County budget OK'd, farmers blast tax hike

By James Cahoy
Staff Writer

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors voted unanimously Tuesday to accept the proposed fiscal 1988 budget despite strong objections by the Johnson County Rural Taxpayers Association.

The $18.5 million budget calls for a 12 percent increase in rural property taxes, an increase that members of the rural taxpayers group say is too high.

"The board just doesn't seem to know what to do about getting the budget under control," Johnson County Rural Taxpayers Association President Harry Seelman said. "There is no way a lot of farmers around here are going to be able to afford this increase."

SEELMAN SAID THE taxpayers association will urge its members to appeal their taxes to the Johnson County Assessor's Office or to court to avoid paying the increase.

"That's the next step we are going to propose," Seelman said. "We are also going to try to convince the supervisors to cut the budget. The more pressure they put on farmers by increasing taxes, the more pressure we'll be able to put on them to take action."

But Supervisors Chairwoman Betty Ockenfels said there was simply no place budget cuts could be made that would help the farmers.

"The only thing we could have cut from is the secondary road system, and the farmers didn't want us to cut that because it benefits them," Ockenfels said. "Anything else that we could have cut from would have had such a small impact on property taxes that the benefit to the farmers would have been almost nonexistent."

OCKENFELS SAID THIS year's budget has been the most controversial during her tenure on the board.

"This one probably attracted more interest from the public," Ockenfels said, referring to Friday's budget hearing when more than 200 people showed up. "But next year's budget could be just as difficult with the continued devaluation of property. We'll just have to see."

Supervisor Harold Donnelly said he was satisfied with the budget despite the tax increase.

"We spent almost two months on this budget trying to figure out the proper way to do it," Donnelly said. "I think the budget is fair. I would certainly have not cut any human service programs, as some people wanted to."

BUT JOHNSON COUNTY Rural Taxpayers Association member Bob Arn said he thought further budget cuts could have been made.

"They could have made reductions, and they didn't," Arn said. "The conservation board budget is especially bloated, and I think there are other budgets that could have been cut as well."

Poindexter given limited immunity

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional investigators and the prosecutor in the Iran-Contra affair reached agreement Tuesday on granting limited immunity from prosecution to two key figures in the scandal — former national security adviser John Poindexter and Lt. Col. Oliver North.

The agreement "basically satisfies" a request by special prosecutor Lawrence Walsh that immunity be delayed for 90 days to allow him more time to build evidence for possible criminal prosecution of Poindexter and North, said a spokesman for the House select panel.

Bob Havel, the House committee spokesman, said the immunity agreement for Poindexter could provide for limited or "use" immunity to be granted before the 90 days request by Walsh was up, with public testimony delayed until that time period has expired. A Senate source said North is "part of the package."

HAVEL SAID THE committees will decide Wednesday on a timetable for voting on limited immunity for North, but said no final action on the lieutenant colonel would be taken within the 90-day delay period asked by Walsh.

"Poindexter is on a faster track," the spokesman said. The House has cautioned against moving too fast on immunity, while senators have balked at waiting Walsh's requested three months.

A grant of immunity, which would prohibit using testimony from North or Poindexter against them in a criminal proceeding, requires a two-thirds vote of the committees.

Congressional aides said the select committees may begin hearings as early as the beginning of May, but will not hear from Poindexter or North until mid-June.

Lawyers for both panels met with the special prosecutor's office for 90 minutes Tuesday afternoon to work out the deal to give Walsh time to gather evidence for a criminal case while giving the panels a chance to hear Poindexter's testimony under a pledge of immunity from prosecution.

IN ANOTHER development, sources said the House and Senate panels planned to vote on granting immunity to a number of minor witnesses Wednesday, including Robert Owen and Richard Gadd, two private individuals who may have been involved in private supply efforts to the Contras.

Owen, who has taken the Fifth Amendment and refused to testify before congressional committees investigating the Iran-Contra scandal in the past, was North's liaison to the Contras and a contractor with the State Department, which had a humanitarian aid contract.

GADD HAS BEEN accused in a lawsuit filed in federal court in Miami of supplying guns, ammunition and "other lethal" equipment to the Contras. His home telephone number and the number of a company he operated were found in a "safe house" in El Salvador believed to have been used by the private Contra aid network.

In another development, the Senate panel investigating the scandal planned Wednesday to consider holding another major figure — retired Maj. Gen. Richard Secord — in contempt for refusing to give investigators access to Swiss bank accounts he controls, Senate sources said.

Secord, said to have played a pivotal role in the covert shipment of arms to both Iran and the Nicaraguan rebels, could be jailed indefinitely if the full Senate approves a contempt citation against him. So far, he has refused to sign documents giving investigators access to the bank accounts.

SENATE INVESTIGATORS believe Poindexter's testimony is significant because of reports that he knows best what President Ronald Reagan was told of the diversion of funds from the Iran arms sales to the Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

To date, the committees have voted to grant immunity to four witnesses, but none approach the importance of North or Poindexter in helping unravel the worst scandal of the Reagan presidency.

"What we are trying to do is look at the individuals who will give us the most information and Poindexter is one of them," said Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, a member of the select committee.

Defense funding

An Israeli citizens' group mans a donations table in Jerusalem to help Jonathon Pollard, an American convicted of giving U.S. secrets to Israel. Although Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir denied Tuesday he had sanctioned Pollard's spying, state radio said the government will fund Pollard's legal defense.

UI students lobby legislators for increased financial aid

By Monica Selgel
University Editor

President Ronald Reagan's proposed 1988 fiscal year budget was attacked this weekend as more than 400 students from across the country gathered in Washington, D.C., for a legislative conference and national student lobby day, an event organizer said Tuesday.

Seventeen UI students, representing the UI Collegiate Association Council, the UI Liberal Arts Student Association and the UI chapter of United Students of Iowa, participated in the event, sponsored annually by the United States Student Association.

USSA Legislative Director Mary Preston said the purpose of the conference was to give students an opportunity to lobby for increased federal financial aid appropriations.

"WE'RE WORKING to increase accessibility to higher education — something the Reagan administration doesn't seem too concerned about," Preston said.

USI campus director Gregg Shoultz said members of the Iowa congressional delegation were "very responsive" to student lobbyists from Iowa.

"We were able to meet with several of our congressmen and aides of some of the others and everyone seemed very supportive of what we're trying to do," he said.

Shoultz said while the congressmen with whom he spoke were optimistic that at least as much money as in past years will be appropriated for financial aid, no one seemed confident of any increases in those appropriations.

"Everybody was pretty much in agreement that times are tough all over," he said. "But we addressed ways to lower other appropriations in Re-gan's budget to at least even things out.

SEN. TOM HARKIN, D-Iowa, said he shares the concerns pointed out to him by the student lobbyists.

"This year, college student assistance has come under severe attack by the Reagan administration," Harkin said. "I am concerned, as are the students who visited with me, about the direction this administration has outlined for education in the proposed budget."

Harkin said Congress, for the most part, is supportive of higher education and will work for further student aid appropriations.

"A few billion dollars for education, while expensive, is surely a better investment of our tax dollars than the trillion dollars the Reagan administration hopes to spend on the Star Wars program over the next 25 years," he said.

Deaver fails in bid to block indictment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal appeals court turned aside Michael Deaver's challenge to the independent counsel law Tuesday, clearing the way for the former White House aide's indictment on perjury charges.

Deaver, a long-time confidant of President Ronald Reagan who was deputy White House chief of staff, has challenged the constitutionality of the 1978 law that allowed independent counsel Whitney North Seymour to be appointed to investigate his private lobbying activities since 1985.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, expressing "no opinion on the merits" of Deaver's constitutional claims, declined to extend an order blocking Seymour's probe of Deaver's lobbying activities.

Deaver promptly appealed to the Supreme Court, telling Chief Justice William Rehnquist he would suffer

"irreparable injury" unless Seymour is blocked from seeking an indictment.

"UNLESS STAYED by this court, Mr. Seymour will obtain an indictment against Mr. Deaver at the first available opportunity despite his patent lack of authority to do so," his attorneys said.

A spokeswoman gave no indication on when Rehnquist may act.

Earlier, the appeals panel ruled that Deaver's "case constitutes an impermissible preemptive civil challenge to a criminal proceeding," siding with Seymour's contention the challenge was premature because Deaver had yet to be charged with criminal wrongdoing.

The appeals court panel of three judges ordered that Deaver's request for an emergency stay be denied.

Protesters want gun to protect shanty

Supporters of an anti-apartheid shanty on the University of Texas campus have submitted a letter to university officials requesting permission to use weapons to defend their symbolic structure from future attacks.

Two members of a Democracy in Academia group were directly responsible for the letter asking permission to carry a pistol because campus police have not been successful in defending the shanty, which has suffered 12 attacks.

University officials said they do not have the power to authorize the request, and, even if they did have such power, they would not allow it.

A campus police representative said the possession of firearms by students on campus would be a violation of the Texas Education Code. Texas law also prohibits anyone who is not a peace officer from carrying a handgun.

The letter has also drawn response from petitioners against the shanty, particularly protesting the use of guns to express a desire of a non-violent end to apartheid in South Africa.

Grad sues after measles shot reaction

Arizona State University and the Arizona Board of Regents are named in a medical malpractice lawsuit filed by an Arizona State graduate who said he developed a reaction to a measles shot he received on campus in 1985.

Gary D. Steiner said he was hospitalized with cellulitis, a pus-filled inflammation of soft, loose tissue beneath the skin, for a week after receiving a measles/rubella vaccination in March of 1985.

"I looked like Popeye," Steiner said, "my arm doubled in size."

The university began requiring measles/rubella immunizations for all students in the fall of 1985. If students did not comply, they were not allowed to preregister for spring classes.

Steiner said his reaction included a temperature of 105 degrees which forced him to miss work and classes during the illness.

He said it took him two years to file the suit because the state and county health officials could not decide who was responsible for the immunization.

Nude Olympians receive punishments

Nineteen participants in a Nude Olympics marathon race at Purdue University received final disciplinary actions consisting of punishment ranging from probated suspension to dismissal of charges.

Fourteen of the 19 students lived in residence halls. Among them, 11 were placed on probation, one on probated suspension and two received dismissals due to insufficient proof of participation.

Probated suspension means that the incident was serious enough to warrant suspension, but that suspension was waived and the individual will be allowed to remain in school unless another violation occurs. The individual receiving this discipline misrepresented his identity when he was apprehended the evening of the nude race.

Of the remaining participants, three lived off campus and two lived in fraternity houses. All five non-residence hall individuals received probation.

All 19 participants were male, including 11 freshmen, four sophomores and four seniors.

Stanford faculty disagree with Dr. Ruth

Alice Supton, assistant dean of student affairs at Stanford University in California, is challenging Ruth Westheimer, sex guru of the 1980s, about her views on foreplay.

Supton said Westheimer tells students it is not fair to say no to sexual intercourse after sexual foreplay.

Supton contends both partners have the moral right to say "sorry, no go" up until sexual intercourse.

"Dr. Ruth doesn't think men need to take a woman's refusal seriously if they are feeling passionate," Supton said.

Mary Goldstein, a faculty member at Stanford Medical Center also disagrees with Westheimer's view.

"In my experience," Goldstein said, "many young college women exploring sexual relations will be in a situation of heavy petting."

Goldstein added that these women may have no intention of having intercourse.

Board tables motion to market property

By James Cahoy
Staff Writer

The Iowa City School Board voted 5-2 Tuesday to table a motion to sell Iowa City School District property on at Kirkwood and Dodge streets.

The motion was offered by board member Lynne Cannon in response to a report by a school district committee that advised selling the property, which is currently used as a storage facility.

"The building is not architecturally and historically significant," Cannon said. "The committee feels that money spent to improve the building could be better used on other facilities in the district."

Cannon said the committee recommended selling the building for several other reasons besides its lack of historical value.

"THE BUILDING IS too small for programs identified as needing space," Cannon said. "The costs to minimally improve the building are too great, and the building is not handicapped accessible."

Iowa City Schools Administrative Service Director Jerry Palmer said he agreed with the committee report.

"The committee report takes into account district needs,"

Palmer said. "This particular building, the district does not need."

But board member Ellen Widiss argued that the bill should be tabled because of another committee's earlier findings.

"The earlier committee did not recommend selling the building," Widiss said. "We should table this until we can contact members of the first committee and get their input."

BOARD MEMBER Kathy Penningroth agreed, and said she was not sure the building should be sold.

"The building does not have any actual historical value, but it does have historical value in terms of the memories some people have for it," Penningroth said.

But board member Craig Gjerde said that the original committee had not recommended either to keep the building or to sell it.

"The committee's recommendation was basically neutral," Gjerde said. "I don't think they could find a reason to keep the building."

The board must bring the issue up again before April 15 in order to get it placed on the September ballot and get voter approval for the sale.

Ambulance chief resigns from post

By James Cahoy
Staff Writer

Johnson County Ambulance Director Ray Jones, credited with stabilizing the formerly controversial Johnson County Ambulance Service, has announced his resignation effective April 3.

Jones, who has been director for one and a half years, the longest term of any Johnson County ambulance director in the past five years, is leaving to go back to school full time and pursue a degree in nursing.

Jones said he views his term as ambulance director, which came after the ambulance service had four directors within a four-year period, as positive.

"I think the things we have been implemented since I've been here have improved our operation greatly," Jones said. "If you look at our statistics, they have really improved over the past year and a half, especially as far as lives saved, which is obviously the most important statistic."

JONES TOOK OVER the ambulance service in October 1985 from Interim Director Karen Edwards. Edwards was appointed in November 1984 in the wake of Director Calvin Baker's dismissal after an investigation by the Johnson County Board of Supervisors revealed grounds for his termination.

"There was a lot of controversy in the department when I was hired," Jones said. "We made a lot of changes because of the problems they had in the department previously. That made it a very trying situation at first, but gradually things improved."

Jones said he has recommended David Cole, a seven-year veteran of the ambulance service, to replace him as director. Jones said the new ambulance director will have to pursue the initiative started by the board last month to try to base the ambulance service at either UI Hospitals or Mercy Hospital.

"I THINK THAT'S a big project which needs to be worked on," Jones said. "If we could base the ambulance service at one of the hospitals, that would be a very positive development."

A man who was arrested on several charges of trying to cash stolen checks worth more than $950 in local grocery stores made his initial appearance Tuesday in Johnson County District Court.

Martin Allen Carter, 21, Coralville, was charged with first-degree false use of a financial instrument after the incidents which occurred since February.

Court records state Carter attempted to cash a check valued at $245 Monday that was stolen from Culligan Water Conditioning Inc., 500 S. Gilbert St., at the Eagle Discount Supermarket in Coralville.

Carter also attempted to cash a stolen check on March 12 at the Eagle Discount Supermarket, 1101 S. Riverside Drive.

Court records state Carter attempted to cash a check worth $265 from another man's checking account written out to himself, but escaped while an employee was verifying the check.

Carter also attempted to cash two stolen checks worth $260 and $200 at two Iowa City grocery stores. Court records state Carter attempted to cash the checks he made out to himself on Feb. 9 at Randall's Food store at Sycamore Mall and on Feb. 11 at Hy-Vee Food store, 501 Hollywood Blvd.

Carter was also charged with second-degree theft after failing to return a VCR and a video cassette worth $590 he rented on Feb. 8 from That's Rentertainment in Coralville.

Court records state the VCR and video cassette were found in a Coralville motel room that was rented in Carter's name.

Carter was being held Tuesday in lieu of a $10,000 bond at Johnson County Jail. His preliminary hearing is scheduled for March 27.

Negative campaigns blamed for low turnout

By Monica Seigel
University Editor

Negative campaigning by UI Student Senate candidates may be manifesting itself in low voter turnout at the polls, senate election board Chairman Jerry Miller said Tuesday.

Miller said only about 760 students voted Tuesday — the first day of voting. Usually about 1,500 students vote on the first day of senate elections, he said.

Miller talked to other people on the board and my personal feeling and our guess is that the low turnout is a result of the negative campaigning that was done this year," Miller said. "We've never had a campaign quite like this and I think people are really tired of it."

MILLER ADDED last-minute campaign literature distribution has not been as much of a problem as in past years.

"There weren't a lot of fliers lying around the floor of the Union like there usually are," he said. "The indication as I see it is that people aren't taking the stuff that's being passed out or they're throwing it out right away. People just don't seem to care."

Student Activities Director Kevin Taylor agreed with

Miller that the negative campaigning is taking its toll, but also said the low number of voters might be attributed to the fact that voter turnout traditionally is greater the second day of elections.

Taylor noted the total number of UI student voters in the past has been comparable to the number of student voters at other universities similar in size.

"The national average is 14-16 percent and in previous years we've at least matched that," he said. "With this low turnout it doesn't look like we're going to quite make that."

MILLER SAID usually between 4,000 and 5,000 students vote in the regular election. In a special one-day election held last October to fill vacant student senate seats, 800 students voted.

"I'm hoping things will pick up a little by tomorrow," Miller said. "It will be very unfortunate if they don't."

All UI students are eligible to vote in the elections. Pollworkers at the Union said they remained "fairly busy" Tuesday, but were never "overwhelmed" with voters.

"It's been very peaceful," pollworker Staci Rhine said. "We haven't had any problems at all."

Polls will be open again today from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the following locations: the Union's Landmark Lobby, the Chemistry-Botany Building, Phillips Hall, the Field House, Bowen Science Building, Schaeffer Hall, the English-Philosophy Building and the Engineering Building.

Iowa lottery funds assist local high-risk businesses

By Carol Monaghan
Staff Writer

Iowa lottery funds are helping the state take a risk on Iowa City entrepreneurs.

As part of a program to diversify Iowa's economy and create more jobs in the state, lottery proceeds help finance high-risk, venture capital businesses that private lending institutes have refused to aid. So far, three Iowa City businesses have benefitted from the program.

"The program aids risky deals conventional sources refused to invest in," Jennifer Wilson, high technological manager of the Iowa Bureau of Innovation and Technology, said.

The Iowa Community Economic Betterment Account, which began in spring 1986, issues long-term, low-interest loans to risk capital ventures. The Iowa Economic Development Corporation, a division of the Iowa Department of Economic Development since 1983, invests funds into such corporations for a percentage of the product's profits.

"THE STATE COLLECTS royalties on the products and takes an investment interest in the corporation," Wilson said. Iowa collects, in royalties, three times the amount originally invested, Wilson said.

Pat Cain, Iowa City Economic Development Coordinator, said three new businesses in Iowa City are currently receiving state funds. Two of the businesses used UI technology and facilities to get their start.

"Iowa City is pretty near a technical paradise, so close to the university and with the Technical Innovation Center," Andre Peery, general manager of A-JEM Company Inc., said. "Entrepreneurs can find a niche and be given a chance to search for markets for their products."

A-JEM, a company formed to manufacture and design electronic devices for the telecommunications industry in 1985, had an application approved by the Iowa City Council last week to fund the expansion of the company's production.

A-JEM, WHICH IS HOUSED in the UI Technical Innovation Center at the UI Oakdale Campus, produces Inter-link, a device that allows connection of electronic key telephone systems to office communication equipment, as its major product.

Peery said the company plans to expand its production capabilities within the next six to eight months, a move that will require an estimated 50 new employees.

CEBA recipients make a commitment to expand their business in the city that sponsored their application.

"It's a benefit to Iowa City to have the companies locate here," Cain said.

WORLDVIEW Inc. president Dodge Fielding said without the assistance of the state and the UI, his corporation would be no better off than the idea that inspired it 16 months ago.

"I tell you flat out, without the program in Iowa, WORLDVIEW would not exist," Fielding said.

WORLDVIEW, 150 E. Court St., has received $100,000 from the Iowa Product Development Corporation and a $100,000 long-term loan from CEBA.

WORLDVIEW, which employs eight full-time employees and 16 part-time translators, takes Soviet satellite broadcasts, and translates the broadcasts to English. The company then sells English language Soviet newscasts and transcripts of the newscasts to U.S. government agencies, colleges and universities, and broadcast and print media, Fielding said.

In addition, the corporation contracts UI video equipment and translators to produce its daily product. In return, the UI gets 5 percent of WORLDVIEW's gross profits, and the payment of the services it utilizes.

Failed leaders?

In all times, but particularly in times of crisis, "conventional wisdoms" are given cherished and exalted positions in society. For six years the conventional wisdom was that President Ronald Reagan was a great leader. That assessment was repeated so often that meaning and thought were lost and the words were repeated as a kind of ritual.

In fact, of course, it takes no leadership skill at all to get people to listen to compliments, and take the easy path to a place they wanted to go. Reagan spent six years telling people to feel good, to feel proud, but he never asked them to do anything hard.

He told them they could feel in control of the world by spending more on the military, but then he let them borrow the money so that their children or grandchildren would have to pay the bills. And surely no one believes that selling the American people on a tax cut took leadership.

What has Reagan led the American people to that they resisted, that they did not want to do but knew they should, that required sacrifice not greater ease? Nothing. All the sacrifice was put on the helpless. He led the rest where they wished to go. Leadership is seeing what must be done and persuading others to do it, regardless of its popularity. Reagan was a piper, not a leader.

And now that his presidency is in danger of becoming a failure, another conventional wisdom has emerged. This one has two parts — that America has had a succession of failed presidents and that we cannot afford another one so Reagan must be propped up.

In fact, the problem has more often been a failed electorate. John Kennedy may have been wrong on occasions, but the deal between a majority of the public and the president was clear and understood. Lyndon Johnson was not a failure either. The Great Society programs were popular with most of the people, and they were just and fair. The war in Vietnam was wrong, and the president and the public were wrong to support it — but both did. If there was a failure it was a mutual one and it tarnished, but did not destroy, other successes.

Richard Nixon was corrupt, but his record was one of corruption from virtually his first day in office in the House of Representatives. The public choose him anyway and so failed in their responsibilities. Gerald Ford did not win election, but his was not a failed presidency. He was a decent man who restored some sense of honor to the country.

Jimmy Carter had a number of important successes, including the Camp David peace accords and the energy policy which eventually led to lower oil prices and thus to lowered inflation. The public failed to follow, Carter did not fail to lead.

The electorate failed when it chose Reagan because he promised them the impossible and they bought it. The truth is, there is no such thing as a failed president, only a failed electorate. The public fails when it does not inform itself and chooses men who are not competent for their job. The public fails when it succumbs to comfortable lies instead of insisting on the hard truth. The public fails when it elects men to make them feel good instead of men who ask them to do good.

Growing division

The Vatican's recent announcement condemning all forms of conception except that achieved in "the conjugal act" is yet another step in enlarging the chasm that is growing between the Catholic laity and the church hierarchy. The Vatican's previous banning of abortion and contraception drove many Catholics away from following the accepted practices of the church and this latest policy will likely further distance them from the church.

Approximately one in every six couples is infertile, according to national health figures. Most of these couples are discovering that adopting a child is not an easy task. Adoption can take many years of patient waiting, especially for couples who want a healthy, caucasian infant. In addition, the high cost of adoption makes this option nearly impossible for many.

The difficulty of adopting is not the only deterrent from this option. Some couples would simply rather have their own biological child if at all possible.

"The one conceived must be the fruit of his parents' love", the new Vatican document stated. Infertile parents who want children desperately enough go to great lengths to seek out technology which gives them the hope of having their own biological baby. Doctors who are able to provide these services are not yet in great supply and the prospective parents must be willing to bear tremendous costs. It often takes many attempts before conception is successful. One must question the Vatican's position that a child of these labors is not the fruit of his parent's love.

The Vatican's announcement, although quick to condemn options available to infertile couples, was not so quick to offer alternatives. The Catholic church must face the fact that technology is a reality of our society. By not accepting this fact, they are pushing the Catholic laity to renounce the teachings of their church.

Choreography's other sides

SUPPOSE YOU were the artistic director of a dance company in Israel, China or the Netherlands and you wanted to set a new choreographic work for your company. Well, first you'd need to contact a choreographer and possibly a composer too — but who's doing what and where does one turn to find out? The UI Dance Program is in a unique position to service this need, thereby reaping the harvest of creative potential both here and abroad.

A key component in the realization of this possibility could be the recently developed 7 States Choreography Competition. The competition has been open to anyone within the range of seven Midwestern states, extending an invitation to amateur, academic and professional choreographers alike.

The results of this competition will be announced on March 20 and the winning choreography will be performed by the UI Dance Company's Dance Gala '87. Although the initial selection of competition entries will be made at a closed showing, one might consider the future advantage of having an open preview for a specific audience — such as dance company directors and others with special interest in viewing new choreographic works.

CHOREOGRAPHY COULD be a means of exchange on the world trade market — it could be one alternative to agriculture for helping Iowa's struggling economy. Choreography has become a strong natural resource in Iowa and the state could develop its potential.

UI professor of Urban and Regional Planning John Fuller recently completed a study entitled "The Economic Impact of the Arts in Iowa." His findings show that in spite of limited state appropriations the arts have brought a significant profit to Iowa. In reference to choreography Fuller commented it "can be an export industry, can bring revenues..."

To test the theory, I made a random sampling one afternoon by contacting four potential markets for new choreography: American Ballet Theatre, North Carolina School for the Arts, Interlochen Arts Academy and San Francisco Ballet. Three of the four expressed interest in seeing new choreographic works from regional Midwestern choreographers.

No one is saying that dances are going to make the state suddenly prosperous, but they can lift people's spirits, create public awareness and bring about a freshness of ideas — which in turn gives people courage to go on, to try the untried options which give way to prosperity.

WHAT WOULD HELP tremendously would be the establishment of a strong versatile resident dance company in Iowa City. A company capable of working in conjunction with a variety of choreographers and composers. If given support, the UI's current touring ensemble "Dancers To Go" could be the forerunner of such a company; a company moving in harmony with the UI and yet independent from it. This would strengthen the UI Dance Program as a dynamic link with the outside world.

The company could operate at that crossroads between the amateur and professional worlds, between regional and international scenes — a place of first work showings. Establishing such a company would bring enrichment to the community, revenues to the state and a deeper purpose of influence abroad.

Considering the "superpower" relations, it is wise to regard the fact that for many years the only door of cultural exchange which the Soviet Union opened to the United States was the door of dance.

In a phone interview, New York Times art critic John Ruffalo commented that people in the Soviet Union are "dying for signs of life from the outside." Ruffalo encouraged dance as a means of sharing this life. Indeed, he was sure there would be people in the Soviet Union interested in seeing contemporary dance works from regional Midwestern choreographers.

THIS COULD BE a little step toward world peace — that is, a step toward establishing a channel of free communication where exchange can take place in a form of grace unhindered by political boundaries.

If the nuclear arms reduction talks in Geneva were prefaced by a performance of international choreography, the effect could be to clarify the issues being debated — at least to move all hearts in unison. This is the true power of dance. When the hearts of a people are moved as one, a great mysterious bonding takes place and we realize with our many differences we are all human with the same dreams, joys and sorrows.

Dance breaks through language barriers. As Plato once said: "Dancing is the art that most moves men's souls."

So now at a troubled time of history it is important to hear what dance has to say. An incredible amount of new choreography is being produced from numerous sources — but often voices of freshness and truth spring from the relatively obscure regional choreographers, accustomed to working with limited budgets and close to the hearts of the people. Now it's time to shed a light on these works — to reap the harvest at home and have something to share abroad.

Bus survey needs public input

By Bruce Japsen

Although cuts to Iowa City's transit system appear inevitable, local residents and UI students may have a say about where the Iowa City Council's axe to the transit system eventually falls.

But those who value their public transit better hop on the bus in the next two days if they expect their voice to be heard.

Riders on Iowa City Transit buses will be asked to fill out a one-page survey today and Thursday so the Iowa City

From the Metro Desk

Transit department can decide where to ease the severe cuts made last week by the council.

Last week, the Iowa City Council voted a harsh $175,000 blow to the city's bus system. The council's decision will include the whopping reduction in funds, beginning in June.

CUTBACKS INCLUDE reducing midday service from half-hour to hourly service, ending Saturday service at 7:30 p.m. instead of 10 p.m. and combining routes, all designed to combat the $150,000 deficit the bus system faces. And fare increases may begin before June.

The two-day survey will include basic questions about how often the bus user rides, the reason for the trip, if the fare is paid by a pass or by change, reasons for choosing to take the bus and age and income questions.

The survey is designed to measure how the severe cutbacks will affect Iowa City bus riders when implemented and will give an accurate portrait of who is currently riding the bus.

MANY MAY THINK the survey is a little late, and they're probably right. The survey should have been circulated months ago — before the cuts. But it wasn't.

Those who use the city's buses can now only hope that their opinion on the survey will help in light of the service reductions.

The answers they give will help the Iowa City Transit department prepare its routes and schedules and help transit officials tailor the bus service to meet the riders' needs.

Those who enjoy their bus ride or who want to save the Iowa City Transit system from further cuts should ride the bus, fill out the survey and hope City Manager Stephen Atkins and Iowa City council members listen to their answers.

Florida judge faces charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Judicial Conference of the United States recommended Tuesday that Congress begin impeachment proceedings against U.S. District Judge Alcee Hastings, the first black federal judge in the state of Florida.

The 27-member conference, made up of federal judges from around the country, voted by acclamation to send to the House a certificate stating that "consideration of impeachment may be warranted" in the case.

Hastings' attorney, Terence Anderson, said in a news conference held on the steps of the Supreme Court that he had talked to Hastings shortly after being informed of the conference's decision.

He said Hastings, who has continued to hear cases and collect his $89,500 salary, told him he was glad the matter was "out of the hands of these chief judges" and added, "I am confident I'll not be impeached or removed from office."

Anderson said the same charges presented to the Judicial Conference were made to a jury and rejected, calling the case against Hastings "warmed over circumstantial evidence."

THREE MEMBERS of the Judicial Conference abstained from voting, including James King, chief judge of the southern district of Florida where Hastings serves, and Chief Justice William Rehnquist, who only casts a vote when there is a tie.

The House, which acts as prosecutor in impeachment proceedings, must now decide whether articles of impeachment should be filed against Hastings, who was acquitted by a Miami federal court jury in February 1983 on a charge of bribery conspiracy.

If articles of impeachment are filed, then the Senate must conduct an impeachment trial as specified in the Constitution.

Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee said the committee "will carefully investigate and review the matter to determine whether impeachment proceedings should be undertaken by the House of Representatives."

HASTINGS WAS appointed by President Jimmy Carter in 1979 to the federal bench in the southern district of Florida.

In 1983, Hastings went on trial on charges of conspiring with Washington lawyer William Borders to solicit a $150,000 bribe to reduce the sentences of two racketeers convicted in Hastings' court.

Borders was convicted in a separate trial in Atlanta federal court the summer before Hastings' trial and was sentenced to five years in prison. Hastings was found innocent.

Six weeks after Hastings' acquittal, Judges William Terrell Hodges and Anthony Alaimo filed a complaint charging that Hastings had obstructed justice and lied under oath.

The complaint led to a three-year investigation by a special five-judge panel, which recommended impeachment in August of 1986. On Sept. 2, the Judicial Council of the 11th Circuit affirmed their recommendation, leading to Tuesday's action by the Judicial Conference.

JIM MACKLIN, deputy director of the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts, said the impeachment certificate sent to Congress Tuesday "amounts to word from the Judicial Conference... to the Congress that acts were committed which might warrant impeachment."

He said Hastings was still hearing cases, but the 11th Circuit could now consider whether to stop assigning cases to him until the matter was resolved.

The last federal judge to face impeachment proceedings was U.S. District Judge Harry Claiborne of Nevada, who was ousted from the judiciary in October after a Senate impeachment trial.

Drug 'lords' force attorney into hiding

MIAMI (UPI) — Reports that Colombian drug lords had formed a hit squad with rocket-propelled grenades forced the U.S. attorney in the nation's busiest cocaine prosecution district into hiding, officials said Tuesday.

Leon B. Kellner, 41, the government's chief prosecutor for south Florida since February 1985, returned to his office after nearly two-weeks' absence Monday but would not comment Tuesday.

U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration spokesman Con Dougherty in Washington and Justice Department spokesman John Russell in Miami confirmed death threats had been made against Kellner.

Dougherty said Kellner was placed under intensive security because of the threats, some made as recently as two weeks ago. He said other threats "without great specificity" were made against U.S. officials before that, beginning in early February with the arrest and extradition of Colombian drug lord Carlos Lehder Rivas.

THE MAIN assassination plot, discovered a few days before March 6, was described in a U.S. government cable from Bogota, Colombia, which identified the target only by last name. Colombian drug lords reportedly assembled a hit squad to attack Kellner with rocket-propelled grenades.

The cable also said a second group of assassins was to have headed toward the El Paso, Texas, Intelligence Center, which tracks drug smugglers for federal law enforcement agencies.

The information was given top priority by the U.S. Marshals Service. Kellner was whisked away from his downtown Miami office March 6th after police SWAT team members surrounded the U.S. Courthouse. He and his family were taken to an undisclosed location and placed under 24-hour guard.

He canceled public appearances, including a March 9 invitation to testify before the House Judiciary Committee's subcommittee on crime in Fort Lauderdale.

U.S. marshals conducting surveillance at his empty home answered the telephone only by explaining that was "out of town."

FEDERAL OFFICIALS along the Mexican border were put on alert for Colombians attempting to sneak into Texas.

DEA officials estimate that 75 percent of all cocaine smuggled into the United States comes through south Florida. Kellner's office leads the nation in major drug prosecutions.

Several high-level drug cases have either been held or are currently going on in Miami. The most significant involves Lehder, who was arrested at his Colombian ranch Feb. 4 and extradited to Florida for trial on 11 drug-related counts. He is currently being held near Jacksonville.

Two drug indictments against Lehder have been filed by Kellner's office. One of the indictments charges that Lehder and drug cartel bosses Pablo Escobar Gaviria and Jorge Ochoa have smuggled more than 58 tons of cocaine into the U.S. since 1978.

More teenage suicides follow weekend deaths

United Press International

Two Illinois teenagers and one each in Nebraska and Washington states apparently killed themselves by the same method as six in New Jersey and suburban Chicago, police said Monday. One of the latest victims had read of the previous suicides.

Kevin Pyter, 14, of Rolling Meadows, Ill., was found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning on the roof of the family car Saturday night in the garage of his home. Police said newspaper clippings about the previous suicides were found hidden under his mattress in his room.

Pyter, a member of the Rolling Meadows High School band and wrestling team, was described as a good student and model youth who had appeared to be in good spirits, police said.

NO SUICIDE NOTE was found, and family members were calling it "an experiment that got out of hand," the Arlington Heights (Ill.) Daily Herald said.

Relatives said Pyter had shown no suicidal tendencies, and family members think Pyter's curiosity about the method of death was aroused by publicity about the recent suicides, the newspaper said.

Jeff Holcomb, a high school senior in Lavista, Neb., was found dead Sunday in a car in the closed garage of his home. The 17-year-old also committed suicide by exposing himself to carbon monoxide. Police said a note left by the teen indicated the suicide resulted from personal problems.

"It appears to be an isolated incident," Police Chief John Packett said.

THE BODY OF Lynn Browne, 18, of Sumner, Wash., a popular cheerleader who had recently been accepted to Gonzaga University in Spokane, was found by her mother in an idling car Thursday.

Police said there was no suicide note.

Kathy Swanson, an instructor at Browne's school, said a coroner's report disclosed Browne had bulimia — an eating disorder that causes a person to binge on food, then regurgitate.

IN MOLINE, ILL., Brian Mooney, 18, a high school senior, was found dead in a garage at the home of an acquaintance Saturday. Police said the car's engine was running and the garage doors were shut.

Richard Verbeck, deputy Rock Island County coroner, said he was concerned that media coverage of teenage suicides were related to Mooney's death. No suicide note was found, and an exact cause of death was pending a coroner's inquest.

Experts advise parents, teachers and friends of teenagers to look for the most common warning signs of suicidal tendencies: signs of depression such as appearing sad and helpless; changes in sleep patterns; unusual anger and irritability; preoccupation with death; attempts to harm oneself; drug and alcohol abuse; and trouble with the law, truancy or other antisocial behavior.

The University of Iowa is seeking applicants for its Administrative Internship Program. This program will provide opportunities for merit employees, professional employees, and faculty to develop administrative skills while serving as interns in administrative offices throughout the University.

Candidates must hold at least a bachelor's degree and ordinarily must have five years of experience at the University. Women and members of minority groups are particularly encouraged to apply.

Applications for fall 1987 internships are available from the Office of Affirmative Action, 202 Jessup Hall. Applications are due April 1. For more information, contact Lisa Arrasmith, Office of Affirmative Action, 335-0705.

The University of Iowa is seeking applicants for its Summer Institutes Program. Under this program, selected, qualified faculty and staff members will be sponsored to attend summer institutes at Harvard University and Bryn Mawr College. The deadline for application to both those institutes is April 1, 1987.

To be considered for University sponsorship under the University of Iowa Summer Institutes Program, contact Chris Quinn at 335-0141 or Lisa Arrasmith at 335-0705 no later than March 20, 1987.

To recognize and encourage outstanding efforts in equal opportunity and affirmative action the University will present The University of Iowa Affirmative Action Award to the department or administrative unit which has made a most significant achievement in the area. The award will consist of a plaque and a grant of $1,000 to the department or unit.

Nominations for the award may be made by students, faculty, staff and alumni; self nominations are appropriate. The deadline for nominations is April 1, 1987.

Service broadens its scope to aid both renters, landlords

By Mary Beth Freking
Freelance Writer

When that "perfect" apartment suddenly develops a wind chill factor in the living room, roaches for roommates, no hot water, and the landlord refuses to improve the almost primitive environment, it is time to seek help.

The Protective Association for Tenants provides free services to both students and non-students who are concerned about their rental situation. The organization, located on the main floor of the Union, acts primarily as a resource and information center for tenants and landlords in the Iowa City and Coralville area.

PAT Coordinator Robert Craggs said the organization helped about 3,200 people with housing problems last year, including a few landlords.

WHEN PAT BEGAN in May 1973, its goal was to improve the housing situation and tenant status in Iowa City. Today, however, PAT provides more than just advocacy for tenants.

This is the third story in a five-part series examining housing.

"Our goal hasn't changed, but our clientele has broadened to include landlords," Craggs said. "We feel we can prevent disputes by informing all parties about their rights."

The problems appearing most frequently in the PAT office deal with poor apartment conditions and the return of rental deposits, Craggs said.

"It only makes sense that if you live in an apartment and you don't have control over the conditions, you are probably going to have problems at one time or another," he said.

Craggs said many of the problems that arise from tenant/landlord disputes are due to a lack of communication.

"You'd be surprised about the number of students who come in here and haven't talked to their landlord," he said.

HOWEVER, MANY students have been unsuccessful in their attempts to reason with their landlord and have turned to PAT for some options.

"Through PAT I found out about tenants' rights and found that tenants do have a lot of rights," UI senior Mathew May said. He said the most valuable information he received was a PAT pamphlet called "The Housing Survival Kit."

The publication includes information on leases, roommate responsibilities, tenants' obligations, subletting and remedies for some landlord problems.

May admitted he wouldn't have taken the time to read through the detailed pamphlet if he hadn't had troubles with his landlord.

"Unfortunately, people don't wonder about using PAT until after they run into problems," he said.

Sexual harassment charged at Illinois

URBANA, Ill. (UPI) — Nearly 12 percent of female students at the University of Illinois have been sexually harassed by professors or teaching assistants, a survey showed.

Older students reported a higher rate, with 16 percent of the seniors and master's students reporting harassment and 23 percent of doctorate students claiming to have been harassed.

Sexual harassment was defined as ranging from unwanted sexual statements to unwanted sexual propositions.

The results show "sexual harassment is a current, significant problem" that "lowers the quality of life and seriously hinders the educational pursuits of harassed students," wrote authors Deborah Allen and Judith Bessai of the university counseling center.

"Although sexual harassment is experienced by students at all educational levels, female doctoral students are the highest risk group," the study said.

TWENTY-TWO OF 94 doctorate students who responded — or 23.4 percent — reported being harassed while less than 5 percent of freshmen reported being harassed.

The survey, conducted in February 1986, polled 2,000 female students chosen from all colleges on campus. Of that group, 1,294 responded and 153 said they had been harassed one or more times.

The survey reported an error margin of 1 percent and projected that between 1,628 and 1,930 of the more than 15,000 female students on campus had been harassed.

The women were asked to describe incidents of sexual harassment and describe how it made them feel. Most reported being the subject of unwanted sexual statements.

"During lab I happened to yawn — the (TA) said that being tired was what I deserved after probably having sex all night," one student wrote. "I really didn't know what to do. I tried hard to avoid him ... or just ignore him."

The woman said she was told the teacher also harassed another student and she found "it hard to believe that this person has remained in the department for so long despite his reputation."

'Interference' upsets Japanese traders

TOKYO — Japan's top trade official said Tuesday it was wrong for Washington to interfere in U.S.-Japanese corporate affairs and derail a Japanese computer giant's plans to buy a California memory chip manufacturer.

Fujitsu Ltd., Japan's largest computer maker, announced it had given up its planned takeover of Fairchild Semiconductor Co. of Cupertino, Calif., from a French-owned oil firm, Schlumberger Ltd. of New York.

Fujitsu said in a statement that the estimated $200 million deal was canceled "taking into consideration growing concern in the United States."

The planned purchase had drawn unusually stiff opposition from Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige on both national security grounds and over computer product trade disputes with Japan.

Hess returns to Spandau after illness

BERLIN — Rudolf Hess, the last Nazi leader jailed by World War II allies, has recovered from a bout with pneumonia and been returned to his lone confinement at Spandau Prison, a British official said Tuesday.

The 92-year-old Hitler deputy — 16 days after being admitted to the British Military Hospital — returned Monday afternoon to the prison where he is the only inmate, spokesman Anderson Purdon said.

Hess's son, Wolf Ruediger Hess, visited his father in the hospital last week and said he doubted he ever would be able to return to the prison in the Spandau district of Berlin's British sector.

Wolf Ruediger, 49, a Munich civil engineer, said Hess was in such bad condition he did not recognize his own son. Asked if he thought his father was dying, he said, "I am not a doctor but it is apparent his condition is very serious."

Cooper plight invites '60 Minutes' mail

DES MOINES — Producers for "60 Minutes" say this month's television segment on the five Cooper children in Iowa generated the largest amount of mail ever in the history of the popular news show, it was reported Monday.

KCCI-TV, a Des Moines CBS affiliate, said "60 Minutes" segment producer Suzanne St. Pierre reported the mail is still being counted. She said most of the mail is critical of the state's handling of the case.

The 60 Minutes segment, which aired March 8, showed how the children were removed against their wishes from their foster parents in Kellogg so they could be closer to their natural mother, a recovering mental patient who admitted beating one of the children.

The case gained national attention when two of the children tried to buy sleeping pills with their allowance so they could commit suicide rather than leave their foster parents.

Teacher requests leave after explosion

SALEM, Ill. — The teacher of a science class in which an experiment resulted in injuries to 17 students has been granted an unpaid leave of absence at her request, officials said.

Sue Gates requested the leave in a letter read at the Salem school board meeting Monday night. She said she was requesting the action after considering the "emotional strain to the students and staff" that her return to the classroom might cause.

School officials said the unpaid leave extends through the current semester. Gates had been given a one-semester contract in January to fill in for a teacher who had been given a leave of absence.

Officials said the Feb. 24 explosion outside the school occurred when a quantity of sodium was placed in a wastebasket containing water.

All of the injured eighth graders who suffered chemical burns about the face are back in school.

Amish man must submit to photograph

MINNEAPOLIS — A judge has ruled an Amish farmer who bribed an Internal Revenue Service agent must submit to being photographed by authorities even though having his picture taken violates his religious beliefs.

U.S. District Judge Harry MacLaughlin said Monday the government's need to identify Andy Slabaugh outweighs his right to exercise his religion. MacLaughlin said Slabaugh's right to exercise his religion was diminished last year when he pleaded guilty to bribing an IRS agent.

Slabaugh was sentenced in January to three years probation and ordered to forfeit $500 he gave IRS agent Charles McDonnell in Rochester. Slabaugh said he gave McDonnell the money to share the supposed proceeds of a tax audit of the man who sold Slabaugh his farm.

Senate considers Contra aid cutoff

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate opened debate Tuesday on a resolution to bar $40 million in aid to the Nicaraguan rebels — condemned by one lawmaker as a "sleazy foreign policy" — but the measure had no chance of becoming law.

Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia and Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas arranged for the Senate to vote today on the resolution blocking the final $40 million installment of a $100 million aid package approved last summer.

There was no chance the resolution would become law because the two chambers would likely not have the two-thirds majority required to override a veto, but opponents were using the debate in a drive to build support to kill future aid to the Contras.

Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., predicted the Senate would vote 51-49 to defeat the resolution, allowing the unrestricted flow of military aid and other supplies to reach the guerrillas.

BUT HE URGED Republicans and Democrats "to stand up and say no" to a policy of force that he said has brought discredit to the United States.

"This is a sleazy policy and will always be attended by sleazy details," Weicker said, mentioning the reported diversion of illegal aid to the Contras by former National Security Council aides.

Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Ill., said as a result of the Iran-Contra diversion scandal, the administration has "squandered" congressional support for the resistance.

However, the strategic situation in Nicaragua and Central America has not changed, Dixon said in opposing the aid cutoff. "The need to contain the development of a major Soviet client state in Central America continues."

EVEN IF THE resolution passes and is approved by the House, Byrd and Speaker Jim Wright of Texas say they do not have the two-thirds majorities required in both chambers to kill President Ronald Reagan's veto of the measure.

Last week the House voted approval of another resolution to suspend all assistance to the guerrillas for six months until there is a public accounting of U.S. aid. That measure too would not survive a Reagan veto.

Both measures were seen as symbolic and if the two houses do not agree on common language and send it to the White House by Friday the Contras will automatically get the final payment of the money approved last year.

S. African officials discover bodies of slain black youths

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Police Tuesday found the bodies of seven black teenagers who were shot and stabbed to death and dumped in a valley near the east coast port of Durban. A motive for the attack was not immediately known but police said they believed the youths were killed because they defied a school boycott, one of the methods employed by blacks protesting the white-led government's apartheid policies of racial discrimination and segregation.

THE SEVEN BLACK teenagers — between the ages of 15 and 17 — were killed late Monday or early Tuesday and their bodies left in a shallow valley in the black township of KwaMashu, 15 miles north of Durban, Police Capt. Bob Sanker said.

One police report said the victims were all boys but another said two girls were among the slain.

Residents said police officers and soldiers arrived in armored trucks after the bodies were found, and a helicopter ferried senior officers to the scene. They said the township was tense and schools were empty.

"WE THINK THE children were murdered because they defied a boycott at two schools in KwaMashu," Sanker said.

Township residents said, however, they believed the victims were members of the United Democratic Front, South Africa's largest legal opposition movement. They said the UDF called for a boycott at the township's two segregated high schools to protest the cost of books.

Residents said KwaMashu had been disrupted recently by bloody clashes between UDF radicals and supporters of the moderate Inkatha political movement, which opposes anti-government boycotts.

Thirteen people were murdered by machine-gun firing assailants in the nearby KwaMakhuta ghetto Jan. 21. The victims were identified as UDF supporters.

More than 2,300 people — the overwhelming majority of them black — have been killed since a wave of violence against the white-minority government and its policies of apartheid erupted in September 1984.

Hostage granted reprieve

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A pro-Iranian extremist group said Tuesday it granted a one-week reprieve to a French hostage facing a death threat.

The statement signed by the Revolutionary Justice Organization was delivered to the An-Nahar newspaper shortly after a pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem clergyman, Sheikh Mohammed Hussein Fadlallah, and another spiritual leader called on the captors of television technician Jean-Louis Normandin to spare his life.

"We view with respect the address made by the honest national struggler Sheikh Mohammed Hussein Fadlallah and the appeals by other spiritual figures and the secret promises that were presented by the French government to the concerned parties..." the statement read.

But in the statement, the group demanded that "delegations be sent within this week to present needed clarifications that could lead to improving things or spilling blood would begin."

The group has issued two 48-hour deadlines since Thursday to kill Normandin, demanding clarification of recent remarks by French President Francois Mitterrand reiterating France's backing for Iraq in the war against Iran.

Dissidents released in U.S.S.R.

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet officials have released eight more dissidents, raising to 86 the number freed from prisons, camps and internal exile under the government's campaign to improve its human rights image, Yelena Bonner said.

Bonner, wife of dissident physicist Andrei Sakharov, told Western reporters Monday five prisoners were released late last week and another three on Monday.

Those freed last week included Ivan Kovalyov and Tanya Osipov, a couple jailed for "anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda" after they publicized human rights abuses.

Freed Monday were Galina Barats, Alexei Smirnov and Mikhail Rifkin, imprisoned under the same law for their dissent.

Title on line for Heffernan

By Laura Palmer
Staff Writer

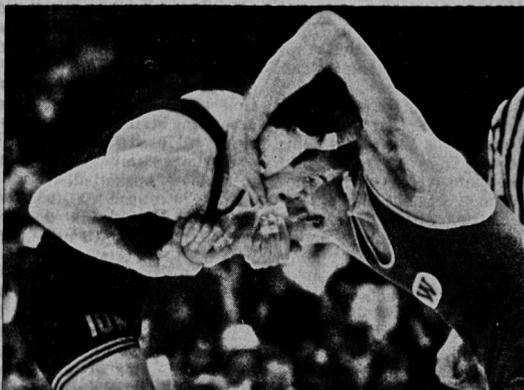

Hawkeye wrestler Jim Heffernan became only the ninth wrestler to win four Big Ten titles two weeks ago and from March 19-21 he will be defending his national title at 150 pounds in College Park, Md.

Heffernan, who compiled a 32-2 record this season and boasts a 127-17 career record, is satisfied with his position going into the national tournament.

"It can only be an advantage because I've won it and it if I make it to the finals again it will be my third time," Heffernan said. "I think it will be a big advantage because the first time I was in the finals I was really nervous compared to last year where I was really relaxed and I think I'll be the same this year."

Heffernan's "biggest match by far" during this year's tournament will be against Iowa State's Tim Krieger. Krieger, who will most likely be seeded No. 1, has defeated Heffernan in their two meetings this season. Last year Krieger got beat in the quarterfinals of the NCAA tournament and ended up fifth.

"IT WILL BE A big meet for Jim Heffernan going in there second-seeded. We kind of

The Daily Iowan/Jill Orr
Jim Heffernan will try to defend his NCAA title at 150 pounds March 19-21 when the Hawkeye wrestlers travel to College Park, Md.

Wrestling

have something to prove there," Iowa Coach Dan Gable said.

There has been much media coverage every time Heffernan and Krieger have stepped onto the mat together this season but Heffernan said that is to be expected since the match between the two at nationals should be for the title.

"We're the only two guys who should make it to the finals. To me they're just doing what's the obvious, but at the same time it's not so much the press that bothers me, but everything I hear from the coaches is about Tim Krieger and it gets old fast," Heffernan said.

The Iowa senior is pleased with his performance year with the exception of the matches with Krieger.

"I'VE BEEN PRETTY pleased with it with the exception of a few matches, of course my two losses didn't please me," Heffernan said. "Penn State match really didn't please me, I didn't wrestle well out there and in the finals of the Big Ten I really didn't wrestle well, other than that, I've been pretty happy."

When Heffernan came to Iowa from North Olmstead, Ohio, he, unlike most who come here, broke into the line-up as a freshman and won a league title and placed fourth in the national tournament. He then redshirted as a sophomore to come back the next year and place second at NCAAs.

"They needed someone at the weight right away. I think that was a really big advantage coming in and wrestling my first year," Heffernan said. "At the same time coming off a good freshman year, it was a little disappointing having to sit out the next year and watch everyone else wrestle. It was then hard to come back the next year and wrestle."

JOHN HEFFERNAN, Jim's younger brother, wrestles at 158 for the Hawkeyes and earned a spot in the tournament line-up by placing fourth at the Big Ten meet.

"I'm just starting to recognize it lately but its always in the back of my mind that the better I perform, I think the better he will," the older Heffernan said. "The obvious case was the Iowa State match both times and I lost and he came back and wrestled a poor match."

Harmon's allegations concern UI

By Marc Bona
Staff Writer

Members of the Board in Control of Athletics were silent Tuesday after the formal announcement of a subcommittee appointed last week to look into allegations concerning payments made to former Iowa football player Ronnie Harmon.

The announcement, made toward the end of the board's meeting Tuesday at Carver-Hawkeye Arena, triggered no emotion from the normally talkative board. Findings of the board will be reported immediately to UI President James O. Freedman and the Board in Control of Athletics, member Dorsey Ellis said.

Ellis, head of the finance committee, said he and Freedman "immediately consulted" after the news about the alleged payments broke.

"The committee's concern goes beyond (Harmon)," Ellis said, "but will take a look at what the university does to support student-athletes ... and to make certain that they know of any actions they may take."

THE COMMITTEE WILL report directly to Freedman, Ellis added.

Harmon, who now plays for the NFL's Buffalo Bills, allegedly signed a contract with an agent during his junior year at Iowa and reportedly received $54,000 in payments as well as a loan for a new car.

NCAA rules forbid players to enter into an agreement with an agent or to discuss any financial arrangements.

The committee will study whether the allegations are true and if any other Iowa athletes were involved, as well as if any other violations were committed, Ellis said.

In other news at the two-hour long board meeting, a 53-page study titled, "Report on Studies and Information Concerning the Elimination of Freshman Eligibility," was presented.

THE STUDY, which includes 28 pages of footnotes and survey results, was conducted by the board's committee studying freshman eligibility.

"The report is an attempt to give an idea of the alternatives to freshman eligibility," committee member Randall Beanson said. "Hopefully, the report will give a sense of inner-related subjects ... within which the question on freshman eligibility must be addressed."

The board, which spent more time on the subject of freshman eligibility than any other topic, came to no conclusion on the controversial issue.

"Freshman eligibility isn't really the issue," Beanson continued. "There are lots of other issues — freshman eligibility and not having freshman eligibility, redshirting and not redshirting, kinds of financial support — all of those are part and parcel to the issue," he said.

Iowa Athletic Director Bump Elliott was pleased with the report, saying: "I think your (the committee's) recommendations are consistent. The end result we're looking for is that these people (student-athletes) finish school."

In other notes of interest, Women's Athletic Director Christine Grant said a bus will leave the Ironmen Inn Wednesday, 7:30 p.m. for the women's NCAA Tournament game in Monroe, La. The cost of the trip is $100.

Koretz guides LaSalle past Niagara

United Press International

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Larry Koretz scored all 17 of his points in the second half Tuesday night to spur LaSalle to an 89-81 victory over Niagara in a National Invitation Tournament second-round game at Memorial Auditorium.

Koretz ignited LaSalle, which trailed 38-37 at halftime, by hitting three three-point shots in the opening three minutes, 22 seconds of the second half. LaSalle, 18-12, built a 52-44 lead with 15:43 remaining, but Niagara's Gary Bossert tied the score 69-69 with 4:39 left. A field goal and three free throws by Craig Conlin put LaSalle up 79-74 with 1:33 to play.

Lionel Simmons topped LaSalle with 23 points to break the team's freshman scoring record of 579 points set by Michael Brooks. Simmons has 597 points. Conlin added 20 points and a game-high 10 rebounds, Tim Legler scored 17 points and Rich Tarr added 10 for the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference team.

Joe Arlauckas paced Niagara, 21-10, with 27 points before fouling out with 20 seconds left. Bossert scored 16, Mark Henry 12 and Juan Neal 11 for the Purple Eagles. Alex Agudio scored nine points and grabbed a game-high eight rebounds for the ECAC North Atlantic Conference team.

S. Mississippi 83, St. Louis 78
ST. LOUIS — John White connected on a three-point field goal with one minute, 26 seconds left in overtime Tuesday night to key Southern Mississippi's 83-78 victory over St. Louis in the second round of the National Invitation Tournament.

Rold Gray sank a free throw with 1:52 remaining in overtime to give St. Louis a 78-77 lead. White then hit his three-pointer to move the Golden Eagles ahead for good, 80-78. After Gray missed a shot with 1:01 left, Southern Mississippi stalled before Jurado Hinton's layup with 37 seconds to play.

Atlanta runs win streak to 11

United Press International

ATLANTA — Dominique Wilkins scored 43 points Tuesday night to power Atlanta to a 118-98 rout of the Washington Bullets and extend the Hawks' winning streak to 11 games.

Atlanta opened the game with a 17-1 spurt and coasted. The Hawks led 63-46 at halftime and 90-70 entering the final period. Atlanta held their biggest lead, 24 points, in the fourth quarter.

Wilkins scored 18 points in the first quarter en route to notching his seventh game of 40 or more points this season. Kevin Willis finished with 19 points and a game-high 18 rebounds to help Atlanta improve to 44-21.

The Hawks' 11-game winning streak, the longest in the NBA this season, is one short of the franchise record of 12 accomplished between Dec. 8, 1968 and Jan. 3, 1969.

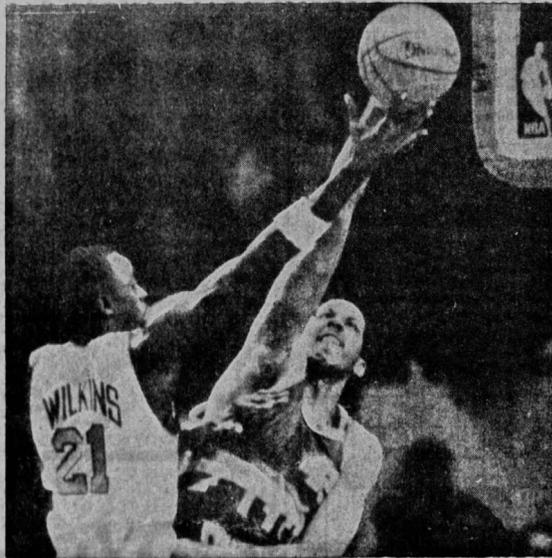

Washington, 34-30, played without center Moses Malone, who missed his fourth consecutive game with a neck injury.

Denver 133, New York 111

NEW YORK — Alex English scored 26 points and Bill Hanzlik added 22 Tuesday night to pace six Denver players in a 133-111 romp over New York, the Knicks' fourth straight loss.

Trent Tucker, guarded mostly by former Knick Darrell Walker, scored a career-high 31 points — including a club-record five three-point baskets — to lead New York. Kenny Walker contributed 21 points for the Knicks.

Denver led 31-30 after one quarter. The Nuggets then took charge in the second period, outscoring the Knicks 31-20, with Hanzlik hitting for 10 points.

Milwaukee 123, Boston 115

MILWAUKEE — John Lucas scored seven of his 26 points in the final three minutes Tuesday night to lead the Milwaukee Bucks to a 123-115 victory over the Boston Celtics.

Dennis Johnson hit a basket, was fouled and made the free throw for a three-point play to draw the Celtics to 108-104 with 3:33 left. But Lucas then scored 4 straight points to put the Bucks ahead 112-104 with 2:10 left. The closest Boston got after that was 119-115 on Danny Ainge's three-point goal with 23 seconds left.

Lucas' last three points came on free throws, including one with 30 seconds left to put the Bucks in front 119-112.

Dallas 114, Chicago 96

DALLAS — Sam Perkins scored 16 of his 27 points in the final period Tuesday night to blunt a Chicago comeback and carry the Dallas Mavericks to a 114-96 win over the Bulls and a spot in the NBA playoffs.

Dallas clinched a post-season berth at the earliest point of the season in their history and dealt the Bulls a season high sixth consecutive loss.

Hawkeye, Sooner match-up promises to be unpredictable

By Cathy Cronin
Staff Writer

Not to be taken as an indication of the final outcome, No. 6 seeded Oklahoma will face a No. 2 seeded Iowa this Friday night at the NCAA Regionals in Seattle.

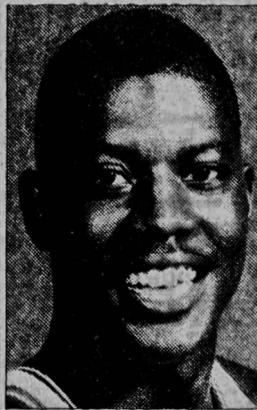

The Sooners under Coach Billy Tubbs have qualified for post season play eight of the last nine years, seven of which have been NCAA action. This year's NCAA tournament win against Tulsa marked the Sooners' second lowest scoring game of the year, with a score of 74-69.

BUT WHEN IT comes to low scoring against Iowa, Tubbs has little to worry about.

"If we play Iowa there will probably be 300 or 400 points scored," Tubbs said. Here, Tubbs may be referring to Oklahoma's "Fantastic Five".

The Sooners have two juniors and three senior players, each of whom have attained single game scoring highs equal to or beyond that of Iowa's Roy Marble, which tops the Hawkeyes.

HARVEY GRANT, 6-foot-9 junior, tied Marble's high of 29 points last December against Creighton. Recently, Grant was the only Sooner named to the Big Eight post-season all-tournament team. He finished the season with 26 double-figure scoring games and 15 twin-digit rebounding efforts. Grant is also tied for Sooner field goal percentage lead (53.0), is the No. 2 free-throw percentage leader (73.3) and is tied for the team lead in blocked shots with 22.

THE SECOND OKLAHOMA junior is 6-6 Dave Sieger, who recorded a career high of 32 points against Nebraska in February. During that same game Sieger was 12 of 19 from the field and made eight of 13 three-point shots, both highs in the Big Eight this season. He has scored in double figures in nine of 29 games played, six of those as a starter.

David Johnson, a 6-7 senior, is next in line with a career mark of 31 points this season against Duke, a NCAA final 16 team in the Midwest Regional. "Dee Jay" has been a starter for most of the last three years.

HE JOINS Tim McCalister and Darryl Kennedy as the third classmate on the 1986-87 team to score more than 1,000 career points, a Big Eight first. He has started 14 games of the year and has scored in double figures 11 times.

Scoring 41 points against Chicago State last January, Kennedy is a 6-5 senior for Oklahoma. "Choo" is one of only three players to be listed among the all-time Top 10 scorers and rebounders in the Big Eight. He is tied for the team in field goal percentage at 53.0, averages 7.0 rebounds, 2.2 assists and just over a steal a game.

THE LAST OF Tubbs' "Fantastic Five," McCalister, is also Oklahoma's most prolific scorer this season. He scored 44 points in a game against Brigham Young last November. This 6-3 senior is listed among the top six scorers of all time. T-Mac is the highest scoring guard ever to play in the league and the conference's second leading scorer overall with 2,205 career points. He is listed on the all-time Big Eight steal list with 312 and is fourth in assists with 614.

McCalister will finish his career as the No. 2 scorer in Big Eight and Oklahoma history behind William Tisdale. T-Mac will become the first Oklahoma player ever to average in double figures for four consecutive years.

"Iowa is a good ballclub," McCalister said. "But the question I want to know is how Iowa is going to match up with us."

Houston's Thon 'sees' fine for walkout

KISSIMMEE, Fla. (UPI) — The Houston Astros fined shortstop Dickie Thon Tuesday for walking out of training camp and ordered him to return by the end of the week or be fined $1,000 a day.

Thon, apparently still having vision problems related to a 1984 beaming, unexpectedly walked out of camp over the weekend and returned to his home in Dorado, Puerto Rico.

"Thon has been fined an undisclosed amount for leaving training camp without permission," the club announced Tuesday. "If Thon has not returned by Friday, he will begin being fined $1,000 per day for each day he is absent."

A close friend of Thon said the shortstop is "scared, real scared."

"He's not seeing the ball well at all," the friend said. "He's afraid the next pitch he doesn't see could kill him. Maybe he's just having trouble admitting that he's scared."

Thon's agent, Tom Reich, was unavailable for comment. Astros officials also were unavailable.

Thon has complained several times of blurred vision and has spent time away from spring training each of the past two seasons, but always with permission from management.

Astros General Manager Dick Wagner and field manager Hal Lanier have warned Thon the team cannot continue with such uncertainty and that Thon must make a decision about his future in baseball.

Raines searches for deal with Astros

KISSIMMEE, Fla. (UPI) — Free agent outfielder Tim Raines, unable to reach an agreement to play for the San Diego Padres, says he is talking with the Houston Astros, but the Astros Tuesday would not discuss the matter.

"I have nothing to say," General Manager Dick Wagner said. "I said that five or six days ago, and I'll stick with it."

The Padres ended contract talks with Raines Monday and the former Montreal Expos outfielder said the Astros have continued to express an interest in him.

"We're still negotiating with the Astros," Raines said. "I think they had a meeting (Monday) and I think they'll talk again in a couple of days. But as far as how far things have gone, I have no idea."

Raines said the Astros first contacted him about 10 days ago.

"I met with (Astros owner John) Mr. McMullen, but nothing really came out of it," Raines said. "They just threw a figure out to see if I'd bite, but I didn't."

Raines, who rejected Montreal's final offer of $5.5 million over three years, confirmed the Astros offered about $1 million in a two-year deal that included incentive clauses.

"I don't feel optimistic in what has transpired over the last few days with the Astros, but you never know," Raines said.

Pathetic Healey hurts Hawks

Dan Millea

The University of Iowa can greatly improve its basketball television broadcasts next season with one quick stroke of the pen — by writing a contract that leaves the choice of announcers to the school.

The Iowa Television Network's contract with the university has expired and the rights for the 1987-88 season will reportedly be bid on by at least one other interest. Regardless of who the final contract is awarded to, Iowa officials are considering reserving at least veto power over the choice of commentators.

The reason school officials are interested in such a move is probably the fact that current play-by-play man Bob Healey is pathetic. If that's not the reason, it should be.

Healey has offended the ears of Iowa fans for three years with his amateur remarks and painfully obvious lack of basketball knowledge.

HEALEY IS A matinee idol. He looks good on camera and his voice isn't bad. The problem is with the nonsense that constantly dribbles out of his mouth.

The man does not understand the strategies behind what happens on the court, or if he does he makes no attempt to communicate that insight to the viewers.

Healey has an irritating on camera persona that is painful for many fans to endure. But so does Dick Vitale, Billy Packer and Al McGuire. The difference is that those last three at least have interesting things to say. Healey's most interesting comment is "jam-time!", but after seven or eight hundred times that wears a little thin.

Fans in eastern Iowa are already subjected to Healey on KWWL, a Cedar Falls-Waterloo station, which Healey is sports director. But at least you can turn the channel and get sports information elsewhere. With Hawkeye basketball it's Healey or the radio.

WHO, Larry Cotler, is an up-and-coming announcer who has an impressive knowledge of the game and could handle the job.

BECAUSE ITN is such a small-scale operation, and the Hawkeye games are only reaching a relatively small market, it isn't possible to attract top-notch announcers. But it is possible to get someone better than Healey. In fact it's a crime not to.

There are a number of television and radio personalities across the state that are much more talented than Healey, and who actually understand the game of basketball.

Tom Cornelis at KWQC-TV in the Quad Cities could do the job, as could John Campbell of KCRG in Cedar Rapids-Waterloo.

Even Jim Zabel, the near-ancient sports director at WHO radio, would be an improvement over Healey, despite his lack of television experience. Zabel's partner at

PERHAPS THE STATE'S best announcer is Mark Mathew, sports director at WOI-TV in Ames. Mathew currently handles Iowa State basketball telecasts, but lifting him from the Cyclone Network would be an impressive coup for Iowa.

With the right amount of money the university could do even better, hiring an out of state play-by-play man on the level of the Big Ten and Big Eight announcers.

But anything — literally anything — would be an improvement over Healey. And with the Iowa program rising in national prominence, it seems natural to get the best announcers possible. That means Healey is out. Let's just hope the university follows through with its plan.

Cey will need to adapt to life with Oakland A's CHANDLER, Ariz. (UPI) — After more than 14 seasons in the National League, baseball's "Penguin" is migrating.

Veteran infielder Ron Cey, who was tabbed with the moniker for his distinctive waddle on the basepaths, figures significantly in Oakland's 1987 plans although he still must adjust to life in the American League.

"You're seeing an entirely different bunch of pitchers," Cey said. "You've got teammates that you mostly never knew or played against. It's a challenge. Being 39 years old and getting a fresh start in an unfamiliar league is something I'd never considered. The newness of it all is what really appeals to me."

Cey was acquired from the Chicago Cubs in exchange for infielder Luis Quinones. A's Manager Tony LaRussa says he plans to use Cey as the designated hitter against left-handers, at third base along with Carney Lansford and rookie Mark McGwire and possibly at first base as well.

LARUSSA SAYS Cey's experience and versatility were the reasons he was obtained.

"Everybody knows that Ron Cey has had some pop in his bat throughout his career," he said. "He's always been a good fielder as well. We just feel we needed somebody with his maturity around here, and he definitely will get playing time."

Cey probably will alternate at designated hitter with Reggie Jackson, making his return to Oakland after 11 years with Baltimore, the New York Yankees and California.

Last season, Cey's fourth with Chicago after more than 10 with Los Angeles, he batted .273 with 13 homers and 36 RBI in 97 games as a part-time player.

In his career, the native of Tacoma, Wash., has a .261 batting average with 312 homers and 1,128 RBI in 2,028 games. He has played in four World Series and six All-Star games.

"People still want to know what you've done lately," he said grinning. "Well, I would like very much to help the A's. It's interesting watching young players like Jose Canseco and Mark McGwire develop, almost right before your eyes."

Hawks journey to California

By Marc Bona
Staff Writer

One group of people who definitely have it made during spring break are the members of the Iowa women's tennis team, who will travel to the land of glitter and glamour — California — for their annual spring trip, March 20-28.

The Hawkeyes will be making their second trip to the West Coast in two weeks, but their recent visit didn't exactly spark of glitter and it definitely wasn't glamorous. All three of Iowa's spring losses came in Provo, Utah, last week at the Brigham Young Invitational.

Mickey Schillig, Iowa interim coach, felt the difference in altitude was partly to blame for the Hawkeyes' losses but says Iowa will be ready this time out.

"Santa Barbara and USC are tough," Schillig said. "I think we'll get some good experience. On paper I think we should come out ahead."

SCHILLIG WILL be without the services of No. 3 seed Robin Gerstein, whose right leg is in a cast because of a torn muscle suffered almost a month ago. Gerstein saw a foot specialist last Monday and will not have the cast removed until after spring break.

The Hawkeyes will kick off

Women's Tennis Schedule

(Iowa women's tennis team's spring break schedule with opponent, site and date.)
March 21 — Santa Barbara at Cabrio Racquet Club
March 22 — California-Irvine men's team
March 23 — Brown University at Marriott Newport Beach
March 24 — at California State-Los Angeles
March 25 — Oregon at Loyola Marymount
March 26 — Southern California their trip against Santa Barbara on March 21. Lisa Beritzhoff, coach of the 10-8 Gauchos, is in her first year at Santa Barbara after having spent the last three seasons at San Jose State.

The Hawkeyes will match wits against the men's team from California-Irvine, March 22, in a "just for fun" match, according to Schillig. Iowa will then meet Brown March 23, and Coach Norman Taylor agrees with Schillig that the weather will be a factor, saying, "Certainly that will have an effect."

Taylor added the the switch from playing indoors to outdoors will also be a factor in the Bruins' performance. Brown is located in Providence, R.I.

BROWN'S SCHEDULE prior to the California trip may make going a little rough for the 2-2 Bruins. The problem is that all four matches came last fall. Ivy League schools are restricted to sixteen matches a year, and most coaches — such as Taylor — schedule most competition in the warmer season.

"We're playing five schools in five days. I'm just hoping the girls will play tough," he admitted.

The favorites, according to Taylor, are Santa Barbara and San Diego. The Hawkeyes will not face the Toreros of San Diego during their trip.

Brown faced Iowa during the 1984-85 season, with the Bruins coming out on top with a 7-2 victory.

California State-Los Angeles Coach Tom Yamiguchi will be bringing an even 5-5 record into competition against the Hawkeyes March 24.

The Ducks of Oregon don't have the same restrictions as Ivy League schools, but they have played only three matches so far this season. However, all three matches kept Oregon Coach Sue Jacobson happy, as her team is undefeated going into the clash between the Ducks and the Hawkeyes, March 26, at 9 a.m.

IOWA WILL HAVE only a few hours after the Oregon match to prepare for Southern California at 3 p.m. The Trojans, who boasted a preseason No. 2 national ranking but have since dropped to No. 4, are 8-5 on the year.

Dave Birelli, 13th-year coach, has had a weakened crew to work with this season. The Trojans lost Caroline Coleman, the No. 1 singles player in the country last year, to tendinitis in her left knee Jan. 4. She attempted to come back March 15 in Southern California's match-up against rival UCLA but lost her singles match, 6-1, 6-2.

The Hawkeyes will get a chance to have home court advantage for the first time since March 6 when they return from the California trip to open conference play April 4-5 against Michigan and Michigan State.

Hoping to do more than just extend their six game winning streak from the indoor to outdoor season, the Hawkeye men's tennis team will travel to California over spring break to take on seven opponents.

But while a continued winning streak would be nice, Iowa Coach Steve Houghton said he wants his club to achieve other goals.

"Last year we played very well and went 7-0," Houghton said. "But the won-loss record isn't as important as making progress, and coming home with guys playing better tennis than when we left."

From March 20-22 the Hawkeyes will play in a tournament in Claremont, Calif., against Rutgers, California State Bakersfield and Cornell. Iowa then faces Bakersfield again at Fullerton, Calif., on March 24, followed on March 25 with a trip to Riverside, Calif., to play California-Riverside.

THE HAWKEYES finish their trip from March 27-29

by playing three of the five teams at a tournament hosted by San Diego.

"The first five that we will play we have a real good shot of beating," Houghton said. "I'd be disappointed if we didn't. The meets get tougher as time goes by, though."

"It also gets hot after that as the Big Ten starts up right when we get back, and we have five road trips in a row. The first five Big Ten teams we play are about our caliber, but to beat those teams we will have to improve over the next week."

The Hawkeyes have not faced any outside competition in two weeks, although the team will go into the break fresh and ready to play.

The team is going into this week with a 7-2 indoor record, with freshman Jay Maltby being the top individual performer with an 8-1 record.

Science fiction volumes attract fans and writers

By Teresa Heger Arts/entertainment Editor

IMAGINE yourself driving down a deserted Midwest road and coming across an overturned tractor, a dead and mutilated farmer and a ready-for-another-meal Tyrannosaurus Rex.

If that doesn't capture your fancy, picture instead a race of people that can turn into snakes to repel enemies, a stifled population that lives in high-rise apartments with no exits, or a futuristic society that holds a Cinderella ball.

The various amateur writers who contributed to the L. Ron Hubbard's Writers of the Future series have imagined just such scenarios and more. And not only have they created new science fiction and fantasy — most of it very high quality — they were also paid well for their works.

Both volumes I and II of Writers of the Future offer science fiction fans a variety of original short stories to feast on. The anthologies are a unique blend of fantasy and hard-core science fiction — and everything in-between.

THE STORIES range from pseudo-horror, as with "Anthony's Wives" (Vol. I) by Randall Crump, a tale about a man who cannot keep his dead wife buried, to outer-space humor in "All You Can Eat" (Vol. II) by Don Baumgart, a spoof about a group of aliens who "bus" to earth for Mardi Gras. Volume II of Writers of the Future also includes essays of advice by professional writers directed toward beginners in the field.

The volumes also feature a healthy assortment of fantasy tales. "A Step into Darkness" (Vol. I) by Nina Hoffman is written from the point of view of a young girl who slowly learns her beloved neighbor is a witch. Another story, "The Book of Time" (Vol. II) by Camilla Decarnin, deals with charmed books, artful thieves and strange travelers, all rolled into a pseudo-medieval somewhere-in-the-future world.

Hubbard, who founded the contest, died in January 1986 after Writers of the Books

Future: Volume 1 was published. Writing during the "golden age" of science fiction — the 1930s and 1940s when pulp SF magazines abounded, Hubbard is best remembered for such science fiction classics as Final Blackout, Fear, Death's Deputy and The Stars.

In 1983 he began work on the "Writers of the Future" project, a contest organized to give new science fiction writers a chance to have their works published professionally. Visual artists are also welcome to submit their drawings for publication.

THE "WRITERS OF THE FUTURE" contest is a cut above ordinary competitions in many regards. First of all, it is an relatively lucrative venture. While Writers of the Future volumes are published on an annual basis, contestant applications are accepted quarterly. There are three winners each quarter: first place ($1,000), second place ($750) and third place ($500). In addition, a grand prize of $4,000 is awarded at the end of each year.

However, even if applicants' works do not win a prize, there is still a chance they may be published in the annual anthologies. In addition, both "honorable mentions" and award-winners are paid upon the publication of their work. If they have won a prize they make additional money; if they are simply published they still make money.

Finally, the volumes of Writers of the Future (volume III is soon to be released) offer would-be professional writers a national audience; the books are sold all over the country in paperback form.

ENTRIES MUST BE either short-story length (fewer than 10,000 words), or novelette length (fewer than 17,000 words). For specific rules and deadlines, write to Writers of the Future Contest, 2210 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 343, Santa Monica, Calif. 90403.
