Iowa politicians denounce education plan

By Phil Thomas
Staff Writer

President Ronald Reagan's proposed budget cuts in higher education will have a hard time passing through Congress, Iowa politicians said Wednesday.

"The president doesn't have the ability to gut an entire program," said Rep. Fred Grandy, R-Iowa.

Under fire is Reagan's proposed budget for the 1988 fiscal year which includes the slashing of $1.4 billion from the national education budget.

"The reality is that the president is not going to get that," Grandy said. "The budget committee just kind of scoffed at it."

Legislators will be setting agendas for budget discussion later this month in subcommittee meetings, Grandy said.

Rep. Dave Nagle, D-Iowa, said he also doubts the House of Representatives will readily accept Reagan's plans but added that there will be a lot of debate.

"It's not going to be done without a fight," the Third District's freshman representative said.

NAGLE SAID THE Pell Grant program may be in jeopardy if the plan is approved.

Another task for Congress will be redirecting money from the defense program toward research programs at colleges and universities, he said.

Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, said a main goal of many legislators will be to make sure higher education programs get their fair share of appropriations from the proposed budget.

It is doubtful any new major education programs will be introduced, Smith said, but legislators will be working to sustain programs that already exist.

"FINANCIAL AID is a big ticket item and has enjoyed a 30 percent increase in the past four years," he said. "It won't be easy to sustain that in the face of a new budget."

Smith said the financial aid issue will cause a stir in Capitol Hill. "Of course there will be some controversy on student aid," he said.

Bob Rasmussen, spokesman for Rep. Jim Ross Lightfoot, R-Iowa, agreed the first major task of the new Congress will be to iron out Reagan's budget.

"In the near future they'll be getting down to the nitty-gritty," he said.

Nagle urged UI students to make their voices heard in Washington.

"I think students should realize they have a stake in this," Nagle said. "The Iowa delegation needs to know about it from them."

Reporter ordered expelled from Iran

United Press International

Wall Street Journal reporter Gerald Seib, held in Iran for four days on spy charges, was ordered expelled Wednesday, Iran's official IRNA news agency and Tehran Radio reported.

But Wall Street Journal editors said they did not know if Seib had left Iran or where he might be headed. Seib's family in Hays, Kan., said they were buoyed by reports of his expulsion but had no confirmation he was free.

IRNA quoted an Information Ministry official as saying Seib was "expelled from Iran Wednesday after a judicial probe of his case ended."

Tehran Radio, monitored in Athens, also quoted an Information Ministry official as saying Seib "has been expelled from the country" following a judicial inquiry.

THE REPORTS did not give Seib's destination and failed to make clear whether he actually left the country Wednesday or was merely ordered expelled. IRNA later quoted "an informed source" as saying Seib "will be leaving Tehran Thursday."

Seib's wife, Journal correspondent Barbara Rosewicz, flew to Zurich, Switzerland, from Cairo, Egypt, Wednesday.

In New York, Journal Foreign Editor Karen House said, "We've heard the news reports and hope they're true, but have not been contacted formally."

At the Seib family home in Hays, Seib's brother, Paul, said the family would not begin celebrating until they receive official word of Seib's expulsion from the Journal, the Swiss government or Seib himself.

"WE'RE ELATED but reserved. We're happy that all this is going on," Paul Seib said.

Prior to the IRNA and Tehran radio reports on Seib's expulsion, Iranian Prime Minister Mir Hossein Musavi told the government-run Kayhan newspaper that Seib would be expelled in two or three days.

The newspaper quoted Musavi as saying Seib tried to gather "unusual information in the war zone" when he visited the front with other journalists last week.

It said Seib tried to get information on Iranian "defense positions and their tactical lines" but that it was unlikely he learned anything useful because of the "alertness of our authorities" who accompanied him.

SEIB WAS one of about 50 foreign correspondents invited to Iran last month to see the fighting made by Iranian troops in their latest offensive against Iraq. The reporters were taken — under supervision — to the front lines, then brought back to Tehran and ordered to leave the country by Jan. 31 — last Saturday.

Seib and several others requested visa extensions but an Iranian official warned that any journalists who tried to extend their stay "would face serious problems."

Son's tomb is setting for nuptials

PENSACOLA, Fla. (UPI) — When Wanda Studelein's son died before he could be best man at her wedding, she got married on his grave so that "we were all together."

Standing on the grave Tuesday, surrounded by flowers still fresh from Friday's funeral, Studelein, 36, married Ronald Grimes, 33. The vows were read by the cemetery's assistant manager, the Rev. Lynn Toney.

Studelein said her son, Shannon Studelein, 11, was excited about being best man. But last week, while skateboarding, he was struck and killed by a car.

Senate wins fight for clean water

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, in a crushing defeat Wednesday for President Ronald Reagan, overrode his veto of a popular $20 billion clean water bill that he called a "budget-buster" and made it law.

The Senate vote was 86-14 and came one day after the House voted 401-26 to override the president.

White House spokesman Albert Brashear said Reagan, who was resigned to defeat in his first confrontation with the 100th Congress, was disappointed, but added, "Congress has spoken."

But Brashear cautioned: "Congress knows it can't have it both ways — continue passing budget-busting bills and have any chance of meeting the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction targets."

The veto of the bill was Reagan's 60th; the Senate vote marked the seventh time a Reagan veto was overridden.

Those voting against overriding the veto included Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas, who voted for the bill last month after he failed to win passage of a $12 billion substitute backed by Reagan.

ONE DEMOCRAT, James Exon of Nebraska, joined 13 Republicans in voting no.

The override was welcomed by environmental groups. Dan Becker of Environmental Action said, "Congress told the president that the American people don't want to drink sewage in their water."

Sierra Club President Lawrence Downing said, "The public's demand for clean water is so strong that it sticks to President Reagan's Teflon coating."

David Baker of Friends of the Earth said three Republican presidential hopefuls — Vice President George Bush, Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., and Dole — might be hurt by the veto, citing Bush's "usual silence," Kemp's no vote Wednesday and Dole's offer of the Reagan-backed substitute.

Senators rose before the vote to criticize the president, with John Chafee of Rhode Island, the bill's key GOP sponsor, saying again the president had made "a serious mistake" in vetoing the bill.

"I AM SADDENED that the president missed an opportunity to join Congress in taking an important step toward meeting our common goal of assuring cleaner lakes, rivers and streams," he said.

He also dismissed Reagan's description of the bill as a "budget-buster" that is "loaded with waste and larded with pork."

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia marshaled forces from both parties for the veto override. Byrd, like the sponsors, viewed the fight as principally reflecting a spending dispute, not a political one.

"I think it signifies change in the political situation to a degree," he said, but, "I think it would have been overridden in a Republican-controlled Senate."

The GOP lost its six-year hold on the Senate in the Nov. 4 elections.

WHEN THE CLEAN water bill passed Congress in October, Reagan took no action and the measure died. The 100th Congress passed the bill again as the first order of business, but Friday, Reagan vetoed it as a "budget-buster" fat with pork-barrel amendments.

But even in vetoing the bill, Reagan said he knew he would be overridden.

The bill calls for $18 billion in grants to help cities build sewage treatment plants over nine years, and an additional $2 billion for other pollution control programs.

The authorized grants include $9.6 billion to cover 55 percent of construction costs and $8.4 billion to state revolving loan funds for such construction.

The measure also seeks stepped-up efforts to clean up lakes, rivers and estuaries — including special programs for the Great Lakes and Chesapeake Bay.

It extends and adds to programs created under the Clean Water Act of 1972.

65 mph speed limit gets mixed reviews

By Brian Olesen
Staff Writer

UI students say they're excited about the chance to legally drive 65 mph on U.S. interstates if a recent congressional bill becomes law.

The U.S. Senate passed a bill Tuesday that would allow states to raise the speed limit from 55 mph to 65 mph on most interstate roads.

"I think it's a good idea — nobody drives 55, anyway," said Robert Rappold, 1141 Slater Residence Hall.

"On the highway I could be going 60 mph and have people pass me," Rappold said of his trips home to Chicago. "I just try and keep up with them."

For the most part, other UI students agree.

"I do realize it might be bad in the respect some lives may be lost," said UI law student James Russel Hixson, 702 E. Washington St. "But I know when I'm going home (to Des Moines) on Interstate 80, I go between 65 and 70 mph."

MANY UI STUDENTS say they believe those who drive on

"... I prefer a speed limit of 62 or 63 mph, so if the motorist hits 65 mph, he knows he is going to court," says Iowa State Highway Patrol Col. Frank Metzger.

U.S. interstates exceed 55 mph.

"The majority of people on the highways speed anyway," Robert Pruden, 716 N. Dubuque St., said.

But those opposing raising the speed limit cite statistics, saying thousands of people would be killed at the expense of saving a little time.

"The statistics they're using are very misleading," Pruden said.

"Fewer people were on the road when the 55 mph speed limit was passed because of the oil embargo," Pruden said. "There are more people driving now because oil prices are lower."

The 55 mph speed limit was passed in 1973 after an Arab oil embargo in an effort to conserve fuel.

BUT CURRENT legislation must still gain approval in the U.S. House of Representatives. A majority of representatives may not vote in favor of 65 mph law, which is attached to a four-year, $5.2 billion highway bill.

And at least one state highway official believes states should set their own speed limits.

"Iowa has a good road system," Col. Frank Metzger, of Iowa State Patrol Headquarters in Des Moines, said. "Personally, I have very strong mixed emotions on the speed limit. Fifty-five mph saves lives, but I'm a strong advocate of states' rights."

"I could live with a 65 mph speed limit," Metzger said. "But I prefer a speed limit of 62 or 63 mph, so if the motorist hits 65 mph, he knows he is going to court."

Cemetery decorations must be removed

Residents who have placed artificial decorations on graves at Oakland Cemetery, 1000 Brown St., and wish to preserve them for re-use must remove the decorations before March 2, according to Iowa City Administrative Offices.

The decorations need to be removed for the annual cleanup at the cemetery, which begins March 2. All artificial materials remaining at that time will be discarded, Cemetery Director Jim Wonick said.

No artificial decorations are permitted at the cemetery during the growing season except during Memorial Day observances.

Cut flowers in plastic containers and plantings of annuals and perennials are permitted if cared for by the family.

Property tax hike planned in Coralville

By Carol Monaghan
Staff Writer

The Coralville City Council proposed a property tax increase while polishing the final version of its $5.7 million budget for fiscal 1988 this week.

Council members proposed the increase in the property tax levy — to $9.50 per $1,000 taxable valuation from an earlier proposed $9 — after finding a $27,500 shortfall in the budget and a carry-over balance that was considered too low.

Coralville's current property tax levy rate is $8.

The estimated carry-over balance, which was estimated at $473,000, is the amount of money left after the end of a fiscal year before new taxes are paid.

But many councilors said they believed the $9 amount is too little to operate at a safe level.

"Under my original proposal, some councilors thought the operating balance would be too low for comfort, too low for good business," Coralville Mayor Michael Kattchee said. "What we have now is a substantial increase from the present year, but still in a prudent tax range."

KATTCHÉE SAID there was no tax increase from past fiscal year 1986 to present fiscal year 1987 and that council members were aware of the need for a levy increase for next year.

The 50-cent increase from the original levy would raise about $100,000 for the city. This would bring the city's assets raised through property taxes for the upcoming fiscal year to an estimated $2,194,000.

Of this amount, $8.10 per $1,000 taxable valuation, or about 80 percent, would go towards the budget operating costs. The other $1.91, or about 20 percent of the levy, would fund debt services for the city.

To the average taxpayer, the proposed $9.50 levy would mean a 19 percent increase in property taxes. The owner of a home with a taxable valuation of $60,000 would pay an additional $90 a year to the city.

Kattchee said the increase in the proposed property levy was necessary to continue providing city services at level acceptable to Coralville residents.

"EVERYONE MINDS paying additional property taxes," Kattchee said. "But people don't mind a proper level of taxation. The increase in the levy is to provide services as expected by the city. We proposed this levy to provide these services."

Other budget issues discussed by councilors include:

• Recreation Center/Indoor Pool: Coralville Councilor Diane Lundell said the city can maintain the current level of services and raise the level of support in other areas as the result of the property tax increase.

The city's new indoor pool and in addition to the recreation center will absorb one-third of the proposed increase in the levy. The council estimates an increase of more than $100,000 in the Coralville parks budget for bond payments and six months operating costs.

• Fire: The Coralville Fire Department was another winner in the budget battle. The council proposed an additional $340,000 for a new ladder truck.

• Transit Subsidies: The budget proposal includes a subsidy reduction of about $33,000 to Coralville Transit Bus Co., down from $35,000 to an estimated $307,000.

"The council is tentatively proposing no cutbacks," Kattchee said. "But it's use it or lose it. It's possible the council will consider service reductions if fare revenue continues to decrease and ridership continues to decrease."

The date for the public hearing for the final consideration of the 1988 fiscal budget proposal has yet to be set.

ARH schedules seminars for 'Sexual Awareness Week'

By Joseph Levy
Assistant Metro Editor

UI Associated Residence Halls has declared Feb. 9-13 "Sexual Awareness Week" at the UI, and has scheduled 12 lectures and seminars designed to teach students the implications of having sex.

ARH President Larry Pearlman explained students just don't know about the services available to them.

"There is a lot of just plain ignorance," Pearlman said. "This is our response."

Pearlman said ARH began considering the program when an attempt to distribute condoms in UI residence halls earlier this year stirred up much attention.

Other sensitive issues, such as abortion and AIDS, are scheduled to be discussed during the week, but Pearlman and other ARH officials said the wide variety of topics represented in the program has curbed negative reaction.

"WE'VE KEPT it balanced enough so that most people's viewpoints are expressed somewhere in the week," ARH Residence Hall Life Committee Chair Mike Wild said.

Pearlman added that speakers and participants in the lectures will do their best to keep conversation tasteful.

UI Residence Services Director George Droll said he is anxious to see what good effects the program will have.

"We're enthused," Droll said. "We think it's an excellent educational program."

Wild added the program should, at minimum, make students aware of the health services available to them.

"Generally, nobody knew where (Student Health Service) was or where they could get assistance," Wild said. "If they know where they can get access to these services, then we've served our purpose."

"WE FEEL THAT ARH'S role is closer to coordinating education produced by others," Wild said.

Seminars and discussions will be held throughout campus and Pearlman said the wide variety of locations will allow all residence hall residents an opportunity to participate.

Highlighting the week will be a lecture by former Planned Parenthood Federation Director Carol Cassel at 8 p.m. Feb. 9 in the Union Ballroom.

Cassel's lecture, "Crossed Wires and Mixed Messages: The Love/Sex Dilemma," will be followed by a book signing.

Cassel is the author of Swept Away.

Student groups join forces for letter writing campaign

By Monica Seigel
University Editor

Three UI student organizations joined forces this week for a letter writing campaign to dissuade Congress from passing President Ronald Reagan's proposed 1988 fiscal year budget, UI Student Senate President Joe Hansen said Wednesday.

Representatives from the senate, the UI Liberal Arts Student Association and the UI chapter of United Students of Iowa provided pens, paper and information to passers-by at a table in the Union, encouraging them to sign a petition or write letters to their legislators.

"Reagan's budget cuts, especially for financial aid, are severe," LASA President Gordon Fischer said. "It is vital that legislators hear from their constituents at a grassroots level like this about these very significant issues."

THE CAMPAIGN, WHICH BEGAN Monday and will continue through 2 p.m. today, is part of a massive lobbying effort directed at both state and national legislatures, Hansen said.

"This is just the initial push," Hansen said. "We're all going to continue working on everything we can to make accessibility to education the priority issue today."

Hansen added the campaign has been a successful initial effort, with more than 1,000 people signing petitions and approximately 60 people writing letters.

"Campaigns like this can be very effective, although it's hard to gauge exactly how effective," he said. "I know that the letter writing especially means a lot, especially when done in conjunction with many universities all over the country."

"It makes people stop and think when they get a letter," he said. "Maybe if they get a bunch of letters, it will make them do something."

Fischer said he attributes much of the success of the campaign to the collaboration of the student groups.

"It's really important that student government organizations bond together in time of common need," Fischer said.

UI President Gregg Shultz agreed and said he anticipates future joint efforts.

"The senate and LASA were the key organizers of this venture, but we all helped out and because of that it has been very successful."

Professor discovers perfect love potion

After 23 years of research, Dr. Rufus T. Valentine, noted romanceologist, has discovered the perfect love potion.

Said Dr. Valentine, "The FTD® Sweetheart™ Bouquet is a perfect combination of flowers and a heart-shaped potpourri in a ceramic powder jar. Lab studies have shown it to have a powerful, romantic effect on both sender and recipient.

"However," Dr. Valentine warns, "the effect seems to peak around February 14. And you must make sure to go to an FTD Florist. Otherwise," he added, "you may find yourself spending Valentine's Day alone in a most unromantic place—the library."

Gone astray

Last week we were bid to remember the space shuttle Challenger disaster of one year ago. The anniversary provided an occasion to drag out some very maudlin folk songs memorializing the seven members of Challenger's crew who were needlessly killed and a timely newspeg for some speculation about where the space program is today and where it is headed.

We were told the space program's credibility had been damaged, that some lawsuits were still pending, that the Russians are "ahead" in manned space flight and that we can expect a lot more military purposes for space exploration in the future.

It has been said that it may have taken the tragedy of the Challenger disaster to wake us up to problems in the space program, not only in sloppy technology but in its goals and methods. Many are looking for some sense to come out of the death of seven brave individuals. And public figures play off our sentiment, saying that the deaths of crew members shall not have been in vain; that the space program shall go on.

Aspects of space exploration and science should continue. But we who are being asked to support this expensive and risky enterprise with our tax dollars and our emotional/cultural involvement should look closely at what today's space program is about, if we truly wish to honor the brave men and women who have been involved in the program.

If the space program is about exploration and scientific inquiry, then unmanned crafts should have been and should continue to be employed in future missions. If the space program is about nationalistic, political grandstanding, then we should be proud of leaders who risked lives in space for the sake of tickling the popular imagination and garnering public support for the program.

President Ronald Reagan's "Teacher in Space" program was a public relations tactic for a program increasingly unpopular with a bored, over-taxed public. Putting civilians in space may also have been an attempt to humanize a program, which, under Reagan, has been straying further and further from the idealistic, noble aspirations of exploration, which drew public interest in the first place, and closer to Star Wars.

Personal problems

State Sen. Al Sturgeon, D-Sioux City, has not been experiencing the best of times.

As if Sturgeon does not have enough to worry about concerning his Feb. 11 trial for an indecent exposure charge in connection with the Mingo stag party, now he has acknowledged he is the father of a child born to a Sioux City woman in May 1984.

Sturgeon, who is married and has two children by his current wife, has agreed to pay $115 a month in child support to the mother. In addition, he must pay the Iowa Department of Human Services $5,000 for public assistance already provided to the child.

People in public service definitely have a right to privacy. If it were not for the fact that Sturgeon is a state representative, this whole episode would probably be unnoticed. But becoming a public servant, his actions are subject to heightened scrutiny. It is all part of being in the public eye.

Sturgeon's recent conduct is an embarrassment to the state legislature and the people he represents. His private life is his own. However, if his actions in his private life begin to interfere with his commitment and obligation to serve his constituents effectively, then it is time to resign and let someone else do the job.

Road to ruin

The U.S. Senate voted Tuesday to allow states to raise their interstate speed limits from 55 mph to 65 mph. The legislation, part of a $52.4 billion highway bill, would affect roads outside of urban areas with 50,000 people.

If passed by the House of Representatives this measure could mean big things for America's drivers — big bucks spent at the gas pumps and big lists of traffic accidents.

Setting the speed limit at 55 mph was part of a nationwide attempt to save fuel after the 1973 Arab oil embargo. But while Americans were busy lightening their lead feet and complaining about it, an interesting thing happened — fewer people died or were injured on America's roads.

While debating the proposal this week, Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., said that the 55 mph speed limit has saved between 2,000 and 4,000 lives each year since its inception. In addition, Danforth cited studies that showed the new measure could cause between 600 and 1,000 traffic fatalities yearly.

As good as it may sound to truck drivers, traveling salesmen and others who spend a lot of time on the road, this proposal spells danger in capital letters.

It would be ridiculous to consider passing legislation that endangers hundreds of lives in an attempt to save a few minutes of traveling time. The idea seems even more foolish when one remembers the recently posted signs along Iowa's highways that read, "Buckle Up. It's Our Law."

Phone scam?

To the Editor:

How many people forced into using the university's new phone system realize that they may be getting charged for unanswered long distance calls? Funny, I heard no mention of this until I questioned the telecommunications office about several one-minute phone call charges that appeared on my bill.

This is "least cost routing?" Compared to what? I only wish that everyone taken by this scam call the telecommunications office and let them know what you think of this underhandedness.

This certainly convinces me of one thing. The efficiency of the parking lot patrol can indeed be outdone.

Well said

To the Editor:

In response to Daily Iowan Managing Editor Kathy Hinson Breed's perceptive editorial concerning the congressional pay increase, we would like to thank her for forwarding the conservative cause of the upper class. As is blatantly obvious, she realizes the necessity of keeping congressional pay disproportionately low in comparison to the job they do. This will ensure that only upper class citizens, representing conservative views, will have the economic means to hold office.

As conservatives, we were surprised and enlightened that the DI, the flagship of the liberal cause in Iowa City, would come out in support of an issue so dear to the hearts of conservatives around the country.

Have the days of biased reporting and one-sided editorials come to an end? We certainly hope so. Congratulations, DI!

Everyone's sport

To the Editor:

Dan McMillan's recent article about the America's Cup competition (The Daily Iowan, Feb. 2) shows a real lack of understanding for the sport of sailing. His remark that "yachting is not exactly open to the general public" is totally untrue. McMillan obviously hasn't seen the ads, posters, flyers and table tents every semester inviting him to join the UI Sailing Club. He also didn't take the time to find out that all 40 of the club's boats are open to students, faculty, staff members and the "general public."

Yes, the America's Cup is for the "elite," that is, the "elite" in yacht racing, not social status. After all, the Cup is the pinnacle of yacht racing.

Those "11 rich men" you speak of aren't different than you. If you look at the profiles of the men on board you'll see builders, salesmen, computer analysts, marine biologists and the like (Stars & Stripes' skipper Dennis Connor makes draperies in San Diego). And if you ask the hundreds (yes, more than 200 members of the UI Sailing Club), I bet they'd be surprised to find out the $15 they spent for the semester allows them to participate as often as they like in an "amusement for the elite."

What they know is that sailing is a lot of fun and a sport they can participate in for the rest of their lives, whether it be racing or just "getting away from it all." In the mean time, you're welcome to join us and find out what the America's Cup has awakened the rest of the country to: sailing is not only inexpensive, but accessible and fun.

Thoughts on various matters

By Christopher G. Westling

Don't you think... Indiana basketball Coach Bob Knight needs a new game sweater? During both the Iowa-

Indiana and Indiana-Purdue games, the bottom of Knight's red sweater spent most of its time up around his belly button instead of near his feet. And people thought George Raveling's sweaters were bad.

Those receipts from ATMs— money machines — have an annoying tendency to accumulate? Does anybody really keep those slips for accounting purposes? They add up so fast, it's almost as if they breed.

People on buses should smile more? Smiles simply don't exist on city buses. The same goes for the Cambruses. People on public transit vehicles act like they're going to be deported. Crack a smile, folks, it could be worse — it could be a New York subway car.

Yassar Arafat and Don Johnson need a shave? They both manage to keep a two-day growth of beard on their faces no matter how often you see them. Give those men a Schick.

The voice-over for Big 10 sports promos sounds an awful lot like Lorne Greene. When the Ottawa, Canada, native celebrates his birthday next week, he'll be 102 dog years old. That's 72 in you and me.

THE MEDIA SHOULD get together and decide how to spell the last name of the Libyan leader? The Associated Press used to spell it "Khadafi," but switched to "Gadhafi." The New York Times puts it in print as "Qaddafi" while Time Magazine spells it "Gaddafi." I bet Gary Hart never has that problem.

It would be a nice change to see a mail-order product advertised on TV costing $13.41 instead of $9.95 or $19.99? I'll buy the first thing I see advertised for $11.63.

Slight Exaggeration Department: A new UI Women's Basketball recruiting film titled Part of the Dream says Iowa City is "known across the country as the Athens of the Midwest." And I always thought Dubuque was.

PEOPLE IN Budweiser "This Bud's For You" commercials always have a great time, even while they're performing the most god-awful, monotonous and back-breaking jobs known to man. And they're always so peppy when work is over.

Robert DeNiro excels in almost every role he fills on screen? Despite the lack of mega-hype publicity, DeNiro's performance in The Mission was outstanding, as was the entire movie. See it if you can.

It was good for the entertainment industry that Brooke Shields had to go to college?... Modern churches fail to capture the feeling or aura of a good old-fashioned cathedral?... It's a crime the minimum wage hasn't risen since Ronald Reagan became president. That's the longest stretch since World War II... baseball stadium on... Day is the best place to spend a day?

One For The Road: Considering the stupidity exercised in the entire Iran arms Contra aid mess, it's only appropriate that the Senate Intelligence Committee is investigating the scandal.

Daily Iowan News Editor Christopher G. Westling writes a column for the Viewpoints page every Thursday.

Look for some new faces in the final Reagan years

By Helen Thomas

THE WHITE House will have several new faces during President Ronald Reagan's final two years in office.

Several top aides have quit or are leaving to advance their careers in private life with the backdrop of service in the White House. And there is some room at the top now.

Some of the aides held off jumping ship after the Iran scandal hit the White House, but they appear to have decided that Reagan has weathered the storm and their departures will not be construed as desertions.

The most visible of the new insiders is Marlin Fitzwater, who replaced Larry Speakes as chief White House spokesman. Fitzwater will always have a high profile in the waning administration since he is on the podium every day, briefing reporters.

Ever since the scandal broke, Reagan himself and chief of staff Donald Regan have been fairly out of the limelight except for occasional ceremonial events.

White House Communications Director Patrick Buchanan, who tried to put his finger in the dike, is leaving at the end of the month to ensure that the conservative cause is promoted in the next presidential campaign.

OTHERS WHO HAVE departed the scene are Mitchell Daniels, who as Reagan's chief legislative liaison to Capitol Hill suffered a bitter political blow with the Democratic capture of the Senate last Fall.

Daniels made some headlines when he asked Reagan to step down to give Regan a clean start in the aftermath of the scandal.

Regan has a constituency of one, but it's the most important vote he can have as long as he serves in the White House. The president likes him, supports him and does not want to relinquish him despite urgings to the contrary from family and friends.

In addition, Dr. Carlton Turner, the president's chief drug adviser, has quit, as has Regan's personal physician, Burton Smith.

The top national security matters are now in the hands of Frank Carlucci, who replaced deposed National Security Council adviser Vice Adm. John Poindexter.

Carlucci swept with a new broom, sending several NSC staffers packing.

SOME OF THE replacements may be taken from within government. Alfred Kingon, one of Regan's top assistants, is the new NATO ambassador to Brussels. Another key staffer, Dennis Thomas, is said to be in line to replace Buchanan.

A new look at the White House is not unusual, particularly at this stage of a two-term president.

Since Reagan is not going to run again, some staffers are looking around for a new presidential candidate to support. Some have already left to serve a new master. At least a couple of speechwriters went over to Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y.

While no "help wanted" sign has been hung out. There are several vacancies, two in the press office. Successors are being sought for Buchanan and Daniels' jobs.

Fitzwater rejected the suggestion that since Regan is not running again, a political strategist like Daniels might not be necessary and the job not filled. But Fitzwater said that Regan intends to fill all the vacant posts.

District ICEA arbitration

By James Cahoy
Staff Writer

For the first time the Iowa City School and the Iowa City Association will go to arbitration for failing to agree on teaching conditions and salaries.

An open hearing on the arbitration will be held at 3:30 p.m. Feb. 27 at City School Administration Building with University of Nebraska Law Professor Gradwohl serving as arbitrator.

"There are two proposals on this issue, one from the district and the ICEA," ICEA Negotiator

"A good evaluation process is a teacher's right and an administrator's responsibility," says ICEA Negotiator Chairwoman Mandernach.

woman Sue Mandernach Wednesday. "The first teachers should be to file a grievance in an evaluation which agree with the second committee, which recommendations on that of the evaluation report to both the negotiating team and the administrative team instead of the superintendent which is currently in effect."

MANDERNACH S arbitration would be with teacher salaries would not create major problems.

"We are very, very concerned about administration positions," Mandernach said. "We don't see that as much of an issue."

But Mandernach thinks the issue of evaluation was important enough to bring to arbitration.

"A good evaluation process is a teacher's right and an administrator's responsibility," Mandernach said. "This is a very big issue which is to the quality of Iowa schools. The teachers involved in it as well as administration."

ALTHOUGH IT IS time the district and teachers have ever resorted to arbitration, this did not indicate bitterness on the part of Mandernach said.

"There is no shame in arbitration," Mandernach said. "We just felt this was a strong enough issue that we could afford to go to arbitration. We've never done it before. If we lose, we lose."

The district's chief negotiator, Al Azinger, was not available for comment Wednesday.

Several Iowa City School administrators said they were the only ones who could answer any questions about the negotiations.

District, ICEA go to arbitration

By James Cahoy
Staff Writer

For the first time in history, the Iowa City School District and the Iowa City Educational Association will go to arbitration for failing to solve differences on teacher evaluations and salaries.

An open hearing to determine the arbitration will be held at 3:30 p.m. Feb. 27 at the Iowa City School Administration Building with University of Nebraska Law Professor John Gradwohl serving as arbitrator.

"There are two ideas we are proposing on this issue that the district and the ICEA disagree on," ICEA Negotiations Chairwoman Sue Mandernach said Wednesday. "The first is that teachers should be allowed to file a grievance in the case of an evaluation which they disagree with. The second is that the committee, which makes recommendations on the format of the evaluations, should report to both the ICEA negotiating team and the administrative team instead of just the superintendent's office, which is currently the practice."

"A good evaluation process is a teacher's right and an administrator's responsibility," says ICEA Negotiations Chairwoman Sue Mandernach.

MANDERNACH SAID the arbitration would also deal with teacher salaries but it would not create many negotiation problems.

"We are very, very close to the administration position on salaries," Mandernach said, "I don't see that as being as much of an issue."

But Mandernach said she thinks the issue of teacher evaluation was important enough to bring to arbitration.

"A good evaluation process is a teacher's right and an administrator's responsibility," Mandernach said. "This is a very big issue which is critical to the quality of Iowa City schools. The teachers must be involved in it as well as the administration."

ALTHOUGH IT IS the first time the district and the ICEA have ever resorted to arbitration, this did not indicate any bitterness on the part of either side, Mandernach said.

"There is no shame in going to arbitration," Mandernach said. "We just felt this year we were in a strong enough position that we could afford to go to arbitration. We've just never done it before because if we lose, we lose everything."

The district's chief negotiator, Al Azinger, was not available for comment Wednesday. Several Iowa City School District administrators said Azinger was the only one who could answer any questions on the negotiations.

Semester at sea offers rare voyage

Joshua Barkan
Special to The Daily Iowan

Around the world in 100 days for college credit. That's what UI junior Lisa Nelson did for her fall 1986 semester.

Sailing aboard the S.S. Universe, Nelson had the world as her campus. Japan, Korea, Taiwan, Hong Kong, Malaysia, India, Turkey, the Soviet Union, Yugoslavia and Spain were the settings for her classes.

Some 500 students from 100 colleges in the U.S. and abroad joined Nelson on her voyage called "Semester at Sea." While sailing the Atlantic, Indian and Pacific Oceans, participating students earned transferable credit from the University of Pittsburgh, academic sponsor of the program.

CLASSES MET DAILY and were taught by faculty from across the U.S. and other countries. Guest lecturers also went aboard to provide insights about the next port of call, Nelson said.

The credits transfer to the UI, but Nelson said the classroom experience won't.

"Last year I was taking a Living Religions of the East course and I thought, 'This is really gross and boring,' so I quit the class. When I was on the Semester at Sea, I wanted to stick with those types of classes because they helped a lot when I got to the countries," she said.

Laraine Carmichael, a UI academic adviser, accompanied a Semester at Sea professor aboard the Universe. Like Nelson, she said classroom experience on shipboard is unique.

"Students really learn more. Teachers try to make use of the places students are visiting for their course material," Carmichael said.

MARIA HOPE, a study abroad adviser at the UI Office of International Education and Services said that some of the world issues courses taught on ship "come alive" because Semester at Sea students are dislodged from the American perspective around them at home.

The ports of call, however, are the real classrooms where she became more understanding of other ideologies and nationalities during her trip, Nelson said.

"In the U.S. we're told that Communists are bad, evil people, but in China and Russia, your whole view changes. When you socialize with these people you realize that they're not bad, and you're not that different from them," Nelson said, adding she is corresponding with a friend met in China.

NELSON SAID TRAVELING also made her more independent. Semester at Sea students have the choice of taking tours or exploring on their own at each port, which lasts from three to five days.

"At first I took the tours, but as I gained more traveling experience I was ready to go out on my own," she said.

Hope, however, cautions that the Semester at Sea program does not allow for prolonged exposure to any country and may not allow students to gain a "common perspective" with foreigners. She said a year spent abroad in a particular country may be more beneficial for students who want to understand other cultures specifically.

Because her interest was more in traveling abroad and not in one particular country, Nelson said the Semester at Sea program was the right choice. She said the semester heightened her awareness of international relations, and she plans to continue her travels with a trip to Kenya this summer.

March 23 a representative for the Semester at Sea program will visit the UI campus. For more information, contact the Office of International Education and Services, Jefferson Building Room 202.

Tower Commission questions Mondale

WASHINGTON — The Tower Commission, investigating the role of the National Security Council in the Iran arms scandal, questioned former Vice President Walter Mondale Wednesday and were to discuss interviewing President Ronald Reagan a second time.

"It's likely that they will want to see him again," said Herbert Hetu, spokesman for the three-member Special Review Board headed by former Sen. John Tower of Texas.

Reagan was questioned for 75 minutes in the Oval Office on Jan. 26 by panel members.

Hetu said the board called Mondale to appear at Wednesday's closed session.

Hetu said attempts were made to interview former national security adviser John Poindexter, Marine Lt. Col. Oliver North, retired Gen. Richard Secord and arms dealer Albert Hakim, an Iranian American.

Salvadoran rebels declare stoppage

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Anti-government rebels declared their third national transportation stoppage of the year Wednesday, an apparent effort to disrupt a weekend rally in support of President Jose Napoleon Duarte.

The U.S.-backed military immediately said it would increase security on the nation's highways to protect those who choose to travel during the stoppage.

"The general command of the FMLN decrees a stoppage throughout national territory starting the first hours of Feb. 6," said a broadcast over the rebels' clandestine Radio Venceremos.

FMLN are the Spanish initials for the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, a coalition of five armies seeking to overthrow Duarte's government.

During transportation stoppages, the rebels often burn vehicles that venture out onto the roads or machine-gun their tires. Civilians riding buses or trucks have been killed in the enforcement of the rebel ban.

Mexican peso makes historic slide

MEXICO CITY — The Mexican peso fell below the 1,000-to-$1 mark Wednesday for the first time in modern history, a precipitous slide from the 24-1 exchange rate at the beginning of the nation's economic crisis in 1982.

The government-controlled rate for the dollar, used mostly by government businesses and private enterprises that import and export, closed the trading day at 1,002.40, the government Notimex news agency said.

Government officials, as part of a program to boost non-petroleum exports, have said they want the peso to stay at the present rate they consider to be 30 percent undervalued against the dollar.

Jose Chapa Salazar, president of the National Chamber of Commerce and a frequent critic of government economic policies, praised its new efforts to promote exports through the private sector.

Visiting prime minister hospitalized

WASHINGTON — The prime minister of the Pacific island nation of Vanuatu, hospitalized for a brain hemorrhage while on a diplomatic mission to the United States, was reported Wednesday to be making a swift recovery.

Walter Lini, 44, an Anglican priest who became the first prime minister of Vanuatu — once called the New Hebrides — when it gained independence in 1980, was admitted to George Washington University Hospital Monday.

A medical bulletin released Wednesday by his attending physician, John Lossing, said: "The prime minister had a restful night with no particular medical problems encountered. His neurological examination, with regard to weakness in his right arm, has improved. He is cheerful and relaxed."

Lini was scheduled to meet President Ronald Reagan during his trip.

Vietnam vet returns Medal of Honor

CHICAGO — A man who returned his Congressional Medal of Honor said the federal government is lying to promote the interests of the nation's rich and powerful.

"We are ruled by a wealthy, elite group in this country," said former Army Chaplain Charles Liteky Tuesday. "The bottom line is greed. And greed is blind."

Liteky got his medal for rescuing more than 20 men under fire in Vietnam when he himself was wounded in the neck and foot. He said he does not think the fact that he left his medal at the foot of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington last summer diminished the incident for which he was honored.

Meese: Arms sale 'clearly within law'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Attorney General Edwin Meese said Wednesday it was "clearly within the law" for President Ronald Reagan to sell American weapons to Iran and not tell Congress about the clandestine deals.

"I do not believe the president is above the law," Meese told the Senate Judiciary Committee while defending his advice to Reagan that a secret "intelligence finding" the president signed Jan. 17, 1986, was legal.

"The advice I gave him is clearly within the law as recognized by the Congress as well as by the legal commentators," Meese said.

The order — approved about four months after the first delivery of U.S.-made weapons to Iran from Israeli stockpiles — was prepared to make it legal for the CIA to help National Security Council officials carry out plans to sell American anti-tank missiles and parts for anti-aircraft weapons directly to Tehran.

AT THE SAME TIME, the CIA was told the finding ordered the agency not to tell Congress about the deals, despite legal requirements that congressional oversight committees be informed of covert activities, according to the Senate Intelligence Committee's report on its preliminary investigation of the Iran arms-Contra aid scandal.

The comments were the first by Meese in public on the subject, which has been one point of contention as the Iran-Contra scandal has evolved. Among the questions raised has been whether the secret arms deals violated any laws, such as requirements Congress be told of major weapons transactions, or an anti-terrorism act that bans virtually any commerce with terrorist states, including Iran.

TWO SPECIAL congressional committees and a federal special prosecutor are investigating the Iran arms sales and the diversion of profits from the weapons trade to aid the Contra rebels fighting the leftist government of Nicaragua. U.S. aid to the rebels was banned, except for some humanitarian assistance, from late 1984 until late 1986.

Reagan's written Jan. 17 finding was a follow-up to his decision in the summer of 1985 to launch a diplomatic initiative toward Iran, aimed in part at freeing American hostages in Lebanon.

Robert McFarlane, Reagan's national security adviser when the secret deals began, told the intelligence committee the president made an "oral finding" approving the sales in August 1985. McFarlane told the panel he discussed the legality of the oral finding with Meese Nov. 21, 1985, and Meese told him such action would be just as legal as a formal, written one.

APPEARING BEFORE the judiciary panel, Meese did not detail the rationale for the conclusions he presented to the president, but told one senator, "I would be happy to give you or the committee an extensive legal brief that we have on the subject."

Meese asserted the National Security Act also allowed Reagan to waive the laws involved. "Congress itself recognized the president has certain constitutional authorities in the conduct of foreign policy that cannot be circumscribed, either by reporting or otherwise, requirements laid on him by the Congress," he said.

In a related development Wednesday, State Department and White House officials reacted cautiously to a New York Times report that the 1981 sale of U.S. AWACS radar planes to Saudi Arabia included a behind-the-scenes agreement the oil-rich kingdom would help bankroll anti-communist resistance groups around the world, including the Contras.

The Times cited unidentified former officials and a businessman who claimed to have been approached by the Saudis as a conduit for the Contra cash, which was to have been delivered to retired Air Force Gen. Richard Secord and his business associate, Albert Hakim.

Responding to the report, State Department spokesman Charles Redman said the sale of the sophisticated airborne tracking and command posts "was based on U.S. vital interests, security of the Persian Gulf, the free flow of oil and the security of Saudi Arabia."

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House gave final approval to a bill Wednesday providing $50 million in immediate aid to the homeless, people who are "out on the streets" and their families.

With approval of the bill, the House voted to send the measure to the Senate. The Senate attached a provision to the bill that would require the second House vote on the bill.

The homeless aid bill was approved earlier by the House in December. The Senate attached a provision to the bill that would require the second House vote on the bill.

"IT IS IMPORTANT to proceed to promptly legislate," said Democratic leader Tom Harkin of Washington. "This is a very harsh winter."

Opponents argued that the bill would be a waste of money.

Three white supremacist groups with ties to a neo-Nazi group in Idaho struck plea deals with federal authorities in Arizona and Idaho Wednesday. Two counts of charges and one to a colleague.

Edward and Olive pleaded guilty to charges related to the murder of a federal judge in Tucson, Ariz., where the case was moved because of publicity in the Northwest.

Robert Pires pleaded guilty to a first-degree murder in court in Sandpoint, Idaho, in August.

The Hawley case shows a message to right splinter groups that federal authorities "will not stone returned" in political violence, Idaho prosecutor who the Arizona court process as an observer.

$50 million homeless aid bill gets OK from House, Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House gave final approval to a bill Wednesday providing $50 million in immediate aid to the homeless, people that New York Gov. Mario Cuomo told Congress are "our desperate brothers and sisters."

The $50 million bill, passed on a voice vote and sent to President Ronald Reagan, was approved earlier by the House and later by the Senate, but the Senate attached an amendment disapproving a congressional pay raise, forcing the second House vote on the homeless bill.

With approval of the bill, Congress went on record as disapproving the pay raise, but it already had gone into effect at midnight Tuesday.

The homeless aid bill, a favorite of House Speaker Jim Wright of Texas, takes $50 million out of the Federal Emergency Management Agency's disaster relief program and transfers it into the program for the homeless.

"IT IS IMPORTANT that we proceed to promptly enact this legislation," said House Democratic leader Tom Foley of Washington. "This is an extremely harsh winter."

Opponents argued that the aid

would not reach the homeless in time to help this winter, even with prompt passage.

Earlier, Cuomo a potential Democratic presidential candidate, testified at a packed House subcommittee hearing in favor of a $500 million bill to help the homeless next year.

"I don't think we have any choice but to do more for the hungry, more for the lost, more for the homeless," Cuomo told the panel. "How can you vote against $500 million — less than one 20th of 1 percent (of the federal budget)? What argument can you raise up against it — it's frivolous."

THE HOUSE subcommittee on housing and community development postponed until next week a vote on the $500 million bill that would provide $70 million in food and shelter, and divide the rest of the money among housing construction, subsidies and health care activities.

As homeless advocate Mitch Snyder and several others, all dressed in mismatched outdoor clothing and wool hats, looked on, Cuomo said there are many homeless families now because of a lack of jobs or affordable housing.

Cuomo noted New York has spent $500 million in 4½ years on the problem of the homeless, but said it is the federal government that can do it best.

Wright told the committee that no one in America can escape the sight of "what appears at first glance to be a shapeless lump of cloth and cardboard" and turns out to be "another human being . . . homeless, with no place to lay his head."

"If we cannot provide for our own," Wright said, "surely we can make no pretense of being a leader of the world."

Court tapes reveal surrogate threatened to kill baby, self

HACKENSACK, N.J. (UPI) — Baby M's surrogate mother threatened to kill the infant and commit suicide rather than lose custody, saying, "I gave her life, I can take her life away," tapes of a telephone conversation played in court Wednesday showed.

In the July 15 conversation, Mary Beth Whitehead told the man who hired her to become pregnant that she would "rather be dead" than give up the infant born four months earlier.

Baby M could be heard crying in the background as the recording of the conversation with William Stern was played for the judge. Whitehead, sitting in court, dropped her head to the side and sobbed.

But Whitehead told reporters Wednesday that she never considered carrying out a pledge to kill Baby M and commit suicide. She said she made the threats only to scare away Stern.

"I GUESS THERE were threats, but I didn't mean them like threats," Whitehead said. "That's the only leverage I had. Every avenue I had at that point I had to try."

Stern's lawyer said he told his client to begin recording calls from Whitehead after she made the same threat in earlier discussions.

Whitehead bore Baby M for Stern and his childless wife, Elizabeth, then decided to keep the infant. She fled to Florida with the child in May in defiance of a court order granting Stern temporary custody. From her parents' home, she called Stern July 15 and demanded he stop trying to win the child.

"Forget it, Bill. I'll tell you right now, I'd rather see me and her dead before you get her," Whitehead said. "No, Mary Beth, no. Don't do . . ." Stern said. "I'm going to do it, Bill," Whitehead said.

IN A SECOND phone call taped by Stern a day later, Whitehead said she might try to win custody by accusing Stern of sexually abusing her oldest daughter, Tuesday.

"You think the judge is trying to give you custody if he finds out you sexually abused my daughter in that car?" she said. Stern replied angrily, "That's an empty threat. That's not true. Nothing ever happened." Then he hung up.

The tapes were introduced in court by lawyers for the Sterns, who argue the conversations are proof Whitehead is an unfit mother for Baby M.

Randolph Wolf, a lawyer for Whitehead, said the tapes "show the court the anguish a mother such as Mary Beth Whitehead goes through even thinking about being separated from her baby."

"I didn't mean to ever hurt my child. I think he (Stern) knows that," Whitehead said. "I gave birth to the baby. There is no way I could hurt her."

AT THE BEGINNING of the July 15 conversation, both Stern and Whitehead sounded calm, but they grew increasingly hysterical.

"You are playing with our lives," Stern said. "I want my daughter back."

Whitehead said: "Well, Bill, how about, how about if there's no daughter to get back?"

The Baby M case is the first in which a surrogate mother has been brought to trial for refusing to give up her baby.

Three tied to neo-Nazis negotiate plea bargain

United Press International

Three white supremacists with ties to a neo-Nazi church in Idaho struck plea bargains with federal authorities in Arizona and Idaho Wednesday — two on counterfeiting charges and one on murdering a colleague.

Edward and Olive Hawley pleaded guilty to counterfeit-related charges on the third day of their federal trial in Tucson, Ariz., where the trial was moved because of pre-trial publicity in the Pacific Northwest.

Robert Pires pleaded guilty in court in Sandpoint, Idaho, to first-degree murder in a shooting death last August.

The Hawley case should send a message to right wing splinter groups that state and federal authorities "will leave no stone unturned" in halting political violence, said an Idaho prosecutor who was at the Arizona court proceedings as an observer.

"This is just step one of the process," Glen Walker, Kootenai County prosecuting attorney, said. "We can't sit back and ignore these people because they sound like kooks."

THE HAWLEYS and Pires are linked with the Aryan Nations Church, which also spawned a violent neo-Nazi group called The Order. Two dozen members of The Order were convicted last year on federal racketeering and conspiracy charges in connection with $4 million in robberies, at least two murders and counterfeiting schemes.

The Rev. Richard Butler, leader of the Aryan Nations Church in Hayden Lake, Idaho, said his group continues to find support for its white supremacy philosophy — with the latest recruits from among students at the University of Idaho.

But Butler said he encourages supporters to keep a low profile because "these are dangerous times for white men."

Authorities alleged the Hawleys and others who attended Aryan Nations Church printed bogus $20 bills to finance a race war.

Pires was charged in the slaying of Kenneth L. Shray. No motive has ever been revealed but prosecutors have said Shray and Pires moved to Idaho to join the white supremacy movement.

PIRES, WHO escaped a possible death sentence with his plea, also agreed to testify for all law enforcement agencies in future cases related to counterfeiting and bombing charges against other suspected white supremacists.

He also will receive protection under the federal witness protection program.

The Hawleys were arrested last September for passing counterfeit $20 bills at a fair in Spokane, Wash., where Olive Hawley's diaper bag was found to contain 59 bogus $20 notes.

Edward W. Hawley, 22, faces up to 30 years in prison and $500,000 in fines on two charges of attempted fraud. His 27-year-old wife faces a maximum of five years in prison and a $250,000 fine for one count of counterfeiting conspiracy.

Colombia arrests, extradites suspected drug ring kingpin

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI)—A suspected leader of the largest drug smuggling ring in the Western Hemisphere was captured Wednesday during a gun battle at a ranch near the cocaine exporting city of Medellin and immediately put aboard a U.S. military plane for a flight to the United States, officials said.

Carlos Enrique Lehder Rivas, 37, arrested with 13 bodyguards, has long been sought by the United States for his alleged key role in the narcotics trafficking organization that is responsible for 75 percent of the cocaine coming into the United States.

He was flown by helicopter to a nearby army base and transferred to U.S. custody.

Justice Department officials said Lehder Rivas is believed to have been involved in a string of death threats made against U.S. and Colombian officials since 1979, most recently last month's attempted assassination of Enrique Parejo Gonzalez, the Colombian ambassador to Hungary.

THE ALLEGED drug kingpin has been a fugitive for 10 years and is wanted in the United States on a string of drug charges, including conspiracy to manufacture, distribute and import cocaine, as well as possession.

Meese said Lehder Rivas was indicted on Sept. 18, 1981, in Jacksonville, Fla., and charged with multiple counts of importing cocaine into the United States.

He also was named in a subsequent indictment returned in U.S. District Court in Miami on Aug. 26, 1986, charging him with 13 counts of narcotics and racketeering.

If convicted, he could face up to 40 years in prison and a $500,000 fine, U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration officials said.

He also is wanted for making "numerous death threats against U.S. officials" in Colombia and the United States, including the current and past heads of the DEA, John Lawn and Francis Mullen, the officials said.

LEHDER RIVAS allegedly amassed a fortune from the drug trade starting in 1979 and in the next few years tried to establish himself as a legitimate business and political figure in Colombia.

In 1982 he formed the political party Latino Nacional, whose major platform was to abolish the anti-drug extradition treaty signed by Colombia and the United States. At a party convention, the backdrop to the podium was a huge photograph of Lehder Rivas flanked by pictures of Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini.

In Bogota, police sources said Wednesday's raid was planned after authorities received an anonymous tip on Lehder Rivas's whereabouts in the state of Antioquia.

Kohl briefs leaders on hostages

BONN, West Germany (UPI)—Chancellor Helmut Kohl Wednesday briefed parliamentary leaders on efforts to free two West Germans who were taken hostage in Beirut in apparent retaliation for the arrest of an Arab hijacking suspect wanted in the United States.

The briefing came a day after a Hamburg newspaper reported the West German guerrilla group the Red Army Faction was trying to forge an alliance with pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem extremist organizations.

The Hamburg Abendblatt said Tuesday the kidnapping of two West Germans in Beirut in apparent retaliation for the Jan. 13 arrest in Frankfurt of Mohammed Ali Hamadei shows the Shiite groups virtually can take hostages at any time to blackmail Western governments.

Deputy Foreign Minister Juergen Moelleman declined to comment on a press report he might go to the Middle East in an effort to secure the release of hostages Rudolf Cordes and Alfred Schmidt.

A security source said the government's mediator had left for the Middle East again to contact the kidnapers.

The West German news service DPA reported the two Germans had been kidnapped so they can be exchanged for Hamadei and block his extradition to the United States.

U.S., Canada OK plan to 'detoxify' Niagara

TORONTO (UPI) — The United States and Canada agreed Wednesday to a 10-year plan to cut in half the level of persistent toxic chemicals dumped into the Niagara River.

Lee Thomas, administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, Canadian Environment Minister Tom McMillan and officials of New York State and the province of Ontario signed a "declaration of intent" to reduce the flow of persistent toxins such as dioxins and polychlorinated biphenyls into the 36-mile-long river.

But they outlined no specific programs to meet the target of a reduction of at least 50 percent by 1996.

Dioxins and polychlorinated biphenyls, known as PCBs, are suspected cancer-causing agents, and the deadliest form of dioxin is known to cause birth defects and miscarriages.

PERSISTENT TOXINS are those that do not break down rapidly in the environment.

"The Niagara is more than a river — it is a lesson in what happens when neighbors dump garbage on one another's front lawn," McMillan said before the five-page document was signed at an international symposium on toxins in the Niagara.

Canadian environmentalists said they were encouraged but disappointed because the governments had no specific programs to clean up the Niagara, which flows between lakes Erie and Ontario and forms the boundary between New York and Canada.

"This is strong political talk," said Pamela Millar, a researcher for the Canadian group Pollution Probe.

The Niagara River—flowing through a region of some 165 toxic waste dumps, including the Love Canal site — empties into Lake Ontario, which provides drinking water for about 5 million Canadians and Americans.

MORE THAN 250 toxic chemicals have been detected in the river, Pollution Probe said, and a recent Canadian study estimated some 9.9 tons of toxic elements flow daily into its waters.

The four governments agreed on a list of 81 substances they called persistent toxic chemicals.

Officials said the target would be met by industries, dump sites and municipal sewage treatment centers. They could not estimate the cost but said the money would come from polluting industries and various levels of government.

"We are committed to working with our counterparts in Canada in ensuring that that river and the Great Lakes as a whole are restored," Thomas said.

Ranchers, 'rustlers' face off

BASSETT, Neb. (UPI) — Two ranchers who used a shotgun to prevent federal agents from seizing their cattle walked into a sheriff's office Wednesday to complain about the nighttime roundup and were jailed.

The ranchers, brothers Stanley and Eldon Slangal, were in custody on charges of kidnaping and several other violations after they stopped six Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. employees and the county sheriff from taking 150 cattle Monday as collateral for a debt.

They were arrested Wednesday afternoon when they went to the Rock County Sheriff's Department to complain that they had not been served legal papers before the confiscation attempt, officials said. They were jailed and no bond hearing had been scheduled by Wednesday night.

Stanley Slangal was charged late Tuesday with two counts of criminal mischief, making terroristic threats, kidnaping, use of a firearm to commit a felony, obstructing government operations and aiding and abetting.

HIS BROTHER was accused of making terroristic threats, aiding and abetting, kidnaping, use of a firearm to commit a felony and obstructing government operations.

Eldon Slangal was $20,000 in debt to the FDIC, authorities said.

The two Rock County ranchers were notified by neighbors shortly before midnight that the cattle were on a ranch owned by Frank Slangal, the brothers' uncle.

"I feel like (the FDIC employees) were trying to rustle them," Stanley Slangal said. "We didn't feel they had any business here late at night."

The seizure was in accordance with a court judgment and an execution order by Rock County Sheriff Willis Haynes to take the livestock as collateral on Eldon Slangal's debt.

BETWEEN 60 and 70 of the 150 head of cattle had been removed from a corral and the officials were rounding up the rest when the Slangals approached them, FDIC lawyer Thad Fenton said.

One of the ranchers fired a shot into the air, and with the butt of the gun punched out a side window of an FDIC vehicle, Fenton said.

No one was injured, but Haynes said the officials were held hostage for two hours until they agreed to leave the remaining cattle.

The Slangals contend the FDIC did not have the proper paperwork to take the cattle.

Eldon Slangal's wife, Terri, said her husband planned to remain on the farm and guard the cattle.

Philippine military ordered to comply with constitution

MANILA, Philippines (UPI)—President Corazon Aquino Wednesday urged the military to "be one with the Filipino people" and her defense minister ordered troops to pledge allegiance to the nation's new constitution or face expulsion from the armed forces.

The new U.S.-style constitution won approval in a plebiscite Monday, winning support from nearly 80 percent of the voters, according to unofficial returns. The "yes" vote in the military ranks, however, was only about 60 percent.

"The tremendous vote of confidence reaffirms the now unquestionable legitimacy and democratic power of our government," Aquino said in a nationally televised speech Wednesday. "Our people have spoken and they have commanded us to rule by law, and any who challenges that law must answer to us."

SHE CALLED ON "all the civilian population to work well with the military." "I am also appealing to the military to be one with the Filipino people," she said. "I think they already are, except for some misguided elements."

Defense Minister Rafael Ileto told a Cabinet meeting Wednesday that once the charter is formally ratified next week, all soldiers will be required to swear allegiance to the charter.

"Minister Ileto said the few who may not want to would have to leave the military since the constitution compels or emphasizes respect and allegiance to the constitution," Aquino's press secretary, Teodoro Benigno, said. Aquino called the charter's margin of victory in the military "comfortable."

"Like everyone else, the soldiers voted according to their conscience. I respect them for it," she said.

BENIGNO SAID ILETO indicated the larger "no" vote among the military may have been spurred by the government's peace overtures to communist rebels. Aquino's decision to use negotiations rather than military force to end an 18-year-old communist insurgency has drawn criticism in the armed forces and has been cited as a factor in attempts to overthrow her government.

Gen. Fidel Ramos, chief of the 250,000-member armed forces, has approved creation of tribunals to court-martial 500 soldiers accused of taking part in a failed coup last week.

With the constitutional vote behind her, Aquino said her first priority is an economic recovery program. She also expressed hope suspended peace talks with the New People's Army will resume and that a 60-day cease-fire scheduled to expire Sunday can be extended.

Swept to power in a civilian-backed military revolt against 20-year ruler Ferdinand Marcos nearly a year ago, Aquino insisted she has no plans to form her own political party. She said, however, she will begin meetings next week to formulate a common slate for congressional elections May 11.

Soviets condemn testing

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet media Wednesday called the first U.S. nuclear test of 1987 a crushing blow to hopes for arms control, but said the Kremlin will show "restraint" and not immediately resume testing despite the end of its moratorium.

The comments by the Novosti and Tass news agencies came one day after the United States conducted its first underground nuclear test of the year and the Soviets canceled their 18-month-old pledge not to conduct nuclear tests.

The 25th explosion conducted in Nevada during the period of the Soviet moratorium is not just another show of strength. This is the strike crushing the hopes of peoples to rid the globe of the nuclear arms race," Tass said in a commentary.

"While talking peace, Washington seeks at any cost — by any means — to disrupt the military-strategic parity which has formed in the world so as, having acquired the nuclear space sword, to dictate its will to sovereign countries and peoples," Tass said.

NOVOSTI SAID MOSCOW is now free to resume its own testing program, but added that, "Of course, this does not mean that it has to do so right away."

"I believe Moscow will demonstrate restraint and good common sense which is so wanting in the U.S. capital," the news agency said in an editorial signed by Vladimir Alexeev.

The restrained comment by Novosti — which specializes in political affairs — contrasted with numerous warnings in advance of the U.S. test that national security would force a resumption of Soviet testing if U.S. research continued.

But Novosti warned the U.S. test created "another crack through the already shaking foundation" of arms control talks.

"It seems that the Reagan administration, in the remaining two years in office, is becoming frantic to push through its arms buildup projects and to present its successors with a fait accompli," Novosti said.

"THAT SEEMS TO be the reason for its maniacal desire to proceed with the Star Wars project," Novosti said, warning that the space-based anti-missile system would violate the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty and undermine arms control talks.

Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger is proposing early deployment of components of the Star Wars defense program. Secretary of State George Shultz, however, is reported opposed to deployment because it would violate the ABM Treaty.

India, Pakistan agree to limit border forces

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — India and Pakistan signed an accord Wednesday to reduce border tensions by pulling back some forces massed along the frontier and pledging to refrain from attacks or "provocative actions."

But the pact fell short of achieving a complete withdrawal of the bulk of the infantry and armor both sides have massed on their boundary in the Punjab region, stoking fears of a fourth Indo-Pakistan war since 1948.

In addition, New Delhi rejected Islamabad's demand it reduce the size of massive military exercises to begin this month in western Rajasthan state, which borders Pakistan's Sind Province.

INDIAN FOREIGN Secretary A.S. Gonsalves, briefing reporters on the accord reached in five days of negotiations in New Delhi, said further talks would be held in Islamabad at a date to be agreed upon.

Officials said the 10-member Indian and Pakistani military and diplomatic delegations held several rounds of discussions Wednesday and met with Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi before Gonsalves and his counterpart from Islamabad, Abdul Sattar, signed the agreement.

A text of the agreement released by the Foreign Ministry said both sides agreed "not to attack each other" and to "exercise the maximum restraint and to avoid all provocative actions along the border."

"NAVIES OF both sides will be brought to a lower state of operational readiness," it said.

The accord said as a further step to reducing tensions, India and Pakistan would withdraw to "peacetime positions" in phases over 15 days, with their forces deployed along about a 75-mile stretch of border between the Chenab and Ravi rivers.

The Ravi and Chenab corridor was the scene of some of the bloodiest fighting in the 1965 and 1971 Indo-Pakistan wars and comprises a small part of the frontier of India's Punjab state and Pakistan's Punjab Province.

The latest Indo-Pakistan crisis began Jan. 23, when India said it was placing its army and air force on alert and moving troops to the border in the Punjab to confront a buildup there by Pakistan forces.

FREMANTLE, Australia — Dennis Conner end quest to reclaim yachting "holy grail" Wednesday by completing a four-race sweep of the America's Cup final, skipping Stars & Stripes another rout of Australia's Kookaburra III.

The victory avenged Conner's 1983 defeat that for the time allowed the American Cup, the world's oldest yachting trophy, to leave American shores.

When the finish gun signaled the end of Conner's three-day, $15 million campaign, the Diego skipper wept.

"Until you cross the line that last race, nothing is sure," Conner said after a 12-Meter finished one minute and 39 seconds ahead of the Australians. "We never allowed ourselves to believe we could win if we crossed the line."

WITH THE SWEEP of best-of-seven series came congratulations from President Reagan and an invitation to the White House for Conner and his crew.

"This is a great moment for America, Stars & Stripes and Dennis Conner," Conner said. "It is a high moment for us. The America's Cup is the holy grail of yachting. We're thrilled it all went out."

Conner took the start around the 24.1-nautical-mile Indian Ocean course. Still, a strategy that draws on Conner's straight-line speed proved his superior last time in the shift to 20-knot winds sweeping three-foot swells.

Hawkeyes overwhelm Minnesota

By Brad Zimaneck
Sports Editor

Fourth-ranked Iowa, behind an explosive first-half spurt and an intense pressure defense, destroyed Minnesota Wednesday, 78-47, at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

The Hawkeyes, 20-2 on the season and 8-2 in the Big Ten, remain one game behind league-leading Indiana, who edged Michigan State 84-80 with the help of star guard Steve Alford's 42 points in Bloomington, Ind.

Iowa started slowly and were only up by one at 5-4 with 17:17 remaining in the first half before the real show and a 10-point run began.

Guard Kevin Gamble hit a jump shot and Gerry Wright followed with a break away slam dunk which brought a sold out Arena crowd to its feet.

BRAD LOHAUS FOLLOWED with two three-point plays — one coming on a lay in and a free throw after being fouled while the other was a 20-foot jumper from the left side of the key.

Minnesota freshman Jim Shikenjanski hit a basket and a three-point play, for five of his team high 13 points, in the next three minutes of play, but an 18-11 Iowa lead with 11:32 remaining to intermission was the closest the Gophers would come. At the half the Hawkeyes led 51-27.

"I would like to thank Tom (Iowa Coach Davis) for taking the press off in the second half because the way things were going they probably would have scored 200 points against us," Minnesota Coach Clem Haskins said. "The only thing we could do was get into a half court game and try to keep the score down. You have to remember we're playing the No. 1 or No. 2 team in the

Jones breaks the ice for Gray Squad

By Marc Bona
Staff Writer

He only played two minutes, but it was worth it.

Michael Jones, a freshman guard from Evanston, Ill., scored the first points by a member of Iowa's Gray Squad — the name given for the special walk-on unit Tom Davis initiated at Iowa — in last night's 78-47 win over the Gophers of Minnesota.

Jones entered the game when Davis cleared the bench with just under five minutes to play. With Iowa up by 29 points with 57 seconds left, Jones — in the paint — threw up a short-range shot to seal the victory.

"I thought that it would be a nice experience to play with some high-caliber players — like Roy Marble and Gerry Wright," the 6-foot-3, 170-pound guard said about joining the Hawkeyes. "I just thought it would make me a better player. Instead of running in the streets I could be doing something that I could value my time with.

"IT REALLY HAS been a dream. I'm glad I got the opportunity just to get in for a little amount of time. I did as a freshman," Jones said.

Does Jones envision a starting role for himself? "Not really. I just take it step-by-step and see where it takes me. As far as starting and all that, I just look at it as trying to better myself and take advantage of the system. Marble, who scored 14 points in the Iowa win, said Jones helps him become a better player: "He comes after me hard, day after day. He does a lot of things that frustrate me, and I like that. I like when a guy can come out and not respect me because that will prepare me for the game I have to come out and play. When I do something, and it reminds me of something he may have done, I can thank him for coming out on me."

Stars & Stripes breeze to Cup

FREMANTLE, Australia (UPI) — Dennis Conner ended his quest to reclaim yachting's "holy grail" Wednesday, completing a four-race sweep of the America's Cup finals by skippering Stars & Stripes to another rout of Australia's Kookaburra III.

The victory avenged Conner's 1983 defeat that for the first time allowed the America's Cup, the world's oldest sporting trophy, to leave American shores.

When the finish gun signaled the end of Conner's three-year, $15 million campaign, the San Diego skipper wept.

"Until you cross the line in that last race, nothing is for sure," Conner said after his 12-Meter finished one minute, 59 seconds ahead of the Australians. "We never really allowed ourselves the luxury to believe we could win until we crossed the line."

WITH THE SWEEP of the best-of-seven series came congratulations from President Reagan and an invitation to the White House for Conner and his crew.

"This is a great moment for America, Stars & Stripes and for Dennis Conner," Conner said. "This is a high moment for us. The America's Cup is the holy grail of yachting. We're thrilled it all worked out."

Conner took the start and led Kookaburra III around every mark of the 24.1-nautical mile Indian Ocean course. Sticking to a strategy that draws on the vessel's straight-line speed, Conner proved his superiority one last time in the shifty 16- to 20-knot winds sweeping up three-foot swells.

Dennis Conner gives thumbs up after winning the America's Cup.

The final winning margin was the largest against Kookaburra III helmsman Iain Murray, following earlier race victories by 1:46, 1:10 and 1:41.

"THIS IS A SAD day for us," Murray, co-designer of the beaten golden-hulled boat, said. "We tried as hard as we could, but we didn't win a race." Conner set a record as the skipper sailing the most America's Cup final races (16), breaking Australian yachtsman Jim Hardy's mark set in 1980.

On Sept. 26, 1983, Conner, as skipper of the Liberty, was beaten by Australia II after leading the series 3-1. He became the first U.S. skipper to lose the emblem of yachting supremacy since the competition began in 1851. Three years, four months and eight days later he won it back.

At the finish an explosion of red, white and blue fireworks was set off by screaming fans from the huge spectator fleet. Conner hugged his 10-man crew, six of whom shared the defeat on the Liberty three years ago. As tradition dictates, the 44-year-old skipper was tossed in the ocean and doused with champagne.

MURRAY AND HIS team shared the silence of defeat and frustration.

"What goes up, must come down," the 28-year-old skipper said. "We'll be there in 1990. We've got to get it back. We lost it."

Murray failed in his country's first defense of the trophy that is now headed to the San Diego Yacht Club.

"My plan is to be involved in 1990 and keep sailing," Conner said.

Although the victorious crew hoisted their yacht in the compound to reveal for the first time its bulbous keel, what were obviously wings on the bottom of the keel remained covered in brown paper.

Designer Britton Chance said the keel had been nicknamed the "Jimmy Durante" because of its protruding nose.

CONNER, WHO DEFEATED 12 other challengers from six countries during the grueling months of competition since October, will have to wait until Friday to fetch the 27-inch trophy and take it to its new home in San Diego.

'Block fight' faces Hawks, Wolverines

By Steve Williams
Assistant Sports Editor

The old adage that the two big kids on the block will sooner or later have to fight will come true this Saturday at high noon when the Iowa men's swimming team hosts defending Big Ten champion Michigan at the Iowa Field House Pool.

Currently, the Big Ten's two biggest kids are both rated No. 8 in the nation and are both undefeated in dual meet competition. Iowa, however, has a slight edge in record at 10-0, while the Wolverines are (struggling?) at 6-0.

And with Iowa possessing the Big Ten's most valuable swimmer in John Davey and Michigan having the conference's best sprinter in Dave Kerska and best breaststroker in Jan-Erick Olsen, Iowa Coach Glenn Patton is convinced that this dual meet will be "the most exciting ever held in Iowa City."

"THIS IS WITHOUT a doubt the biggest meet of the year for us," Patton said. "With less than a month left before the Big Ten meet, it's clear that we (Iowa and Michigan) are the favorites, and if we could win this meet, it would be a real confidence booster going into the Big Tens."

Last season, the Hawkeyes were in a similar position at 9-0 when they headed into the Wolverines' lair and received a rude greeting, losing in the Michigan pool, 75-36.

A point that went much unnoticed however was that the Hawkeyes were in a much depleted condition after going through a bout with the flu which left many of their top swimmers in no condition to perform.

This year the Wolverines are complaining of a similar condition, having battled the flu since Christmas, and Michigan Coach John Urbanek is aware that his team will have to be at its best to tackle a very determined Iowa team.

"IN THE FOUR YEARS I've been coaching, I've never had any trouble with illness or injury, so I guess it was time something like this came along," Urbanek said. "At this point it looks as though three starters may not make the trip, so I would say that Iowa is a definite favorite to win the meet."

"It's funny how athletes seem to get to feeling much better when they are desperately needed," Patton said, "and in a meet like this I wouldn't be surprised if even the sick swimmers are in the

Alford's scores 42 in Indiana win

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI) — Steve Alford scored a career-high 42 points Wednesday night to lead second-ranked Indiana to an 84-80 Big Ten triumph over Michigan State.

Alford's point total set an Assembly Hall record, breaking the 14-year-old mark of 41 set by Indiana's Steve Downing in 1973. The highest previous point total for Alford, a senior, was 38 last season against Wisconsin.

Indiana improved to 18-2 overall and 9-1 in the Big Ten, maintaining its conference lead. Michigan State fell to 8-12 and 3-7.

Daryl Thomas was the only other Hoosier in double figures, scoring 20 points. The Spartans were led by Vernon Carr's 25 points and Darryl Johnson's 21.

Cyclones down Missouri at Hilton

AMES (UPI) — Jeff Grayer sank two free throws with 25 seconds left and Sam Hill added another with nine seconds later to give Iowa State a 96-92 victory over Missouri at Hilton Coliseum Wednesday.

Grayer, who led Iowa State with 29 points, was fouled as he rebounded a missed free throw by Gary Thompkins. His two free throws gave Iowa State its first lead of the game at 93-92.

Hill padded it to 94-92 when Missouri Coach Norm Stewart was called for a technical foul with 16 seconds left after Lynn Hardy was called for traveling.

Wertz, Liu capture IM titles

By Cathy Cronin
Staff Writer

Finding the opponent's weakness is crucial in any sport. Linda Wertz, a UI student, can attest to that — especially after her loss to Xiaoying Liu in the women's table tennis tournament.

However, it was just a week ago that the tables were turned on Liu when Wertz ousted her rival in the doubles competition.

The co-ed team of Wertz and Brian Westphal defeated Liu and Louis Daniels in the Jan. 27 tournament, winning two of three games played.

The final match went to deuce in the third game before Wertz and Westphal came away with the victory. Playing in past years, Wertz feels the doubles tournament is more difficult than singles.

"You have to move more quickly," Wertz said. Another deterring factor, according to Wertz, is that "each opponent has their own style."

The women's singles tournament, of which Liu was champion, was held on Feb. 3. The men's tournament will be held tonight at 7 at the Field House Room 507. Over 80 participants are expected.

● Racquetball entries are due by 4 p.m. on Feb. 6. Play begins Feb. 9 for dorms, Feb. 10 for fraternities, Feb. 11 for men's independent and Feb. 16 for co-ed doubles. All play will be a single-elimination tournament. All racquetball participants will receive a free can of balls.

● Any individual interested in an intramural activity, without enough people to form a team, can sign up on the Free Agents list. Leave information at the Recreational Services office, and they will assign people to a team.

● Entries for three-on-three basketball are due Friday, Feb. 13. The men's and women's divisions are sponsored by Schick, and prizes will be given to all participants. Winners will compete in the Iowa State regional.
● Entries for volleyball competition are due Monday, Feb. 9.
● Volleyball schedules are now available and acceptance schedules will be posted Friday.

Kennedy's Hawkeyes seek perfection

By Eric J. Hess
Sports Copy Editor

With almost two weeks before the Big Ten championships in Indianapolis, faster times at Minnesota is what Iowa Coach Pete Kennedy is looking for.

Kennedy and his women's swimming team, 5-0 in dual meet action, will be tested Saturday by the Gophers, who tied for second with Iowa at the conference championships last season.

"Normally I wouldn't swim a team this close to Big Tens," Kennedy said. The conference championships were changed in time and place this year, being moved up one week (to Feb. 20-22) and moved from Brown Deer, Wis., to Indianapolis.

After the Big Ten championships, the Hawkeyes will return home to the Field House Pool March 6-8 to host the Hawkeye Invitational.

"WE'RE GOING TO have to improve our times," Kennedy said, pointing teams such as Michigan State, Michigan, Purdue and Northwestern which according to the Iowa coach have all been "turning out some fast times."

Minnesota Coach Jean Free-

Women's Swimming

man, whose team stands 5-3 overall and 3-2-1 in the Big Ten, sends two returning all-Americans up against the Hawkeyes.

Jodi Schirmers, who finished third in the 500-yard freestyle and sixth in the 1,650 free at the 1986 Big Ten championships, has turned in the fastest times in the 500-, 1,000 and 1,650 free for the Gophers.

Schirmers is also the Gopher leader in the 400-yard individual medley.

SUE ROELL, WHO was the first swimmer to qualify for the NCAA meet from the Big Ten this season, is the Minnesota stalwart in the breaststroke events, the 200 IM and the 50 and 100 free.

"She's a good all-around swimmer," Kennedy complemented. But the Hawkeyes will take a wait and see attitude in challenging Roell.

Roell qualified for the national championships with times of 1:05.28 in the 100 breaststroke and 2:19.28 in the 200 breaststroke. Roell, who was the Big Ten champion last year in the 100 breaststroke, is undefeated in nine starts in the 200 breaststroke and two 100 breaststroke starts.

Another Minnesota standout, Nancy Swanum, has a bad shoulder and may not swim against the Hawkeyes. Swanum leads the Gophers with the best times in the 100-meter backstroke and the 200 backs-stroke.

"IT SHOULD BE A very competitive meet," Kennedy said. Nevertheless, the Hawkeyes have started to cutback practicing and rest for the conference championships.

"We've started our taper," Kennedy said. "I'm sure Sue Roell is doing the same thing." "Everyone has their own taper schedule. Certain people expect good times and other can't, depending where they are in their taper," freshman breaststroker Louise Keenan said. "But it looks good for our team."

Iowa is coming off an 81-70 victory over Northern Illinois last Saturday. Nine individuals won events for the Hawkeyes.

Kennedy said the upper classmen are starting to show some leadership while the freshmen have responded well this season.

Jane Keating, Bernie Brandenburg, Allison Lloyd and Chris Dieterle, Kennedy's four leaders in the pool, could be keys to a fourth straight victory against Minnesota.

The Gophers lead the series 6-4. The Hawkeyes, however, have won the last three in a row.

Hawks

acquiring his 20th win of the season, a total thought of as assuring an NCAA qualifying bid.

"We're going to try to take the rest without hurting our performance because Saturday we have last year's Pac Ten champions waiting for us," Davis said. "We're trying not to set our goals too low. We have not really talked about getting there (the NCAA tournament). We just took for granted at the start of the season that we were going to be there."

THE NEXT TEST for the Hawkeyes is Saturday at Arizona, the current home of former Iowa Coach Lute Olson.

One player who may be looking forward to this game a little more than the rest of the Hawkeyes is Lohaus, a Glendale, Ariz., native, who was recruited to play at Iowa by Olson.

"I'm just going to try to go out and play, and I think he made a good decision to leave," Lohaus, who admitted he has 16 extra tickets at McHale Center for his family and friends, said. "Once I decided on Iowa I don't try to look back. I made a great choice to play here."

UI jazz instructor wins national grant

By B. Gordon
Staff Writer

IN THIS DAY of specialties and subspecialties, microchips and microseconds, it sometimes seems impossible to really "know no boundaries" — even in artistic expression.

Not so, says Ed Sarath, UI instructor in the Jazz Department, director of the Iowa City Jazz Orchestra, and recent winner of a National Endowment for the Arts grant for the second year in a row. This grant was for composition, while last year's award was for jazz performance.

"Getting a degree in music can sometimes be the greatest obstacle to learning about music because of the fragmented nature of the programs," Sarath said. He described his compositions as "a combination of a lot of different influences," including classical symphonic music, "new" or contemporary orchestral music and rock 'n' roll. "I don't really call my music anything right now."

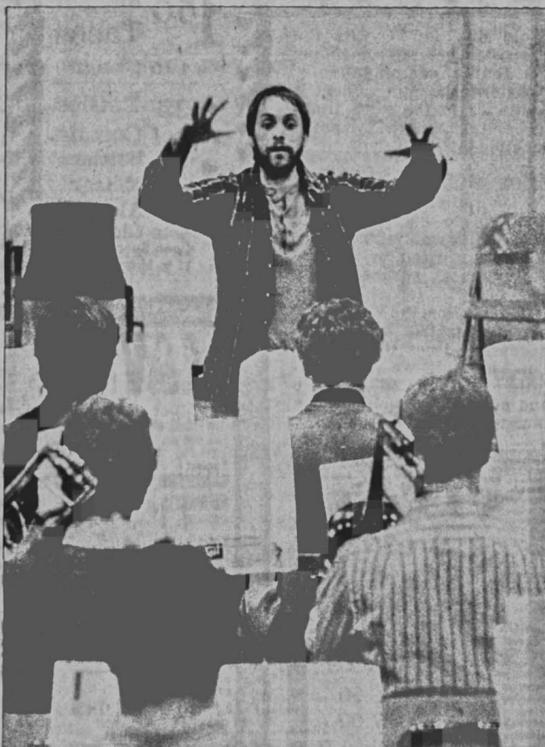

"ED'S MUSIC is challenging to play because of its metric complexity," said Paul Scea, an associate of Sarath's in the department and a member of the Iowa City Jazz Orchestra. "It's similar to a lot of the experiments Don Ellis did."

Ellis, Scea explained, was a "big band" leader in the late 1960s.

Sarath got his undergraduate degree in jazz at Western Connecticut State University, after having played the trumpet from the age of 10. "They really didn't have a good jazz program at all, but that was good. It made me teach myself a lot of things."

He claims he cut classes to work on his own music. "I'm glad I made decisions like that," he said. Paradoxically, however, he is devoted to teaching and to the UI Jazz program, where he got his masters'.

"IT FEEDS into my personal work," Sarath said. "The more

Ed Sarath

I'm into my personal processes, the more stimulating I am as a teacher. I approach music in the context of all creativity.

"No matter what you do, the process of creativity is the basic relationship between you and the subject matter," he continued. "It is the primary issue that needs to be addressed, that relationship. It affects everything."

But even Sarath's focus on music could never be called narrow. "I'm very interested in whether or not the species is going to survive," he said, "both in the context of peace and sustaining the environment... Artists are very important agents for change. I feel it's essential for art to be taught at the highest level, and for schools to be at the cutting edge of creativity; the role of education is to develop individuals who are equipped to take responsibilities towards their environment."

SARATH WILL be using the money from this year's grant to compose new works for his ensemble, the Iowa City Jazz Orchestra. He will write music that will feature some of the top players in the year-and-a-half-old troupe, which has performed all over the state and was recently invited to the prestigious Montreux Jazz Festival in Switzerland. Sarath and the Iowa City Jazz Orchestra will be performing on Feb. 12 at Gabe's, 330 E. Washington St., to help finance the trip. Tickets will cost $10.

According to Scea, the orchestra's repertoire is "predominantly" Sarath's music, although they do play some of Scea's and other composers as well. "He essentially lets the band members work it out for themselves," Scea said of Sarath's conducting technique. "He gives some verbal direction."

"He actually does a lot of standing out in front and conducting the band — primarily giving cues, because some of the sections are open-ended and he just says it's time to end this one and go on to the next."

"I THINK I needed an outlet that was going to be able to channel my voice as an improviser and a composer," Sarath said of the orchestra. "More and more I don't think of myself as a jazz musician. I think of myself both as a composing improviser and an improvising composer."

Scea says of Sarath's music, "It shows a lot of craftsmanship."

"Improvisation is one field which pits the individual against his creative limits in the most direct way, since it imposes no limiting assumptions," said Sarath. "It forces the person to live moment-to-moment and yet maintain a unified flow of events. Many people do not understand the vast inner technology of improvisation."

Sarath is a vegetarian and meditates regularly. He even went to an ashram in India to pursue his spiritual studies. "Meditation was a very natural extension of how I looked at life," he remembered. "It's something that supports the creative process very directly by exploring the creative dimensions of one's personality."

He believes that artists are "gravitating" toward Eastern philosophies and moving away from drugs and alcohol. "That's the jazz musician's image," he said, "but I see that changing."

Show-biz legend Liberace dies at 67 after long illness

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Liberace, the bejeweled pianist whose glittering wardrobe, trademark candelabra and self-effacing humor made him a show-business legend, died Wednesday of anemia, emphysema and heart disease, his publicist said. He was 67.

The entertainer died at 4:05 p.m. in his resort home where his family and friends had gathered, his publicist, Denise Collier, said. Scores of fans maintaining a death watch began gathering outside the sprawling mansion on Monday, when it was announced that Liberace was near death.

Liberace

Collier, Liberace's New York-based publicist, announced late last month that the entertainer was gravely ill, suffering from pernicious anemia complicated by advanced emphysema and heart disease.

THE LAS VEGAS SUN in a copyright front page story Jan. 24 quoted informed sources as saying Liberace was dying from AIDS and had less than a year to live.

Seymour Heller, Liberace's longtime personal manager, denied the report and demanded a retraction. Heller said Liberace was suffering from anemia resulting from two months on a weight-loss watermelon diet. The newspaper said it would stand by its story.

The ever-smiling performer, who billed himself only by his surname, began as a child prodigy at classical piano. He changed his repertoire to semi-classical and popular music in the 1950s and became one of the world's most durable entertainers.

At one time, Liberace was the highest paid performer in Las Vegas, earning $50,000 a week by the mid-1950s — a sum that would more than quadruple in later years. He also appeared on television with his own show and in motion pictures.

KNOWN AS "LEE" to his friends, the performer was born Wladziu Valentino Liberace on May 16, 1919, in the Milwaukee suburb of West Allis, Wis. His mother was born in Poland and his father in Italy.

He was 4 years old when he began playing the piano and his boyhood career began as a music hall accompanist, billed as "Walter Busterkeys." At age 15 he appeared as a soloist in concert with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

His first television exposure came in 1951 on a local program in Los Angeles, followed by a 15-minute NBC network summer series in 1952. He then starred in his own widely seen syndicated musical variety series, "The Liberace Show," in 1953-55.

In 1958-59 he starred in a daytime version of that series for ABC and in 1969 he was the star of "The Liberace Show" for CBS that originated in London and featured a variety of comedy skits and music.

HE ALSO APPEARED in several films, including South Sea Sinner (1950), Footlight Varieties (1951), Sincerely Yours (1955), When the Boys Meet the Girls (1965) and The Loved One, a 1965 adaptation of Evelyn Waugh's satiric novel.

Despite his success, the entertainer had his troubles with the press. Critics often took a dim view of his keyboard antics. But in recent years his qualities as a pianist seemed less important than his ability to entertain. His followers packed concerts at such arenas as New York's Radio City Music Hall, where he set attendance records with a lavish stage show in spring 1985.

Asked once about a magazine article that commented unfavorably on his musical talents, Liberace said, "I cry all the way to the bank."

Offstage, his lifestyle was as colorful as his performances. Liberace vigorously denied published reports that he was homosexual, and in 1959 won a highly publicized $22,400 libel suit against the London tabloid Daily Mirror, which implied in a 1956 column item that he was gay.

The denial was repeated in 1982 when his former live-in chauffeur and travel secretary, Scott Thorson, brought a palimony suit against the entertainer. The lawsuit said Liberace promised him $70,000 a year for life when Thorson moved in as his lover. Liberace settled the suit in December 1986 for $95,000.

Platoon

'Platoon' fights to No. 1 rank

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Platoon, the blood-drenched account of youthful American GIs in Vietnam, marched to the head of the ranks of domestic box-office standings last week.

Showing on only 590 screens — still more than double the previous week's screens (214) — Platoon grossed an impressive $8.3 million. Its seven-week encampment so far has pulled in $26.5 million.

Platoon last week won Golden Globe awards for best dramatic motion picture, best director, Oliver Stone, and best supporting actor, Tom Berenger.

The outrageous comedy Outrageous Fortune, starring Shelley Long and Bette Midler as a pair of jilted women seeking revenge on the same Lothario, made its debut in grand style. It was No. 2 with an opening week total of $6.4 million in 1,081 theaters. And as they say in the trade, it looks like it will have legs.

NO. 3 WAS the delightful long-running Australian-made comedy, Crocodile Dundee, starring Paul Hogan. It improved its standings a tick over the previous week's numbers. Now in its 19th week, Crocodile Dundee snapped up $2.8 million for a grand total of $139.7 million.

Critical Condition, the not-so-funny Richard Pryor comedy of a scalawag on the loose in a blacked-out hospital, tumbled all the way from No. 1 the previous week to No. 4.

Condition grossed $2.6 million to compile a three-week total of $14.3 million, a 21 percent drop from the week before.

Right behind at No. 5 was Eddie Murphy's comedy, The Golden Child, showing in 1,254 theaters and grossing $2.3 million. In eight weeks it has amassed $70.6 million.

Star Trek IV dropped from No. 3 to No. 6 last week while grossing $2.2 million for a 10-week total of $99.5 million.

NEWCOMERS TO the nation's screens last week in addition to Outrageous Fortune were No. 7 Allan Quatermain and the Lost City of Gold, $1.9 million, 1 week.

Gold, starring Richard Chamberlain as an Indian Jones type, and No. 10, Woody Allen's new comedy, Radio Days — both of which topped the $1 million gross mark.

Total box-office grosses for all films last week was $53 million, on a par with last year's tally for the same period.

The top films, last week's gross, total gross, weeks in release:

1. Platoon, $8.3 million, $26.5 million, 7 weeks.
2. Outrageous Fortune, $6.4 million, 1 week.
3. Crocodile Dundee, $2.8 million, $139.7 million, 19 weeks.
4. Critical Condition, $2.6 million, $14.3 million, 3 weeks.

One of the biggest threats to your heart is right under your nose.

"Great," you say to yourself. "Here they come with more bad news." Okay, so we do have some bad news for you. But you need all the facts you can get when it comes to making a decision about smoking. Like the fact that if you smoke, you're twice as likely to have a heart attack as a nonsmoker. And if you do have a heart attack, you're more likely to die. Suddenly. But here's the good news. Regardless of how long or how much you've smoked, your risk of heart disease will begin dropping rapidly the day you stop. Which means that 10 years after quitting, it can be almost the same as if you had never smoked at all. So take the good with the bad, but take our word for it: it's never too late to quit.

Film montage may contend for Oscar

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Chuck Workman may be nominated for an Oscar for a film that includes nearly every unforgettable scene you've ever seen at the movies.

Workman's Precious Images, a seven-minute montage of clips from 458 movies ranging from The Great Train Robbery to Rambo, was produced to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Directors Guild of America last year.

It opens with the tumbling snow-filled paperweight from Citizen Kane.

Then Ingrid Bergman says, Play it again, Sam.

A series of passionate embraces flicker across the screen to the strains of "As Time Goes By." There are Bogart and Hepburn in The African Queen and Streisand and Redford in The Way We Were, and even Lady and the Tramp.

Low-budget 'Gotta Have It' an 'endearing hodgepodge'

By George Yatchisin
Staff Writer

TO BE A TRULY 'chi chi' film critic, you must pretend you've seen every movie ever made. That way you can allude to any movie when talking about a new movie.

In unskilled hands, this technique can be disastrous. For example, someone might ineptly say about The Little Shop of Horrors: "It's like a musical Citizen Kane — both main characters get too powerful and try to devour everything around them."

Spike Lee's first feature length film, She's Gotta Have It, has earned many such comparisons. The film, made on $125,000 (the cost of a cup of coffee when Stephen Spielberg shoots a film), is an endearing hodgepodge, as so many first films are. It could be considered comparable to, uh, Citizen Kane in the vigorous way it searches for truth: much of the film is shot as a mock-documentary, as characters directly address the camera. And what is the secret of Rosebud these characters search for? They search for the whys and wherefores of Nola Darling (Tracy Camila Johns), a woman happy to have three lovers.

NEEDLESS TO say, the three lovers aren't as happy. Each wants Nola for himself. They cannot understand how she turns the sexually stacked tables, allowing herself to have a captive harem of him.

The Daily Iowan/Jeffrey Sedam

To top it off, the three constantly run into each other; it's as if Brooklyn has only a population of four. (Shades of No Exit dance in the clever critic's head.)

Each character is a type, of course, but still each one is very rounded. Jamie Overstreet (Tommy Redmond Hicks) is Mr. Stable, clearly most caring, but also most possessive. Greer Childs (John Canada Terrell) is Mr. GQ model, his ego bulging in his biceps and pecs. Mars Blackmon (Lee himself) is Mr. Fool, both his tongue and his bike are 10-speeds. (Too many clever critics have called Lee a black Woody Allen for it to be clever anymore.)

EACH SUITOR takes turns one-upping and consoling another, with things coming to a head at a Thanksgiving dinner at which Nola tries to make everyone friends. Her attempt quite humorously fails, with Mars getting the line of the evening, calling the somewhat too Uncle Tomish Greer a Celtics fan. She's Gotta Have It, without any comparisons, is a small blessing. The humor is rich, the thought compelling, the black-and-white photography finely textured and beautiful. Lee leads a stable of intuitive performances, although only his performance stands out — his Mars is like a running back who's learned to stutter step with his tongue. He's a mousy guy who can literally talk his way into a woman's bed.

The changing moods of this, at times, very serious comedy are aided immeasurably by the jazz score by Bill Lee, Spike's father. The music helps establish a film where it seems anything goes, even a hilarious slew of come-on artists (called Dog 1, Dog 2, etc. in the credits), who fire off their lines straight into the camera and at the laughing audience.

And while a dance number shot in color (a tribute to The Wizard of Oz, no doubt) seems a bit sappy, it's the only off moment in the film. Even the closing credits are fun, as each major actor gets to introduce himself, often in a way more clever than any critic could devise.

She's Gotta Have It is at the Bijou today, Friday and Saturday.

Liedel shows 'photograms'

By Beth Lucht
Staff Writer

GRADUATE photography student Kimberly Liedel will be exhibiting her photographs in the Drewelowe Gallery through Friday.

Liedel's photographs are not conventional pictures; they are instead "photograms" created by placing objects on photographic paper. This results in a spooky ghost image of the object.

The subject matter of the exhibit is women's clothing. For the most part, Liedel works with lace and gauze. Subjects include a wedding gown, a lace dress and a teddy, sheer hose and high heels. Occasionally, the trace of a woman's figure appears to be left behind, but the emphasis is on the clothes, which look as if they are worn by an invisible model.

An obvious reference in Liedel's work is the packaging and presentation of women. Is it the clothes and the marketing that matters, or the person within? This question echoes as the invisible models, less real than the clothes, themselves preen for the camera.

The exhibit is skillfully done and makes its point well, but it is a theme that has been explored before in many ways. Perhaps the photographs would have been more effective in an installation setting, surrounded by a setting that highlighted the irony of the uninhabited clothing. Nevertheless, Liedel's work is amusing and interesting.

IN THE CHECKERED Space this week, undergraduate art student Eric Shaw is exhibiting a sculpture entitled "Time Flight." The large metal sculpture really does capture the illusion of flight, at times resembling the wing of a plane, then a butterfly or a bird or an airborne weed. It is stationary but seems almost kinetic because of its twisting shape and contour.

Shaw is also a skilled photographer and his excellence as a sculptor points him out as an artist to watch.

Upstairs in the "Mezzanine Gallery," a hall on the second floor of the art building, Joe Patrick's Life Drawing II class is showing a collection of drawings called Heads; Non-Visually but Tacitly Conceived.

Price: 25 cents.

Pentagon calls

By Phil Thomas
Staff Writer

About 60 demonstrators gathered for a vigil on the UI Thursday to protest the week's testing of weapons in Nevada. The demonstrators proposed UI laser center.

The demonstration was organized by the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament to call for a ban of nuclear weapons at the site about 65 miles west of Las Vegas.

"No nukes, no radioactive junk in Iowa," the demonstrators chanted.

The group later met at the proposed site of the UI laser facility, Allen Hall, to discuss the possibility of a research taking place there.

Last fall, the state Regents approved a million request for construction of the laser. It has also been endorsed by Iowa Gov. Terry Branstad and many state politicians.

New Wave questions

By Monica Seigel
University Editor

Several protesters gathered Thursday night for a National Security recruitment briefing sponsored by the UI Business Liberal Arts Placement. Members of New Wave student group, distribution and que NSA representatives at agency's actions.

New Wave member Nestor alleged the agency involved in both domestic and foreign "spy operations" should not be allowed recruitment on campus.

"In my 35-year history, NSA has spied upon millions of Americans, monitored and disrupted anti-war and black activist groups, worked hand in hand with CIA in supporting repressive governments around the world," Nestor said. "NSA PERSONNEL OF Chip Mahan said because of classification he could not address specific allegations but added the information"
