Liquor bargains attract crowds

By Ann Szemplenski
Staff Writer

Hundreds of customers flocked to take advantage of low-priced wine Monday at state liquor stores' going-out-of-business sales in Iowa City and Coralville.

All state liquor stores will close their doors beginning March 1, 1987, because of legislation passed last July that allows only private businesses to sell wine.

But state store managers say they'll benefit from increased holiday business by marking down wine prices in December.

"The best time to move a product is when you have the most people in the store and with the increased holiday business we're hoping to get rid of a lot of the wine," Dennis Mitcham, who is with Iowa's Alcoholic Beverages Division of the Department of Commerce, said.

"OUR MISSION is to get rid of all of our wine by March 1 and the best way to do that is to mark down the price," Mitcham said.

More than $20,000 in wine was purchased Monday at the Coralville liquor store, according to store manager Jim Lundahl.

"We were very, very busy," Lundahl said Monday evening.

"It wasn't so much the amount of people in the store, it was the amount they bought," Lundahl explained. "We had a lot of people come in and buy $200 to $300 worth of wine."

The Coralville store also discounted about 50 of the less popular spirits along with the wine Monday, according to Lundahl.

WORKERS AT Iowa City's state-owned liquor store, 1922 Keokuk St., said they were "swamped" and unable to comment Monday because of an onslaught of customers.

But local retail wine store

The Daily Iowan/Doug Smith
Leslie Kromer pauses to make a selection while shopping at the Coralville liquor store, which had sales of more than $20,000 Monday. New legislation is forcing state-owned liquor stores to close.

managers say the state store discount will hurt their business.

Wally Plahutnik, assistant manager at Claret and Friends Fine Wines, 323 Market St., said retail stores cannot compete with the state stores' low prices.

"THERE IS NO comparison in prices," Plahutnik said. "They are selling liquor at prices lower than even our buyers can get."

He said local retail stores are better off not trying to compete with the state stores' low prices.

"We're better off not selling any liquor at all than selling it at a loss," Plahutnik said.

"It would be better to just put a stack of dollar bills by the front door and invite customers to come in and take a few."

But Plahutnik said the retail stores will make up some of the loss because they sell liquor not available in the state stores.

"We may put a few things on sale, but because we have liquor the state stores don't sell, we shouldn't be hurt too badly," Plahutnik said.

President unaware of Contra deal

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Ronald Reagan, seeking to erase any doubt of what he knew and when, denied "flat out" Monday he had any knowledge that profits from arms sales to Iran were being diverted to Nicaraguan rebels.

The denial was issued by the White House as Reagan ordered a top-to-bottom review of the scandal-tainted National Security Council staff and said he would welcome a special prosecutor's probe of its secret Iran-Contra connection.

"If we're to maintain confidence in our government's foreign policy apparatus, there must be a full and complete airing of all the facts," Reagan said in formally assigning that task to a review board headed by former Sen. John Tower, R-Texas.

Advised by chief spokesman Larry Speakes that reporters had questioned whether that implied some possible awareness of the profit-skimming scheme, Reagan said, "You can tell them flat out that I had no knowledge whatsoever of it until (Attorney General) Ed Meese briefed me on it Monday afternoon."

REAGAN DIRECTED the Tower panel to "conduct a comprehensive study" of NSC practices and what operational role, if any, that unit should have in covert diplomatic, military or intelligence missions.

No firm timetable was set for the review, which Tower promised to complete "with as much dispatch as possible." Reagan barred the NSC staff from taking part in "actual operations" pending assessment of its foreign policy role.

At the same time, Reagan pledged "full support and cooperation" for the criminal investigation being conducted by the Justice Department.

The Senate Intelligence Committee opened a formal investigation with the White House agreeing to allow testimony from former Reagan aides but hinting some questions — those dealing with specific advice given to the president — might be considered out of bounds.

WHITE HOUSE officials have taken under consideration a call by Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas for a special session of Congress to create a select committee to investigate the affair.

The NSC review, more a bureaucratic analysis than an appraisal of personal performances, will be spearheaded by Tower and two other vet-

Iran crisis imperils pardon

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — The Iran arms-Contra aid scandal may jeopardize a pardon for Eugene Hasenfus, the American sentenced to 30 years in prison for running arms to Nicaraguan rebels, his lawyer said Monday.

Nicaragua had been considering pardoning Hasenfus as a good-faith gesture toward the United States, but defense attorney Enrique Sotelo Borgen said Monday he is not optimistic.

"The pardon request to the government has been set back by all this," Sotelo said in an interview. "The Iran-Contras scandal complicates everything."

Hasenfus has admitted taking part in a secret network that supplied arms and equipment to the Contras. He was captured Oct. 6, a day after Nicaraguan troops shot down his plane during a supply run for the Contras.

On Nov. 18, a People's Tribunal found Hasenfus guilty of terrorism and violation of public security laws and sentenced him to 30 years in prison. His case is now before an appeals court.

PRESIDENT Daniel Ortega raised the possibility of a pardon, saying Hasenfus was a "victim" of President Ronald Reagan's policy.

The Hasenfus trial exposed the existence of a supply network that operated from the Ilopango air force base in El Salvador, one of the strongest U.S. allies in Central America.

The name of Lt. Col. Oliver North, a former National Security Council aide accused of setting up the network, was mentioned at Hasenfus' trial.

Reagan fired North Nov. 25 after his role was exposed in channeling profits from the Iranian arms sales to Swiss bank accounts for Contra rebels.

Policy prompts paid U-bills

Students must settle debts before registering for classes

By Monica Seigel
Staff Writer

A new UI Registrar's Office policy is having little effect on the number of students registering early for spring semester courses, but great effect on the number of students paying their U-bills on time, UI officials said Monday.

The new policy requires students to clear all indebtedness with the UI before being allowed to register.

UI Cashier Don Ross said the UI has tried various methods in the past to get students to pay U-bills before registering, but this one is proving most effective.

"YOU'RE PAYING them," he said. "Students know that they can't get in to register unless they are all paid up with the university, so they are taking care of their debts. We are really noticing the difference."

Ross said the policy has been changed numerous times. Past policies have required students to clear indebtedness before registering or have allowed debts to stand until the first days of classes.

"LAST SEMESTER we voided registrations on the third day of classes of students who had been allowed to register early but still hadn't paid their bills," he said.

UI Associate Registrar Marion Hansen said spring semester registration is running much the same as it has in the past, in spite of the new policy.

"The only thing we did change is that we now hold students responsible for payment of their U-bills through the month of November," Hansen said.

"THIS HASN'T seemed to inhibit registration at all, as we have about the same number of students registering as usual," she said.

"This leads us to believe that the students are getting out and taking care of things before they attempt to register," Hansen said.

Hansen said more than 9,000 students had been registered before Thanksgiving break.

"We have been registering an average of 1,500 people a day, sometimes even 1,600," she said. "This is pretty comparable to the statistics we've had for past semesters."

Hansen added that the number of class closings are also comparable to figures in past years.

Presley, Nixon talks revealed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Elvis Presley told President Richard Nixon in a private White House meeting in 1970 the Beatles were "a real force for anti-American spirit," once-secret papers revealed Monday.

The rock 'n' roll singer also told Nixon he had been studying communist brainwashing and the drug culture for more than a decade and said he wanted to help in Nixon's law-and-order efforts.

The Nixon-Presley meeting was detailed in a memorandum written that day by Nixon aide Egil Krogh. The memo was included among more than 1.5 million pages of Nixon era documents made public Monday.

Weather

Oh, the weather outside is frightful... and it's gonna stay that way. Be prepared for occasional snow possibly mixed with freezing drizzle today, and a low in the upper 20s. The forecast calls for more of the same tonight, but temperatures should rise to the mid-30s. Brrrr.

Man arrested for possessing weapon

A man arrested for carrying a sheath knife at a parking ramp on Burlington Street made his initial appearance Saturday in Johnson County District Court.

Jamie Sean Tibbetts, 20, North Liberty, Iowa, was charged Saturday with carrying a concealed weapon after Iowa City Police officers were called about an intoxicated male carrying a knife.

Tibbetts matched the caller's description and police officers arrested him at the parking ramp on Burlington Street.

Officers found the knife when patting him down, court records state.

Tibbetts was placed under the supervision of the Iowa Department of Corrections. His preliminary hearing is scheduled for Dec. 19.

Nicaraguan expert will give lecture

Former General Secretary of the Ministry of Culture of Nicaragua Xavier Arguello will speak Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Van Allen Hall Lecture Room I.

Arguello received his law degree from the Universidad Catolica Centroamerica and was an anti-Somoza political organizer in Nicaragua.

Arguello was a columnist for the La Prensa publication and served as an editor for Nicaragua, the official cultural magazine of Nicaragua.

Arguello resigned from his position as Sandinista Secretary of Culture in January of 1984 and has since worked as an assistant to Arturo Cruz, a director of the United Nicaraguan Opposition.

The lecture, sponsored by the Campus Review, is free and open to the public.

Lecturer will discuss women in society

Melanie Kaye-Kantrowitz will speak at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in Shambaugh Auditorium as part of the UI Women's Resource and Action Center's 1986-87 lecture series.

Co-editor of The Tribe of Dina: A Jewish Women's Anthology and publisher of Sinister Wisdom, Kaye-Kantrowitz's discussion is the second lecture in this year's series, "Women, Creators of Social Change."

The lecture is open to the public and no admission will be charged.

Christmas gifts to be given to veterans

Patients at the Iowa City Veterans Administration Medical Center will be assisted in providing Christmas gifts for their families again this year.

The Annual American Legion Auxiliary Christmas Gift Shop will open its doors to hospitalized veterans Dec. 7-9 in the center's third floor conference rooms.

"In 1985, there were 223 veterans who were provided 599 gifts valued at over $2,000," said Helen Calvert, chairwoman of the project.

Volunteers select gifts for the patients. The gifts are then gift-wrapped and mailed at no cost to the hospitalized veteran.

The project is funded from donations received through the American Legion Auxiliary poppy sales.

Iowa-Illinois appoints new director

David J. Levy took over as the new director of Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric Company Monday.

Levy has been serving as manager of the Iowa-Illinois Ottumwa District for the past year and a half. He will replace retiring Bruce Anderson, who has worked with the company for 38 years.

Christian M. Swanson of Tipton will replace Levy in Ottumwa, Iowa. Swanson has held positions including plant accountant and accounting supervisor since joining the utility in 1968.

Local groups will hold suicide workshop

Three local groups will present a suicide intervention training program from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Thursday at the Highlander Inn, U.S. Highway 1 and Interstate 80.

The Iowa City Crisis Intervention Center, in cooperation with the University Counseling Service and Mid-Eastern Iowa Community Health Service, will present a training workshop titled, "Suicide: the Preventable Death."

The workshop will be conducted by Mary Miller, a consulting suicidologist from San Diego, Calif. Miller has published and written numerous articles and books, including a book published in 1979 entitled Suicide After Sixty.

Miller has conducted his workshop 200 times in cities across the United States.

Miller will answer questions at the workshop, including what to do if you suspect someone you know is becoming suicidal.

For further information about the program or to register call the UI Center for Conferences at 353-5505.

Conflicts arise over fall semester start

By James Cahoy
Staff Writer

A proposal recently approved by the UI Faculty Senate to begin the UI fall semester in September may affect an appeal made by the Iowa City School Board for an earlier starting date for fall classes.

Board member Craig Gjerde said one of the reasons for the appeal, made this past Tuesday, is so Iowa City School District classes will coincide with the UI's fall schedule.

"We have a strong tradition of people within our school system being affiliated with the University of Iowa," Gjerde said. "If we don't match our schedules, it creates a lot of problems for parents who are part of the University of Iowa."

But the faculty senate's decision last week to approve a motion beginning the UI fall semester after Labor Day may halt the board's request.

"IF THE UNIVERSITY goes on the same schedule as the state requires us to be on, we will probably be able to work things out," Gjerde said.

But Gjerde said there were other reasons behind the board's decision to appeal for an early starting date.

"We're not just doing this to coincide with the university," Gjerde said. "Basically, there is an underlying feeling by some people that the state has no business setting the starting date for schools, and that school scheduling should be a matter of local control."

Iowa Commissioner for Education Robert Benton agreed with Gjerde.

"MY PERSONAL FEELING is that the decision on when to start school should be made by local boards," Benton said. "But the legislature decided to pass the earlier starting date, and the law is the law."

Gjerde believes the appeal will not be successful in any case.

"It failed last year, and would say there is a 1-in-50 chance it will be approved this year," Gjerde said. "They don't grant many appeals like this."

But board President Randall Jordison said it didn't matter whether the state approved the request or not.

"We believe that this is quite an important issue, and you feel something is important you should try for it," Jordison said. "We have taken a position and we strongly believe in that position."

An Iowa City man was arrested Sunday afternoon for assaulting a woman outside a downtown bar, according to Iowa City police reports.

Michael Harvey, 22, of 815 N. Dodge St., was charged with willful injury by Iowa City police at 4:15 p.m. Sunday at the Deadwood, 6 S. Dubuque St.

Harvey was later transported to the Johnson County Jail where he was released on his own recognizance.

Report: Several plastic bags containing white and yellow paint were thrown at Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity, 702 N. Dubuque St. Saturday evening, according to Iowa City police reports.

A resident of the fraternity reported the incident to Iowa City police at 8:10 p.m. Saturday. He said bags were thrown at the building sometime after 6 p.m.

Report: A man was arrested Saturday night for trying to break into the basement of an Iowa City residence, according to Iowa City police reports.

Timothy Blackman, 39, no address listed, was charged with fourth degree criminal mischief and trespass at 10:04 p.m. Saturday for trying to break into the residence at 526 N. Linn St.

A report to Iowa City police earlier Saturday from the same address states vagrants broke into the basement of the residence and were sleeping there.

Theft Report: Several items valued at more than $300 were stolen from an Iowa City man's residence while he was away for the Thanksgiving holiday, according to Iowa City police reports.

Rod Klump, 1817 Hollywood Blvd., reported to Iowa City police Saturday afternoon a Panasonic brand AM-FM clock radio worth $30, a Seiko brand watch valued at more than $250 and a programmable telephone worth about $50 were missing from his residence.

Theft Report: Several Christmas and graduation presents were stolen from an Iowa City man's car while it was parked outside his residence Sunday night, according to Iowa City police reports.

David Byrnes, 308 S. Gilbert St. Apt. 1137, told Iowa City police the items were taken between 10 p.m. Sunday and 11:25 a.m. Monday.

Reports state glass was broken on driver's side door of Byrnes' vehicle to take the presents. The value of the stolen presents was not available from reports.

UI breaks into Playboy party school list

It's not football, basketball or wrestling, but "partying" that has recently brought the UI national attention.

Playboy Magazine hit the newsstands this week with its ranking of the top 40 party schools in the nation and the UI finished a respectable 31st. "These kinds of surveys are so subjective that it's difficult to attach any qualitative meaning," UI Dean of Student Services Phillip Jones said. But at least one UI student was proud of the national recognition.

ranking, Iowa State University was an honorable mention selection with 16 other schools.

The UI ranking was accompanied by a quote from former Daily Iowan staff writer Kent Schuelke.

"Forget the farm boy image: We're the rockin'est, most decadent party fools in the Midwest," Schuelke's quote read. "We're radioactive and burning down our core every day." But Schuelke said Monday that "the whole thing is kind of silly."

Playboy also put Burge Residence Hall in their list of the nine "Most Notorious Make-out Spots." The magazine identified Burge as "the Party Education Center."

BUT BURGE RESIDENCE Hall Coordinator Corey Farris said Burge is no different from other dorms across the nation.

"Isn't that a scream," Farris said. "I don't think it's the 'Party Education Center.' Whoever they talk to on campus has a different perception."

Wayne Duvall, who spent several months taking surveys and compiling the information for Playboy, said the UI deserves the ranking.

"Apparently, you guys are pretty hot there," Duvall said. Duvall, an off-Broadway actor with experience in market research, said he was appointed to the job by a friend on the Playboy editorial staff.

"It was a great time," Duvall said. "The students were very receptive. I hope I get to do it again."

UI Student Senate President Joe Hansen said he enjoys the Iowa City "partying" atmosphere, but said UI students have a lot more to be proud of than the quality of their beer bashes.

"Iowa City has always been fun," he said. "Academically, I think we're better than 31, and that's more important."

Jolt fails to electrify soft drink market

By Joseph Levy
Staff Writer

Jolt Cola — the new soft drink boasting more caffeine than any other leading cola — isn't electrifying the soft drink market yet, Iowa City grocers said Monday.

"It's not really flying off the shelf," Lee McCune, manager of Eagle Discount Foods, 600 N. Dodge St., said. "It's one of those things that's just a novelty."

McCune said "mediocre" sales of the cola should improve as the company increases publicity.

"The more exposure it gets in the newspapers, the better it will sell," he said.

One Iowa City grocer said sales of the drink have put a temporary spark in his business and that he'll be stocking up on the stimulating drink in the next few weeks to meet the demand of tired UI students during final examinations week.

DAVE REAGAN, assistant manager of John's Grocery, 401 E. Market Street, plans on ordering 20 cases of Jolt for next week's anticipated rush. "I hope to sell them all," he said.

The Daily Iowan/Rod Faccio

John's has been selling the "supercola" for about six weeks, Reagan said. After an initial purchase of only a few cases, the store has increased the size of its order every week to keep up with continued demand for the product. It has sold out each week at John's, Reagan said.

"It's going to be a real seasonal thing,"

Reagan said, anticipating high sales during exam week here. "Whether it works or not, they're going to keep going for it."

John Combs, manager of Hy-Vee Food Store, 1201 N. Dodge Street, said sales of the potent punch at Hy-Vee have been nothing fantastic.

"IT'S KIND OF a novelty item," he said. "Most of them buy it just to say they've tried it. It's probably a fad."

Combs said Jolt Cola probably doesn't have a promising future on the market. "In the long run it probably won't hold up," he said.

But The Jolt Company Inc. Vice President Jim Beauchamp said nationwide sales of the cola have been excellent. "They're doing phenomenal," he said. "We're trying to keep pace."

But Reagan said the high caffeine content in the drink will probably prevent people from becoming lifetime Jolt drinkers.

"It's a fad," he said. "I really don't think people are going to drink it the rest of their lives."

Looking for a cure

Congress was out of town. But, even if the lawmakers had been around, the controversy generated by the Reagan administration's secret efforts to sell arms to Iran and divert the proceeds to the Nicaraguan Contras surely would have occupied their minds. Taking advantage of these oddly fortuitous circumstances, the administration Friday quietly exceeded the limits on strategic nuclear weapons as specified by the second strategic arms limitation treaty.

Although unratified since its signing in 1979, SALT II had been the only agreement preventing the superpowers from an unrestrained buildup of strategic nuclear weapons. By equipping the Air Force's 131st B-52 bomber with nuclear-tipped cruise missiles, the United States punched through the treaty's ceiling of 1,320 missiles.

Disregarding the objections of various military, diplomatic and legislative leaders, the administration announced six months ago that it planned to violate the treaty's limitations by refusing to dismantle an aged Poseidon submarine each time a B-52 was refitted with cruise missiles. But in the ensuing months, when decisions needed to be made on the future of the treaty, the administration had relented and stayed within the limits.

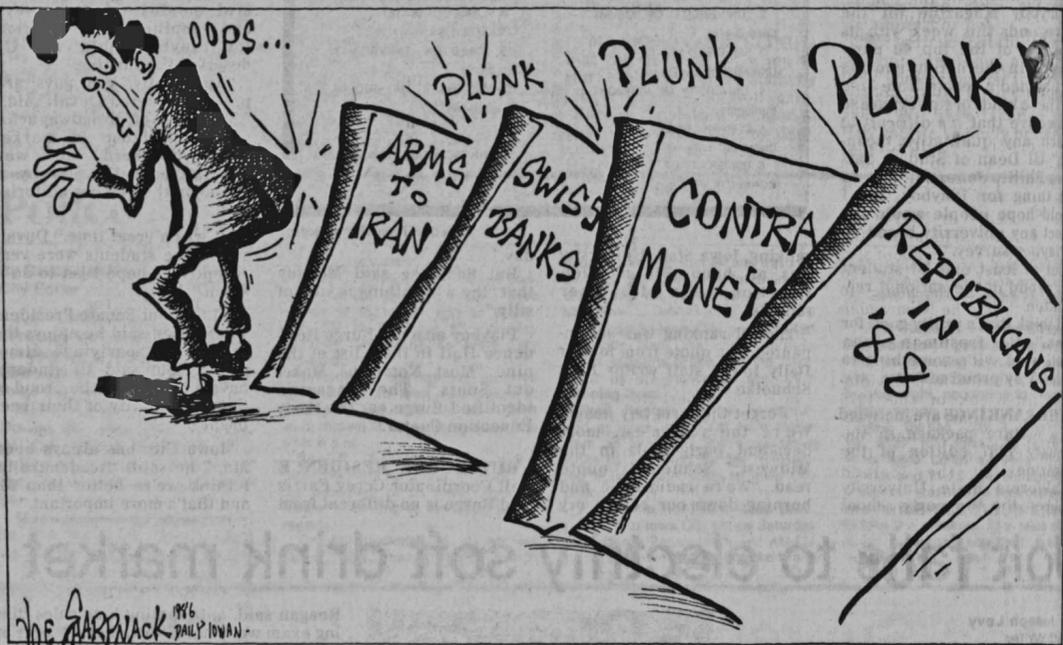

Regrettably, good fortune finally ran out and with it departed a sense of security, no matter how fragile.

In light of the disarray the administration appears to be in following the Reykjavik summit, SALT II could have continued to act as the bridge to more substantive agreements. In addition, as the various disarmament options facing the superpowers are considered — be it the complete elimination of all strategic nuclear forces, the elimination of intermediate nuclear weapons in Europe or any other possibility — continued compliance with SALT II would have preserved a positive working environment for the negotiators.

Now, as the near-agreements hammered out at Reykjavik seem to slip farther and farther away, the loss of SALT II adds to the bleak arms control outlook. Coupled with the Iran debacle, the spiraling budget deficit and a general loss of credibility, the seeming inability of President Ronald Reagan to reach a meaningful agreement on arms control threatens to cripple his administration.

If this administration is to completely recover from its recent setbacks, a vital part of the cure must be in reaching an accord to replace SALT II.

Holidays offer a time to give

By Mary Boone

The first snow has fallen, the last morsels of leftover turkey are being digested and children of all ages are thinking about the yuletide. The goodwill-to-all-mankind sermon is frequently preached this time each year. Ministers and mothers remind us to "do unto others as we would have them do unto us," and generosity runs rampant.

It would be nice if the kind sentiments could last throughout the year. That doesn't seem to be man's nature.

So, while the spirits are willing and the mood leans toward giving, keep these kind deeds in mind:

Give blood. Officials with University Hospitals Blood Donor Center remind us the need for blood doesn't come and go with semester breaks. The center often runs short of blood when students leave town en masse. Donors with all types of blood are needed and may schedule appointments by calling 356-2058.

The Crisis Center, 26 E. Market St., welcomes donations of cash, food and clothing. Clothing may be donated to Goodwill Industries and credited to the Crisis Center's account. Non-perishable food items and cash donations can be taken to the Crisis Center's office in Old Brick.

In addition to material donations, the Crisis Center needs volunteers to help distribute goods now and throughout the year. On Dec. 23 the center will be distributing food baskets to the needy in Johnson County. Volunteers are needed to help with distribution and with preparation of the baskets on Dec. 22.

The Ecumenical Consultation is sponsoring a clothing distribution on Dec. 11 and 12. The 19-church project is being steered by Trinity Episcopal members Ann Holton and Winifred Thomas. Donations of clothing are still welcome, but distribution coordinators ask that clothing be sorted and sized before donated.

The clothing distribution will be held at the First United Methodist Church, Jefferson and Dubuque streets, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. each day. Volunteers are needed to work at the distribution site, and to help set up for the event. Set-up will be Dec. 8 and 9 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; donations should be dropped off at the Methodist Church at this time.

In addition to the clothing distribution, children will have an opportunity to pick out gifts for their parents. Kids will get help selecting presents and volunteers will wrap the gifts. A variety of items are needed for this project, ranging from books and bath oils to kitchen utensils and candy.

People wishing to volunteer, or with questions about the distribution, should contact Trinity Episcopal Church at 337-3333.

The holidays are a particularly important time to do something nice without expecting anything in return. Visit shut-ins, bake cookies for your landlord, shovel a neighbor's sidewalk, put money in an expired meter to help some poor shopper avoid a ticket.

Don't get caught up in the holiday rush. Instead, rush out to make the holiday brighter for others.

Another side of NCAA victory

By Mark Gisleson

CONGRATULATIONS are due the Iowa field hockey team. The winning of an NCAA championship is an extraordinary accomplishment of a magnitude rarely seen around these parts. This is the UI's first NCAA championship for a sport other than wrestling in 17 years. More importantly, this is the university's first NCAA championship in a women's sport.

All of this serves to emphasize just why it is so terribly regrettable that there must be an asterisk attached to this most singular of achievements. The question that inevitably arises is whether or not this field hockey team could have won their national championship without the services of their ringer from South Africa.

Obviously, this is an outstanding team of dedicated athletes who deserve our thanks and appreciation for their heroic efforts. But just as obvious, their quest to be the best was not hurt by the addition of a world-class athlete, who by virtue of her white South African origins, is barred from taking part in world-class competition.

THE IDENTITY of this South African athlete is not important. She is not being discriminated against as an individual. And unfortunately, it does not seem she is being discriminated against as a white South African athlete, either.

The International Olympic Committee will not allow South Africa to compete in the Olympics as punishment for their indefensible policies of racial genocide. I am not aware of an international the NCAA — that dreaded four-letter acronym of blue-nosed, punitively-minded enforcers of morality amongst the ranks of American athletes.

HISTORICALLY, THE NCAA has always been around when necessary to ban drinkers, dopers, gamblers and semi-pros from college athletics. And historically, the NCAA has looked the other way when African-Americans, Jews and non-heterosexuals have been barred from competition; and until forced by Congress, the NCAA has traditionally been completely indifferent to sports body that still allows member nations to compete with teams from South Africa.

Even the World Boxing Association, one of two major professional organizations for a sport that makes cockfighting look civilized, has declared apartheid too disgusting for even them, and will no longer sanction bouts involving South African boxers. But then again there is always ferret to the inequities of how women's athletics have been funded in this country.

Of course, none of this is very surprising if you look at athletics as a reflection of nationalism in a society that spends more to invade Grenada than it does to house its homeless.

What is surprising is finding a South African athlete at a school where 135 students were arrested for "occupying" the dean's office during an anti-apartheid protest. At Texas A&M, The Citadel or Bob James University perhaps, but at a university that has almost totally divested itself of stock in companies that do business in South Africa?

THE TRUTH IS protest and divestiture are easy steps. What is left is not so easy. Shunning, banishment, ostracism — these are the last steps that can be taken, short of war. The world athletic community has spoken clearly: Apartheid is a disgusting, heinous crime against humanity and we will not condone any competition with its practitioners. But the NCAA doesn't object, and because they don't, the UI has managed to recruit their way to an NCAA championship.

"Scab" is an appropriate word to use at this point. Not to describe our South African ringer — she is just playing wherever she can — but to describe the UI. When one violates a boycott, one gains at the expense of those who honor it. Did Judith Davidson out-recruit all of the other teams in the nation when she landed her ringer? Or was anyone else even competing for this dishonor?

WHY, YOU WONDER, is there no outcry from our anti-apartheid committees? Certainly, had Hayden Fry recruited an Afrikaner interior lineman there would have been pickets at every home game. The only answer I can provide is one I dislike, both as a leftist and as a feminist.

The inescapable conclusion I come to is that when all of the conservative political and religious organizations on campus defaulted their leadership positions regarding South Africa, they left the "coalition" groups in the hands of the leftist extremists — student politicians with more on their agendas than just South Africa.

I am graduating this month and will not be around to see how all of this comes out, but if I were to lay some bets, I'd put my money on apathy to win. Mainly because I don't think people really care about death, injustice and racism in South Africa nearly as much as they care about NCAA trophies.

Go Hawks.

Grant's passing evokes memories

By Kurt Schroeder

THE YOUNG woman lowered her head into the cold wind as she rushed toward the theater. Half a block away she stopped. Clutching her thick book on Hollywood's Golden Age to her chest to protect it from the night's mist, she looked up at the theater's marquee: "A Conversation with Cary Grant 8:30 p.m." She hoped he would sign her book. With one hand she smoothed the wrinkles from her best coat and walked quickly to the doors of the theater.

Outside the same theater, a young man looked at a poster of the 82-year-old actor. The picture showed a face that looked decades younger. The young man felt disappointed that he would not see that face in person, for he had been told that "Mr. Grant has taken ill."

BUT THE YOUNG MAN thought less about his own disappointment than about his favorite actor's condition. As he began his long drive home, he hoped, again and again, that the illness was not serious, that the vigorous octogenarian would continue to enjoy life.

First thing the next morning, the young man turned on the television news. He heard Charles Kuralt say he was sorry to report that Grant had died of a stroke in Davenport.

The young man watched film clips from Bringing Up Baby, one of Grant's funniest movies, and from Notorious, one of his most dramatic, and thought about the hours he had spent with Grant's film image.

HE THOUGHT ABOUT that late night, years before, when, watching Grant cavort with Katharine Hepburn in Holiday, he'd discovered that those old movies had something distinct about them that was missing from today's films.

He thought about the time, a few years and many Grant movies later, when he'd realized that the actor could make any movie worth watching, an accomplishment unmatched by Clark Gable, Gary Cooper or Humphrey Bogart.

The young man thought about how hundreds of people had turned out, 20 years after Grant had retired, to see the actor on the night he died.

And the young man thought how Grant had once said, "All actors long to be loved. That's why we become actors." Grant had achieved that goal.

The State Department announced Monday it would participate in an annual meeting of NATO foreign ministers Dec. 3, making a brief stop to meet Foreign Secretary Geoffrey Howe.

The closed-door session is being held in a cloud of revelations about U.S. arms sales to the rebels fighting the Nicaraguan government.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court said it will decide whether the government went too far against drunk drivers when it ordered states to raise the drinking age or face a loss of billions of dollars of federal funds.

The court will hear the case in the spring from the state of South Dakota, which is challenging a ruling by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that the grounds it is too narrow to set the drinking age, since the states regulate liquor sales.

The case involves a 1985 law passed by Congress that directs the Transportation Department to withhold federal highway construction funds unless states raise the drinking age to 21. The law authorizes the withholding of 5 percent of the funds and 10 percent in 1987.

Shultz to attend NATO talks President working to trim '88 budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz will meet NATO foreign ministers in Brussels next week amid concern that the scandal over secret U.S. dealings with Iran will paralyze U.S. foreign policy.

George Shultz

The State Department announced Monday Shultz would participate in the semi-annual meeting of NATO foreign ministers Dec. 10-12 after making a brief stop in London to meet Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe.

The closed-door NATO session is being held under the cloud of revelations about secret U.S. arms sales to Iran and the diversion of the money to rebels fighting the Nicaraguan government.

The allies are likely also to register concern about the administration's formal violation last week of the 1979 SALT II nuclear arms agreement with Moscow and continued confusion over U.S. proposals at the Iceland superpower summit.

"THE EUROPEANS first and foremost worry about having a president who's able to function," said Robert Hunter, the Carter administration's National Security Council expert on Europe and the Middle East.

"Their greatest concern is that it (the Iran scandal) would paralyze the capacity of the administration to build on Reykjavik and move forward on arms control."

Hunter, in a telephone interview, said the allies consider it "impolite" to ask Shultz directly about the Iran scandal.

"But they will want to judge the psychology of the secretary as to whether he is upbeat and his capacity to move forward on those issues central to the Europeans," he said.

Hunter said the allies are concerned mostly now with the future of U.S.-Soviet arms control negotiations and the American abrogation of SALT II.

Shultz objected to the Iranian arms sales, authorized by President Reagan last Jan. 17, and has said his knowledge of the secret contacts with Iran was "fragmentary at best."

AFTER RUMORS of his resignation swept Washington for several weeks, Shultz authorized his spokesman to say last week he was staying on until the end of Reagan's second term in 1989.

Hunter said that declaration no doubt came as welcome news to the allies, who consider Shultz a friend in the administration.

The administration formally broke through the numerical limits last Friday on missile launchers of the SALT II agreement by deploying a B-52 bomber capable of carrying air-launched cruise missiles.

The leaders of West Germany, Belgium and France immediately criticized the move. The allies were also concerned over proposals discussed at Reykjavik by Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev that would eliminate over 10 years the strategic nuclear weapons that have been the bulwark of Europe's defense since World War II.

Shultz was scheduled to leave for London Monday. He is scheduled to meet Howe today, then fly to Brussels.

President working to trim '88 budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ronald Reagan called his senior aides together Monday in the midst of the Iran arms-Contrat aid controversy to discuss where to find at least $54 billion in spending cutbacks to trim the federal deficit to $108 billion next year.

Reagan scheduled a meeting with Vice President George Bush and senior White House aides to review the outlook for the budget he will submit early next year for fiscal 1988, which begins Oct. 1, 1987.

In advance of that meeting, to be followed in the next few days with orders for federal agencies to cut their budget requests, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan would hold the fiscal 1988 deficit to the $108 billion limit set by the Gramm-Rudman balanced-budget law.

The estimated deficit for the current fiscal year is $163 billion, compared with a Gramm-Rudman ceiling of $144 billion. Without higher taxes or reductions in projected spending, the deficit for 1988 is set to shrink only to $162 billion.

Still uncertain is whether the Pentagon will prevail in pinning down a defense request higher than the $308 billion figure discussed by budget director James Miller, which would be a 3 percent increase — after inflation — from 1987.

Pentagon officials have indicated the request should be around $318 billion and administration officials said no final decision has been made.

Push for higher drinking age faces Supreme Court review

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court said Monday it will decide whether the government went too far in the war against drunken driving when it ordered states to boost the drinking age or lose millions of dollars of highway funds.

The court will hear arguments in the spring from the state of South Dakota, which is appealing a ruling by the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on the grounds it is the state's right to set the drinking age, since the states regulate other aspects of liquor sales.

The case involves a law Congress passed in 1984 that directs the Transportation Department to withhold some federal highway construction funds unless states raise their drinking age to 21. The law authorizes the withholding of 5 percent of the funds in 1987 and 10 percent in 1988.

The law was passed as part of an effort to reduce teenage drunken driving, one of the major causes of deaths for teens. Many states lowered the legal drinking age after the national voting age was lowered to 18. Some have returned it to 21 in response to the 1984 law, but others have balked.

THE HIGHWAY money challenge was begun in 1984 by South Dakota, which allows 19- and 20-year-olds to drink low alcohol beer. State officials said it was unconstitutional to threaten the highway funds because the 21st Amendment, which repealed prohibition, gave states, not the federal government, the right to set drinking ages. Federal courts, however, disagreed.

South Dakota was supported in its efforts to receive high court review by Colorado, Hawaii, Louisiana, Montana, Ohio, South Carolina, Vermont and Wyoming.

Arguing against review, federal lawyers said the national government has a substantial interest in promoting "safety on the nation's highways and the health of the nation's teenage youth."

In other actions as it returned from a two-week recess, the high court:

• Turned down an appeal from jockeys Willie Shoemaker and Angel Cordero, who challenged New Jersey Racing Commission rules for mandatory random drug testing of jockeys, race officials and other race track workers.

• Stepped into a 13-year-old dispute involving charges of racial discrimination at the Lukens Steel Co. plant in Coatesville, Pa. One of the issues in the case is whether a union can be held liable for failing to take steps to stop discrimination by an employer.

• In a victory for Congress, let stand a ruling that congressional employees involved in the legislative process cannot challenge their dismissals in court.

• Rejected the appeal of Kwan-Fai Mak, convicted of the 1983 killings of 13 people at a gambling club in Seattle's Chinatown district in one of the worst mass murders in U.S. history.

Cuban congress focuses on economy

HAVANA, Cuba — Delegates to the Cuban Communist Party's third congress debated the nation's declining economy Monday after hearing party leader Fidel Castro say workers must produce more to raise living standards.

In opening debate at the congress, Castro said without massive aid from the Soviet Union — estimated by Western sources at more than $6 billion annually in subsidies, military and civilian assistance — the economy would collapse.

More than 85 percent of Cuba's trade is with the Soviet bloc, and its economy is closely linked to the communist common market.

Most of the debate concerned the dismal state of the economy. Castro told delegates that communism had brought social and educational benefits and ensured social welfare, but he said Cuba's system of work and salaries was in "a state of chaos and real anarchy."

FBI announces Citadel investigation

CHARLESTON, S.C. — The FBI announced Monday it has started an investigation into racial harassment at The Citadel military college because of possible civil rights violations.

Bill Nettles, the head of the FBI's bureau in Charleston, said the probe was requested by the Department of Justice and results of the preliminary investigation are expected within two weeks.

The probe focuses on an Oct. 23 incident in which five white cadets burst into the room of former black Cadet Kevin Nesmith, shouted racial insults and burned a paper cross. The whites were dressed in Ku Klux Klan-type attire.

Nesmith, 17, resigned from The Citadel shortly after the incident.

As punishment, the five white cadets were ordered to march 195 walking hours, restricted to campus while school is in session and lowered in rank.

Survey shows wish for apartheid's end

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Three out of four urban blacks would rather have a multi-racial government than an all-black power structure, an independent survey said Monday.

The poll also showed less than half the nation's black male workers would willingly sacrifice their jobs to support international economic sanctions aimed at forcing the white government to end apartheid.

"Seventy-four percent of men and women said they would prefer a form of government in which whites, Indians, coloreds (mixed-race) and blacks had a voice, compared with 14 percent opting for an all-black government based on one-man, one-vote," the survey read.

Research Surveys Omnichek, which conducted the poll, said 54 percent of the 1,300 blacks questioned refused to respond, despite a promise of confidentiality, because they feared reprisals from militants.

Officials turn away striking paramedics

PITTSBURGH — Striking paramedics tried to return to work Monday but were turned away by city officials who demanded a no-strike guarantee as negotiators worked to reach a compromise that would end the four-day walk-out.

The paramedics went on strike Friday, saying they wanted a pay raise that would give them parity with firefighters and police.

On orders from their union, most of the 180 paramedics tried to report to their jobs Monday, but city officials turned them away pending a guarantee they wouldn't walk out again while contract talks continued.

Ron Stewart, medical director of the city's emergency medical services, said he would be "overjoyed" at the prospect of an end to the strike.

"It would mean we could get on with rebuilding, doing what we do every day, taking care of sick people," he said.

Christmas tree put on Capitol grounds

WASHINGTON — A Shasta red fir Christmas tree from the Klamath National Forest in northern California was erected on the Capitol grounds Monday and will be decorated with ornaments made by schoolchildren.

The 59-foot tree, shipped by rail from the forest near the Oregon border, was buried four feet in the ground to give it stability, said Paul Pincus, the Capitol's landscape architect.

Workers will begin decorating the tree today, Pincus said.

The schoolchildren were told to make their ornaments weatherproof and many are ceramic or Styrofoam.

Nixon files, papers opened to public

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first 1.5 million pages of Richard Nixon's presidential files were opened to the public Monday — offering some insights but no major revelations about the nation's most controversial presidency.

The National Archives, which up to now had been blocked by lawsuits in its attempts to make the papers public, has more than 40 million pages of Nixon files. The first batch covered subjects ranging from agriculture to utilities and included thousands of letters of support sent to Nixon during the Watergate scandal that finally drove him from office in 1974.

Many of the most controversial papers — memos from top aides on Watergate and the Vietnam War — were not among those released. The Archives would like to make those public next year if lawsuits by Nixon aides can be cleared up.

INCLUDED IN THE documents released Monday were some famous Nixon letters, including those written to Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., and federal Judge John J. Sirica refusing subpoenas of White House tapes pertaining to Watergate.

"I cannot and will not consent to giving any investigatory body private presidential papers," Nixon told Ervin, head of the Senate Watergate Committee, in invoking executive privilege. The committee had subpoenaed several tapes, including five of meetings between Nixon and his White House counsel, John Dean.

While many of the letters were already part of history, there were others less well known, including a "Dear Ted" letter to Vice President Spiro Agnew.

The 1971 letter — written well before Watergate — is apparently in response to a request that Agnew testify before Congress. "I feel very strongly that as vice president you should never appear before a committee of the Congress," Nixon wrote.

AMONG THOSE WHO lent support to Nixon during the Watergate scandal were Cardinal Terence Cooke of New York, painter Andrew Wyeth, Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes, actress Zsa Zsa Gabor and Christopher Bond, former Republican governor of Missouri who was elected to the Senate last month.

"Dear Sir, nobody has lost faith," actor John Wayne said in a telegram to Nixon. In return was a letter from the president: "Dear Duke, it was good to receive your words of encouragement at this time."

Thai officials threaten to close refugee camp

KHAO I DANG, Thailand (UPI) — The last United Nations holding center for Cambodian refugees — a symbol of protection and hope for 24,000 people — is on the verge of closing.

Thai officials, exasperated with the reluctance of foreign countries to resettle most Khao i Dang occupants, are threatening to shut down the camp by Jan. 1.

The refugees would be sent to the Thai-Cambodian border camps, where the Thai government classifies Cambodians as "illegal immigrants," making them ineligible for U.N. protection or resettlement abroad.

Volunteer refugee relief agencies, major resettlement countries and the United Nations High Commission for Refugees have pressed for a reversal or special arrangements for Khao i Dang residents.

A FINAL DECISION is expected this month.

"We would like to remain responsible for these people for their protection and not see their status changed. We remain committed to helping look for a solution," Gerald Walzer, UNHCR chief representative in Thailand, said.

Thailand, a non-signatory to U.N. agreements on refugee status, has been a reluctant host to Cambodians since 1979 when they started fleeing Vietnamese occupation troops.

In June 1979, Thailand triggered an international outcry when it pushed more than 40,000 back into Cambodia through a dangerous border region.

Khao i Dang was the site for the last scene of The Killing Fields, a movie depicting Cambodia's fall to the murderous, communist Khmer Rouge in 1975.

AMONG THE 24,000 left in the camp are 16,700 people still eligible for resettlement. They include 14,000 of the original arrivals in 1979.

"There is an international obligation to resettle these people and to Thailand to take them off their hands," Mark Gorman, chairman of the 41 refugee agencies in Thailand, said.

From 1975 to November 1986, 209,646 Cambodians were resettled through Thailand.

Khao i Dang represents not only a way out, but a sanctuary against both crime and political coercion.

"To those at the border camps, I am a traitor because I did not join the guerrillas to fight the Vietnamese. I could be killed in a few days there," a 41-year-old former teacher, who requested anonymity, said.

"The purpose of the choir is to get them to grow up and to perform for the community," Richards said. La Fosse originated the idea last year and brought Richards, who has conducted a similar boys' choir at John's Abbey in Centerville, to the project.

"I came here to go to school for choral conducting on a sabbatical leave from St. John's," Richards said. "I brought the idea up to us started organizing a choir this year."

Richards said there are advantages to having a boys' choir.

"THERE IS nothing more different between sound of well-trained voices and well-trained voices, but I asked the St. John's choir once we would think about having in it. Many boys said quit," Richards said.

One boy, Erik Span, said he would definitely want girls in the choir.

Iowa City tunes in to new community boys' choir E.T.

By Jill Lauritzen
Staff Writer

NOT ONLY is there a girls' choir in town, but now there is the recently created Boys' Choir of Iowa City.

The choir was started by UI graduate students Maria Amelia Martins La Fosse and Paul Richards this past October as a musical avenue for boy singers.

"The purpose of the choir is to get them to grow musically and to perform for the community," Richards said.

La Fosse originated the idea last year and brought it up to Richards, who has conducted a similar boys' choir at St. John's Abbey in central Minnesota.

"I came here to graduate school for choral conducting on a sabbatical leave from St. John's," Richards said. "Maria brought the idea up to me and we started organizing it (the choir) this year."

Richards said there are many advantages to having an all-boy choir.

"THERE IS nothing significantly different between the sound of well-trained girls' voices and well-trained boys' voices, but I asked the boys at St. John's choir once what they would think about having girls in it. Many boys said they'd quit," Richards said.

One boy, Erik Spangler, 10, said he would definitely not want girls in the choir.

"I don't think they sound as good," he said with a smile.

Ryan Cooper, 12, said he wouldn't mind having girls sing with them, to have a range of voices, but prefers having all boys. "Not many boys like to sing, so there would be too many girls," Cooper said. "This way (with all boys) the conductor can spend more time working with each of us separately. It gives us more of a chance to sing."

"I THINK THERE'S a certain camaraderie about an all-boys choir and a certain spirit," Richards said. "Plus I think an audience finds it real charming to see these boys singing up there."

La Fosse said after meetings with faculty and writing letters to parents, auditions were held in October for boys from ages eight to 14.

Cooper said he heard of the choir through his music teacher at Lemme Elementary School.

"I'm really interested in music, and I like to sing, so I wanted to find out what this was like. I thought it would be fun," Cooper said. "I like it a lot." In the audition the boys read short stories, clapped rhythms and sang songs.

"ALL THE BOYS who auditioned were accepted," La Fosse said. "The conductor couldn't believe how good they were."

The 13-member choir practices every Monday from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in facilities of the UI School of Music has provided.

"It's going pretty well," Richards said. "It's a slow process. Teaching them correct singing takes a long time and practicing once a week is difficult."

In addition to singing, the boys are learning from La Fosse to play the recorder.

Richards and La Fosse said the boys are very enthusiastic about the choir.

"There's no pressure for them to stay and they keep coming back," Richards said.

CURRENTLY, THE CHOIR is learning music for a Christmas concert they will give on Dec. 15 in Harper Hall at 7 p.m.

"This first one (concert) is primarily for their parents and families, but anyone can come. It's free," Richards said.

Both La Fosse and Richards see a future for the choir.

"I would like to see them sing at the Community Center someday," La Fosse said. "I think they have a lot of good qualities musically. I hope the boys continue in the choir for many years to come."

"If the parents and the city take an interest, then there's a definite future for this choir," Richards said.

La Fosse said they could always use more boys and anyone interested should call her at 354-9010.

Lowly Colts fire Dowhower, hire Meyer

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The Indianapolis Colts, the NFL's only winless team, Monday fired Coach Rod Dowhower and replaced him with Ron Meyer.

"It's been kind of a whirlwind affair the last day and a half," Meyer said at a news conference. "It's been a very traumatic experience for everyone in the Colts organization. I have great empathy for Coach Dowhower. I look on this as a tremendous opportunity."

Meyer, former coach of the New England Patriots, will attempt to revitalize a club with an 0-13 record. If the Colts lose to Atlanta next week, they will tie an NFL record for most consecutive losses during a season.

Meyer said he talked with Colts' owner Robert Irsay Saturday about the position and conferred with him for several hours following the Colts' 17-3 loss to San Diego Sunday. Meyer said he and Irsay agreed to a "long-term commitment" at about 2 a.m. Monday.

NFL great Layne dies of cardiac arrest

LUBBOCK, Texas (UPI) — Bobby Layne, the combative Hall of Fame quarterback and master of the two-minute drill, died Monday of cardiac arrest, hospital officials said. He was 59.

"He died of cardiac arrest at 1:05 p.m.," Methodist Hospital spokesman Doug Hodel said.

Layne suffered from chronic liver problems and was hospitalized last month in Pontiac, Mich., for internal bleeding. "My only request," Layne once said, "is that I draw my last dollar and my last breath at precisely the same instant."

Layne, a football legend at Texas, went on to star with the Detroit Lions and the Pittsburgh Steelers in the NFL. He led the Lions to NFL titles in 1952 and 1953 and the championship game in 1954.

Knicks boot Brown after third bad start

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hubie Brown, mired in his third losing season and unable to rally a team decimated by injury, Monday was fired as coach of the New York Knicks.

Assistant Coach Bob Hill was named Brown's replacement by Knicks' Vice President and General Manager Scotty Stirling. Terms of the contract were not released.

The Knicks finished with the worst record in the NBA last year (23-59), one victory less than the previous year. New York has not reached the playoffs since the 1983-84 season and is 4-12 this year, the league's third worst record.

Brown, in his fifth year as the Knicks' coach, expected a stronger club this season with Ewing, the 1985 No. 1 draft choice entering his second season, and 7-foot-1 Bill Cartwright returning from a broken foot.

Verbs give sports pages flair

The Daily Iowan/Jeffrey Sedam

Scott Reifert

"Winning isn't everything. It's the only thing," Vince Lombardi, the great coach of the Green Bay Packers, said. He may be right, but writing about winning is not nearly so simple.

A glance through the college football scores in Sunday's sports page shows that a team can't just win anymore. They have to "pound" or "mutilate." If sports provides a reflection of the nation, then quick, somebody turn out the lights because the verbs being used in our sports pages are downright active.

Each Saturday hundreds of games are played across the nation, and each Saturday night hundreds of sportswriters sit down at their typewriters (or computer terminals as the case may be) and describe the day's games.

THE WORD "WIN" is so easy to use, and it's so common. This time the writer delves into his thesaurus and decides it's time to come up with a real winner — a better word for win.

And there seems to be a noticeable trend here, if indeed only by accident, or perhaps by some grand plot concocted by the typewriter hacks of America. The higher the score, the more creative license the writer is allowed. As the score goes up, the synonyms get better and bet-

"pounded the tar out of" — a phrase especially useful when beating North Carolina.

Then there's the "win" verbs that sound like they'd be better applied to a nuclear winter. There's "routed," "scorched," "coasted," "pasted," "buried," "smothered," "took apart," "rolled over," "blasted," "pummeled," "walloped" or "sailed past" — which is also useful when reporting on the annual yachting championship at the club.

What a great set of words. Anyone who says newspapers are dull has had their mind put on automatic pilot by hours in front of the television. These words are more exciting than a rerun of "Batman."

BUT YOU CAN'T overlook the general everyday words for win. There's "victory," "topped," "defeated" (that old die-hard) and "beat" as in

"like a rug," or "like a dog."

When special circumstances arise, anything becomes possible. For shutouts there is "stifled" and "blanked." For those unexpected victories there is "upset" and "shocked." Then there is "edged" for that close one, "rallied," "come-from-behind," and that long-time favorite "fell victim to," which is useful for describing all horror movies or Iowa State games (they're interchangeable).

If it's wet out a team can "slosh" to victory.

Even the typical football win is exciting thanks to some active verbs.

The winners "knocked," "stunned," "pinned" and "boosted" themselves past the losers. They "ransacked" (for those pillage and conquer kind of days), "whipped," "bullied," and "buled," "lifted themselves over," "prevailed," "crushed," "romped," "ignited," (useful when playing the Sycamores) and "overwhelmed."

So the next time you have a Sunday afternoon to waste, sit down and read the sports page. It's amazing all the different ways there are to say "win." Remember that the next time your team "carves out a rugged victory" on Thanksgiving Day.

Scott Reifert is a DI Staff Writer

Ice Hawk fans can follow club to Loras match

By Marc Bona
Staff Writer

The Ice Hawks' Black squad will sponsor a fan bus for its upcoming game against defending MCHA champions Loras College Friday, Dec. 5 in Waterloo.

The bus will leave the Union at 6:30 p.m. Tickets, which cost $10, include transportation to and from Waterloo, admission to the game and beverages.

Sportsclubs

The game will be somewhat of a revenge match for Loras, who lost 9-0 in a previous game this year to the Ice Hawks.

"It's always fun when we play each other," club member Billy Vigdor said. "It's a good rivalry."

Those needing more information should contact Vigdor at 353-5628, Mike Pugliese at 354-0323 or F.J. Frazier at 338-6484.

IN A MAKE-UP GAME Nov. 19, the Gold squad settled for a 4-4 tie with Grinnell. The game moved the Gold squad's record to 1-3-2.

Iowa led 4-2 going into the second period, but Grinnell scored twice to tie the score.

Iowa's goals were scored by Bill Saehlor, who scored a hat trick, and Brad Hatley. Saehlor scored when Vigdor passed to Rob Silverman, who sliced the puck up to Saehlor. Tim Stansfield received an assist when his pass to Saehlor found its way into the net.

Saehlor's other goal was unassisted. Hatley's goal came on a pass from Saehlor.

The DI Sportsclub column appears every Tuesday. To get information printed in this column contact Marc Bona at 353-6210 before 2 p.m. on Monday.

Hawkeyes

"How could you ask anything of Kent Hill that he didn't give you today (Saturday). He's a kid that has hardly played," Davis said. "Eddie (Horton) was struggling. Kent came in and did a very nice job."

HILL'S NOT THE only one. B.J. Armstrong filled in at starting point guard for an injured Michael Reeves, who won the job in the first two weeks of practice, by scoring a career high 16 points versus Alaska-Anchorage.

Against North Carolina State he scored 26 to set a new career mark, which included two free throws with one second remaining to tie the score and send the game into overtime.

Kevin Gamble hit some big shots. Brad Lohaus grabbed some key rebounds. The list goes on. Iowa now has 10 or 11 people who can step in, score, play defense and lead the Hawkeyes.

Iowa fans are not used to that, at least not recently. Last year it was Marble here, Marble there, Marble everywhere. Before that it was the Hawkeyes couldn't get the ball inside to Greg Stokes, it usually meant a long afternoon.

One of the only problems for the Hawkeyes thus far is that sometimes no one really wants to take charge as was evident after 26 turnovers against the Seawolves. That, though, isn't all bad.

"They're so unselfish, unselfish as my young team I've seen," Davis said. "I'm pleased with that part."

In any event the 1986-87 Hawkeyes will play hard, exciting basketball. Isn't that all you can ask from a college basketball team?

IOWA ODDITIES

• Alaska-Anchorage's Jesse Jackson, who tied an Alaska Shootout tournament record by scoring 37 points against the Hawkeyes, has an activity other than basketball which takes up his time — he's a bellboy at the Anchorage Sheraton, the hotel where the Hawkeyes stayed while in Alaska.

• The United Airlines flight attendant attempted to wish the Iowa basketball team luck when it arrived in Anchorage at 4:30 p.m. last Wednesday. It didn't work. The attendant said, "Welcome to Anchorage, and good luck to the Iowa ... Buckeye basketball team."

Of course it was the Hawkeyes as she later found out and announced. Her reason for messing up, "I know the Buckeyes are a team. Aren't they? I've heard of them."

• Iowa Athletic Director Bump Elliott remained his usual calm, cool and collected self once again even though an Anchorage Sheraton emergency alarm woke him up at 2:30 a.m. on Thanksgiving. Elliott rushed down the stairs with his checkered slacks, hat and coat — looking like he was ready to go out for the evening or at least go golfing.

This reporter managed a coat that was unzipped, a T-shirt that was tucked out of his pants, etc. I couldn't get my shoes on until I was already outside the building. At least I made it. The majority of the members of the Iowa team didn't answer the alarm which brought nearly all of the hotel guests out in the two degree weather.

The cause of our rude Thanksgiving awakening was a faulty fire alarm on the second floor.

Iowa's Gable concerned about Nittany Lions

By Laura Palmer
Staff Writer

Iowa wrestling Coach Dan Gable isn't too optimistic about his defending national champion Hawkeyes taking on second ranked Penn State Wednesday night in University Park, Pa.

According to Gable, the Nittany Lions have the advantage over his young team, but Penn State Coach Rich Lorenzo disagrees.

"We have to have 10 guys give 100-plus percent effort," Lorenzo said. "I don't see us favored or them favored. It's going to be a war. There will be two teams which have 10 quality kids, and we have to get the most out of 10 guys."

Wrestling

Each team saw tournament action last weekend, but the Nittany Lions fared better than the Hawkeyes. Penn State won the Mat Town tournament in Lock Haven, Pa., after sending eight wrestlers into the finals. Iowa traveled to Madison, Wis., to wrestle in the Northern Open and only sent four into the finals and came out with two winners.

"THE KIDS ARE GOING to have to wrestle up to their ability and win. I'm a little disappointed at the Northern Open. We lost a lot of close matches. This meet is a step up," Gable said.

According to 167-pound Royce Alger, his match-up with Greg Elinsky could be pivotal for a Hawkeye victory. The two are 1-1-1 against each other. Elinsky is currently ranked No. 1 at 158 by Amateur Wrestling News.

"I'm skeptical how the team will do. We only have four all-Americans wrestling. It's going to be good," Alger said.

HAWKEYE RICO Chiapparelli (177-pounder) is suffering from a rib injury and is questionable for the trip. Gable did not name a replacement. Penn State's Dan Mayo will wrestle at 177.

Penn State's heavyweight John Place is also on the injury list with a pulled hamstring, but according to Lorenzo, Place should be in the line-up. If Place is unable to compete, Greg Haladay will wrestle Iowa's Brooks Simpson.

Iowa will be taking two wrestlers at 126 and 134. At the lower weight, Steve Knight and John Regan will make the trip. Penn State's Ken Chertow will wrestle at 126. At 134, Iowa will take Bubba Strauss and C.T. Campbell, and one of them will wrestle senior Tim Flynn.

AT 118 POUNDS, Iowa's Steve Martin will wrestle Jim Martin. Greg Randall will battle Joe Hodge at 142. At 150 pounds, Jim Heffernan will wrestle Glenn Koser. Joe Heffernan and Duane Peoples will wrestle at 158. At 190, Charlie Sherertz will wrestle Andy Voit.

The Penn State match-up can be heard on KCJJ radio beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Thursday night Iowa will travel to Bethlehem, Pa., to battle Lehigh in a dual that isn't concerning Gable right now. Penn State is the key match-up.

"We'll see how the team reacts in a situation of adversity on the road," Gable said.

The Hawkeyes will have a day rest before wrestling Ohio State and Cleveland State on Saturday and Sunday, respectively.

Hawks present different character

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — The Hawkeyes may not be fine tuned in Coach Tom Davis' eyes, but they do something Iowa basketball teams have not done for awhile — they fight hard and work together.

These two things should be taken for granted but are not always visible in big time collegiate sports.

The Hawkeyes, in their 90-89 overtime comeback win over North Carolina State Saturday, made team spirit and dedication evident once again. The classic Great Alaska Shootout victory for the Hawkeyes was reminiscent of how Iowa played at the 1980 NCAA tournament.

You remember, the Iowa team that didn't have as much talent as many of the squads it defeated on its way to the Final Four. Memories of the Hawkeyes' 81-80 victory over Georgetown that year are what come to mind.

SATURDAY AT Sullivan Arena only four minutes and 50 seconds separated Iowa from what appeared to be a pretty sound defeat handed down by the Wolfpack. The Hawkeyes were down by "only" 14 points at 78-64. It wasn't enough.

"It's kind of hard to explain," Iowa guard Roy Marble said of the Hawkeye's team unity. "No one is a loser on our team. All of us came from winning programs out of high school. We're not used to losing. If we lose, I figure it's because they're a better team, I guess. We really want to win and play hard, and that's what happened (Saturday)."

A clear example of an individual playing above his head, and the rim for that matter, was reserve forward Kent Hill. Hill against North Carolina State suddenly found himself plenty of action — 22 minutes to be exact.

LAST SEASON HILL sat on the pines for nearly half of the Hawkeyes' 32 games. When he was called upon by Davis to fill in for Ed Horton, he came through for the Hawkeyes.

Hill scored seven points and cleared away two rebounds — one of which was crucial to Iowa's comeback win.

With a little over two minutes remaining and North Carolina State leading 80-76, Iowa came down the court hoping to cut the Wolfpack's lead to two.

A Hawkeye shot from outside missed its mark, but Hill out-muscled 6-foot-10 North Carolina State star Charles Shackelford for the rebound and then put it in off the glass to keep the Hawkeyes in the Mets' Knight wins comeback honor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ray Knight of the New York Mets, who began the season on the trading block and ended it on a pedestal, Monday was overwhelmingly named the National League's Comeback Player of the Year by United Press International.

The 33-year-old third baseman bounced back from a disastrous 1985 campaign in which he hit only .218 to bat .298 and play a pivotal role in the Mets' spectacular season. Knight was named the Most Valuable Player in the World Series as the Mets defeated the Boston Red Sox in seven games.

Knight topped San Francisco pitcher Mike Krukow in a poll of 24 UPI baseball correspondents. Krukow received two votes and teammate Candy Maldonado one.

KNIGHT, WHO CAME to the Mets from the Houston Astros in August 1984, was the subject of trade rumors before the season. The Mets wanted to give the third base job to Howard Johnson. But Knight, coming off shoulder and elbow operations and a poor 1985 season, won the job.

"Ray knew that something was up in spring training and that he would have to have a good spring," New York third base Coach Bud Harrelson said. "He had a good start, and I think when you have done it in the past you can do it again."

Knight was superb in the postseason. After being benched for Game 2 because of poor hitting, he came back to hit .391 for the Series.

Giants roar back for 21-17 triumph

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Phil Simms threw for two touchdowns and Ottis Anderson plunged over for another Monday night to spark a 21-point third quarter and help the New York Giants clinch a playoff berth with a 21-17 victory over the San Francisco 49ers.

The victory improved New York's record to 11-2 and gave the Giants at least a wild-card playoff berth. It also set up a showdown with Washington, also 11-2, next week for the NFC East lead. San Francisco fell to 7-5-1.

The Giants, who trailed 17-0 at the half, scored touchdowns on their first three possessions of the third quarter to pull ahead 21-17.

On New York's first possession of the second half, Simms hit Mark Bavaro with a 23-yard pass to the San Francisco 18. Halfback Joe Morris then gained one more yard before Simms found him all alone down the middle for a 17-yard touchdown pass on the next play.

ON THE GIANTS' next possession, Simms found Stacy Robinson streaking down the sideline for a 34-yard touchdown pass. The drive was highlighted by an 11-yard

Simms-to-Bavaro pass and a 17-yard run by Morris.

The Giants moved down field again when Simms fired a 49-yard bomb to Robinson, bringing the ball to the one-foot line. Anderson plunged over for the score with 3:41 remaining in the quarter.

The 49ers mounted a scoring drive late in the fourth quarter when Joe Montana hit

Jerry Rice with an 11-yard pass and followed that by hitting tight end Russ Francis with passes of 12 and nine yards to move the ball to the New York 35.

Then on fourth-and-one at the 25, Montana snuck over for the first down. However, on fourth down from the 20, linebacker Lawrence Taylor blitzed and forced Montana to throw incomplete.

Hawkeyes look to jump back with road game in Nebraska

By Mike Trilk
Staff Writer

The Iowa women's basketball team has no time to feel sorry for itself after losing to Tennessee in the finals of the Amana-Hawkeye Classic on Sunday.

The Hawkeyes open their road schedule tonight in a contest with Big Eight foe Nebraska.

"We're not going to hang our heads after a loss like that," Iowa Coach Vivian Stringer said. "It was only game two. We have to believe that we have what it takes to win. Once we do that we'll start winning ball games. We just want to keep getting better day by day."

The Cornhuskers, who are 2-0 so far this season, are in a rebuilding year under first-year Coach Angela Beck. Last year the Huskers finished 11-17 and seventh in the Big Eight, but Beck still has hopes for the Nebraska program.

"WE'RE IN A rebuilding stage," Beck said. "Most people have us picked to finish seventh again this year. This really will be a great learning experience for us to play Iowa here."

Nebraska is in a similar situation to that of Iowa. The Cornhuskers want to become a championship caliber team. The difference is that Nebraska has a long road to travel while Iowa is currently rated No. 8 in the nation.

Vivian Stringer

Women's Basketball

"Coach Stringer says that I'm just like she is only younger," Beck said. "This is a great opportunity for us playing Iowa. We'll be able to learn from our mistakes. I really think that a game like this is to our advantage."

Beck praised the Hawkeye depth. No fewer than 10 Hawkeyes figured into Stringer's game plan in the first two games of the year.

"IF I HAD SOME OF the players that she has, I could turn this program around this year," Beck added. "Iowa just has great talent. That's the biggest problem we'll have with Iowa. Their talent is 10 players deeper than ours. They play hard nosed basketball."

Despite the fact that the Iowa program is at a higher level than Nebraska, the Cornhuskers aren't shying away from the Iowa contest.

"If we stand a chance, we are going to have to take away their rhythm, keep them out of sync," Beck added. "We're not afraid to play them. This is a great challenge for our ball club, and we're excited. But they do have more talent than we do, and if Iowa should lose, it will most likely be a case of them beating themselves."

Beck also feels that the Hawkeyes could use Sunday's game to be prepared for Tuesday's game.

"We've had more time to prepare, but one of two things is going to happen," Beck said. "They could be down or they could really get their crap together and pound the loss out on us. It's a matter of how much Iowa wants to win."

Game time is set for 7:30 p.m. at the Devaney Sports Center in Lincoln, Neb. The Hawkeyes will travel to Drake Thursday before returning home for Iowa State next week.

Weinberger ready

PARIS (UPI) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger arrived in Europe with his aides and allies to answer questions about arms-Contrat aid scandal. France worried more potential U.S. nuclear reductions.

There was no immediate comment from Weinberger. President Ronald Reagan announced appointment of Pentagon chief's deputy, Frank Carlucci, to national security adviser to replace Vice Adm. John D. Dingell, who resigned.

Weinberger, in France for the first leg of an eight-day trip to foreign capitals, said he came to answer questions about Iran affair. He is cabinet officer to cabinet since the corruption.

President names security adviser

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Ronald Reagan, battling an erosion of public confidence, tapped former CIA and Pentagon No. 2 man Frank Carlucci as his new national security adviser Tuesday and vowed to correct abuses uncovered in the Iran arms-Contra aid scandal.

Confronting the deepest crisis of his presidency, Reagan pledged in a televised address from the Oval Office "to get to the bottom of this matter" and urged patience as the facts are bared for Congress and a skeptical public.

"If the investigative processes now set in motion are given an opportunity to work, all the facts concerning Iran and the transfer of funds to assist the anti-Sandinista forces will shortly be made public," Reagan said.

"Then, the American people — you — will be the final arbiters of this controversy," he said. "You will have all the facts and will be able to judge for yourselves."

REAGAN TOOK TO the airwaves for the fourth time in three weeks to combat a storm of criticism battering his administration over secret arms sales to Iran and the diversion of skimmed profits to the Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

In addition to naming Carlucci, Reagan also announced that Attorney General Edwin Meese would seek the appointment of a special prosecutor to take over the investigation.

The address to the nation did little to resolve doubts about the fate of White House chief of staff Donald Regan, who increasingly has been a lightning rod for criticism — inside and outside the White House — for 22 months.

Ronald Reagan

Rep. Richard Cheney, R-Wyo., who served as chief of staff to former President Gerald Ford, said Reagan alone must decide "whether or not Don can do the job that needs to be done" as the administration heads into the new year and a new Congress.

CONGRESSIONAL leaders applauded the commitment to cooperation and candor as Meese moved with presidential approval to turn over a Justice Department criminal investigation to a Watergate-type special prosecutor.

Reagan said he "immediately urged" Meese to take the action after being told a preliminary probe had "turned up reasonable grounds" to warrant the independent criminal investigation, which will proceed parallel inquiries by Congress and a top-to-bottom review of National Security Council operations by a special presidential board headed by former Sen. John Tower, R-Texas.

Reagan pledged to cooperate in all three investigations, insisting "no area" of the NSC staff "will be immune" from scrutiny and asking Congress to pursue its interests "without disrupting the orderly conduct of a vital part of government" by finding a way to consolidate its investigations.

"WITH THE appointment of an independent counsel, we will have in place a dual system for assuring a thorough review of all aspects of this matter," Reagan said. "If illegal acts were undertaken, those who did so will be brought to justice. If actions in implementing my policy were undertaken without my authorization, knowledge or concurrence, this will be exposed and appropriate corrective steps implemented."

Carlucci, 56, the recent chairman and chief executive officer of the defunct Sears World Trade Inc., had the backing of CIA Director William Casey — both have favored covert operations in the past — and was praised by Reagan for a "depth of experience in foreign affairs, defense and intelligence matters that uniquely qualify him to serve as my national security adviser."

"The American people will be well served by his tenure," Reagan said.

Carlucci, a foreign service officer since 1956, held posts in Africa and Brazil before joining the Nixon administration, where he held senior positions in the Office of Economic Opportunity, Office of Management and Budget and Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Weinberger goes to Europe ready to discuss Iran crisis

PARIS (UPI) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger arrived in Europe Tuesday with his aides anticipating allied concern over the Iran arms-Contra aid scandal, but France worried more about potential U.S. nuclear arms reductions.

There was no immediate comment from Weinberger about President Ronald Reagan's announced appointment of the Pentagon chief's former deputy, Frank Carlucci, as national security adviser to replace Vice Adm. John Poindexter, who resigned over the affair.

Weinberger, in France for two days on the first leg of an eight-day trip to four countries, said he came prepared to answer questions about the Iran affair. He is the first cabinet officer to travel abroad since the controversy erupted.

Caspar Weinberger

"France is concerned that the United States may be weakened by the Iran episode," a U.S. Embassy official said. "There is interest in a strong U.S. president. They look at it (the Iran affair) with great regret."

THE EUROPEAN ALLIES, he said, "will want to know what the facts are" in the convoluted dealings with Iran and the diversion of arms sales money to Nicaraguan Contra rebels because "the thing they will be concerned about is whether a prolonged crisis will weaken the president."

Weinberger discussed the Iran arms sale with Prime Minister Jacques Chirac during a meeting today, a Chirac aide said.

Chirac said Sunday that Iran had asked France to sell it arms but that Paris had refused. France has been a major arms supplier to Iraq, which has been at war with Iran for more than six years.

Yearlong negotiations lead to approval of pool facility

By James Cahoy
Staff Writer

The Iowa City School Board and the Coralville City Council gave final approval to a $1.8 million joint pool facility Tuesday night, after more than one year of negotiations.

The agreement provides for the development, ownership, leasing, management and operation of the facility by the Coralville City Council and the Iowa City School Board.

Iowa City School Board President Randall Jordison said he was "very happy" about the approval of the facility, which will be built at Northwest Junior High, 1507 8th St., Coralville.

"It's been a lot of work," Jordison said. "But overall I think everything went smoothly. This is going to be a tremendous facility for Iowa City."

Roland Wehner, a member of the architectural firm of Wehner, Pattschull and Piffner, 201 Dey Building, which handled the bids for the project, agreed with Jordison's assessment of the project.

"IT'S NICE TO have two governmental bodies who can actually work together," said Wehner, who attended both the meeting of the Coralville City Council and the Iowa City School Board.

Board member Craig Gjerde said the project will provide many benefits to the Iowa City School District and Coralville.

"It will provide lifelong benefits to the community," Gjerde said. "It's basically a community resource for both the city and the school system. It will give our students a swimming facility they never had before."

Gjerde said the pool will provide a place for the swim teams from both Iowa City high schools to practice.

"RIGHT NOW, I think those teams have to use the city recreation center," Gjerde said. "They have to get up at 5:30 in the morning. It's really bad."

Gjerde said pool usage time will be divided equally between the Iowa City School District and the public. He said construction of the pool should be finished by January of 1988.

Board President Jordison said the board's next goal will be to try to win approval of a joint pool facility with the Iowa City Council for Southeast Junior High.

Contract links daycares to UI senate

By Monica Seigel
Staff Writer

Past indebtedness of UI daycare centers prompted the UI Student Senate to begin a contractual agreement with the UI facilities, Senate President Hans announced Tuesday night.

The contract will make the five UI daycare centers financially accountable to the senate, Hans said.

"The senate has a strong commitment to quality day care, and that is a definite good," Hans said. "However, one quarter of our entire year's budget now goes to day care and the senate can't afford that."

Hans said the senate has been required to cover debts incurred by some of the daycare centers in the past.

"PROGRAMMATICALLY, the centers are fine," Hans said. "We simply want to ensure that their budgets are in line as well."

"We are glad to give the daycares the money allotted to them by our formal budget, but we can't cover their debts, which is what we have been expected to do sometimes," Hans said. "When someone comes up to us with an $8,000 debt, puts a gun to our head and says 'pay it,' it's unfair to the 60 other student organizations we have some financial responsibility to."

will create a super-board consisting of two student senators, two daycare parent representatives, one UI Faculty Council representative and one UI Staff Council representative. The student senate president will serve as chairman of the board, Hans said.

THE BOARD WILL hire an executive director to oversee the financial management of the daycare centers, Hans said. The board will invest revenue earned from the daycares to provide the salary for this position.

"By having an executive director to service the daycare program, we will be able to consolidate such expenses as food buying and janitorial service and we will be able to obtain an umbrella insurance policy to cover all the daycares collectively," Hans said.

Hans said the new program will induce no changes on the day-to-day management of the individual daycare centers.

The senate will also request a liability asset statement from the Brookland Woods Daycare Center before entering a contractual agreement with it because of what Hans called the center's bad financial records.

"WE'RE NOT GOING to take on a sinking ship," he said. "If they're in debt, I'm going to recommend that we revoke their status as a student organization and place their children elsewhere."

Laurie Frankhauser, a UI staff member and member of the parent board of the UI Parents Care Collective said Tuesday she is generally pleased with the plan, but said there should be more parental representation on the board.

Nancy Noyer, director of the Friendship Daycare Center agreed, saying parents of children in daycare should have a larger voice.

"There is a necessity for an effective bookkeeping system and method of communication between the senate and the daycare systems," Noyer added.
