Investigation into Iran deal widens

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Attorney General Edwin Meese has reportedly decided to recommend a Watergate-style special prosecutor and Senate GOP leader Robert Dole called Sunday for the first special session of Congress in almost four decades to investigate the Iran arms-Contra aid scandal.

Republicans and Democrats on Capitol Hill, White House aides and former administration officials agreed President Ronald Reagan is facing a critical period in the crisis, and his effectiveness as president — if not the fate of his presidency itself — depends on quick, decisive action in the next few days.

Israeli officials comment on their country's role in the Iran arms deal. See page 8A

Reagan, away at his California ranch during the worst hours of his presidency, flew back to Washington saying he was determined to do everything to crack the case.

STEPPING ONTO Air Force One at Point Mugu Naval Air Station outside Santa Barbara, Calif., Reagan was asked about the possible appointment of an independent counsel.

"We'll do everything necessary to get the truth and make the truth known," he said.

But in a Time magazine interview released Sunday, Reagan refused to disavow the Iran arms deal and called the chief U.S. contact in the scheme, Lt. Col. Oliver North, a national hero.

"I think we took the only action we could have in Iran," the president told the magazine. "I am not going to disavow it. I do not think it was a mistake."

Vice President George Bush, in a separate Time interview that was his first statement on the affair, flatly denied any part in the covert funding of the Nicaraguan Contras with profits from the Iran arms sales.

THE LOS ANGELES Times reported Sunday that Meese has decided to ask a federal court in Washington to appoint an independent counsel to take over the Justice Department's investigation.

A Meese associate and long-time Reagan confidante told the newspaper the administration is expected to announce the move soon because "we don't want another failed presidency."

However, Justice Department spokesman Patrick Korten said Sunday, "No such decision (for a special prosecutor) has been reached at this time."

A Justice Department official said Meese would consider

Students, faculty give reactions to scandal

By Monica Seigel
Staff Writer

UI students and a faculty member said Sunday they have mixed feelings about how the Iranian arms scandal will affect U.S. foreign policy.

UI freshman Mitra Maybodi from Tehran, Iran, said she is unsure how people from her native land are reacting to the incident.

"It was probably as much of a scandal at home as it is here," Maybodi said. "I don't think everyone there really understands what's going on either."

Maybodi said she doubts the majority of the Iranian Parliament would be in favor of arms deals with the United States.

"I DON'T THINK Khomeini was for it," she said. "I think Reagan sees that Khomeini is old and is probably going to die soon, so he is trying to make friends with Iran before the Soviet Union does."

"Reagan may have thought that what he did was in the best interests of the United States, but I don't think it was very good for Iran," Maybodi added.

Maybodi said it is difficult for her to communicate with family and friends from Iran because they are reluctant to discuss the matter on the telephone.

"I told my father over the phone that I had heard (Robert) McFarlane went to Iran and had been arrested. He just said, 'Yeah, I heard something like that too.' He wouldn't say yes or no about it," she said.

A UI SENIOR from Israel, who declined to be identified, said he believes many countries have lost faith in the Reagan administration.

"It's hard to define Reagan's foreign policy. I wonder sometimes if even he knows what he is doing," he said. "I think he will have difficulty maintaining his image as a foreign leader against terrorism after this."

UI Political Science Professor Peter Snow said it is unlikely that the incident will damage Reagan's credibility.

"It seems to me that over the past six years nothing Reagan has done has harmed his credibility," Snow said. "They (the public) don't necessarily adore his policies, but they do adore him."

THE EXTENT of damage to Reagan's credibility will depend on further developments, Snow said.

"If this stays in the news for another month or so, I think his credibility will maybe be touched," he said.

UI Liberal Arts Student Association member Paul Oetken said Reagan's credibility will inevitably suffer from the crisis.

"He either doesn't know what's going on or else he does and he is lying about his involvement with it," Oetken said. "He really looks bad."

appointment of an independent counsel when and if the investigation turns up evidence that any high-ranking White House aide — those covered by the 1973 Ethics in Government Act — were involved in any illegality.

"THE INVESTIGATION has found no such proof yet," the official said. But he said FBI agents are now conducting interviews with the principals and have been dispatched to "wherever they need to go," including Israel, which denies Meese's revelations that it played a role in diverting profits from Iran arms sales to the Contra rebels.

Dole, R-Kan., speaking on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley," said he believed a special prosecutor would be appointed but he called on Reagan to summon a special session of Congress instead.

"I would hope he (Reagan) would call a special session of Congress next week," Dole said, adding that he would like to see the formation of a select committee to consolidate the growing number of congressional probes, Dole said.

"There ought to be a special session of Congress. There isn't time to sit around until Congress comes back January 6," Dole said. "We can't afford another failed presidency."

On CBS's "Face the Nation," Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia, also calling for a special prosecutor, said, "The quicker the president can take action himself and appear to be in control, the quicker this (situation) will dissipate. The president is in trouble; the presidency itself is being weakened."

S. African crews begin work on 'Berlin Wall of Soweto'

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Construction crews are building a concrete barrier separating Johannesburg's white areas from the black township of Soweto, it was reported Sunday.

Dubbed the "Berlin Wall" of Soweto, the wall is being erected for safety reasons by the white-led government, a local police official said. The Bureau for Information in Pretoria had no comment on the reports in two major newspapers, the Sunday Star and the Sunday Tribune.

"The police said the wall was being erected by the Department of Transport. Workmen at the site say they were told the wall was to enclose the township, but they would not say why. They did not know who was funding the erection," said the Sunday Star.

Helen Suzeman, a spokeswoman for the opposition Progressive Federal Party, said it would be "grotesque" to separate the sprawling home of 2.2 million blacks from white neighborhoods, if that was the intention.

SHE SAID, "IT CAN'T do any good toward restoring normality to the situation and I think will only add to the tension that already exists."

"I hope there is no truth in it

(the report). Anything that restricts the free movement of people and interferes with normal relationships is thoroughly bad," she said.

Similar barriers exist at other black townships, including New Brighton and Zwile adjacent to Port Elizabeth on the Indian Ocean.

Soweto has been the site of several outbreaks of unrest in a two-year wave of racial violence linked to protests against apartheid.

The Bureau for Information said security forces during the weekend shot and killed a black man who was among about 15 people throwing stones at officers.

Congressmen set priorities for term

By James Cahoy
Staff Writer

Iowa's two newest members of the U.S. House of Representatives say they'll place a high priority on education when the 100th Congress convenes in Washington next month, but won't forget the farmers.

Dave Nagle, whose election to Iowa's 3rd District congressional seat in November ended a 52-year Republican reign, and Fred Grandy, who left the popular "Love Boat" television series to seek the 6th District congressional seat, believe the federal government needs a stronger commitment to education.

"I've been very strong on my feelings that government is going in the wrong direction on this issue," said Nagle, whose district includes the UI and the University of Northern Iowa.

"INSTEAD OF WORRYING

about cutting domestic spending, we should be increasing our commitment to education and other programs," Nagle said. "I think we have to take a look at the Guaranteed Student Loan and other programs and establish a new criteria, which will allow more people to benefit from them."

Nagle said he plans to try to acquire a seat on the House Science and Technology Committee as a way to help the UI and UNI. "I want to be in a position to help the universities as far as research grants and other items go," Nagle said. "I think it is important to support higher education in Iowa as much as possible."

Grandy agreed, saying he does not support further federal cuts in education.

"I THINK THAT basically you're going to see stronger support for education," Grandy said. "But with federal budget cuts, I think that programs like Pell Grants are going to be under the ax more than ever. We need to establish a firm commitment to education."

While education is important to the congressional newcomers, they both agree agricultural policy is their first priority.

Nagle said he supports re-targeting agriculture subsidies so they will be more beneficial to small farmers.

"I think it is imperative that we change our priorities on agricultural policies to help the small farmer more," Nagle said. "I also would like to see the '85 farm act thrown in the trash can. It seems ridiculous to me that we still have not seen a viable farm policy in America, even with the problems farmers are having."

GRANDY ALSO DISLIKES current farm policy, but thinks Congress should concentrate on getting rid of surplus farm products.

"Our thrust right now ought to be to encourage farmers to produce," Grandy said.

"At the same time we should be working on a program which will help reduce our surplus and guarantee a workable marketing program for farm products and a better loan program for the farmers," he said.

The forecast calls for a little redundancy. Today should be cloudy with a 90 percent chance of rain and a high in the 40s. Tonight expect identical chances for rain — possibly mixed with snow — and a low near 40. Tuesday ought to be cloudy with a good chance of rain and a high near 40.

UI production looks at local agencies

Three local agencies will be featured in a three-part television series scheduled to air this month on Iowa City Heritage Cablevision channel 26.

The series, entitled "Creating a Caring Community," produced by graduate students in the UI School of Social Work, will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Monday through Friday for four weeks beginning tonight.

Pamela Hall, a UI graduate student who coordinated the production, said the three programs describe agencies that have become models for other social work practitioners.

Tonight's program in the series, featuring the Handicare Early Childhood Development Program, describes a day care program offering early childhood developmental services to children with special needs as well as those with a full range of abilities.

"The television program shows that non-disabled children are good role models for other children and also that the non-disabled children can learn from children of limited ability," Hall said.

Tuesday's show will highlight the Willowcreek Neighborhood Center. The show looks at the center that was formed to assist members of the Iowa City community who are new to the United States and lack necessary language, education or social skills.

The third program, featuring the Iowa City Senior Citizens' Center, highlights the center's importance to the area during the past few years.

"If there is a theme in these three programs, it is that needs were recognized in the community and programs were designed to meet those needs," Hall said.

Anonymous complaint leads to arrest

An anonymous complaint early Friday of a disturbance involving eight people at Towncrest Trailer Court, 2312 Muscatine Ave., ended in the arrest of an Iowa City woman, according to Iowa City police reports.

Barbara S. Craig, of 2312 Muscatine Ave., Lot 41E, was charged with assault, disorderly conduct, public intoxication and interference with official acts by Iowa City police at about 2:30 a.m. Friday.

The complaint report states weapons may have been involved in the incident but further information was not available Sunday from the Iowa City Police Department.

Local congregation seeks to end torture

The Iowa City Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses said last week they will take part in a massive worldwide letter writing campaign to protest persecution of Jehovah's Witnesses in Africa.

Women and children are being abused in Rwanda because they refuse to become part of the predominant political party, Mouvement Revolutionnaire Nationale du Development, according to local Jehovah's Witnesses.

Jehovah's Witness doctrine forbids the membership to become involved in any sort of politics because they see it as "divisive."

According to Iowa City Jehovah's Witness Elder Jim Hadar, some people have been sentenced up to 12 years imprisonment for refusing to become involved with the political party.

Hadar said members of the church will write letters to Rwandan government leaders.

Local Jehovah's Witnesses have discussed the persecution at their public meetings at the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses, 1812 W. Benton St. They have also appointed members of their congregation to write letters to the Rwandan government.

Film academy offers student contest

The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences has announced its 14th annual Student Film Awards competition designed to recognize and encourage outstanding film production by college students across the nation.

Students who attend a college or university in Iowa or 10 other midwestern states are eligible for the competition in the midwestern region.

Films must have been completed after April 1, 1986, in a student-teacher relationship within the curriculum of the college or university, according to Richard Miller with the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences in Beverly Hills, Calif.

The categories for competition include animation, documentary, dramatic and experimental.

After selections are made in the midwestern region, semifinalists' films will compete for cash grants and trophies against films chosen from six other regions in the United States.

Final judging will be done by film professionals who comprise the voting membership of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

The winners will be flown — all expenses paid — to Los Angeles to participate in a week of film-related activities concluding with an awards ceremony July 7.

Higher sales tax could aid education

DES MOINES (UPI) — There will be enough support in the upcoming Iowa Legislature to pass an increase in the state's sales tax, despite concerns Gov. Terry Branstad will veto such a measure, House Speaker Don Avenson said Saturday.

Avenson, D-Oelwein, said a sales tax increase of at least 1 cent is needed if the state is serious about upgrading education at public universities and aiding economic development.

"Our caucus has supported an increase in the sales tax for three years now," Avenson said. "The question is whether the governor will support it."

Avenson said if a sales tax boost is not approved, it will further hamper the state's effort to allocate money desperately needed for higher education.

3 sought in Keokuk County jailbreak

By Ann Szemplenski
Staff Writer

Authorities with the Johnson County Sheriff's Office say there is no reason to believe three men who escaped from a nearby county jail have decided to hide out in Iowa City.

Christopher David Ray, 20, Steven Matthew Tresler, 19, and Wayne Wagner, 19, had been held since last Monday in the Keokuk County Jail, located about 45 miles southwest of Iowa City in Sigourney, Iowa, before they punched a jailer and escaped on foot Friday night, according to Kathy Brower, a Keokuk County Jail dispatcher and jailer.

There have been no reports of the men in the Iowa City area, but local police officers and sheriffs have been briefed on all available information about the escape, Jim Thayer, communications supervisor at the Johnson County Jail, said Sunday.

"We have no actual leads right now," Brower said Sunday afternoon. "Everything we've been told has turned out to be nothing. We're at a standstill."

"That means they have $125 million to $200 million to spend on . . . excellence in education that we don't have," says Iowa House Speaker Don Avenson of states with sales taxes higher than Iowa's 4 percent.

its college instructors well below what comparable states pay their professors. That factor is making it increasingly difficult to attract qualified faculty members.

A faculty pay increase of 10 percent should be implemented each year for the next three years if the state's universities are to compete for top instructors, Avenson said.

Avenson, comparing Iowa to its surrounding states, said most have sales taxes of 5 or 6 cents, while Nebraska has a 4½ percent sales tax.

"THAT MEANS THEY HAVE $125 million to $200 million to spend on economic development measures, property tax relief and excellence in education that we don't have," Avenson said.

Avenson said it is likely both Democrat-controlled houses of the legislature will approve an increase of at least 1 percent. He said a Branstad veto of such a measure could hamper the governor's ability to garner cooperation from legislators in both houses.

The local option bill, which ostensibly could allow local governments to raise sales taxes, should have little impact on the statewide call for such an increase, Avenson said.

The inmates are believed to be driving a green 1975 GMC truck stolen from a Sigourney resident Friday night following the escape. Thayer said there have been no reports of a similar truck in the Iowa City area.

Brower sent an all-points bulletin to Iowa law enforcement agencies following the escape.

"We haven't found them, but we're hoping that someone will soon," Brower said.

Ray is described as a white male, 6 feet 2 inches tall, weighing 190 pounds with black hair and hazel eyes; Tresler is described as a white male, 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighing 140 pounds with brown hair and eyes; Wagner is described as 6 feet tall, weighing 200 pounds with brown hair and hazel eyes.

RAY AND WAGNER were being held at the on second-degree burglary charges and Tresler on a drug-related charge.

The three men assaulted the jailer when he entered the cell to gather trash, Brower said. The jailer was not seriously injured or hospitalized, but the three allegedly stole a key ring from the jailer, enabling them to open a locker holding their street clothes.

"They couldn't steal any weapons because we don't keep any weapons here," Brower said.

The UI Faculty Senate voted 17-3 in favor of a proposal to shorten the UI Liberal Arts academic calendar last week. The calendar would shorten semesters to 14 weeks and include 70 regular class days. UI semesters now vary in length from 72 to 75 days.

The fall semester would begin after Labor Day, coinciding with the start of classes at Iowa public schools. Fall semester final examinations would begin on a Thursday — one day after classes end — and exams would likely be scheduled on Saturday.

UI Economics and History Professor Donald N. McCloskey said shortening the terms is a good idea.

"The system of 15 weeks is just too damn long," he said. "By the end of the semester the students and I are exhausted, and by the 13th week, we stop paying attention to each other."

The proposal must also be approved by the UI Council on Teaching, the UI Office of Academic Affairs and the state Board of Regents.

UI Faculty Senate President Michael J. Brody said the calendar proposal would likely be approved by the regents.

"My guess is that something like this will ultimately be adopted," he said.

New UI committee to lobby for hike in faculty salaries

By Shawn Plank
Staff Writer

A new UI organization designed to lobby the Iowa Legislature for higher faculty salaries was incorporated by the UI Faculty Senate Tuesday.

The group, Public Representation Organization of the Faculty Senate of the University of Iowa Inc. (PROFS), will begin lobbying politicians when their 1987 legislative term begins in January.

Faculty members who wish to join PROFS are asked to contribute 0.2 percent of their annual salary to the organization. About $60,000 is needed to begin operations, UI Faculty Senate President Michael J. Brody said.

The incorporation of the group follows a proposal announced Nov. 20 by UI President James O. Freedman to increase UI faculty salaries 13 percent in each of the next three years.

Freedman told UI Faculty Senate members that the state Board of Regents is "highly sympathetic" to the proposal to help bring UI faculty salaries out of the basement of the Big Ten.

PROFS will employ a UI faculty member as a part-time executive director to contact members of the Iowa Legislature on issues affecting faculty.

"We need a person with a great deal of wisdom and common sense who has the capability of interacting with a variety of contexts," Brody said. "Someone who knows the university and gets along well with faculty members, administration, the state Board of Regents and the executive secretary."

The organization is also designed to inform the public about the UI and help coordinate activities with similar organizations at other universities.

"PROFS will not exist solely to improve faculty salaries," Brody said.

THE ORGANIZATION at the UI was modeled after a similar group at the University of Wisconsin that won salary increases for faculty members.

"The University of Wisconsin achieved a three-year salary package that brought it from a position comparable to ours to a very much better comparable position," Brody said.

All UI Faculty Senators are now members of the PROFS corporation and all UI Faculty Council members will serve on the PROFS board of directors.

Alternative energies

Iowa City is a nuclear free zone; however, Johnson County does occasionally get some residual power from the Dwayne Arnold nuclear power plant. Now, according to a civil defense plan, the county may also get a flock of Cedar Rapids evacuees in the event of a nuclear accident at Palo.

It is good that the issue of nuclear power in eastern Iowa has surfaced, even if the energy is misdirected. For, if a Palo accident were on the scale of the disaster at the Soviets' Chernobyl nuclear plant, which spread contamination from Sweden to Japan, escape to Johnson County may not be the answer.

For some weeks after the Chernobyl disaster, some Cedar Rapids residents had the good sense to wake up and realize that there is a nuclear power plant in this area, too. A handful of local activists, mostly from the Catholic Worker's House, demonstrated regularly outside the Iowa Electric office tower in downtown Cedar Rapids.

Local residents, paying their bills, did not decline demonstrators' hand-outs entitled "Chernobyl Here?" And power company officials politely borrowed copies to photocopy inside the office. The Cedar Rapids Public Library information desk received numerous calls inquiring about local activist groups concerned with the nuclear power issue.

Nuclear power is an absurdly dangerous — and costly — method of providing electrical power, particularly unnecessary in underpopulated Iowa. Palo is a monument to the bigger-is-better philosophy of Dwayne Arnold. The biggest irony is that this part of Iowa is blessed with the resources to create the alternative sources of energy: water, wind, sun and methane. But, as Buckminster Fuller said, "If you can't put a meter on it, it won't sell."

As long as community thought and planning are being devoted to the nuclear power issue, efforts would more profitably go toward examining and eliminating the nuclear threat that hovers over all of eastern Iowans. The folks from Cedar Rapids can bring the kolaches.

Deadly flaws

The insider trading case of Ivan Boesky and others has revealed some critical flaws in the people and the system. These flaws must be repaired, but they will be extraordinarily difficult to fix.

The flaw in the people is the flaw in all the people, written larger because the spotlight is brighter and the money bigger. Making and spending money — lots of money — has become the criteria for success in America of the 1980s. If you have money you're a winner, if you don't you're a loser. It has become as simple and as obscene as that.

Whether it is enough money to buy out the mall and return laden with designer jeans, raspberry vinegar and expensive cars, or to wheel and deal on Wall Street and become a millionaire by 30 and a billionaire by 40 or 50, the flaw is old-fashioned greed — turned from a vice to a virtue.

The flaw in the system is equally deadly. The mania for mergers, acquisitions and unfriendly takeovers transforms an economy that produces, modernizes and expands its capacities into one that shuffles paper. A few already-wealthy people make even more money buying stock low and selling it high, buying companies, selling assets to make big bucks and then selling or abandoning the husks.

But none of this creates jobs, improves old products or discovers new ones. Money that should be spent on research, upgrading, expansion and retraining workers is spent instead on fending off takeovers and paper manipulations to benefit the few.

The result is an American economy falling ever farther behind in the effort to make and sell quality goods and offer its people satisfying, well-paying jobs so that they may support themselves and their families with hope and dignity.

Self help

To the Editor:

Since the days of former President Franklin D. Roosevelt, the American public in general has been gradually shifting citizenship responsibility to the federal government. Whenever a crisis occurs there comes the cry, "Uncle Sam, do something. Help us." And far too many of our politicians eagerly respond with one more program, one more bureaucracy and more spending. This is an abrogation of citizen responsibility.

Many of the catastrophes which commonly occur such as tornadoes, fires and floods do indeed cause extensive financial losses, but there is insurance at reasonable cost to cover those losses. Why wasn't it in force?

Last summer, the extent of the drug problem became obvious. As usual, up went the cry, "Washington, do something!" The predictable response was a $3 billion outlay to add to our already horrendous national deficit.

Certainly, the federal, state and local governments should meet their responsibilities for enforcing the laws. But the basic solution for the drug problem lies with the home, the schools, clubs, churches, business — all of us right here at home.

Reagan must regroup after Iran crisis

By James W. McCormick

UNDER ANY framework of analysis, the clandestine American swap of arms for hostages with Iran must be judged an unmitigated disaster. Disclosure of the secret transactions was a diplomatic and political debacle from the outset. But its impact was needlessly exacerbated by the refusal of President Ronald Reagan to admit that his Iranian initiative was incompetently implemented and a mistake. Like President John F. Kennedy after the Bay of Pigs, Reagan should have wisely declared mea culpa and shouldered the blame.

Instead, an arrogant White House staff foolishly advocated using "spin control" to defend their appalling foreign policy failure, thereby turning a question of credibility into a grave crisis of presidential leadership. The recent discovery of a possibly illegal White House diversion of funds from the Iranian arms sales to the Nicaraguan Contras, has only added a bizarre new twist to this burgeoning national scandal.

Aside from the increasingly complex legal issues surrounding the Iranian-Nicaraguan connection, this crisis has raised very serious questions about the administration's recent conduct of American foreign policy.

IT IS DIFFICULT not to be sympathetic to the official aims of the Reagan administration. Iran is of great geo-strategic importance to the West, and helping "moderate" political elements gain credibility and influence within revolutionary Iran might well further long-term American interests. But the means the administration chose to achieve this strategic objective were inordinately risky at best, and simply fatuous at worst.

It truly boggles the mind that this administration would recklessly employ "secret" arms sales to Iran as the vehicle to demonstrate American good faith to its Iranian contacts, let alone to free hostages. In its conception and implementation, this operation compromised the entire thrust of America's anti-terrorism policy. The arms deal also created the false impression that the United States was ending its neutrality in the Iran-Iraq war.

THE VERY USE of a secret diplomatic initiative of this character is itself deeply troubling. Clandestine diplomacy is basically incompatible with the traditions and procedures of American government. Excessive secrecy and duplicity not only compromise the democratic principles upon which our foreign policy is based, but encourages official evasion of the law.

Covert diplomacy also erodes domestic and foreign confidence in the forthrightness and honesty of our diplomacy — upon which so much of American foreign policy success has depended.

It is true that there may be rare exigencies when clandestine diplomacy might be warranted. But it must be coordinated and carried out by foreign policy professionals acting in compliance with the law, not by the National Security Council.

The role of the NSC in this affair has received special attention. The three-member panel investigating the NSC will certainly recommend that its role is to coordinate foreign policy, not execute it.

HOWEVER, CONGRESS should be very cautious about seeking an oversight capacity over the NSC. The president needs the widest possible range of frank advice in the construction of American foreign policy. Congressional oversight might severely hamper the foreign policy making process.

In this regard, the administration must fully come to grips with the recent fragmentation of American foreign policy. The president himself must take charge, clearly enunciate what his foreign policy is and seek subordinates who will loyally but not uncritically carry that policy out.

In the short term, the shakiness in the NSC staff appears to signal that the institutional warfare between the State Department and the White House is at an end. But it is imperative that the president take decisive action to erase the uncertainty as to who is guiding American foreign policy.

The evidence strongly suggests that Reagan will choose Secretary of State George Shultz. Shultz's stature and credibility is probably essential to salvaging an effective American foreign policy out of the last two years of a severely weakened Reagan presidency.

Security and economy go hand in hand

By Robert D. Hormats

THE POSSIBILITY of an agreement to eliminate intermediate-range nuclear weapons in Europe presupposes the ability of the United States and its North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies to finance enhanced conventional forces to take their place. One critical concern is how the West can create the economic climate necessary to support such a strategy.

An agreement on intermediate-range arms is far from certain. Yet, in view of the fact that President Ronald Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev came so close to such an agreement at the Iceland summit meeting, one must wonder how long these weapons can continue to play a dominant role in Western Europe's defense. In any case, the diminishing credibility of the nuclear deterrent in light of concerns about Western Europe becoming a nuclear battlefield makes it necessary to strengthen conventional deterrents. Reykjavik provides yet another reason to do so.

But any increase in NATO conventional strength to match the Warsaw Pact's strength will be expensive. The Soviet bloc today has higher troop levels, a nearly 3 to 1 advantage in main battle tanks and a more than 3 to 1 advantage in artillery. That is why nuclear arms have been a crucial element in European security. Moreover, nuclear forces cost less than conventional ones of equivalent deterrent value — another reason for heavy NATO reliance on them.

Comment

WESTERN ECONOMIC weakness is the greatest threat to a strengthened conventional deterrent. European countries with high unemployment, pressing social needs and budgetary problems are reluctant to increase expenditures on costly new conventional weapons. Many also question whether America will bolster its own conventional forces in Europe — or even maintain levels already there — in light of Gramm-Rudman budget-reduction pressures, declining public support for military funding and the enormous balance of payments deficit.

We can no longer preserve the fiction that economic, political and security issues can be hived off in separate bureaucratic compartments. Conflicts or poor performance in one area will spill into others. Unless the West defines its collective security to include a greater role for economic cooperation, and insures that economic cooperation supports its collective security, we will soon have too little of both.

Obtaining public support for enhanced conventional weapons will not be easy in an environment of slow growth and trade friction. For both economic and strategic reasons, therefore, the major industrial democracies must develop a sense of community obligation to pursue two major objectives. One is a smooth reduction in America's trade deficit with its Asian and European partners. The second is faster economic growth.

Insufficient progress on the trade issue could lead to protectionism in America and further pressures in Washington to cut American military spending abroad. Conversely, too sharp a fall in Europe's exports without stronger domestic demand in these nations could reduce Europe's growth and thus the revenues available for military expenditures.

A COMMON ADJUSTMENT strategy — including a reduced American budget deficit, tax or interest rate cuts abroad (or both) and appropriate exchange rates — is needed. Major capital exporters such as Japan and West Germany can make a special contribution by providing more financing to high-debt Latin American nations, where additional growth would not only improve the prospects for political stability but also lead to an increase in American exports.

Economic considerations also require more efficient use of Western military expenditures. For several years, NATO has sought to more effectively use existing weapons systems by improving deployment patterns and mobility. Demonstrable efficiency in the use of existing forces will increase the credibility of requests to budget-minded populations and legislatures for new funds — perhaps $30 billion to $40 billion over the next five years.

Greater cooperation in research, development and production of new conventional systems will also be required to make efficient use of limited military funds. An authentic two-way street between the United States and Europe in weapons procurement as part of a broader trans-Atlantic arrangement for cost-sharing and standardization is also required. Such arrangements would permit longer production runs and lower overall weapons costs. And the European countries must collaborate more closely to reduce existing duplication in weapons research and production.

More attention must also be devoted to both sides of the Atlantic to highlighting common Western interests. Quarrels between America and its allies on issues such as trade and interest rates are often perceived by the public as confrontational tests of political will. Bickering on these matters feeds political forces in the United States that favor reducing American exports abroad and strengthening positions in Europe who urge a reduction in the American military presence there.

Together these steps would enhance NATO's security and prepare for the day when the defense of Western Europe can rely less on intermediate-range nuclear weapons.

Prep courses help students face GRE

By Victoria Carlson
Freelance Writer

Although there is a lack of comparative data regarding pre-exam preparation and Graduate Record Examination scores, local professionals and UI students say test tutorial services are worthwhile.

"I think it's (an organized preparation course) essential," Terry Powell, who took a math review course at the UI to prepare for the GRE, said.

"When I took the GRE, I bought the book and studied every night for at least an hour. I learned more tips in the first half-hour of the class than I did in all my studying on my own," she said.

The math review short course is taught alternately by Michael Geraghty, UI associate professor of mathematics, and Jean Geraghty, adjunct instructor in the Saturday and Evening Class Program. The Geraghtys have offered the course, in both the fall and spring, for about 10 years. There is a $35 fee to cover materials and the five two-hour sessions.

MICHAEL GERAGHTY said the course focuses more on psychological than mathematical preparation.

"You must have an aggressive attitude," he said. "They are out to get you, and you are not to be gotten. We definitely try to develop an 'us against them' attitude."

"Many of the questions, to put it mildly, are sneaky, devious and underhanded," he said. "Each section of the GRE contains problems ranging from quite simple to quite difficult. An important part of review is providing some clues as to how to locate the easy ones."

The course includes a review of basic arithmetic, algebra and geometry, as well as an overview of the test.

PREPARATION FOR the GRE is also available from the Stanley H. Kaplan Educational Center, 325 E. Washington St.

"Students have the choice of taking classes or doing it by audio cassettes. They come to our center to study the tapes. We don't sell or lease the tapes," Kaplan Center Administrator Steve Harshbarger said.

Costs for the Kaplan course varies with the preparation program. Full preparation for the GRE General Test is available for $450, while a split course covering the verbal/analytical or math tests costs $300. Preparation for the advanced tests in either Biology or Psychology runs $300.

FINANCIAL AID IS available to students who demonstrate need, and the local Kaplan Center is currently working with Iowa businesses to establish a minority student scholarship fund.

"We do not want to turn any student away because they can't afford our course," Harshbarger said.

The Kaplan approach integrates academic content and test-taking skills.

"We want to offer both a review of skills and test-taking strategies... While we're reviewing, we talk strategies," he said.

Harshbarger said according to Kaplan statistics, program graduates improve their cumulative GRE scores by an average of 100 points.

UI graduate student Cynthia Greig, who took the Kaplan course in Michigan, said the course "was good for math. It raised my score considerably."

Better pay, conditions lure new educators out of Iowa

By Christian Peters
Freelance Writer

Nearly half of all teachers graduating from the UI College of Education this semester plan to pursue careers outside Iowa — up from one-third of all graduates two years ago, Rebecca Anthony, a placement associate at the college, said.

These statistics reinforce the fear that many of Iowa's best young teachers are being lured out of the state to places offering superior starting salaries. This fear is intensified by Iowa State Education Association figures that rate average teacher salaries in Iowa as 37th in the nation.

"All of Iowa's neighboring states offer better starting salaries than Iowa. Some, like Minnesota, offer $4,000 to $5,000 more," Anthony said.

PETER MUIR, president of the Iowa City Education Association, said he knew of several instances of teachers jumping across the state border for better pay. "It's pretty tempting when $5,000 more a year is that close by," he said.

Anthony added that Sun Belt states with the most rapidly expanding school age populations in the nation — Arizona, Texas and Florida, in particular — are coming to the UI and actively recruiting the best student teachers.

"Those states are really opening up and they're the ones that are offering the highest salaries in the country now," Anthony said, adding that 13 percent of this year's graduates are heading for southern states.

The Daily Iowan/Jeffrey Sedam

SALARY, HOWEVER, is by no means the only factor involved in deciding where to seek work, both teachers and student teachers are quick to point out.

Jennifer Rush, a student teacher of English at Southeast Junior High School, says an unrestricted environment is an even higher priority for her.

"A lot of times representatives from school districts want to know about your religion or whether you're married or not, even though they're not supposed to ask about those things. I wouldn't feel comfortable working in a place where there were those kinds of concerns," she said.

Sue Turetzky, a student teacher of reading at Grant Wood Elementary School, is considering seeking work in either Arizona, Minneapolis or "a place like Iowa City."

"THE PHYSICAL environment of the Southwest is attractive, and Minneapolis is an exciting place. The salaries in both places help, but I wouldn't mind staying in Iowa if it were in a place like Iowa City," she said. "There's a real concern for education here and the schools are directly influenced by the university. I wouldn't want to wind up in a rural area with really provincial attitudes," Turetzky added.

On the other hand, Patricia Miles, also a student teacher at Grant Wood, is determined to stay in Iowa and to work in a small community similar to her Clarinda, Iowa, hometown.

"Salary isn't really that important to me," she said. "I want to teach, especially in a small town where people know each other and you can keep in touch with everybody."

Muir, who also teaches English at Southeast Junior High School, said that Miles may be an exception because poor facilities and meager financial resources in rural districts with declining enrollments may deter new teachers from accepting jobs there.

"IF THE STATE wants to get (teachers) to move to smaller districts, they need to think of ways to encourage those communities to pool their resources in a way that will match those of larger districts," Muir said.

Karami, Arab envoy discuss Shiite, Palestinian fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—An Arab League envoy met Sunday with Prime Minister Rashid Karami on ways to end five weeks of fighting between Shiite Moslem militiamen and Palestinian guerrillas that has left 267 people dead.

The rival factions battled on four fronts Sunday with rockets, mortars and machine guns killing 10 people and wounding several others, police sources said.

The new casualties raised the toll in five weeks of fighting to at least 267 dead and 819 wounded.

In Damascus, Libyan strongman Abdel Salam Jalloud held talks with Syrian Vice President Abdel halim Khaddam and Palestinian groups opposed to Palestine Liberation Organization chairman Yasser Arafat to try and stop the Lebanese fighting.

"JALLOU CONDEMNED the war describing it as a fire that is destroying us all at a time when we should all be fighting in the one trench confronting the zionist enemy," Libyan radio said.

Amal militia leader Nabih Berri discussed the violence with Iranian ambassador Mohammad Hassan Akhtari who "stressed the need for an immediate end to the clashes between Amal and the Palestinians," the Iranian news agency IRNA said.

Despite Libyan, Iranian and Syrian efforts, battles raged around the besieged Palestinian camps of Al Rashidiyeh on the outskirts of the frontier coastal city of Tyre, Shatila and Burj Al Barajneh in southern Beirut and the port of Sidon, the sources said.

In the northern city of Tripoli, Hamadi Al Seid, an Arab League envoy, met Karami at his house and discussed ending the fighting, political sources said.

THE SOURCES said Al Seid has also held talks with several Moslem and Christian government leaders.

The Palestinian guerrillas, who crushed Amal pockets of resistance inside the hilltop Christian village of Maghdoushe southeast of Sidon late Saturday, said Sunday they plan no more advances inside Shiite-held territory.

The guerrillas seven days ago stormed Maghdoushe and fought the Shiites.

"We controlled Maghdoushe just to protect our people in the camps. We plan no other advances," said a statement issued by the Palestine National Salvation Front.

Palestinian guerrilla commanders consider Maghdoushe strategic because it overlooks the refugee camps of Ain El Helweh and Miyeh Miyeh.

A spokesman of the People Liberation Army said Palestinian guerrillas infiltrated from the two camps and attempted to barricade the coastal highway.

Sikhs hijack bus, massacre Hindus

CHANDIGARH, India (UPI)—Suspected Sikh extremists

Sunday singled out Hindu passengers aboard a hijacked bus and opened fire with submachine guns, killing at least 24 people in a bloody massacre in the Punjab state, police said.

Five suspected Sikh terrorists boarded the bus at Khudda, a village about 110 miles northwest of Chandigarh, Punjab's capital, and ordered the driver to take them to a deserted country road about 3 miles away. There they singled out the Hindu passengers and ordered them off the bus, a police spokesman said.

Those who refused were shot on the bus, police said.

The gunmen then lined up the remaining Hindus and shot them at point-blank range with automatic weapons, using more than 100 bullets, he said.

THE MASSACRE IS believed to be the bloodiest single act of violence by separatists in Punjab since extremists of the Sikh religion launched their bloody rebellion in 1981.

The separatists are demanding the creation of an independent nation, to be known as Khalistan, in Punjab.

More than 500 people, mostly Hindus, have died in Sikh extremist violence in Punjab this year. Officials say the attacks are aimed at forcing the Hindus, who are slightly outnumbered by Sikhs in Punjab, to flee to other parts of India where Hindus are dominant.

Sunday's massacre came as a militant dissident group wrested control of the ruling Sikh body from the moderate Akali Dal Party.

U.S. Moslem hopes to win hostages' release

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—A leading American Moslem arrived in Beirut Sunday and said he hoped to win the release of the American hostages held by extremists in Lebanon.

Mohammad Mehdi, 52, secretary-general of the New York-based National Council on Islamic Affairs, called on the captors to contact him in the spirit of Islamic unity. He said he hoped to win the release of at least one hostage by Christmas, but did not elaborate.

"We came carrying the book of God, the Holy Koran. We want to address our brothers in Islam in the language of the Koran," Mehdi, an Iraqi who emigrated to New York in 1949, told a news conference in Moslem West Beirut.

"We appeal to our brothers in Islam, those who were threatened and dealt blows by the Americans, in the name of Islam, of humanity and of 8 million Moslems in America, to free the hostages," he said.

HE SAID HE DECIDED to launch the two-week mission after the credibility of Anglican Church envoy Terry Waite—who has played a role in previous hostages releases—was damaged by news about U.S. arms shipments to Iran.

Mehdi blamed President Ronald Reagan for the impression that Waite's mission can no longer be effective.

"We do not question his (Waite's) credibility. But Reagan is trying to steal the show from him and assume further credit for his own political gains like claiming that the hostages were released as a result of his arms to Iran," Mehdi said.

In London, Waite said Sunday that Reagan's disclosures about secret U.S. arms sales to Iran had disrupted his efforts.

Waite said in a British Broadcasting Corp. radio interview the "political crossfire" from the disclosures upset some of his Shiite Moslem contacts.

"I PUT IT this way — last Christmastime I was caught myself in actual crossfire in the streets, and I survived that," he said. "This year it's in the middle of political crossfire, and I shall survive that because I know my own motives and intents."

Mehdi denied carrying any deal from the American government and blamed the problem on U.S. foreign policy.

"We are hopeful to win the release of at least one hostage by Christmas. We are very hopeful, very hopeful," Mehdi said.

He said he sent a letter to the Moslem captors two weeks ago asking for compassion in the name of Islam.

The Islamic Jihad, a pro-Iranian group that claims to hold two Americans and three Frenchmen, has demanded the release of 17 comrades imprisoned in Kuwait for bombing U.S., French and Kuwaiti targets.

"THE CRYPTIC references that we have heard about the 17 prisoners in Kuwait is possibly a small portion of the real issue. We really don't know what their demands are," Mehdi said.

The Americans said held by Islamic Jihad are Terry Anderson, 39, the bureau chief of the Associated Press in Beirut and Thomas Sutherland, 54, dean of agriculture at the American University of Beirut.

Also missing and believed kidnapped in Lebanon are three other Americans, six Frenchmen, an Italian, an Irishman, a South Korean and two Britons.

Court lifts Union Carbide injunction

BHOPAL, India — A judge lifted a court order Sunday barring Union Carbide Corp. from restructuring, but ordered it not to sell $3 billion in assets to cover payment of damages to victims of the 1984 Bhopal chemical accident.

Judge G.S. Patel said during a hearing that an injunction placed on the corporation Nov. 17 would be modified to allow it to begin a recapitalization plan.

Patel also ordered the company to maintain $3 billion in assets — to cover damages India is seeking for 520,000 people affected by the gas leak from the pesticide plant. India charged in a Sept. 5 suit that Union Carbide's negligence was responsible for the disaster that left 2,889 people dead and some 200,000 injured in Bhopal.

Union Carbide has claimed that the Indian government and the government of Madhya Pradesh state shared some liability.

Mexican president seeks Japanese aid

TOKYO — Mexican President Miguel de la Madrid arrived in Japan Sunday for a five-day official visit aimed at boosting trade and winning more economic assistance for his country.

De la Madrid's visit is the first on his two-nation Asian tour. His visit will include meetings with Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone and Emperor Hirohito.

The Mexican president will also meet with business and political leaders in Tokyo and the western commercial city of Osaka before leaving for Peking Thursday.

Japan is Mexico's second largest trading partner following the United States, with two-way trade last year totaling $2.86 billion.

De la Madrid is expected to persuade business and political leaders to help with the recovery of the Mexican economy, burdened with the world's second largest foreign debt. Japanese banks hold about 15 percent of the debt.

Pope ends 6,800-mile Australian trip

PERTH, Australia — Pope John Paul II concluded his 6,800-mile journey through Australia Sunday with words of thanks for the hospitality he received during the weeklong tour in which he met aborigines, chatted with schoolchildren and celebrated masses for more than 500,000 people.

During a farewell ceremony at the Perth airport, the pontiff said, "I have experienced the warmth and hospitality of the whole Australian nation. This is a country prepared to support the cause of peace and justice."

In his farewell remarks, Prime Minister Bob Hawke said, "Your schedule has been unbelievably demanding but you have brought a zest and enthusiasm almost beyond human comprehension."

The pontiff left for the Seychelles Island in the Indian Ocean for meetings with President Albert Rene to conclude his longest overseas trip.

Pittsburgh paramedics strike for raises

PITTSBURGH — Supervisors and non-union city workers fielded emergency calls and drove ambulances Sunday as a state mediator met with striking paramedics in an effort to end a three-day walkout that has left tempers frayed.

Union president Mark Schneider said state mediator Jim Rush held talks with representatives of the union, whose 180 members walked off the job Friday seeking pay raises that would give them parity with firefighters and police.

The city's latest contract proposal included no pay raise for paramedics. Mayor Richard Caliguiri said 2,700 other city workers had agreed to take wage freezes after $9 million was slashed from the city's budget.

Caliguiri said the strike had caused no major problems and the substitute crews did such a good job he might consider cutting back the number of city paramedics.

Cosmetology students default on loans

DES MOINES — Iowa beauty and barber school students have defaulted on nearly $1.6 million in guaranteed government loans this year, nearly four times the rate of Iowa's state university students.

Figures released by the Iowa College Aid Commission show more than 16 percent of the funds loaned to students to attend cosmetology schools in the state are at least three months in default.

State officials say beauty school graduates account for the bulk of the unpaid loans.

Aquino continues overhaul

MANILA, Philippines (UPI)— President Corazon Aquino met Sunday with advisers on the final phase of a Cabinet shakeup and may remove her left-leaning labor and local government ministers this week, palace sources said.

Aquino had been expected to attend a rally to muster support for the approval of a new constitution in a February referendum, but her brother-in-law, Agapito Aquino, told the crowd she was working on the Cabinet overhaul.

About 20,000 people, carrying banners that read "Yes for Cory, Yes for Democracy, Yes for the Constitution," marched to the seaside Luneta Park, but the crowd dwindled to less than 10,000 in intermittent rain.

The nationally circulated Manila Bulletin reported officials arrested two soldiers in the Nov. 12 murder of militant trade union leader Rolando

Corazon Aquino
Olalia and that the case was "virtually solved."

THERE WAS NO OFFICIAL confirmation of the arrests, but sources close to the Olalia family said they expected Justice Minister Neptali Gonzales to release details at a news conference Tuesday.

About 1,500 leftist demonstrators marched peacefully in Manila Sunday to demand swift prosecution of Olalia's killers.

Press Secretary Teodoro Benigno said Aquino will announce the final changes in her 25-member Cabinet by Wednesday. Friday she replaced the highways and natural resources ministers, citing allegations of corruption.

Palace sources said Aquino was studying possible replacements for left-leaning Labor Minister Augusto Sanchez and Local Governments Minister Aquilino Pimentel.

"It's a political accommodation," one source said. "The mob out there is asking for blood so these two may have to be fed to the lions."

BUT THE SOURCES said the fallout from the firings could hurt Aquino.

Sanchez enjoys widespread support among militant labor, which has warned of unrest if he is removed.

Pimentel has installed more than 1,000 acting mayors and governors who could play important roles in securing approval of the new constitution, the sources said.

Both men are regarded as central representatives of the left and champions of the poor, but their political leanings have angered senior military officers.

Business leaders have also complained that Sanchez's pro-labor pronouncements have scared off badly needed investment.

Aquino one week ago fired rebellious Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile after the government announced it had thwarted a military coup.

Taiwan officials block return of dissidents

TAIPEI, Taiwan (UPI)— Riot police firing tear gas and water cannons Sunday repelled thousands of demonstrators trying to march on a Taipei airport to meet two dissident leaders who were blocked in their bid to return home from U.S. exile.

Witnesses said at least four policemen were injured in a series of clashes about 1 mile from Chiang Kai-shek International Airport and 33 police cars were smashed and overturned by demonstrators trying to march to the facility to meet the dissidents.

"The police would not allow our men into the airport, so we fought," one opposition supporter said after the protesters dispersed Sunday night. "We will fight to the bitter end."

DISSIDENT LEADERS Hsu Hsin-liang and Hsieh Tsung-min were barred Sunday from boarding a plane in Tokyo for Taiwan. Former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark, accompanying the dissidents to ensure their safety, also was prevented from boarding the Hong Kong-based Cathay Pacific Airlines flight.

The dissidents were kept off the flight on instructions from airline headquarters after the Taipei government stated it would not allow them to deplane in Taiwan.

But one of their supporters managed to fly into the heavily guarded Taipei airport Sunday evening.

Yang Min-hou, who described himself as a member of the U.S.-based Taiwan Democratic Party founded by Hsu, said he expected to spend at least three days in Taiwan. He was accompanied by three American citizens from New York — Michael Fonte, his wife Mary Paluseck and Terry Caine.

HSU AND HSIEH, who have been living in exile in the United States for seven years, said they would try Monday to find another means of travel to Taiwan. Both men are supporters of the opposition Democratic Progressive Party trying to oust the Nationalist government of President Chiang Chiang-kuo. The Nationalists have ruled under martial law since fleeing to the island in 1949, when the communists took control of mainland China.

An estimated 3,000 demonstrators who gathered at the airport early Sunday to greet the dissidents were prevented from marching on the arrival area by hundreds of helmeted riot police carrying truncheons and shields. They later staged a sit in on the airport road.

Up to 6,000 riot police were under orders to keep demonstrators away from the airport posted in and around the terminal building. Government sources said the police were under orders to use maximum tolerance with the demonstrators.

HSU, FOUNDER of the banned magazine Formosa, left Taiwan in 1979 after the government ordered his arrest for sedition. Hsieh served nearly 11 years in prison for writing a declaration calling for an end to martial law.

At a news conference Sunday night, Airport Police Agency Chief Meng Chau-hsi said a precinct division commander, Lin Shih, was seriously injured when he was hit by a rock during the airport demonstrations.

Meng, who blamed the demonstrators for starting riots, said three protesters were arrested, including Hsu's brother-in-law, Chen Bao-fu.

Two other people arrested with him were released on bail, Meng said.

IMPORTANT NEW ROUTE INFORMATION

Beginning Monday, 11/24, CAMBUS will service Mayflower Residence Hall with three buses instead of two. This change will mean altering two other routes: Interdorm 1 and Shuttle. For most passengers other than Mayflower residents this change should mean little difference in service, however, one should be aware of overall route changes and destination points.

Mayflower 1 (formerly Interdorm 1) will leave Mayflower at :36 beginning at 7:56 am and continue on a :56 & :16 departure time throughout the day until 4:16 pm. This route differs from the regular Interdorm route in that the :56 trip from Mayflower is to downtown only and then the bus returns to Mayflower, like the early morning Mayflower Shuttle, instead of continuing on to the Fieldhouse (see map below). After each :16 departure from Mayflower the bus will continue on to the Fieldhouse and then to the hospital and Arena parking lot. For people at Mayflower, Currier or any eastside residence hall going downtown, the end point of the route should make no difference. After 4:24 pm each day the Mayflower 1 bus will run only from Mayflower to downtown and back like the early morning Mayflower Shuttle until 5:16 pm.

Hospital service from downtown formerly provided by the Shuttle route will now be provided by the Mayflower 1 route. Service times at South Hospital will be 5 minutes earlier than before: the bus arriving at :36 instead of :41. Continuous Hospital service to the Arena lot beginning at 4:41 until 5:21 will remain unaffected.

Interdorm 2 will remain unaffected by any change and will continue going from Mayflower to the Fieldhouse and turning around as in the past (see map below). Interdorm 2 leaves Mayflower at :06 and :36 beginning at 8:06 am and continuing until 9:06 pm each weekday.

Shuttle Route (same name, different route) will leave Kinnick parking lot going to Slater (:08 & :26) and then on to the Pentacrest, turning around and going back to Slater and then back downtown. Every other trip to the Pentacrest leaving Slater (:26) will continue on to Mayflower (see map below). The Shuttle Route leaves Mayflower at :46 beginning at 8:46 am until 4:46 pm.

Ask the driver for the bus' destination if you want to travel further than downtown and are unsure of the bus route. We hope that this increased service is beneficial to all of our riders.

Koch seeks drug war funds

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — New York Mayor Ed Koch asked mayors of the nation's cities Sunday to join in his demand for a $4 billion federal commitment to the war on illegal drugs — the "scourge of America."

Directors of the National League of Cities, which already had proposed four policy recommendations on urban issues at its annual convention, agreed in a rare move to reopen its agenda to consider a resolution backing Koch's proposal.

"Occasionally a speech galvanizes an audience. The mayor has struck a chord," said San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros, president of the league.

While Koch commended Congress for enacting anti-drug legislation to fight the "scourge of America," he belittled the millions appropriated for enforcement, edu-and treatment.

"WHEN THE PRESIDENT says, as he has, that we have to understand this is a war, why doesn't he spend what he spends on just one Trident submarine? That's over $1 billion," Koch told hundreds of city officials gathered for the convention, which ends Wednesday.

"I believe, at the very least, the Congress ought to propose $4 billion. That's two Trident submarines," Koch said.

Earlier Sunday, Cisneros complained federal cutbacks for cities, the impact of foreign competition on domestic jobs and other economic ills had forced the league to propose policies of a defensive nature.

"We go on the offensive" with the proposal to endorse Koch's ideas, Cisneros said.

Koch, citing federal statistics, said the United States is home to 500,000 heroin addicts, 25 million people who have used cocaine and 5 million who use it regularly. He added that each day, 5,000 people try cocaine for the first time.

"IF NARCOTICS WERE listed on the New York Stock Exchange, its stock would split regularly," Koch said.

"While local and state governments must do all that they can to police drug crime, it is beyond their power to eliminate drugs from our society. It is the responsibility of the federal government," he said.

Koch said Congress should take one step past previously enacted legislation that halves monetary assistance to countries that do not take adequate steps to stop the production or transportation of illegal drugs.

"I hope we will rise up in anger and say, 'Not another nickel.' Why should we pay half?" Koch said.

Recommendations already adopted by the league's board focus on tax reform, reauthorization of lost programs, welfare reform and federal mandates to cities that often come with no money attached.

Lava flow stabilizes on Hawaiian island

KALAPANA, Hawaii (UPI) — Thousands of residents and tourists flocked to the southeast side of the Big Island of Hawaii Sunday and were allowed to journey within a quarter-mile of the lava flowing from Kilauea Volcano into the ocean.

The journey to the flow site was made safer because of the stable conditions of the lava flow, Harry Kim, County Civil Defense administrator, said Sunday. He described Saturday's volcanic activity as the first "stable day" since the current eruptive phase began July 18.

The 8-mile flow of molten lava from the vent to the ocean was so stable that civil defense and Hawaii Volcano National Park officials Sunday allowed visitors to journey to within a quarter-mile to view the flow as it entered the sea.

KIM SAID WATCHING the cool Pacific Ocean crashing into the 2,000-degree molten lava was an "awesome sight" and was expected to draw close to 20,000 people to the remote coastal area this weekend.

The relatively calm events followed a week of destruction as the fury of the unstoppable river of lava rolled over nine homes and sliced through a two-lane coastal highway on its way to the ocean.

Scientists said they had no idea how much longer the eruption will last, but they were concerned that further activity could cause the lava flow to branch out and threaten other areas, said Christina Heliker, a geologist with the Hawaiian Volcano Observatory.

HELIKER SAID scientists Sunday were keeping an eye on a finger of lava that broke away from the flow and was headed east. She said it was too early to tell whether the slow-moving lava would endanger untouched highways or homes.

Since the flow hit the ocean Friday, more than 500,000 square feet of new land has been added to the largest of the Hawaiian Islands.

The current phase of activity is the 48th of an eruption that began three years ago.

The lava runs downhill from Kilauea, 4,000 feet high on the eastern flank of the 13,600-foot Mauna Loa, which is the Big Island's other active volcano.

Israel investigates Iran-Contra issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A key Israeli official said Sunday his country should not be blamed in the Iran-Contra aid deal because Israel acted "in the name of friendship" and responded to the humanitarian issue of freeing hostages.

Abba Eban, chairman of the Foreign Affairs and Defense Committee of the Israel Knesset, or parliament, discussed on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley" the secret arms sales to Iran and the transfer of profits to aid the Nicaraguan Contras.

Israel allegedly acted as the go-between in the transfer of the U.S. arms to Iran but Eban stressed his country was not involved in the clandestine operation of moving between $10 million and $30 million in proceeds from the arms sales into Swiss bank accounts for the Contras.

"You cannot involve Israel in things which lie outside its action and beyond its experience and beyond its jurisdiction," Eban said, explaining that the Knesset has sent the matter to a special committee for investigation.

"ISRAEL IS NOT in the mood to deny anything that the United States believes to be crucial and useful," he said. "In order to help a friend, we put (ourselves) in limited service at the disposal of the United States and many of the other issues — constitutional problems and Nicaragua — are totally outside our experience and totally outside our preoccupation."

"But we did offer the United States this service in the name of friendship because also there was a humanitarian issue involved concerning... the hostage situation."

Eban said Israel was correct to help a friend and ally by shipping the U.S. arms to Iran and he stressed Israel was only repaying a favor because the United States helped transport Ethiopian Jews to Israel during much of the 1970s and early 1980s.

"We certainly don't have to examine domestic implications for our ally when it makes a request," Eban said.

Surprising Hawks win Alaska title

By Brad Zimanek
Sports Editor

ANCHORAGE, Alaska—Iowa, with a potent offensive attack, soundly defeated Northeastern 103-80 Sunday night at Sullivan Arena to win the 1986 Great Alaska Shootout.

"I can't believe it myself," an elated Iowa Coach Tom Davis said. "I thought this game would go right down to the wire. I'm speechless. I really expected a tussle. We played well over our heads, and they deserve an awful lot of credit."

Northeastern Coach Karl Fogel gave the credit to Davis. "He's just a tremendous coach," Fogel said.

The Hawkeyes, now 3-0 on the year, led the Huskies from the start of the contest and built their largest lead to 23 with reserve help near the end of the game from guard Bill Jones who canned two free throws with six seconds remaining.

Armstrong shines in Alaska while Reaves heals at home

By Brad Zimanek
Sports Editor

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — At the Great Alaska Shootout over the weekend, Iowa proved it can score and in large numbers. At the helm of that offense is an outstanding point guard in B.J. Armstrong.

Armstrong has starred at a position that has not been filled with much talent by the Hawkeyes in recent years.

The 6-foot-2 sophomore, who was a second-stringer behind Michael Reaves at the start of the season, helped guide Iowa to the Shootout Championship over some of the nation's best and a 3-0 record in the process.

Armstrong did it all for Iowa while making the all-tournament team in the process. In the three contests he scored 52 points, pulled down 10 rebounds, had 11 assists

B.J. Armstrong and five steals.

IN IOWA'S WIN Saturday over North Carolina State the Hawkeyes were down 78-64 with 4 minutes, 50 seconds remaining before Armstrong truly began his show.

Iowa outscored the Wolfpack 18-2 in the next 3:18 with full-court pressure which was directed by the Detroit, Mich., native. Armstrong forced two turnovers, stole an inbound pass and drilled home a three-point shot during that span.

More heroics were to come. With the Wolfpack up 84-82 with one second remaining, Armstrong, after being fouled, calmly converted both ends of a one-and-one to send the game into overtime.

"I've always thought about that," Armstrong said of his pressure-packed situation Saturday. "It's every player's dream. At the time though I didn't even realize it. I just

No. 3 Tennessee dumps Iowa in Amana final

Carver-Hawkeye Arena became a classroom for the Iowa women's basketball team Sunday.

The eighth-rated Hawkeyes, picked by many to win the Big Ten crown, suffered a 74-56 loss to third-rated Tennessee in the championship game of the second annual women's Amana-Hawkeye Classic.

"The things that Tennessee demonstrated today are characteristic of a championship team," Iowa Coach Vivian Stringer said. "Tennessee is one of the best teams in the country, and now that we've played a team like this we know what it's going to take to become a championship team, and more importantly we've seen what it looks like."

TENNESSEE, THE TEAM that knocked Iowa out of the NCAA tournament last year and eventually went on to the Final Four, played with near perfect execution and virtually wrapped up the game in the first half.

"I basically didn't like what I saw today," Stringer added.

"Tennessee put on a lot of pressure, and it hurt us. The thing that really hurt us is that we missed so many one-and-one opportunities. Those are the things that broke our back."

Iowa trailed 18-10 with 10 minutes left in the first half and had a chance to cut the lead to two with 5:22 left, but Robin Christian missed the first half of a one-and-one. And the Hawkeyes never got the chance to get any closer as Tennessee waltzed to a 38-26 halftime lead.

"When we started the season, I didn't think we should be rated as high as we were," Tennessee Coach Pat Summitt said. "But today we looked like a top five team. I was pleased with the way we played. But we can't be satisfied."

EVEN THOUGH THE SCORE was lopsided, Summitt was still impressed with the Iowa program. "We played Texas last year when the Longhorns were rated in the top five in the nation and lost by a similar score," Summitt added. "Iowa is still a contender for the Final Four. We probably did Iowa a favor. Iowa's players are winners, and they will build from this loss."

No one agrees with Summitt more than Stringer. "I wouldn't count the Hawks out of anything yet," Stringer added. "There is a difference between Tennessee and Iowa. It's not the kind of difference we can't overcome. This was only game two. I still feel good about where we'll be later on in the season."

Tournament MVP, Bridgette Gordon, paced the Lady Volunteers with 18 points while Michelle Edwards netted 18 for Iowa. Edwards was joined by teammate Tricia Blair, Tennessee's Sheila Frost, Boston University's Andrea Ashuck and Providence's Doris Sable on the all-tournament team.

It was the brilliant fast break combination of Blair and Edwards that got the Hawkeyes into the final as they downed Boston on Saturday 70-48.

Tennessee shook off a pesky Providence ball club, 86-70, in the semifinals Saturday. In Sunday's consolation game Providence overcame a 35-31 Boston lead at halftime to record a 74-60 win.

Three point goal saves UNLV in NIT

NEW YORK (UPI) — Western Kentucky Coach Arnold Miller, who disapproves of the new three-point shot in college basketball, had that opinion reinforced at the National Invitation Tournament Classic.

Freddie Banks sank a three-pointer with 13 seconds left in the second overtime Saturday night to give No. 3 Nevada-Las Vegas a 96-95 victory over the Hilltoppers in the finals of the NIT Classic.

"It was certainly a major factor in the game," Miller, whose team blew a 21-point first-half lead, said. "It re-emphasizes something I've said all along. Even when it has helped a Murray Arnold-coached team to win, I still think it's a very, very bad rule."

"If the object of our game has come down to seeing how many people can make them more than 20 feet from the basket, then I feel for the health of our sport. I don't think the game should be decided on a heave from over 20 feet when people do not penetrate or get good shots."

Becker dumps McEnroe in 'Challenge'

ATLANTA (UPI) — Boris Becker credited "mental toughness" for his victory Sunday over John McEnroe in the $500,000 AT&T Challenge. McEnroe blamed his 6-3, 3-6, 7-5 loss on officiating.

McEnroe said two "missed" calls by an official cost him the match in the third set. Trailing 4-3, Becker opened the eighth game with two straight aces, both of which McEnroe argued were faults.

The umpire refused to overrule the calls, and McEnroe eventually got to break point. But Becker held serve to win.

"I really had the momentum at 4-3," McEnroe said. "It's unforgivable that a guy should miss two straight calls. I was ready to win that match today, and those people changed the whole momentum of that match."

Becker, who won $150,000 to McEnroe's $100,000, disagreed that the calls allowed him to come back and win.

"In such a match you get bad calls in the first and second sets, too," he said. "I'm sure he got as many bad calls as I got."

Taylor leads New York in key NFL battle

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers, wary of the game-breaking strength of linebacker Lawrence Taylor, meet the New York Giants tonight in a contest critical to each team's bid for first place.

The 49ers, 7-4-1, trail the Los Angeles Rams by a game and a half and must win to keep pace in NFC West. The Giants, 10-2, have to win to maintain a tie for first in the NFC East with the Washington Redskins.

Taylor leads the Giants' pass rush with 16 1/2 of the team's conference-high 45 sacks. He also has made 85 tackles and forced two fumbles.

"He's playing the best he's ever played," San Francisco 49ers' Coach Bill Walsh said. "We don't want any one guy responsible for blocking him. We'll have two and three men on him."

Taylor's play has something of a surprise this season for the Giants, who did not know what to expect following the linebacker's off-season treatment for a drug problem.

"He's played hard this year," Giants' quarterback Phil Simms said. "I don't think he's had any down weeks. But personally-wise, he's taken a lower profile on the team than in the past. This year, he seems to stay in the background a little more."

Taylor has had mixed success in his previous five games against the 49ers, accumulating 30 tackles and four sacks.

Protests follow Akers' firing

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Amid protests from fans, alumni and players, Texas began a nationwide search Sunday for a football coach to replace the dismissed Fred Akers.

Darrell Royal, a former Texas coach, said he would assist in the search but would not interview prospects or have a voice in the final decision.

Akers was fired Saturday following a 10-year career in which he posted the third best winning percentage in the Southwest Conference. The Longhorns finished with a 5-6 record this season, their first losing mark in 30 years.

The dismissal touched off a wave of dissent within the coaching profession and among those who follow one of the country's most traditional football programs.

"THIS IS A TRAVESTY OF justice," Rice Coach Jerry Berndt said. "Here's a coach who seemed to be a class guy and has one of the best records in the nation. And some people don't like him. If I had the record Texas had, I'd be the mayor of Houston."

Akers became the first football coach in the school's

"That's what happens when a few wealthy alums and a bunch of politics get involved," Fred Curry, a 1957 Texas graduate said of Fred Akers' firing. "I think we look very foolish."

93-year history to be fired. A school spokesman said he will hold a news conference Monday.

"This was my 19th year at the University of Texas (including nine years as an assistant coach)," Akers said. "That's quite an investment for me and my family. So it is not a relief. But neither is it the end of the world."

Supporters of Akers said the decision embarrasses the university.

"THAT'S WHAT happens when a few wealthy alums and a bunch of politics get involved in college football," Fred Curry, a 1957 Texas graduate who has helped organize benefit golf tournaments for Akers, said. "I think we look extremely bad and very foolish. It's a crying shame. But that's the type of society we live in."

Athletic Director DeLoss Dodds said he does not yet have a list of new coaching candidates. However, speculation centers on Arizona State Coach John Cooper, Denver Broncos Assistant Mike Shanahan, Air Force's Fisher DeBerry, Miami's Jimmy Johnson, Arizona's Larry Smith, Texas Tech's David McWilliams and Dallas Cowboys Assistant Alan Lowry — a former player under Akers.

"I think Texas is a great job," Cooper, who helped guide Arizona State to its first Rose Bowl this season, said. "I think it's considered one of the top jobs in the country. I'm sure if I was contacted, I would visit with them, but these people (in Arizona) have been great to me."

McWilliams WAS AN assistant under Akers before taking the Texas Tech job this season. He led Texas Tech to its first bowl game in a decade.

"The Texas job is the farthest thing from my mind," he said. Akers replaced Royal in 1977 after Royal compiled a 167-47-5 record over 20 years.

"I was willing to serve in an advisory capacity then (when he retired 10 years ago), and I am now," Royal said. "But it's DeLoss's decision. We are only a sounding board. I absolutely will not interview any candidates."

"I'm surprised and disappointed," kicker Jeff Ward, who set a SWC record for most field goals in a career, said. "My own personal opinion is that it's a mistake. The change is going to set the program back a year or two."

Public opinion polls taken Saturday by area newspapers and broadcast stations all indicated support for Akers.

One caller to a radio station began crying as she voiced her complaints.

"I've been a Texas fan for over 60 years," she said. "And I'm ashamed of them."

Iowa State opens season with 91-66 win

AMES, Iowa (UPI) — Iowa State Coach Johnny Orr said he was pleased with the way the Cyclones rebounded and ran the fast break in a season-opening 91-66 victory over Detroit.

Junior forward Jeff Grayer scored a game-high 26 points and Elmer Robinson added a career-high 23 points Saturday to help the Cyclones post their 18th straight win at home.

All five Cyclones finished in double figures, Gary Thompkins with 13 points, Tom Schaefer 12 and Sam Hill 10. Grayer had 21 points in the first half while Hill scored all of his points in the second half.

Archie Tullos led Detroit, 0-1, with a career-high 24 points and Brian Humes added 14.

"WE PLAYED PRETTY well in the second half. We hit the boards and got the break going," Orr said.

He said he was especially proud of his team's unselfish play.

Orr said he was upset with Detroit for "what they pulled on us this summer with the (John) McIntyre deal. It was good to beat them soundly like we did."

McIntyre was a former Detroit player who asked to be released from his scholarship so he could transfer to Iowa State. Detroit Coach Don Sicko accused Iowa State of tampering and refused to release McIntyre to the Cyclones. McIntyre later transferred to Missouri.

Any chances of an into the NCAA tournament vanished Tuesday as Iowa women's volleyball lost an 8-15, 15-10, 15-12 decision to Minnesota's Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

The Hawkeyes, who third in the Big Ten fell one game back Gophers, after losing their last seven matches.

Amid all the disappointment, however, is a 25-9 record, the best in Iowa ball history. And with nucleus returning year's team, Iowa Coach Stewart is optimistic for future.

"THIS HAS BEEN a rewarding year as a Stewart said. "If I would have told me beginning of the season we were going to end would have said 'great'."

"Right now, I can't start with next year. Losing Kathy (Griehs) Lana (Kuiper) will be a loss."

Hawkeyes claim two champs at Northern Open tournament

By Laura Palmer
Staff Writer

Iowa crowned two champions after ending four wrestlers into the finals Saturday at the Northern Open in Madison, Wis.

Jim Heffernan, defending national champion at 150 pounds, defeated Wisconsin's Jeff Jordan in the finals, 10-3, to be only the 15th Hawkeye to record more than 100 career wins. Heffernan stands 7-0 this season and 102-15-2 overall.

Royce Alger, who is ranked second in the nation at 167 pounds, defeated third-ranked Dave Lee of Wisconsin in the finals, 6-4.

currently ranked second nationally at that weight class.

The Hawkeyes suffered another loss in the finals at 158 pounds when Paul McShane (unattached) defeated John Heffernan, 5-3.

Redshirt Steve Martin lost in the semifinals to Wisconsin's Joe VanDinter and captured fourth place at 118 pounds. At 134 pounds, Bubba Strauss beat Northern Iowa's Joe Gribbin 6-4 for third place.

Iowa's Mitch Kelly, also wrestling at 150 pounds, captured third place by defeating Northern Iowa's Chris Lembeck, 7-1.

Rico Chiapparelli placed fourth at 177 pounds after defaulting because of a rib injury while wrestling Booker Benford (unattached) in the semifinals.

Iowa's Steve Knight was pinned in overtime by Oklahoma two-time all-American Joe Melchoiri at 126 to place sixth. Brooks Simpson placed sixth at 190 after losing to Bob Ferrell (unattached).

"I'm always happy with a tournament win. I feel in the finals I let up on my opponent, and he came back to bring it within two points," Alger said. "I knew it would be a tough meet. I just wanted to wrestle hard and sound and try not to give up too many mistakes."

Any chances of an at-large bid into the NCAA tournament vanished Tuesday when the Iowa women's volleyball team lost an 8-15, 15-10, 15-11, 16-14 decision to Minnesota at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

The Hawkeyes, who finished third in the Big Ten at 12-6, fell one game back of the Gophers, after losing six of their last seven matches.

Amid all the disappointment, however, is a 25-9 overall record, the best in Iowa volleyball history. And with a solid nucleus returning for next year's team, Iowa Coach Sandy Stewart is optimistic about the future.

"THIS HAS BEEN MY most rewarding year as a coach," Stewart said. "If someone would have told me at the beginning of the season that we were going to end up 25-9, I would have said 'great.'"

"Right now, I can't wait to get started with next year's team. Losing Kathy (Griesheim) and Lana (Kuiper) will hurt, but

Volleyball

Stephanie (Smith) has proven she can start for this team, and hopefully we will have a good freshman setter coming in to take Kathy's spot."

Another player the Hawkeyes will have back next season is Ellen Mullarkey, who missed the last three matches due to an ankle injury.

And it was the loss of Mullarkey which, according to Stewart, led to the undoing of the Hawkeye squad in the clutch.

"WE'VE HAD A LOT of injuries this season, but losing Ellen was probably the biggest of all," Stewart said. "She was our main player at the middle hitter position, and we just didn't have anyone to replace her. She was also the emotional leader of the team as well."

Mullarkey's absence allowed Pam Miller and the Minnesota Gophers to come back and win a match that was all but tied after four games.

Down 14-10 in the fourth, Miller and Andrea Gonzalez mounted a fierce comeback, running off six straight points to take sole possession of second place in the conference and a likely at-large bid in the NCAA tournament.

"We were in it all the way, just as we were in each of our final three matches," Stewart said. "But just like the Indiana and Ohio State matches, we let them (Minnesota) come back and allowed the match to slip through our fingers."

"Gonzalez and Miller really hurt us. They just hit the ball so hard that we just couldn't get anything going."

Miller had 24 kills and 19 digs on the night while Gonzalez had 19 kills and 13 digs.

For Iowa, Kuiper had 20 kills, followed by Cheryl Zemaitis and Kari Hamel with 19 and 17, respectively. Toni Zehr also led all Hawkeye servers with three service aces while Kuiper, Griesheim and Hamel each had two.

Sharon Oesterling led all servers Tuesday with four service aces.

Shootout

THE HAWKEYES advanced to the championship contest by defeating North Carolina State 90-89 in a hard-fought overtime win Saturday. The victory startled the Sullivan Arena crowd which had just witnessed one of the greatest comebacks in Iowa basketball history.

Iowa trailed Coach Jim Valvano's North Carolina State squad 78-64 with less than five minutes left in the contest before the Hawkeyes began working toward their second win of the season.

Iowa made its comeback charge with the help of full court pressure that put a halt to the Wolfpack offense for the rest of the game.

MARBLE, AFTER AN AL Lorenzen layup and a North Carolina State turnover, hit a shot which cut the Wolfpack lead to 78-68. Moe then stole the inbound pass from Bennie Bolton, nailed home another layup and was fouled by North Carolina State's Walker Lambiotte. Moe hit the free throw to make it 78-71.

The Iowa comeback continued. With 2:32 remaining Armstrong connected on a three-point shot to make it 80-76 and Kent Hill muscled over North Carolina State star Charles Shackelford for a layup 26 seconds later to cut the lead to just two points.

Shackelford then missed the front end of a one-and-one the next time up the court, and the Hawkeyes took advantage of it. Gamble drove to the basket for a layup, which tied the score 80-80. Armstrong then stole another inbound pass, and Brad Lohaus scored with 1:32 remaining to give Iowa an 82-80 lead.

Shackelford hit a layup to tie the score for North Carolina State 82-82, and the next time up the floor Kenny Drummond hit both ends of a one-and-one after being fouled by Kevin Gamble.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE was up by two with 22 seconds remaining. Iowa took the ball up the floor, and Armstrong, after running some time off the clock, drove to the hoop and was fouled by Chucky Brown with :01 remaining. Armstrong drilled both free throws, which tied the game 84-84.

The game or the comeback, though, was not over. North Carolina State built a three-point lead during the overtime. ARMSTRONG CAME TO the Hawkeyes' rescue again. With 1:06 left he drilled another three pointer to tie the score.

After an exchange of possessions, the Hawkeyes again beared down on the basket as Lohaus pulled down an offensive rebound and was fouled by Shackelford when he tried to score with only three seconds remaining.

Lohaus converted only one of the two free throws, but that was all the Hawkeyes needed. The one-point lead held up when Drummond's 35-foot three-point attempt went in and out at the buzzer.

On Friday the Hawkeyes advanced to the contest with North Carolina State by defeating Alaska-Anchorage 91-81.

Armstrong

went up there and knew I had to make two free throws. I just took my time and shot them."

LUCKILY FOR IOWA, Armstrong wasn't through. The Hawkeyes dug another hole for themselves as North Carolina State was ahead 89-86 with just 1:28 remaining in the overtime session.

Armstrong came through again. He nailed a three-point shot, his fifth in only six attempts during the ball game, to tie the score 89-89. Armstrong had done enough. Iowa center Brad Lohaus' free throw with three seconds remaining then eventually won the game for the Hawkeyes. On the day Armstrong had a career-high 26 points to go along with four rebounds, three assists and two steals.

Was this performance against North Carolina State and the Hawkeyes' other two games enough for Armstrong to keep the starting point guard job? Reaves is expected to be ready to play for Iowa Tuesday, one day before the Hawkeyes are scheduled to play Missouri-St. Louis at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

"I DON'T KNOW HOW you can expect a sophomore point guard to play any better than he did," Iowa Coach Tom Davis said. "It was superb. The free throws will be what everybody will remember, but he did a lot of other things as well."

But, Coach Davis, is the starting job assured?

"I don't think B.J. can play any better. But we will be better when we get Michael Reaves back, and we expect him back Tuesday," Davis said. "He is the starting point guard. When we get him back, it gives us another dimension. He might be better than B.J. running the fast break. He's not quite the shooter B.J. is. But if he keeps playing this way, he will be hard to beat out."

Armstrong isn't too worried about his starting status.

"My job is to play, and his job is to coach. He has been around basketball longer than I have," Armstrong said. "I'm still learning, and I'm sure he'll do the right thing."

Armstrong, after only his sixth start of his college career (three while in Alaska), believes he can run the Iowa offense, an offense which has averaged 94.7 points in its first three games.

"It's just a matter of time until I get more comfortable with what Coach Davis wants in certain situations," Armstrong said. "I got more confidence down the stretch because I knew what we needed from my position. I did what I did because it came naturally to me."

Film

THE TWO DECADES since Walt Disney's death have included remarkably few first-rate films for youngsters. During that period Hollywood shifted from producing family-oriented films to pursuing specific audiences, particularly teens and young adults. Movie ratings were introduced, and the G rating became such a guarantee of box office failure that filmmakers did their best to avoid being declared fit for a general audience.

Disney's own company deserved much of the blame. Without his presiding genius, Disney Studios became noted for formulaic, outdated "G" movies whose production values were almost, but not quite, as shoddy as their scripts. With animation costs spiraling, Disney's successors de-emphasized feature cartoons; the few that were made lacked the detailed artistry of Disney classics.

DON BLUTH is helping to change all that. Bluth is the director and co-producer of An American Tail, the nearest thing to a classic feature-length cartoon for children in years.

Bluth worked at Disney Studios 30 years ago as an assistant animator on the memorable film Sleeping Beauty. Shortly thereafter he left Disney, but returned to the fold in the early 1970s. In 1979, he was prominent among 12 Disney staffers who resigned because of artistic differences with the studio's efforts.

Bluth and ex-Disney staffers Gary Goldman and John Pomeroy immediately went into competition with their former employers. Their first feature cartoon was the Secret of NIMH. An American Tail is an even better effort.

THE FOREMOST distinguishing quality of An American Tail is its focus on the "second wave" U.S. immigration from eastern and southern Europe that gathered momentum in the 1880s. This being a cartoon, the featured character is a mouse named Fievel — a Russian Jew — whose fellow mice are equally, unabashedly ethnic.

While the film celebrates the American experience, it contains more grit than saccharine. The Mousekewitz family decides to emigrate after their house is burned in a raid; during this vivid scene, the mice are chased by savage cats as their human neighbors are fleeing marauding Cossacks.

The Mousekewitzs and their fellow immigrants imagine the United States as a fairy tale land where everyone prospers. A shipboard song, "There Are No Cats in America," illustrates their faith in a new land, and at the same moment signals inevitable disillusionment and hardship.

Instead of a Utopia, the immigrants find New York. In New York Bay, the Statue of Liberty is nearing completion, but the city also has its sweatshops, tenements and street orphans.

AS LONG AS An American Tail realistically portrays the immigrant experience, it remains completely engrossing. Unfortunately, the movie's second half regresses into routine fare about mice outwitting cats — but at least the splendid and imaginative art and interesting characterizations are maintained.

Virtually everything about An American Tail suggests a first-rate effort. The screenplay is by Tony Geiss and Judy Freudberg, Emmy-winning writers for "Sesame Street." Voices are supplied by such notables as Dom DeLuise, Madeline Kahn and Christopher Plummer. The score is as rich as the artwork; the Linda Ronstadt-James Ingram duet "Somewhere Out There" has even been released as a single. Last, but hardly least, Steven Spielberg and his associates acted as executive producers.

With competition like this, is it any wonder that recent animated offerings from Disney Studios (The Black Cauldron, The Great Mouse Detective) have been substantial improvements? Smile, kids, an animation renaissance may have begun.

Music

MICHAEL GEARY, percussionist with the UI Center for New Music, will make use of everything from the vibraphone to oil drums when he performs tonight at 8 in Clapp Recital Hall.

Geary will perform several 20th century works for the marimba (a large xylophone with resonators), the vibraphone (similar to the marimba) and other percussive instruments.

Geary designed the program to include a wide range of musical styles along with a variety of instrumental colors and contrasting dynamics.

The works range from tonal pieces to the more avant-garde, the latter includes the closing work Psappha for solo percussion by Iannis Xenakis. This work requires a special apparatus which is made up of automobile brake drums, oil drums and other percussive materials.

"IT'S LOUD AND FAST — a real barn burner," said Geary describing the Xenakis work. "It should take the roof off Clapp Recital Hall."

The program also includes works for solo marimba, solo percussion and tape, piano and vibraphone with pianist Barbara Phillips-Farley accompanying.

Also featured on the program are works composed by UI alumni David Colson and Scott Warner.

Geary, a UI graduate, has been with the Center for New Music since 1981.

The performance is free.

Heart Answers

Hypercholesterolemia
Hypercholesterolemia is a condition in which too much cholesterol, a fatty wax-like substance, is circulating in the blood. Cholesterol is manufactured by the body, and comes from animal substances, such as meat, egg yolks and whole milk dairy products. When the amount of cholesterol becomes excessive, it is deposited on or in the lining of the arteries with other fatty substances. Over a period of years, the lining of the arteries becomes thicker and harder, and the channel through which the blood flows is narrowed. When an artery which supplies the heart with oxygenated blood closes off, a heart attack results.

Stroke kills actor Cary Grant while in Davenport for show

DAVENPORT (UPI)—Screen idol Cary Grant, who delighted movie audiences for decades with his dash, wit and polished elegance, died of a massive stroke late Saturday, hospital officials said Sunday.

Grant, 82, was comatose and showing symptoms of a stroke when he was rushed to St. Luke's hospital by ambulance at 9:20 p.m., said James Gilson, a cardiologist who treated the actor.

He died at 11:22 p.m., about six hours after he complained of feeling ill during a rehearsal at the RiverCenter.

Beverly Hills attorney Stanley Fox, a long-time advisor to Grant who usually traveled with the actor, was in California at the time of the death. "I can't help relate he was one of the finest men I have ever known in my life," Fox said.

GRANT BEGAN HIS entertainment career in vaudeville in the 1920s, eventually becoming one of America's favorite romantic actors. In 1969, the suave, soft-spoken actor was honored with a special Academy Award in recognition of his long film career. His last film role was in Walk, Don't Run, released in 1966.

"He was going to put on a program at our RiverCenter called 'A Conversation With Cary Grant,' an evening where he got up on stage and talked about his experiences and career and then would respond to questions from the audience," James Stuhler, administrator of the hospital, said.

Following the Saturday afternoon rehearsal, Grant returned to the Blackhawk Hotel in Davenport shortly after 5:30 p.m. and later was taken to the hospital. Gilson said during a news conference at the hospital early Sunday.

TONY WARREN, St. Luke's vice president, said Grant was treated for about 45 minutes in the emergency room then transferred to the intensive care unit where he died.

He starred with some of the screen's most beautiful actresses in such hits as She Done Him Wrong with Mae West, Notorious with Ingrid Bergman, The Philadelphia Story with Katharine Hepburn and North by Northwest with Eva Marie Saint.

Some of his other films include Topper, Gunga Din, An Affair to Remember, His Girl Friday, The Awful Truth and Bringing Up Baby.

"It's a shock. He was a professional, a really fine actor," said L. E. Peterson, manager of Royal Theatre in West Los Angeles, who said he has exhibited Cary Grant movies for the past four decades. "I've seen them all. He'll certainly be missed."

Cary Grant

HOSPITAL CONFIRMATION of his death was postponed until after 2 a.m. apparently at the request of Grant's fifth wife, Barbara, who was in Davenport and by her husband's side at his death.

Grant was born Archibald Alexander Leach, in Bristol, England, on January 18, 1904. Since his retirement, he spent much of his time at his 4-acre Beverly Hills estate with his fifth wife, Barbara, and his only child, 19-year-old Jennifer by a previous wife, actress Dyan Cannon.

During one of his rare interviews, he said the oft-quoted "Ju-dee, Ju-dee, Ju-dee" was actually started by an unknown impersonator. But it became a stylistic symbol of his Cockney-but-classy accent.

Asked which movie he starred in was his favorite, Grant said "I've enjoyed them all," but he admitted particularly enjoying making Indiscreet with Ingrid Bergman.

The role he liked the least was the bungling young nephew in Arsenic and Old Lace, which he considered his worst acting because of the comedic nature of the popular stage play.

HIS FAVORITE DIRECTOR was Alfred Hitchcock, who guided him in the thriller North By Northwest, and whose presence Grant said was felt and reacted to by everyone on the set.

Grant was also married to actress Betsy Drake and Woolworth heiress Barbara Hutton.

Interview highlights life, films

On July 16 and 17, 1986, The Daily Iowan ran an exclusive interview with Cary Grant by staff writer Kent Schuelke. Grant looked back over his life and career; here are some of the highlights.

• His favorite actress: In my opinion, the best actress I ever worked with was Grace Kelly. Now Ingrid (Bergman) and Audrey (Hepburn) and Deborah Kerr, certainly they were splendid, splendid actresses, but Grace was utterly relaxed, the most extraordinary actress I think... She was a lady, number one, which are rare in our business; we have manufactured ladies mostly. But Grace was really a remarkable woman in every way. And when she quit, she quit because she wanted to.

• On film criticism: A film's a film. It's only a movie... now if you gentlemen want to dissect it and trisect it, and cut it up into little pieces, well, that's up to you. We made them. They're forgotten. We didn't know the intentions half the time, except to amuse and attract people to the box office.

• On his acting: The most difficult thing to be is yourself. (Especially) when you know it is going to be seen by 300 million people immediately.

• His artistic impact: I didn't influence anybody. They have my interpretation of what it was about, and that's about all. But I didn't influence anybody, not to my knowledge anyway.

• On his fans: It's a constant repetition of people approaching me, either for idiotic things known as autographs or just to do something about something.

• On his retirement: Acting got to be very tiresome for me. I had done it. I don't know how much further I might have gone in it, I have no knowledge of that, of course we don't... I enjoyed the profession. I enjoyed it very, very much, but I don't miss it one bit.

Liquor bargains attract crowds

By Ann Szemplinski Staff Writer

Hundreds of customers flocked to take advantage of low-priced wine and state liquor store out-of-business Iowa City and Coralville.

All state liquor stores close their doors March 1, 1987, but legislation passed that allows only businesses to sell.

But state stores say they'll benefit from increased holiday sales by marking down prices in December.

"The best time to buy a product is when it's the most people in and with the increased holiday business we're to get rid of a lot of wine," Dennis Iwan, who is with Iowa State Department of Commerce, said.

"OUR MISSION is to rid of all of our March 1 and the best do that is to mark price," Mitcham said.

More than $20,000 was purchased from the Coralville store according to store manager Jim Lundahl.

"We were very, very busy," Lundahl said Monday.

"It wasn't so much amount of people, it was the store they bought," explained. "We had people come in $200 to $300 worth."

The Coralville store discounted about 25 percent on less popular spirits with the wine according to Lundahl.

Police Students before reg...

By Monica Seigel Staff Writer

A new UI Registrar policy is having little effect on the number of students registering early for spring courses, but great effect on the number of students registering their U-bills on time, officials said Monday.

The new policy requires students to clear all indebtedness with the UI before registering.

UI Cashier Don Ross said he has tried various methods in the past to get students to pay U-bills before registering but this one is proving effective.

"YOU'RE PAYING" he said. "Students know they can't get in to unless they are all with the university, so taking care of their debt are really noticing the difference."

Ross said the policy change had numerous implications. He said it would require students to clear indebtedness before registering, which would allow debts to stay on the first days of classes.
