Reactor worker loses case

CEDAR RAPIDS (UPI) - A nuclear power plant employee who was fired after opening a protection door open has lost his appeal for reinstatement, partly because of the accidents at Three Mile Island and Chernobyl, a federal judge said.

Federal Judge David Hansen ruled Friday the Iowa Electric Light & Power Co., major owner of the state's only nuclear power plant, was justified in firing Donald Schott in August 1984. Hansen determined Schott, a 10-year worker at the Duane Arnold Energy Center, acted deliberately and intentionally when he opened the door designed to minimize the risk of contamination.

The judge said Schott does not respect the safety implications of his actions and cannot be trusted to work in such an environment.

The judge said his decision was based partly on the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's move toward heavier safety violation penalties since Three Mile Island and Chernobyl, the most publicized nuclear accidents in the United States and Soviet Union, respectively.

Schott had argued he should be reinstated because Iowa Electric failed to train him properly for his job at the plant near Palo.

The federal decision reversed an earlier opinion by an arbitrator, who was hired to settle the dispute between Iowa Electric and Local 204 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

The arbitrator did conclude that company failed to provide sufficient training concerning safety standards. The arbitrator also said Schott thought the system was still secured by other locked doors and none of his supervisors noted a breach of security.
Stress can cause in-class snoozing

By Cynthia Hadish

ADJUTANT OF STUDENTS, a 45-year-old long-time UI faculty, says that one of the biggest problems facing students today is tiredness.

"We have a problem," she said. "Students
come to class tired, and it's a real problem.
I'm not sure if it's because of their schedules,
work, or something else, but we need to do something about it."

SLEEP TROUBLES

The problem is so severe that students often come to class sleepy and do not wake up until the end of the class.

"It's like they're not even there," she said. "They don't listen to the professor or the material they're being taught."

SOLUTIONS

She suggests that students should get more sleep, exercise, and eat healthy.

"If you don't get enough sleep," she said, "you won't be able to function effectively."

DES MOINES — More than 12,000 Iowa farmers would set aside at least some of their farm land over the next 10 years, under bids given preliminary approval by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Under the program, the federal government would pay farmers an average of $11 an acre annually to set aside the land.

ATLANTA — Vice President Dan Quayle has become a target of his own, with Iowa Gov. Tom Vilsack and former Sen. Haitom, D-Iowa, taking aim at his record on federal spending. The two candidates, both of whom have strong support in Iowa, have accused Quayle of being too liberal in his fiscal policies.

The Iowa Democratic Party released a new ad attacking Quayle on the issue of deficit spending. The ad, which features a picture of Quayle with a dollar sign over his head, shows the candidate with the words "Quayle: high deficit, high taxes" superimposed on the image.

"Quayle has a long history of voting for tax increases," Vilsack said in a statement. "He's putting the needs of Wall Street ahead of the needs of Iowa families and workers."

Vilsack also criticized Quayle for his support of the Hyde Amendment, which restricts federal funding for abortion. "Quayle has been a copilot of this Amendment," Vilsack said. "He's voting for something that's harmful to families in Iowa and across the country.

In response, Quayle's campaign released a statement saying that the candidate has "always been a strong supporter of prudent fiscal policies."

"We need to move Iowa forward and keep our economy healthy," Quayle said. "That means being responsible with our money and not pandering to special interest groups."

Lenten theme punctuates organist's guest recital

By John Siverson

T HE SEASON OF Lent, a time of reflection and repentance for Christians, often creates an opportunity for musical reflection. Many churches and institutions are decorated and filled with dark images in preparation for the Holy Week. The theme of the Lenten season is often suggested by the music played during this period, which ranges from sacred to secular. Unnerving mystery-thriller lies beneath 'Heart's' hype

By Jeff Rynott

N OTHING can prepare you for the end of Angel Heart, a shameless, ambiguous, innuendo-laden horror tale that is unnerving, gory and always visually striking.

Angel Heart, based on the 1958 novel by William

Faulkner, is a detective story that explores the mind of a body double for Elvis Presley. The plot follows a New York detective who is hired by the singer to find someone who claims to be a relative. The story delves into the dark world of voodoo and Satanic rituals. The director, Robert Altman, has said that the film

was inspired by the murder of the New Orleans

Green family, who were murdered and sacrificed

as part of a voodoo ritual.

The film's climax is a chilling scene in which

Harry Angel (Robert de Niro) is confronted by the voodoo queen, Strega (Mickey Rourke), who gives him a chilling prophecy.

Altman's visual style is a major strength of Angel Heart. The film is shot in black and white, with a low-key, atmospheric feel. The use of light and shadow is striking, and the film's scary moments are often underscored by eerie

music.

One of the film's most memorable scenes is the sex scene involving Rourke and Bonet. The scene is graphic and violent, and it is a major reason why the film was censored and cut before its release.

Angel Heart is a very eerie and disturbing

horror tale involving voodoo and Satanic rituals. It is a film that is not for the faint of heart, but it is a masterpiece of the horror genre.
