51 dead in Brazil railroad tragedy

ITAQUERA, Brazil (UPI) — A commuter train passed through a warning light near a suburban train station during a driving rain Tuesday and slammed into a second passenger train, killing at least 51 people and injuring more than 230, witnesses and rescue officials said.

The accident took place at 12:20 p.m. about 17 miles west of Sao Paulo while one train was switching tracks about 100 yards outside the suburban Itaquera train station, a fire department spokesman said.

The train passed through a red warning light at a track crossing and struck the fourth car of the second passenger train, demolishing the car, witnesses said.

A CIVIL DEFENSE spokesman in Sao Paulo said 51 people were killed and at least 230 injured. "It was a horrible accident," fire Maj. Roberto Lemes said.

A spokesman at Itaquera Hospital, which is about 300 yards from the accident site, said 90 victims, including 30 fatalities, were brought to the hospital.

Rescue workers sift through wreckage Tuesday in Sao Paulo, Brazil, after a commuter train ran a warning light and slammed into another locomotive. Brazilian police estimate at least 51 deaths.

The bodies of many victims were so badly mutilated that relatives were not immediately allowed to see them, the spokesman said.

The crash recalled an accident in Chase, Md., outside Baltimore on Jan. 4 in which 16 people were killed and about 170 injured when a speeding Amtrak passenger train struck the rear of three Conrail locomotives that had passed through several warning signals.

THE TRAINS in Tuesday's accident, which belong to the Brazilian Urban Train Company, were traveling between Sao Paulo and Mogi das Cruzes, 75 miles north of Sao Paulo.

CBTU said it did know the speed of the trains and had begun an investigation into the accident. "We still don't know what caused the accident," said Elias Salles, a CBTU spokesman.

Power shift takes place in Vietnam

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Vietnam announced a sweeping government shakeup Tuesday — including firing the general who engineered the conquest of South Vietnam — in what analysts saw as a move by the new Communist Party boss to consolidate power.

The biggest-ever shakeup involved the removal or transfer of 31 top officials, including a dozen Cabinet ministers, a statement broadcast by Radio Hanoi said. The broadcast, monitored in Bangkok, said the changes were made Monday in a meeting of the Council of State.

The moves followed major changes in Communist Party leadership at the sixth Party Congress in December after a tough "criticism and self-criticism" campaign that faulted the leadership for failing to improve the backward economy.

Among those fired was Defense Minister Gen. Van Tien Dung, renowned in Vietnam as the planner and commander of the 55-day offensive that captured Saigon in 1975.

Dung, 70, dropped from the Communist Party Politburo in December, was replaced as defense minister by Gen. Le Duc Anh. Anh, who moved up to number six in the party leadership at the congress, was commander of Vietnamese troops in Cambodia.

ANALYSTS IN BANGKOK said the Cabinet changes were the most extensive ever by the communist government, more than doubling the number of changes made in a Cabinet reshuffle only last year.

Diplomats said the timing of the shakeup — two months before National Assembly elections — showed that new Communist Party chief Nguyen Van Linh was successfully consolidating his grip on power.

Linh, 73, was named party secretary general in December when Prime Minister Pham Van Dong and President Truong Chinh, both now 80, stepped down from their party posts due to advancing age.

Other top officials sacked were two deputy premiers, the ministers of power, education, higher and vocational education, engineering and metals, light industry, the minister general secretary of the Council of Ministers and chairman of the state inspection commission.

Kiwanis Club may break all-male tradition

By James Cahoy
Staff Writer

Iowa City's all-male Noon Kiwanis Club chapter is about to buck a 72-year tradition by considering two women for membership.

Lolly Eggers, director of the Iowa City Public Library, and Marlene Perrin, editorial page editor of the Iowa City Press-Citizen could be the first women Kiwanis members in Iowa after they were recently invited to join the local 30-member club, pending a change in bylaws.

"I don't think we are revolutionaries, we just feel no reason to exclude women," club president James Ferguson said. "There are 35 Kiwanis chapters across the nation that currently accept women, so we are not alone."

Ferguson thinks the general membership will vote to change the bylaws, which currently do not allow women in the club.

"WE HAD A MEETING of the board of directors of the club, and the vote was unanimous to change the rules," Ferguson said. "The general membership has also voted to ask the Kiwanis International organization to allow women to join, so I think they probably would vote to change the bylaws."

Ferguson said the club's international rules forbidding the admission of women are questionable because of current litigation. Kiwanis are involved in with a New Jersey club that admitted women.

Ferguson said the club's international rules forbidding the admission of women are questionable because of current litigation. Kiwanis are involved in with a New Jersey club that admitted women.

"If the decision is in favor of admitting women, the international organization will probably back off from not admitting women," Ferguson said. "If the court rules against the club that admitted women, we'll just have to see what happens from there."

BUT IOWA CITY Kiwanis member James Gross is confident the rule change will be approved.

"I don't see any problems in amending the bylaws," Gross said. "I think it's about time we did this, and I think it's the right thing to do."

Several Iowa City chapter members asked Eggers and Perrin to apply for membership in the club.

Eggers said she would be comfortable joining the club.

"I think it's a minor tradition that's being broken, so I don't think of it as a major achievement to try to join the club," Eggers said. "I've lived in Iowa City for a long time, and I know most of the people in the club."

The 72-year-old Kiwanis International Club has 313,000 members in 8,300 chapters worldwide.

Report: UI could broaden outreach

By Monica Seigel
University Editor

A UI task force instigated last January issued a report Tuesday proposing eight recommendations to help broaden UI outreach and make it a greater resource to the state.

The Task Force on University Strategies for the Future Development of the State, whose 20 members were drawn from UI faculty, staff and students, presented the report to UI President James O. Freedman.

UI Dean of the College of Business Administration George Daly headed the task force.

"The University of Iowa presently contributes to the state's future in a variety of important ways. The issue the task force addressed was, 'Can we expand these contributions while maintaining the quality and integrity of our primary educational activities?'" Daly said. "Our conclusion is that we can, and indeed should."

The task force visited 22 Iowa communities to find out what the UI could offer them.

"The message we received across the state was, 'Yes, we want help,' but not 'We want you to save us,'" Daly said.

Upon receiving the report, Freedman said discussion of how the recommendations could be implemented will begin "immediately."

According to the report, the recommendations primarily deal with more interaction between the UI — specifically the faculty — and the state.

"Faculty should be involved in outreach programs," Daly said. "It's not the official domain of public relations."

Seat belt law may unbuckle

DES MOINES (UPI) — A Senate committee is expected to consider repealing the state's seat belt law today, but House leaders oppose the effort and transportation officials are concerned about a possible compromise.

Sen. Joe Coleman, D-7th District, chairman of the Senate Transportation Committee said Tuesday his panel plans today to consider the bill which would repeal the state's six-month-old mandatory seat belt law.

"I want to get it (debate) going before we run into the funnel," Coleman said referring to an approaching deadline for the introduction of bills. "I have received 250,000 petitions. I think now I have the mandate."

Warren Dunham, director of the Iowa Department of Transportation, told DOT Commission members Tuesday he is worried lawmakers will agree on a compromise that would require seatbelts only at certain rates of speed, such as faster than 30 or 40 mph.

"UNFORTUNATELY, statistics show most accidents occur near home and at low rates of speed. This so-called compromise would do away with the safety where the exposure is the greatest," he said.

"Running head-on to somebody going 30 mph is the same as going 60 mph and hitting a fixed object," he said.

Dunham encouraged supportters of the seat belt law to make themselves heard and said lawmakers are working too quickly to repeal the measure.

The seat belt law, which went into effect July 1 and mandated $10 fines for violators beginning Jan. 1, already has been credited with saving the lives of 63 Iowans, Dunham said. Compliance with the current law stands at about 50 percent, he said.

"We will go to extreme lengths to save one life by finding a kidney or heart for a transplant, but we don't seem to be willing to go to moderate lengths to save numerous lives," he said.

SO FAR, THE repeal effort has little support in the House, where the proposal has been assigned to a subcommittee of the House Transportation Committee. Committee Chairman Rep. Deo Koenigs, D-McIntire, said he has no plans for his panel to consider the measure.

"I think it will stay in the subcommittee. Nobody really knows for sure, but there are not a lot of cheerleaders over here in the House fanning the flames," he said.

Coleman, who chairs the 10-member Senate Transportation Committee, said public response has been overwhelming to his petition drive, but he doubts he can muster the necessary seven votes to get his bill through the committee.

'Kissing Bandit' robs patron

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — A casino patron who was drugged — possibly by a prostitute's kiss — was robbed of $7,000, three gold rings and a watch in a crime reminiscent of the resort's "kissing bandit," police said Tuesday.

Manuel Staurinakis, 55, of Charleston, S.C., was hospitalized after receiving the lip smack Monday at the Sands Hotel & Casino, said Detective Joseph Voci of the Atlantic City police casino investigation unit.

Staurinakis "met a female and went back to the room and somehow or other he was rendered unconscious, possibly by a mouth-to-mouth (manner)," Voci said.

Police believe Staurinakis was drugged because he is a diabetic and does not drink alcohol, Voci said.

"The victim thinks he was kissed," Detective Daniel Rispoli said. "We have no idea how the real drugging was done."

THE POLICE department has investigated other cases in which women went back to hotel rooms with men they met in casinos, drugged them and then robbed them. Voci said the traditional method of drugging the victim was by dropping a substance in the man's drink.

Similar cases are under investigation in Florida and Las Vegas.

However, Voci said there was an incident a few years ago where several men said a woman had drugged them by "putting something in their mouth" when she kissed them. The woman, who was arrested, was dubbed the "kissing bandit," Voci said.

The woman who drugged Staurinakis was described as 5-foot-8 with brown hair, Rispoli said.

Campus Roundup

Student's letter prompts death threats

President Ronald Reagan is causing quite a stir on the Ohio State University campus, but not through either his policies or politics. It's the possibility of the president's future presence that has some students groaning.

Reagan has been invited to speak at Ohio State's 1987 commencement, but no final arrangements have been confirmed.

One student opposed to Reagan's visit wrote a letter to the editor of Ohio State's campus newspaper, The Lantern. Michael G. Sloan wrote he was "shocked, dismayed and revolted" to learn of the invitation.

"Personally, I would refuse any diploma that passes through the blood-stained hands of Ronald Reagan," Sloan wrote.

Now that letter has come back to haunt Sloan. The Ohio State senior has received death threats and was physically assaulted as a result of expressing his opinion.

Sloan received two calls, two hours apart, from anonymous callers disagreeing violently with his "slandering" of Reagan, and threatening to kill him.

The following day, Sloan was hit on the back of the neck and shoulder with a 16-ounce Pepsi bottle. His attackers were described as college-age males, but no identification has been confirmed.

Sloan, who often writes on political issues, said he is used to being hassled by conservative elements on campus but has never had his life threatened before. He said the incidents will not force him to stop writing letters.

Prof allegedly shares pot-laced cookies

A University of Arizona professor who allegedly gave students cookies laced with marijuana has been ordered to pay $23,105 in attorney's fees stemming from an unsuccessful lawsuit against the university.

Leo L. Barrow was suspended as a punishment after a student of his gave university officials one of the oatmeal cookies laced with marijuana that Barrow allegedly brought to a 1980 class outing. Barrow's lawsuit sought back pay for the 180 days in 1982 that he was suspended without pay following the incident by the Arizona Board of Regents.

A county superior court judge ruled that Barrow had been justly punished and was not eligible for back pay.

UT sexual harassment suit to go to trial

A former University of Texas faculty member will have her $1 million sexual harassment and discrimination lawsuit heard in an Austin court March 2.

Barbara Gold, a former assistant professor of classics, filed a suit in June naming the university's president, board of regents and four faculty members.

A motion to add three university officials to the suit for conspiring to deny Gold tenure failed. The three officials are also mentioned in another sexual discrimination suit filed in January.

Gold said the university may try to have the hearing closed to the public to prevent further harm to its reputation.

Philosophy award possibly a hoax

Whitman College in Walla Walla, Wash., was given a national award for philosophy department teaching, but that award is possibly a hoax.

The school received a letter, postmarked from Newark, Del., last November announcing its philosophy department had received the "Award for Excellence in Undergraduate Education in Philosophy," the "highest professional honor which an undergraduate department may receive" on American Philosophical Association letterhead stationery.

However, the APA, based at the University of Delaware, denies that such an award even exists.

Correction

The Daily Iowan will correct unfair or inaccurate stories or headlines. If a report is wrong or misleading, call the DI at 335-6063. A correction or clarification will be published in this column.

In a story called "Gay People's Union plans distribution of free condoms" (DI, Feb. 17), UI Gay People's Union Health Coordinator Joel Gray's estimate of the number of people who will develop AIDS in the next five and a half years was erroneously reported. Gray estimates 600,000 to 800,000 will develop the disease nationwide.

In a story called "Humor, tragedy fill macabre musical" (DI, Feb. 17), Rob Eckert was incorrectly identified as Steve Ascioffa.

The DI regrets the errors.

Committee OKs laser facility bonding

DES MOINES (UPI) — The House Appropriations Committee Tuesday approved an $80 million bonding proposal for projects at state universities, including a controversial provision banning classified research to develop weapons systems.

The panel voted 12-8 in support of the measure, which would provide funding for a $37.5 million molecular biology laboratory at Iowa State University, a $25.1 million laser center at the UI and $5.8 million library addition at the University of Northern Iowa.

The proposal, which now moves to the House floor for debate, also includes an additional $8 million for UNI building remodeling, $5.1 million for an ISU home economics building and $1.5 million for fire and environmental safety projects at all three schools.

THE MOST controversy during committee debate focused on military research which some lawmakers fear will be drawn to the UI's proposed laser center.

Panel members rejected, on an 11-10 vote, an amendment by Rep. Bill Harbor, R-Mills, which would have allowed classified research.

"I am greatly concerned that this kind of language will put a restriction on the researcher. To ban classified research puts handcuffs on the university," Harbor said.

Rep. Gene Blanshan, D-Scranton, was the only Democrat to support Harbor's amendment.

"I have serious concerns that if we make too many restrictions, we will impede what we want — a top flight research facility that knows no bounds," he said.

COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN Rep. Tom Jochum, D-Dubuque, said the UI already has a policy banning classified research.

"They adopted that policy because they decided the university had no business being involved in the development of a weapons system. But that policy could be changed at any time. It could change the day after the governor signed the bill," he said.

"This would be a safeguard to answer to the fears the facilities will be used to develop weapons systems," Jochum said. He said UI officials sold on the idea of the laser center because they said the research would be used for medical applications and other things "for the betterment of humankind, not the building of weapons."

Rep. Jack Hatch, D-Des Moines, the proposal's sponsor, said the institutions would be permitted to accept Defense Department contracts as long as the research is not classified.

"Lasers are involved in offensive and defensive weapons systems. That debate is going on in this country right now. We just are saying we don't want research directly related to such things as the Strategic Defense Initiative," Hatch said.

Old Brick sale moves ahead after out of court settlement

By Anne Halloran Staff Writer

Old Brick will soon be owned by the Lutheran Campus Council of Iowa City and the UI's Episcopal Chaplaincy, after a local group tried to prevent its sale last fall.

Old Brick Associates, who owned the 131-year-old landmark at the corner of Market and Clinton streets, decided to sell the building to the Lutheran Campus Council and the Episcopal Chaplaincy last September.

But both groups were delayed by a lawsuit filed in Johnson County District Court by Friends of Old Brick, whose members are associate shareholders in the historic building.

The 16 members of Friends of Old Brick agreed, in a settlement filed out of court earlier this month, to drop the lawsuit because they do not own enough shares in the building.

"It was the intent of Friends of Old Brick to acquire all of the shares but we couldn't match the offer," Friends of Old Brick member Tom Baldrige said Tuesday.

"IT'S SETTLED AS far as we're concerned," Baldrige said. "We have mixed feelings. Individually, some are very upset and some are less upset."

Friends of Old Brick members, who owned 14,000 of the building's 90,500 shares, contended in their suit that the sale could not be legally approved because the decision was not unanimous among all shareholders, although the majority of the shareholders were in favor of the sale.

Baldrige said his group's shares could not affect the decision on the sale. He said Friends of Old Brick wanted to preserve the building.

Old Brick was built in 1856 as a Presbyterian church, but the church was sold to the UI in 1974 with the intent to tear down the building and use the lot for green space.

AFTER A TEMPORARY injunction to keep the church from being torn down, a non-profit organization named Old Brick Associates purchased the property.

The Rev. Ted Fritchel, pastor of the Lutheran Campus Center, which is affiliated with the council, said the sale is not completed but should be by this spring.

"Although we know what we're going to do with it, it's too soon to tell," Fritchel said. "We have three renovation projects."

Armed with ice cream in a shiny tin "publicity jacket," Greg Gratzon, western Ice Cream Co. president, said today.

Gratzon was on hand to introduce his ice cream to the Union, one of the products offered by the company since the move to its new location last week.

Gratzon's ice cream appeared throughout the west in seven franchised supermarkets in eight states and now in food stores in private companies.

The ice cream entrepreneur speaks like a freedom fighter when he talks of his "conquering" Haagen-Dazs brand ice cream, which views as his main competitor.

Boyd pushes recognition of black literature

Black-American literature is not receiving enough attention, UI Assistant English Professor Melba Boyd said Tuesday.

"If you are not an Afro-American or a person who has had close contact with the Afro-American community, it is a lot more difficult to fully understand and appreciate the dimensions of black literature," Boyd explained.

UI Pantry features ice cream

By Shawn Plank
Staff Writer

Armed with ice cream and clad in a shiny turquoise "publicity jacket," Great Midwestern Ice Cream Co. President Fred Gratzon made a "guerrilla warfare" invasion of the newly renovated Union Pantry Tuesday.

Gratzon was on hand to formally introduce his ice cream to the Union, one of the new products offered by the Pantry since the move to its expanded location last week.

Gratzon's ice cream is now appearing throughout the Midwest in seven franchise stores, supermarkets in eight states and now in food service outlets in private companies and universities.

The ice cream entrepreneur speaks like a freedom fighter when he talks of his hopes of "conquering" Haagen-Dazs brand ice cream, which he views as his main competitor. The upscale brand of ice cream is distributed nationally by Pillsbury, Co.

GREAT MIDWESTERN is infiltrating small markets and will eventually be the leading ice cream in the Midwest, he said.

"We hope to capture the taste of Midwesterners," he said. "Our goal is to make Iowa the ice cream capitol of the world."

Gratzon opened his Iowa City store in June 1980 and gained nationwide attention after People magazine voted the store's blueberry ice cream the best in the nation in 1984.

Eight flavors of Great Midwestern ice cream are offered at the Pantry, including Vanilla, Dutch Chocolate, Coffee Chip and Raspberry. Four additional flavors will be rotated weekly.

Union Food Service Director Greg Black said he hopes the Pantry can sell 30 to 50 gallons of ice cream a week.

But Gratzon was more optimistic. "I think you're being conservative," he told Black.

THREE OTHER ice cream companies competed against Great Midwestern for space in the Pantry's ice cream freezers, Black said.

But he explained Gratzon's company won because of the quality of the product and the location of the company.

"We try to have as many Iowa products as we can," Black said.

The Pantry also sells bagels from Bruegger's Bagel Bakery, 225 Iowa Ave.

In addition to bagels and ice cream, Black said the "bigger and better" Pantry will feature an upscale line of soft drinks and 12 varieties of whole bean coffees — up from nine.

The Pantry moved from the Wheelroom back to its original location last Wednesday, "a little later than we expected," Black said.

THE WHEELROOM location "hurt business a lot," Black said.

"The traffic flow through the downstairs was bad with the south lobby closed off completely," he said.

In addition, the Pantry wasn't able to stock many items because they had no refrigeration units in the Wheelroom, limiting them to selling non-refrigerated pastries and coffee, Black said.

The Pantry was originally opened in the south lobby of the Union in September 1984.

Also this week, student government groups will move from their third floor offices in the Union to their renovated rooms on the ground floor, Union Director Jean Kendall said.

The $10.1 million renovation project should be complete by the fall of 1988, she added.

Black History Month

you understand the experience from which black-American literature comes from it can be seriously misrepresented or under-represented in a course," Boyd said.

BUT BOYD IS doing her part to educate the UI student body.

As she teaches a course entitled Black Women Writers, Boyd provides a general historical overview to her students of black female writers such as Gwendolyn Brooks and Alice Childreth.

Before coming to the UI, Boyd was an assistant editor for Broadside Press, a publishing house which prints primarily works by black authors. It was there she printed her second book, Song for Maya.

UI English Professor Peter Nazareth said Boyd's poetry is "powerful," and its experimental form and content is important.

He explained Boyd's poetry refers to kinds of American history frequently overlooked by whites and also refers to European mythology.

"SHE IS BUILDING a common mythology out of the past to encourage the development of a multi-cultural America," he said.

Nazareth added that Boyd is very effective in communicating her ideas because she "presents poetry in an unfamiliar way so you can learn things that would be impossible to understand in any other manner."

Boyd said she is interested in other poets who have been at the forefront of their fields.

She is currently writing a book about Francis Harper, a 19th century black female poet who Boyd says was overlooked by white literary critics.

"During the 19th century it was not popular for writers to write about subject matter that white people would be intimidated by. So the portrayals of black stereotypes were the writers who were accepted, and Francis Harper was not doing that," Boyd said.

Worthy plan

The state Board of Regents will be briefed today on a plan that could both save the state money and improve the quality of education for Iowa's deaf students.

The proposal concerns merging the Iowa School for the Deaf, in Council Bluffs, with the Nebraska School for the Deaf, now located in Omaha. If the plan is approved, pupils from the two schools — located approximately 10 miles apart — would be educated at the Iowa school.

Doug True, regents business and finance director, estimates the merger — through shared facilities and faculty — could save each state as much as $2 million annually.

Theoretically, the plan should also improve the quality of education at the schools. Combining staffs would provide students with only the best instructors. More money should also be available for improving existing programs and developing new methods of teaching.

An earlier regents plan proposed combining the Iowa Braille and Sightsaving School in Vinton with the state-run deaf school. That plan, based on the premise that students with all types of disabilities could be educated in the same manner, was preposterous. Blind and deaf students have very different needs.

This plan, however, has merit.

The schools have a sound working relationship, enrollment has dropped significantly at both schools and scarce education funds could be saved.

The regents should give a hearty OK to this workable and innovative proposal.

Farewell

Radio humorist Garrison Keillor made the sad announcement Saturday evening: The days of those Powdermilk Biscuits in the big blue box are numbered. The final live performance of Keillor's radio show, "A Prairie Home Companion," will be broadcast by American Public Radio on June 13.

Keillor has entertained radio audiences with his subtle humor, folk music and hometown stories for the past 13 years and devoted listeners will sorely miss the little town of Lake Wobegon, "Where all the women are strong, all the men are good-looking and all the children are above average."

To be certain, Saturday evenings will seem a little emptier, but the exit of Keillor marks the passing of something more significant than a funny joke or two.

Live radio programming like "A Prairie Home Companion" is a cultural anachronism, a holdover from the days before television's dominance. Today, the thought of gathering around the old "wireless" for a night's entertainment is nearly as foreign to college students as trudging out to the outhouse.

Still, there's something attractive about listening to a good radio show. Perhaps it's the feeling of being in touch with the past through the knowledge that one's grandparents did the same thing so long ago. Perhaps it's just that programs like Keillor's were worth listening to.

At any rate, "A Prairie Home Companion" will be missed. Keillor's wholesome humor will be missed. And nothing will satisfy like those Powdermilk Biscuits.

- Are you
- a) tired of doing homework?
- b) suffering from the mid-week blues?
- c) needing an excuse to have fun?
- d) all of the above?

Then check out the Solomon Amendment benefit concert. Tonight at 8 p.m., three local bands — The Cause, Shell Game and Four Million — will perform at the Dubuque Street Brewing Co., 313 S. Dubuque St. The price of admission at the door is $3.

The Solomon Amendment is a law that requires male students to verify they have registered for the draft before receiving financial aid. All proceeds from the concert — sponsored by the UI Collegiate Associations Council — will go to a financial aid fund for nonregistered students attending the UI.

The fund helps those students who object to the draft pay their education bills, and it needs assistance. Show support for the UI's conscientious objectors tonight.

User fees could help pay for a county wildlife preserve

By Bruce Japsen

A 46-acre wildlife preserve won't be built near Iowa City because Johnson County doesn't have enough bucks to shell out for it. But that's not much of a surprise.

The preserve, where elk and buffalo would have been among the sheltered wild, would have been located at F.W. Kent Park, about 10 miles west of Iowa City on U.S. Highway 6, but the Johnson County Board of Supervisors rejected the Conservation Board's request to fund the $70,000 preserve.

Supervisors argued that the county doesn't have the money for the preserve, which is true.

The county budget seemingly faces annual cuts from state and federal governments anyway. Funds for wildlife preserves just don't appear feasible, or necessary.

From the Metro Desk

The Johnson County Rural Taxpayers Association provided the loudest voice against the reserve because they said they believe county residents' tax money would have paid for it in the long run.

They're probably right, but this doesn't mean there will never be a wildlife preserve at Kent Park.

The push during the past year by state and federal lawmakers to make Iowa a tourist attraction should give county leaders an idea.

THERE'S NO REASON why the county cannot promote its park as a tourist attraction, highlighted by a wildlife preserve. There's also no reason why the wildlife preserve couldn't pay for itself.

Park user fees could be one means of paying for a reserve.

The county-owned Kent Park already requires a fee for use of its camping area and its beach. About 30,000 people use the beach annually and another 6,000 take advantage of Kent Park's camping area.

State lawmakers passed a park user fee to be used at state-owned parks last year as a moneymaker.

It's apparent that park user fees are not a new idea, so county leaders might want to take a look at them as an alternative measure.

Conservation board members may bring up their request in the future.

If they believe the wildlife preserve is worth the effort, they should promote it in such a way that it could pay for itself.

Students fight CIA recruiting

By Chuck Pirtle

THE CENTRAL Intelligence Agency is returning to the UI next week to recruit some new agents. What's wrong with CIA recruiting? Plenty.

The Central Intelligence Agency likes to hire young people fresh out of college, educated but not too educated — people who don't really know what the CIA is involved in and how it harms the lives of real people elsewhere. People like one of last fall's interviewees, quoted in The Daily Iowan as saying, "They're the same as jobs in any other company. You push paper, you work for people. It's not running out and shooting anybody behind trees or anything."

There is a very real connection, though, between pushing paper in Washington, D.C. and Langley, Va., and shooting people in other countries. No, the fresh, well-paid recruit probably won't be doing the dirtiest of the dirty work, but he or she will be helping.

THE CIA'S PRIMARY function has never been to gather intelligence information. In practice, the CIA's initials stand for Covert and Illegal Activities. Take Central and Latin America: the CIA overthrew a democratically-elected, progressive government in Guatemala in the 1950s, tried hard to destroy the Cuban revolution by force in the 1960s and encouraged and supported the military coup that brought repression to Chile in the 1970s. In this decade, the CIA has been preoccupied with attempting to reverse the tide of history in Nicaragua and return it to its pre-1979 status as a U.S. client state.

The U.S. war in Nicaragua was begun in secret, several years before Congress was even asked to approve funding for it. The CIA recruited rich, right-wing Nicaraguan exiles to be "leaders" of the Contra rebels, and by bribery and coercion has scraped together the mercenary armies based in Honduras.

THE PLANNING and coordinating of the Contras, however, is done out of CIA headquarters. Farmers, teachers and health workers are terrorized, raped and killed, not by accidental excess, but as the deliberate result of U.S. policy executed through the CIA.

Neither the Nicaraguan people nor the American people want the Contra war. We must refuse to be a part of it, and we must refuse to allow our university to be a part of it. No, UI officials aren't shooting anybody behind trees, but by making UI facilities available and allowing the CIA to conduct part of its business — recruiting — on our campus, the university and those who run it are giving sanction to the CIA and its destructive, bloody activities.

Students are organizing to confront the UI on the issue of its complicity with the CIA. Each of us must ask ourselves if we support that complicity or oppose it. If you oppose it, the course of action is simple. Begin by joining the candlelight walk to UI President James O. Freedman's house this evening. Let him know you don't like what he's allowing to happen.

Lack of fine arts requirement makes statement about UI

By Steve McGuire

ON FEB. 10, the UI Faculty Council voted to require high school students to complete specific course work before they could be considered for admission to the UI. Fine arts, the council concluded, was something nice, but not necessary for a well-educated person and thus is not part of the course work required for admission.

When Dean of the College of Liberal Arts Gerhard Lowenberg stated, "I don't believe this (the decision not to have a fine arts requirement) should be interpreted as a vote against the fine arts," he sent a message: Reflection on those stories which make up our private and public lives, and contemplation of the meanings we identify in those stories is not a necessary endeavor, let alone a life practice.

It is recognizably ironic that the UI, with its strong fine arts divisions, should suggest that paying attention to the patterns of one's life is not important, at least not as important as, say, landing that right job.

I WOULD LIKE to consider, for a moment, arts' place in our lives. It should be clear to us that from our particular biographical situation we inherit stories by which we look on not only ourselves, but the world. Personal history and reflection upon the meanings that lie therein score the variety of events in our lives, from choosing a life's occupation to deciding how responsive our lives are to a community.

I think most in the fine arts department would agree, not only that in creating art we recover our own way of being in the world, but in order to live a meaningful life it is necessary to do so. From the message of the assembly's decision, I gather that we are not supposed to live meaningful lives. If that is the presupposition behind this assembly's decision to take away the claim of future generations to participate in this society by choosing what is most appropriate for their lives, and mandate what it is that should be learned, then indeed the message they send concurs with their belief. That this is so, that the UI has in many ways taken up deciding what is to be the measure of success and concluded it is external standards, money and competitive progress rather than internal standards of meaningfulness, is more than regrettable.

Guest Opinion

Eventually, all lives cannot conveniently escape from larger responsibilities.

The UI, as it educates, is bound to this reality by the deepest connections: possibilities for the world. Creative solutions to private as well as public problems often come out of personal reflection. There is no doubt that we absorb more from our histories and have a greater receptivity to the world through creative art. And eventually, with practice, we come to clearer definitions of paths.

The outcomes of actions, not motives, leave their mark on the world. Perhaps, though, the decision was not informed by the kind of reflection that becomes effective only through practice. I hope the faculty of the College of Liberal Arts will reflect upon what constitutes a well-educated high school graduate, prepared to enter university studies, because admission requirements actually determine what students will be able to study in high school. Any such requirements may be constructed so as to recognize the broad range of human experience or may be so narrowly defined as to constrict our view of the world.

Steve McGuire is a UI graduate student in the fine arts.

The densely populated areas around the lakes as Chicago and other officials already realized the potential for flooding and erosion and have begun building barriers.

"The best answer to the problem of rising lake levels is to have longer levees from the shore. But in densely populated areas there is no question to have some kind of protection," said Quinn, chief hydrologist of the Great Lakes Environmental Research Laboratory.

"Back when the camped on the shore of Lake Michigan, they just pack up their tent and back away. You just speak at a meeting," said an American Association of University Women official. # State budget under scrutiny

DES MOINES (UPI) — Gov. Terry Branstad's $2.4 billion state budget plan would require increased taxes or across-the-board spending cuts in future years, House Speaker Don Avenson, D-Oelwein, said Tuesday.

Avenson also said he's not concerned about arguments that the Democrat-controlled Legislature wants to raise taxes because Branstad already has proposed nearly $500 million in tax hikes.

"If we do what the governor wants for spending, we are absolutely setting ourselves up for an across-the-board cut or some increase in revenue next year," Avenson said at a news conference.

Don Avenson

"THAT IS WHY we are not going to go along with the governor's budget. We're pulling out some spending because we don't believe his revenue figures," he said.

Overall, Avenson's counterproposal would spend about $25.4 million less than Branstad. That includes a $30 million cut from Branstad's $100 million education plan.

"We will need a 6 percent to 7 percent revenue increase, not counting a cigarette tax increase, to balance the 1989 budget. That's a lot of dough," Avenson said.

AVENSON SAID Democratic leaders in the House and Senate have not yet decided what to do with various income tax and sales tax proposals. He said he was surprised by the results of a newspaper's poll which showed 71 percent of the Iowans surveyed would support a 1-cent sales tax hike if the money was used to balance the budget and cut property taxes.

"It reflects the feeling among people that the sales tax is more affordable to pay. They never see it in one big chunk. It just goes out in bits and pieces," he said.

"THERE IS THE IMAGE that it is a fair and equal tax when in reality it is the most regressive of any tax," he said.

Avenson said the House would not support a sales tax hike unless sales tax credits were built in for low- and middle-income Iowans. He said the state should have approved such a credit in 1974 instead of exempting food and drugs from the sales tax.

He also said he is not concerned about the political ramifications of passing a series of tax increases this year.

"We ran a campaign this time against Republican candidates who said we have raised taxes $750 million the last two years," Avenson said.

"THAT ISN'T EXACTLY a new Republican position. You would think they would find something different. When you lose three times in a row, you think they'd find a new play," he said.

"You've got to remember it is a Republican governor that is calling for those proposals, not a Democratic governor," he said.

Minister and wife get 30 days in jail

MOUNT PLEASANT, Iowa (UPI) — A Mount Pleasant minister and his wife have been sentenced to 30 days in jail for sending their daughter to a non-certified church school they operate, officials said Tuesday.

The Rev. Todd Taylor and his wife, Sharon, were on probation from a 1984 conviction for violating the state's compulsory education law. But Henry County Attorney Michael Riepe said the Taylors violated the terms of their probation by continuing to send their daughter to the illegal school.

They are scheduled to begin their jail terms Saturday, but Taylor said he does not want to go to jail and will talk with his lawyer to see what can be done.

According to state law, children ages 8-16 must attend a school staffed by certified teachers and with a curriculum approved by the state.

THE TAYLORS were convicted of a simple misdemeanor for educating their daughter Stephanie, now 13, at the Taylor's Bluebird Christian Academy. The Taylors pastor at the First Assembly of God Church in Mount Pleasant.

The parents are also scheduled to stand trial March 26 for sending their son, Nicholas, 8, and Stephanie to the school during the fall term last year. Kyle and Rebecca Carriker are also charged with sending their son, Michael, to the school. Another student, Angela Griffis, attends the academy, but since she is 16, her parents are not liable for violating state law.

Growing shorelines stir action

CHICAGO (UPI) — The record rise of the Great Lakes could continue into the next decade, forcing shoreline cities to build barriers to halt damage already estimated in the millions of dollars, a government scientist said Tuesday.

In densely populated areas such as Chicago and Milwaukee, officials already have realized the potential for flooding and erosion damage and have begun planning barriers.

"The best answer to the problem of rising lake water is to have longer setbacks from the shore. But in heavily populated areas like Chicago there is no question but to have some kind of structural protection," said Frank Quinn, chief hydrologist with the Great Lakes Environmental Research Laboratory.

"Back when the Indians camped on the shores of Lake Michigan, they could just pack up their teepees and back away. You just can't do that anymore," said Quinn, speaking at a meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

CHICAGO MAYOR Harold Washington has appointed a special commission to develop a plan for protecting the city's shoreline. Plans being considered include the construction of wave-blocking islands, breakwaters and steel sheets embedded in the shoreline.

Milwaukee County has budgeted $2.4 million for 1987 shore reinforcement projects and lakeshore erosion studies.

The Great Lakes have been pushed to record high levels by unusually high precipitation over the past 15 to 17 years. "We've had an unusually wet regime," Quinn said.

If the current precipitation trend continues, the lake could rise another 1 1/2 feet in four years, Quinn said. With average precipitation levels, the lake would recede to normal levels in six to 10 years. With drought conditions it would take three to four years for the lake to return to normal levels, he said.

Catholics avoid AIDS education

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Catholic educators are bucking the lead of the public schools by refusing to tell students about any AIDS prevention methods other than sexual abstinence, an independent Catholic newsweekly reported this week.

The Catholic educators find themselves in the midst of an increasingly contentious debate over publicizing the use of condoms, according to an article in the Feb. 20 issue of the National Catholic Reporter, published in Kansas City.

Catholic schools, with nearly 3 million students, comprise the largest private educational network in the United States.

As Catholic resistance to full AIDS education becomes known, criticism to it appears to be mounting, the article said.

"AS A PHYSICIAN, and as a Catholic," said German Maisonet, medical director of the Los Angeles' Minority AIDS Project, "I cannot sit by and watch people die when information can make a difference.

"We're not going to stop kids from having sex. God knows we've tried. So I'm in favor of providing the information because this virus (AIDS) does not forgive and does not forget."

However, most Catholic educators feel that providing information concerning the use of condoms implicitly condones artificial contraception in violation of church teaching, and may encourage premarital sex, the article said.

"What we need to do is to be more forceful and forthright about what we've always been teaching," said Rev. Tom Gallagher, education secretary of the U.S. Catholic Conference. "If our teachings had been followed all along by everybody we wouldn't be in this (AIDS) mess."

The Chicago archdiocese, which has the largest Catholic high school population in the United States, is considering AIDS education, but will not mention the role of condoms in transmission prevention, the article said.

Minorities sought by senate to fill committee positions

By Phil Thomas
Staff Writer

The UI Student Senate ruled Tuesday night to seek more minority students for campus committee positions.

Senate President Joe Hansen said the number of minority students serving on committees has been far too low in the past.

"We have not done a very good job in terms of minority recruitment," Hansen admitted.

Under the new ruling, the senate will appoint an affirmative action advocate to be responsible for supervising senate recruitment efforts. The advocate will also be responsible for submitting progress reports to the senate.

Because the UI has a minority student population of 11.25 percent, the senate now plans to appoint that same percentage of minority students to committee positions.

"WE'RE NOT talking quotas here," Hansen said. "What we're talking about is affirmative action guidelines."

Last year the UI administration set goals for hiring more minorities to faculty and staff positions. Because the senate has been critical of the administration's efforts in the past, Hansen said it was necessary for the senate to adopt the new policy.

"We would be hypocritical if we weren't doing it ourselves," Hansen said.

Sen. Liz Burden, who drew up most of the new plan, said it was becoming obvious the senate was not doing its fair share of minority recruitment.

"It reflected in a few committees that I have seen," she said.

Every spring, groups of senators and senate executives interview students for positions on various committees. Committee appointees must then be approved by the senate.

ACCORDING TO a 1986-87 UI Registrars Office report, the numbers of minority students at the UI are: Blacks — 2.05 percent; American Indian — .37 percent; Asian — 1.60 percent; Latino — 1.22 percent; and Others — 6.35 percent.

A total of 3,318 minority students attend the UI.

Recruiting will be done at UI minority student organizations. Committee representatives will visit organization meetings and fliers will be distributed. The senate will also make a special point of advertising vacancies in committee seats.

Also, the UI Minority Affairs committee will set new appointment goals annually.

Pawn shops offer options for needy college students

By Carol Monaghan
Staff Writer

Although college life is often synonymous with being broke, most lending institutions are reluctant to allow students to borrow money.

But local pawnshop owners say they may be able to offer an alternative for quick cash in Iowa City that many UI students have not considered.

"My shop offers financial aid in regard to a lot of U-bills," Dwight Bode, owner of the Gilbert Street Pawn Company, of 321 S. Gilbert St., said.

"Recently it seems a lot of students do not have the money," Bode said. "This fills gaps financial aid doesn't hit. It will take care of bills temporarily."

"I'm basically a bank," he said. "People bring in their merchandise as collateral and I give them a loan."

THE PAWNSHOP operates as a short-term loan company.

Customers bring in their stereos, televisions, jewelry or other merchandise to be held as security against cash loans. If the item is not collected and the loan repaid by the owner within a certain amount of time, the item goes on sale in the store.

The Gilbert Street Pawn Company holds merchandise for 30 days and charges 10 percent interest on all items.

Iowa City's only other pawnshop, Iowa City Pawn and Military Supply, U.S. Highway 1, gives customers 17 days to return for merchandise and charges 40 percent interest.

Both pawnshops appear to be popular among UI students.

Bode said 75 percent of his customers are UI students.

AS A FORMER student and 1985 Luther College graduate with a degree in sociology, Bode said he never thought he would be in the business of operating his own pawnshop.

"Most people imagine a pawnshop as dark, cluttered place with an old guy in the back and possibly a bullet-proof glass in the front window," Bode said.

Dwight Bode stands in front of the Gilbert Street Pawn Company, 321 S. Gilbert St., holding a surf board, proof that Bode will buy, sell or trade just about anything. Students in need of money bring in merchandise to be held as security against cash loans.

He said he likes to keep a "progressive" atmosphere in his store, by playing upbeat music and keeping the surroundings bright.

"There is a stigma that affects people until they get here and see that I'm just a college-age kid like themselves starting my own business," he said.

The 22-year-old owner said he became familiar with the pawn business working in a Cedar Rapids shop during high school and college.

Bode said about 50 percent of merchandise brought into the store is ever claimed by its original owners.

JOYCE SIMMONS, who owns Iowa City Pawn and Military Supply with her husband, said 75 percent of items pawned are picked up by their owner.

"If a person wants $30 for a first-time loan, he better bring in something easily worth $300," Simmons said.

Popular items at both stores include stereo equipment, color televisions and musical instruments.

Zimmerman ranks priorities

By Monica Seigel
University Editor

Implementing better health care provisions for rural communities is a top priority for the executive branch of Iowa government, Lt. Gov. Jo Ann Zimmerman said Tuesday.

Zimmerman spoke at a UI Liberal Arts Student Association meeting.

"We are working to change the definition of hospital with Medicare," Zimmerman said. "That way rural communities will be reimbursed for health care."

Zimmerman said the current Medicare definition of a hospital mandates that it contain specific facilities and laboratories.

"Many of these things aren't necessary to meet the needs of the rural community," Zimmerman said. "We would like the concept of a health center to be incorporated under that definition."

ZIMMERMAN SAID another priority involves rural development.

"We need to be concerned about how we use the products we produce," she said. "We know we can produce a lot, but we need to take it a step further and find out what we can do with our production."

Zimmerman said rather than shipping Iowa produce to other states and countries, research technology should be applied to process it for other uses.

Welfare reform is a third area where Zimmerman said she plans to devote her energies.

"We all know that just applying for a job through Job Service doesn't get you out of poverty," Zimmerman said. "You lose a lot of benefits from being on welfare when you get that job."

Zimmerman said more education and medical subsidies could help "reduce the impediments for moving out of poverty."

ANSWERING QUESTIONS from the LASA congress, Zimmerman tried to explain how state legislators view the UI.

"A lot of legislators feel like they're being run over by public relations people from the University of Iowa," she said, adding the UI is a shaky constituency because it's hard to measure its contribution to the state.

"There's an expectation (in the legislature) that if you pay for something you should get something back from it," she said.

LASA President Gordon Fischer said he was pleased with Zimmerman's speech.

"I think it's important that we maintain good contacts with the people at the Capitol," Fischer said.

Midwest farmland values take plunge

CHICAGO—Midwest farmland values dropped nearly 12 percent last year and continued a decline that has cut land prices by 50 percent since the 1981 peak, a survey of bankers in five Midwestern states indicates.

The survey, released by the Federal Reserve Bank in Chicago Monday, shows that farmland values continued their downward drift but at a slower rate, with prices dropping an average of 1.2 percent in the 1986 fourth quarter.

Bankers in Indiana and Michigan reported a 3 percent decline, while Iowa experienced a 1 percent drop. The decline averaged 0.5 percent in Illinois and Wisconsin bankers reported no change.

Gary Benjamin, a Federal Reserve Bank analyst, said the new federal tax laws and the impact of sales of farmland taken over by the government could have a negative impact on land investments.

Pakistan's president will visit India

NEW DELHI, India — President Mohammad Zia ul-Haq of Pakistan is due in the Indian capital this week for talks with Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi that are likely to focus on their border face-off, officials said Tuesday.

In what the Indian press has labeled "cricket diplomacy" — Zia will attend a cricket match during his visit — the two leaders are expected to try to end the border confrontation that raised fears of a fourth Indo-Pakistan war.

Zia last visited India in December 1985. His informal discussions with Gandhi then augured improved relations between their countries, which have fought three wars since 1948. But relations deteriorated during 1986 and last month hit their lowest point since the 1971 Indo-Pakistan conflict.

Officials said Zia will arrive in New Delhi Saturday evening and meet Gandhi. He will travel Sunday to the Rajasthan state capital of Jaipur, southwest of New Delhi, for the second day of a cricket match between the Indian and Pakistani teams. He will go home Monday.

Ex-convicts accused of 5 murders

LEXINGTON, Ky. — The expected weeklong process of selecting a jury began Tuesday for the trial of two women ex-convicts charged with shooting and stabbing to death five people in an apparent drug-crazed spree of violence.

Prosecutors are seeking the death penalty on each of the five murder charges against LaFonda Fay Foster, 23, and Tina Marie Hickey Powell, 28, who, if convicted and sentenced to death, would become the only women on Kentucky's death row.

The five victims — Carlos Kearns, 71; his wife, Virginia Kearns, 45; Trudy Harrell, 59; Theodore Sweet, 53; and Roger Keene, 47 — were found in three locations in southeast Lexington on the night of April 23, 1986. Three of the victims were found in or near the remains of a burned-out car.

Former presidential adviser dies at 70

WASHINGTON — Bryce Harlow, an influential adviser to Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and Richard Nixon, died Tuesday following a long illness, a hospital spokeswoman said. He was 70.

Harlow, who was retired, also served as an informal adviser to President Gerald Ford in his kitchen Cabinet, and was close to Democrats and Republicans in Congress as both a government official and a lobbyist.

The former White House official, who suffered a chronic lung disorder, was admitted to the Arlington Hospital in nearby Arlington, Va., on Jan. 21.

The senior Harlow was a graduate of the University of Oklahoma and held the post of presidential counselor in the first Nixon administration. He was called on to again serve Nixon during the worst days of the Watergate scandal.

Harlow was also a special assistant to Eisenhower from 1953 to 1961.

Starving pandas seek mountain home

PEKING — About 100 giant pandas threatened with starvation in China's largest nature reserve will be taken 450 miles to a new mountain home where there is plenty of bamboo to munch, the official People's Daily newspaper said Tuesday.

"China's hunger-stricken giant pandas are expected to migrate from the Wolong Nature Reserve in Sichuan (province) to Shennongjia in Hubei (province)," People's Daily said.

At least 62 of central China's estimated 1,000 wild giant pandas have died of starvation since a periodic blossoming of the animal's staple food, arrow bamboo, began about four years ago. The blossoming leaves the bamboo inedible for the reserve's estimated 100 giant pandas.

The evacuation is aimed at preventing a recurrence of a 1975-76 disaster, when a similar phenomenon caused the deaths of 140 giant pandas.

Fighting shatters West Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Shiite Moslem Amal militiamen and leftist forces, using tanks and artillery, turned streets into a bloody battleground Tuesday in a struggle for control of Moslem West Beirut. At least 31 people were killed and 110 wounded.

As the fighting raged, shattering whole neighborhoods, Amal leader Nabih Berri announced that today his militia would lift its four-month siege of Palestinian refugee camps in Beirut.

After more than 30 hours of fighting, the chief of Syrian military intelligence in Lebanon, Ghazi Kanaan, announced that representatives of both sides agreed to an early evening cease-fire.

During a peace meeting at Berri's West Beirut home, a security committee was ordered to tour trouble spots and within several hours most of the fierce battles had eased to clashes.

Thousands of militiamen fought running battles through the streets and explosions rocked the capital, keeping civilians in the shelter of their homes and basements as ambulance crews risked their lives to reach trapped casualties.

AT LEAST 31 people were killed and 110 wounded in the battles — the worst in Moslem West Beirut in more than a year and the bloodiest in the capital since September, security sources said. By midnight only sporadic machine-gun fire could be heard in a few places.

Police said Dr. Hussein Mroweh, 80, a Shiite writer and member of the Communist Party executive committee, was assassinated by gunmen at his home. The assailants were unknown and no other details were available.

The conflict started with overnight clashes between Amal and the members of the Lebanese Communist Party. By dawn the Druze Progressive Socialist Party had joined the communists in a leftist coalition.

The PSP brought into the fray its Soviet-made T-54 tanks and heavy artillery to counter Amal's own Syrian-supplied T-54s on streets which were filled with smoke and littered with broken glass and tons of other debris.

SCORES OF CARS, factories and apartment buildings were hit by grenades, mortars and tank shells and blazed out of control throughout the day and night.

During the day, Syria pressured Berri, Communist Party leader Georges Hawi in Damascus and Druze leader Walid Jumblatt, holed up at his palace in the Shouf Mountains overlooking west Beirut, to make peace.

Speaking in Damascus, Berri accused Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization of joining the much smaller Communist Party against his pro-Syrian Amal militia — the predominant Shiite force in Lebanon.

"Arafat is launching a counterattack in west Beirut aimed at getting Amal out," said Berri. "All are cooperating against Amal. There have been attempts to get Amal out of Beirut for the past two years but no one can."

BOTH SIDES BLAMED the other for starting the bloodshed, which came after weeks of increasing tension between Beirut's pro-Syrian factions was heightened by Amal's crippling siege of the city's refugee camps.

Berri announced at a news conference that Amal would lift its siege around the Burj Al Barajneh and Shatila Palestinian refugee camps today, allowing in food and medicine, but would keep up its military drive to stop a Palestinian resurgence in Lebanon.

But even if the siege is lifted, continued ground fighting could prevent relief supplies from reaching the camps.

Irish vote for new parliament

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI)—The Irish, ignoring near-freezing temperatures, voted Tuesday for a new government to fight the country's worst economic crisis since independence. Turnout was heavy.

When the polls closed Tuesday night, election officials estimated 75 percent of the country's 2.4 million voters cast ballots for a new 166-seat Dail, or parliament, that will form Ireland's next government.

The counting of votes cast in the 12-hour poll was to begin today. But the outcome of the election — considered a cliffhanger with the possibility no majority will emerge in parliament — may not be known until Thursday.

Prime Minister Garret FitzGerald, who trailed in pre-election opinion polls, appeared jovial as he cast his vote. He smiled and murmured, "My God," when a young woman gave him a "kissogram" good-luck message from members of his Fine Gael Party.

Gael Party.

FITZGERALD PRESIDED over an uneasy coalition with the Socialist Labor Party for four years until last month, when it dissolved over his plans to make deep budget cuts to help bring down the $33 billion national debt.

His main opponent, Charles Haughey, leader of the Fianna Fail Party, campaigning for economic growth and tax cuts without reduced spending, has blamed FitzGerald for the "unholy mess of things."

Ireland's huge debt is the result of eight years of overspending by governments led by FitzGerald and Haughey. It has led to income taxes averaging 40 percent, skyrocketing interest rates and unemployment of 20 percent.

These grim economic conditions have prompted 100,000 people to emigrate in search of jobs over the last four years.

ECONOMISTS SAY the current economic crisis is the worst since Ireland won independence from Britain in 1922.

"We need a major rescue operation for the economy," said Haughey. His party led in the last opinion poll, though falling short of the voter support needed to obtain a clear majority and automatically form the next government.

If neither party wins an absolute majority, each will seek to forge coalitions in backroom bargaining. Analysts warn that such deal-making could hinder Irish efforts to solve economic problems.

Recent opinion polls, published Sunday, gave Haughey's party 45 percent of the vote, FitzGerald's 30 percent and the new center-right Progressive Democratic Party 13 percent after factoring out the undecided vote.

Under Ireland's complex system of proportional representation, analysts said, Haughey might still win a narrow majority of seats. Haughey, casting his vote Tuesday, said he was "quite confident of an overall majority."

BUT FITZGERALD SAID he might form a coalition with the Progressive Democrats, who share his wish for spending cuts and more free enterprise. The Progressives said no pre-election alliance had been forged, but did not rule out a post-election agreement.

A total of 469 candidates from 15 parties ran for seats in parliament. They include 27 candidates from Sinn Fein, the political wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army fighting to end British rule in Northern Ireland.

Polls gave Sinn Fein only 2 percent of the vote, and analysts said it might not win any seats. This was the first election in which Sinn Fein, seeking increased political strength, said it would allow its winning candidates to take their seats in the Dail.

War crimes trial heats up for accused 'Ivan the Terrible'

JERUSALEM (UPI)—A Holocaust expert gave testimony Tuesday to support charges that retired U.S. autoworker John Demjanjuk is "Ivan the Terrible," a Nazi death camp guard who sent tens of thousands of Jews to the gas chambers.

Yitzhak Arad, director of Israel's Holocaust memorial, said he knew of no evidence to confirm "rumors" that the guard called "Ivan" was killed in a 1943 inmate uprising in the Treblinka death camp.

Legal experts say the key issue in the trial is whether Treblinka survivors and the state of Israel can prove more than 40 years after World War II that Demjanjuk was the guard called "Ivan."

DEMJANJUK, 66, who denies he was ever in Treblinka, listened impassively as Arad, the first witness called by the prosecution, grimly recounted the horrors of the extermination camps set up by Adolf Hitler's Nazi Germany in World War II.

Demjanjuk, who was stripped of his American citizenship and extradited to Israel last February, is accused of running the gas chambers in 1942 and 1943 at Treblinka, a death camp in Nazi-occupied Poland.

The trial — the first war crimes trial in Israel since the Adolf Eichmann case 25 years ago — opened Monday with the defense denying the allegations that Demjanjuk was the notorious "Ivan" and insisting that the Ukrainian-born former Cleveland, Ohio, autoworker is a victim of mistaken identity.

Arad, a noted historian and survivor of the Holocaust, testified that Soviet soldiers captured by the Nazis often were used as death camp guards. Many of those, he said, were Ukrainians.

Defense attorney Mark O'Connor of Buffalo, N.Y., and his co-counsel, Tel Aviv lawyer Yoram Sheftel, argue that Demjanjuk, whose Ukrainian first name is Ivan, was never in Treblinka.

Demjanjuk, who could face the death penalty if convicted, says he served in the Soviet army in World War II and was wounded and captured by the Nazis in 1942.

China executes smugglers

PEKING (UPI) — The government Tuesday executed two foreigners convicted of attempting to smuggle nearly 50 pounds of heroin through China from the "Golden Triangle," the official Xinhua News Agency said.

The two men executed in the southern province of Yunnan were identified as Young Chang Trakula, 60, a citizen of Thailand, and Tai Mansuen, 35, of Hong Kong.

"The execution was carried out through an order from China's Supreme People's Court," said Xinhua, which reported court officials vowed to mount a crackdown on drug smugglers, regardless of nationality.

The report did not say how they were killed. Generally, the condemned prisoner is made to kneel while a police officer fires a single shot to the back of the prisoner's head.

Xinhua said Tai and another Hong Kong man, Yu Sik-fun, 32, were "caught red-handed" with 48.5 pounds of heroin outside the Kunming city railway station on Aug. 16.

Burma, Laos and Thailand make up the notorious "Golden Triangle," one of the major drug-cultivating regions of the world.

Young Chang Trakula, who allegedly organized and supervised the drug deal, was arrested the same evening.

Yu Sik-fun was given a two-year suspended death sentence. The three men were charged with smuggling narcotics to Hong Kong using China as a transit route.

Absent envoy stirs rumors

LONDON (UPI) — The Archbishop of Canterbury Tuesday emphasized the humanitarian and non-political role of his envoy Terry Waite, nearly a month after the hostage negotiator disappeared in Beirut.

"Since there have been so many rumors flying about, I feel it is important to remind people that Terry Waite is my envoy," the Rev. Robert Runcie said in a statement. "He is not responsible to any government agency whatsoever. He is a humanitarian negotiator whose only bargaining power is that he represents a religious leader."

Waite was last seen on Jan. 20 when he left his Druze Moslem bodyguards at a Beirut hotel for a secret meeting with members of the Islamic Jihad, who are believed to be holding American journalist Terry Anderson and educator Thomas Sutherland.

WAITE'S OFFICIAL JOB is assistant to the Anglican Archbishop of Canterbury, responsible for overseas affairs. He is not a diplomat and has always stressed his neutral purpose.

But Waite acknowledged that the risks were heightened on this trip after newspaper reports said he often conferred with Lt. Col. Oliver North, a key figure in the Iran arms-Contra aid scandal.

Runcie reiterated that he has no concrete evidence that Waite is himself a hostage. "However, he is obviously in a position where he cannot communicate with us," Runcie said.

No group has claimed responsibility for holding Waite. The Islamic Jihad and the pro-Iranian Hezbollah movement are widely believed to be linked to his disappearance, but both groups deny their involvement.

ON MONDAY the Hezbollah denied an accusation by Druze militia chief Walid Jumblatt that it was holding Waite or other Westerners in Lebanon. Shiite Moslem Amal militia leader Nabih Berri also said Hezbollah does not have Waite.

Runcie said he had "made a number of approaches to political and religious leaders in the Middle East." He declined to name the leaders, but said he had approached the speaker of the Iranian Parliament who, Runcie said, has stated publicly that he is prepared to try to help free Waite.

In six years of tightrope diplomacy and secret negotiations, Waite, 46, has secured the freedom of 10 captives, including three Americans held in Lebanon. Six foreigners were kidnapped soon after Waite arrived in Lebanon Jan. 12.

Committee questions Gates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Robert Gates assured Congress Tuesday that if he had been CIA director at the time, he would have fought — and might have resigned over — President Ronald Reagan's decision to keep Congress in the dark about secret arms sales to Iran.

Robert Gates

Gates, Reagan's nominee to succeed William Casey as director of central intelligence, told a Senate Intelligence Committee hearing on his confirmation that "the one mistake" the CIA made in the whole Iran arms-Contra aid affair "was in not pressing ... for a reversal of the direction not to notify the Congress."

Fending off sometimes sharp questioning, Gates explained that he and Casey did not tell the panel last November about "flimsy" speculation about a possible link between the arms deals and financing for the Contras because it was "not significant enough to bring to the committee's attention."

Gates, now deputy CIA director, also noted that he and Casey were "still governed by" Reagan's Jan. 17, 1986, order not to inform Congress about the arms sales.

When he was asked by Sen. William Roth, R-Del., if he were under any "restraints" now in answering the committee's questions, Gates briskly answered, "No sir."

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., accused Gates of failing to pursue evidence of the Contra diversion after being told by a CIA intelligence officer Oct. 1 of his suspicions the arms sale profits could be connected to rebel funding.

GATES, HIS VOICE raised, defended his actions. "I didn't sit on that. I didn't tell (the officer) to go away and come back to me when he had something more concrete. I said 'Let's move it to the next level of responsibility.'"

In his opening statement Gates said that, if faced with a future situation concerning Congressional notification, he would recommend that Congress be promptly informed.

Despite Gates' assurance, Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., told Gates some of his answers indicated the panel had "no hope of getting appropriate oversight" because of Gates' "very narrow interpretation" of when he must report illegal intelligence activity to Congress.

Nunn also took issue with Gates' claim that the NSC activity was "primarily a diplomatic activity."

"SENDING GUNS to Iran and ammunition and TOW missiles is a diplomatic activity?" Nunn asked. "The State Department is going to have to get a different kind of uniform if that's the case."

On the possible Contra connection, Gates said that in addition to the word he got from a "national intelligence officer" on Oct. 1, he had only two other hints the arms sales might be linked to the rebels. One was a phone call to Casey from a former business associate, who said some investors in the arms deals had not been paid and might expose the deal if not mollified.

The only other hint, Gates said, came during an Oct. 9 lunch he and Casey had with North, who dropped a "cryptic remark" about a Swiss bank account and the Contras.

Reagan: Star Wars complies with pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ronald Reagan told Congress Tuesday his Star Wars defense program remains in compliance with the 1972 ABM treaty, despite Soviet charges to the contrary and challenges to his own reinterpretation of the pact.

In a report on U.S. adherence to arms control agreements, which dealt at length with his anti-missile program, Reagan declared the United States "has been and remains in compliance with all current treaty obligations and political commitments."

The report failed to mention the uproar over legal implications of his Strategic Defense Initiative or say when that program will move into a phase described by critics as prohibited by the ABM treaty.

ON CAPITOL HILL, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger unveiled what is expected to become an administration argument for a more liberal reading of what the treaty allows: that it "without question" would produce "a substantial savings of time and money."

Weinberger told the Senate Armed Services Committee the administration is reviewing "a lot of the things" deemed permissible under the broad interpretation "that we can't do otherwise" to speed the program along.

The program, Weinberger said, is "now at the point where some of the experiments we can and should do require the broader interpretation, and the question is: 'Should we embark on those?'"

THE REPORT, prepared by the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, offered a detailed rebuttal of Soviet charges that SDI research, development and testing has violated restrictions imposed by the pact.

In particular, the report contends the accord gives both sides the latitude to conduct work on basic elements of what might someday become part of an ABM system, as long as tests are not conducted with ABM components or substitutes.

FURTHERMORE, although Reagan has promoted SDI as a "non-nuclear defense" against ballistic missiles, the report acknowledges the potential importance of nuclear energy in driving weapons "at great distances."

Citing Soviet contentions that underground nuclear tests for SDI purposes violate the ABM Treaty and set the stage for abrogation of other agreements, the report said nuclear explosions are being used to "understand the applicability" of future weapons.

AS SDI RESEARCH has begun to move out of the laboratory, the administration has become embroiled in intensified debate over compliance with the ABM treaty, which curbs testing and development of anti-missile systems and bars their actual deployment.

Using a reinterpretation of the agreement challenged even by some negotiators of the original pact, the administration has claimed authority to press ahead with a broader testing plan than originally considered permissible.

Supporting that position is the argument that ambiguous language in the treaty, pertaining to possible limitations on "ABM systems based on other physical principles," permits work on such exotic weapons technologies.

Iowa basketball Coach Tom Davis won't have any trouble getting his team fired up for tonight's Big Ten showdown with Ohio State.

After all, it was the Buckeyes which less than a month ago handed the then top-ranked team in the nation (according to Associated Press) its first defeat of the season. It was the Buckeyes who brought reality to a season which began with 18 straight wins.

But as Jeff Moe puts it, that's what's good about a round-robin schedule.

"We won't overlook Ohio State this time," Moe said. "Anytime you lose a game in this conference the first time around, you tend to want to get that one back. You have to survive in this league."

SO HOW DO THE Hawkeyes (22-3 overall and 9-3 in the Big Ten) go about avoiding an Ohio State (17-8, 8-5) sweep? Stop Dennis Hopson.

Hopson leads the league in scoring and has been pouring in 28.5 points per game all-season long. In the last Iowa-Ohio State affair, Hopson scorched the nets for 36 points. But Davis isn't planning to do anything special to stop the Buckeye sharpshooter.

"We'll do everything we can to stop him," Davis said. "We won't do any freak thing though. We'll do everything within our game plan to stop him."

Ohio State Coach Gary Williams believes stopping Hopson is a key to the Hawkeyes' chances.

"We won't overlook Ohio State this time," Iowa guard Jeff Moe says. "Anytime you lose a game in this conference the first time around, you tend to want to get that one back."

"HE'S AS VALUABLE to our team as any player in the conference is valuable to the theirs," Williams said. "We also get a lot you don't see, like leadership in practice."

Williams added, "He's the best player I've ever coached and he certainly is an inspiration to our team."

Williams served under Davis as an assistant for seven years, and there is speculation that the Ohio State coach may know everything Davis plans to use. But Davis downplayed that theory too.

"My basic philosophy is that coaching is overrated anyway," Davis said. "You let the players play. It comes down to who shoots the ball better. The last time we played they only had seven turnovers. They handled the ball well. Things like that put the game in the hands of the players."

OVERALL, DAVIS seems impressed with an Ohio State ball club that is swaying on the brink of an NCAA tournament bid.

"They played a great game against us that first time. They are a heck of a ball club,"

Davis added. "I don't think where they are is any fluke. They've beaten some real good ball clubs this year, ourselves included, and they're going to beat some more."

"I think after the results of our last game, Iowa will be doing everything they can to stop us," Williams said. "Last time we played them at a very good time and we kind of snuck up on them. But we're not going to sneak up on anyone this time around."

Williams, however, refused to play down his team's chances against the Hawkeyes as the Buckeyes fight to stay in possible contention for the Big Ten title.

"Our players feel that we have a good team and we have pride in our team. And we feel that we can compete," Williams said, "and we'll certainly be ready to play."

Brutal Big Ten turns corner for stretch run

By Steve Williams
Assistant Sports Editor

It's crunch time in the Big Ten.

After seven brutal weeks of flying elbows, body checks and unseen cheap shots, only two games separate the top three teams in the black and blue Big Ten conference.

So far, Indiana (21-2 overall and 12-1 in the Big Ten) has

Big Ten Roundup

prevailed as the luckiest team in the conference, winning five games by a total of 11 points, including a recent two-point victory over Northwestern and its latest win, an 86-85 magic act over Wisconsin in triple overtime.

Purdue managed to stay one game back after polishing off Iowa in Iowa City last week, 80-73, while the Hawkeyes slipped a notch to 9-3 and are in a must situation this week when they travels to Bloomington, Ind.

THE FINAL DARK horse is Illinois, who at 9-4, still has a shot if it can go undefeated while the teams above knock each other off along the way.

That trick, however, may not be as far fetched as it seems.

The Hoosiers have to play Purdue and Illinois on the road after hosting the Hawkeyes Saturday, and the way they have been playing lately, a three-game losing streak is not out of the question.

Meanwhile, Purdue has to travel to Illinois Monday, Feb. 23 as well as take on Michigan and Michigan State, which is always one of the toughest road tests for any team.

The Hawkeyes appear to have the easiest remaining matchups, taking on the Hoosiers and then playing host to the Wolverines and Spartans.

A FINAL NOTE which should not be overlooked, however, is that all four of the top teams have to face Ohio State one more time. And the Buckeyes have proven they can play with the best in Big Ten.

"Our win over Iowa earlier in the season was a very decisive win for us," Ohio State Coach Gary Williams said after beating the Hawkeyes by four points in Carver-Hawkeye

Lloyd enjoys new family ties

By Eric J. Hess
Assistant Sports Editor

Years of hard work in the pool will come to an end soon and Allison Lloyd will have a big family to help send her off.

Lloyd, in her final season with the Hawkeye women's swimming team, said being from Winston-Salem, N.C., doesn't allow her parents to see many of her meets.

"The team is like a family to me," Lloyd said.

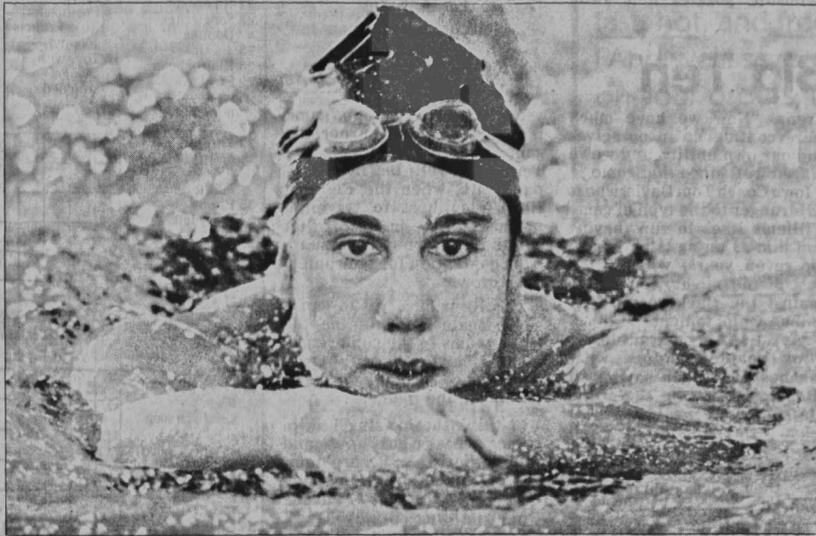

Lloyd, a senior co-captain, will swim both the 100-yard butterfly and the 200 butterfly as well as the 200-yard individual medley at the Big Ten Championships Friday through Sunday. She will also be swimming in at least two relay events.

Iowa Coach Pete Kennedy said Lloyd is one big reason why the team is so close-knit, portraying a leader in and out of the water.

"She's played a significant role in the team being a family," Kennedy said. "We're going to be hard pressed to replace her."

olina to Iowa was Jim Richardson.

Richardson, a former assistant under Kennedy and now the head coach at Michigan, was her high school coach.

"She came to me when she was 14," Richardson recalled. "She came to me with a 1:03 100 butterfly."

Through his development, she shaved more than eight seconds off her 100 butterfly, which led her to setting the national YMCA record at 55.59.

"She's the best. She'll do anything she can to benefit the team," Richardson said.

She said the long hours spent in and out of the pool, calculating to more than 30 hours during the peak of the season minus the travel to events on weekends is like a part-time job.

Orr's Cyclones blast 14th-ranked Kansas

AMES (UPI) — Jeff Grayer poured in 26 points and Tom Schafer added 25 as the Iowa State Cyclones shocked the Kansas Jayhawks 95-86 in Hilton Coliseum.

Iowa State improved to 12-12 overall and 4-7 in the Big Eight while Kansas fell for only the second time in 11 tries in the Big Eight and are sure to drop from its No. 14 national ranking.

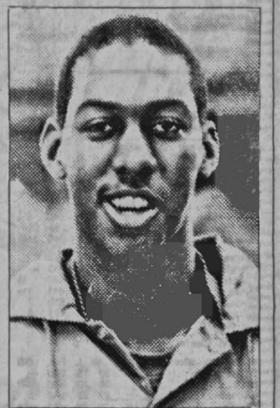

Grayer and Schafer were two of four Cyclones to land in double figures in scoring as Sam Hill and Elmer Robinson added 20 and 14 points, respectively.

Meanwhile, Danny Manning, Kansas' all-American candidate, led all scorers with 30 points as the Jayhawks fell into a tie for first place with Oklahoma with just three regular season games left.

THE CYCLONES, who were early-season favorites to make a run at the Big Eight title, have been a disappointment for most of the season. But tonight before the home crowd, they were not to be denied.

Gary Thompkins got the ball rolling early as he hit a basket to give the Cyclones a 10-9 lead only four minutes, 17 seconds into the contest.

Kansas tied the game two

minutes later, 12-12, on a bucket by Chris Piper, but that would be as close as it would get the rest of the way as a determined Iowa State squad continued to pour it on and soon wore down a frustrated Jayhawk attack.

Iowa State's remaining schedule includes a trip to Oklahoma State and Missouri while hosting conference-leading Oklahoma. And Iowa State Coach Johnny Orr is hoping that these three games will prepare his team for a run at the Big Eight tournament title.

Boddicker re-signs with Baltimore

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Right-hander Mike Boddicker Tuesday agreed to a one-year contract with the Baltimore Orioles, the American League club announced. With the signing of Boddicker, 29, the Orioles have come to terms with all 40 of their roster players. Boddicker was scheduled to go to arbitration Thursday. Financial terms of the pact were not announced. A veteran of four full major-league seasons, Boddicker was 14-12 in 1986 with a 4.70 ERA. His lifetime major-league record is 63-49.

Calgary rolls past Penguins, 3-1

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Mike Bullard and Tim Hunter scored first-period goals Tuesday night to lift the Calgary Flames to their fifth straight victory, a 3-1 decision over the Pittsburgh Penguins.

Flames goaltender Mike Vernon stopped 28 shots and is undefeated in his last three starts. The Penguins, who played without Mario Lemieux, were scoreless in four power-play opportunities and have not scored a power-play goal in their last 22 chances. Lemieux missed the game because of a chest cold.

Bullard, playing his first game in Pittsburgh since being traded to the Flames earlier this season, scored on the power play at 12:14 to give Calgary a 1-0 lead. It was his 17th goal of the season and also his 12th point in the last 13 games. Bullard has seven goals and five assists in that span.

Hunter made it 2-0 with 2:19 left in the first period when he drove a long shot from outside the circle past Pat Riggin.

Maloney, Poddubny spark Rangers' win

NEW YORK (UPI) — Don Maloney and Walt Poddubny scored two goals apiece, and Kelly Kisio added three assists Tuesday night to power the New York Rangers to a 6-2 victory over the Detroit Red Wings.

New York is 6-1-0 in its last seven games while Detroit had a three-game winning streak snapped.

New York goalie John Vanbiesbrouck stopped 42 shots — including a Petr Klima penalty shot in the second period — to record his third straight victory after going winless in his previous six starts.

Ex-Ranger Glen Hanlon, making his first start against his former teammates, gave up five goals on the 24 shots he faced, and was replaced at 3:34 of the third period with Detroit trailing 5-1.

Maloney gave Rangers a 1-0 lead at 6:20 of the first period when he batted the rebound of a Pierre Larouche shot past Hanlon. Larouche got credit for an assist on the goal, earning his 800th career point. Kisio collected the other assist.

New York outscored Detroit 3-1 in the second period to take a 4-1 advantage. Poddubny made it 2-0 just 58 seconds into the period, and Larouche increased the Ranger lead to 3-0 at 7:00 during a New York power play. Kisio picked up another assist on the Larouche goal.

Kisio's third assist came at 12:43, when he helped set up Bobby Carpenter for a 4-0 advantage. Shawn Burr scored for Detroit at 16:44.

Injury-riddled Iowa readies for 'Classic'

By Dan Millea
Staff Writer

Iowa men's track Coach Ted Wheeler will take eight men to this weekend's Illinois Classic in Champaign, Ill., in a final effort to prepare his injury-riddled team for the Big Ten Championships Feb. 28.

The meet is a non-scoring affair which, because it comes just before the Big Ten and other conference meets, will not feature many Midwest powers.

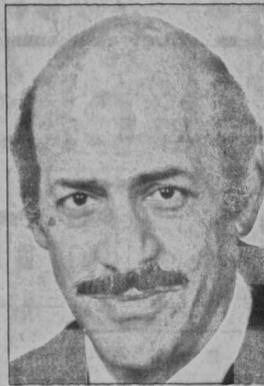

"It used to be held two or three weeks before the Big Ten meet," Wheeler said of the Classic, "but this year there are conference meets coming up everywhere. I don't expect a lot of teams to be there."

But the Hawkeyes need to be there, Wheeler said. Injuries and other problems have prevented Iowa from putting together an actual team outing this winter. And with the Big Ten meet just one week away, the few healthy Hawkeyes need all the experience they can get.

"Those people who need a little more confidence in their event" will be competing in Champaign, Wheeler said. "We hope this will shore them up for the Big Ten meet."

Wheeler said the athletes still injured will stay home and work out at Cornell College in Mt. Vernon, Iowa, where the team has been practicing this winter because the Recreation Building is still considered unsafe.

AMONG THOSE WHO will not make the Champaign trip are hurdler and sprinter Patrick McGhee — who has not competed all season and will be redshirted — jumper Paul Jones, sprinter Curtis Chung, pole vaulter Kelly Scott and jumper K.P. Lansing. Jones and Scott will not be in time for the Big Ten meet, but Chung and Lansing should be, Wheeler said.

Sprinter Robert Smith, hurdler Merton Hanks and jumper Quinn Early — all three football players — also will definitely not be ready for the Big Ten meet.

The three have been slow in coming around after joining the track team last month and will not see action until this spring.

Shot putter Chris Gambol will lead the Hawkeyes to Champaign, along with Paul Steele (800 meters), Sean Corrigan (800), Louis English (800), Pat Meade (high jump), Gordon Finch (triple jump), Scott Ventura (mile) and Scott Joens (shot put).

of being at Iowa are great. One advantage is Kennedy. "Actually he's kind of like a father figure," Lloyd said. "He likes to have everything in control. He's been really good to me."

Another advantage is the traveling.

"I've gotten to see a whole lot of the United States in swimming, not just in college but also in high school," she said.

Lloyd, who is a social work major, is now looking to a big trip — the Big Ten Championships in Indianapolis.

"I usually drop a lot of seconds when we taper," Lloyd said confidently. "The time I had at Minnesota (57.89 in the 100 butterfly) was my best in-season time ever at college, so I feel real confident."

She said her fastest times are nearly always at the conference meet. And she'll have to cut two more seconds off her best time this season to qualify for the NCAA meet which will be held March 24-28 in Indianapolis.

Lloyd will soon hang up her swimsuit, goggles and swim cap. But she'll leave behind a solid philosophy for her teammates to live up to.

"I think if you boil it down to one thing, it is only as good as you make it," Lloyd said. "And you only get out of it what put into it. If you put in 100 percent, then you're going to get back 100 percent."

Arena. "Now we have much more confidence in ourselves and our own ability, and we've played well since that game."

Iowa Coach Tom Davis, who is no stranger to the type of game Williams likes to run (having had him as an assistant coach for seven years) will be the first of the mighty four to go against the Buckeyes in Columbus, Ohio, tonight.

"As the season nears a close, I think people can see what coaches have been saying all along, and that is that Ohio State is a fine basketball team," Davis said. "I don't think anyone realized how talented they really were, but now they have deemed that respect."

Davis continued to say, "Ohio State will have our undivided attention." And he said he wasn't concerned about overlooking the Buckeyes in favor of the Hoosier game Saturday.

While the Iowa-Indiana game is sure to be a barnburner, the game of the week in the Big Ten may well be in Champaign, Ill., when the Fighting Illini play host to traveling partner Purdue in a game that could knock one more team from contention for the conference crown.

The Illini have yet to win a game against one of the big three teams in the conference, making next Monday's game even more crucial to the Illini in the fight.

"I think they're struggling in some areas right now, and they're having some problems clicking like Coach (Lou) Henson wants them to," Purdue Coach Gene Keady said. "We've really run into a buzzsaw the last three years we've played them, so I think we're concerned about playing as well as we did against Iowa. And even that might not be enough."

"Purdue is definitely an outstanding team, and they have a lot of things going for them," Henson said. "We will have a tough time matching up with them because they are so experienced, and we will have to execute to the best of our ability to beat Purdue."

Mattingly lands largest arbitration bankroll

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York Yankees first baseman Don Mattingly won the highest salary ever awarded in baseball's arbitration process Tuesday and will earn $1,975,000 this season.

Mattingly's victory, coupled with the announcement of three awards in favor of club owners, brought this winter's arbitration scorecard to Owners 13, Players 7.

The losing players Tuesday were Kevin McReynolds of the New York Mets, Danny Cox of St. Louis and Jay Howell of Oakland.

Mattingly, 25, batted .352 in 1986 with 31 home runs and 113 RBI. He led the American League in slugging percentage (.573) and was the top fielding first baseman for the third straight year. He was named the league's Most Valuable Player in 1985.

The Yankees had offered $1.7 million, a 24 percent increase over Mattingly's 1986 salary of nearly $1.38 million. The player and his agent, Jim Krivacs, countered with the highest salary sought in 11 years of arbitration, almost $1.98 million.

MATTINGLY'S SALARY case was heard Monday in New York by arbitrator Arvid Anderson. McReynolds' case was also heard Monday by Thomas Christensen, but Christensen ruled in favor of the Mets' $625,000 offer instead of the $825,000 sought by the outfielder acquired from San Diego during the off-season.

McReynolds earned $275,000 last season while hitting .288 with 26 home runs and 96 RBI.

"I have no animosity," he said in a statement released by the Mets. "It was a business decision. We tried the case and lost. Right now, my only concern is getting down to spring training and putting on a Met uniform for the first time."

Cox, the only player to take the Cardinals to arbitration this year, will earn $600,000 rather than $875,000, a $495,000 increase from his 1986 salary. The right-hander cracked an ankle bone during spring training last year and missed the first two months of the season. He finished with a 12-13 record and 2.90 ERA.

HOWELL, A RELIEVER who went 3-6 with 16 saves and a 3.38 ERA, will repeat his 1986 salary — $530,000. He had been seeking a $100,000 raise.

The Yankees and Mattingly last year agreed to a contract hours before his arbitration hearing. This year followed a similar scenario, but the parties could not settle on a two-year pact and the hearing went as scheduled.

Mattingly, stranded by bad weather in Dayton, Ohio, on his way home to Evansville, Ind., reached Krivacs Tuesday to learn of the award.

"He was pleased with the award obviously," the agent said from his office in Clearwater, Fla. "More importantly, that part of the process is over, and he is looking forward to spring training. Everything was very positive. We knew going into the hearing there would be no hard feelings."

DETROIT PITCHER Jack Morris briefly held the previous arbitration record for highest salary when he was awarded $1.85 million last week. Before Morris, the highest arbitration salary went to third baseman Wade Boggs. He lost his case in 1986 and was awarded Boston's $1.35 million offer.

The Mets also sought to settle with McReynolds before his hearing. The World Series champions Tuesday reached one-year agreements with two other players — pitcher Doug Sisk and second baseman Tim Teufel — to avoid arbitration. But the club still has a hearing Wednesday with pitcher Ron Darling, who is seeking $1.05 million. The club offered $800,000, a $360,000 increase after Darling posted a 15-4 record with a 2.81 ERA.

The Mets declined to specify the salaries of Sisk and Teufel but said the players and club compromised. Sisk asked for $368,000 and the Mets offered $300,000; Teufel wanted $315,000 and the club offered $240,000.

Gooden, Mets come to terms Chicago will grant reprieve for Hoyt

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — Five years after he joined the New York Mets for $600, Dwight Gooden signed a one-year contract worth $1.5 million Tuesday and vowed a return to the 20-win plateau.

Gooden, 22, and agent Jim Neader staged a formal news conference for the actual signing of the contract, which came three days before the All-Star righthander reports to the Mets' spring training camp.

Gooden appeared casual in a white and gray sweater, white golf cap and white shoes, but he turned serious when discussing his decline from the Cy Young season of 1985.

"This season I'm determined to not make the same mistake I made last year — trying to do things I'm not capable of,"

New York Mets' pitcher Dwight Gooden and manager Jim Neader are all smiles after signing a one-year $1.5 million contract for 1987.

considering giving a tryout to Hoyt, who won 24 games and led the team to a division title in 1983.

Himes said neither Hoyt nor his agent have contacted the White Sox, and Chicago had no plans to contact Hoyt.

"IT'S UP TO THEM. If they have any interest, they're going to have to contact us," Himes told United Press International. "We aren't going to call them. If they do call, we'll listen. But there's been no contact. Do we expect any? That's strictly up to Hoyt and his agent."

Hoyt was released from a Florida jail last week on a drug-related charge. Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth was to decide whether Hoyt could be eligible to pitch for a major-league team this season.

American

Most people would say that watching television is a hard grind. After a hard day's work, there's nothing more relaxing than turning on the TV and watching the news.

The magic of television is that it does all your thinking for you. What's all-purpose event "America" is all summed up even before the show's second began Monday evening in a "Business Brief" complete with snappy graphics and a pleasant talking head summarizing trends.

This announcer is no more than any spokesperson offers. David Letterman's when to laugh with look into our living room. Rather signals our haters terrorists when his e knit together to resemble cardigan. Vanna White cheering when puzzle-solver drives a new car.

TV IS FASCISM. The said it. It's a lobotomy on-off switch that you things get too tough? switch, and your front on auto pilot, making what to buy when you from the set and need comforted.

'Amerika' embodies television's worst

By George Yatchisin
Staff Writer

Television

MOST PEOPLE, when pressed, would say that they watch television to unwind. After a hard day at whatever (fill in your daily grind), there's nothing quite like turning on the set and turning off your mind.

The magic of television is that it does our thinking for us. What our all-purpose media event "Amerika" is all about was summed up even before the show's second episode began Monday evening. ABC ran a "Business Brief," complete with snappy graphics and a pleasant talking head summing up trends. The announcer began on an up note; home buying had increased, due to lower interest rates. But his smile, and ours, reversed itself even before the next graphic registered. Consumer confidence, whatever that is, was down. Bad for America, with or without a "K."

This announcer is no different than any spokesperson TV offers. David Letterman cues us when to laugh with a sly look into our living rooms. Dan Rather signals our hatred of terrorists when his eyebrows knit together to resemble his cardigan. Vanna White leads our cheering when a lucky puzzle-solver drives off in a new car.

TV IS FASCISM. There, I've said it. It's a lobotomy with an on-off switch that you control. Things get too tough? Flip the switch, and your frontal lobe's on auto pilot, making notes on what to buy when you're away from the set and need to be comforted.

And now, back to "Amerika." It's a bad show, whether you view it from the Left or the

Amerika
Directed by Donald Wrye. Script by Donald Wrye.
Devin Milford.....Kris Kristofferson

Showing through Saturday at 8 p.m. on ABC.

Kris Kristofferson

Right. It's just more product: the first two episodes offered some sex within the first five minutes — how's that for formula? Like all television, it's really about money. I was able to interview Peter Jessop, a Chicago actor who played a Russian soldier, and he claims there was as much talk on the set about how "it cost so damn much to put together" (estimates at $40 million) as how it might be a political statement. The business of television is business.

THERE'S LITTLE evidence of that $40 million on the small screen. The film looks like any TV movie, dully conceived, with little sense of the how the frame can be used as space. At times it seems director David Wrye — best known for "Born Innocent," a 1974 TV movie about a detention home — tried to shoot the film as a pseudo-documentary; he even lets extras get between the camera and his star, Kris Kristofferson. But such pretend realism only makes the film more preposterous, as it clashes with the show's numerous lapses in believability and the show's nightly disclaimer that it is a work of fiction.

"Amerika," as TV, has no choice but to equivocate. Many

BUT WITH TELEVISION, these differences of opinion don't matter. What matters is Volkswagen ads and Maxwell House ads and Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance ads. They offer no ambiguities. They say one thing, and say it simply, "Buy." If the messages in between confuse or make us uncomfortable, so much the better. The solid answers wait in the commercials.

Of course the content of "Amerika" is as despicable as its form. The show will not help a world where too many people think Americans and Soviets are different species, only one of which has a gene directly connected to bloodlust. What's particularly odd is to see what "Amerika" holds up as freedom. The epic begins with an underground production of The Fantastiks, complete with huddled masses yearning to hear "Do You Remember?" If being American is loving such sentimental bathos, then we might be better off either Red or dead.

Just in the first 75 minutes of the film, the examples of simple-mindedness go on and on. An American woman says, "I love you," but her ice prince from the Volga says nothing in response. Two men complain they can only eat soyburgers; meat, after all, is what makes America great. A classroom scene shows students aren't taught facts but indoctrinated into a society. It's a good thing such stuff doesn't go on in this country, buster.

DESPITE THESE caricatures of communism, some right-wing groups think "Amerika" is too soft on the Soviets. These groups seems upset the film doesn't show Boris Badunov devouring children for dinner. Reed Irvine, head of the conservative group Accuracy in Media, was quoted in Time as saying, "There is a total lack of realism about what a Soviet occupation is really like, no evidence of a reign of terror." Irvine is clearly as confused as those who confound liberty with off-Broadway semaltz; his phrase "reign of terror" has historical roots in an incident of democracy gone wild, after all.

What's most frightening is that "Amerika" ultimately says a woman sold America down the river. This isn't surprising, since we live in a culture dominated by figures like Eve and Pandora. But for "Amerika" to claim one woman, hungry for power and KGB loving, could lead an entire country to submit to another, is stunning. If the show teaches us nothing else, it shows we fear women as much as we fear the Soviets, if not more.

Guitarist Robinson plays original blues

By Alex Wilding-White
Staff Writer

Music

IN JAPAN, where he has a large following, guitarist Fenton Robinson is referred to as "The Mellow Giant of the Blues." Among blues lovers closer to home, he is regarded as one of the steadiest and original of contemporary performers.

Working in near obscurity for the better part of the past three decades, Robinson has finally established a wide enough following, previously limited to musicians and die-hards, to have the choice of work he has long deserved.

Robinson, who will appear tonight at Gabe's, 330 E. Washington St., is finally getting his due.

Born in Mississippi and driven by the desire to be a musician from a very young age, Robinson began his professional career in his late teens when his family moved to Memphis, Tenn. He signed his first recording contract at age 22 with the then-prestigious R&B label Duke Records. His future seemed bright, but Duke Records was more interested in promoting its bigger acts; Robinson cut only four singles in two years with the label.

ROBINSON MOVED to Chicago in the early '60s and immediately made his mark in the city's tough blues bar circuit, establishing himself as the house act at Theresa's Lounge (one of Chicago's best-known blues venues). While Robinson's recording during this time was sporadic, one single, "Somebody (Loan Me a Dime)," became the biggest hit of his career. The song became his trademark and was eventually covered by Boz Scaggs.

Robinson, however, continued to have problems with the recording business, going through a number of label changes before signing with Alligator Records in 1974. His first LP for the label, also called Somebody Loan Me a Dime, received near-unanimous rave reviews.

HIS NEXT ALBUM, 1978's I Hear Some Blues Downstairs, received a Grammy nomination and was very popular with alternative radio stations. His most recent LP is Nightflight.

Besides his regular regime of touring, Robinson has been the Illinois Arts Council's blues artist-in-residence in the Springfield, Ill., school system for the past two years and has also been a music teacher, a rarity among blues musicians.

What sets Robinson apart is his low key stage personality and his subtle, sophisticated style of playing. Robinson blends diverse influences, ranging from blues players such as T-Bone Walker and Lightnin' Hopkins to jazz artists like Wes Montgomery and Kenny Burrell, to create a style both personal and intelligent.

His touch is impeccable, varying tempos, dynamics and melodic direction with effortless ease, perfectly complementing his sweet, soaring vocal delivery.

CAC concert proceeds go to Solomon fund

By Jill Lauritzen
Staff Writer

A BENEFIT concert for the Solomon Amendment Financial Aid Fund will be held by the Collegiate Association Council tonight at The Dubuque Street Brewing Co., 313 S. Dubuque St.

The Solomon Amendment refers to the Statement of Educational Purpose for the Selective Service Registration Compliance found on financial aid forms. The statement questions whether the applicant for financial aid has registered for the draft, and if not, why.

Gordon Fischer, a CAC councilor and Liberal Arts Student Association president, said the amendment "discriminates on the basis of sex, race and religion."

"It's an attempt to deny financial aid if you're not (registered)," David Williams, a member of LASA, said.

"The Solomon Amendment Financial Aid Fund is for those people who don't want to declare whether or not they signed for the draft and as a result don't get financial aid," Fischer said.

Music

UI Vice President for Student Services Philip Hubbard said the fund is a great service for those who don't sign the Statement of Educational Purpose.

"STUDENTS WHO HAVE trouble with a conscience about registering for the draft can use this fund to get an education," Hubbard said. "Our principal concern is that students get an education."

Hubbard praised the CAC for holding the benefit concert. "It certainly was very thoughtful of student government," Hubbard said. "Sounds like it'll be a lot of fun."

Featured at the benefit concert will be three bands: The Cause, Shell Game and Four Million.

An entrance fee of $3 will be charged at the door with all proceeds going to the fund.

"Last year when we did something like this we raised about $600," Fischer said.

In addition to benefit profits going to the fund, the CAC allocates $7,500 each year to the fund.

Iowa is losing more physicians a year than it gains, according to a study by the UI College of Medicine. Administrators told the Board of Regents they would like to reverse the trend.

According to a study by the UI College of Medicine, Iowa lost 14 doctors last year. This comes after years when the state gained a net of 65 doctors a year. Figures for 1986 are not available this year.

A UI College of Medicine program that trains resident physicians in rural communities throughout the state has helped retain more physicians in the past. Paul Seeborn, UI College of Medicine, said that state economy, insurance rates, and the blame for the economic downturn are factors in the loss of doctors.

BUT SEEBORN said that the state's acceptance that many doctors in rural areas need assistance to U.S. Medicine program.

The situation is not yet, but the state must take precautions. "It's too soon to say," Seeborn said, "but the loss of about 3,500 residents in the past 10 years of UI medical school graduates is a state's complex problem."

RESIDENCIES in rural areas are still a problem for some physicians.
