WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House today said that President Ronald Reagan had consented to begin the search for a peace treaty in the Middle East, once Soviet leaderspectrum negotiations with Israel had been resumed.

Reagan was responding today to an indirect appeal by Khomeini for a three-month truce. "The only way to reach a resolution of the Middle East problem," Reagan said, "is if both sides agree to stop fighting." The president made his remarks in a radio and television address today from the Oval Office.

The president's address followed the announcement today by Khomeini that he will try to bring about a cease-fire in the Middle East. "I cannot change the hearts of the people of Israel," he said, "but I can impose a cease-fire until the beginning of the sacred month of Ramadan."

Reagan said that he was willing to work with Khomeini to bring about a cease-fire, but that he was not willing to talk with the Ayatollah Khomeini. "I cannot change the hearts of the people of Israel," he said, "but I can impose a cease-fire until the beginning of the sacred month of Ramadan."
Fire delays opening of new restaurant

A College St. restaurant that was scheduled to open on Monday, Jan. 30, has been delayed. Firefighters had to respond to an electrical fire at Famous Brick on Monday morning, which caused delays in the opening of the restaurant.

The sprinkler system in the stadium was turned on when a fire started at Famous Brick, which is located in the stadium complex. The fire was contained and extinguished, but it caused delays in the opening of the restaurant.

The restaurant was scheduled to open at 11 a.m. on Monday, but it was not until about 3 p.m. that the restaurant was able to open.

The restaurant is called Famous Brick and is owned by the Famous Brick Restaurant Group. The restaurant offers American cuisine and has a focus on using fresh, local ingredients.

The fire caused no injuries and the restaurant had a minimal cleanup process. The restaurant was able to open for business shortly after the fire was extinguished.

The cause of the fire is under investigation, but it is believed to have been caused by an electrical issue. The restaurant had been preparing for the opening for several weeks and was excited to welcome customers.

The restaurant serves a variety of dishes, including burgers, sandwiches, salads, and sides.

The delayed opening was a disappointment for the restaurant, but they were able to quickly recover and welcome customers.

The Iowa City Parking and Revenue Department is taking steps to improve the tow program and reduce the number of tickets issued. The department is working to make the towing process more efficient and transparent. They have implemented new procedures to ensure that vehicles are towed only when necessary and that drivers are given adequate notice. The department is also working to ensure that towing is done by a professional operation, and that the towing process is handled in a fair and equitable manner. The Iowa City Parking and Revenue Department is committed to serving the community and providing a fair and efficient towing service.
Rough road ahead

It has been noted that the American space program, beneficial as it is to the advancement of science, also has been of economic benefit to the United States. This is especially true when one considers that it has had a positive impact on the nation's economy.

Supporters of the space program argue that it has created job opportunities and attracted billions of dollars in private investment. However, opponents argue that the program has not been as economically successful as proponents claim.

The program has faced criticism for its high cost and questionable return on investment. Some argue that the money spent on space exploration could be better spent on other priorities, such as education and infrastructure.

Despite these criticisms, the space program continues to be a point of national pride and a symbol of American ingenuity and innovation. It remains to be seen whether the program will continue to receive the support it has historically enjoyed.

The New Pioneer co-op grocery store, located on Campus Road, offers an alternative to traditional corporate stores.

The New Pioneer co-op, a student-operated cooperative, has its roots in the 1970s when the original store was founded.

The store's mission is to provide a healthy, affordable food source while also supporting the community.

New students interested in joining the co-op must complete an application process, including a short interview with co-op members.

The co-op currently has around 100 members, with new members joining each semester.

Promoter shortage causes SCOPE to give fewer shows

The SCOPE生产的 Handy "handy" for the past 18 months has been struggling with promoter shortage.

According to co-op advisor John Taylor, the program has been affected by a lack of student interest.

SCOPE, a student-run organization, relies on enthusiasm and participation from its members.

The co-op is currently working on ways to attract more protesters and increase attendance at its shows.

Grocers offer alternatives

New co-op grocery store offers fresh produce and local options

The New Pioneer co-op, located on Campus Road, offers a variety of fresh produce, including locally sourced options.

The store is committed to providing a sustainable and ethical shopping experience for its customers.

The New Pioneer co-op also offers a wide range of local products, including bread, cheese, and honey.

Shultz meets with Nato counterparts

Shultz spent the day in meetings at the secluded country villa of his counterpart in London. He was concerned that revelations of weakness in the White House - which included Shultz's own absence for a crucial meeting Saturday night - would give his counterpart from Britain, Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd, an opening for a new round of negotiations with European allies in London and Brussels.

Shultz also noted the allies were concerned that revelations of secret U.S. arms sales to Iran and diversion of the profits to the Pentagon might undermine their resolve to help the Contras secretly in their campaign against the Sandinistas in Nicaragua.

North and Poindexter: Richard Scorer, a former Panamanian official identified as playing a central role in the shakedown's secret negotiations, resigned last week before the Senate Intelligence Committee, the chairman said. The resigned official was a close associate of the defense minister and was one of the few officials still active in the country's embattled government. Scorer had been a key figure in the negotiations leading up to the American invasion of Panama, and his resignation was seen as a signal of the government's growing difficulties. Scorer's resignation came just days after the United States accused Panama of providing support to the armed forces of Nicaragua, and the American government had threatened to increase its military presence in the area. Scorer had been under investigation for his role in the shakedown, which was allegedly financed by the United States in exchange for Panama's support in the war against Nicaragua.

Protestor steals Poindexter street sign

In a high-spirited act of civil disobedience, a protestor in downtown Iowa City stole a street sign from a busy intersection. According to witnesses, the protestor approached the sign and unfastened it from its pole, then pocketed it and walked away, leaving behind a trail of confetti and cheers. The sign, which read "The City of Iowa," was later found in a nearby alley, still bearing its original inscription. The incident sparked a lively debate among city councilors, who debated whether to commemorate the protestor's act with a plaque or to prosecute him for vandalism.

X 1986, Soul Man might have been perceived as a significant achievement. A film about young African-American men and their battle to qualify for an elite college scholarship, the film is striking statement to an original film with a premise that has been perceived as unbelievable. The racial stereotypes and prejudices in the film, Mark encounters the very prejudices that it purports to eliminate.

Unfortunately, in 1986 most movies have sound - there is nothing more than a trite bit of verbal action. The script is bad, the plot is weak, and the characters are superficial and ill-conceived. Worst of all, the film makes one suspect that the film's authors are the very prejudices that it purports to eliminate.

Yet all the problems it faces are solvable. The racial jokes always make it to the screen phonetically - you have to laugh at them for them to be funny.

For instance, when Mark goes into his school basketball team, everyone wants him on their side. He is a bad basketball player, but he is a better person than they are. The obvious humor that fails as he laughs across the court is painful. The whole joke that might have worked - that just because you are a certain race it doesn't mean you are a good basketball player - is undercut by the fact that the other fellow black player on the team is unlikable. He is so much better than his white counterparts that it is impossible to believe that he is not getting a better job.

In ANOTHER SCENE, Mark is sitting dinner with his white girlfriend. By one of the numbers of her family lives the - father sees him as a pig, the mother as a rapist, the son as a fraternity prototype.
