Ramon DeSantiago

DeSantiago sentenced to 25 years

By Anne Halloran
Staff Writer

Calling the summer shooting of John Slager in downtown Iowa City a "vicious crime," a judge sentenced Ramon Joseph DeSantiago II to 25 years in jail.

Found guilty in January for the shooting, DeSantiago, 19, of Council Bluffs, stood without emotion when Johnson County District Court Judge William Eads sentenced him Friday for attempted murder.

Eads told DeSantiago he was fortunate he did not kill Slager when he shot him between the eyes with a .22 caliber handgun.

"You're lucky Mr. DeSantiago, this could have been first-degree murder and you could be serving a life sentence," Eads said. "You committed a vicious crime. You should serve quite a considerable amount of time on this."

DeSantiago will serve a minimum of five years of the maximum 25-year sentence because a firearm was used, Eads said. He added DeSantiago will be eligible for parole.

DeSANTIAGO'S LAWYER, Marsha Bergen, said an appeal to the verdict of "attempted murder" has been filed. She told the court Friday that DeSantiago regrets shooting Slager.

"He will never let himself forget the terrible things he did," Bergen said.

But DeSantiago said he was willing to accept his sentence.

"I just want everyone to know that I'm ready to accept my punishment and that's all I can do," DeSantiago said.

Johnson County District Attorney J. Patrick White, the prosecuting attorney in the case, said he will be filing a request for restitution to Slager from DeSantiago.

"He (John Slager) and his family members suffered from permanent economic loss," White said. "DeSantiago should make restitution for loss of earnings."

White said Slager's hospital bills have totalled more than $111,866 which have been paid by Slager's insurance company.

DeSANTIAGO WAS found guilty Jan. 28 by an Iowa County jury in Marengo, Iowa, for the Aug. 3 shooting near J.C. Penney's, 201 S. Clinton St.

Court records state DeSantiago and another Council Bluffs man, Steven Wayne Brickey, were trying to steal

Slager's motorcycle when Slager confronted them.

Bergen attempted to prove her client tried to fire the gun above Slager's head as a warning shot, but failed to convince the jury.

Brickey and Ralph Peterson, who drove himself, DeSantiago and Brickey back to Council Bluffs, were charged as "accessories" to the shooting.

Brickey was granted parole Feb. 12 after serving almost four months of a two-year sentence. Peterson, also serving a two-year prison term, is still awaiting parole.

Grinnell field trip results in 2 deaths

Two Grinnell College faculty members died early Sunday when water flooded a cave they were exploring in northeast Iowa, Allamakee County Sheriff's officials said.

Officials said Mike Price, 29, an instructor in the computer services division, and Kathy McClusky, an assistant professor of physical education, died of hypothermia after heavy rains caused a dry creek bed to fill and run into Miller Cave, 3½ miles north of Luana, Iowa. Miller Cave has a vertical drop of 107 feet, making it the deepest cave in Iowa.

Grinnell College authorities told Iowa State Highway Patrol officers in Cedar Falls at 9 a.m. Saturday that four people were stranded inside a cave near the Minnesota border. Patrol officials were joined in their rescue attempt by the Postville fire and police departments.

AT MIDNIGHT SATURDAY, Iowa Grotto-Cave Exploration members Rudy Pruszko and Greg McCarty and Department of Natural Resources Officer Michael Abel arrived at the scene.

Pruszko entered the cave and guided three of the spelunkers to safety. Those rescued were: David Ellin, 21; Chad Bliatz, 20; and Jonathon Andreas, 18. All are Grinnell College students.

At approximately 2 a.m., Price and McClusky were pulled from the cave and taken to Postville Hospital. Both were pronounced dead on arrival.

Two other students, Matt Stone, 18, and Richard Bart, no age given, were rescued from the cave an hour later. Both were conscious and transferred to the Postville Hospital for observation and were released.

A memorial service is planned for 11 a.m. Tuesday on the Grinnell College campus.

Tower report sparks local reaction

By Joseph Levy
Assistant Metro Editor

President Ronald Reagan was ultimately responsible for the Iran arms-Contra aid scandal, local experts said Sunday.

In light of the Tower Commission report, released Thursday in Washington D.C., UI Political Science Assistant Professor Terrell Squire said he thought the president could have done more to uncover the matter.

"It certainly doesn't appear that he took an active role (in finding answers to the incident)," Squire said.

Squire believes the dealings have seriously — if not irreversibly — wounded Reagan for the remainder of his term in office.

"Exchanging arms, or whatever he thought they would get from the Iranians, was a mistake," Squire said. "Clearly, it was a bad idea."

BUT SQUIRE SAID former chief of staff Donald Regan should have maintained better control of conflicting reports which seeped freely out of the White House after the scandal was disclosed.

"He was charged with the responsibility of running the office and he didn't do it," Squire said.

Newly appointed chief of staff Howard Baker will be only one of several ensuing White House replacements, Squire predicted, but added new appointees may not be enough to save the Reagan presidency.

"He's running out of time, regardless of what he does," Squire said.

UI Student Senate President Joe Hansen said the president's next move should be a total explanation of the incident.

"GENERALLY, Americans like to forgive people," Hansen said. "If Reagan had come out and told right away what he knew, the whole thing would probably be different."

"Reagan owes the American population an explanation," Hansen added. "It's been three months since he's had a press conference. I don't understand that."

Hansen called the attitude permeating the White House since the scandal became public "bunker mentality" and said he looks for more of the same from the president and his staff.

"It's going to be more of the bunker mentality," Hansen said, adding Reagan should listen to the call of the American public for answers.

"Everyone has told him this and he still hasn't done it," Hansen said.

HANSEN ADDED Regan also holds responsibility for the current attitude in the White House.

UI law student William Maddix agreed Reagan had poor control of his staff, saying the president was "negligent" in the entire episode.

"He should have been in better control of what was going on," Maddix said, adding an "honest effort" to inform Americans of the events of the scandal should be Reagan's next step.

But UI graduate student Susan Murphy said Reagan's next move may not hold much significance.

"It's kind of ruined his reputation already," she said, adding she still hoped for an explanation.

Reagan said last week he would address the American public this week with a response to the Tower Commission's findings.

Student senator joins Kemp committee

UI Student Senate presidential candidate Mike Gainer has been named a member of U.S. Rep. Jack Kemp's presidential steering committee, but Gainer says he is only doing it for educational purposes, and is not necessarily endorsing Kemp, R-N.Y.

"I'm not going to go out and wear my Jack Kemp button," Gainer said, explaining his intention is to be able to have some input in Kemp's education platform.

"If I can put some educational issues on his campaign, I'll do it," Gainer said, adding he will definitely refrain from actively campaigning for the New York candidate.

"If it makes any conflict of interest, I'll drop it," he said.

A press release from the Jack Kemp for President Exploratory Committee said the steering committee consists of 800 "prominent Republican activists from around the country" committed to Kemp's nomination, but Gainer said that is an overstatement.

According to Gainer, he merely sent back a slip indicating his interest, similar to a magazine subscription form.

The committee consists of 22 members of Congress, 18 former state chairmen of President Ronald Reagan's campaigns for president, 139 state legislators and other activists from the conservative movement.

Prominent figures on the committee include National Football League legend Joe Namath and coaches Tom Landry and Don Shula.

Free hearing screenings offered March 7

The UI Department of Speech Pathology and Audiology will conduct free hearing screenings from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. March 7 at the Wendell Johnson Speech and Hearing Center.

Individuals with hearing problems will receive appropriate referrals for additional testing.

No screenings will be offered March 4, as had previously been reported in The Daily Iowan.

For more information call Ruth Bentler at 335-8705.

Applicants sought for Stanley Scholarship

Officials at the UI Center for International and Comparative Studies are looking for applicants for spring 1987 Stanley Scholarships for International Research and Study.

The scholarships are awarded to outstanding UI undergraduates for the pursuit of learning activities in international studies not available at the UI.

Such topics include research on international topics requiring travel, either abroad or in the United States, studying abroad at a foreign university or in a formal internship program and taking courses on international subjects not available at the UI.

Competition is open to all UI undergraduates, with the exception of those who will graduate in May or July, 1987. Stanley Scholarships, which carry a stipend of up to $800, may be used in conjunction with any other scholarships.

Applicants must submit a one- to three-page proposal on the study, an up-to-date transcript and two letters of recommendation from UI faculty. The application deadline is March 20. Awards will be announced April 13.

For further information call Chike Anyaegbunam at 335-0368.

Report says UI College of Law is 'better'

An American Bar Association report says the UI College of Law compares favorably to some of the United States' most prestigious law colleges.

"There are probably a number of the most prestigious law schools in the country, measured by the usual national rankings, which simply do not match Iowa in excellence of classroom teaching, intensity of writing and skills training, and warm personal relationships with students," the report from the ABA's site inspection team said.

The report, which continued the UI College of Law's accreditation by the ABA and the Association of American Law Schools, was received by the state Board of Regents at its February meeting in Cedar Falls.

But the ABA committee did criticize the law school's instructional budget, adding that it lagged significantly behind the top five public law schools in the country.

"The financial support currently provided seems woefully inadequate to enable the law school to fulfill its dean's stated objective of breaking into the elite circle of five leading public law schools," the committee's report said.

Freedman will remain at UI

By Scott Hauser
Staff Writer

UI President James O. Freedman squelched speculation Friday that he is a finalist for the presidency of Indiana University.

In a story published last week in the Indiana Daily Student, Freedman was named one of three finalists for the $125,000 position.

Freedman said he had spoken with the search committee, but had declined further interest in the post.

"I had conversations with the search committee and members of the Board of Trustees at Indiana University, but informed them several weeks ago that I was honored by their interest but I had decided to remain at the University of Iowa," Freedman said in a written statement Friday.

HARRY L. GONSO, vice president of the Indiana Board of Trustees, confirmed Friday that Freedman was not one of the final candidates.

He said the Indiana paper's report did not come from an authorized source and denied it was true.

But Paul Rogers, editor of the Indiana Daily Student, said the source of their story is reliable and is close to the search committee.

The story listed Freedman as a finalist along with Kenneth Louis Gross, vice president of Indiana's Bloomington campus, and Charles Kiesler, provost at Vanderbilt University.

Freedman has been president of the UI since April 1, 1982.

He earns a salary of $112,500.

John Ryan, Indiana's president for 17 years, announced in June he intended to resign from the position Sept. 1.

Gonso said the board will not release any candidates' names, but will announce its choice for president next week.

Rogers said Sunday the Indiana Board of Trustees picked a new president at their Feb. 27 meeting, but would not release the name of their choice until their public hearing this week.

An Iowa City man told police he was threatened by a man carrying a knife at the 100 block of North Clinton Street early Saturday, according to Iowa City police reports.

Carlos Trevino, 25, told police he saw three men tampering with his landlady's car.

No arrests had been made as of Sunday, but detectives from the Iowa City Police Department were investigating the case, reports state.

Reports state Trevino approached the men and one of them pulled out a knife and held it near his stomach. After stepping back, the knife was withdrawn and all three men ran.

Trevino then chased the men, who he believes were all in their early 20s, but was unable to catch up with the subject carrying the knife.

Trevino also told police that he lost his Pulsar brand diver's watch valued at about $200 during the chase.

Theft Report: An Iowa City man reported his car stolen after he lent it out for a test drive on Thursday afternoon.

Mohammad Shafiq, 412 N. Clinton, told police his 1971 Ford Pinto had been missing since Thursday, but he called the Iowa City Police Department Sunday and said he saw his car parked near Gilbert and Davenport streets earlier Sunday morning.

The theft was still under investigation Sunday, reports state.

Accident Report: An Iowa City woman was arrested for operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated following a two-car collision at the intersection of Gilbert and Washington streets Friday afternoon.

Theft Report: Nancy West, 22, of 223 Woodside

Drive West was charged with reckless driving and was ticketed for failure to yield while making a left turn after she drove her car into another vehicle driven by Heidi Goodspeed, 26, of 1293 Dolen Place, Iowa City police reports state.

There were no injuries reported.

Goodspeed was driving west on Washington Street when she turned south on Gilbert Street where her vehicle was struck by a vehicle driven by West.

A passenger in West's car, Michael Pribe, 28, of 1302 Sunset St., was charged with public intoxication, reports state.

Damage from the accident was not unknown at the Iowa City Police Department Sunday.

Lee Hart speaks to students on long-term policy solutions

By Carol Monaghan

Staff Writer

The wife of Democratic presidential hopeful Gary Hart caught many UI students by surprise when she spoke at a downtown Iowa City bar Friday afternoon.

Lee Hart told an audience of more than 30 happy hour customers, mostly UI students, at Dooley's Dancin' and Drinkin', 1820 S. Clinton St., that the United States must accept long-term policy solutions to address its problems.

"In order to prepare for the future, we must propose the future," the former Colorado Senator's wife said during her first solo appearance in the state this year.

"We can't wait for the future to come to us," she said. "We must propose it or it will strangle us."

Hart, a former high school English teacher and real estate agent, said she learned a similar lesson while studying for her real estate license.

"If they drummed one thing in our heads, it's that the phone won't ring if you are just sitting at home," she said. "You have to go out and make the phone ring."

MOST UI STUDENTS seemed to come away from the bar with a favorable impression of the woman who hopes to be the next first lady.

"I was very impressed with the way she handled herself," Edward Ross, a UI junior, said. "I thought she did a hell of a lot better job of handling the issues than Nancy (Reagan) would have."

"I came here for happy hour," Ross said, who added that he

Lee Hart, wife of presidential candidate Gary Hart, takes questions from a small group of students Friday afternoon. The Daily Iowan/Doug Smith thought the bartender was joking when he told him Lee Hart was coming.

"She took on things in her own way, she was not just acting as a substitute for her husband," Pete Holm, a former UI student, said.

Hart, whose appearance at Dooley's was sponsored by UI Democrats, tackled questions from the mostly student crowd about her husband's stand on issues ranging from the economy to selective service.

Lee Hart said her husband favors a draft that would be compulsory for both men and women.

"THERE IS NO question in Gary's mind that we need more than a voluntary draft," she said.

She said, while it appears there are not enough volunteers for an effective armed forces, she is concerned how a mandatory draft would be run.

"We can't go back to a Vietnam-style draft, which was obviously a class draft," Hart said. "Any legislation would have to have a variety of things for those conscientious objectors to war, both men and women."

In hopes of making things happen for her husband in the next presidential election, Hart made her first trip to Iowa for the 1988 campaign this past week.

During her five-day swing through the state, the candidate's wife spent a lot of time touring Iowa county courthouses, including the Johnson County Courthouse, where she met with county Democratic leaders, Hart aide Monica Mills said.

Hart, considered the Democratic front-runner in the 1988 campaign, is expected to officially announce his candidacy in April.

Bishop announces proposal to build new Newman Center

By Monica Seigel

University Editor

A new Newman Center for Catholic students at the UI may be completed as early as the fall of 1988 if a proposed $5 million fund-raising drive is successful.

The Most Rev. Gerald O'Keefe, bishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Davenport, announced plans Friday for a drive expected to raise $5 million — $2.5 million of which would fund the construction and furnishing of a new Catholic student center.

The drive — called "Foundations in Ministry: A Gift for the Future" — would also provide an additional $1 million endowment for operation of the Newman Center, $1 million for the Seminary Education Fund of the diocese, an endowment to prepare seminary candidates for the priesthood and $500,000 to establish an Emergency Clergy Relief Fund.

THE DRIVE — the first such capital appeal in O'Keefe's 20-year tenure as bishop of Davenport — is planned to take place over the next four months and will consist of parishioners of diocesan churches making three- to five-year pledges.

O'Keefe said a new facility at the UI will serve as a "powerful symbol" of Catholicism to the UI community and will help meet the needs of Catholic students.

"Young people are the future," O'Keefe said. "Through the Newman Center we are helping to prepare the future leaders in our parishes and our communities."

According to the Rev. Michael J. Morrissey, vicar general of the diocese, the Newman Center building, 104 E. Jefferson St., is in poor shape and doesn't adequately facilitate the 1,500 weekly participants it houses.

THE REV. Ed Fitzpatrick, director of the Newman Center, agreed, saying although the location of the building is ideal, a new facility is needed.

"We're very excited about it," Fitzpatrick said. "This is going to give us a lot of opportunities."

Fitzpatrick added the building of a new center doesn't necessarily mean the building of a new church.

"Iowa City already has four Catholic churches," he said. "We don't see the need to build a new church — we're not trying to duplicate. We're trying to build a center for students."

Fitzpatrick said he was pleased to hear of plans for the drive.

"This says a lot about the diocese," he said. "They are making a statement about how very important these college years really are."

During construction of the new facility, operations at the center will be limited, but not completely restricted, Fitzpatrick said.

"We're going to just have to operate the best we can with what we have," he said.

The drive campaign was announced by a letter from O'Keefe read Sunday at masses at parishes throughout the 22 Southeast Iowa counties which comprise the diocese.

Accountability

Euphemism, n. The act or an example of the substitution of an inoffensive term for one considered offensive: As in "An inattentive president with a laid-back, hands-off management style did not properly supervise his employees," instead of "A negligent and lazy president let his employees run wild."

Much of the reporting and discussion, including the report of the Tower Commission, concerning President Ronald Reagan's role in the Iran-Contra scandal has been characterized by a false and dangerous genteelness and a willingness — indeed almost an eagerness — to shift the blame from the president to his aides and the Israelis. At times, the discussion has sounded more like one in an elementary school principal's office: "It was Donny's fault... it was Ollie's idea... Isaac made me do it."

This rush to lift the blame from the president's back and replace with a wonderfully abstract "responsibility" only perpetuates Reagan's tendency to refuse to admit that he is ever wrong in any but the most theoretical sense. Such a failure to confront reality is rather like protecting an alcoholic from the results of his drinking, making it impossible for him to change.

In truth, the report admits that Reagan's response to briefings was usually to tell anecdotes and/or worry that his inability to get the hostages released made him look weak. That penchant for story telling and anecdotes, instead of informed discussion of an issue, is one that friends and critics alike have noted from the first days of his presidency. Now, the Tower Commission's report confirms Reagan's lack of concern for specific information about crucial policy matters.

So what was his staff to do? Tie him to his chair and tell him no food, no water and no trips to the bathroom until he proved he knew enough to make smart decisions by passing the essay tests they devised each day? Reagan has insisted on holding everyone else, from those on welfare to former President Jimmy Carter, personally accountable for their sins of omission or commission. He too must be held to that same strict standard.

Take the first step

Since the breakdown of nuclear weapons negotiations after the Iceland summit in October, discussion between the United States and Soviet Union has been sparse, unimaginative and lacking direction. This past weekend, however, Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev offered a bold new initiative to break the stalemate.

Since October, the issue that caused the disappointing failure at Reykjavik — President Ronald Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative — had also been preventing agreement on all other arms control issues, including an accord on medium-range nuclear weapons. The Soviets, seeking to rein in the U.S. missile defense system, had been holding all other potential pacts hostage to an agreement limiting SDI.

But on Saturday, Gorbachev ended his insistence on a comprehensive package and opened the door to a separate agreement to eliminate all medium-range missiles in Europe. The Soviet leader's statement, which called for an agreement like the one he and Reagan hammered out in Iceland, was notable for its sense of urgency, asking that such an accord "be concluded, and without delay."

The initial American response to the Soviet overture has been cautiously optimistic. Perhaps part of this warm reception stems from the Reagan administration's eagerness to put the Iran-Contra scandal behind them by scoring a foreign policy victory. But for more substantial reasons, the administration should accept the offer.

Most importantly, the elimination of medium-range nuclear missiles like the Pershing II and the SS-20, considered some of the most destabilizing weapons in the superpowers' arsenals, would ease political/military tensions in Europe and start the arms control process again.

Ultimately, an agreement on medium-range weapons could build the kind of environment necessary to negotiate accords on other issues like strategic nuclear arms, chemical weapons and SDI.

End is near

To the Editor:

The fear of political dissent which the pro-CIA students have demonstrated in their "America — Love It or Leave It" rhetoric and their flag-waving bravado on the Pentacrest is disturbing, but not unexpected behavior. Their cause is not, after all, "academic freedom" or "the right of students to choose," but support for the Contras and their right-wing agenda.

At students carrying signs denouncing Contra terrorism, the pro-CIA group shouted "Kill the communists" and "Communists off campus." They laughed at speakers who denounced Contra rapists. They screamed "Four more years" to drown out those who spoke of schools mortared and farm cooperatives destroyed.

Everyday news coverage of the Iran-Contra arms scandal reveals new illegalities in the Reagan administration's pursuit of its Central American policies. The very evening of the arrests in Jessup Hall, ABC News reported that in 1984, a period when Congress cut off all Contra aid, former CIA Director William Casey got South Africa to agree to fly military supplies to the Contras. Not unexpectedly, President Ronald Reagan vetoed Congressional sanctions against South Africa that same year. Shouts of "USA, USA" can't hide this kind of damage-ing evidence or revive a failed presidency.

In the very American tradition of Henry David Thoreau and Martin Luther King, moral integrity and social justice will win the day. My thanks to those whose principled acts of civil disobedience will surely hasten the demise of this country's illegal and immoral war against the people of Nicaragua.

the battle for hearts and minds.

To the CIA On Campus people: it's funny how times change. Conservatives were vocal critics of the Carter administration. You took the opportunity to criticize the way in which this country was governed. But now, you equate dissent with treason. Does this mean that rightist dissent is acceptable, but leftist dissent is not?

I offer two arguments to those of you who want to expel people like me from this country. The "rational" argument: it is our duty to criticize the unjust policies of any administration, and to resist intrusive authority. You will not intimidate us into silent complicity. Now, the "emotional" argument: this is my country, too. I speak only for myself; the only way you will get rid of me is by throwing my cold, lifeless body over the nearest international border.

Frightening scene

To the Editor:

Thursday, while on the Pentacrest, I witnessed a demonstration of what living in a totalitarian state is all about. A group of boys and "their girls," all white and dressed in very similar garb, were shouting the glories of the state secret police, denouncing the utterance of opinions differing from the state's philosophy and decrying those who would espouse a people-based governmental format. The Soviet government would be proud to have such state-minded comrades working for them.

It frightens me that some on this campus equate dissent with disloyalty, difference as a personal threat and violence towards those in opposition as another form of "Go Hawks" school spirit (state spirit?).

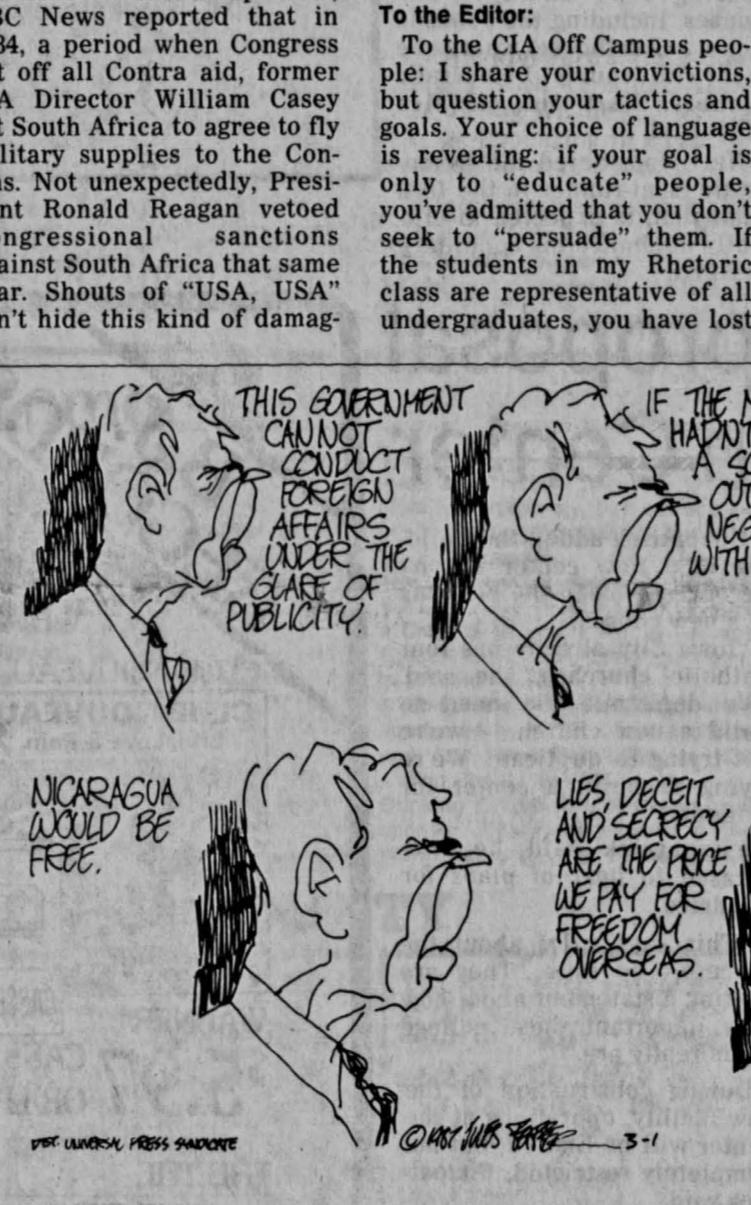

For, standing on the outer perimeter of a crowd of counter-CIA Off Campus protesters, I overhead more "queer-hating," "nigger-hating," "women-hating" and "foreigner-of-any-kind-hating" language in five minutes than I need to hear in a lifetime. Are these the "good men" who are supposed to represent the American democratic ideal?

The real problem

To the Editor:

Regarding the CIA protesters and counter-demonstrators: It is most unfortunate that the situation deteriorated into a series of name-calling, personal attacks and arrests. The real issue was forgotten: that is, the executive office of the president is running out of control. Vietnam, Watergate,

Reagan must prove himself once again

By George F. Will

With less than lightning-like promptness, the president will, on Wednesday, respond to the Tower Commission, to which he should feel deep gratitude. It focused discussion on how his "management style" produced what John Tower calls the Iran-Contra "aberration." Both characterizations are too kind.

There are two senses in which the primary problem was not "management style."

First, no managerial wizardry could have altered the fact that the policy — selling arms to Iran, then bartering them for hostages — was self-indulgent folly that could neither be defended nor kept secret. Second, references to President Ronald Reagan's "management style" obscure the fact that the style reflects a character trait. That trait is a grave flaw.

In sterner ages which spoke of sin, the flaw was considered one of the seven deadly sins. It is sloth, nowadays known as laziness.

His "management style" required from him an energetic insistence on quality in the people around him, and he lacked that insistence. But that lack is a form of laziness. (Remember that then-chief of staff James Baker and then-Treasury Secretary Donald Regan together cooked up their swap of jobs and Reagan languidly accepted it.)

SELF-INDULGENCE IS, if not a form of laziness, certainly a cousin of it. Reagan has been self-indulgent when confronted by aides' failures. The departure of Regan in his own sweet time, more than three months late, is a debilitating result of the self-indulgence of a president who would rather not put himself through the unpleasantness of demonstrating that there are penalties for failure.

Tower's characterization of the Iran-Contra affair as an "aberration" is only partly correct. True, the affair was an aberration in the sense that it does not typify the general tenor and record of the administration in all spheres of policy. However, in another sense it was not an aberration: It is part of a pattern visible even before it became vivid during the Daniloff debacle and the Iceland summit.

The careless and intellectually dishonest handling of the Daniloff affair — denying there was a deal; denying that the swap that the deal produced was a swap — reflected self-indulgence. Reagan was indulging himself in the pleasure he takes from winning the release of hostages. As in the Iran affair, he allowed his personal preoccupation with hostages to control public policy.

The hasty, slovenly preparation for the summit in Iceland last October was evidence of a laziness that was evident two Octobers earlier. Remember Reagan's alarmingly confused performance in the first debate with Walter Mondale? It was then said, in exculpation, that Reagan had been too industrious, that he had been "overprepared" by a staff that bludgeoned him with too much information. But that happens when a politician puts himself, like so much inert putty, in the hands of handlers, and does so because he will not take the trouble to decide what he — he — wants to say and do.

REAGAN'S RESPONSE TO the weakness of the Mondale challenge was a vacuous campaign. It, in turn, produced a second term that was sputtering along on only a few cylinders even before the Iran debacle caused the transmission to disintegrate.

It is clear there were many important things that Reagan was not told and that he was content not to be told. Furthermore, there were things he was told but did not absorb, or did not grasp their significance. Those failures reflect the low level of energy Reagan was investing in governance. They also reflect poorly on his two most experienced colleagues, Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger and Secretary of State George Shultz.

Those two are the aides most central to national security policymaking and most experienced in governance. They are especially culpable for distancing themselves, self-indulgently and even petulantly, from a policy they disapproved. They should have raised unshirked hell until Reagan understood what he now understands: the consequences of the inevitable exposure of his secret policy.

By his actions and inactions since November, Reagan has put upon himself a heavy burden of proof. He must prove he is still interested in being president, as he contracted with the American people to be until 1989. Otherwise, there soon will be corrosive comparisons to the last months of Woodrow Wilson's presidency.

Again, what is being tested in these next difficult days is his character, not his capacities. His capacities are sufficient when he wills the use of them.

The question is: Where is the Reagan who, in and after the North Carolina primary of 1976, found inner fountains of fire and fought back from the edge of political extinction? Where is the Reagan who, after defeat in the 1980 Iowa caucuses, reached deep into himself for reservoirs of combativeness? Where is the Reagan of the air-traffic controllers strike, the protracted first-term fights for his budget and tax priorities, the liberation of Grenada, the punishment of Libya?

The question Reagan must answer this week is: Where is the rest of him?

Professor to settle contract disputes

By James Cahoy
Staff Writer

A University of Nebraska Law professor will have two weeks to settle any disputes over Iowa City School District teacher contracts.

John Gradwohl will attempt to make a decision concerning 1987-88 teacher contracts in what marks the first arbitration process ever between the school district and the Iowa City Educational Association, a group representing the teachers.

The hearings, which began Friday, centered around five contract disagreements between the educational association and the district, but ICEA President Sue Mandernach said the issue of teacher evaluations was the most important.

"The teachers must have some say in the evaluation process and how it is done," Mandernach said. "They must have the right to be able to take action against an evaluation they feel is unfair. It is ridiculous that teachers would have no say in something so important to their careers."

THE ICEA IS asking for a special committee made up of six people appointed by Iowa City Superintendent of Schools David Cronin and six appointed by Mandernach to oversee the evaluations process.

In addition, the educational association is asking for the right for teachers to be allowed to file a grievance against an evaluation they think is inaccurate and unfair, and to have the right to bring the issue before an arbitrator independent of the school district.

Mandernach said it is unfair for the school district to be the final authority on teacher evaluations.

"The evaluation is too important to a teacher's career for it to be decided by the school board," Mandernach said. "If a teacher thinks an evaluation is that damaging, they should be able to look to someone not in the district."

But chief negotiator for the school district, Al Azinger, thinks allowing a teacher to go to an arbitrator independent of the district would harm the entire evaluation process.

"WE THINK THIS has to be handled by a professional, someone who knows teaching and the teaching profession," Azinger said. "I'm not sure the best solution would be to bring it to someone outside the system and think that's going to improve the process."

For its part, the district has offered to raise the minimum teachers' salary to $16,000 a year, $200 more than the ICEA proposal calls for, and spend $10 per person more on school employee insurance premiums.

"We have always been interested in getting minimum salaries up so we can compete with other districts and attract the best young people we can find," Azinger said.

But Mandernach said these proposals were offered to make the administration's proposals look better and increase its chances of winning the evaluation issue.

"Raising the minimum salaries to this amount will not affect one teacher currently in the district," Mandernach said. "The district and the ICEA support the same base pay rate at $15,800, and that's all that really counts since that's what sets all teachers' salaries currently working in the district."

OTHER ISSUES being brought before the arbitrator by the district and the educational association include teacher preparation time and the language of the current grievance clause.

Mandernach said she regrets having to go to arbitration to solve the contract dispute, but said it is a necessity.

Panel focuses on bad water

By Shawn Plank
Staff Writer

The Iowa groundwater pollution problem, quickly gaining attention as the issue of the 1980s, has been caused mainly by the application of farm chemicals to increase production, said state Rep. David Osterberg, D-Mt. Vernon, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee.

But Winton Etchen, executive vice president of the Iowa Fertilizer and Chemical Association, said farmers can't accept full responsibility for contamination of the state's drinking water sources.

"Raw sewage dumped into lakes and streams poses a risk to health," he said. "Yet you hear little about the problem and it is little addressed."

Osterberg, Etchen and four other panelists spoke before a crowd of about 100 Friday for a four-hour public forum on groundwater pollution at the UI Boyd Law Building.

"IT'S OUR ENVIRONMENT too," Etchen said. "We in the chemical and fertilizer business are not knowingly going to contaminate the environment."

UI Civil and Environmental Engineering Professor Don McDonald said chemicals enter the groundwater supply by seeping through the soil to the aquifer, where the underground deposits of water are located. The water, he added, response to economic and governmental political changes that pushed the farmer toward greater and greater production," he said.

Osterberg said the pressure to use more chemicals also comes from outside the government.

"We don't need to put on as much as we put on," he said. "We have a heck of a time competing with Lasso ads during Iowa basketball games."

But Etchen said other sources, such as leaky sanitary landfills and underground gasoline tanks, are just as much to blame for the groundwater problem. He added the chemical and fertilizer industry is the only group contributing to the problem with the "intestinal fortitude" to provide funding to help solve the issue.

UI grad wins Marshall award

By John Bartenhagen
Special to The Daily Iowan

For the first time ever, a UI graduate has been named one of 30 U.S. college graduates to receive a Marshall Scholarship.

Brian Taylor, an 1986 UI graduate who earned a bachelor's degree in political science with honors and highest distinction, received the award.

A Marshall Scholarship provides for at least two years of academic study at any British university. Applicants must be graduates of U.S. universities with a grade point averages of 3.7 or higher.

Extracurricular activities and achievements are also taken into consideration by the selection committee.

Taylor, who received many honors while attending the UI, including the Harry S. Truman Scholarship in 1984, worked as an orientation student adviser in 1983-84 and as an orientation graduate assistant in 1986.

EMIL RINDERSPACHER, UI assistant director of Orientation Services, said Taylor served as an excellent role model for incoming students.

"I think he inspired confidence and inspired others to put forth their best," he said.

"He has an uncommon thirst for knowledge," Rinderspacher added. "His education came from more than just books because he believed that you learn as much, if not more, outside the classroom."

UI Political Science Associate Professor John Nelson nominated Taylor for the award.

"Taylor has gone further in addressing the concerns of practical politics with sophisticated theories, persuasive evidence and thorough knowledge of cultural contexts than any undergraduate in the Department of Political Science since my arrival in 1975," Nelson said.

IN 1985-86 TAYLOR was the executive secretary for the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament, delivering speeches to more than 40 UI Rhetoric classes about nuclear war.

Taylor is currently a research intern for the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace in Washington, D.C. This fall, he will study international relations, emphasizing Soviet government, history and Russian, at the London University of Economics.

The Marshall Scholarship was established in 1953 by the British government in honor of U.S. General George C. Marshall. Marshall instituted the European Recovery Program in 1947 to assist European countries recover from World War II.

Shultz's China trip will stress stability

BELMING (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz began a five-day trip to China Sunday, emphasizing the stability of the 15-year relationship between the two countries.

But Chinese Foreign Minister Wu Xueqian warned in a banquet toast that "we should be soberly aware of the differences and obstacles standing in the way of Sino-U.S. relations" — an apparent reference to U.S. support for Taiwan.

Wu, speaking in the cavernous Great Hall of the People, also stressed that China is "a developing socialist country" and will remain a "socialist country with Chinese characteristics" as it moves toward modernization.

THE COMMENT COINCIDES with a two-month-old crackdown against capitalist trends that was mounted after student protests for democracy swept China in December.

With both countries preoccupied with policy problems, U.S. officials do not expect the Shultz visit to produce any radical breakthroughs in relations between the two countries, which began officially in 1972 with the visit of President Richard Nixon.

In a prepared toast for the welcoming banquet, Shultz emphasized continuity rather than change.

"Our political values differ profoundly," he said. "But greater openness has resulted in broader mutual understanding and respect. It is important that we remain open to each other as we seek to further strengthen our relationship."

BUT SEVERAL differences are unlikely to be resolved during Shultz's five-day trip, including Peking demands that Washington phase out arms sales to Taiwan more rapidly.

Shultz was scheduled to meet Premier and Acting Communist Party chief Zhao Ziyang today and senior leader Deng Xiaoping on Tuesday.

Meanwhile, Shultz, who was criticized by the Tower Commission investigating the Iran arms scandal for "distancing himself" from the affair after the White House had overridden his disapproval, has refused to discuss the issue with reporters.

His spokesman, Charles Redman, said Shultz will only speak after President Ronald Reagan addresses the matter in a speech to the nation this week.

80 injured, 8 killed in skilift accident

LUZ-ST-SAUVREUR, France (UPI) — A skilift cable tower snapped at a Pyrenees Mountains resort Sunday, plunging more than 100 skiers to the ground, some from heights of 60 feet. Six were killed and more than 80 others injured, police said.

Some skiers fell on snow while others hit rock.

"From the violence of the impact, some people bounced once like puppets and then fell heavily," said a young man who was on the lift when the accident occurred at about 4:30 p.m.

"I was no sooner out of the cabin at the bottom when I found myself in the snow," said the man, who was not injured.

The accident occurred on the main "La Caperette" chairlift at the Luz-Ardiden resort in southwestern France. The chairlift opened only three weeks ago and was "the pride of the resort," Luz-Ardiden director Daniel Poulo said.

Police said six people were killed and more than 80 injured, including 25 seriously injured people who were taken by helicopters to hospitals in the nearby cities of Tarbes and Lourdes.

Names and nationalities of the dead and injured were not released.

THE LIFT'S 50 chairs, which hold four people each, were at various heights when they fell, with some as high as 60 feet from the ground.

Police said the top of a pylon supporting the chairlift cable snapped off, which caused the cable to detach from its pulley.

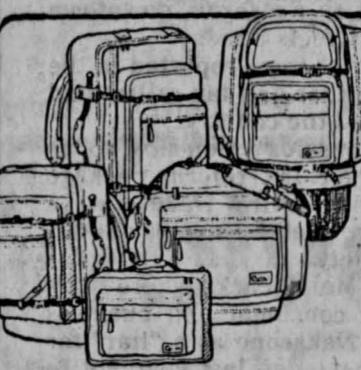

"I was with my son when we suddenly got the impression the lift was going to go backwards," said a woman with a young boy, both unhurt. "Then the cable went slack. I grabbed onto the bar but my son slipped out and fell on the rocks, but he wasn't hurt. It was a miracle."

Poulo said he could not understand why the accident occurred.

"I don't understand it," he said. "These machines are dependable. Accidents are rare, statistics prove that. This is a tough break for us."

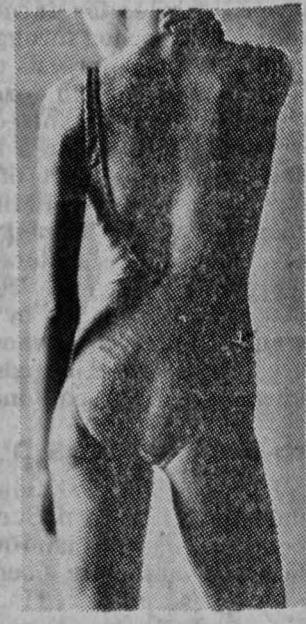

At the Les Orres resort near Grenoble in the French Alps Dec. 27, a pylon broke in a similar fashion and sent two cablecars crashing into a parking lot, injuring 36 people.

Japanese protest proposed sales tax

TOKYO — Tens of thousands of Japanese opposed to a proposed sales tax turned out at a massive downtown rally and marched through city streets Sunday.

Police said no arrests or injuries were reported in the Tokyo protest nor in dozens of other anti-tax rallies and demonstrations organized around the country.

The proposal to levy a 5 percent sales tax on most goods and services — part of a larger tax reform package unveiled by Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone in January — has spawned an unexpected wave of opposition from various sectors of society.

Protesters jammed Tokyo's Meiji Park, where they listened to speeches by labor, consumer and business group leaders who denounced Nakasone as a "liar" for breaking an election campaign pledge last year not to introduce "large-scale indirect taxes."

IBM completes pullout from S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — International Business Machines Corp. Sunday completed its pullout from South Africa by handing over its sales network to a locally-owned trust, a senior IBM executive said.

IBM, headquartered in Armonk, N.Y., is among dozens of U.S. and European companies that have announced plans to withdraw from South Africa to protest apartheid.

IBM managing director Jack Clarke said the American company handed over its sales network to a trust set up by IBM known as Information Services Management.

He said every IBM employee will be a co-owner of the new company and will earn a share of its profits.

Clarke said IBM had contracted to provide computers to South Africa for at least three years and parts for five years.

Proposed station closings elicit anger

CHICAGO — Mayoral candidate Tom Hynes Sunday condemned a proposal to close eight of the city's 25 police stations as "false and foolish" and called on Mayor Harold Washington to do the same.

"This idea is good for criminals and bad for people," Hynes said of the proposal made in November by a committee of business leaders.

The stations, four on the North and Northwest sides, two on the South Side and two on the West Side, were listed in an appendix to a $3 million study released by the Financial Planning Committee. The committee was formed at Washington's urging by Chicago United and the Civic Committee and Commercial Club to cut city operating expenses.

The labor union representing Chicago police officers, the Fraternal Order of Police, Saturday called on mayoral candidates to take a stand on the proposal.

Minor earthquake shakes Palm Springs

BANNING, Calif. — A minor earthquake shook the desert resort town of Palm Springs Sunday in the latest of a series of aftershocks from a powerful tremor that rocked the area last summer, officials said.

The quake struck at 10:53 a.m. and was recorded at a magnitude of 3.7 on the Richter scale, said Robert Finn, a spokesman for the Caltech Seismology Laboratory.

There were no reports of injury or damage.

An earthquake that registered 5.9 on the Richter scale hit the nearby community of Desert Hot Springs July 8, 1986, injuring 29 people and causing damage estimated at $5 million.

Since then, Finn said, seismologists have recorded thousands of aftershocks in the area.

Imported flowers sold at unfair price

WASHINGTON — The Commerce Department has concluded that $130 million worth of fresh-cut flowers imported annually from Colombia, Costa Rica and Mexico are being sold in the United States at less than a fair price.

The department said it will continue to impose an antidumping duty on the companies bringing in the flowers while the International Trade Commission investigates whether the imports materially injure or threaten to injure an American industry.

The amount of the duty varies by company according to the amount below fair price that its flowers have been selling for in the United States, the department said.

The U.S. last year imported $124.6 million worth of fresh-cut flowers from Colombia, $3 million worth from Costa Rica and $1.5 million worth from Mexico.

Teamsters upset with court order

NORTH BERGEN, N.J. (UPI) — Former leaders of Teamsters Local 560 came out this weekend to demand an end to a court-ordered trusteeship in the wake of new charges that the local "was and still is controlled by the mob."

About 1,000 members of the local attended a four-hour rally Saturday sponsored by "Teamsters for Liberty." They listened to former President Michael Sciarra call for "free elections" in the local.

U.S. District Judge Harold Ackerman released transcripts of wiretaps Friday that he said confirmed his ruling in 1984 that the local had been dominated by organized crime during 25 years of leadership from former President Anthony Provenzano and his brothers. In June, Ackerman appointed former Casino Control Commissioner Joel Jacobson, a long-time union activist, to serve as trustee for 18 months.

LOCAL 560 has about 9,000 members at trucking companies and warehouses in northern New Jersey.

The tapes included conversations between former Local 560 business agents and Matthew "Mattie the Horse" Ianiello, a reputed member of the Genovese crime family. In one 1984 conversation, Ianiello allegedly told business agent Stephen Andretta, "I think Mike Sciarra should take over there."

Sciarra said he thought he had met Ianiello once at a wedding.

"I can't stop guys from mentioning my name," Sciarra said. "But I've never taken any orders and no one has attempted to give me orders."

The union's executive board appointed Sciarra president in 1984 to replace Salvatore Provenzano, who had been forced to step down following his conviction for defrauding the union dental plan.

Anthony Provenzano is now serving a 20-year federal sentence for labor racketeering.

One-third of Iowa's farmers

Farm poll gets mixed reactions

DES MOINES (UPI) — An Iowa Public Television poll shows 75 percent of Iowa farmers see their condition as the same or better than a year ago, but 73 percent expect their neighbors to give up farming this year.

About 260 farmers called in to the public television poll conducted during the 90-minute Crisis in Agriculture show this weekend.

Iowa State University economist Neil Harl said Sunday the results reflect many farmers' income positions after a year of good crop yields, continued price supports and relatively high livestock prices.

The callers were asked two questions: Is the financial picture of your farming operation better, worse or the same as a year ago? And do you have neighbors who will likely leave farming this year?

HARL, WHO APPEARED on Friday night's show, said he was puzzled by the fact that 73 percent of the callers expected their neighbors to leave the land, while only 24 percent said their own condition had declined during the past year.

But he said he came to the conclusion that, "There is a significant group of farmers for which a good year was not enough."

Sciarra said he thought he had met Ianiello once at a wedding.

"I can't stop guys from mentioning my name," Sciarra said. "But I've never taken any orders and no one has attempted to give me orders."

The union's executive board appointed Sciarra president in 1984 to replace Salvatore Provenzano, who had been forced to step down following his conviction for defrauding the union dental plan.

Anthony Provenzano is now serving a 20-year federal sentence for labor racketeering.

Harl said the public television poll is consistent with these estimates.

Of the 259 callers responding to the first question: 49 percent said their condition was better than a year ago, 24 percent said it was worse and 27 percent said it was about the same.

Hawks bomb Frieder's

By Steve Williams
Assistant Sports Editor

There was an explosion Saturday in Carver-Hawkeye Arena. Not the type of explosion which could be measured by a Richter scale but one which was evident in the hearts of anyone who is any kind of Iowa basketball fan.

The reason for all this excitement ... Coach Bill Frieder and his Michigan Wolverines were in town.

The Wolverines have been a thorn in Iowa's side for four straight seasons as they have won the last eight meetings between the two clubs.

Well, nobody wanted to lose to Michigan again, not the Iowa fans, not the Iowa media and certainly not the Iowa players, partly because of the eight straight losses but mainly because ... this was Michigan.

THERE WAS FIRE in the eyes of the Hawkeyes from the 20-minute mark of the first half to the one second mark of the second half as Iowa fought to regain a piece of pride which had eluded them for almost four years.

Final score, Iowa 95, Michigan 85. It couldn't have turned out any other way.

"I've had this game on my mind all week," Iowa's Roy Marble, who wore a tuxedo to the game, said. "And I just really wanted to beat them bad."

"This is the only team in the Big Ten we haven't beaten since I've been here," junior Jeff Moe, who received a verbal assault earlier in the year from Frieder in Ann Arbor, Mich., said. "It really meant a lot to us to finally get a win against them."

THE M & M BOYS led the Hawkeyes' assault on Saturday but did it from vastly different areas of the court.

While Marble was slashing and penetrating his way to the basket for his 21 points, Moe was carrying out a personal vendetta with the three-point line, draining five of six for a team-high 22 points.

And while the M & M combination continues to leave a sweet impression on Iowa's fans, another duo, the A & W connection, seem to be returning to old form.

B.J. Armstrong and Gerry Wright both have been intricate parts of Iowa's game plan for much of the season but have not exactly overwhelmed opponents with their scoring as of late.

Saturday, Armstrong wowed Michigan with his ball handling and outside shooting, scoring 18 points while hitting seven of his nine shots, including two of the three-point variety.

MEANWHILE, SIR Jamelot, hampered with a hand injury much of the year, seems back to form, scoring 14 points, including three baskets of the high-percentage slam dunk variety.

"This is the only team we haven't beaten this season and our team really took pride in that," Iowa Coach Tom Davis said. "And we've also got three terrific kids from Michigan (Marble, Armstrong and Bill Jones) and they probably would have stayed here all summer if we would have lost again today."

Another terrific kid from Michigan who gave the Hawkeyes fits the last time these teams met was Glen Rice, who pumped in 33 points from every part of the court.

Saturday, however, Rice was held in check somewhat, scoring only 16 points against a determined Iowa team.

BUT WHILE RICE was being cut down to size, teammate Gary Grant was picking the cotton clean for a game-high 28 points.

"Grant's composite statistics have been great all season," Frieder said. "He gives you defense and offense and he did nothing today that he hasn't been doing all season."

But Saturday, neither Grant's 28 points, nor Garde Thompson's 23 would be enough to deter Iowa from its mission as strength on the inside and touch from the outside wore down the Wolverines and gave

Illini shake Indiana from Big Ten lead

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — Ken Norman scored 24 points and Jens Kujawa scored four of his six points in the final two minutes Sunday to lead No. 13 Illinois past No. 2 Indiana, 69-67, knocking the Hoosiers out of first place in the Big Ten.

Indiana tied the game at 65 with 2:36 to play on Steve Alford's jumper, but Kujawa, a 7-footer, followed with his second hook shot of the game and sank two free throws after being fouled grabbing Rick Calloway's missed shot.

Indiana, which never led in the second half, fell to 23-4 overall and 14-3 and one-half game behind Purdue in the Big Ten.

Alford, who had 17 points, missed a baseline shot which would have tied the game with five seconds left.

KEITH SMART LED Indiana with 19 points and Dean Garrett added 17. Doug Altenberger, who sank six three-point shots, poured in 20 points for Illinois who moved to 21-7 overall and 11-5 in the Big Ten.

Norman, going one-on-one with Garrett, scored three straight field goals — the first after recovering his own shot blocked by Garrett — for a 38-33 lead before Alford countered with a three-point shot. Tony Wysinger's jumper on a break gave Illinois a 40-37 halftime lead.

Norman followed an Altenberger three-pointer with a layup and free throw on a fastbreak for a 50-40 lead with more than 17 minutes to play. Kujawa triggered the break when he grabbed Steve Eyl's missed shot and fed Tony Wysinger, who passed to Norman.

at 59 on Garrett's jumper, but Altenberger followed with a pair of three-pointers for a 65-61 lead with 5:03 left.

Down 13-6 with 13 minutes to play in the first half, Smart tied the game at 15 on a three-point field goal. The Hoosiers led 24-16 on jumpers from Smart and Garrett. Illinois came back on two jumpers from Norman and a tip-in by Lowell Hamilton and took a 32-31 lead on another three-point shot by Altenberger.

A record 16,793 attended the game, breaking the previous Assembly Hall mark of 16,768 set in 1982 when Indiana beat Illinois 54-53.

Indiana, now second in the Big Ten with one game left to play, no longer has its fate in its own hands.

The Hoosiers will host Ohio State this Saturday in an attempt to remain one game behind and will then await the outcome of the Purdue-Michigan game Sunday.

Penn State edges Hawkeyes

By Brad Zimanek
Sports Editor

Two back-to-back season high scores were not enough for the Iowa men's gymnastics team to come away from the weekend unscathed.

Friday in Carbondale, Ill., the eighth-ranked Hawkeyes upset 11th-ranked Southern Illinois, 276.15-275.20, but Sunday in the North Gym of the Field House Iowa fell to second-ranked Penn State, 276.70-276.20. The Hawkeyes' season record now stands at 9-2.

"It was a tough loss. We were in it. We stayed close like I thought we could," Iowa Coach Tom Dunn said. "We stayed in it enough to win it if the opportunity was there. And there was a little bit of an opportunity there, but we failed to take advantage of it."

THE NITTANY LIONS were in control of the meet through the first four events before the injury-riddled Hawkeyes took a stab at winning their first meet ever against Penn State.

With only five competitors on the parallel bars because of a shoulder injury to Iowa captain Tom Auer, the Hawkeyes cut a 1.60-point Penn State lead to just one point heading into the horizontal bar, the final event.

Iowa was unable to take advantage of three sub-par Penn State horizontal bar performances because the Hawkeyes produced two of their own, a 7.65 from Chris Stanicsek and an 8.60 from Lenny Lucarelli. Against Southern Illinois it was a different story for Lucarelli — he won the event with a score of 9.55 that helped secure the Iowa victory.

"IT WAS TOUGH, everybody expected to hit," Iowa gymnast Jeff Dow, who placed second in the horizontal bar with a 9.5

Iowa's Moe hits stride as NCAA tourney nears

By Robert Mann
Staff Writer

Iowa's Jeff Moe seems to be hitting his stride as the Hawkeyes go into the final week of the regular season before the NCAA tournament begins.

Against Michigan Saturday, Moe turned in what may have been his best overall performance of the year in Iowa's 95-85 win at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

Moe finished as Iowa's top scorer in that game with 22 points, shooting an amazing eight of 10 from the field. What makes it all the more surprising is that he also was able to hit five of six shots from behind the three-point line.

"Tonight my jumper was on," Moe said following the game. "I had been making shots from two inches in front of the three-point line, so I just decided to move back a step."

games have been his best in terms of defense, passing and rebounding," Davis said.

"After the Indiana game, I worked on defense and rebounding," Moe said. "I've also been working a lot harder."

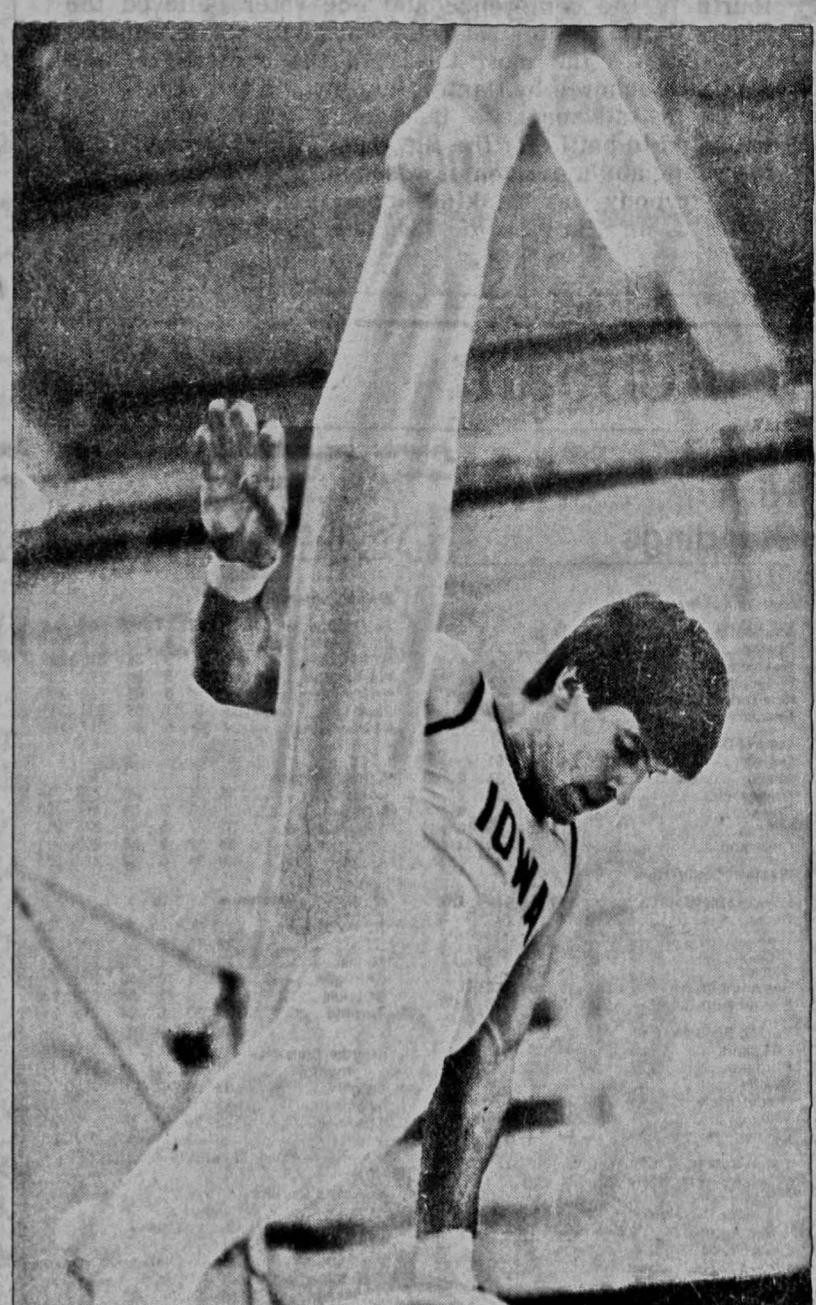

Coming into the game there was some uncertainty as to how Moe would respond after being yelled at on national television by Michigan Coach Bill Frieder after Moe grabbed Michigan's Glen Rice on a layup.

As it turns out, neither of the two wanted to get into any conversation about the previous confrontation.

"Moe's a great player. He's always been a good player" was all that Frieder wanted to say about Moe this time.

"It wasn't personal," Moe said. "Right now we just want to be playing our best basketball going into the NCAAs, and Michigan was the only team that we hadn't beaten this year. I had lost five straight times, and it was nice to finally win."

Actually, while Moe only lost five in a row, Iowa had dropped eight straight dating back to 1983.

SMU's Hitch knew of illegal payments

DALLAS (UPI) — Former Southern Methodist athletic director Bob Hitch knew since 1981 that football boosters were paying players, the Dallas Morning News reported in its Sunday editions.

The NCAA suspended SMU's football program for the 1987 season because of repeated recruiting violations — most of them dealing with cash payments made to players.

School officials are considering cancelling the 1988 season as well, since the NCAA probation will allow the school only seven road games that year and limit the Mustangs to recruiting 15 scholarship players before that season begins.

The newspaper said Hitch was involved in the decision to continue the payoffs even after SMU was placed on a three-year probation in 1985. Because violations continued after SMU was placed on probation, the NCAA made first use of its so-called "death penalty" and suspended the football program.

"Bob knew everything that was being done," a source told the newspaper.

The source also said Hitch knew in autumn of 1981 that a slush fund had been set up to pay players.

Hitch resigned Dec. 5 along with football Coach Bobby Collins. Both signed contracts when they left the school which forbid them from revealing any information about the various NCAA investigations.

North Carolina trounces Georgia Tech

ATLANTA (UPI) — Kenny Smith scored 20 points to spark No. 3 North Carolina to a 92-76 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over Georgia Tech and enable the Tar Heels to become the seventh team in league history to finish the season unbeaten in conference play.

The Tar Heels finished 14-0 and joined the 1957 and 1984 Carolina squads with perfect ACC records. North Carolina is 27-2 overall.

North Carolina took a 2-0 lead 36 seconds into the game on a layup by Smith and never trailed. The Tar Heels led by as many as 22 points in the first half in building a 50 halftime cushion.

Georgia Tech cut the lead to 10 points with 57 seconds left in the game at 86-76 on a three-point basket by Duane Ferrell but could get no closer.

Knight wins fourth state grappling title

DES MOINES (UPI) — Clinton's Dan Knight used only 28 seconds to capture his fourth consecutive state wrestling championship and lead his team to its first state title ever.

Eagle Grove was impressive en route to its third Class 2-A title and Gilbertville-Don Bosco had its fourth Class 1-A championship clinched shortly after the championship round began.

Knight, whose record improves to 124-0 as a 126-pounder, relied on his much-heralded leg speed Saturday night to pull Burlington's Andy Price to the mat. Knight had Price on his back with 20 seconds and recorded the fastest pin of the finals at 28 seconds.

Missouri catches Big Eight off guard

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — The Missouri Tigers used quick maturity and late-season victories to earn their fifth Big Eight regular-season championship in the last eight years.

Missouri was the only team in the Big Eight's top four to win twice the final week of the conference season, and those triumphs resulted in a two-game edge in the final league standings.

The Tigers improved to 21-9 overall and 11-3 in the Big Eight Saturday with an 85-77 victory over Iowa State. Kansas and Oklahoma slumped late and finished 9-5 in the conference. Kansas State ended up fourth at 8-6, followed by 7-7 Nebraska, 5-9 Iowa State, 4-10 Oklahoma State and 3-11 Colorado.

In a preseason poll, Missouri was predicted to finish fourth in the conference and one voter believed the Tigers would end up last. Oklahoma, with a veteran team and perhaps the most talent in the conference, and Kansas, anchored by Danny Manning and the experience of having advanced to last year's Final Four, were expected to battle for the Big Eight crown. Missouri was too young and unproven, it was said.

"Everybody was thinking about next year," Missouri guard Lynn Hardy said. "We are thinking about this year."

The injury-riddled Iowa men's track team took a beating at the Big Ten Indoor Championships last weekend, entering just eight events and scoring in two to finish in last place.

It was a fitting end to a disappointing year for the Hawkeyes. An already thin team was beset by key injuries, leaving a shell of a team for Coach Ted Wheeler to take to Champaign, Ill., for the conference meet.

"Ten individuals is not adequate to have great expectations unless they're dominating in their events," Wheeler said. "Going into the meet I expected to score from 15 to 26 points, so we were in that range."

ILLINOIS BREEZED to the league title with 133½ points, far ahead of Indiana's 86½ and Wisconsin's 76. The leaders were followed by Michigan (63 points), Purdue (43), Ohio State (41), Northwestern (25½), Minnesota (22), Michigan State (20) and Iowa (16).

Chris Gambol and Pat Meade were the only Hawkeyes to score. Gambol's score was expected, but Meade's was a pleasant surprise.

Meade cleared seven feet for the first time in the high jump, going 7 feet, 1¼ inches to place second behind Purdue's David Glassburn, who jumped 7-1¾.

Meade just had an exceptional day," Wheeler said. "He had never cleared seven feet and he wasn't expected to do that well, but he did a great job."

GAMBOL PLACED second in the shot put for the Hawkeyes with a throw of 58-2½ inches, just behind Illinois' Mike Bila's 58-5½ toss.

"He lost by a hair," Wheeler said of Gambol. "Chris has a ligament strain on his (throwing) elbow and he had to sit out all week. He doesn't like to make excuses, but if you're not able to work out, it's going to have some effect on your performance."

Wheeler said one sad thing about the Hawkeyes' poor team finish is that the efforts of Gambol and Meade will be overlooked.

"Pat goes in and challenges for first place when he is a longshot, but you look at 10th place as a team and you forget about that," Wheeler said. "These guys had a good day but that tends to be overshadowed."

EIGHT OTHER individuals competed but did not place for Iowa.

Scott Ventura ran the two miles in 9 minutes, 26 seconds; St. Clair Blackman ran the 880 yards in 2:00.90; Louis English finished the 1,000 meters in 2:16.32; Paul Steele ran the 440 yards in 49.50; Sean Corrigan ran the mile in 4:17.04; Scott Joens threw the shot 49-7; Gordon Finch was just one place short of scoring with a seventh place in the triple jump and the mile relay team of Curtis Chung, Steele, Blackman and Meade finished in 3:20.

Iowa is traditionally stronger outdoors than indoors and should be again this year. But Wheeler said he still faces a small group of athletes to work with this spring.

"We look forward to having a team where we get someone in each event. That's my first goal," Wheeler said. "We'll try to learn from the indoor season but not dwell on it too much."

DuBois, Hawkeyes dump Ball State

Hawkeye gymnast Jennifer DuBois scored her career-high all-around score (36.6) and hit a season team-high score to give Iowa the boost it needed to defeat Ball State 177.4-171.95 Friday in Muncie, Ind.

"This season hasn't been the best for me, and it was good to put things together," DuBois said. The junior from Elkhart, Ind., said her parents in the audience really gave her a boost.

DuBois' all-around score was just short of Wendy Hussar's record of 36.8 set in 1985.

The Hawkeyes dominated on every event with DuBois paving the way. On the vault, DuBois' 9.1 was slightly ahead of teammate Kim Podgorski's 9.05, who tied with Ball State's Jeanette Gravino for second place. Hawkeye Julie McClure placed fourth with 8.9.

PODGORSKI CAME BACK to win the uneven bars competition with a 9.25. Hussar tied Gravino for second by scoring 8.9.

DuBois dominated on the balance beam with a season high 9.5 place first. Teammates Nancy Reilly and Kim Burkard tied for second with a 9.1.

"I just relaxed and did what I know I'm capable of," DuBois said of her beam routine.

DuBois scored 9.3 to capture first in the floor exercise competition, ahead of Reilly's 9.1.

The Hawkeyes have boosted their dual meet record to 4-2 and are now 10-4 overall.

"It's great to see the team's enthusiasm. Everyone's out there to help the team," DuBois said.

Iowa will host Wisconsin next Sunday at 1 p.m. in the North Gym of the Field House.

Hawks take sixth in Big Tens

By Robert Mann
Staff Writer

While Wisconsin continued its domination of the Big Ten indoor track championships with its sixth conference title in the past seven meets, the high expectations of the Iowa women's team ended with a sixth-place finish.

Wisconsin won the indoor event at Ann Arbor, Mich., this past weekend with 105 points, outdistancing second-place Ohio State, which finished with 83. Indiana and Purdue finished in a tie for third with 75, followed by Illinois, (69), Iowa (44), Michigan State (43), Michigan (21), Northwestern (12) and Minnesota (6).

"I think this team is capable of finishing better than we did," Iowa Coach Jerry Hassard said. "I was surprised to see us in that spot. I was expecting to finish with 70 or more points."

JEANNE KRUCKEBERG, who turned in the best individual performance for the Hawkeyes, won the 880-yard

Jerry Hassard

with a time of two minutes, 11.71 seconds and finished second in the 1,000-yard run with a time of 2:28.47. Kruckeberg was edged in the 1,000 by Suzy Favor of Wisconsin, who ran the race in 2:28.26.

"Jeanne Kruckeberg came up with a tremendous effort to challenge the favorite, Suzy Favor of Wisconsin," Hassard said. "The time she ran has got to be one of the fastest times in the country this year."

Both runners topped the Big Ten record in the race with times that were also well below the NCAA qualifying mark of 2:30.15. The two also finished ahead of Kelli Bert, last year's fourth-place finisher in the NCAA indoor meet.

IN HER FIRST year of competition, freshman Becki Borg continued to turn in a strong performance in the triple jump for Iowa. Borg finished third with a jump of 39-feet, 3/4 inches.

Senta Hawkins also finished third for Iowa, turning in a 1:12.42 finish in the 500-meter run.

Even with Hawkins' win, the sprinting events were one of the areas where Iowa did not come up with enough team points.

Davera Taylor did not compete over the weekend because she was having problems with a hamstring muscle while Alycia Simpson did not get past the 400-meter preliminaries after she was cut off on a turn and injured her leg.

The 4 x 400-meter team, performing with out two of its injured sprinters, did not register any team points and finished seventh in 3:57.06.

THE TWO-MILE RELAY took third at the indoor meet with a time of 9:05.86. Janet Wodek, who ran the first leg, turned in a 2:17.9 split. Sherri Hull ran her split in 2:15.5, Kim Schneekloth in 2:15.9 and Sherri Suppelsa in 2:16.2.

Schneekloth turned in a personal best performance in the 1,500-meter with a time of 4:30.97 in that race's preliminaries. In the finals, however, she ran 4:40.47 and finished seventh.

Renee Doyle was sixth in the 3,000-meter in 9:57.45 and sixth in the 5,000-meter in 17:09.58.

Blackhawks down hapless Kings, 6-1

CHICAGO (UPI) — Murray Bannerman stopped 32 shots and Denis Savard scored his 700th career point Sunday night to help the Chicago Blackhawks to a 6-1 rout of the Los Angeles Kings.

The triumph marked the second straight night Bannerman has allowed just one goal. The loss was Los Angeles' sixth in a row on the road.

Savard gave Chicago a 3-1 lead at 8:36 of the middle period when he batted a mid-air rebound past Kings goalie Roland Melanson for his 29th goal of the season. The seventh-year center became the third Blackhawks player to reach the 700-point milestone, behind Stan Mikita and Bobby Hull.

Ten minutes later, Savard set up right wing Steve Larmer's 23rd goal of the season, a blast from the slot, for his 701st career point.

Curt Fraser added his 23rd of the season and Wayne Presley his 25th early in the third period to cap the scoring.

Chicago had taken a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals less than three minutes apart by rookie center Mike Stapleton.

and right wing Rich Preston. Stapleton converted a short rebound at 10:39 for his third goal of the season, then Preston deflected Gary Nylund's shot from the left boards for his sixth.

Bernie Nicholls cut the margin to 2-1 on a power play at 16:03, his 23rd goal of the season.

Minnesota 5, Philadelphia 4

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Dino Ciccarelli and Neal Broten each recorded a goal and an assist Sunday night to lead the Minnesota North Stars to their second straight victory, 5-4 over the Philadelphia Flyers.

Broten's empty-net goal at 19:44 of the third period turned out to be the game-winner when the Flyers' Dave Poulin scored at 19:59. Minnesota goalie Kari Takko made 18 saves in the third period and 40 overall.

'Of Mice and Men' appeals with comfortable familiarity

By Hoyt Olsen
Staff Writer

WITH most of the famous fictional characters of my acquaintance, I can remember the original introduction. Good old Mom read me Tom Sawyer the summer before third grade. Cyrano de Bergerac and his prodigious proboscis, represented by Jose Ferrer, staid a glob of putty, all but overwhelmed the family's black-and-white television when I was sevenish.

Achilles and Hector also met us then, via the medium of the old Classics Illustrated comic book series. Bilbo Baggins and the Count of Monte Cristo were junior high friends; Yossarian and Hamlet waited until high school.

Only a few characters are so imbedded in either the collective unconscious or the public domain that we become aware of their existence through osmosis. Who between eight and 108 cannot identify Romeo and Juliet? And who can trace the flowering of that identification to its roots?

SO IT IS with George, Lennie and their elusive rabbits.

Perhaps the earliest contact was with the Bugs Bunny cartoons that have seemingly done Lennie parodies ever since Steinbeck unveiled the character 50 years ago: "Tell me about the rabbits, George" and "I've done a verrry bad thing" have echoed in millions of young ears via the wascally wabbit.

So we knew Lennie, you and I, even before Of Mice and Men

was assigned by the elderishly young Mrs. AdamsBurton-HallSmith, our 10th grade English teacher who talked so much about "relevance," because it was a great novel and only 118 pages in paperback that the school could afford and we might actually find time to read in study hall or at the worthless football pep rally the afternoon before our SaxonsVikingsTroyans-Warriors got the bejesus whumped out of them again by the Our Lady of No Mercy Choirboys.

AND SO I have a theory about the play Of Mice and Men, which I am ostensibly reviewing. It is, in most respects, a fairly unassuming play. The characters are simple, the action straightforward, the dialogue realistic. Its emotional appeal would seem very contrived, were we not being too emotional to notice: "Please, don't shoot the old dog!"; "No, Lennie, don't touch Curley's wife!"

The play's very simplicity and lack of assumption combine with our shared foreknowledge of its conclusion to create an evening that transcends the ordinary limits of theater. There is no ambiguity to curb our empathy, nor any point of departure likely to make one viewer's response substantially different from her neighbor's. A quality of fatality hangs over every anticipated word and gesture.

THE BITTER TEARS OF PETRA VON KANT
One critic called this film Fassbinder's version of Death in Venice. Molly Haskell called it "a tragicomic love story disguised as a lesbian slumber party in high camp drag." In either case, it's a surprisingly moving melodramatic tale of the shifting power relationship between a successful fashion designer (Margit Carstensen), her secretary (Irm Hermann), and a sultry model (Hanna Schygulla). The narrative unfolds in an apartment where the women compete for viewer attention with murals of fleshy nudes and an array of ghastly mannequins. With soundtrack accompaniment from Verdi and The Platters.
