Iowa City senator replaces Sturgeon

By James Cahoy
Staff Writer

State Sen. Jean Lloyd-Jones, D-23rd District, in the wake of a highly publicized political scandal, was last week appointed chairwoman of the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Human Resources.

Lloyd-Jones replaced Sen. Al Sturgeon, D-2nd District, after Senate leaders asked Sturgeon to resign from the position. Sturgeon's involvement in a stag party held for state legislative leaders brought him under public scrutiny last spring. This, in conjunction with a recent legal wrangle concerning back child support payments with the Iowa Department of Human Services, led to his dismissal from the committee.

THE SUBCOMMITTEE Lloyd-Jones will head oversees budgets for the Iowa Department of Human Services and various state welfare programs. She formerly chaired the Senate Health and Human Rights Subcommittee.

"I think there was a perception that there might be a conflict of interest if he (Sturgeon) stayed in the position," Lloyd-Jones said. "What I think about what happened isn't really important, so I can't really say anything beyond that."

Lloyd-Jones said one her first projects as chairwoman of the subcommittee would be reform of the Iowa welfare system.

"I view it as a challenge," Lloyd-Jones said. "I would like to work on some system to help people on welfare find work, and provide adequate child care and medical benefits to those who do work."

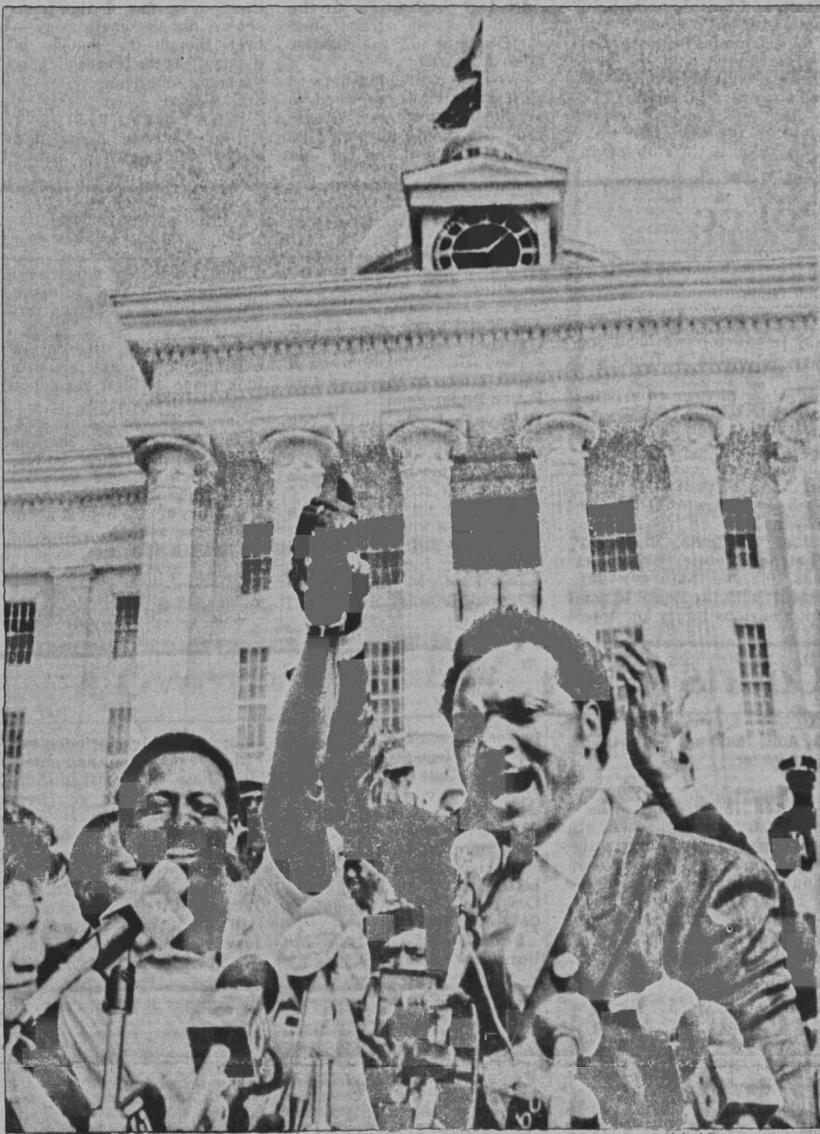

"We also need more employees within human services," she added. "A lot of those who are working are terribly burned out because they have so much to do, and this is a time when we need to help the poor and homeless and hungry more than ever before."

STATE SEN. Rich Varn, D-27th District, said Lloyd-Jones' new assignment is more important in terms of the money it distributes.

"The human resources committee is a very important one in terms of both dollars and areas of responsibility," Varn said. "It is definitely one of the most important committees within the Senate."

Varn is confident of Lloyd-Jones' ability to handle the position.

"I think she'll do a good job with the committee," he said. "She did a good job with the last committee she chaired, so I don't think she'll have too many problems."

UI research teams meet with Nagle

By Shawn Plank
Staff Writer

Rep. Dave Nagle, D-Iowa, met with members of the UI scientific research community Sunday to learn more about their work and find out how to better serve their interests in Washington, D.C.

Last month, Nagle was appointed to the Science and Technology Committee in the House of Representatives. The committee oversees scientific spending by federal government agencies including the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The freshman congressman said he is still new to the post and needs all the input he can get from UI researchers working on government-funded projects.

"IF YOU NEED to see me, tell me and we'll find time to get together," Nagle said.

There has been an increase in the percentage of research funds from military sources in the past seven years, Nagle said. In 1980, 75 percent of the funding was from civilian or non-military sources. Funds from military-related sources, including the Defense Department and the Energy Department, made up 25 percent of the funding, Nagle said.

In 1986, the percentages were reversed — 75 percent of funds came from defense and 25 percent came from civilian sources.

"I view this with great concern," Nagle said.

UI Vice President for Educational Development and Research Duane Spriestersbach said the Defense Department increase may have been caused by more money directed toward basic research projects rather than projects with direct military applications.

THE DEFENSE Department may have done this to "blunt criticism" it receives on college campuses, he said.

But Nagle said defense-funded research may decrease under a more assertive 100th Congress.

"The winds of change are a-blowin'," he said. "In terms of resources, we can allocate more to the civilian side and less to defense without cut-backs."

Scientists in the UI Physics and Astronomy Department are at work on a number of projects for NASA, including Galileo, a space probe that will travel to Jupiter and could be launched as early as 1989.

"I'm particularly interested in Galileo," Nagle said. "We do have an interest in it."

UI PHYSICS AND Astronomy Professor Louis Frank, one of the scientists working on the Galileo project at the UI, said money is needed from NASA to do basic research and to analyze data received by spacecraft.

Freedman compliments USI efforts

By Shawn Plank
Staff Writer

United Students of Iowa has represented students well in efforts to lobby the state Board of Regents and at the same time has avoided being a "narrow interest" group, UI President James O. Freedman said Saturday.

Freedman spoke to the USI legislative assembly, made up of about 30 student lobbyists from the UI, Iowa State University and the University of Northern Iowa. The group met in Iowa City Saturday to give an "in-depth look at things we've given priorities," USI Executive Director Bob Hansen said.

Other speakers at the legislative assembly included former Lt. Gov. Robert Anderson, who is currently executive director of the Iowa Peace Institute. Members also heard about the proposed farm bill co-sponsored by Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, and had questions dealing with educational issues answered by five members of the Iowa Legislature.

FREEDMAN SAID when USI was formed three years ago there was an apprehension that it would be a special interest lobbying group, dealing only with issues that affect students in the pocketbook.

"That's not been the case," he said, adding the state Board of Regents process of decision-making has been improved by USI's input.

"The quality of presentation to the Board of Regents has been remarkably well-informed, candid, direct and moderate in tone," an improvement on earlier student efforts, Freedman said.

Freedman also criticized the trend of student tuition increasing faster than state appropriations to the three regents universities. The shift has taken place, he said, because the legislature judged that raising taxes would not be popular or proper.

"WHY IS IT APPROPRIATE to believe that at the same time it is all right for students to pay more tuition?" he asked.

Anderson, speaking about the Iowa Peace Institute, said plans for the project are progressing. A number of similar peace institutes already exist on other campuses, including Notre Dame University.

The Iowa project would be different from other institutes because it would be a statewide project supported by a number of colleges and universities, Anderson said.

Students in the peace institute may be able to put their educations to work in the growing field of legal mediation, like the Iowa Farmer-Creditor Mediation Service.

UI Rural Crisis Group Co-chairman Joe Barry, speaking on Harkin's proposed "Save the Family Farm" Act, said legislators in Washington, D.C., are not supporting it now simply because they don't understand it.

ISU RURAL CONCERNS Group member Dan Holub said he hoped USI would endorse the bill and include it in its lobbying efforts. Only a small number of congressmen from Iowa have supported the bill, including Sen. Charles Grassley and Rep. Tom Tauke.

Circe Stumbo, former USI campus director, now vice president of the United States Student Association in Washington, D.C., returned to Iowa City to speak on financial aid issues working their way through Congress.

Federal financial aid loan programs are replacing grant programs, she said, which may leave students with a large debt upon graduation. The large debt encourages many students to pick a high-paying profession just to pay back their loans, Stumbo said.

A proposed federal program, the Income Contingent Loan, would allow students to pay back loans based on their income when they leave college. But Stumbo said the program may discriminate against low-income graduates who will have to pay a large amount of interest.

Legislators discuss regents funding

By Monica Selgel
University Editor

Five state legislators told United Students of Iowa members Saturday at the USI Legislative Assembly that the legislature is working with Gov. Terry Branstad's proposed budget to appropriate more state funds to the regents institutions.

Participants in the legislative forum included Sen. Rich Varn, D-Coralville; Sen. Wally Horn, D-Cedar Rapids; Rep. Don Shultz, D-Waterloo; Rep. Arthur Ollie, D-Clinton; and Rep. Mary Neuhauser, D-Iowa City.

In her opening remarks, Neuhauser said the Joint Appropriation Subcommittee on Education, of which she is vice chairwoman, is working for more appropriations to the regents institutions.

"I'm particularly concerned about students of these state universities," Neuhauser said. "We need to look at how we can deal with the effects of that large tuition increase on you."

HORN SAID A big problem is that although Branstad allocated a large amount of state funds to education, the majority of it is for primary and secondary schools and private colleges.

"Of the new $100 million the governor recommended for (kindergarten through 12th grade), there's no reason why he couldn't have said $70 million for K through 12 and $30 million for the regents institutions," Horn said.

Varn said although Branstad's recommended $1 million for the College Work Study Program looks good in theory, it will not aid the regents schools much.

"Of that $1 million, the regents schools will share only $272,000. The rest will go to the private schools," Varn said. "Is that fair?"

Varn said a more equitable plan would be to restrict Work Study money to public schools only, as the private colleges would already receive more state funds.

UI STUDENT SENATE President Joe Hansen said the arguments for raising tuition in the past have been that if tuition is raised, the schools will get matching funds from the legislature.

"But there have been no matching funds," he said. "How can this argument be used?"

Varn said there is no definite answer.

"I just don't know what we can say to that. We went through the same things when I was (a student) here, and we never won any of the arguments either."

Horn said accessibility to higher education should be a high priority for the state.

"I feel very strongly that how Iowa will get back on top is through its universities," he said. "To keep people here we've got to pour everything into education."

Tentative pact may end Quaker strike

The first strike to hit Cedar Rapids' Quaker Oats plant in 35 years may end today if the 1,000 workers who walked off the job Wednesday at midnight ratify a tentative agreement. Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union Local 110 members were still picketing the plant Sunday night, but indicated a tentative agreement had been reached after the second full day of negotiations with the company. The workers said they might be back on the job as early as today if the agreement passes a ratification vote scheduled for noon at the Cedar Rapids Union Hall. The strike began four days ago after production workers turned down a contract they said offered insufficient wages and did not deal with sensitive seniority issues. The Cedar Rapids plant is the largest Quaker Oats food production facility.

Public offices close for Presidents' Day

Most government offices and services will be closed or operating on special hours today in observance of Presidents' Day. Among those closed are the Iowa City Civic Center offices, the Iowa City Public Library, the Coralville Public Library, all offices in Coralville City Hall and all Johnson County offices. But several Iowa City and Coralville services will remain open and operate under modified hours. The Iowa City and Coralville post offices will not make home or business deliveries today, but will make collections from their own boxes on special holiday hours. The Senior Center will be open from 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., and congregate meals will be served. The offices at the Robert A. Lee Community Recreation Center will be closed, but all other activities there will follow normal schedules. The sanitary maintenance crews of Iowa City will not be making collections Monday. The Monday routes and half of the Tuesday routes will be covered Tuesday. The remainder of Tuesday's collections and all of Wednesday's collections will be made Wednesday. Crews should be back on regular schedules Thursday. Transit buses will operate on regular schedules. Parking meters will still be enforced and the ramps will maintain normal collection policies. Most area banks will also be closed Monday.

2 City High students receive top honors

UI President James O. Freedman announced last week two Iowa City High School students are among 25 high school seniors selected as recipients of 1987 UI Presidential Scholarships. Adam Cain, 806 Alpine Drive, and David Geraghty, 1719 Rochester Court, both of City High School, were selected to be recipients of the $10,000 scholarships — the UI's most prestigious awards for incoming freshmen. They were two of 264 top high school seniors who applied for the scholarships. To be eligible for the scholarship, a student must rank in the top 5 percent of his or her graduating class and have an ACT composite score of 29 or above. The scholarship winners will receive $2,500 a year over the course of four years on the grounds they maintain a 3.0 grade point average.

Arthritis group meeting slated for Feb. 17

The Johnson County Arthritis Support Group will hold its monthly meeting on Tuesday, Feb. 17 at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Room of Capitol House Apartments, 320 S. Dubuque St. Guest speaker at the meeting will be Nicholas Straniero, a fellow in Rheumatology at UI Hospitals. The arthritis support group welcomes all those with arthritic conditions, and their families, friends and interested health care workers. For more information contact the Education Office at Mercy Hospital at 337-0670 or 337-6753.

Book will review thoughts on nuclear war

The UI Press will publish the book Fictions of Nuclear Disaster by David Dowling, a senior lecturer in English at Massey University in New Zealand. The book examines the more than 250 stories and novels that have nuclear disaster as a theme, and provides a comprehensive picture of how writers have dealt with the issue of nuclear holocaust. The book is priced at $20, and can be ordered from the UI Press Order Department, Iowa City, Iowa 52242.

Forum covers rural crisis, immigration

By Monica Seigel
University Editor

Local residents reported their views about the rural crisis and immigration issues to Rep. Dave Nagle, D-Iowa, during a National Issues Forum at the Lindquist Center Friday. Panelists at the forum, which was sponsored by the UI Division of Continuing Education, discussed questions raised about agriculture and immigration and how they are being dealt with by Congress. UI Economics Professor Gerald Nordquist said the basic problem with Iowa's farm economy is overproduction. "Whatever changes have to be made, it's clear that we're going to have to stop paying farmers to overproduce," he said. Johnson County Extension Director Dale Shires said farm programs need to be created that will benefit the rural family. "The policy of new agricultural programs should be to save as many rural families as we can because it's the rural structure that's at risk," Shires said. IN HIS RESPONSE to the panelists, Nagle agreed programs should aid the smaller family farmer. "We have to decide what size agricultural unit we need to produce what we need," Nagle said. "We should start with the family farm unit and pay less as they get bigger — and since this is America — you can still get big on your own." The panel also discussed new federal immigration policies, which limit the number of people entering the United States. Dan McCloskey, Iowa City West High School senior, spoke of the culture added to the U.S. by immigrants and said there should be no limits. "I believe we should draw no line — in fact I think we should put the chalk away — even though the thought of dismantling the fences is scary for many Americans." IOWA CITY RESIDENT Esther Materon Arum said United States citizens should realize Hispanics are the fastest growing minority in the country. "We cannot ignore that we are part of the Americas," she said. "The U.S. must accept this proximity." After hearing the panelists discuss the immigration issue, Nagle responded, "I don't mean to be smart but this is the first time I ever wished I had the farm problem back." "We do need to work with the immigration laws," Nagle added. "Somewhere in the world there is someone who will find the cure for cancer and she's probably 2 years old and Vietnamese, and there's the possibility we won't let her in."

Valentine's Day ended with a stay in jail for two local couples following a fight with their respective spouses, according to Iowa City police reports. In one of the incidents, an Iowa City police officer was "jumped on" while trying to break up a scuffle between a husband and wife at an Iowa City tavern. Joel W. Emde, 30, Lot 29 Thatcher Mobile Home Park, was charged Saturday with assault with the intent to commit a serious injury and interference with official acts after an altercation with his wife, Lea K. Emde, same address, at The Kitty Hawk, 1012 Gibert Court. The incident was reported at about 9 p.m. to the Iowa City Police Department. Officers said Sunday the Emdes, after fighting with each other, turned their aggression toward the officers called to the scene. Lea Emde was charged with interference with official acts, simple assault and public intoxication, reports state. Joel Emde was treated and released Saturday night at UI Hospitals.

Both Emdes were released Sunday from the Johnson County Jail on their own recognizance. A separate altercation between a man and his wife took place at their residence Saturday in Iowa City. Gary L. Fisher and his wife, Cathy M. Fisher, Lot 364 Bon Aire Mobile Home Lodge, were each charged by Iowa City police with assault causing injury after a fight at about 8:30 p.m., according to Iowa City police reports. Both Fishers were released Sunday morning on their own recognizance. Theft Report: Computer equipment and cassette tapes valued at about $2,600 were stolen from an Iowa City residence, according to Iowa City police reports. Lonnie Lenaburg, 1960 Broadway St. Apt. 11C, Sunday told police his home was burglarized and an Apple Macintosh computer, monitor, keyboard, printer, modem and computer discs valued at $2,000 were taken. A light brown cassette tape case with 60 cassette tapes, worth $800 was also taken, reports state.

An Iowa City man who was arrested for driving a local grade school's bus without permission made his initial appearance Friday in Johnson County District Court. Trevor Leigh Bertelli, 18, 403 W. Benton St., was charged with operating a vehicle without the owner's consent and two counts of third-degree theft for allegedly taking items from the bus he drove and another bus on Feb. 6. Court records state Bertelli drove a Clear Creek Community School District bus into a stop sign and a ditch after taking it from a parking lot at Cosgrove Middle School in Cosgrove, Iowa. Bertelli and several accomplices took items worth more than $100, which included two citizen band radios and antennas, four fire extinguishers and five first aid kits from school buses parked at Clear Creek Community Schools in Oxford and Tiffin, Iowa, court records state. Patrick John Rogers, 18, 2131 Leonard Circle, was charged with aiding and abetting for leaving the scene of the incident and driving Bertelli and others back to Iowa City, court records state. Court records state both Bertelli and Rogers admitted their guilt to their charges and turned over the stolen property to police. Bertelli and Rogers were released on their own recognizance. Their preliminary hearing is scheduled for March 3.

Speaker: Christian response will help solve urban crises

PERKINS SPOKE FIRST of the hindrances to development in poorer communities, such as lack of family stability and the tendency of potential leaders to leave their com-

John M. Perkins communities when they complete their education.

Perkins stressed the need for jobs to be owned and controlled by the people of the community, saying, "We must empower them with the skills to run their own lives."

He described a need to create an environment where "just leaders" could emerge, and listed seven ingredients required, including family, faith and a sense of identity and purpose. In addition, Perkins said, leaders need a philosophy to engage the people in their community, and offered a "three R's of development" description of such a philosophy.

PERKINS SAID THE first R is relocation — getting leaders and young people, after education, back to the neighborhood to create economic enterprise. He cited his own sons, who returned to their home to start a tire business, as an example.

The second R, he said, is reconciliation — getting all people together in one body with God. "We cannot substitute numbers for growth," he said.

Perkins described the third R as redistribution, but cautioned his listeners about deifying money. "We can redistribute motivation, love and incentives, and money can be a by-product of that, but not the most important element," he said.

"In this country, we have capitalism for the rich and socialism for the poor," Perkins said. "We need free enterprise for everyone."

Deadly dumping

A very disturbing story — or rather, one that should be disturbing — came across the UPI wire last week. The story was a very dramatic one, full of grief and suffering. It was a story of death.

The story did not recount a plane crash or a bloody coup in a far-away country. It did not tell of war or famine. It simply stated that people in Bynum, N.C., are dying of cancer because their drinking water is being poisoned.

Fifty-nine percent of Bynum residents who have died since 1975 died of cancer. The statewide average is 21 percent.

Studies have shown that the Haw River, Bynum's source of drinking water, contains many chemicals that are threatening to human life. Interestingly enough, environmentalists say that companies are illegally dumping sewage and other toxins into the river.

Imagine being frightened to take a drink from your own faucet because it's not fit to water the lawn with. That is the kind of fear the residents of Bynum live with every day, all because a few powerful people feel a buck is more important than someone's life.

On Feb. 5 the Senate overrode President Ronald Reagan's veto of a $20 billion clean water bill. Ironically, Reagan's justification for vetoing the proposal stemmed from the fact that he considered it a "budget-buster." The bill calls for $18 billion in grants to help cities build sewage treatment plants. The measure also promises greater efforts in the clean-up of lakes, rivers and estuaries.

Environmentally, the clean water bill is definitely a step in the right direction. It is undoubtedly a comfort to those who, like the citizens of Bynum, are tired of being scared.

But more needs to be done, particularly on a private level. Businesses must be made to realize that when toxins are dumped into lakes and rivers, they just don't float away to nowhere. People drink them.

Stay out

Almost every day for weeks now the newspaper headlines have reported that yet another hostage, frequently an American, has been seized in Beirut. In response, President Ronald Reagan sent aircraft carriers to the Mediterranean Sea off Lebanon and to the Persian Gulf, close to Iran. Radio callers told talk-show hosts that the United States ought to bomb Lebanon, Iran or Syria — or all three. Some recommended sending in the Marines to take control of Beirut.

Actually, the United States did send the Marines to Lebanon when Dwight Eisenhower was president. And, during that same period, the CIA orchestrated the assassination of the premier of Iran, Mohammad Mosaddeq, a socialist who had nationalized Iranian oil, clearing the way for the Shah to return to the throne.

It is not coincidence, then, that a good deal of anti-American feeling exists in these countries. And it is this history which makes it virtually impossible for the United States to have much of a positive influence in Iran and Lebanon now.

America is seen not as an impartial friend of all sides, but as a meddling imperialist whose only goal is furthering its own interests — interests which, in the past, have not necessarily coincided with the interests of the people. The sad fact is that, for now, there is little or nothing helpful that America can do for these countries and their people.

If the United States is truly interested in stabilizing the region, it should apologize for past intrusions, and when Lebanon and Iran have tired of war, oppression and the slaughter of innocent people the United States should stand ready to offer assistance in rebuilding the region. Then we ought to get out, stay out and do what we can to keep others out.

In the mean time, the United States may not have squandered all the influence and respect created by former President Jimmy Carter in the rest of the Middle East and it may still be able to help the rest of the area come to peaceful agreements based on the Camp David peace accords.

TV's 'Amerika' miniseries leaves all viewers perturbed

IT'S THE MOST controversial television show since "The Day After."

The left-wingers hate it because it portrays a Soviet occupation of the United States that will probably never happen. The United Nations hates it because it is portrayed as a Soviet puppet in the program. Even the right-wingers hate it, for portraying the Soviets too sympathetically.

Well, now the verdict is in on "Amerika," and the most excitedly awaited television show of the year turns out to be... boring.

Yes, that's right, dull. Though I haven't had a chance to see it at press time, according to publications ranging from the New Republic to Newsweek, "Amerika" is so boring even the most ardent anti-Soviet can't be expected to endure all 14 hours of this miniseries (through seven nights).

THIS IS THE editorial page, however, so don't expect a review. Whether the program is good or not is irrelevant anyway. The politics of "Amerika" is actually the politics of hype, and the show is not going to be judged on its own merits, but whether or not it lives up to the ridiculous controversy surrounding it.

This isn't new to any of us. We all had to endure this a couple years ago when ABC, the same network that is giving us "Amerika," broadcast "The Day After." Weeks before the broadcast, Reed Irvine, the chairman of the conservative watchdog group Accuracy In Media, was calling it Soviet propaganda, and Jesse Helms was attacking it on the Senate floor.

Of course, this made people want to watch it all the more. How often do we get a chance to see Soviet propaganda on American television? As a result, "The Day After" became one of the highest rated programs of all time, even though it wasn't really very good, and certainly did not portray the aftereffects of nuclear war very accurately.

This probably wasn't what the right-wing zealots who protested the program were expecting, but it was a predictable result. Now the left, proving that stupidity knows no ideological boundaries, is making the same mistake.

ASA RESULT, "Amerika" will probably be highly rated. People who otherwise wouldn't give a miniseries featuring such noted stars as Kris Kristofferson, Robert Urich and Mariel Hemingway a second glance, will tune in to see what all the controversy is all about.

There is a lot to find offensive about "Amerika," especially the use of United Nations "peacekeepers" as part of the Soviet occupation force (even Jeanne Kirkpatrick, not a known U.N. fan, protested that), but probably nothing that's going to change anybody's position on anything.

I assume most Americans, even those who watch a great deal of television, will not take the film's ideological stance very seriously. Support for Star Wars and President Ronald Reagan's other anti-Soviet policies will not increase. And, likely as not, they will get bored with it toward the end of the week.

As a liberal, I must admit that there is something about "Amerika" which does upset me a great deal. As a result of the program, "Moonlighting" is cancelled this week. Frankly, I'll take Cybill Shepherd over Kris Kristofferson any day.

UI must raise AIDS awareness

By Dan McMillan

Someone once said the difference between a true crisis and a mere problem is that a crisis isn't recognized until it is too late to do anything about it. The implication, of course, is that if a problem can be identified in its early stages, a crisis can be avoided. The challenge is for people to be insightful enough to take corrective action before irreparable harm is done.

This challenge can take many forms, but is always most difficult when the problem calls upon people to change their personal behavior. That's why America is in such a predicament over AIDS.

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome, a disease that kills by destroying the human immune system, is a problem threatening to blossom into a crisis. That's a fact most people are aware of, especially after every major news magazine, every network news program and a host of medical professionals have told us the frightening truths about the disease. The difficulty is in making people change their ways.

TELLING PEOPLE the chilling facts doesn't seem to be enough. So what if 30,000 cases of the deadly disease have been reported since 1981? So what if more than 50 percent of these diagnosed AIDS patients have died since then? So what if the category of people considered to be at risk from AIDS has been expanded beyond homosexual men and intravenous drug users to include all sexually active men and women?

Still, the myth of invulnerability persists. And this myth is particularly dangerous for college-age students, according to Richard Keeling, chairman of the American College Health Association's AIDS task force.

Keeling, addressing a recent conference on AIDS and the college campus in Berkeley, Calif., said students — secure in the belief that AIDS can't happen to them, willing to accept multiple sex partners and motivated by peer pressure — are among the likely victims of the AIDS virus.

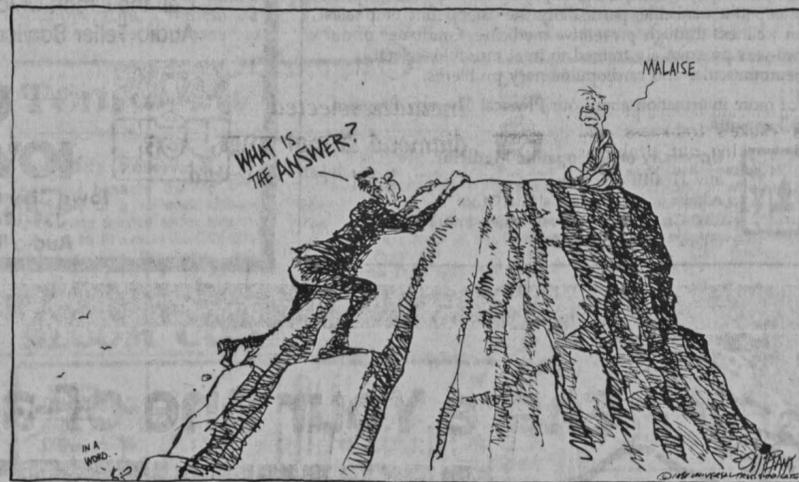

IF THE AIDS PROBLEM is to be stopped short of the crisis level, some drastic steps will have to be taken rather quickly. Perhaps most important, according to health professionals, is education. And since it is in the unique position of being not only an educator, but an educator of college-age students, the university is a crucial link in the search for an AIDS remedy.

But right now, not nearly enough university-sponsored education is taking place. At the UI, we have an Infectious Disease Committee, but no panel concentrating its efforts specifically on AIDS prevention; Student Health Service and Health Iowa have pamphlets about safe sex practices and AIDS, but no active programming is taking place.

With the UI's substantial resources, such as its cable television channel, direct mailing to residence hall residents or regular lectures to classes, it could increase student awareness about AIDS and the problem could begin to be addressed in a rational manner.

As it stands, we are virtually ignoring the problem — and inviting a crisis.

As education secretary says, a college is not a product

By Dennis O'Brien

IAM PLEASED that the Secretary of Education, William Bennett, has finally disclosed that universities are wasteful and inefficient. As a university president, I have always been ashamed to admit this fault, but I now feel that public confession is permissible. Perhaps abject admission will lead to fiscal absolutism or solvency.

Universities are not only inefficient in fact; they are inefficient in principle. The model of efficiency is the market economy, in which individuals are spurred to efficiencies of production and consumption by the discipline of market demands. The famous "invisible hand" adjusts individual decisions of producers and consumers so that an equilibrium of supply and demand is achieved. In this model, universities are spectacular failures. Our principal inadequacy is a failure of "market timing."

THE EFFICIENCY OF the market depends on its orientation to the present. A consumer can only wait so long for a purchase, and the merchant cannot afford to carry stale inventories. But while markets are oriented to the present, universities have an inefficient and obsessive interest in the past and future. The university library has to be the most out-of-date inventory extant.

Comment

Holding obsolete merchandise on the library shelves is bad enough, but universities also speculate in the futures market. For every philologist worrying about a verb's past tense, there is a physicist fussing about quarks — an item that probably has no sale price now or ever.

OF COURSE, it's possible to make universities market-efficient. Parsons College, in Iowa, operated on the best supermarket principles. Only courses currently on the Student-Consumer Top 40 list were offered. A few faculty were paid large salaries to mass merchandise the product. Part-time, low-paid assistants worked the check-out counters grading papers. Unhappily for advocates of efficiency, like Bennett, the Parsons model didn't inspire other colleges to follow and the college was sold.

Universities and colleges exist somewhere along the spectrum between museums and grocery markets. None — not even Harvard — can be pure museums retaining all the arts and artifacts of the past or the languages of out-of-fashion cultures. Nor do colleges move wholly in the direction of only fresh produce.

A DETERMINATION to "sell" the antique past and the exotic future establishes a first-order inefficiency that exponentially multiplies to orders of wastefulness beyond Bennett's worst nightmares. For example, the University of Rochester's Eastman School of Music maintains the largest music library in America outside the Library of Congress. For schools sponsoring something as untrendy as the Bachs, support services for the product from outside suppliers are limited.

What about the costs of the future? Exotic research requires equipment that one usually can't get at K-Mart. Of course, there is significant government support for scientific research, but the grants often do not cover the true costs of the programs, such as the cost of new facilities.

Bennett has argued that universities simply charge what the market can bear — the pupils-be-damned attitude. One could argue just as plausibly that government actions — excessive regulations plus underfunding of university research plus threats (and actions) to reduce student aid — have driven tuition costs ever higher. That scenario also is too simple and one-sided, but we seem to be caught in a game of simplicities about college costs. Given the terms of the current public debate, I would rather be wasteful than simple.

Shuttlesworth, one of the founders and a board member of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, told an audience of about 60 people at Shambaugh Auditorium Friday night that faith and commitment to God is what will propel the 60s and 70s into today's civil movement.

Tauke talk covers student aid issues

Tom Tauke

Acknowledging problems with existing federal financial aid programs, Rep. Tom Tauke, R-Iowa, said Friday he has drafted proposals to take care of some student concerns. Speaking to a group of about 50 people in the Communication Studies Building Auditorium, the 2nd District representative said Congress's intent in its last session was to make federal financial aid available to as many people as possible. "I think it's realistic to expect Congress will maintain funding and perhaps increase it slightly," he said. Tauke said Congress sympathizes with the difficulties students said they were having not only in receiving financial aid, but also in interpreting the aid regulations, adding that Congress may have gone too far in trying to close loopholes.

TAUKE URGED students to continue making their problems known to Congress. "We're interested in knowing how we did," he said about the Higher Education Act of 1986. The act was intended to make financial aid available to the largest number of students, but questions have arisen about how that act should be interpreted.

Tauke said the law should be interpreted somewhat liberally, but knows a lot of "worst-case scenarios" have been circulating, citing stories that between 20 and 30 percent of currently eligible Guaranteed Student Loan recipients may be ineligible under the new guidelines. THE U.S. DEPARTMENT of Education has not yet issued guidelines for interpreting the act since it was passed late last session, Tauke said, adding that guidelines should be issued within a few weeks. "I think it's safe to say that the regulations will not describe the worst-case scenario," Tauke said. "If they do, Congress will promptly override them." Tauke said he is prepared to make a proposal that will distinguish between fixed and liquid assets in determining a family's ability to pay for a student's education. Presently, the Department of Education considers all assets a family has as available for education expenses, Tauke said. For families with many fixed assets — like Iowa's farm families — that is not the best way to consider assets, he said. "You and I know the farmer isn't going to go out and mortgage the farm to pay for a student's education," he said.

A SECOND PROPOSAL Tauke has introduced to Congress would make interest on loans for education expenses deductible. He said it would restore a measure of fairness to the new tax code, under which home owners can deduct interest on a mortgage used to finance education expenses, while people who don't own homes have no similar opportunity. Although Tauke was cautiously optimistic about the chances for increased financial-aid funding in the upcoming budget, UI Student Senate President Joe Hansen said he is, by nature, cautiously pessimistic. Hansen said he was pleased with Tauke's frankness, and said working out problems with financial aid will be a challenge for students. "We, as students, need to work together to let legislators know," he said.

Civil rights leader shares experiences

The importance of "divine influence" in the civil rights movement was the focus of "The Moral and Ethical Dilemmas Facing the Civil Rights Movement in the 1980s," a presentation by the Rev. Fred Shuttlesworth in celebration of National Black History Month. Shuttlesworth, one of the founders and a current board member of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, told an audience of about 60 people in Shambaugh Auditorium Friday night that strong faith and commitment to God is what will put "the zeal of the 60s and 70s" back into today's civil rights movement. "Civil rights — or, I like to say human rights — is a problem unfulfilled," Shuttlesworth said. "God has given us each a job to do, regardless of our color. We're here for a purpose and that is to fulfill God's will. This makes the movement a divine struggle."

SHUTTLESWORTH, sharing his experiences of the freedom ride, demonstrations and his many arrests during the 1960s, said there is no justification for racism. bombs that could never possibly be used with any common sense and the teflon coat around our president is unraveling and burning off," he said. "It's time for people to start questioning. 'WHEN GOOD PEOPLE are silent, we have to question how good is their goodness,' he said. Shuttlesworth said America is a nation at risk in many ways and needs inspiration and dreams reminiscent of Martin Luther King's. The event, which was sponsored by the Black Student Union, was opened with a reading by BSU President Kelvin Burton of "Let My People Go," by James Weldon Johnson. "So many people have cried, 'Let my people go.' Moses said it to the pharaoh, Ghandi said it to the British and it was King's philosophy, too," Burton said.

Poll shows support for Washington

CHICAGO — A Chicago Tribune poll indicates 22 percent — or one out of five — of the city's whites support Mayor Harold Washington, probably giving him the votes to guarantee his renomination in the Feb. 24 Democratic primary.

But results of the survey show Washington's "hold on that substantial white minority may be tenuous, and he could still lose it, and the primary, to former Mayor Jane Byrne."

The Tribune survey released Sunday said Washington was the choice of 22 percent of white voters. He received almost 90 percent of the black electorate, and he was getting roughly 40 percent of the Hispanic vote, the newspaper said.

Byrne, in contrast, received 2 percent support from blacks, and 9 percent say they are undecided or refused to disclose a preference, the Tribune said.

Debate will ask if 'God is really dead'

VATICAN CITY — Vatican envoys will meet with Soviet atheists in Leningrad next year for an unprecedented debate over whether God is dead, a Rome newspaper reported Sunday.

Il Messaggero said the conference on God and atheism — the first official meeting between Vatican and Soviet authorities since the Russian Revolution in 1917 — probably will take place in the spring or fall of 1988.

The newspaper said an official Vatican delegation composed of cardinals and other prelates would travel to Leningrad for the meeting, scheduled for the year marking the 1,000th anniversary of Christianity's arrival in Russia.

Il Messaggero said the suggestion for the debate came from Moscow, and the Rev. Franc Rode, undersecretary of the Secretariat for Non-Believers, replied by suggesting that the topic be "If God is truly dead."

Amnesty law creates 49 Midwest jobs

OMAHA, Nebraska — The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service plans to hire 49 temporary employees in Nebraska and Iowa to handle applications under a 1986 law granting amnesty for illegal aliens, an administrator said.

Paul Christensen, the agency's Omaha District enforcement supervisor, said some of the temporary employees will work in the Omaha office, while others will be in branches planned for Scottsbluff, Neb., and Des Moines and Davenport in Iowa.

He said the new law makes it illegal for employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens and compliance offices will be established in Omaha, Scottsbluff and Cedar Rapids.

Under the 1986 law, aliens, including illegal ones, who can show they have lived in the United States continuously since before Jan. 1, 1982, can apply for permanent residence.

Women build snow cave, survive temps

OGDEN, Utah — Two Chicago women survived a sub-freezing night lost in the Utah mountains near the Powder Mountain ski resort by building a snow cave and "keeping calm," officials said Sunday.

The Weber County Sheriff's Department identified the women as Rancee Ramsey, 31, and Lana Tieszen, 25. Officials said the women were making a downhill ski run Friday when they took a wrong turn and got lost.

Theron Palmer, director of the Powder Mountain Ski Patrol, said the women missed the resort's signs and went outside Powder Mountain's boundaries.

A sister telephoned the resort late Friday because she had not heard from the women. The Ski Patrol searched the mountain in a blizzard using search lights, but could not find them.

Thatcher's son weds Dallas native

LONDON — Mark Thatcher, son of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, and his Texas bride, the former Diane Burgdorf, left Sunday for a honeymoon in Australia.

Thatcher, 33, declined to pose for photographers and refused to confirm London newspapers' speculations that the couple's ultimate destination was Fiji.

"We are going to Australia — you know that," the smiling bridegroom said minutes before the couple climbed aboard the first-class section of Australia's Qantas Airlines flight QF010 to Sydney.

Thatcher, the prime minister's only son, and Burgdorf, 26-year-old daughter of a Dallas car dealer, were married Saturday at London's 16th century Savoy Chapel in a ceremony attended by 150 guests.

Reagan reportedly launched covert 'Project Democracy'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A program launched by President Ronald Reagan in 1982 to foster democracy worldwide included a covert section headed by Lt. Col. Oliver North and facilitated secret arms sales to Iran and the Nicaraguan rebels, The New York Times reported Sunday.

The newspaper reported that "Project Democracy" is now known as the National Endowment for Democracy and was set up to give financial assistance to democratic institutions worldwide, but the head of the endowment denied Sunday any link between the two agencies.

"There's no connection," Carl Gershman told United Press International in a telephone interview. "We are a non-profit, private institution and we have nothing to do with what was discussed in The New York Times."

THE TIMES REPORTED the clandestine operation gradually evolved into a nearly independent foreign policy branch, complete with its own leased ships and airplanes, communications systems, bank accounts and secret envoys.

Gershman said, "If something covert was set up, it was a perversion of the concept" of the endowment, which is make grants to trade unions and such organizations as the AFL-CIO and the YMCA.

"Every penny has been completely accounted for," Gershman said. "We're very proud of what we're doing. We need an explanation as well as you do."

"The endowment was established in November 1983 and we got under way in early 1984," he said. "There was no reference to 'Project Democracy.' I'm certainly as curious as anyone else. I don't know that it exists. I've never come across anything by that name."

BUT GERSHMAN did say that "some interagency group" existed and worked under the term "Project Democracy" after Reagan established the program.

Gershman added that he came to work for the endowment "on April 30, 1984," and has never heard the term "Project Democracy" in the three years he has worked there.

The three-member presidential Tower Commission, headed by former Sen. John Tower of Texas and charged with investigating National Security Council operations, has not turned up evidence that Reagan authorized the secret side of "Project Democracy," the newspaper reported.

Reagan first announced the public side of the project in a speech to the British Parliament on June 8, 1982.

The covert side was so well hidden that many "Project Democracy" officials and other NSC members were unaware of its existence, the newspaper reported.

Lt. Col. Oliver North, the fired NSC aide and the alleged mastermind of the Iran arms-

Contra aid money scheme, was in charge of the secret project, the Times said.

NORTH WAS PUT in charge of the project three years ago, the newspaper reported, and he and others expanded the covert operations program in 1984 after Congress restricted aid to the Nicaraguan rebels.

The report said it was unclear whether North was operating under orders from the White House on the design of the secret project, the newspaper reported. But the administration had decided that "Project Democracy" would have a covert aspect to it just weeks after Reagan first announced it, the article said.

A ship previously disclosed to have been used in an unsuccessful attempt to ransom American hostages in Lebanon with money donated by Texas businessman H. Ross Perot was operated by "Project Democracy," the report said.

Another ship was used in another unsuccessful operation to trade U.S. weapons for a Soviet tank held in Iran, the newspaper reported.

Congressional investigators have found mention of the project in NSC documents, the newspaper reported.

The report cited sources who claimed witnesses questioned by the Tower panel described a host of secret activities that have not been made public, the article said.

Scalia calls for reform of system

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia called Sunday for significant changes in the federal judiciary to protect the level of quality and prestige that surrounds the profession.

In a speech to members of the American Bar Association, Scalia painted a grim picture of the state of the federal court system. He said a massive caseload and expansion of the number of federal judges is bound to lead to an erosion of both quality and prestige.

"It is inevitable that as the image catches up with reality, the stature of the job and the quality of people it attracts will decline," he warned.

AS ONE SOLUTION, the former federal appeals court judge advised structural changes that would establish special courts to handle cases in areas such as social security and taxes.

Since 1960, the year he received his law degree, he said, the federal bench has undergone a quiet transformation of function and nature.

Scalia said there is no scarcity of qualified judges yet, but the situation could change.

National AIDS cases for U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The threat of AIDS in the nation is increasing, as 25 convicts died of the disease last year — nearly double the number since 1981 — and the number of confirmed cases jumped 61 percent, the government said Sunday.

The National Institute of Justice reported there were 1,234 cases of AIDS in U.S. federal state and local prisons and jails as of October 1986, an increase from 767 in 1985. The increase was lower than the nation's on the whole, "it is likely that more and more correctional systems will experience AIDS cases each year."

Among the nation's more than 500,000 state and federal prisoners at that time, 174 had the disease in 23 facilities, and another 29 had active cases in six county and municipal jails. The others had died or been released.

Chapman

NEW YORK (UPI) — The confessed killer of John Lennon, Paul McCartney, said he would be "more accessible," People magazine reported Sunday.

Mark Chapman, now 31 and a New York state prisoner since the Dec. 8, 1980, killing of the singer and songwriter, told the magazine that Lennon's murder was "meant to be... from before time."

But Chapman also considered killing President Ronald Reagan, Jackie Onassis, John F. Kennedy, George C. Scott and the former governor of Hawaii, George Ariyoshi, according to People magazine, which said the interviews were conducted with Chapman when he was the only one he has given since the Lennon murder.

CHAPMAN TOLD Psychologist Lee Salk he considers killing McCartney "until I found out Lennon was more accessible," the magazine said.

Iowa City's morning newspaper is also Iowa City's largest newspaper, with an editorial staff of more than 50 young professionals, an editorial budget of $210,000 and a circulation of 20,000. The Board of Student Publications Incorporated and the publisher of The Daily Iowan will soon interview candidates for the position of editor for the term beginning June 1, 1987 and ending May 31, 1988. Salary for the year will be $8,500 to $10,500 depending on experience.

The editor of the DI must have strong journalistic abilities and dedication, as well as skills in management and a clear sense of editorial responsibility. The board will weigh heavily such factors as scholarship, previous news writing and editing experience (including working at the DI or other daily newspaper) and proven ability to lead, organize and inspire a staff engaged in creative editorial activities.

Applicants must be currently enrolled in an undergraduate or graduate degree program at the U. of I. Deadline for submission of completed application is 4 pm, Friday, February 27th, 1987.

AIDS cases, deaths increase for U.S. prison population

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The threat of AIDS in the nation's prisons is increasing, as 254 convicts died of the disease last year — nearly double the number since 1981 — and the number of confirmed cases jumped 61 percent, the government said Sunday.

The National Institute of Justice reported there were 1,232 cases of AIDS in U.S. federal, state and local prisons and jails as of October 1986, and said that although the rate of increase was lower than the nation's on the whole, "it is likely that more and more correctional systems will experience AIDS cases each year."

Among the nation's more than 500,000 state and federal prisoners at that time, 174 had the disease in 23 facilities, and another 29 had active cases in six county and municipal jails. The others had died or been released.

New York City, New York, New Jersey and Florida accounted for 70 percent of all prison AIDS cases, the study said.

THE 254 DEATHS represented 48 percent of all AIDS deaths, 529, reported in prisons since the first case was discovered in a New York prison in 1981, the study said.

As of Feb. 9, the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta reported 30,632 cases of AIDS in the United States, of which 17,542 have resulted in death.

AIDS primarily attacks homosexuals and intravenous drug users but has recently spread more to heterosexuals. The fatal disease is transmitted through sexual contact, contaminated blood products or hypodermic needles.

The high rate of AIDS contraction in prisons is predictable, the study said, "because of the concentration in inmate populations of persons with ...

characteristics closely associated with AIDS — young adult males, Hispanics and blacks, and intravenous drug abusers."

AND ALTHOUGH Surgeon General C. Everett Koop suggested to Congress last week that prison populations are at risk, the study found that for the most part, convicts with AIDS contracted the disease before they entered jail.

"The few systematic studies that have been done suggest that (AIDS virus) transmission in prisons and jails has occurred infrequently," the report said.

James K. Stewart, director of the institute, also said a handful of corrections staff personnel have contracted AIDS from "outside sources," but none of the prison systems responding to the survey found a staff member had tested positive as a result of contact with a prisoner.

Chapman lists other targets

NEW YORK (UPI) — The confessed killer of John Lennon said ex-Beatle Paul McCartney might just as easily have been his target but Lennon was "more accessible." People magazine reported Sunday.

Mark Chapman, now 31 and in a New York state prison for the Dec. 8, 1980, killing of the singer and songwriter, also told the magazine that Lennon's murder was "meant to be ... from before time."

But Chapman also considered killing President Ronald Reagan, Jackie Onassis, Johnny Carson, Elizabeth Taylor, George C. Scott and the former governor of Hawaii, George Ariyoshi, according to People, which said the interviews it conducted with Chapman were the only ones he has given since the Lennon murder.

CHAPMAN TOLD Psychologist Lee Salk he considered killing McCartney "until I found out Lennon was more accessible," the magazine said.

As for Carson, "The only reason I can think of is because he's popular ... Actually I kind of like Johnny Carson," Chapman told the psychologist.

Chapman's mother, who has lived in Hawaii ever since her divorce in 1978 from Chapman's father, David, told the magazine she was bewildered when her son killed Lennon.

"This thing hit me totally out of the blue," said Chapman's mother, who asked the magazine to withhold her first name. "I mean, it just never seemed real. It seems like fiction. Even if I say it sometimes — you know, 'My son killed John Lennon' — I almost want to laugh."

No members of Chapman's family have visited him since the murder six years ago, People magazine said.

IN EXPLANATION, Chapman's mother said "it would be hard for me to see Mark, because then it would probably be more real."

"I really had a great urge not to go under with this thing," she continued. "I loved my life, and I wanted my life back. My first thought when this whole thing happened was, 'My God, I'll never be happy again,'" she told the magazine.

Chapman, who had been a fervent Christian, a camp counselor, a board member of his local YMCA and a security guard, went to Hawaii in 1977 with a plan to commit suicide there, the magazine said.

He told David Suggs, one of his defense lawyers, he had begun to pray to Satan at that time, having lost his faith in fundamentalist Christianity.

"I said, 'Just make me crazy — I want to be psycho ... I don't want to have to take this,'" the magazine quoted Chapman as saying.

His suicide attempt failed when the hose he attached from the exhaust pipe to the inside of his rental car burned through.

Suicide try 'understandable'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two Nixon administration officials who survived the Watergate scandal say they are not surprised that Robert McFarlane, a key figure in the Iran arms-Contra aid affair, apparently attempted suicide.

John Ehrlichman, Nixon's No. 2 man who was jailed for conspiracy in the Watergate cover-up, acknowledged suicide had crossed his mind. Others touched by the scandal said pressure often built to intolerable levels.

Ehrlichman and Jeb Stuart Magruder say that pressure born of intense public scrutiny and worries about personal reputation, career and family affects not only those embroiled in the controversy but also strains marriages and drags children "through hell."

"No it doesn't (surprise me)," Ehrlichman said of the McFarlane incident. "I'm sure that kind of thing is not an unusual reaction to pressure of that sort."

McFARLANE IS recovering after taking 20 to 30 Valium tablets a week ago. In the aftermath of what police investigated as a suicide attempt, friends have said McFarlane was struggling to deal with an uncertain career and the failure of the U.S. program to sell arms to Iran, which he helped initiate.

His testimony is at odds with that given by others and has been publicly questioned.

Magruder, deputy director of Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign who pleaded guilty to a Watergate-related offense, said he was "saddened but not surprised" by McFarlane's action, and understands the stress brought on by feelings of personal failure and uncertainty.

"That's how I felt. I came to Washington to save the world and went out to a high degree of negative public opinion and negative personal issues for the future," said Magruder, now a minister in Columbus, Ohio, and about to remarry.

Ehrlichman agreed, saying, "In Washington I think everything is double or triple ... The glare is just very, very bright. The press coverage is very aggressive."

Freedom efforts continue as kidnappers release hostage

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Kidnappers released a top adviser to President Amin Gemayel Sunday while an Arab-American leader, defying a U.S. ban on travel to Lebanon, began efforts to win the freedom of Western hostages and missing envoy Terry Waite.

Security sources said presidential aide Jean Obeid was freed apparently unharmed in Moslem West Beirut Sunday. Obeid was abducted by gunmen Thursday.

A man claiming to speak for the shadowy Islamic Jihad movement, which holds American and French hostages in Lebanon, claimed responsibility for the abduction. But Islamic Jihad later denied any role in Obeid's kidnapping.

Obeid, one of Gemayel's top unofficial advisers, maintains close relations with Syria and frequently visits West Beirut for talks with Moslem officials on behalf of the president, a Christian.

OBEID'S RELEASE came as efforts continued to free other hostages held in Lebanon.

Walid Jumblatt, leader of one of the militias that control Beirut, called on the Moslem fundamentalist group Hezbollah to free Church of England hostage negotiator Waite "if he is held with them." Hezbollah has denied it is holding him.

Jumblatt's statement marked the first time any of Lebanon's militia leaders named a specific group in connection with Waite's disappearance.

Waite, an envoy of the Archbishop of Canterbury, disappeared Jan. 20 after heading for a meeting with the kidnappers of two Americans. Militia sources have said Waite was detained after the collapse of a deal to swap at least one of the Americans for one of 17 Iraqis and Lebanese jailed in Kuwait for a series of bombings in December 1983.

ARAB-AMERICAN LEADER M.T. Medhi, secretary-general of the New York-based National Council on Islamic Affairs, dismissed concerns that he could wind up a hostage by trying to free Western captives. Mehdi, who arrived Saturday, said he was unlikely to be taken hostage because he is a Moslem.

Speaking at his Beirut hotel, Mehdi said he had defied a State Department ban on U.S. passport-holders traveling to Lebanon because he believed it was unconstitutional. Violators of the ban face up to five years in prison.

Medhi said the State Department informed him before his departure last week from New York that his trip was illegal. He said he would challenge the ban in court.

Haughey grips slim Irish lead

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — The Irish election campaign turned into a cliffhanger Sunday, and Prime Minister Garret FitzGerald warned his countrymen "the future of our people, our country, our children" is at stake in Tuesday's vote.

A poll published Sunday said opposition leader Charles Haughey's party had slipped to 45 percent of the vote — 2 points ahead of the combined strength of FitzGerald's party and the new center-right Progressive Democratic party.

Under Ireland's complex electoral system, voters list their preference of candidates in order — a method that has the effect of distributing seats in the 166-seat Parliament along the lines of a party's overall popular vote.

Political analysts said any more slippage in Haughey's standing could give the other two parties a combined majority.

BECAUSE OF IRELAND'S massive economic problems, it is considered virtually impossible that FitzGerald can win a majority himself in Tuesday's vote.

FitzGerald indicated Saturday he would try to form a coalition with the Progressive Democrats if Haughey fell short of a parliamentary majority.

The leader of the Progressive Democrats, Desmond O'Malley, refused to comment on FitzGerald's apparent coalition offer, saying his party would not enter "any pre-election agreement." But he has said his party would support any government that stood for Progressive Democratic policies.

FitzGerald and Haughey have seasawed in control of Ireland, twice alternating stints as prime minister.

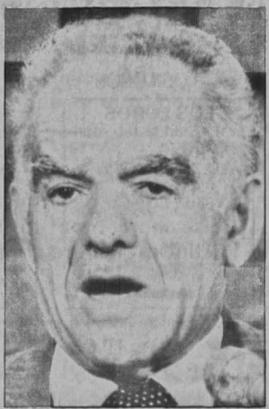

The poll by the Sunday Independent newspaper found a majority thought FitzGerald won a televised debate last week that focused on the debt-ridden economy and the troublesome issue of Northern Ireland.

Shamir defends Israel's role

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, leaving on a state visit to the United States, said Sunday Israel has "nothing to hide" for its role in the Iran arms-Contra aid scandal.

Shamir, making the first trip to the United States by an Israeli leader since the scandal surfaced in November, said at an airport news conference before his departure that he was not apprehensive about the visit and the prospect of close U.S. scrutiny over Israel's role.

"We have nothing to hide, and I think we acted in accordance with our relations with the United States and in accordance with our conscience," Shamir said. "We have announced our readiness to cooperate with the various bodies in the United States in the investigation."

Yitzhak Shamir

initiated the American weapons sales to Iran and proposed the scheme to funnel profits from the sales to U.S.-backed Contra rebels battling the Nicaraguan government.

BUT WASHINGTON'S preoccupation with the Iran arms affair threatened to overshadow the agenda.

Questions seemed likely to arise about a memorandum written by an aide to Vice President George Bush about a meeting last summer between Bush and Amiram Nir, a counterterrorism adviser in the prime minister's office.

THE WASHINGTON POST last week reported that Nir told Bush during the vice president's visit to Israel in July that the Israelis were "dealing with the most radical elements" in Iran because "we've learned they can deliver and the moderates can't."

"I THINK THAT Israel has nothing to be ashamed of, nothing to be defensive about," Shamir told Israeli radio before leaving for the United States late Sunday. "Israel acted as it should

Alleged war crim

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Re- American autoworker J Demjanjuk goes on trial to accused of being "Ivan Terrible" — a prison guard and Nazi war criminal who helped kill 900,000 people in the Treblinka gas chamber.

Demjanjuk's war crimes will be the first in Israel since 1961, when Adolf Eichmann was convicted and hanged for Nazi Germany's extermination of 6 million Jews in World War II.

Prosecutors claim Demjanjuk, 67, of Cleveland, was the 13th guard known as "Ivan the Terrible" who whipped and forced Jews, gypsies and others into gas chambers at the Treblinka death camp in Poland.

He was charged under a 1961 Israeli act that defines murder or persecution of Jews during the Nazi regime as a capital crime.

DEMJANJUK'S AMERICAN lawyer, who has requested several postponements of the trial, said he would prove the real "Ivan the Terrible" was killed in a 1943 prison revolt at Treblinka.

Demjanjuk, extradited from the United States last year, claims he is the victim of a case of mistaken identity.

"I was never in Treblinka," Demjanjuk told an Israeli judge after arriving in Israel on Feb. 28, 1986. "I am completely the wrong person."

The Ukrainian-born Demjanjuk told authorities he was

Alleged Nazi faces war crimes charge

JERUSALEM (UPI)—Retired American autoworker John Demjanjuk goes on trial today, accused of being "Ivan the Terrible" — a prison guard and Nazi war criminal who helped kill 900,000 people in the Treblinka gas chambers.

Demjanjuk's war crimes trial will be the first in Israel since 1961, when Adolf Eichmann was convicted and hanged for Nazi Germany's extermination of 6 million Jews in World War II.

Prosecutors claim Demjanjuk, 67, of Cleveland, was the Nazi guard known as "Ivan the Terrible" who whipped and forced Jews, gypsies and others into gas chambers at the Treblinka death camp in Poland.

He was charged under a 1950 Israeli act that defines murder or persecution of Jews during the Nazi regime as a capital crime.

DEMJEANJUK'S AMERICAN lawyer, who has requested and won several postponements of the trial, said he would prove the real "Ivan the Terrible" was killed in a 1943 prison revolt at Treblinka.

Demjanjuk, extradited from the United States last year, claims he is the victim of a case of mistaken identity.

"I was never in Treblinka," Demjanjuk told an Israeli judge after arriving in Israel on Feb. 28, 1986. "I am completely the wrong person."

The Ukrainian-born Demjanjuk told authorities he was drafted into the Soviet Army, was wounded and captured by the Nazis and spent most of World War II as a prisoner of the Germans.

"I myself was a prisoner of war," he said. "How they can take me from a prison camp to operator of gas chambers is beyond me."

PROSECUTORS are secretive about how they intend to prove more than 40 years after the war that Demjanjuk is the "Ivan" feared by camp inmates. Ten former Treblinka inmates have given testimony to the Israeli government, but it is not clear if they will testify in court.

Demjanjuk was held for the last year in a maximum security cell in Ayalon Prison near Tel Aviv.

The trial will be held in a concert hall specially converted into a courtroom in Jerusalem's National Buildings. Discussion of technical legal issues could take at least a week before opening statements and testimony begin.

At a hearing on March 12, 1985, U.S. government attorneys presented affidavits from Holocaust survivors that identified a photograph on Demjanjuk's 1951 U.S. visa as that of the notorious death camp guard.

Israel's justice minister ruled on April 16, 1986, that Cleveland lawyer Mark O'Connor could represent Demjanjuk in Israel because of the "special circumstances" of the case.

Peruvian students plan major protest

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — A student federation Sunday called for its members to "hit the streets" to protest police raids on three universities and the arrest of hundreds of students suspected of being terrorists.

Interior Minister Abel Salinas said at least 90 people detained during the university raids Friday night will be charged with belonging to Shining Path, an extremist Maoist guerrilla group, and another left-wing rebel group.

About 4,000 heavily armed police found bombs, small arms and what the government said was proof that rebels were using the campuses "to plan terrorist activities."

An unidentified civilian was shot to death, and three policemen and a still undetermined number of students were injured during the raids.

THE STUDENT Federation of Peru put up posters and distributed pamphlets at campuses Sunday calling for "the Peruvian student movement to hit the streets and mobilize until we obtain the freedom of all those arrested."

The street protests were called for 10 a.m. today.

Salinas, speaking at a news conference Saturday night, said authorities freed 264 of the 793 people police originally detained during the raids at the National Engineering University, San Marcos and the La Cantuta teachers' university.

Another 439 people are still being held, and either will be freed or formally charged with terrorism and turned over to judicial authorities, he said.

Salinas said Wilbert Melendez Suarez, one of the detained students, is the suspected leader of a Shining Path cell in northern Lima. Another man, Casimiro Castillo Ramirez, has been linked to rebel killings and bombings in Ancash state in the northern Andes, he said.

SOLDIERS CARRYING submachine guns patrolled in armored cars near the presidential palace and outlying shanty towns, apparently to guard against retaliatory attacks.

Dozens of relatives of detained students gathered outside a rural police training center in east Lima, where the detainees were being held for a second day.

The storming of the universities was the biggest police counterinsurgency operation in Lima since President Alan Garcia declared a state of emergency in the metropolitan area and imposed a nightly curfew a year ago to combat urban terrorism.

The Promise Of World Peace

A Message to the Peoples of the World

PRINCIPLE vs. PRAGMATISM

The abolition of war is not simply a matter of signing treaties and protocols; it is a complex task requiring a new level of commitment to resolving issues not customarily associated with the pursuit of peace...The primary challenge in dealing with issues of peace is to raise the context to the level of principle, as distinct from pure pragmatism.

The Promise Of World Peace, Pg. 9

A year ago, the international governing body of the Baha'i Faith addressed a letter to all the peoples of the earth. It outlines and reiterates the fundamental prerequisites for a just and secure world peace that were first proposed to the political and religious rulers of the planet in the late 1860's, by Baha'u'llah (Prophet-Founder of the Baha'i Faith). He claimed that these principles were the sole remedy for the ills that afflicted the body of mankind. His prescription was ignored.

Ambitious musician adapts to blindness, pursues career

By Anne Halloran
Staff Writer

When Debra Saylor practices playing the piano and sings, she has to read from a different style of music.

She reads her music in Braille.

The 24-year-old UI graduate music student has been blind since birth and will earn a doctorate degree in voice and piano from the UI this year.

Although Saylor agrees being sighted would make her education easier, she has adjusted her music lessons to her blindness.

"I didn't let it stop me," Saylor said.

Saylor said she reads her Braille music with one hand while playing the piano with the other. She says she memorizes most piano pieces quickly, but a 30-minute concerto may take as long as a month for her to learn.

Saylor earned a bachelor's degree in music from Clark College, Dubuque, and a master's degree in music from the UI.

SAYLOR CURRENTLY performs at weddings, nursing homes and plays the organ every Sunday for her church.

"I love to make people happy with my music," Saylor said. "That's why I feel God gave me the gift."

She said she also loves to sing opera and may like to turn her talents into a career.

Saylor, who has achieved a cumulative grade point average of 3.78 at the UI, says she has "high hopes" for her singing and piano future.

"I want to sing with great orchestras," Saylor said. "I also want to play and sing at recitals all over the country." But Saylor said there may be problems involved.

"The traveling involved might be a problem," she said. "But I believe the philosophy 'don't let anything get in your way, just go for it.'"

ANOTHER OPTION for Saylor is teaching. She said she would like to instruct her music students to believe in her philosophy.

According to Saylor's singing professor, Paula Boire, Saylor is an asset to other music students.

"She's very inspiring to the rest of us," Boire said. "Debra could memorize Bach, which is difficult for those of us who are sighted."

UI music graduate student Nancy Hagen agrees.

"Debbie is extremely ambitious," Hagen said. "There is nothing (she) won't try and nothing she can't do. She is always cheery and an extremely happy person to be around."

Saylor's ambition has led her to win many competitions and talent shows since she was 2 years old.

"I guess I knew something about music when I was younger," she said. "When I was 6 or 8 months old, I had a toy piano that, according to my parents, I was able to pick out tunes on."

Saylor will perform a recital at Harper Hall in late April.

Gable's Hawkeyes corral Cowboys

By Lynn Palmer
Staff Writer

Carrying a warm-up jacket and head gear, Iowa Coach Dan Gable entered the press conference following his team's 28-15 upset of No. 1-ranked Oklahoma State Saturday night.

"Just picking up the remains my wrestlers leave around, usually I yell at them, but tonight I'm not going to yell," Gable said. "This is the first time all year I've had a smile on my face. It's been a long time and it's been a long year."

The Hawkeyes kept their Carver-Hawkeye Arena dual-meet streak alive by posting their 39th straight victory.

"We needed a total team effort and we had one tonight. Everybody wrestled hard," Gable said. "It started from the beginning, and even though we lost the final match, it ended with that man on the bottom where he should be."

EXTRA POINTS collected on two draws, a major and superior decision and two pins gave Iowa the boost it needed to defeat the No. 1 team in the country.

"What you try to do in dual meets is salvage as many points as you can out of the various weight classes, and that's what we've been trying to do. Obviously it didn't work this time and we wrestled a very good team tonight in Iowa," Oklahoma State Coach Joe Seay said. "We didn't get quite the effort that we needed in a few cases."

The Cowboys took an early lead after Cory Baze scored a 7-6 decision over Steve Martin in the 118-pound match.

Iowa's John Regan fought back, however, and compiled a 16-8 major decision over Kendall Cross to put the Hawkeyes one point ahead of the Cowboys, 4-3.

THE COWBOYS CAME back to dominate in the 134-pound weight class with a major decision by No. 1-ranked John Smith over Iowa's Brad Penrith.

Mitch Kelly, who has been sharing the 158-pound spot with John Heffernan but had lost to Heffernan in the tryouts last week, dropped to 142 to fill in for the injured Greg Randall. Kelly and John Heffernan wrestled close matches but both drew with their opponents.

"Actually, I thought he had the win there (at 142), but he had the draw. But that kind of broke them a little bit. He was very physical out there. The guy had to take injury time out. Several of their guys had to take injury time out, and that's a credit to our team for pushing them a little bit harder," Gable said.

JIM HEFFERNAN helped Iowa turn the tables on the Cowboys with a superior decision over Angelo Cuzilna, boosting the Hawkeyes ahead, 11-9.

Hawkeye Royce Alger was scheduled to wrestle freshman Wade Zimmerman (4-3) at 167 pounds but found out Thursday night that Seay was switching around the line-up and moving 158-pound senior Glen Lanham (31-2-1) up in hopes of breaking Alger.

"Gable called me and said they were going to move the weights around on us so be ready. So I went in there (wrestling office) at 10:30 at night and just started watching films," Alger said. "So I watched him all week and was ready to go. I was motivated. He's a reputable opponent, and if he wants to come up to my weight, we'll go at it."

Arena. Smith defeated Penrith 20-10, but Penrith and Iowa had the upper hand, defeating the No. 1-ranked Cowboys, 28-15.

SEAY'S ATTEMPT failed, and Alger put Lanham on his back for the pin in two minutes, 16 seconds. Alger has now compiled 15 pins to boost his perfect record to 25-0.

A second pin of the night came from 177-pound Rico Chiapparelli to catapult the Hawkeyes to a 25-11 lead and out of the Cowboys' reach.

CHIAPPARELLI'S opponent, Mike Farrell, scored the first takedown, but a reversal by Chiapparelli kept him in control until his pin in 4:27. The score was 6-3 in favor of Chiapparelli when the fall occurred.

"Then Rico came out with his pin, and that just kind of blew them right out of here. And that's what I said. We wanted to blow them out of here, and I thought we did a good job of that considering that they're a very tough team," Gable said.

Lohaus helps Iowa sink Illini

By Brad Zimanek
Sports Editor

Iowa forward Brad Lohaus hit six consecutive free throws with less than a minute to play to lift the fourth-ranked Hawkeyes to a hard-fought 66-61 win over Illinois Saturday at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

Iowa trailed the Fighting Illini 61-60 with 59 seconds remaining when the 7-foot senior stepped to the line to try to regain the lead for the Hawkeyes after it had already changed hands seven times in the half.

"I've never had that many (free throws) in a row like that. It just happened. The play wasn't even supposed to go to me near the end," Lohaus, who led Iowa with 13 points and eight rebounds, said. "On the first one the only thing that was going through my mind was get the one. If we get the one, at least we got a tie. Once you tie all the weight is off your shoulders."

LOHAUS CONTINUED: "It's fun. That's what you come to play basketball for. When it's a close game you have to be thinking if you are up there you are going to hit them. It's been working for me."

After Lohaus's first two connections in the string, Illinois guard Doug Altenberger missed wide on a three-point shot. Altenberger's teammate Steve Bardo recovered the ball underneath but missed on his follow-up attempt. Lohaus pulled down the rebound and was fouled by Ken Norman.

Lohaus then displayed his touch from the line once again, after he had hit only one of four earlier in the game, to up the Hawkeyes' margin to 64-61.

Altenberger again broke free for a three-point attempt but was unable to connect, and Iowa guard Kevin Gamble retrieved the ball deep in the left corner.

"IT WAS THE FIRST time I have even been triple picked on a play," Iowa's Roy Marble said of guarding Altenberger on his three-point attempt to tie the game. "I just dove out at him and he missed it, and I was like, man, thank God for that."

Gamble, though, had problems of his own as he threw the ball right back to Altenberger, but the 6-4 Illini senior did the Hawkeyes a favor and stepped out of bounds.

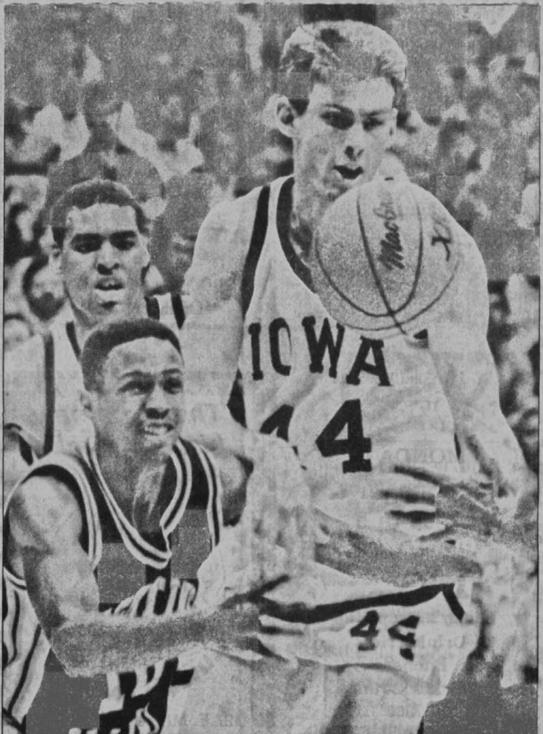

Lohaus wasn't done yet. The Glendale, Ariz., native was fouled by Illinois' Tony Wysinger on the inbounds pass, and Lohaus stepped to the line for the last time with :06 remaining.

"Once I made that one the game for all practical purposes was over," Lohaus said. "I just wanted to make the last one to get out of there."

IOWA LED AT halftime 39-31. The Hawkeyes allowed Illinois back into the game in the first 3:40 of the second session when the Fighting Illini outscored Iowa 10-0 to take a 41-39 lead.

Iowa Coach Tom Davis received an injury scare in the second half of Saturday's contest after point guard B.J. Armstrong went down with 11:49 remaining. Armstrong was twisting and limping on the floor with a thigh injury, similar to the one hampering Gamble — the Hawkeyes' other starting guard.

Armstrong went to the locker room and had his thigh iced and taped. He loosened his leg in the tunnel underneath the Arena and returned to the game with 3:04 remaining.

Armstrong was back in the game just over a minute before he drove to the right baseline and hit jump shot to give Iowa a 60-58 lead and Iowa's last points before Lohaus's 15-foot set shot display.

"I was just trying to loosen up the thigh until coach said he needed me to come back in and play," Armstrong said while walking with crutches after the game. "Mentally I was trying to stay in the game. I was always glancing out there, glancing out there to see what was going on."

LIKE GAMBLE LAST week, Armstrong may have problems returning to the starting line-up, especially considering the Hawkeyes don't have much time to rest between Big Ten match-ups. Iowa faces Ohio State Wednesday night in Columbus, Ohio.

"We won't know with B.J.'s until the swelling goes down," Davis said. "These are finely conditioned athletes with good solid muscle mass, and if it swells, it just hampers your movement. An average person could take a hit there and it wouldn't affect them as much. But when a finely-tuned athlete gets a bruise on a thigh or a muscle area, it can really hurt you."

Iowa had its third different starting line-up of the season Saturday, but this one wasn't due to an injury but possibly a faulty alarm clock.

Ed Horton and Gamble missed Davis's 7:30 a.m. walk-through practice and were not allowed to take their starting assignments. Jeff Moe filled in for Gamble and Gerry Wright took his first starting nod of the season over Horton.

NCAA mark falls at Cornhusker Invite

By Robert Mann
Staff Writer

After watching several school records fall over the past three weeks, four members of the Iowa women's track team went one better by turning in an NCAA record time.

This time it was the 4 x 880-yard relay squad at the center of attention as it bettered the old NCAA mark of eight minutes, 45.77 seconds, set by Florida last year, with a time of 8:44.44 at the Cornhusker Invitational in Lincoln, Neb., on Friday.

"That was really an electric four-person team effort by Iowa," Hawkeye Coach Jerry Hassard said. "Every member of the relay clicked to beat a quality field in an exciting race. I'm very proud of this team."

AT THE INVITATIONAL, four 4 x 880 relay teams qualified for the NCAA indoor track meet by bettering the qualifying mark of 8:51.80. Iowa State finished on the heels of Iowa, ending with a time of 8:44.79. Brigham Young and Nevada-Las Vegas came in third and fourth, also with qualifying times.

Iowa's Janet Wodek ran the first leg of the relay in a split time of 2:13.1. Sherri Suppelsa ran the second leg in 2:12.5 and Kim Schneckloth, who has been chopping seconds off her stretch of the race in recent weeks, was impressive with a time of 2:11.5 on the third leg. Jeanne Kruckeberg overtook two runners on the final leg and finished with a split time of 2:07.

Kruckeberg had an outstanding meet as she was also able to qualify individually for the NCAA indoor meet in the 1,000-yard run. She topped the qualifying mark of 2:31.54 with a 2:30.11 performance.

"KRUCKEBERG destroyed the field," Hassard said. "She was really in a class by herself. She beat the field by several seconds and really ran all by herself. It's not very easy to qualify without having people close to you."

While she was not able to qualify for nationals, Senta Hawkins still finished third in the 600-yard run in an Iowa record-breaking performance. She ran the distance in 1:21.06, topping the old mark of 1:22.49 set by Kay Stormo in 1982.

Although Lynn McMillan tied for third in the triple jump with a leap of 5 feet, 7 1/4 inches, Hassard said she may be getting a little higher before long. "She's closing in at 5-9 1/4, the next jump up."

OTHER HAWKEYES who placed at the meet were: Davera Taylor, who finished fifth and turned in a personal best time of 35.2 in the 300-yard dash; Schneckloth, who finished fifth in the mile run in 4:52.31; Wodek, who was fourth in the 880-yard run in 2:15.10; and Becki Borg, who was sixth in the triple jump with a leap of 38-6 1/2.

More than 25 colleges and universities were present at the non-scoring meet, which Hassard called "the nation's top collegiate indoor meet of the year," including 1986 NCAA indoor champion Alabama, 1986 NCAA third-place finisher Southern California and 1986 NCAA fourth-place finishers Tennessee.

The Cornhusker Invitational produced 24 women qualifiers for the NCAA indoor meet, including five 60-yard hurdlers, three triple jumpers, two 600 runners and four shot putters.

Some more members of the Iowa team will have a shot at qualifying this weekend at the Illinois Classic in Champaign, Ill., for the NCAA meet, which will be held in Oklahoma City on March 13-15.

Red Rolling Hawks upend Green, 10-6

The Red team beat the Green team 10-6 in a Rolling Hawks wheelchair basketball game Sunday at the Field House. Sean Clancy won the free-throw shooting contest at halftime while Tim Wellman finished second.

Winners received gift certificates from the contest's sponsors: Cookie's & More, Barfunkel's, Command Performance, Vito's, That's Rentertainment and Real Records.

"I think it was a successful outing," Cathy Seemuth, graduate assistant for Recreational Services, said. "We had a better turnout than the game in November. Little by little, we hope to get more people out."

Upcoming events for the Rolling Hawks include Awareness Days, March 31 and April 1, and a game during Riverfest against the Iowa Cheerleaders April 22 in the Field House.

Arena will host Russian-USA wrestling

Iowa wrestling Coach Dan Gable and former Hawkeye all-American Barry Davis will highlight a USA squad, which will battle the USSR national team April 1 at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

Tickets for the event will go on sale Friday at the Arena ticket offices.

Emotion leads Michigan State to upset

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Michigan State's sixth man showed up Sunday — Mr. Emotion.

"We've said all year we don't play hard enough, we don't play emotionally enough and we don't play excited enough," Michigan State Coach Jud Heathcote said after his aroused team handed Michigan a 90-81 loss.

"The crowd was into the game," Heathcote said. "That gave us a real lift."

Guard Darryl Johnson helped get the crowd into the game before it started when he appealed with his hands for some audience noise. He got it.

Johnson scored 17 of his game-high 26 points in the second half and played a key part in staving off Michigan's last rally. Running mate Vernon Carr had 20 points, 10 in the second half.

"Vernon Carr and Darryl Johnson were sensational," Michigan Coach Bill Frieder said after Michigan's third road loss in a row. "I was talking about the NCAA tournament two weeks ago, and we haven't won a game since. You know what that tells me — it tells me I'd better keep my fat mouth shut."

"We've been up and down all year," Johnson said. "The emotions weren't there. But the ABC cameras probably psyched us up a little bit. The guys were going out there and doing things I haven't seen them do all year."

Michigan State raised its record to 9-12 overall and 4-7 in the Big Ten while Michigan was falling to 6-6 in the league and 15-9 for the season.

Johnson ignites Lakers past Boston

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Magic Johnson scored 41 points and ignited the Lakers' return from a 17-point, third-quarter deficit Sunday, lifting Los Angeles to a 106-103 triumph over the Boston Celtics in an emotional battle of the NBA's top teams.

The Lakers, who ended Boston's 48-game Garden winning streak on Dec. 12, grabbed sole possession of the league's best record, 38-12, with their first season sweep of the Celtics in three seasons.

Boston, 37-13, had a four-game winning streak snapped. The Celtics were playing their fourth game in five days. Johnson's spinning layup around Danny Ainge with 1:29 left gave the Lakers a 98-97 edge, but he missed the ensuing free throw, and Robert Parish dunked off a Larry Bird pass to put the Celtics on top with 1:14 to play.

However, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar spun around Parish for a layup for a 100-99 lead with 55 seconds left, then rebounded Parish's hook shot. Johnson then canned a 20-footer from the left flank with 23 seconds to play.

Hawkeyes sweep Boilermakers, Illini

By Mike Trilk
Staff Writer

The stage is set. Iowa will play Ohio State this Friday night at Carver-Hawkeye Arena in hopes of gaining a share of the Big Ten women's basketball title.

Iowa needed a sweep of Purdue and Illinois this past weekend to set up Friday's showdown, and the Hawkeyes came through.

Sunday, Iowa edged a pesky Illini team, 70-64, behind a balanced scoring attack which saw four players reach the double figure mark.

Lisa Long paced the Hawkeyes with 20 points while Michelle Edwards added 17, Lisa Becker had 12 and Franthea Price had 10. Long also grabbed nine rebounds as Iowa upped its record to 18-4 overall and 11-1 in the conference. Illinois slipped to 16-6 and 9-4.

The win was especially gratifying for Stringer. Last year Stringer took her team, which at the time was tied for the Big Ten lead, into Illinois' Assembly Hall and the Illini handed Iowa a 78-68 setback, which eventually cost Iowa the league crown.

"IT WAS ONE OF those games that you'd just rather forget," Stringer said about last year's loss. "There we were, two wins away from a Big Ten championship, but instead of being aggressive and confident and taking it, we allowed something we worked very hard for to be taken away."

Halftime score — Iowa 31, Illinois 30. Fouled out — Illinois, Johnson.

I remember how I felt after that game. I'd like to think that the players remembered too."

Friday night the Hawkeyes walked Purdue, handing the Boilermakers an 86-80 loss which gave Stringer something to smile about for a change.

"It was our best performance in quite some time," Stringer said. "We were successful both in the transition game and the half-court offense. We also played nice defense."

Five Hawkeyes scored in double figures Friday as Long and Edwards shared high scoring honors with 16 apiece.

Edwards' 16 points made her only the seventh Iowa player in history to reach the 1,000-point plateau. Edwards entered Friday's game needing 14 points to hit the 1,000 mark. Edwards also kept her string of consecutive games with 10 or more points intact. The junior from Boston has now scored in double figures 32 straight games.

Hawkeyes turn the tables on the hometown Hoosiers

By Steve Williams
Assistant Sports Editor

During a time that can be looked back upon as one of the most successful periods in Iowa athletic history, Coach Glenn Patton and his men's swimming team have added themselves to a very prestigious group.

Saturday at Moyer Pool on the Indiana campus, the Hawkeyes out-swam the Hoosiers 70-43 and became the first Big Ten team ever to win in Bloomington, Ind.

And after defeating Purdue 72-41 Sunday in West Lafayette, Ind., the 12-1 Hawkeyes appear to be in perfect position for a run at the Big Ten title. John Davey, Iowa's top gun, fueled the Hawkeyes' weekend trip to Indiana, pulling five wins in two days.

ON SATURDAY, DAVEY won the 200-yard individual medley in one minute, 52.47 seconds and the 200-yard butterfly in 1:50.77 while teaming up with Nigel Ali, Erik Bacon and Ed Lower to win the 400-yard medley relay in 3:25.89.

Sunday, Davey continued his torrid ways by taking the 200-yard freestyle and the 200-yard backstroke.

"Davey is a great swimmer, and he proved it today," Indiana Coach James (Doc) Councilman said. "We knew he would be tough to beat, and he didn't disappoint us."

Ali, Dan Dumford and Steve Grams also had two wins each against Indiana as the Hawkeyes out-touched the Hoosiers at the wall, much the way as Michigan had done to them the week before in their win at Iowa City.

"We thought we could do a little better than we did," Councilman said. "But the way Iowa swam Saturday, there was just no way we were going to beat them."

Hawks dump weekend set

Iowa men's tennis Coach Steve Houghton knew that when he scheduled Nebraska and Wichita State as preseason tennis opponents, his squad would be up against some quality competition.

What Houghton did not know until Friday and Saturday was just how tough that competition was.

"I knew both of these teams were going to be good, but they were even better than I thought," Houghton said. "Wichita State is good enough that it would be able to win the Big Ten, and they are definitely a top 20 team. They are the best team we'll face this year, along with Michigan and Minnesota."

The Hawkeyes dropped some close matches to Nebraska before losing, 6-3. Wichita State, however, dominated Iowa at nearly every level to win 9-0.

"I THOUGHT AGAINST Nebraska we could have done a little better than we did," Houghton said. "It was a good competitive match. The encouraging thing about Nebraska is that the two guys who won their singles matches were freshmen."

Freshman Dave Novak (I) defeated Mike Marsh (N) 6-7, 6-2, 6-2 at the No. 3 position, and freshman Jay Maltby (I) defeated Pat Carson (N) 7-5, 3-6, 6-4 at No. 6.

The only other Iowa winner was the No. 2 doubles team of Rudy Foo/Jim Burkeholder, beating Robert Sjolholm/Stuart Jung 3-6, 6-4, 7-6.

In the other singles matches against Nebraska: No. 1 Sjolholm (N) defeated Martin Aguirre (I) 7-6, 6-2; No. 2 Steven Jung (N) defeated Foo (I) 6-2, 7-5; No. 4 Ken Feuer (N) defeated Bryan Stokstad (I) 3-6, 6-4, 6-0; and No. 5 Brad Scheidegger (N) defeated Burkeholder (I) 6-3, 6-2.

They're out for blood.

At first, it was only once a week. Then three times. Now they're out for blood every night. And they're not alone. They're just two of the thousands of people all over the country who are finally starting to do something about the disease that kills almost 32,000 Americans every year—and afflicts another 38 million. Hawks nab wins in Michigan

By Brad Zimaneck
Sports Editor

The overall performances were shaky at times but the Iowa men's gymnastics team scratched out three victories in Michigan over the weekend.

Friday in East Lansing, Mich., the Hawkeyes produced a score of 271.20 while upending Michigan State (269.90) and Western Michigan (262.15). Saturday in Ann Arbor, Mich., Iowa turned the trick against Michigan by defeating the Wolverines, 271.30-264.15.

"Our line-up is starting to come together." Iowa Coach Tom Dunn said. "We'll look at a couple of different people this weekend, and I think we're shooting for March 1, but injuries are going to be a big part on when we settle on our line-up."

LEADING IOWA IN THE triangular and dual meet victory were both Ron Nasti and Chris Stanicek. Nasti placed second in the all-around at both meets while Stanicek won the vault twice.

"Stanicek had a good weekend, and he is showing that he is consistently good, which is good to know," Dunn said.

Also a pleasant surprise for Dunn was the performance of Israel native Eyal Weissblit against the Wolverines. Weissblit performed as an all-arounder for the first time this season and placed third overall, behind Nasti and Michigan's Brock Orwig while also finishing third on the floor exercise.

Badger women top Hawkeyes in Wisconsin

By Laura Palmer
Staff Writer

The Iowa women gymnasts continued to perform well with a second-place finish at the Wisconsin Invitational in Madison, Wis., Saturday.

The host Badgers won the meet with 177 points, ahead of Iowa's 173.2. Iowa defeated Iowa State (169.4), which could help the Hawkeyes when they travel to Ames next weekend to face the Cyclones in a dual meet. Placing fourth was Winona State (165.05).

"We have a better outlook and were able to see the Iowa State competition since we meet them next week," Iowa's Shelby Root said. "We know we can do it (beat Iowa State), but there are things we've got to improve on just like they'll probably improve on some things. It will take a lot of work, but it's possible."

Women's Gymnastics

One of Wisconsin's consistent all-around scorers, Susan Seymour, was injured and left the competition with two events left.

"IT WAS KIND OF FRUSTRATING. But it pulled us together, and we put people in there," Badger Beth Benevente said. "We're not hitting our best routines right now, but we're getting better."

Benevente, Wisconsin's consistently high scorer, placed first in the all-around competition (36.10) ahead of Root (35.3).

Benevente has been trying to come back after a bout with mononucleosis at the beginning of the year and is not up to full strength.

"This is only the second meet I really did well in the all-around," Benevente said. "I haven't been able to throw the tricks that I have been and have had to throw easier tricks."

"It's the best routines I did all year. I hit all four events," Root said.

Iowa's Wendy Hussar placed third on the uneven parallel bars with a 9.0. On the vault, Iowa's Kim Podgorski tied for third with Wisconsin's Janet McCray by scoring a 9.0.

Hawkeye Kim Burkard tied for second with Benevente in the balance beam competition (9.0).

"I'm scoring better this year, and I'm consistent. But I'm not where I want to be," Benevente said.

Although no Hawkeyes placed in the floor exercise competition, Root was Iowa's best scorer with a 9.1.

Battered Iowa looks to return from injuries

By Dan Millea
Staff Writer

With the Big Ten Championships less than two weeks away, the Iowa men's track team has yet to compete as a full group, foreshadowing a long day in Champaign, Ill., Feb. 28.

Iowa Coach Ted Wheeler took just five Hawkeyes to the Central Collegiate meet in Ypsilanti, Mich., last weekend, and has just one more chance — at the Illinois Classic Feb. 21 — to tune-up an injury-riddled group before the Big Ten meet.

Men's Track

"We've been injured and we've occasionally performed very badly," Wheeler said. "Right now we're having a bad time of it."

Iowa is not without talent. Wheeler has a strong sophomore class led by Paul Steele and Curtis Chung, and some tough seniors such as Chris Gambol. But injuries have made every meet a collection of a few individual events for the Hawkeyes.

Gambol, the only consistent placemaker for Wheeler this season, again finished in the top three in Ypsilanti with a third-place throw of 56-feet, 1 1/2 inches.

"CHRIS ISN'T HAPPY ABOUT THAT," Wheeler said of Gambol, who has thrown better than that earlier in the year.

Pat Meade was the only other Hawkeye to place at the Central Collegiate meet, taking fifth in the high jump with a personal best leap of 6-10 1/4.

Text, series record civil rights history

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — "Eyes on the Prize," a six-part PBS series which is shown locally at 8 p.m. on Wednesdays, is giving more than half the people in the United States their first filmed history of the civil rights movement which changed the nation.

So says Juan Williams, the author of a companion book to the TV series.

"Eyes on the Prize: America's Civil Rights Years, 1954-1965" was produced by Henry Hampton, a polio victim who participated in the historic Selma march on crutches. Williams' book by the same title has been published by Viking.

While Hampton represents the participatory generation of the civil rights struggle, Williams represents the beneficiary generation.

Williams, 32, an award-winning Washington Post reporter, said the massive civil rights march in all-white Forsyth County, Ga., earlier this month was a "stunner" to him and probably to others in his generation.

"IT TAKES US back almost to pre-civil rights movement activities," Williams said in an interview. "I think the event was out of place and out of time ... (and) not in keeping with what is going on in the rest of the country."

"Generally, we passed the point where we are fighting over the right to public accommodations, the right to march down the street or be in a neighborhood. That is not where the civil rights movement is at. The civil rights movement generally has triumphed in those areas."

Williams said Hampton, who asked him to write the companion book for the PBS series, "experienced the terror of troopers on horseback on the Selma-to-Montgomery march. He wanted to tell this

Most of the people who watch the series will not have such recollections, the author noted. "Half of the black people were not even born when this was going on," he said. "Not only blacks, but half the country was not alive. About three quarters of the country have a dim recollection, and often that recollection is violent and unpleasant memories that this was a terrible period in American history."

"THERE WAS A LOT of pain so (people ask), 'Why don't we just forget that and move on?' People forget that this was a period when the American government and the American people came through with flying honors."

"It was very radical to challenge segregation by culture and segregation by law. To contest that kind of living condition ... took courage."

Under massive public pressure, Williams said, the courts responded and other public officials and the press began to respond.

He emphasized that without wholesale support from white Americans the civil rights struggle of the 1950s and 1960s would not have been won.

"IT HAPPENED WITHOUT massive violence," Williams pointed out. "It was not like the situation in South Africa. It's an incredible accomplishment. They didn't achieve total equality for everyone but certainly the idea was out there."

"But sometimes people forget what a glorious period this was. Until now there has been no comprehensive history of this movement put on paper or put on film. So it was really shocking to me that most Americans — and especially black kids — had no sense of what their parents or grandparents went through to get to the point where they could go to public schools and get equal treatment," Williams said.

PERCEVAL
A 12-century courtly romance spoken in verse and largely musicalized, shot in studio sets that recreate the gilded surfaces of medieval illuminations. Eric Rohmer's film is a uniquely enchanting world of maidens, combats, spells and castles...and, finally, a very moving quest for faith.

In this film, Ousmane Sembene goes beyond the expected topics of European exploitation and cultural imperialism, and satirizes instead the emerging black bourgeoisie. The film was heavily censored in Sembene's native Senegal, touching as it does on the myth of African independence and what one reviewer describes as the "wholesale blackfacing of white colonial policies by African independents."

Union

approve new pact at Quaker

CEDAR RAPIDS (UPI) — Union employees at Quaker Oats Co. in Cedar Rapids ended a five-day strike against the cereal maker Monday by ratifying a new three-year contract that will provide workers with $1,500 bonuses over the next six months.

Members of Retail, Wholesale & Department Store Union Local 110 approved the pact, 552-171, after a one-day meeting Monday after ending the first strike at Quaker Oats since 1951.

Union leaders said that members of the local returned to work today.

THE PACT, WORKERS with the help of a mediator during marathon talks the weekend, would receive base wages for the next months. However, union members will receive cash bonuses of $1,000 Feb. 20 and $500 on Feb. 17. Bob Leeper, Quaker employee relations manager, said.

He added workers will earn about $12.60 an hour and receive four 1 percent raises between February 1988 and August 1989.

In addition, workers will receive a 10 percent cost-of-living increase during the first and third years of the contract.

"I BELIEVE THAT both sides were desiring a settlement on this matter, a good contract for both sides," Leeper said.

"The company has gotten what they want out of it, and the union has gotten what it feels they wanted," he said.

Leeper said in return for the wage agreement union members approved changes in the rules the company requires. But he would not specify the changes.
