is likely to be interrogated about refinements to Reagan's proposal to Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev at the Iceland summit last month to eliminate strategic ballistic missiles within 10 years, Pentagon officials said.

In Morocco, Weinberger is to meet King Hassan II for talks that likely will center on upgrading Moroccan military equipment, particularly air force fighters, the officials said.

Morocco has held talks with France about purchasing fighter aircraft but may decide to buy the F-16, though the country cannot afford the American plane, the officials said.

Weinberger probably will be receptive to requests by Hassan since the monarch scrapped a 1984 military cooperation agreement with Libya that had made the United States "unhappy," one official said.

"He will look for ways that might help those needs" of Morocco for advanced military equipment, the official said.

Eastern, Texas Air merger approved

MIAMI (UPI) — A federal judge cleared the way Monday for the $676 million merger of Eastern Airlines and Texas Air, rejecting claims by a union coalition that the takeover agreement was reached improperly.

U.S. District Judge James Lawrence King, who heard testimony on the lawsuit Friday, denied a union request to delay a stockholder vote on the merger, scheduled for today in New York City.

Since Texas Air already owns 51 percent of Eastern's stock, shareholder approval of the merger is assured.

Lawyer F. Lee Bailey, representing the unions, said his clients needed 30 days to enable them to show the merger decision was not properly reached. The unions accused Eastern of ignoring other bids and of agreeing to sell 10.9 million shares of its common stock to Texas Air for an artificially low price.

IN A 20-PAGE ruling, King said the unions had not provided enough proof to justify delaying the merger.

The machinists, pilots and flight attendants unions formed the Eastern Airlines Employee Coalition Acquisition Inc. three weeks ago to attempt an employee buy-out of Eastern. The coalition said it would offer $10.25 cash per share — topping Texas Air's $10 per share bid — but has not yet raised the money.

Employees fear that a Texas Air takeover would bring about a loss of jobs.

Lawyers for financially troubled Eastern argued that a delay of the merger would cost the carrier $135 million and could force Eastern into default on its loans.

Eastern and Texas Air called the lawsuit "an ill-timed, ill-conceived effort to disrupt the transaction that has saved Eastern from bankruptcy."

Under pressure from lenders to cut costs, Eastern's board agreed to the Texas Air merger Feb. 24 when the machinists union refused to accept new wage cuts.

Researchers allege carcinogen cover-up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government and the alcoholic beverage industry have "deceived and endangered" the public by permitting dangerous levels of a cancer-causing chemical in many wines and liquors, researchers charged Monday.

An industry official dismissed the report by the Center for Science in the Public Interest as "false."

The chemical, urethane, forms during fermentation and distillation, said Bruce Silverglade, the legal director of the research center.

"It could be certain types of copper tubing used in the process," Silverglade said. "Canadian scientists believe it is caused by urea, a yeast additive."

U.S. and Canadian government scientists have found many products that contain urethane at levels that pose risks up to nearly 5,000 times higher than what the (Food and Drug Administration) considers safe," the research center said.

FDA deputy commissioner John Norris said the agency had been studying the problem since November 1985

JANET FLYNN, a spokeswoman for the Distilled Spirits Council of the United States, dismissed the charges of a cover-up as "unequivocally false."

Flynn noted the industry has been conducting laboratory tests and said: "This is not news nor is there a public cover-up. It has never been found to be a carcinogen in humans. It is a suspected carcinogen in animals."

Among the wines high on the center's warning list are a 1983 Temecula California Sauvignon Blanc, produced by the Callaway Vineyard and Winery of Temecula, Calif., a 1979 Marechal Foch by Meredyth Vineyards of Middleburg, Va., and Cabernet Sauvignon by Alamaden Vineyards of San Jose, Calif.

Save it

"A penny saved is a penny earned," according to Benjamin Franklin.

However, if State Senate Majority Leader Don Avenson, D-Oelwein, and State House Speaker Bill Hutchins, D-Audubon, have their way they will be taking that penny saved and depositing it into the state treasury.

It is only an idea being tossed around, but both leaders have been hinting at the fact that they may propose legislation to increase the state sales tax from 4 percent to 5 percent.

Go ahead and keep right on talking, but spare us the action of a tax hike.

Sure it is only an additional penny, but the thought of raising taxes when Iowa is experiencing its worst economic period since the Great Depression is like rubbing salt into the economic wounds of the state.

Increasing the sales tax will no doubt increase the state's revenue, but a tax hike is the easy way out. However, if the leaders of the state legislature are determined to pass a tax increase, let's put the burden on those who can afford to drop a little something extra into the state's coffers.

The legislature could start the tax increases by sticking it to those whose incomes are six figures or more in the form of a progressively higher state income tax. Then they could follow up with an increased tax on luxury items like jewelry, furs etc.

If Iowa's economy was flourishing, a one cent increase in the state sales tax might be an acceptable way to generate more income for the state treasury. Unfortunately the economy is not thriving; many residents are struggling to get by.

Raising the sales tax when the state is economically strapped is like kicking Iowans when they are down.

The state legislature is free to talk all they want to about an increase in the sales tax, as long as they leave it at that. Let Iowans keep that penny saved as a penny earned.

Timely?

The Daily Iowan sports staff got a letter from the president — that's the president — this week.

Sports Editor Brad Zimanek had asked the Gipper, a former sports broadcaster for WHO in Des Moines, to be the guest picker in On The Line.

The letter was penned by Thomas F. Gibson, special assistant to the president and director of public affairs. It acknowledged President Ronald Reagan's fondness for Iowa football, but was jam-packed with reasons the commander-in-chief couldn't play the DI's game:

First, "Reagan was elected president of all the people and therefore is reticent to take sides in any contest, sporting or otherwise (with the exception of political events)." Gibson was quick to point out that this extends "even to Chicago Cubs and White Sox baseball."

Secondly, the presidential assistant said Reagan is "reticent to make predictions because he feels it to be a jinx for the forecasted winner."

The president's refusal was politically polite and quite justified. But there was another problem with the letter.

The sports staff asked Reagan to pick winners in last weekend's games. The president's regrets arrived after all the points were tallied, so even if he'd consented to participate in On The Line, his response was too late...

Not surprising for a man who thinks "timely notification of Congress" means 18 months after the fact.

Cheers

Congratulations are in order for the Iowa field hockey team. Capping a surprisingly successful season, the Hawkeye team captured the NCAA championship Sunday to secure the first women's athletic title in the university's history. That's no small accomplishment.

Too often, women's teams are overshadowed by the publicity afforded the men's squads. After all, football and basketball are more popular with television audiences and the wrestling team has established itself as a perennial power.

But now a women's team has asserted itself as a respectable competitor, as well. These women athletes deserve the same recognition and applause usually given their male counterparts. Here's hoping this pat on the back is just the first of many.

U.S. sanctions against Syria unlikely to damage Assad

By Stanley Reed

THE REAGAN administration's sanctions against Syria may turn out to be a useful first step in giving pause to a regime accustomed to getting away with murder, but they hardly add up to a coherent or effective answer to the problems posed by Damascus.

This package of limited political and economic measures will not be much more than a nuisance to President Hafez al-Assad's government.

While the threat of tougher American and European reprisals down the road may cause Assad to think twice about sponsoring more dirty tricks in the West, he will not be so easily persuaded to give up the far more dangerous game that he is playing in the Middle East.

OF LATE, ASSAD'S success in frustrating American and Israeli goals in Lebanon has helped shore up his position at home and increased his regional prestige at the expense of Jordan, Egypt and other moderates. In addition,

Comment

Moscow has provided Damascus with such a large-scale military aid program that Syria now has more tanks and active combat aircraft than Israel. This buildup is certainly making another Middle East war more likely.

Although there is no quick, simple solution, America does not have to sit helplessly on the sidelines. The administration could include strong gestures of support to its Arab friends. Washington has virtually abandoned such countries in recent years. King Hussein has been embarrassed by his inability to obtain any American arms to counter the Syrian buildup. Likewise, huge debt obligations for past American arms purchases are undermining Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak.

AMERICA ALSO NEEDS to make at least a show of promoting efforts to find a solution to the Palestinian problem. While the odds may be stacked against any significant progress, the illusion of movement would be far better than the gloom and cynicism one now encounters in Cairo and Amman.

While Assad may seem formidable now, a constructive American policy in the region might put him on the defensive. He is far more vulnerable than he seems. He still cannot claim a significant Arab state as an ally. His base at home is also suspect. The Syrian economy has collapsed. The bungled and pointless terrorist operations attributed to Syrian agents in London and West Berlin have led many to question whether Assad is really in full control.

It would be a shame if the furor over arms shipments to Iran caused the United States to shy away from involvement in the Middle East once again. To do so would be to concede victory to Assad and other proponents of extreme solutions.

Fans show other side of Iowans

By Dave Boyle

WHEN sophisticated Easterners, like myself, think of Iowa, which we rarely do, we see endless rows of corn fields filled with freckle-faced, God-fearing middle class citizens who are polite, hard-working and terminally dull. This is, at least, what I thought before I attended a Hawkeye football game.

I had heard vague rumors about the stands being awash in alcohol. They were. I saw cans, whiskey bottles, flasks, coolers, ice chests, thermos bottles and countless botas bursting with booze. In fact, at halftime, a fan in front of me jumped up, pulled down his pants and took out two chilled cans of beer. I assume he is now impotent.

Once the booze took effect, the chanting began. The students in the end zone, where I was sitting, demanded that those on the west side eat a very unpleasant substance; those on the west side countered with a chant suggesting the end zone engage in sex.

THAT WAS unnecessary, because sex — or at least something like it — had already begun. Three rows in front of me, a dozen fraternity brothers were taking turns licking a young woman's shoulder. She shuddered, turned pink and screeched, which only whetted their appetites. Finally, one of them yelled, "Gang lick!" and all 12 simultaneously licked her shoulder.

To my left, I watched a column of male students grab struggling coeds, lift them over their heads and pass them to the top of the stadium. The women climbed row after row, flat on their backs, supported by hundreds of hands, some of which lingered on some very private parts.

By halftime, things were spinning out of control. I returned to my seat to find two men competing at throwing up; a third acted as a referee. I decided to move closer to the field.

There, I had a front row seat for the mud sliding exhibition; it consisted of daring young men diving down a 40-foot hill of goo. They came up covered in slop with pieces of sod plastered on their hair and faces.

A FEW RACED up the stairs next to me and hugged an enormous man with "Moose" scrawled across his back. Now I saw the reason for the alcohol: the sight of beefy mud-splattered men hugging one another was unbearable when sober.

So, I was wrong about Iowa. There is a level of debauchery here that far exceeds anything found in the East. Men do, of course, publicly maul and lick women in Pittsburgh and New York, but only after money has exchanged hands. In Iowa, assault is not only allowed it is considered educational.

But maybe I came away with a distorted view. After all, I sat in the students' section, which belongs on the third level of Dante's Inferno. Maybe the other sections were filled with hard-working, God-fearing, middle class types. But I doubt it.

Enough is enough

To the Editor:

... After six years of President Ronald Reagan's blundering, incompetence and mind-numbing ability to make it "play well in Peoria," the best devices of an old actor have failed him.

For once his much heralded talents at standing reality on its head and distracting America with emotional dog and pony shows were not apparent.

Reagan must be stunned by his inability to put the right spin on this one. Somehow people remembered that the president is the same guy who eviscerated former President Jimmy Carter for the latter's weakness in the face of the ayatollahs. What the Champion of Libya did not realize was that he can't — at least on this issue — have it both ways: he can't bomb one member of "murder incorporated" while playing footsie with another.

In the political wilderness inhabited by those who have consistently opposed Reagan's harebrained — and triggered — schemes masquerading as policy, it's heartening to see there is a limit to the gullibility of the American people.

Outraged reader

To the Editor:

I enjoyed Linda Schuppener's editorial (The Daily Iowan, Nov. 18) on the Iranian crisis. Indeed the sending of $60 million in aid to a government that is led by fanatics alone is crazy. That we had an official boycott against that same government should have been even further reason not to send any arms. Most importantly, we traded the arms for hostages. All of these go strongly against the morals and integrity of American ideals.

David Pepper

Thus when I read Afshin Kia's letter to the editor (DI, Nov. 21) criticizing Schuppener's editorial, I was outraged. Besides being oblivious to the issue she addressed, Kia's letter was as disorganized and untruthful as they come...

America should stand for freedom and justice for all people in a country, not only the few. It should also be embodied with truth and justice in all of our dealings. This includes our government — from them we should expect nothing less.

The facts are clear. We have been deceived. It is clear that our president is wrong. He has been caught this time lying to the American people. While this is the first time he has been caught perhaps now people will begin to question. Are we being told the truth about the Contras? Should we really be training them to kill their own people without training them to talk first?

Schuppener's editorial was right on the mark. While Kia suggests that she "either clean up her act or forget about objective criticism," I hope she continues to write. For too long the press has been quoting the president as if he always told the truth...

Thanks for the ride

To the Editor:

Monday, Nov. 24 at 7:56, service to Mayflower Residence Hall began by the Mayflower I Cambus route. This is the culmination of more than two years of work on the part of MayCo, Associated Residence Halls and Student Senate. Those responsible for all of the work undertaken to achieve this goal could fill this page, but there are those who deem special appreciation. Past MayCo presidents Joe Brady and Tracy Hopkins; MayCo Cambus committee members Joey Stovall, Katie Gent and Tony Steckman; and ARH President Larry Pearlman.

I would like to further thank Senate President Joe Hansen and Cambus Director Dave Ricketts for taking on my personal goals of added service to Mayflower and for their personal investment of time to this cause. Without cooperation on all levels of student government and the UI administration this necessary added bus service would never have come to be. Thank all of you very much.

Children

THE PLAY Child of a Lesser God won Tony and the lead man won an Oscar but that just goes to show anything can be reduced to formula in the movies: meets Girl, Boy loses Girl, gets Girl.

The possibilities of a romance between a deaf woman and a hearing man are perhaps endless, but certainly explicable — if only as a metaphor for how women are often treated as handicapped people in their relationships with men. But Children of a Lesser God suffers — if only from misconception that tight, turgid drama is not enough for the silver screen.

Children of a Lesser God is the story of James Leeds (William Hurt), a dynamic teacher of the deaf, and his tough case: a woman who has since left school and steadfastly refuses to learn to speak. Sarah (played by actress Marlee Martin) determined young woman infuriated by the limits a handicap imposes on her, unwilling to make the effort to live in a hearing world. 'Children' lacks fresh vision

By B. Gordon

THE PLAY Children of a Lesser God won a Tony and the leading man won an Oscar, but that just goes to show that anything can be reduced to formula in the movies: Boy meets Girl, Boy loses Girl, Boy gets Girl.

The possibilities of a romance between a deaf woman and a hearing man are perhaps not endless, but certainly explorable — if only as a metaphor for how women are often treated as handicapped people in their relationships with men. But Children of a Lesser God suffers — if only from the misconception that tight, telling drama is not enough for the silver screen.

Children of a Lesser God is the story of James Leeds (William Hurt), a dynamic teacher of the deaf, and his toughest case: a woman who has long since left school and steadfastly refuses to learn to speak. Sarah (played by deaf actress Marlee Martin) is a determined young woman infuriated by the limits her handicap imposes on her, yet unwilling to make the effort to live in a hearing world. "Why," she signs to Hurt, "can't they learn my language?"

Film

ONE PROBLEM in the movie version is that it takes more than an hour of screen time for the main characters to fall in love, even though the audience can see they are meant for each other in the first five minutes.

But even with all this time and effort, the love story is still unreasonable. One hesitates to fault Martin for Sarah's clearly secondary nature; Hurt's presence in any film is difficult to play up to, and she makes a better than yeoman effort. It's also a little hard to tell since Martin signs all of her lines and Hurt speaks them. Whatever the reason, it's obvious that this romance is not a meeting of equals and Sarah is merely an ingenue with a twist.

For instance, Hurt's character claims that Sarah is "brilliant," but all we see is a few cutting remarks that Faye Dunaway would consider war-mups. He calls her "mysterious" and "angry" as if she were Greta Garbo, but the reasons for her frustration are utterly transparent: She cleans toilets for a living.

THE PROBLEMS of the deaf hearing relationship have a lot of potential. Despite Leeds's long experience and concern for deaf people, as well as his proficiency in communicating with them, there are bound to be conflicts.

There is one scene in which Sarah has taught herself to play poker in preparation for a party with Leeds and some of the school's higher-ups, and her advance in the hearing world is instantly credited to his tutelage. On the other hand, Leeds stops listening to the music he loves, feeling guilty for enjoying it when she can't share the pleasure with him.

Most importantly, Sarah makes his acceptance of her speechlessness a condition of their relationship. Being a speech teacher, he naturally has a lot of trouble accepting this.

But these conflicts (ending, of course, in Boy losing Girl) are handled at such length, and with so little freshness of vision, that they seem cliché. One wishes the filmmakers had spent less time giving each conflict its own scene and post-crisis analysis. After the too-lengthy courtship, the ponderous problems of the romance drag the movie out like a five-page term paper stretched to fill 20 pages.

Violinist La Fosse performs 20th century works in recital

By Julia Kramer
Staff Writer

VIOLINIST Leopold La Fosse, together with pianist Edwin Penhorwood, skillfully performed works by 20th century American composers in Clapp Recital Hall on Nov. 23.

The piece that set itself apart on the program was Sonata for violin and piano (1943) by Aaron Copland.

In the first movement, an open feeling of space was created by using slow-moving majestic chords in the piano as a foundation for a lighter, breathtaking melody on the violin. The movement progressed into more frolicking passages that continually returned to the simple but stately beginning theme.

The following Lento contained long lyrical lines played by the violin and accompanied by a walking note theme on the piano.

THE FINAL MOVEMENT had an aggressive rhythmic quality that highlighted La Fosse's clarity of tone. Broad phrases and a wide range of dynamics were later contrasted by a lyrical section that included pizzicato (plucking the strings) and sustained harmonics performed expertly by La Fosse.

Of bells... and time: A Dialogue for violin and piano (1967) by Peter Tod Lewis contained several interesting compositional elements and comprised fleeting images of bells ringing, echoed by both the piano and violin.

Closing the program was Sonata for violin and piano in 3 movements (1979) by Richard Hervig, professor of music at the UI.

The piece contained rhythmic patterns on the piano that accompanied a singing violin melody. In the first movement, rhythmic accentuations were played off between musicians, creating a dual effect. Later in the work, the piano continued its rhythmic gestures while the violin hovered above on clear, sustained tones.

Hervig was present at the performance and was recognized at the conclusion of the work.

Iowa senior Tricia Blair dives for a loose ball during the Hawkeyes' exhibition win over Yugoslavia Nov. 11. The Hawkeyes take to the court for their first competition of the season at the Amana-Hawkeye Classic which will be held over the Thanksgiving holiday.

Hawks ready for holiday feast

By Mike Triik
Staff Writer

Iowa women's basketball Coach Vivian Stringer doesn't want people to think her team has bad manners, but it will be eat and run for the Hawkeyes this weekend.

The eighth-rated Hawkeyes won't have time to savor their Thanksgiving dinners as they host the second annual Amana-Hawkeye Classic on Saturday and Sunday.

"I really can't believe we play so soon," Stringer, who is entering her fourth year at Iowa, said. "Not just the fact that we have to be ready to play but the fact that we have to be at championship level from the start."

Competition will be at its best as this year's tournament will pit two of last year's NCAA participants in the first game. Tennessee, the team which knocked Iowa out of the NCAA tournament last year, will play Providence at 1:30 p.m. at Carver-Hawkeye Arena on

Women's Basketball

Saturday.

TENNESSEE RETURNS four starters from a team that made the Final Four last year. Providence will have its hands full as Bridgette Gordon, who averaged 14.2 points per game, Sheila Frost, 12.2, Shelly Sexton, 12.2, and Karla Horton, 10.7, are all back for the Lady Volunteers.

Stringer's squad will kick off the season, a season that holds a lot of promise, with the Boston Terriers, immediately following the Providence-Tennessee match-up.

The Terriers are coming off of a 15-13 campaign from a year ago and also return four starters. Seniors Renee Kurowski and Andrea Ashuck are key players in the Terrier attack as they each averaged just over 11 points a contest last season. Lisa Smith and Bonnie Fitchett are also returning starters. Smith scored 8.3 points a game while Fitchett dumped in five points per contest last year.

AS FAR AS THE IOWA line-up is concerned, Stringer has all five of her starters back from a year ago.

"We don't have a set line-up, and that's good," Stringer added. "If someone gets hurt or tired, I can put anyone in without worrying about it if that player can pick up the slack."

The main reason for Stringer not having a set line-up is because of the depth available to the Hawkeye mentor. No fewer than 10 players have a shot at starting throughout the year.

"We'll have great balance this year," Stringer said. "Our system does not allow any one person to score 25 or 30 points a game. That doesn't mean we don't have the players that are capable of playing that type of game. It's just that at the end we as a team want to come out on top, and that's the way we address things."

STRINGER IS HOPING to use this weekend's tournament to prepare her team for a year that should bring good things to the women's basketball program.

"We are using our tough pre-season to prepare us for what we hope will be a very good year," Stringer said. "Things that we hoped for three years ago are within our realm this year."

"This is a very important year for us here. We have the potential to get things done this year. There is no wait until next year. It takes more than three years to build tradition, but we're on the right track."

Last year Iowa won the inaugural Amana-Hawkeye Classic by defeating Bradley and North Carolina State in convincing fashion.

Ice Hawks' Dey propels Iowa by Grinnell, 10-1

By Marc Bona
Staff Writer

The Ice Hawks' Black squad pounded Grinnell last Friday night in Waterloo 10-1 to boost its record to 3-1.

Grinnell's Steve Rowe opened the scoring as he took a pass from Dennis Gerhardtstein one minute into the game, putting Grinnell up 1-0.

But Iowa's Pete Dey had other ideas as he scored the next three goals for the Ice Hawks. His first two goals, assisted by Dave Dirks and F.J. Frazier, were scored 1 minute, 16 seconds apart.

Sportsclubs

He scored again on a Bob Stensby pass later in the period.

Dirks jumped on the scoring bandwagon as he shot in Iowa's fourth goal which was set up by Don Kisela and John Brandt.

ville might stand in its path. But then again, according to Crum, they might not.

"They'll be way ahead of us," Crum said of Northeastern, the Cardinals' first round Shootout opponent. "In December we tend to lose a lot of games anyway."

Crum also believes sophomore Pervis Ellison, who was last year's NCAA tournament MVP, has improved from his initial collegiate season a year ago.

"If Pervis could pick up where he left off at the end of last season, that sure ought to help us. But it will be much more difficult for him this season. He will need to improve in several areas," Crum said.

"Pervis is shooting better this year, and I think his understanding of our game has improved. A year of experience will help."

Crum added, "It takes a lot more than one player to be a great team."

when he took a pass from defenseman Jim Sorley, making the score 5-1. Brandt finished the first-period scoring when he took a pass from Tom Stewart and put it by the Grinnell goalie.

Kisela started second period scoring action when he took a centered pass from Stensby and Brandt to add to Iowa's rout.

Mike Pugliese scored on an Andy Nilles shot to make the score 8-1. Frazier, set up by Shell and Pugliese, finished the scoring for the period.

Pugliese, passing at least four times up the ice with teammate Nilles, scored the lone goal of the third period to make the final score 10-1.

Iowa goalie Brian Gandy was injured in pregame warm-ups, forcing the Hawks to put Dan Seliger, a seldom-used goalie, in net. Seliger's only previous experience in goal was two years ago against Palmer. Seliger recorded a 1-0 shutout.

SELIGER SAID HE thought Gandy was faking when he fell to the ice after being hit in the helmet with a slapshot from teammate Stensby.

"But then I saw the blood on the ice, and I knew he wasn't fooling around," Seliger said.

According to Seliger, a screw inside of Gandy's helmet came loose and cut a gash in his head. Gandy received seven stitches as the result of the accident.

Seliger stopped 19 of 20 shots to record a 95 percent save mark.

The Iowa Crew competed in the Hardcore Oarsmen Regatta in Minneapolis, recording wins in the men's open double and the open mixed eight.

Iowa's Brian Bader and Dave Sorapani finished first, amazingly, in the 1,500 meter men's open double race. The two had trouble launching, and both rowers fell into the water at the start of the race.

The DI's Sportsclubs column appears every Tuesday. To get information printed in this column contact Marc Bona at the DI before 2 p.m. on Monday.

Shootout

Marble and Brad Lohaus. Davis, though, with a few days of practice remaining will not rule out the possibility of Jeff Moe acquiring a starting nod before the tournament.

"I'm not really sure because one thing that we have found in the past week or so is that we are a better ball club with Jeff Moe in there," Davis said. "He seems to pick up on defense, and we found some evidence of that in the Russian game."

If the Hawkeyes manage to get past the Seawolves, the winner of the Texas-North Carolina State game will still stand in their way.

THE HAWKEYES ARE familiar with the Wolfpack. In the first round of last year's NCAA tournament Coach Jim Valvano's North Carolina State squad upended Iowa 66-64.

The Wolfpack are without starting center Chris Washburn, who took the hardship rule and opted for the NBA draft, but North Carolina State isn't ready for a down year yet, especially after defeating 14th-ranked Navy 86-84 last Saturday in the Hall of Fame Tip-Off Classic.

Davis believes Iowa might face North Carolina State, but he isn't sure if it will be in the winner's or the loser's bracket.

"It's possible if we lose to Alaska-Anchorage we could play N.C. State too," Davis said. "Texas is a good ball club. I haven't seen them enough, but Washburn is a terrific talent. I think as the year goes on they will miss him less."

IF IOWA COMPLETES its goal and advances to the championship contest, Louis-

Tie one on.

Northern Open to help Gabe set line-up

By Laura Palmer Staff Writer

The Northern Open tournament could be a critical meet for some Hawkeye wrestlers this weekend in Madison, Wis.

According to Iowa Coach Dan Gable, certain Hawkeyes are still in contention for a spot in the line-up, and the results of Saturday's tournament could shift some wrestlers around.

"This meet is very important from an individual standpoint," Gable said. "It's very critical for guys fighting for positions. This meet could determine who I'll take on the Eastern swing."

Wrestling

Gable will be taking the entire team, including those wrestlers not in the starting line-up, to the Northern Open.

ACCORDING TO Wisconsin Assistant Coach John Azevedo, the field of teams may have depleted since last year's tournament.

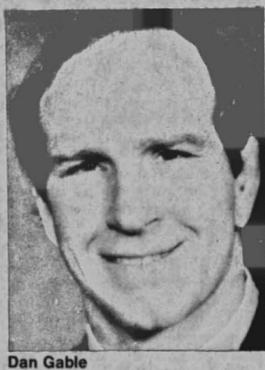

"We heard Minnesota and Michigan aren't coming, and Iowa State might not be here," Azevedo said. "It might not be as tough as in the past, but it will still be a decent tournament."

Wisconsin will be entering 35 wrestlers in the open tournament.

Northwestern, Minnesota, Indiana, Purdue, Wisconsin, Illinois and Iowa will be the Big Ten schools represented, and according to Azevedo, non-conference schools and graduates will participate in the tournament.

The Badgers underwent a coaching change after former Wisconsin Coach Russ Hellickson took over at Ohio State. Former Wisconsin wrestler Andy Rein now heads the Badger squad.

Hawks chase NCAA hopes in final game

By Steve Williams Staff Writer

The Iowa women's volleyball team will wrap up its regular season schedule tonight when it hosts the Minnesota Gophers at Carver-Hawkeye Arena at 7:30.

After the Hawkeyes lost two matches over the weekend, however, this match will take on added importance as both teams are tied for second place in the conference, meaning the winner will stand alone behind undefeated conference foe Illinois.

Volleyball

And with the possibility that the winner of the Big Ten and the runner-up will receive bids to the NCAA tournament, Iowa Coach Sandy Stewart said her team is ready to accomplish its major goal for the season.

"It's all going to come down to Tuesday night," Stewart said. "We've really been struggling for the last couple of weeks, and we need to get things back on track if we are to salvage a bid for the NCAA tournament."

THE GOPHERS COME into tonight's match with an identical 12-5 conference record with Iowa while being 20-11 overall as opposed to the Hawkeyes' 25-8 record.

But while Iowa has been struggling just to win the last two weeks (losing five of their last six), the Gophers have been on a slight roll. However, they did pull up lame against Ohio State, enabling Iowa to hold on to a share of second place.

The Hawkeyes might have an added problem in that Ellen Mullarkey, who sprained an ankle, may miss the match with the Gophers, a loss that would be devastating to the team.

"Ellen has been our emotional leader most of the season, and she's really fighting to be ready for the match with Minnesota," Stewart said. "The doctors said she had the same type of sprain as David Hudson, but hopefully she won't be out as long as he was for the football team."

McMahon lost for remainder of 1986 season

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (UPI) — Injury-plagued Jim McMahon probably will not play for the Chicago Bears for the remainder of the 1986 season, Bears' Coach Mike Ditka said Monday.

McMahon will have his sore shoulder examined by physician Frank Jobe in Los Angeles Tuesday, but Ditka said it was "very unlikely" McMahon's services would be available to the club for the rest of the year, including the playoffs.

"I doubt we'll have his services for the rest of the year," Ditka said. "There is a major problem. We'll have to wait and see what the doctor's opinion is."

Ditka said McMahon, who returned Sunday against Green Bay but was 12 of 32 for 95 yards, was hurting last week but didn't tell the coaching staff the extent of the pain. He also said the late hit McMahon took from Packer nose tackle Charles Martin in the second quarter worsened but did not cause McMahon's problems.

"HE'S HAVING TROUBLE even lifting his arm today," Ditka explained. "He told me today and Jerry (Bears' General Manager Jerry Vainisi) and Fred (trainer Fred Caito) he was in trouble."

With McMahon possibly out for the rest of the year, Mike Tomczak will return as starting quarterback for Chicago in next Sunday's battle at home against Pittsburgh. Ditka also emphasized with the seriousness of McMahon's injury that he will look toward former Heisman Trophy winner Doug Flutie to play a key role in Chicago's bid to repeat as Super Bowl champions.

"Mike is to start right now. We're going to get Flutie ready to play in the next two weeks," Ditka said. "I'll let Mike know he's the starter. Flutie isn't ready yet, but he will be."

Iowa faces stiff Alaska test

By Brad Zimanek
Sports Editor

The Iowa basketball team over Thanksgiving break will get its first true taste of competition, and it may turn out to be a bitter one.

The Hawkeyes, after an exhibition loss to the Soviet National team Nov. 17, will head to Anchorage, Alaska, to open their season in what has become the premier pre-season basketball tournament in the country — The Great Alaska Shootout.

In the last two years Big Ten teams have fared pretty well in the eight-team tournament with Illinois placing third in 1984 while Purdue also knocked off a third-place spot in 1985.

The Hawkeyes may be hard-pressed to be as fortunate.

THIS YEAR'S tournament line-up besides the Hawkeyes includes Alaska-Anchorage, 1985-86 Southwest Conference champion Texas, North Carolina State, 1986 NCAA Champion Louisville, Northeastern (26-5 in 1985-86), Utah State and Washington.

"In a tournament like this you just want to do your best. You know you could go in and go 0-3 in a hurry," Iowa Coach Tom Davis said. "You play three straight days. If you catch a little foul trouble or just hit a stretch where you don't play very well, you could lose two out of three or all three."

Davis continued: "On the other hand, we hope to have a chance at the championship. I think our goal is to see if we can win the thing. It would be a terrific way to start the year. But losing all three is not out of the question. It's that strong of a year."

LOUISVILLE COACH Denny Crum, though being ranked No. 1 at the start of the season, agreed with Davis.

"This is an outstanding tournament. It's nice to be able to play three games, win or lose," Crum said. "It will give us a chance to play some of our younger players. We have very good potential, but we lack experience at the guards after losing Milt Wagner and Billy Thompson off of last year's team."

In its first contest Friday, Iowa has to go against the hometown favorite Alaska-Anchorage Seawolves at the 8,000-seat Sullivan Arena.

The Seawolves have never won more than one game at their own tournament, but first-year Coach Ron Abegglen hopes this will be the first.

"I think the Shootout helps us as far as basketball exposure for Alaska. It doesn't help us as far as our won-loss record. That's for sure," Abegglen said. "We would like to win two, and we have never done it. That would be a great year for us."

THE SEAWOLVES might have the team to do it. At center for Alaska-Anchorage is 6-foot-10 senior Hansi Gnad, who averaged 25.3 points and 20.6 rebounds per game in leading the Seawolves to a 22-10 record and a Great Northwest Conference championship a year ago. Also back from that team is 5-8 Jessie Jackson, who averaged 21.2 points a game.

"The Anchorage-Alaska team is going to be a tough opponent for a couple of reasons. One is they have a quick little guard (Jackson) who is an outstanding scorer," Davis said. "The scout that looked at him talked about him and compared him a lot to Calvin Murphy (former 5-9 NBA star who played most of his career with the Houston Rockets)."

Davis continued: "They have good guards and a 6-10 center who is the leading rebounder in their history and who played with the West German team in the World Cup Games this summer. It's a good ballclub. They feel they have championship aspirations in Division II this year, and looking at their line-up, it's a realistic goal that they could be contenders."

ABEGGLEN STILL questions whether that will be enough to counteract Davis' highly-ranked Hawkeyes.

"We know how tough they are. They're rated and highly thought of and physically and talent-wise there is no way we can match-up with them," Abegglen said.

Iowa's starting line-up against the Seawolves should be B.J. Armstrong, Kevin Gamble, Ed Horton, Roy

Four Hawks earn spots on first unit

CHICAGO (UPI) — Senior quarterback Jim Harbaugh, who helped Michigan gain a share of the Big Ten title this year, and Ohio State linebacker Chris Spielman head the 1986 United Press International all-Big Ten team announced Monday.

Minnesota freshman Darrell Thompson, a 6-foot-2, 210-pounder out of Rochester, Minn., also was selected to the all-conference team to become the first freshman named to the offensive unit since punter Tom Tupa of Ohio State two years ago.

Harbaugh, who was near the top of the passing efficiency lists in the nation, was the quarterback on the first unit. Joining Harbaugh and Thompson in the first team backfield was junior running back Jamie Morris of Michigan.

THE WOLVERINES had the most first team selections with six while Ohio State and Iowa had four each.

Spielman, who guided the Buckeyes to a share of the Big Ten title after Ohio State got off to an 0-2 start, was a unanimous selection by the conference coaches who participated in the balloting. The only other player to be named on all first team ballots was Purdue senior cornerback Rod Woodson.

Cris Carter, the top receiver in the league, and Bob Maggs, both of Ohio State, were the only repeaters on the first team offensive unit from last year.

The other wide receiver was Andre Rison of Michigan State, who helped set several school records for receiving this year.

THE REST OF THE offensive line consisted of Iowa senior Dave Croston and Michigan junior John Elliott at tackle; Iowa junior Bob Kratch and Michigan senior Mark Hammerstein at guard and Northwestern senior tight end Rich Borresen.

In the closest balloting on the offensive unit, Minnesota

Miami holds top position in rankings

NEW YORK (UPI) — Miami, Penn State, Oklahoma and Michigan established themselves as the elite of college football in voting Monday by the United Press International's Board of Coaches.

The four schools appeared at the top of 48 of 50 ballots, with Miami emerging No. 1 for the ninth straight week. The Hurricanes earned 44 of 50 first-place votes and 743 points.

Penn State retained its No. 2 spot and kept alive the chance for a national title game against Miami Jan. 2 in the Sunbist Fiesta Bowl with a 34-14 triumph last Saturday over Pittsburgh. The Hurricanes must now defeat East Carolina Thursday night. The Nittany Lions secured five No. 1 votes and 697 points.

With victories over arch-rivals last Saturday, No. 3 Oklahoma and No. 4 Michigan preserved slim hopes for a national title. The Sooners 10-1, earned one first-place vote and 648 points while Michigan amassed 606 points.

junior Chip Lohmiller was selected as the placekicker over Northwestern's John Davie.

Spielman, who led the Big Ten in tackles, made the first unit for the second straight year. Other repeaters from last year on defensive were Iowa senior lineman Jeff Drost, Woodson and punter Greg Montgomery of Michigan State.

Drost was slowed by an injury this year but still made the first unit. He was joined on the defensive line by Hawkeye noseguard Dave Haight, brother of last year's all-Big Ten offensive tackle from Iowa, Mike Haight.

Congress

Iowa's two newest members of the U.S. House of Representatives say they'll place a priority on education in the 100th Congress coming in Washington next month won't forget the farmers.

Dave Nagle, whose election to Iowa's 3rd District congressional seat in November ended a 52-year Republican reign, and Fred Grandy left the popular "Love television series to see 6th District congressional believe the federal government needs a stronger commitment to education.

"I've been very strong feelings that government going in the wrong direction on this issue," said Nagle whose district includes Taylor and the University of Northern Iowa.

Doyle nabs NCAA all-American honors

By Laura Palmer
Staff Writer

Renee Doyle accomplished her goal and became an all-American Monday after a seventh-place finish at the NCAA Cross Country Championships in Tucson, Ariz.

Doyle completed the 5,000-meter race in 17 minutes, 18 seconds. The only Big Ten runner to beat her was second place Wisconsin runner Suzy Favor (17:01.55). For the first time, the Iowa sophomore beat both Ohio State's Kathy Monard and Wisconsin's Stephanie Herbst.

Cross Country

"There were probably 15 truly quality runners behind her," Iowa Coach Jerry Hassard said. "Renee ran an outstanding race."

The Hawkeyes tied Villanova for 13th place with 277 points. Texas won the meet (62 points) by defeating defending national champion Wisconsin (64). Both Doyle and senior Sherri Suppella ran very well, according to Hassard. Suppella ran the course in 18:27.38 to finish 49th in team placing.

"SHE RAN ONE HECK of a race," Hassard said. "She ran very well. She got off to a good start, worked through the middle and passed a few people in the final straight-away. This was an extremely difficult course. A lot of people underestimated this course." Kris Watters was suffering from a stress fracture while running the race. She finished the course in 19:16.08 (89th place).

"It was definitely a hindrance to her and a liability for her in the race," Hassard said.

Other Hawkeyes contributing to Iowa's 13th place finish were 64th place Janeth Salazar (18:36), 80th place Michelle Giampapa (18:57), 81st place Kim Schneckloth (18:58) and 97th place Rachelle Roberts (19:55).

"The team came an awful long way. They had an outstanding season," Hassard said.
