Council considers scrapping pool proposal

By Carol M. Trevino
Staff Writer

Iowa City Councilors Monday called the Iowa City School Board's proposed agreement for a $3.25 million indoor pool at Mercer Park "totally unacceptable," and again suggestions arose of building the facility without the school district's involvement.

But councilors claimed school board members were attempting to delete many cost-sharing items that were agreed upon earlier. The finalized agreement approved by board members came from "out of the sky," Councilor Ernest Zuber said.

"If I vote on this tonight, I say give them back their $500,000 and we'll go it alone," Zuber said. "If they want to use it, they'll jolly well have to rent it."

Councilor Darrel Courtney, a liaison between the city and the school district, said he did not want the council to approve the agreement.

"EVEN THOUGH we gain the 70 percent/30 percent cost-sharing, we still have no agreement on liability insurance or full-time maintenance workers," Courtney said. "We're not going to reach an agreement on it as it is."

"The expenses are larger than we thought," he said. "We need to back off on this."

To resolve the problems,

Courtney said the city's options include creating its own plan and sending it to the school board for approval, or reducing the entire project's cost to a more affordable level.

"As our last option... embark without the district involved," Courtney said.

Zuber, agreeing with the final option, said he believed the school district was attempting to force the agreement before the council "at the very last minute" to make the city council "look like the bad guys," about the issue.

"We don't know a damn thing about it," Zuber said.

COUNCILORS COULD only agree that none of them had even seen the school district's proposals, but were aware of many changes that could alter the city's budget.

Mayor William Ambrisco, saying he did not want to scrap the project at this point, asked councilors to allow city staff to review the entire plan before making a final decision.

Councilors also agreed to hold a special council meeting as soon as possible to decide how to resolve the problems presented by the school district's proposal.

"We may end up meeting on Christmas morning," Councilor George Strait said.

Regan will testify on arms deal

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Ronald Reagan waived a claim of executive privilege for Donald Regan Monday, clearing the way for the White House chief of staff to testify this week before a Senate committee investigating the Iran arms-Contra cash scandal.

Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., the committee chairman, issued a statement Monday saying the panel planned to summon Regan and Secretary of State George Shultz this week for closed-door questioning about the arms arrangements.

At the White House, spokesman Larry Speakes said Regan — a focus of sharp criticism for the administration's handling of the muddled Iran-Contra affair — would be happy to testify to the Senate committee or other panels probing the controversy.

"HE'LL BE GLAD to do so in an open session," Speakes added. A committee spokeswoman said it is "improbable" any hearings would be open, noting, "It's very rare that we have open hearings."

Speakes also said there had been no request for the president to talk to Capitol Hill investigators and none was anticipated.

On the issue of executive privilege, which Regan had raised last month as a possible hurdle to his testifying, White House spokesman Albert Brashear said, "The president does not seek to claim executive privilege with regard to a request by the Senate Intelligence Committee, asking that Don Regan testify."

SUCH CLAIMS OF privileged communication have been used in the past to prevent White House aides from giving information to Congress.

Shultz and Weinberger opposed the secret arms sales to the Khomeini government, and all top officials of the administration — from the president through Regan, Casey and Shultz — have denied knowing money from the deals was being slipped to the Contras.

The president, whose credibility has been tried by the scandal, has vowed to make all the facts known, but his effort has been thwarted by the refusal of ex-aides John Poindexter and Oliver North to testify.

POINDEXTER, WHO resigned last month as Reagan's national security adviser, and North, a fired official of the National Security Council staff, both cited possible self-incrimination in refusing to answer questions. Last month, Meese named them as the only two people in the government who knew of the Contra aid deal.

On North and Poindexter's invoking their Fifth Amendment right not to testify, Speakes said, "We do reiterate, underscore and publicly proclaim we'd like them to tell everything as quickly as possible. We'd like to work out a way for them to do so."

Cause of fire still stumps authorities

By Bruce Japsen
City Editor

Firefighters were still baffled Monday night as to the cause of a blaze that destroyed The Abbey Inn Sunday in Coralville.

"We're looking at every possibility," Coralville Fire Chief Gary Kinsinger said. "We've been digging through a lot and trying to come up with some answers."

Kinsinger said firefighters from the Coralville Fire Department and investigators from the state fire marshal's office dug through the rubble toward the basement of the motel.

Kinsinger said insurance adjusters and other officials looked through the ruins but released no damage estimates Monday night. "It all depends on how the adjusters look at it," Kinsinger said.

ASSISTANT CORALVILLE Fire Chief Chuck Murray said Monday afternoon that a heater in a suite in the basement could be a possible cause of the blaze.

"It's possible that it was a self-containing heating unit," Murray said. "That's one of the things we're looking at."

About one-third of the building — which includes several rooms and the main desk — was still standing Monday evening, but Murray said smoke and damage from water used to extinguish the blaze took its toll.

"With the smoke and water damage to what's left, it wouldn't be feasible to keep this end of the building," Murray said, looking at the remains.

THE REMAINDER of the hotel appeared to be nothing but charred beams and a large hole filled with bricks and debris.

The double-decker bus that once sat in front of the motel was a blackened skeleton. The bus had recently been built into a wall near the motel's swimming pool. Murray said stores located in the motel's basement were all destroyed.

People who had reservations at the motel will be accommodated by other motels owned by The Abbey's parent company, Heritage Systems of Coralville, according to Heritage Vice President Neil Trott. Heritage Systems also owns The Abbey Retreat and the Canterbury Inn, both in Coralville.

"We had people working the entire day on the accommodations," Trott said. "They'll stay at the motel of their choice. Everybody will be accommodated."

TROTT SAID THE state fire marshal's investigation had not been completed. He said arson was not suspected Monday by any fire officials.

Trott denied earlier reports that claimed Heritage was planning to sell the motel.

"We've been trying to strike a deal with our minority share holders to buy them out," Trott said.

The wife of at least one minority shareholder confirmed Trott's statement.

"I know my husband has been trying to sell his interest in the inn to the corporation, but I don't know of any plans they had of selling it," said Edna Yoder, whose husband, Earl Yoder, has minority stock in Heritage.

Branstad hears budget pleas

By Shawn Plank
Staff Writer

DES MOINES — Gov. Terry Branstad Monday enthusiastically supported the plan to build a $25 million laser research facility at the UI, saying it would help spark the state's economy.

"The university is looking for an opportunity to help with the economic development for the state," he said. "The laser facility is on the cutting edge of technology and will create thousands of jobs for the state."

Branstad's comments came after a two-hour hearing to review the fiscal year 1988 budgets of the three universities and two specialized schools supported by the state Board of Regents. The hearing, in the governor's office at the state capitol building, was presented by regents and administrators from the UI and Iowa State University.

UI PRESIDENT James O. Freedman said the new facility will help the UI "aspire to world leadership" in laser technology.

"The state of Iowa has the opportunity to invest now in front-row seats for a research initiative that in years to come will offer standing room only," he said. "I urge approval of the proposed laser science facility before the tickets are gone."

The UI laser facility would attract three of the nation's top laser researchers to campus, Freedman said. A total of $1.5 million in proceeds from the Iowa Lottery, matched by private gifts, will endow three chairs at the UI in laser science. Freedman said laser research has many uses and could be applied in fields of information, biomedical research and material processing.

"WHAT MAKES the laser so remarkable is its versatility," he said. "It is no exaggeration to say that the uses to which the laser may be put are limited only by the human imagination."

The UI laser and biotechnology laboratory is the third-highest priority in the regents list of capital projects. The governor will release his budget proposal, to be reviewed by the Iowa Legislature, in January.

Freedman and Regents President John McDonald also spoke in favor of proposed faculty salary increases at the UI and ISU. Salaries would increase 13 percent each year for three years under the plan.

MCDONALD SAID it is necessary to raise faculty salaries before it's too late.

"Unless we proceed with increases, I believe we lose the opportunity for quality and service to continue," he said. "There won't be a chance to increase in the future without exorbitant cost."

Freedman said increases in faculty salaries will increase UI research funds.

"Limited federal dollars will be awarded to those universities of the highest quality and with the strongest research capacities," he said. "The strong universities will get stronger and the weak universities may not be funded at all."

CIA's Casey hospitalized after seizure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — CIA Director William Casey, 73, suffered a "minor cerebral seizure" Monday and was rushed to Georgetown University Hospital, where he suffered a second seizure, hospital spokesmen said.

Casey, emerging as a crucial figure in the Iran arms-Contra aid scandal, had been scheduled to testify today on the affair but that appearance was canceled.

Casey "had some reaction to some medication he was taking," said CIA spokesman George Lauder.

A spokesman for the hospital said Casey was in stable condition Monday afternoon.

UI chemicals expert earns state job

UI Chemical and Materials Engineering Department Chairman Gregory R. Carmichael was elected vice president of the Iowa Section of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers for 1987. The institute represents nearly 50,000 chemical engineers nationwide and about 400 in Iowa. Carmichael's election as vice president of the Iowa Section means he will serve as chairman in 1988.

Physicist says comets of ice fill oceans

UI physicist Louis A. Frank said Thursday that his theory suggesting comets composed of water and ice are responsible for filling the earth's oceans has so far withstood the challenges of fellow scientists.

In a paper to be presented at the fall meeting of the American Geophysical Union in San Francisco, Frank said his theory is based on photographic data gathered using a satellite.

The theory suggests the earth is under constant bombardment by water-ice comets each weighing about 100 tons and measuring 30 to 40 feet in diameter.

While about 20 comets strike the earth's atmosphere each minute, a rate that would add only one ten-thousandth of an inch of water to the earth's oceans per year over billions of years, the comets would have deposited enough water to fill the oceans.

Engineer honored for outstanding work

UI Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering Chairman Sudhakar M. Reddy has been elected as a fellow of the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE).

The IEEE, with 270,000 members around the world, serves the field of engineering as a working society, and honors members for demonstrating exemplary work in their professional fields.

Reddy was elected an IEEE fellow "for contributions to the design of testable digital logic circuits and fault-tolerant computing," according to an IEEE letter.

Speaker will discuss foster parents

Leland Brennaman, an Iowa City area native and director of the Foster Parents Plan in El Progreso, Guatemala, will be speaking and showing slides today at noon and 7 p.m. in Room C of the Iowa City Public Library.

Brennaman's presentation, which will focus on community projects completed by Guatemalan families, is co-sponsored by the local chapter of Foster Parents Plan and the Iowa City Hunger Coalition.

Both presentations are free and open to the public. For further information, call 351-2470.

Regents seek Braille school director

State Board of Regents Executive Secretary R. Wayne Richey released his approval Monday of a proposed plan to select a new superintendent of the Iowa Braille and Sight Saving School.

The search comes after the regents approved the dismissal of former IBSSS Superintendent Richard DeMott in November.

Regents President John McDonald recommended 10 people to serve on a selection committee that will interview the candidates in February.

The regents plan to interview candidates for the post in March. Regents did not say when they would announce the new appointment.

Project AIDE reaches $2,500 mark

Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric Company announced last week that monthly contributions for its Project AIDE program totaled $2,580 for the month of November.

The figure marks a 50 percent increase in donations from the same time last year for the program, which distributes funds to needy people for the payment of energy bills or emergency repairs to heating equipment.

A total of 1,091 Iowa-Illinois customers in Iowa City donated to the program, which has raised $70,197 in Iowa City since the program's inception.

Applications to gain assistance from Project AIDE or questions on how to make a donation should be made at the Iowa City Crisis Center, 26 E. Market St.

Non-rally protests tuition proposal

By Monica Seigel
Staff Writer

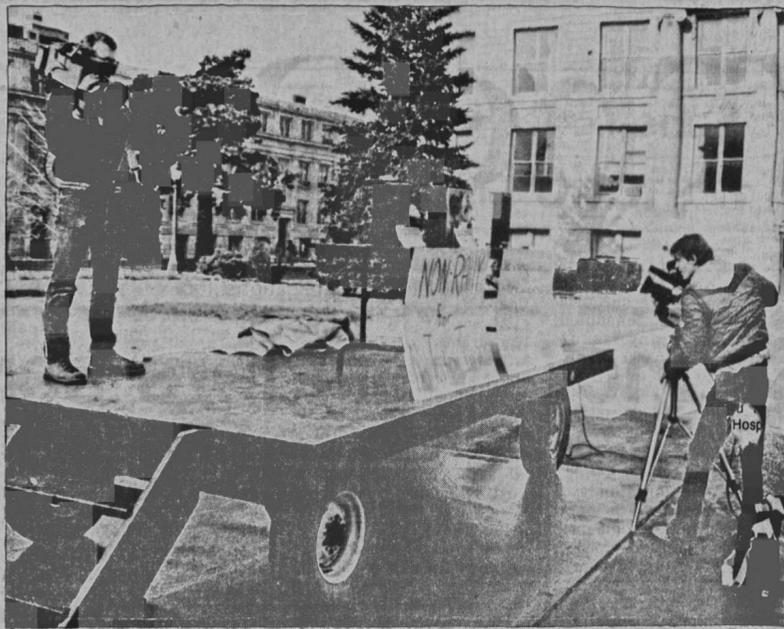

An empty Pentacrest was the site for a "non-rally for no tuition increases" organized by the UI Student Senate Monday.

Senate President Joe Hansen said the non-rally was successful in creating an awareness that the proposed tuition increases will be voted on by the state Board of Regents during final examinations week.

"We wanted to attract people from the media so they would be able to inform people from outside the university community that accessibility to higher education is going to suffer from tuition increases," Hansen said.

Taped speeches by Hansen, Sen. Amy Saxton and UI senior Joel Gray in dissent of the proposed tuition increases were featured, along with a sign encouraging students to go home and study for finals.

"STUDENTS AT THE University of Iowa cannot afford massive tuition increases," Hansen said. "The 12 percent in-state and 20 percent out-of-state (increase) proposal will significantly contribute to the already dismal situation that access to post-secondary education is in."

Saxton argued that the UI will suffer if the tuition increases are imposed on out-of-state students.

"Out-of-state students can't afford that kind of tuition," Saxton said. "The university population will become less diverse."

Hansen said he would like to dispel the myth that Iowa taxpayers help pay for out-of-state students. "The university is making a profit from out-of-state students," Hansen said.

Regent and UI law student Jacki Van Ekeren said she doubts the non-rally will have any effect on the regents final decision on the increases at their meeting Thursday in Ames.

"I KNEW ABOUT IT (the rally) because I'm here on campus, but I don't think any of the other regents knew about it," Van Ekeren said.

Van Ekeren said the regents will be more influenced by input at the Thursday's meeting.

"The decision is going to be made after listening to the arguments presented at the meeting," she said. "That's what is going to make the difference."

Collegiate Associations Council President Mike Reck said he was confused by criticism of the non-rally.

"Why should someone criticize any attempt to make a statement?" Reck said. "Especially when the criticism comes from people who have done absolutely nothing about tuition themselves."

Two men arrested for breaking into a local storage facility made their initial appearances Monday in Johnson County District Court.

Neil Christopher Berger, 18, and Terry Swartzendruber, 18, both of Coralville, were each charged with two counts of second-degree burglary and possession of burglar's tools after Iowa City police officers found them hiding in one of U-Store All's storage buildings at 18 Commercial Drive.

Berger and Swartzendruber broke into and stole items from two different storage buildings, court records state.

Officers also found a set of bolt cutters in their possession, records state.

Both men were being held Monday in lieu of $10,000 bond at the Johnson County Jail. Their preliminary hearings are scheduled for Dec. 24.

A man imprisoned at the Johnson County Jail for cashing more than $500 in forged checks last summer made his initial appearance on the same charge Friday in Johnson County District Court.

Ray G. Steege, 25, no address given, was charged Friday with first-degree false use of a financial instrument after he gave two bad checks worth $100 to a friend to deposit in his friend's account, records state. Steege then asked the man to withdraw the $100 from his account and give the cash to him, court records state.

Steege, who was also arrested Sept. 18 for first-degree false use of a financial instrument, was sentenced Monday to serve two years in the Iowa Department of Corrections.

According to court records, Steege forged his father's name on seven checks worth $550 at the Coralville branch of the UI Credit Union.

Restaurant opens in historic brewery

By Bruce Japsen
City Editor

What was once a brewery in the mid-1800s is the site of a new development scheduled to house as many as 15 businesses and 15,000 square feet of office space in Iowa City.

Brewery Square development, located at Linn and Market streets, will premiere this week when its first occupant opens for business today.

Towncrest Investments, 2405 Towncrest Drive, under the guidance of developer Ernie Stoppelmoor, began to refurbish what was once the Economy Advertising Company building last April 1.

"It's in the process of being put on the National Historic Register," Stoppelmoor said, referring to the building's history in Iowa City.

The construction of Brewery Square began last April and will be completed this spring, Stoppelmoor said. Towncrest Investments purchased the building from Economy Advertising in November 1985.

"WE'LL STILL have businesses moving in continuously," Stoppelmoor said. "We've had a lot of interest in the project. Several stores are looking at it."

The second and third floors of the three-story building will consist of professional offices. Stoppelmoor said the ground floor will be leased by several gift shops and specialty restaurants.

Brewery Square's first occupant, American Bistro, opens at 10 a.m. today.

"It's a combination bar and restaurant," co-director of American Bistro, John Gillespie said.

"American Bistro combines the tradition of the French bistro with the freshest local foods, simply and elegantly prepared," Gillespie said. "As all bistros, it is as much a bar as a restaurant."

HE SAID THE establishment will employ between 10 and 12 UI students.

"We'll have a pretty varied clientele," Gillespie said. "We offer a bar with a full service menu. We'll have an emphasis on higher quality products."

American Bistro will open Tuesday through Saturday at 11 a.m. and Sunday at 10 a.m.

"If it's slow we might close earlier, but we're flexible," Gillespie said. The restaurant could be open as late as 2 a.m. Tuesday through Saturday or until midnight Sunday.

SPOT system lets students grade TAs

By J.E. McCoy
Special to The Daily Iowan

UI students got a chance to rate their instructors this week through a UI evaluation system.

The UI Evaluation and Examination Service provides a computerized Student Perceptions of Teaching or SPOT form for all departments and instructors who request them.

The forms use both open-ended and multiple choice questions.

UI College of Education Dean Charles Case said SPOT forms are not mandatory, but are used by many professors.

A designated student distributes the forms and returns them to the evaluation service. To ensure anonymity, teaching assistants and professors are required to leave the room while the evaluations are being filled out.

JOYCE MOORE, an administrator in the Evaluation Service, said instructors see the results of the evaluations after grades are submitted.

"We don't do any scanning of the SPOT forms until after semester grades have been submitted," she said.

Until about a year ago SPOT forms were used by UI administrators when discussing promotions and tenure, UI Electrical Engineering Professor John Robinson said.

Before the change, the evaluations were mandatory, Robinson said, but now the instructors use them any way they see fit.

"IT WOULD BE hard for the dean to make any comparisons based on the forms in the absence of a pool of evaluations," Robinson said.

UI Rhetoric Department Chairman Donovan Ochs said he requires all of the 123 rhetoric teaching assistants to distribute the evaluation forms.

UI junior Maria Locher said the evaluations are useful if students make an effort to write constructive comments on the evaluation forms.

"A lot of people are too lazy to do that," she said. "The evaluations are valuable because they are integrated into the class, asking questions which pertain to the material."

Christmas thoughts

Some 400 years ago, the primitives of the Western world knew something that we have forgotten. They knew that however rich the world might seem — especially to the rich and to our pioneer ancestors who confronted an empty, wealthy continent — that the world was one of limits. There is only so much gold, so much oil, so much coal, etc.

And there are only so many jobs that pay $50,000 a year and a lot more that pay $10,000.

Given that knowledge of limits and the reality of inherited wealth (now we inherit wealth and the means of wealth), the primitives understood that one could be good, intelligent and hard-working and still be poor. They knew that fortune — luck — played a part in one's station and affluence. Today, in our greed and arrogance we have lost sight of that and come too often to believe that we are fortunate because we deserve it.

Christmas is a good time to recall what those primitives knew and to remember that much of what we have is due to blind luck. That knowledge should make us grateful, but it should also make us reconsider political and social policies that will become law in January, when State of the Union addresses and budgets are made. We should think, in other words, about the values and meaning of whatever religion or philosophy we profess.

We might want to ask ourselves whether it is really fair that some people can afford to spend $57,000 on a car when others are homeless. Indeed, homes can be bought for $49,000 and cars for $8,000. Is it right for such huge disparities in wealth to exist?

American business is failing in the international marketplace, and yet the income of American management is as much as 20 times that of workers, while Japanese management (the ones stamping American business under foot) receives only about five times the amount of laborers.

As the Christmas present feeding frenzy begins, maybe we should ask if it isn't leaving everyone hungrier, and what kind of a world we really do want to create.

Gone . . . forever

Last week Campus Theatres were the latest to catch the epidemic Scarlett fever with a revival of the 1939 Academy Award-winning classic: Gone With the Wind.

Now, the executors of author Margaret Mitchell's estate have given the go-ahead to a sequel novel, to be written by a hand-picked romance writer. Under the supervision of the William Morris Agency, the hardcover sequel is to lead to a television miniseries or feature film, to possibly be followed by a television series. Then could come another sequel — the possibilities are endless.

Gone With the Wind II would definitely make good business sense. The original Pulitzer Prize-winning story is the best-selling book, except for the Bible, in history. The David O. Selznick Technicolor film version, even in this blockbuster era, remains among the most profitable cinematic ventures of all time.

But the good sense ends with the dollar sign. Mitchell herself eluded requests for continuing her saga, saying graciously at one point, "What would I call it? Back With the Breeze?"

The problems for both book and film abound. Mitchell is dead. Selznick is dead. Few others in either the literary or cinematic world are capable of her complexities or his subtleties.

Should suitable substitutes be found and a follow-up film be undertaken, who would play Rhett and Scarlett? Clark Gable and Vivien Leigh, even if they were alive, would be too old to ignite the lusty hearts of this decade. An Atlanta film critic proposed a flashy Brat Pack version with Tom Cruise as Rhett, Ally Sheedy as Scarlett, Rob Lowe as Ashley and Molly Ringwald as Melanie.

This version might make money, but it wouldn't come close to making a movie.

Even under the intensive care of the book and film industries' best, any sequel would be lacking.

The story is simply over. Rhett and Scarlett are over. Even the Civil War is over.

Frankly, my dears, someone should give a damn.

'Water torture' disclosures damage Reagan's standing

By Ernest F. Hollings

LIKE A GRADE B Hollywood remake, the arms-for-hostages deal is rapidly degenerating into President Ronald Reagan's Watergate. It recalls the adage that historical phenomena always happen twice — the first time as tragedy, the second time as farce.

The trouble is, nobody is laughing anymore. What started as a grade B remake has now evolved into a first class scandal. However, this crisis need not destroy the administration.

Since taking office in 1981, Reagan has restored the presidency to authority and pre-eminence. The American people have genuine affection for the president. They trust him. To maintain that high standing, Reagan must, as he himself has said, "fully inform" the nation about the environment he created in which this escapade was hatched.

No, I am not talking about cashing in on the chief of staff Donald Regan or reining in the National Security Council. Those actions are necessary, but they fail to tackle the core problem: the mortal blow that has been dealt to the president's credibility and standing.

WHEN ALL IS said and done, Reagan is the "who" in all the hoopla surrounding this crisis. And the fact is that the vast majority of the American people do not believe the president is telling the full truth about his knowledge and involvement. As with Watergate 12 years ago, what hurts most is not the violation of laws but the wanton betrayal of trust.

The president's plea of ignorance stands on two increasingly wobbly legs. The first is the shield of "plausible deniability" for the president — the standard ingredient of any illegal covert operation. Unfortunately, as Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kans., has observed, not even Ripley of "Believe It or Not" could believe that Lieut. Col. Oliver L. North and Vice Adm. John M. Poindexter — schooled in obedience and loyal to the chain of command — acted without higher authority, indeed, without the highest authority.

THE SECOND LINE of the president's defense is the widespread impression that he is laid back and poorly informed about even the most important activities of his administration. True, he may be indifferent to 95 percent of his administration's initiatives, but he has engaged passionately in the remaining 5 percent. And at the top of that personal Reagan agenda are the Contras and the Beirut hostages. It is inconceivable that Poindexter's daily briefings with Reagan would not include detailed updates on the president's pet project: assisting the Contras.

The truth will win out. The only question is whether it will be volunteered or extracted. The president has retreated to his bunker. North and Poindexter, two fine officers, have dutifully fallen on their swords by taking the Fifth Amendment to protect their Commander in Chief. But the rest of the White House is leaking like a colander.

LESSON NO. 1 of freshman politics is that when you have damaging information that inevitably is going to come to light, you take the initiative and reveal it yourself with the appropriate "spin." Ignoring this dictum, the president has opted to let the truth leak out in a slow drip — a Chinese water torture that is eroding his popularity and power.

Reagan can and must halt the slide. He cannot acknowledge "full responsibility" and call in the Federal Bureau of Investigation and special counsel to catch the criminal while at the same time giving farewell parties to the accused and calling them national heroes. He must lay bare the unvarnished facts about his administration's dealings with Iran and the Contras. This will prevent the paralysis of our government and allow Reagan to move decisively to reconstitute and restore his presidency. Who doubts that Congress and the American people would respond positively to such a decisive act of candor?

Homeless help

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to Nan Secor's Dec. 4 editorial in The Daily Iowan about the proposed homeless study. In the editorial it said that I proposed this study.

I think this study should be funded and agree that the study should include viable options for Iowa City's solutions for homelessness.

But I want to make sure that credit is given where it is due. Anna Wagoner spoke in front of the Committee on Community Needs and motivated Marjorie Hayden-Strait and Frank Person to gather others to form a group called Housing Options. This group sponsored the homeless study proposal. I hope that Housing Options and the public ask the Committee on Community Needs to again recommend to the city council to fund this study.

To the Editor:

Thank you for your story about our Accelerated Professional Track/Masters of Business Administration program which you printed on Dec. 10. . . Unfortunately, it contained two factual errors so I'd like to set the record straight.

It isn't true that "bright students are sought out and asked to join the program." While we try to inform superior students about the existence of the APT program, the initiative to apply for admission to it rests with them, not us.

It is also not true that "companies (that support student fellowships) receive first preference in the interviewing process after the students receive their degrees." I have no control over this process, which is handled by the Placement Service, so I am in no position to guarantee such a preference. Firms that provide fellowship support do have first claim on this group of Accelerated Professional Track students for summer internships. That may have caused confusion.

The program's success in its first year was largely attributable to the excellent cooperation we received from faculty and administrators in the Colleges of Liberal Arts and Engineering. Since this was omitted from the story, I'd like to take this opportunity to give them the credit they deserve.

Captivity reduces animals' grandeur

A COLLEAGUE of mine returned from Alaska recently. It being his first trip to our nation's 49th state, he came back armed with a pocketful of pictures. There were photos of beautiful 10 a.m. Alaskan sunrises, a shot of Mount McKinley some 200 miles in the distance, a close-up, birds-eye view of the same mountain from an airplane and a number of pictures from a zoo in Anchorage.

By Christopher G. Wessling

Digressions

Now I'm not a zoo-type person, and I must confess I've seen the insides of only a few zoos, but besides the usual creatures you might expect in a zoo, this one housed some animals not so common to the Midwest.

In this zoo lives a yak. From the picture I saw of him, he looked about as bored as a yak ever gets. In another shot, a beautiful whitish-grayish owl peered thoughtfully over his shoulder (assuming owls have shoulders), lending credibility to the tale that such birds are wise.

OTHER INHABITANTS confined to this particular zoo include a mountain lion, a few bull moose and, of course, a reindeer. But one picture especially captured my attention. It was of a majestic bald eagle.

In a cage. I realize animals in a zoo are generally kept in cages, but the sight of this grand animal of the sky restricted to a cage stirred feelings of mixed pride, disgust and anger.

Why? Because this proud, beautiful bird sat in a cage so minuscule compared to the sky he should roam, yet was still able to look regal and command the respect he deserved as king of the sky.

My friend who took the photo said the eagle spread his wings once, and in a guesstimation, figured the bird had a wingspan of 6 or 7 feet. A truly gorgeous animal.

BUT CONFINED, some of its beauty disappears. I can't deny the natural human curiosity to observe creatures other than oneself, especially close-up, but when the desire of knowledge comes at the price of freedom or the loss of beauty, it is an altogether unnecessary expense.

I suspect there are those who will disagree with me, but the bottom line remains thus: God created animals to roam the world, not sit in a cage. In some way, each is a work of art, a testimony to the awesome power of a being greater than man. Behind bars, that intricate artwork degenerates.

Obviously, animals play a necessary, integral role in science, aiding the advancement and development of human life. I'm not against that. But capturing and displaying animals — removing them from their natural environment to an alien one — solely for the enjoyment and pleasure of man is gross injustice.

Man was created to rule earth, not detract from its beauty.

The word "obsession" conjures up a variety of tempting images: Calvin's cologne, chocolate, that blond guy in physics class. But obsession has its negative side, too — the same side the words "too much of a good thing" made famous.

But is it possible something as beneficial as exercise would fit into obsession's second category?

"You can overwork your body, by all means," Pat Kutcher, assistant director in UI Recreational Services, said.

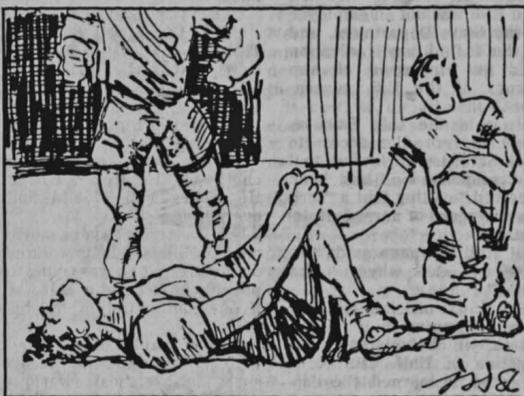

Kutcher, an aerobics instructor who works with lesson programs, said she feels overworking is most common among people who do the same type of workout day after day.

"We're trying to educate people," Kutcher said. "If your body is saying, 'Hey, you've beat on me long enough!' it's time to do some other type of exercise."

COMPULSIVE ATHLETES, who often engage in two or more kinds of exercise daily, feel guilty when they miss a day of exercise and often let their fitness regimen take priority over other areas of their lives. In extreme cases, work and personal relationships come second to that one last game of tennis or that 6 a.m. run.

"Once you get started it becomes an obsession. You think to yourself, 'I didn't exercise yesterday so I have to do twice as much today,'" Kutcher said.

"I hate to see people do this," she added.

The Daily Iowan/Jeffrey Sedam

Joe Buckwalter, professor of orthopedic surgery at UI Hospitals, said too much exercise can even be fatal.

"Those people who may have a heart disease, or are overweight and don't work into exercise gradually, can die if they overdo it," Buckwalter said.

BUT HE CONTENTS "overuse syndromes" — the general injuries associated with frequent exercise, such as muscle strain and tennis elbow — are far more common.

Buckwalter cited vigorous aerobics, running and racquetball as injury-rich sports, but added any endurance activity can lead to problems.

"Overdoing exercise is quite common. Even superbly conditioned athletes can go past limits their body can tolerate — dehydration, using all the energy in the muscles and so on," Buckwalter said.

This evidence, then, suggests an "exercise overdose" can do a lot more harm than good.

Still, people risk possible damage to their bodies in the name of physical fitness.

A POPULAR THEORY explaining the reasons behind exercise obsession has its roots in the "euphoria" compulsive athletes often experience after a vigorous workout. This euphoric state is caused by the body's release of certain chemicals during or directly after heavy exercise. In this light, exercise seems addictive.

But Carl Gisolfi, a UI professor of physiology, strongly disagrees with this idea of addiction to exercise.

"I don't believe that, not if you're talking about something that is released in the body during exercise."

"You've heard people say that, but what it means is that people feel so much better when they're doing it," Gisolfi said. "I don't call that addiction."

Instead, Gisolfi attributes

"euphoria" to more general causes, such as diet.

"Maybe you've been on a high-carbohydrate diet. You may have taken off from your workout for a few days. You go out and run and feel fantastic," Gisolfi said.

BUCKWALTER SAID he feels exercise obsession is simply related to the desire to get in shape — overnight.

"I think most people don't want to engage in a program of progressively increasing activity. People who have not done anything for a long time decide to go out and play 18 holes of golf or three sets of tennis," Buckwalter said.

Kutcher, who feels the problem stems from so much publicity on exercise and its benefits, says there are precautions that should be taken to prevent overworking the body.

"You should alter your workout pattern. If you do aerobics every day you're very susceptible to injuries," she said. "You need to vary workouts. Do aerobics one day, then swim or play racquetball the next."

Kutcher also suggests low-impact aerobics, especially for older people or for those who have not worked out in years. In this type of aerobic exercise one foot is always on the ground and there is a more even-paced tempo of music.

"Low-impact aerobics is not a replacement, but an alternative to high-intensity aerobics," Kutcher said.

Buckwalter said it is wise to have a plan to increase physical fitness gradually.

"It is important to gain the benefits of exercise without injuries," he said. "Most people don't do that."

Abuse arrests rise with new state law

By Angie Joens
Special to The Daily Iowan

A tougher state law requiring police to arrest abusers in domestic violence cases has received mixed reactions.

It has increased court system workloads and caused ambivalence on the part of the police. But some say it is finally giving abusers the message that violence in the home is illegal and will not be tolerated.

"We are definitely seeing an increase in domestic abuse cases being filed," Linda McGuire, assistant county attorney for Johnson County, said. "But this is encouraging. Now the abusers are given the message that domestic violence is illegal. As the law states now, the legal system does not condone this violent behavior."

McGuire said within the past three months 53 cases of domestic abuse have been reported. Only nine cases were reported in the January through June period before the new law took effect. McGuire said she finds this increase very encouraging, despite the additional strain it puts on the courts.

THIS NEW LAW has been based on the Domestic Abuse Intervention Project developed in Duluth, Minn.

This past week, several representatives from the Duluth project were in Iowa City to provide training and assistance in working with domestic batterers.

More than 50 people attended the community meeting Wednesday at the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge, 2216 N. Dodge St., Christie Munsen, victim witness coordinator, said.

"We are very pleased with the turnout. We had people from the criminal justice department, legislatures and mental health agencies," Munsen said.

Since July 1, police officers in Iowa have been required to make an arrest if called to intervene in a domestic situation involving the abuse of a spouse or other adult.

AFTER SPEAKING to the victim and any witnesses, if the officer has probable cause to believe that abuse has been committed, the alleged abuser must be arrested.

But Capt. Don Strand of the Iowa City Police Department said probable cause is not always easy to determine.

"If the victim complains of injury and a lock of her hair is pulled from her head and she is bruised, then the probable cause is easier to determine," Strand explained.

If probable cause is determined and an arrest is made, the arresting officer then gives the victim's address to counselors at the Iowa City Domestic Violence Project, a shelter for battered women and children.

"We then go to the homes of the victim and offer support and shelter," Pat Meyer, program coordinator for the Domestic Violence Project, said.

THE PERPETRATOR meanwhile remains in jail until the magistrate can hear the case. If arrested during the day, the perpetrator will see the judge that day; if arrested at night, the perpetrator spends the night in jail, until the judge can hear the case the next morning.

"I had one victim tell her husband that she would call the police if he didn't stop," Meyer recalled. "He didn't, so she called and he was arrested. He could not believe that he could be arrested for slapping his wife around."

Strand does not share in the enthusiasm for the new law.

"My men have real misgivings about the new law," he said. "We are concerned with how ambiguous it is. We are also concerned with the convictions of the perpetrator and if, in fact, they exist at all."

STRAND CITED a case in which he went to a home where the man was bleeding from the nose as a result of his glasses being pushed into his face. The man filed charges against the woman and she was arrested.

Upon the woman's arrest, it was clear that she, too, had been abused, Strand said. Her face and arms were cut, and she was heavily bruised.

In this case, both the man and the woman were arrested for abusing each other, Strand said, adding he was not sure he made the right choice in arresting both.

"That must be decided by the court," he said. "The only responsibility I have as an officer is if there is 'probable cause' — and in this case there was — by both parties — I must arrest the alleged abuser."

S. Korean students storm U.S. center

SEOUL, South Korea — College students hurling Molotov cocktails and rocks stormed the U.S. cultural center in the nation's second-largest city Monday and clashed with police, who overpowered them, officials said.

Seven policemen and four students were injured and were admitted to hospitals after the brawl at the U.S. cultural center in Pusan, 205 miles southeast of Seoul, authorities said.

Police arrested 13 students, identifying them as members of Pusan University's "Jamintu," a radical anti-government campus group. The students were charged with violating various laws that carry prison terms of up to three years, officials said.

Initial investigations revealed that the students had planned to stage a prolonged anti-government and anti-American sit-in at the U.S. cultural center, the officials said.

Kennedy urges Reagan to fix relations

CAIRO, Egypt — Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., Monday urged the Reagan administration to take action to repair U.S. relations with Egypt and Jordan, damaged by American arms sales to Iran.

"There is no question that the arms sale deal to Iran has provided tension in terms of the relationship with Jordan and with Egypt," Kennedy said after meeting with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak.

Mubarak said the arms deal eroded the credibility of the United States in the Arab world.

Kennedy said, "Our friends here in Egypt ought to understand that the American people feel exactly the same way" about selling arms to the Iranians.

Kennedy also said Jordan's King Hussein, who met with him in Amman Saturday, called the arms deal a "great disservice to the cause of peace."

2 Illinois teens die in shooting accident

SILVIS, Ill. — Authorities have ruled that the weekend deaths of two teenaged Silvis boys occurred when one of the youths accidentally shot the other with a high-powered rifle and then turned the gun on himself.

The victims in the shooting incident Saturday were identified as James Smith, 14, and Randall Thomas, 15.

Authorities have not determined who fired the shots, but police investigator Jack Vogler said no foul play is suspected in the deaths.

"It appears at this time that one of the boys accidentally shot his friend while they were playing with a high-powered rifle," Vogler said. "After seeing what he had done, the boy then took his own life."

N.Y. Planned Parenthood threatened

NEW YORK — Police Monday searched a Planned Parenthood center in Queens following a new bomb threat a day after authorities defused 15 sticks of dynamite at a Manhattan abortion clinic run by the agency, police said.

Mayor Edward Koch Monday labeled the attacks "terrorism" and called on the FBI to investigate.

An anonymous caller at 11:15 p.m. said a bomb would go off in an hour at the company's parent education center. Police responded immediately and "no device was found," she said.

The threat was similar to one called in Sunday before police defused 15 sticks of dynamite at Planned Parenthood's Margaret Sanger abortion clinic in Manhattan, said Alfred Moran, executive director of Planned Parenthood of New York City.

Police were searching for a suspect in both incidents.

Parents win $50,500 in textbook case

GREENEVILLE, Tenn. — Fundamentalist Christian parents who won a lawsuit over "anti-Christian" public school textbooks their children were forced to study were awarded $50,521.59 by a judge Monday.

The parents, deciding to give the Hawkins County school district a break, did not seek damages for "pain and suffering," attorney Michael Farris said.

U.S. District Judge Thomas Hull ordered the school board to pay damages for the seven families' "out-of-pocket" expenses — money lost as a result of officials' 1983 decision to expel students who refused to use the controversial texts.

Hull said school officials violated the families' First Amendment constitutional rights by requiring children to use Holt, Rinehart and Winston readers. Parents said the books teach evolution, witchcraft and skepticism of religion.

Nicaraguans interrogate accused spy

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Nicaraguan officials Monday interrogated an American accused of spying inside an air base and the government newspaper said he was carrying information about other military installations when arrested.

Sam Hall, 49, brother of an Ohio congressman and a former member of the Ohio House, was captured Friday in a restricted area of an air force base in Punta Huete, 12 miles north of the capital on the northeast shore of Lake Managua.

The official Sandinista Party newspaper, Barricada, said Hall was carrying maps and sketches of military installations of Puerto Corinto, Nicaragua's principal entry port in the Pacific, and of a heavily guarded prison in Tipitapa, 15 miles east of Managua.

Foreign Minister Miguel d'Escoto said Hall told authorities he worked for a private firm gathering intelligence for the U.S. government.

STATE DEPARTMENT spokesman Charles Redman said Hall was not an employee of the State Department, and "I don't find any indication he's an employee of any agency of the U.S. government."

He said the U.S. Embassy requested consular access to Hall Saturday night but that "No response... has been received," calling that a "serious disregard of normal diplomatic practice."

Of Hall, Redman said, "We have no idea why he was there."

Sandinista officials said they were continuing their investigation, which included interrogation of Hall. CBS News reported it learned the captured American was cooperating with his interrogators.

In Decatur, Ala., the leader of a paramilitary organization linked to Hall described the arrested American as a Rambo type working alone in a jealous attempt to secure fame.

"HE THINKS he's 'Sambo,'" Thomas V. Posey, head of Civilian Material Assistance, formed to aid Nicaraguan Contras with non-military supplies, said in a play on words combining Hall's first name and the commando movie character. "He dresses like it. He wears a headband and everything."

"He was trying to get a movie made of him and he is working on a book and he was trying to put in wild accusations. It was a one-man battalion for his book."

D'Escoto said Hall was found with "a handmade map in his sock, and sketches of various points of military interest."

"The information and specifications found (on Hall) is information that can only be of interest to someone with bad intentions," said d'Escoto, who added Hall may face trial by the People's Tribunal in Nicaragua.

HALL, of Dayton, Ohio, was identified as the brother of Democratic Congressman Tony Hall. He served in the Ohio House in 1965-66.

"There's really no question in my boss's mind that this is his brother," Michael Gessel, press secretary for Rep. Hall, said. "The information the Nicaraguan government has been giving out is a description of Sam Hall. The person in question is Sam Hall."

Posey said Hall was the self-described leader of the Phoenix Battalion, an outfit Hall proposed 18 months ago to the CIA and Department of Defense as a paramilitary group to help the rebels in Nicaragua.

"As far as I know, he's the only member of it," Posey said.

Waite closely tied to North in report

LONDON (UPI) — Church of England officials refused comment Monday on a U.S. newspaper report that special hostage negotiator Terry Waite kept in close touch with a key American figure in the Iranian arms scandal.

USA Today newspaper reported Waite was in close contact with Lt. Col. Oliver North, an aide to the National Security Council, while trying to free hostages in Lebanon.

"He is presently attending a private funeral in the south of France and he isn't available to make any comment," church spokeswoman Eve Keatley said. "And we have absolutely no comment to make until he gets back."

KEATLEY SAID WAITE was expected to return to Britain today from the funeral near Nice of a "private benefactor" of the church.

She repeated, however, that in the past "he has made it clear he worked on the Beirut case through his own contacts" and did not represent any government.

Robert Oakley, former head of the State Department Office for Combating Terrorism, told the newspaper that North and Waite, an Anglican layman and representative of the archbishop of Canterbury, met frequently over the hostage issue.

But Oakley said, "It was never any secret and there was no money involved."

NORTH, ACCORDING to Oakley, helped Waite obtain "facilitative assistance" — planes, shelter and protection — during his shuttling throughout the Middle East to negotiate a release of the hostages. Oakley said U.S. ambassadors in London, Beirut, Syria and Cyprus also helped Waite.

Terry Waite

"On occasion he (Waite) was transported (aboard U.S. aircraft), but he was never speaking for the United States," Oakley told the newspaper.

North was fired from his White House post by President Ronald Reagan following disclosure of the Iran arms sales. He and his former boss, Vice Adm. John Poindexter, are key witnesses in several congressional probes into the operation. Poindexter resigned as national security adviser.

While a North-Waite connection has been subject to speculation, it had not been outlined in detail since the Iran-Contra scandal exploded. Waite sometimes briefed U.S. officials on his talks with the hostages' captors or their agents, but both Waite and Washington sought to emphasize his independence.

Waite's last trip to Beirut in the fall culminated in freedom for David Jacobsen, administrator of the American University Hospital in Beirut, after 17 months in captivity.

HELP STOP THE UNNECESSARY AND AGONIZING SLAUGHTER OF MILLIONS OF WILD ANIMALS FOR VANITY AND ADORNMENT. DON'T BUY FUR.

Farmed furbearers, including mink, fox and chinchilla, suffer extreme deprivation, kept for life, usually in very small, barren cages. Self mutilation, stereotypic behavior and the many diseases described in fur farm publications occur. Naturally active mammals probably can never have the biological abilities to attain well being in fur farm cages. They are killed as cheaply as possible. Methods include home made electrocution, painful gassing, decompression, or cheap injection by unskilled employees. The fur market is highly competitive. Expensive and humane euthanasia is not a priority. Millions of enlightened people now regard all furs—trapped and farmed—as insensitive and dated.

Meese's role under scrutiny

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department's internal inspector is investigating Attorney General Edwin Meese's handling of the initial probe of the secret Iran arms deal that turned up the diversion of millions of dollars to Nicaragua, officials said Monday.

Justice Department officials said Michael Shaheen, counsel to the department's Office of Professional Responsibility, has launched an inquiry into Meese's role in running the weekend review that led to the startling revelation Nov. 25 that up to $30 million in proceeds from the arms sales were funneled to the Contras.

The incoming chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., last week asked Shaheen to investigate any possible "improper or unethical activities" related to any of the department's inquiries.

CONCERN ABOUT the department's knowledge of the clandestine dealings was heightened last Friday when it acknowledged that for national security reasons it temporarily halted inquiries into private schemes to aid the rebels in early November — as negotiations for the release of U.S. hostages in Lebanon were under way.

The department's disclosure indicated that senior prosecutors — including Associate Attorney General Stephen Trott, who asked the FBI for the 10-day delay — may have had advance knowledge of the link between Iran arms sales to help free the hostages and the events in Nicaragua.

The House members also asked that the special prosecutor examine the whole Nicaraguan supply network, the sources said, a request similar to one made by Democrats of the Senate Judiciary Committee that is pending before the court.

MEESE HAS said his role in the affair was entirely proper. But he has been criticized for not bringing the department's criminal division and the FBI into the probe early enough and for not removing himself from the investigation since he provided the initial legal advice that allowed the arms sales.

The FBI now is investigating reports that Lt. Col. Oliver North, said to have masterminded the diversion scheme, destroyed documents key to the probe.

Meanwhile, department officials said Meese has been notified that he might be called to testify before the Senate Intelligence Committee.

The criminal probe of the affair is proceeding under Meese's supervision until a special three-judge panel appoints an independent counsel in the case.

OFFICIALS SAID Shaheen also will review Meese's role in ruling out a special prosecutor's investigation of U.S. ambassador to Switzerland, Faith Ryan Whittlesey, a longtime backer of the Contras.

Ten days ago, Meese said the department had found insufficient evidence to prosecute Whittlesey on charges she misused government money and accepted a bribe.

Shaheen also will review Meese's decision to remain in that case, in light of the fact that he and several Justice Department officials attended a $385 party at the Swiss Embassy, which was mischarged to government accounts, officials said.

Investigators now are probing whether Whittlesey knew of the arms scheme because of several phone calls North made in September to the ambassador in Switzerland, where he allegedly diverted Iran arms proceeds through secret bank accounts.

Proposed defense budget is smallest in Reagan's term

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration will ask Congress for the smallest increase in the defense budget that it has ever requested when it submits a proposal next month to spend $312 billion during fiscal 1988, Pentagon officials said Monday.

But the Defense Department also plans to ask for a supplemental budget for this fiscal year of more than $2 billion for programs that Congress refused to approve when it authorized spending earlier this year of $289.6 billion, the officials said. Fiscal 1987 began Oct. 1.

Details of the supplemental request have not been worked out, they said. But Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said last week it may include requests for additional military assistance to several countries, including Morocco. The budget will be submitted in early January, the officials said.

For the first time, the budget request that the Pentagon will submit to Congress Jan. 5 will be for two consecutive years — fiscal 1988 and 1989 — in line with a recommendation to improve spending efficiency that was made earlier this year by the Packard Commission on defense management.

THE $312 BILLION request for fiscal 1988, the financial year beginning Oct. 1, represents a 3 percent increase over the spending bill authorized for this year, above inflation, and is the lowest drawn up by the Pentagon in six years of the Reagan era, the officials said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Earlier requests for increases have ranged as high as 13 percent over the previous year and the Pentagon asked for an 8.2 percent increase above inflation last year. Congress not only refused to grant the increase but it gave the Pentagon about $2 billion less than it had received a year earlier.

The budget was said not to contain any surprises but is to be a continuation of the emphasis on building up the strategic nuclear forces and focusing on research into a "Star Wars" anti-missile defense, the twin priorities of last year's budget.

NO FIGURES WERE available for the fiscal 1989 request, but a 3 percent inflation growth above $312 billion would amount to about $320 billion.

The 3 percent growth level is considered the minimum necessary to keep pace of increases in Soviet military power, and the United States has been urging its NATO allies to make the same investment in defense every year.

The Army, Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps had prepared their budgets for next year to meet an overall spending goal of $342 billion, $30 billion above the present target, the officials said. They said the services were in the process of making "difficult decisions" to pare their spending plans to the $312 billion limit.

The actual requested increase from $289.6 billion to $312 billion is higher than an inflation-adjusted 3 percent boost. But the additional money reflects increases in spending by all government agencies because of changes in the federal retirement system, the officials said.

Lawyer reveals O'Neal lied about driving boat

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — A lawyer for actor Ryan O'Neal's son said Monday his client lied when he denied driving a boat during an accident that killed the son of film director Francis Ford Coppola.

Actor Ryan O'Neal sat behind his son, Griffin O'Neal, during the first day of the manslaughter trial in Anne Arundel County Circuit Court.

If convicted, O'Neal faces up to five years in prison and a $1,000 fine.

The younger O'Neal, 22, who is also an actor, waived his right to a jury trial. He hung his head during most of the videotaped testimony from Gian Carlo Coppola's pregnant girlfriend, Jacqueline De LaFontaine, who is expected to give birth this month.

LaFontaine, who was with the two men on the boat until about 15 minutes before the May 27 accident, said she was shocked to learn O'Neal had lied about driving the boat.

During opening arguments, O'Neal's lawyer, T. Joseph Touhey, said, "He (O'Neal) was totally emotionally distraught. He's had precious little experience with dead bodies and he starts that experience by seeing the sorry state of his dear friend."

The lawyer said O'Neal was inexperienced in boating and made a mistake when he drove a 14-foot rented runabout between two other boats and hit a tow line.

"It was a gruesome scene. He absolutely goes into a state of shock and hysteria. His denial of driving the boat was a product of his hysteria," Touhey said. "Perhaps had he acknowledged at the time that he was driving the boat, things might have turned out different."

O'NEAL WAS indicted in July on charges of manslaughter and five counts of reckless and negligent boat operation following an eight-week investigation into the death of Coppola, 23.

The accident happened on the South River near Annapolis when a boat allegedly driven by O'Neal cut between two other boats and hit a tow line. Coppola suffered fatal head injuries.

O'Neal, who told Maryland Department of Natural Resources police that Coppola was driving the boat, received a shoulder injury, but refused treatment.

An autopsy revealed Coppola consumed about five beers in an hour before his death. O'Neal was not tested for alcohol consumption, authorities said, because he claimed he was not operating the boat.

Nudity law protesters cleared

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — A City Court judge dismissed charges Monday against seven women's rights activists who peeled off their shirts in a public park to protest a state nudity law they said was sexist.

Judge Herman Walz ruled that the state's "exposure of a person" law is unconstitutional in the case of the so-called Topfree Seven because it interfered with their freedom of expression.

Monroe County District Attorney Howard Relin said he will appeal the case to County Court on the grounds that Walz ignored the intent of the law.

In a planned "topfree picnic" on June 21, the seven women removed their tops amid jeering spectators on a remote lawn in Rochester's Cobbs Hill Park. They were charged with exposure.

Walz ruled in his 18-page decision that the charges should be dismissed because the group's shirtless appearance in public had a "minimal effect on public sensibilities" while the women were exercising "symbolic speech."

'Bangui Butcher' testifies

BANGUI, Central African Republic (UPI) — Emperor Jean-Bedel Bokassa denied Monday he tortured or murdered schoolchildren, but told a court, "I don't say I am a saint."

The former ruler, dubbed the "Butcher of Bangui," wore a crisp blue military uniform and posed for photographs before entering the courtroom for the reopening of his trial.

Bokassa's trial — on charges of murder, embezzlement and cannibalism stemming from his 13-year reign — opened Nov. 26, but then was postponed to give lawyers more time to prepare.

He acknowledged during opening statements that "unfortunate things may have happened" during his reign.

Bokassa, who returned home from exile in France Oct. 22, told reporters outside the courtroom he did not personally participate in the beating and torture of more than 100 schoolchildren in 1979.

FIFTY-NINE CHILDREN were killed, and the slayings led to a French-backed coup that ended Bokassa's reign.

Bokassa and six other people were tried and convicted of murdering the children for protesting that they could not afford elaborate school uniforms made in Bokassa's factories. All seven — including Bokassa, who fled after the coup and was tried in absentia — were sentenced to death in December 1980.

The other six defendants, including Bokassa's son-in-law, were executed in 1981.

Bokassa could receive the same sentence if convicted in his latest trial although some reports have said he might be expelled to France again.

BOKASSA, WHO rejected advice to remain in exile in his Paris chateau, was arrested by the military government of President Andre Kolingba on his arrival home.

Bokassa seized power in the country, one of the world's poorest, in a coup in 1966. Eleven years later, he had himself crowned emperor in a lavish $25 million ceremony that nearly bankrupted the nation.

He was ousted in 1979 in a bloodless coup that installed David Dacko, who later was toppled himself.

During his imperial reign, Bokassa adorned himself with jewels and dozens of medals he presented to himself while handing out punishments to prisoners from a marble throne — reportedly giving them the choice of dying in the jaws of crocodiles lurking in a pond or being torn apart by lions in a cage.

Corpses found in his palace kitchen's walk-in refrigerators seemed to support claims he dined on human flesh, though Bokassa always denied the charge.

Filipino rebels break truce

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Nineteen soldiers at a remote outpost fended off an attack by 100 communist guerrillas Monday — the first major rebel offensive since a cease-fire took effect five days ago, military officials said.

The government, meanwhile, stood firm in its decision not to allow deposed ruler Ferdinand Marcos to return from exile in Hawaii to attend the funeral of his younger sister, Elizabeth Keon, 65, who died Sunday.

Maj. Guillermo Matiling said guerrillas of the communist-led New People's Army mounted a dawn attack on a hill outpost in Madalag on central Panay island, 230 miles south of Manila.

Matiling said the 19 soldiers defended their post and forced the rebels to withdraw by mid-morning. No casualties were reported among the soldiers manning the hill outpost.

The official Philippine News Agency said Brig. Gen. Domingo Rio, the regional commander, called the Madalag attack a "clear violation of the cease-fire agreement" between the government and NPA.

The Madalag incident was the first major NPA attack on government forces since the 60-day truce went into effect Dec. 10.

President Corazon Aquino summoned armed forces chief Gen. Fidel Ramos, who was visiting the nearby island of Cebu, to Manila to discuss the incident at an emergency Cabinet meeting.

Aquilino Pimentel, a senior aide to Aquino, said the attack was one of two that Ramos brought up at the Cabinet meeting. He said the other was the NPA killing in Cebu of a store owner who allegedly refused "to pay (revolutionary) taxes" to the guerrillas.

ing they have not received a report from their men.

The five-member National Cease-fire Monitoring Committee, overseeing the truce, said a report on the attack had been filed by the military. It said it would conduct its own inquiry into the incident.

Officials have reported three other incidents, which have been brought to the attention of the committee, whose chairman, Bishop Antonio Fortish, said Monday the cease-fire "is still holding."

Pimentel also told reporters after the emergency Cabinet meeting that the Aquino government would stand firm in its decision to bar Marcos from the country and refuse him permission to attend his sister's funeral.

Marcos, 69, who was ousted Feb. 25 in a civilian-backed military revolt, said Sunday that communists were about to take over the government and that he wanted to help save the republic. He said he hoped to fly home during the Christmas holidays.

Iran-Iraq squabble halts oil agreement

GENEVA (UPI) — OPEC's 13 oil ministers, after a sixth day of year-end talks, said Monday they were near a final agreement on cutting production to force up oil prices despite a dispute between warring Iraq and Iran.

Saudi Arabia, OPEC's largest and most influential producer, proposed a 7.27 percent reduction in the cartel's current output ceiling of 17 million barrels a day in hopes of boosting oil prices to $18 a barrel.

But delegates said a feud between Persian Gulf war enemies Iraq and Iran over how much oil each should be allowed to produce posed the major obstacle to an accord.

Iran insisted that Iraq return to an official OPEC production quota, while the Iraqis demanded the same output allocation as Tehran.

Ramzi Salman Abdul Hussain, who led the Iraqi delegation in place of the Iraqi oil minister during the evening session, said there would be no softening of the Iraqi position.

Negotiators of the communist-led National Democratic Front declined comment on the incident, saying they have not received a report from their men.

The five-member National Cease-fire Monitoring Committee, overseeing the truce, said a report on the attack had been filed by the military. It said it would conduct its own inquiry into the incident.

Officials have reported three other incidents, which have been brought to the attention of the committee, whose chairman, Bishop Antonio Fortish, said Monday the cease-fire "is still holding."

Pimentel also told reporters after the emergency Cabinet meeting that the Aquino government would stand firm in its decision to bar Marcos from the country and refuse him permission to attend his sister's funeral.

Marcos, 69, who was ousted Feb. 25 in a civilian-backed military revolt, said Sunday that communists were about to take over the government and that he wanted to help save the republic. He said he hoped to fly home during the Christmas holidays.

THERE'S ABSOLUTELY no change and there will be no change," he told reporters. Asked if there was room for concession, Hussain said, "Someone else has to come out for the compromise."

In answer to reporters' questions about whether he was referring to Iran, Hussain said: "There are 12 others."

There was speculation Saudi Arabia's King Fahd might telephone Iraqi President Saddam Hussein in an attempt to persuade the Iraqis to come to terms with the rest of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Iraqi Oil Minister Qassim Taqi Al-Oraibi told reporters before the evening session that Iraq would curb its output if it does not have an official quota.

OPEC President Rilwanu Lukman, the Nigerian oil minister, was asked how the talks were progressing.

"Very well," he replied. But he only nodded his head when asked if a production-cutting pact was close.

United Arab Emirates Oil Minister Mana Saeed Otaiba said, "We are not very far from an agreement. We have done the cosmetic surgery and we are now applying the makeup."

Officials said the oil ministers would hold private negotiations this morning and then meet in full session this afternoon.

Oil prices rose on world markets in the apparent belief OPEC members would eventually agree on new production restraints to replace the current 17 million barrel-a-day ceiling, which expires Dec. 31.

THE 13 OIL ministers also engaged in intensive private bargaining in an attempt to resolve continuing differences among members on the size and sharing of an overall cut in output.

Saudi Arabia's new acting oil minister Hisham Nazer and Kuwaiti Minister Sheikh Ali Khalifa Al Sabah acted as intermediaries in trying to persuade Iran and Iraq to accept a compromise, delegates said.

Iraq refused to accept a fixed output quota under the temporary OPEC production ceilings adopted in August and October because it would have been less than Iran's allocation.

Other delegates pointed out there is little difference between what the two countries are producing because of their war.

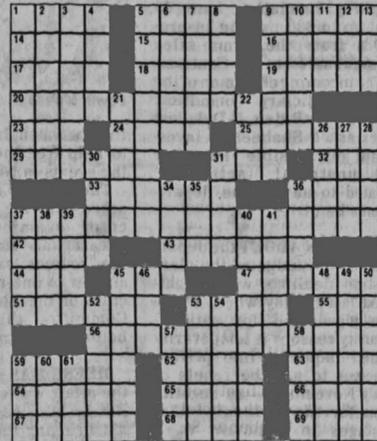

They said the Saudis suggested one compromise by which Iraq would "voluntarily" cut its production.

Petroleum Intelligence Weekly, the authoritative oil journal, said Saudi Arabia's King Fahd apparently reversed his earlier rejection of any reduction in the kingdom's production.

Cagers, wrestlers turn to boxing

By Kathleen O'Malley
Special to The Daily Iowan

Three fights between UI basketball players and wrestlers early Sunday morning may all be related, although no charges were filed, Iowa City police said Monday.

Six Iowa City police officers, along with several officers from the Coralville Police Department and the Johnson County Sheriff's Office, responded to a call from Holiday Inn Security that described a "large fight" out in the plaza near the hotel, located at 210 S. Dubuque St., reports state.

James Schmidt, of Solon, Iowa, told Iowa City police that he was a bystander when he was struck by Iowa basketball player, Ed Horton.

SCHMIDT, WHO WAS SICK in bed with the flu Monday night, was unable to comment.

Police also said they suspect two people who claimed to have been assaulted by an unidentified basketball player at about 2 a.m. Sunday, were injured in front of Burger King, 124 Dubuque St. The incident may be related to the earlier scuffle at Holiday Inn, reports state.

The third incident was described by UI Campus Security as a "near riot" at Rie-now Residence Hall.

Butler kick lets Bears elude Lions

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — Kevin Butler kicked a 22-yard field goal with four seconds left on the clock Monday night to help the Chicago Bears complete a 13-point fourth quarter and score a 16-13 victory over the Detroit Lions.

Chicago drove 50 yards in 11 plays for the winning score, calling time out with four seconds left to give Butler enough time to get on the field and kick his second field goal of the period and third of the game.

The victory improved the Bears' record to 13-2 and meant Chicago still can get home-field advantage throughout the NFC playoffs — but only if the New York Giants, also 13-2, lose to Green Bay on Sunday.

arched a 4-yard touchdown pass to Thompson in the left corner of the end zone following a Chicago turnover.

Both teams missed good opportunities in the third period. Detroit recovered the first of four Chicago fumbles of the quarter on the first play of the half, but fumbled the ball back to the Bears two plays later.

The fourth Chicago fumble gave Detroit the ball at its own 23.

Playoff picture becomes clear in the NFC

United Press International

The NFC playoff picture is nearly complete, but the AFC remains a mystery after Sunday's games. Here is a rundown of the often confusing playoff picture.

NFC East
NY Giants (13-2) — The Giants have clinched the division title. With a victory at home Saturday against Green Bay, the Giants will assure themselves the home field throughout the NFC playoffs. New York will at least host a divisional playoff game Jan. 3 or 4.

Washington (11-4) — The Redskins will be the home team in the Dec. 28 wild card game.

NFC Central
Chicago (12-2) — The Bears have clinched the NFC Central. If the Bears win their final two games and the Giants lose Saturday to Green Bay, Chicago will have the home field throughout the NFC playoffs. Regardless, Chicago will host a divisional playoff game Jan. 3 or 4.

NFC West
LA Rams (10-5) — The Rams have clinched at least a wild card berth. If they beat San Francisco Friday night they will win the division.

San Francisco (9-5-1) — The 49ers have clinched at least a wild card berth. If they beat

Randall gets revenge at UNI

CEDAR FALLS — When Iowa's Greg Randall sought revenge over Northern Iowa's Kurt Shedenhelm Saturday night, he wanted to make it count.

The 142-pound Iowa senior had lost to Shedenhelm at the Northern Open but turned the tables on his opponent Saturday and recorded a superior decision, 13-1.

"It's good to beat him the way I did. I don't think I would be satisfied if I went away with a two-point victory," Randall said. "Like (Iowa Coach Dan) Gable said how we got beat by Penn State by giving up. So, if scored a takedown and it wasn't until mid-second period when Gable yelled at Randall to 'look at the clock' when Randall took control and began to wrack up points.

"You concentrate on the match, but then again you have to concentrate on your coach. You've got to hear things. You've got to overhear the crowd. That's one thing about Gable. I'm used to listening to him. I can hear him over a yelling crowd," Randall said. "I put the crowd out of my mind; it's only us two on the mat. I could hear Gable over there yelling."

IT IS POSSIBLE, Randall said, that he could meet

Shedenhelm at the Midlands tournament in Evanston, Ill., Dec. 29-30. This year could prove to be tougher for everyone wrestling, Randall said.

Last season Randall wrestled at 134 pounds but moved up a weight after 142-pound Kevin Dresser graduated. Randall finished the season 27-7-0 and recorded seven falls. He placed second at the NCAA meet after losing to Wisconsin's Jim Jordan in the finals. This year the Mount Vernon, Iowa, native posts a 10-2-1 with three falls.

Randall said the loss to Penn State showed the Hawkeyes they need to improve to capture their 10th national title.

Sports gifts are popular item

Bobby Knight is a wanted man in Iowa City this Christmas.

It isn't really Knight people are after, but John Feinstein's book about the tempestuous Indiana coach.

The book, A Season on the Brink (McMillan: $16.95), is among the tops in this year's Christmas gift ideas, area merchants said. Other "hot" Iowa City Christmas gifts for sports fans include sweatshirts, exotic underwear, Christmas tree bulbs and any book written by a member of the Chicago Bears.

It's the Iowa sweatshirt that is the biggest seller among clothing this Christmas at several downtown stores. At times it seems like every Iowa student has a gray sweatshirt with the scripted Iowa across the front.

"STUDENTS WHO LIVE somewhere else want to take back a little something that says 'Iowa' on it," Julie Piffer, sales ed at Capitol Sports, Old Capitol Center, said.

And at Eby's Sporting Goods, Plaza Centre One, salesclerk Beth Simpson said her store features sweatshirts with logos for colleges from around the country.

"We had a guy who would come in here twice a week to buy sweatshirts and then send them to friends," Simpson said.

The sweatshirts retail for $22 at Eby's and any number of university logos are available depending on whether or not the school has sold its rights to the emblem.

An always popular Christmas gift for dad, flashy underwear, is also a hit this season, according to Rick Yancey of Hawkeye Heaven Inc., 14 S. Dubuque, and Diane Boyd of Capitol Sports.

THE POPULAR SILK undies come with both Tiger Hawk and Herky pattern boxers, and Yancey said they retail for $7.99.

"We can't keep these in," Yancey said of the shorts, adding that his store has sold 160 pairs in only two weeks.

"Students and people wanting gag gifts seem to like the boxers," he said.

Leann Nolte, cashier at the Union Bookstore, said she can always tell the Christmas shoppers from her other customers.

"You can always tell the people doing their Christmas shopping. They buy about six different things, and they're all Hawkeye items," she said as she pointed to a toy laser gun with Hawkeyes printed on it. "Anything with 'Iowa' on it

Sporting gifts such as these can be found at several neighborhood novelty stores in Iowa City. These particular items were provided by the Union Bookstore on the UI campus and Hawkeye Heaven.

Becker, Long among Hawkeyes' best

Senior Lisa Becker moved into second place on Iowa's all-time scoring list and senior Lisa Long moved into the runner-up position on the school's all-time rebounding chart during the Hawkeyes' 71-56 victory at Illinois State last Saturday.

Becker, a 6-4 center from Cedar Rapids, scored a game-high 19 points against the Redbirds to push her career total to 1034, five points better than Lisa Anderson's career mark of 1129. Long, a 5-11 forward, collected eight rebounds in the win and now has 627 for her career.

Becker and Long will be hard pressed to catch the all-time leading scorer and rebounder in Iowa history, Cindy Haugejorde. From 1976-80, Haugejorde accumulated 2059 points and 998 rebounds.

Holiday Bowl tickets are in San Diego

Students who ordered Holiday Bowl tickets may pick them up at the ticket office at Jack Murphy Stadium in San Diego December 28 and 29 between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m.

According to Holiday Bowl officials, anyone wishing to apply for tickets can be put on a waiting list but that they will not be guaranteed.

Iowa will be appearing in its sixth consecutive bowl game, four of which have been in California.

Iowa's two Rose Bowl appearances were in Pasadena, Cal. while the Freedom Bowl was in Anaheim, Cal.

Writers pouncing on Raiders

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—When it had been publicly suggested that pride and poise have been replaced by pushovers and purses, Howie Long of the Los Angeles Raiders had had it.

"You can't compare Jack Tatum to someone in our secondary right now," Long said. "You can't compare Willie Brown to someone in our secondary now. You can't compare John Matuszek to someone in our defensive line now. We've had great players on this team. The world goes around because everybody's different. That's just the way it is."

Cynical columnists in town have found all they've needed since the Raiders began the season 0-3. Now, following the Raiders' second three-game losing streak, Al Davis' team is only barely mathematically alive for a playoff spot.

"I think the game has changed since they played," Long said, referring to the Raiders of yesteryear. "I think the game has changed from an athletic standpoint. I think the game has changed from an information standpoint. Players are much better informed and much higher paid, obviously."

Fivefold, tenfold. So attitudes will change."

SO WILL WON-LOSS records.

"Let's wake up and smell the coffee," Long, who was a unanimous selection as an All-Pro defensive lineman last year, said. "This is 1986. People have lawyers. You just don't drag people out of cars in traffic. I don't think that's the way to judge football players."

"It's comical. What does that have to do with playing football. Because I don't roar and I don't wear skinny T-shirts and drive around on a Harley Davidson, I'm not the old Raider-type? Because I'm articulate and I went to college? What does that have to do with it? It's comical the way people perceive a football team to be."

"Tongue in cheek is one thing, but when you read it over and over and over again, I find it very annoying. Not to the point where it affects my night. Let's not flatter anybody."

LONG, ABOUT TO conclude his sixth season in the NFL, has too much pride to casually accept 1986.

"It's been a tough year," he said. "At points, it's been frustrating. Fortunately, I haven't been struck down with any type of serious injury. I've played six years and I've missed three games. One of them, there was a possibility I could've played in but that was left up to the owner (Davis) and the owner decided it was best not to chance tearing my hamstring."

Long missed a game in mid-season with a blood clot above the knee.

"I was laying in bed last night with the lights off thinking about the season and some of the things that have happened to me and some of the things that have happened to the team," he said. "Me being invincible, I got to believing that you've got some type of bubble around you. I think I'm walking very close to God, and I think it has something to do with my grandmother. That may sound funny to you, but I think my grandmother is going right from this life to saint-hood. She has some heavy connections."

"THE BLOOD CLOT thing was a little bit frustrating because it wasn't the thing where you could tell what was wrong. It does get you thinking that you're not quite the stud that you thought you were."

And the Raiders have proven they're not the studs they thought they were.

"I think there's a tendency to play down to the competition here, for whatever reason that might be," Long said. "Emotions are a complex thing. Often time you don't feel inspired until you get challenged."

For the fifth straight year, the Raiders failed to meet the challenge when they played in the Kingdom. They were humiliated 37-0 two weeks ago before a national audience on Monday night and further fueled the theory that they are intimidated in Seattle. Their season has since crumbled.

"I personally like playing in the Kingdom," Long said. "I don't get psyched out by playing in the Kingdom or any place else. The way I look at it, the crowd isn't coming down and kicking you. It doesn't bother me. I've been in violent crowds before, not just vocal ones, physically violent."

"It's not like we're going back to Camden, N.J., to play the Camden Knights. Win or lose you're going to get your butt kicked on the way to the bus."

Veteran Van Note leaves NFL

ATLANTA (UPI) — Jeff Van Note brushed a tear from his cheek while watching a highlight film of his 18 years with the Atlanta Falcons.

The 40-year-old center will retire after next week's game in Detroit and the Falcons took advantage Sunday of his last home appearance as a player by staging a halftime ceremony in his honor.

Van Note's wife, Dee, clutched his hand as the gray-haired veteran stood on a podium at midfield and listened to words of praise, including a note from President Reagan.

"My cup is full," he told the crowd when it became his turn to speak.

Only five players in league history, none of them offensive linemen, have played in more NFL games. When Van Note plays against the Lions, he'll be making his 246th appearance to move into a fifth-place tie with Fran Tarkenton.

ONLY JIM MARSHALL, who played 270 of his 282 NFL games with the Minnesota Vik-

"I've had a lot of time to prepare for this," Falcon Jeff Van Note says of his retirement. "This is like coming to the end of a long journey. You're kind of happy to get there."

ings, has appeared in more games with the same team. George Blanda, the overall leader with 340, divided his 27-year career among four teams.

After Blanda and Marshall, the all-time list has quarterback Earl Morrall in third place at 265 and kicker Jan Stenerud fourth at 263.

Van Note, an 11th-round draft choice out of Kentucky in 1969, became a starter in 1970 and held that role until this season when he was finally pushed into a backup role by 25-year-old Wayne Radloff.

"I decided before the season began that when I was no longer to be a starter it would be time to turn to something else," Van Note said. "I stuck it out this season because I felt I owed it to the team."

WHEN VAN NOTE first joined the Falcons, it was as an outside linebacker. They switched him first to middle linebacker, then to center.

"It worked out great for the Falcons and for Jeff that (then Coach Norm) Van Brocklin saw him as a center," Falcons marketing director Tommy Nobis, who was a fixture at middle linebacker in those days, said. "I knew he wasn't going to beat me out."

Van Note, who missed only four games (with a knee injury) in the 18 seasons, said he probably would be more concerned about giving up football after having played the sport for 30 consecutive years (beginning in a Catholic school league in Louisville, Ky., in 1957) if he had played more regularly this season.

"I'VE HAD A LOT of time to prepare for this," he said. "This is like coming to the end of a long journey. You're kind of happy to get there. It's time to move on."

Move on to what? "Right now, I haven't thought about my future," he said. "I'm going to work on my house and then think about it. Some have suggested I should go into coaching, but that's not on my mind. I'll never say never, but I'm not thinking about going in that direction."

Many of the 18 seasons were disappointing ones for Van Note. The only time the Falcons ever won more than nine games was in 1980 when they were 12-4, then got knocked out of the playoffs in the opening round by Dallas. He got to play in only four playoff games in all those years and was on the winning side only once.

Gifts

there have been several sports books selling well this Christmas.

After the Feinstein book, biographies about Mike Ditka and Jim McMahon are also top sellers along with John Madden's second book, One Knee equals Two Feet.

"It's unusual that there are so many (sports books) doing well at one time," Veal said. "Normally Christmas sales are good, but usually it's no specific book," Joe Ziegler, section manager at Iowa Book and Supply, 8 S. Clinton, said, adding that baseball books generally sell well as Christmas gifts.

HARRIS SAID The area's large Cub fan population buys up the annual Cub calendar quickly.

"We have 100 of them, and people buy them up like crazy," Harris said. Holiday Bowl items have been selling shakily, Simpson said, but she expected sales to pick up as the game date neared while at Iowa Book and Supply. Holiday Bowl memorabilia items were selling well.

At Iowa Book and Supply, salesclerk Judy Stanchour said that Iowa sweatshirts and items were selling well and that some of the stores orders are to buyers in Michigan, Texas, and Illinois for Christmas orders.

Playoffs

the Rams Friday night they will win the division.

AFC East
New England (10-5) — The Patriots will win the division if they beat Miami Monday night. If the Patriots lose to Miami and two teams from among Cincinnati, Kansas City and Seattle lose, New England would be a wild card team. If the Patriots lose to Miami and two or more other AFC teams finish 10-6, not including the Jets, New England does not make the playoffs.

NY Jets (10-5) — The Jets have clinched at least a wild card spot. They will win the division if New England loses to Miami.

Miami (8-7) — The Dolphins can be a wild card team if they beat New England, and Kansas City, the Los Angeles Raiders and Cincinnati lose Sunday.

AFC Central
Cleveland (11-4) — The Browns have clinched the division title. If they beat San Diego next Sunday, they will play at home throughout the playoffs.

Cincinnati (9-6) — The Bengals can earn a wild card berth if they beat the Jets and Kansas City loses to Pittsburgh, or if Cincinnati and Kansas City win and New England loses to Miami.

AFC West
Denver (11-4) — The Broncos have clinched the division title. They can secure the home field throughout the playoffs if they beat Seattle Saturday and Cleveland loses to San Diego.

Kansas City (9-6) — The Chiefs will clinch a wild card berth if they beat Pittsburgh Sunday. Seattle (9-6) — For the Seahawks to be a wild card team they must beat Denver Saturday, and Kansas City and either Cincinnati or New England must lose.

LA Raiders (8-7) — The Raiders can be a wild card team if they defeat Indianapolis Sunday and Seattle, Kansas City and Cincinnati all lose.

Possible action on Gooden case is delayed

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — The arraignment of New York Met pitcher Dwight Gooden and four others charged with resisting arrest with violence and battery on a police officer probably will be delayed until after Christmas, court officials said Monday.

Dwight Gooden read, "Mets fan on board." Gooden was given a blood-alcohol test at the hospital following the scuffle that left three officers and Gooden requiring treatment for minor injuries.

"IF ANY CHARGES stem from that test, the test results become evidentiary and won't come out until the trial," Tampa police spokesman Johnny Barker said. "If not, the test results are of no use and they won't come out."

Court officials said police reports will be given to the state attorney's office, and if the charges are upheld, the paperwork will be sent to the clerk of court and the case will be assigned to a judge. A spokeswoman in the clerk's office said that with the holiday season approaching, most judges probably wouldn't schedule anything until January because of the preliminary background work required.

Gooden, who was released on his own recognizance early Sunday morning, was wearing a blue and green jumpsuit Monday and was wearing sunglasses. There was just a slight hint of puffiness near his left eye but no apparent cuts or bruises. He was treated Saturday night at Tampa General Hospital, which administered the blood-alcohol test.

Also arrested were Gooden's nephew, 18-year-old Gary Sheffield, a player in the Milwaukee farm chain; 23-year-old Vance Lovelace, a minor-league player for the California Angels; Phillip Walker Jr., 23, and a 17-year-old male whose name was not released.

ON SATURDAY afternoon, Gooden and his companions participated in a charity softball game and attended Saturday night's Florida-South Florida basketball game. According to the arrest affidavit, Gooden was driving a silver 1984 Mercedes-Benz and Sheffield was driving a red Corvette on the way back from the game.

Police Lt. Tim Cotter said Tampa police officer Jeffrey L. Smith spotted the two cars weaving and pulled both vehicles off the road in a North Tampa residential neighborhood. In his affidavit, Smith said Gooden exited his car shouting and using profane language. According to Smith, Gooden came up from behind him while Smith was walking to another car and a scuffle ensued with Tampa officer L.S. Wolff attempting to subdue Gooden with a choke hold. Smith also said Sheffield started struggling, once handcuffed.

One man, claiming to be an eyewitness to the incident, said in a televised interview that Tampa police officers hit Gooden and the others while they were down on the ground. Barker declined comment on the allegation and said all of the witnesses were interviewed at the scene.

Bulls suffer from lack of centers; only 'twin towers' are downtown

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago does have twin towers; unfortunately for the championship hopes of the Chicago Bulls, they are in the Loop rather than near the hoop.

The new key to success in the NBA is to have two tall, imposing centers. Houston has Akeem Olajuwon and Ralph Sampson, Boston has Robert Parish and Bill Walton and the even New York Knicks have Patrick Ewing and Bill Cartwright.

Chicago's answer to all of this: Granville Waiters, Mike Brown and Dave Corzine.

Huh? Waiters, Brown and Corzine? Twin towers? How about twin fire hydrants.

Now Chicago has had a reputation for twin towers. The Sears Tower and the John Hancock building shoot into the Chicago horizon which would make one think this city's NBA team should do the same.

BULLS' MANAGEMENT, led by Vice President of Operations Jerry Krause, has seen fit to bypass acquiring at least one good center this year. While winning teams are stockpiling centers, the Bulls are stockpiling guards.

The only true center, Jawann Oldham, a 7-footer, was dispatched to the Knicks for a first round draft choice late in October. That left Waiters and Corzine as their principal two centers.

Oh sure, Chicago does have possibly the best player in the NBA in Michael Jordan, who plays like a center at times. Jordan could average 40 points per game this year — the most since the days of Wilt Chamberlain. And, as long as he stays healthy, Chicago will be a great gate attraction and a much superior club to last year.

BUT THE BULLS' thinking has been like the middle ages when it comes to developing a complete team. The days when teams won with a standout guard alone went away when Jerry West and Oscar Robertson were around — about a quarter of a century ago.

The Bulls have had their chances to obtain centers, both via the draft and trade route. Chicago did choose a 7-footer last summer in Brad Sellers in the NBA draft, but Krause and new Bulls' coach Doug Collins are calling him a small forward or a big guard. Scouts say he is a 7-footer who plays like someone 6-4, just the opposite of Jordan who plays like someone 7-feet tall even though he is 6-4.

The Bulls have never won a NBA title and frankly have had just one legitimate significant-impact post man in their history — Artis Gilmore. Chicago was able to win in the mid-1970s with the likes of a Nate Thurmond and Tom Boerwinkle, but that was before the current twin-tower trend in the NBA.

THE BULLS CAN BE competitive in most games thanks to Jordan. But in the long haul, the club is just average without any type of force in the middle.

The college pool is a bit bare when it comes to available post men next summer. So even getting into the NBA lottery and having a shot at a big center that would make a difference would appear slim.

A trade would be the most likely way to get at least one tower into Chicago. But trades aren't easy to make, especially when all you can dangle is a Corzine or Waiters.

Hoping Michael Jordan would grow about eight inches is another, but the odds on that aren't too great either.

As a result, the Bulls will continue to be on a roller coaster — Jordan's roller coaster. Until the center situation is resolved, it could continue to be a bumpy ride.

Lonely America II logs hollow win

FREMANTLE, Australia (UPI) — America II, stripped of its skipper and tactician, sailed a lonely race Monday to claim a hollow victory.

The 11 crewmen, for the last time, maneuvered around each leg of the 24.5-mile Indian Ocean course for an automatic 12 points earned because of last week's withdrawal of Challenge France.

Glistening in the sunlight, the boat the crew called "The Eliminator" was itself eliminated from the regatta Sunday by a 15-second loss to New Zealand's KZ7.

Too drained to sail America II in its final Cup appearance, skipper John Kolius, of Darien, Conn., and tactician John Bertrand, of San Francisco, turned the reins over to others.

For the first time in the 135-year history of the event, the New York Yacht Club will not be involved in the final match for the prestigious trophy.

THE NYC'S HEADQUARTERS in Manhattan had housed the America's Cup trophy for 132 years before it was lost to Australia in 1983. It won't have another chance at winning it back until 1991.

Assistant Secretary John Bassett confirmed the news to the hundreds of members who bothered to phone.

"They all wanted to know how John Kolius was doing," Bassett said. "When I told them, most of them went quiet. It wasn't as bad as the day we lost the Cup. This time, most just sighed and said we would try again."

Despite the grim ordeal of completing the eight-legged course without an opponent or hope of a semifinal berth, business went as usual at the America II compound, with a 6 a.m. workout, breakfast and a trip down to the docks where a handful of steadfast supporters cheered crew members off one last time.

WITH SAILING DIRECTOR Tom McLaughlin at the helm, the crew meticulously rounded the marks, maintaining the determined spirit that carried the men through three years of training for lia in 1983. It won't have another chance at winning it back until 1991.

a race they will not get to sail.

An undecorated Christmas tree stood forlornly in the soon-to-be-disbanded hospitality suite as the syndicate's general manager, Bill Packer, said the dockside facilities will be closed. There still will be spectator boats available for supporters cheering on the two U.S. teams competing in the semifinals: San Francisco's U.S.A. and Dennis Conner's Stars & Stripes.

"You haven't heard the last of the New York Yacht Club," Packer said. "Wherever the Cup is sailed — Auckland, New Zealand; San Diego, Calif.; San Francisco, Calif.; the Mediterranean; or in Fremantle — we'll be there."

The unexpectedly swift demise of America II left many members of the crew and support staff baffled about their plans. Public Relations Director Jack Wilkie was so certain America II would be the challenger, he scheduled his wedding for Jan. 6 between the semifinals and finals.

Since the Fremantle church has been booked and the invitations sent out, Wilkie said, "We'll go ahead as planned."

Big bucks fail to pay off for Cubs

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago Cubs' President Dallas Green shook his head in disbelief as he glanced over a table full of statistics, charts and graphs.

Green knows that he made a deep dive into the free agent market two years ago to retain the starting pitchers he thought were needed to keep the Cubs champions throughout the 1980s.

He invested nearly $4 million of the Chicago Tribune Co.'s money to re-sign the likes of Rick Sutcliffe, Dennis Eckersley and Steve Trout after Chicago won the National League Eastern Division title in 1984.

But like a bad stock deal, he saw his investment fail to pay dividends. The free agents he signed wound up being unproductive and the Cubs slid in the standings.

"The whole free agent business was got me puzzled, I'll be honest with you," Green said. "I thought it was necessary in 1984 to re-sign these guys along with Tim Lincecum to keep the club together. I spent the money. I don't regret it. But it didn't work out."

LAST YEAR, THE three Cubs' starters won a collective 19 games. It figured out to be approximately $150,000 per victory.

"Who in the world knew that they would all break down like that after I signed those big free agent contracts," Green, again shaking his head as he glanced over a page of pitching statistics showing Chicago last in the league last year, said. "Trout gets hurt in spring training of 1985; Sutcliffe, who had given his teams 200 or more plus innings four straight years, gets hurt; Eckersley gets hurt and is ineffective."

Green likes figures. He has an armload of stats that back his contention free agency not only isn't good for ballclubs but actually works against the individual and the team.

"All I know is that history proves it. Free agent people, once they sign the contract, over 50 percent of pitchers and players have less productive years. I don't know why, but they do," Green insists.

GREEN ADDS THERE is no conspiracy among ownership, a charge made by players over the past two years. Free agents — in most cases — spell bad news for clubs trying to win and stay within a budget, according to Green.

"I've explained this to the agents for the players. I can understand why people want to become free agents and even come here. We take care of our people," Green said. "But I think free agency isn't working out for the clubs and something has got to be done."

The Cubs' boss isn't totally against paying a player what he is worth, as long as the figures back up his worth. Green said during the height of the free agent bidding wars, however, this wasn't the case.

"Baseball has got to get back into production. Just because a guy has gotten a contract because he has reached a certain status of his career doesn't mean that he gets big bucks. I'm puzzled by the free agent mess," Green said.

'Star Trek IV' flies crew back to the present to save Earth

By Teresa Heger
Arts/entertainment Editor

STAR TREK IV: The Voyage Home is a fun-filled phaser blast from the past.

Not only does the infamous crew of the now-disintegrated Starship Enterprise travel into the past (our present) to try to salvage the Earth's future, but the film's director, Leonard Nimoy, also sends the film spinning into its "Star Trek" past — warping back beyond the first three movies into the murky recesses and idyllic spirit of the '60s series.

The resulting film captures not only the action and excitement of a large-screen movie, but also the special nuances of the relationships that exist between the well-developed TV characters. Star Trek IV offers the best of both worlds, galactically speaking. No small feat, even for Mr. — er, Director — Spock.

THE FILM STARTS out where Star Trek III: The Search for Spock left off. Capt. Kirk, after finding Spock (of course), is resting on the planet Vulcan, preparing for his return flight to Earth. The trip home to the third planet does not look promising for Kirk — it's certainly not going to be a jaunt to Riverside, Iowa, to say hello to the folks and check on the corn.

No, old Jimbo has really done it this time (to paraphrase Dr. McCoy). A court martial awaits his return. Not only did Kirk disobey Starfleet commands, steal the Enterprise and then — worst of all — blow her up, he also tampered with the new starship Excelsior and embarrassed a lot of high command officers.

LUCKILY FOR Capt. Kirk, Romulans and bureaucrats never win on "Star Trek." Even as he and his trusty standbys (Spock, Dr. McCoy,

Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home

Directed by Leonard Nimoy. Music by Leonard Rosenman. Screenplay by Steve Meerson, Peter Krikes, Harve Bennett and Nicholas Meyer. Story by Leonard Nimoy and Harve Bennett.

Capt. Kirk William Shatner
Mr. Spock Leonard Nimoy
Dr. McCoy DeForest Kelley
Uhura Nichelle Nichols

Scotty, Uhura, Chekov and Sulu) head back to Earth to face the music, fate intervenes. A strange space probe, emitting deafening, unintelligible signals begins to destroy the Earth's atmosphere. Not only is it causing floods and freezing rain on the planet, the probe is also disabling all surrounding space-ships, space stations and satellites by simply shutting off their power. The Earth is literally cut off from the sun.

Of course, Capt. James T. Kirk is coming to the rescue. In five short minutes, Kirk and Spock manage to discover that the probe is signaling for whales — creatures extinct in the 23rd century. But this is only a minor setback. Quicker than you can circle the sun, Capt. Kirk and Co. have traveled back into the past — San Francisco, 1986 — to retrieve some whales.

THIS IS WHERE the movie really takes off. The possibilities for humor are endless. Chekov, with his Russian accent, wanders about with Uhura, asking for the locations of nuclear reactors. Scotty, the miracle worker, has to build a tank in the ship to hold whales. Spock, with (covered) pointed ears and a white robe, looks like a Moonie.

And of course, there is Capt. Kirk and his eternal romances. This time he conveniently charms a young marine-life specialist named Gillian (Catherine Hicks) — convenient, because she has direct access to two captive whales.

The plot is silly at best. But, unlike the three earlier films, Star Trek IV has a message — it is a plea for the preservation of whales. There is a definite, '60s feel to the movie, almost a return to "hippie" attitudes. It is interesting that Spock is passed off, quite nicely, as a Berkeley graduate — someone who has spaced out on too much "LDS," according to Kirk.

Of course, Star Trek IV is not perfect. Hicks overplays her part — the way she maternally beams down at her baby whales as they play in their tank is enough to make the viewer wish she would fall overboard.

THE ENTERPRISE CREW is also hindered by another problem; it is, quite literally, getting old. Capt. Kirk just can't convincingly play the casanova anymore, and his hair looks like it might float off on its own in underwater shots. (The previous films dealt with Kirk's middle-age crisis. Unfortunately, William Shatner hasn't seemed to come to terms with this yet.)

The film also fell short of its potential for humor. While the film was funny, it could have been funnier — the situations the crew could have encountered in modern-day San Francisco are endless. What if Chekov and Sulu had wandered into a television shop and seen reruns of themselves? The script also glossed over some major plot developments and explanations — many loose threads were left dangling at the end of the film.

Yet overall, Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home is a must-see, both for hardcore Trekkies and even the unconverted. After all, who can resist taking a peek into galaxies where no man has gone before?
