Reagan, Mulroney discuss acid rain

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Ronald Reagan faced tough talk on acid rain and trade Sunday in his 24-hour summit with Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, a meeting that could be long on political overtones and short on tangible results.

With northern neighborliness as his theme, Reagan arranged a mid-afternoon departure for the Canadian capital of Ottawa for his third annual summit with Mulroney.

Unlike their previous meetings, however, the latest get-together of the two conservative leaders was taking place in a political climate dramatically altered by scandal and crisis on both sides of the border.

For Reagan, politically wounded by the Iran arms affair, the trip marked his first trip out of the country since the scandal broke in November but, while long scheduled, gave White House strategists an opportunity to portray Reagan as an active president, engaged in affairs of state.

TO UNDERSCORE his own commitment to the summit, Reagan was accompanied not only by his wife, Nancy, but a high-powered entourage of senior advisers.

Appearing on NBC's "Meet the Press" Sunday, Mulroney was cautious in predicting any tangible results from the summit.

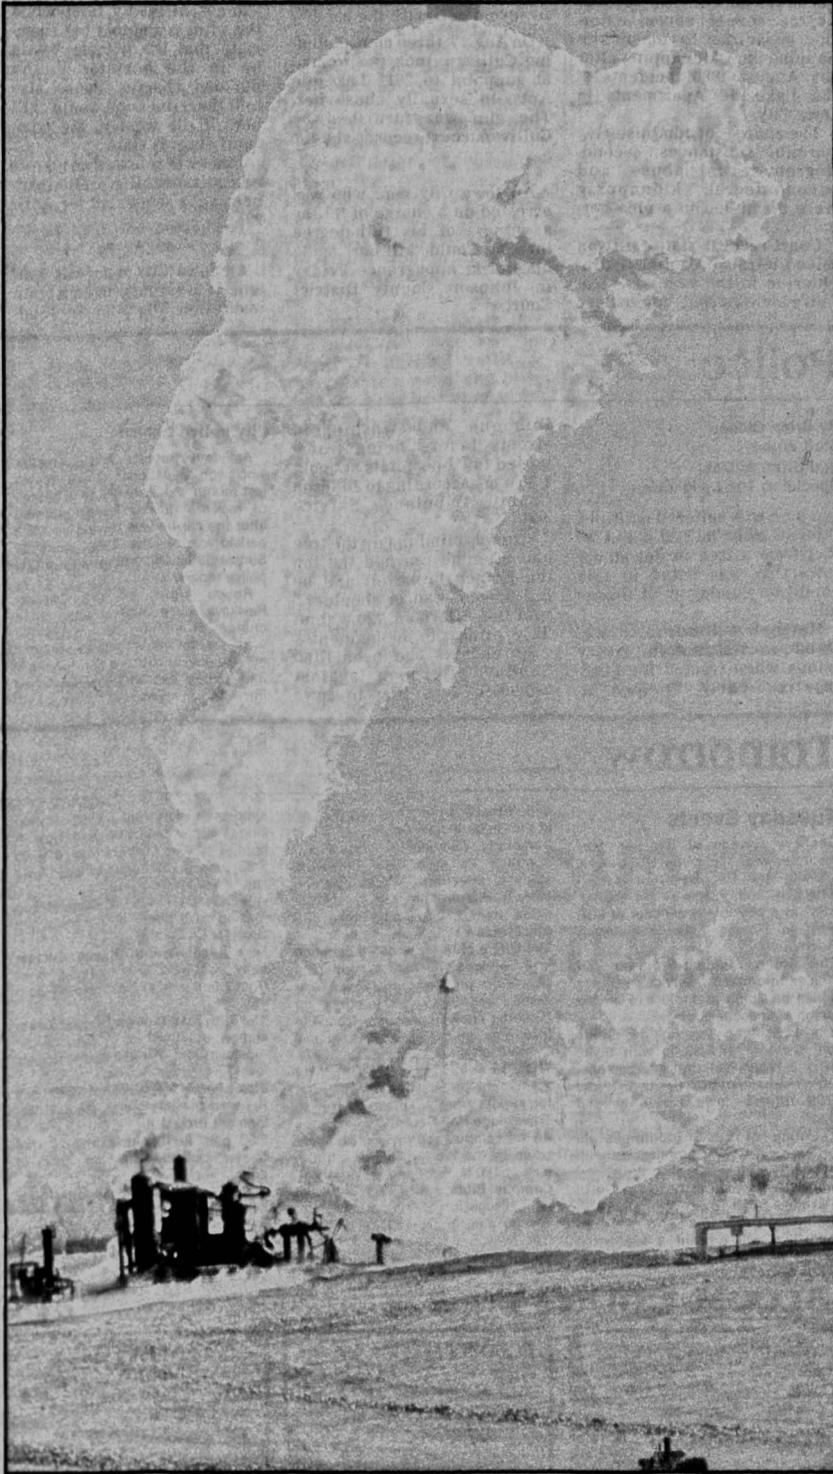

"I don't expect any major breakthroughs on a dozen different fronts," he said. "That's what this meeting is all about. It's a working meeting. I would like the relationship to be enhanced ... (but I'm) not looking for blockbusters."

Of all the U.S.-Canadian issues, none has caused more tension than acid rain. U.S. officials said Reagan was prepared to go no further than his recent agreement to seek $2.5 billion over the next five years for anti-pollution technology.

MULRONEY LIGHTLY touched on the dispute, saying he didn't believe that $2.5 billion was enough but, "While progress has not been as overwhelming and rapid as I had hoped, we have made progress."

However, he did say that "What is required is a treaty, (a) specified time frame during which there will be a reduction (in acid rain levels) ... we cannot solve the problem alone ... we need Congress. We need your help."

Mulroney, his popularity at a low, has been accused of being too accommodating toward Reagan. With his political future possibly hanging in the balance of the trade talks, which face an October deadline, Mulroney was expected to take a harder line than in previous years.

A fire burns out of control Sunday afternoon, and may for several days, at Mid America Pipeline Co. pumping station east of West Branch. Flames up to 75 feet high and intense heat kept firefighters away from the blaze, and the threat of further explosions drove many area residents from their homes.

Firefighters struggle to end inferno

By James Cahoy
Staff Writer

Firefighters Sunday night still battled an inferno at the Mid America Pipe Line Co. 4 miles east of Iowa City that threatened to cost the company more than $1 million.

Firefighters pumped thousands of gallons of water into a 700-foot vertical pipe in an effort to freeze escaping propane to combat the fire that started at about 4:40 p.m. Saturday.

If the freeze attempt fails, D.G. Prescott, Mid America division manager from Des Moines, said firefighters will be forced to release the fuel in the underground storage tank and let the fire burn itself out, a process which may take several days.

"Right now, the gas is burning off at a rate of 30 to 40 barrels per hour," Prescott said. "We could be looking at four to five days before it burns itself out. All it's costing us is money and that's the way we want to keep it."

OFFICIALS SAID Sunday the fire posed no danger, but if the wind changed directions the fire could threaten a fertilizer storage facility about 100 yards away. Johnson County Sheriff Gary Hughes said local residents and observers would be kept away as long as the fire continued.

"I'd say it's under control but you never know about these things," Hughes said. "We are taking every precaution possible."

The gas in the storage facility has an estimated value of $1 million, Prescott said, but added that company officials were relieved that no one was injured or killed.

Fumes from the ruptured gas line turned the pumping station into a giant furnace while flames shot as high as 75 feet into the air from an open relief valve. The fire could be seen as far away as 60 miles and continued to rage on Sunday despite efforts to combat it.

FOR SAFETY REASONS, officials ordered the evacuation of a 4-mile radius around the plant Saturday, but only four families were not back in their homes Sunday.

No plant employees or residents of the area were injured when the fire occurred, but two firefighters suffered minor injuries while battling the blaze, according to West Liberty Fire Chief Dick Stoolman, who was in charge of the operation. A storage shed also melted in the fire.

It was the fourth propane accident at an Iowa Mid America plant in the past 15 years. Two men were killed and three others injured in a propane accident in 1975 at the same Iowa City plant; in 1985, a pipeline leak caused 60 people to be evacuated in the same area; and in 1981 a gas leak caused an evacuation at a Mid America plant in Fort Madison, Iowa.

UI rejects Union lot laser site

By Shawn Plank
Staff Writer

The recommended site for the proposed $25.1 million UI Laser Center in the parking lot north of the Union was unanimously rejected Friday by the UI Campus Planning Committee because the loss of parking may harm the Union's business.

"It's a vote in favor of the Union as a center of activity," Franklin Miller, committee acting chairman, said. "It was not a vote against the laser facility."

After more than an hour of debate, the group approved a resolution, drafted by committee member and UI graduate student Linda Yanney, calling for the Union site to be removed from consideration. The vote was 11-0, with three absent members voting by mail. The site had been recommended by the UI Office of Planning and Facilities.

THE COMMITTEE DID not approve or endorse another site, but agreed to meet in early May with the architect of the project and scientists who will use the facility.

Some committee members asked why the Oakdale campus, located 7 miles northwest of the main campus, was not one of the six sites under consideration by the planning office. An Oakdale site would provide ample room for expansion of the facility, members argued.

UI Vice President for Finance Dorsey Ellis said the center would be a teaching and research center used by the College of Engineering and the Chemistry and Physics Departments. Ellis said placing the facility on the Oakdale campus would make it appear the UI is shifting its focus from teaching and research to economic development, which would "warp" the UI's educational mission.

"IF WE'RE TRYING to make a political statement and shift from teaching and research to economic development, we'd move it to Oakdale," he said.

Students lured by gambling scheme

By Scott Hauser
Staff Writer

Hundreds of UI students are being lured by promises of a quick $200 by becoming a "quarterback" in a pyramid money game circulating on campus, despite the dubious legality of the underground scheme, students said Sunday.

"Ya wanna make $200 quick?" was how I was approached," said UI freshman Kristin Swanson, adding she declined to play the game because it sounded suspicious.

A student living in Burge Residence Hall who said he had played the game, but declined to be identified, said the object of the game is to move into the top position of the pyramid by recruiting eight players to pay $25 each for a position.

The game is loosely based on the structure and terms of a football team, he said.

The top person — called "the quarterback" — recruits two "halfbacks" — recruits two "halfbacks" to pay him or her $25 each. In turn, those two recruit two more people.

THE FOUR PEOPLE under the halfbacks, called "linebackers," recruit another two people, the "substitutes," to give them $25. At the bottom of the pyramid are eight more people, each trying to recruit two more people to pay $25.

Depending on the version of the game, the quarterback is paid either through the intermediaries or directly by the substitutes.

When the quarterback has received money from eight people — a total of $200 — he or she drops out of the game and the two backs become quarterbacks, heading their own structures.

The game's participants multiply rapidly as the number of structures increases.

"The money keeps filtering up in the pyramid," said a student living in Slater Residence Hall, who also declined to be identified.

"If you get in it early enough and approach the right people it works," she said. "It's not a joke."

ONE OF THE problems with the "foolproof" nature of the game, however, is that those who start the game have the best chance of making money while those in the bottom rungs have a good chance of losing their money if they can't find others to buy into the scheme.

There are no accurate estimates of how much money is invested in the game, but several students said they had heard reports of individuals making $400 to $600 in a few days.

The game is apparently a copy of a version called "Airplane" or "Pyramid" which swept other university campuses last fall and earlier this spring.

The game apparently appeared on the UI campus sometime around spring break, according to the players.

Johnson County Attorney J. Patrick White said his office had not yet received any complaints or reports about the game and said he could not issue a formal opinion about the game's illegality without more documentation.

BUT, HE SAID, "Anything that involves the paying of money for a chance is illegal," unless the game is with a licensed organization or raffle.

The Code of Iowa, chapter 99B, which governs "Games of Skill or Chance, and Raffles," prohibits such amusements from being "operated on a build-up or pyramid basis."

UI students said they are keeping the game quiet because they knew it is illegal.

Theatre Department wins national honor

The UI Department of Theatre Arts received a $1,000 award last week in Washington from The Association for Theatre in Higher Education.

Association representative Donald Drapeau, who presented the award, praised the UI department. "This award could not have found a more worthy recipient," he said.

The honor was based on the performance of the play Nijinsky, in Washington, D.C., last week at the American College Theatre Festival. The play was written by UI graduate student Glenn Blumstein.

"To get the national ACTF showcase once is a major accomplishment, twice is remarkable and four times is nothing short of spectacular," Drapeau said. "To do so with plays written by college and university students is an achievement of considerable magnitude."

Pianist set for UI concerts April 10-11

Austrian pianist Jorg Demus will present two performances as a visiting Ida Beam Professor of the UI School of Music at 8 p.m. April 10 and 11 in Clapp Recital Hall.

His recording repertoire includes more than 250 albums, including the complete piano works of Robert Schumann, Claude Debussy and Cesar Franck. He is internationally known for his performances on fortepiano, the 18th and early 19th-century forerunner of the modern piano.

Demus has performed in the United States and Europe and has toured Japan five times.

The Ida Beam Visiting Professor Program was established in 1977 to bring distinguished scholars to the UI for periods ranging from a few days to the entire school year. Funds for the program are provided by the estate of Ida Beam, a native of Vinton, Iowa.

New masters program to begin next fall

Starting next fall, the UI College of Business Administration will offer a "Program for Emerging Managers," a 21-month intensive course of graduate study allowing students to obtain an M.B.A. degree while working a full-time job.

"This program is designed for promising young professionals who are recent college graduates and have less than five years experience in their organizations," said Eleanor M. Birch, director of M.B.A. programs in the UI College of Business Administration.

Birch said the first class will graduate in May 1989. The program will begin in mid-August with a week of classes. Classes continue each week afterward on alternate Fridays and Saturdays.

One requirement for those accepted into the program is that their spouses and employers approve of the students' decision to enroll. Birch said persons undertaking such an intensive course of study will need this support from their families and employers.

For more information, contact Birch at the College of Business Administration, 121 Phillips Hall or call 335-1037.

Big Brothers slates informational meeting

Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Johnson County will be holding an informational meeting for potential big brothers at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 15 at the Johnson County Extension Office.

Men over the age of 18 interested in helping a child during his formative years are encouraged to attend, Margaret Passeri, Executive Director of Big Brothers/Big Sisters said.

The Big Brothers/Big Sisters program serves county children aged 6 to 14 from single parent families by providing adult volunteers to serve as friends and role models.

Drug may give hope to some MD victims

Researchers have reported successful use of the experimental drug cyclosporine in controlling muscle weakness in victims of myasthenia gravis — a form of muscular dystrophy.

Myasthenia gravis is a disorder of the immune system where the body generates an immune attack against its own tissues. Current treatments can have serious side effects but are often prescribed to control the disease.

The research, funded by the Muscular Dystrophy Association, indicates cyclosporine suppresses the immune system more selectively than other drugs. It prevents the immune system from attacking body tissues while still allowing immune cells to fight infection.

According to MDA President Mouchly Small, the use of cyclosporine is experimental and is not recommended for unsupervised use until further tests are completed.

Court drops three charges in bargain

By Anne Halloran Staff Writer

Three out of five charges against a former Iowa City man who was charged with drugging a woman, kidnapping and sexually abusing her were dismissed Friday in Johnson County District Court.

Daniel Leo Cullivan, 61, present address not stated, was charged with administering harmful substances, second-degree sexual abuse, extortion, conspiracy to commit kidnapping and kidnapping after the August 1980 incidents at the Lakeside Apartments in Iowa City.

The charges of administering harmful substances, second-degree sexual abuse and second-degree kidnapping were dismissed in a plea bargain.

Court records state Cullivan mixed tetrahydrozoline hydrochloride in the woman's alcohol which caused her to lose consciousness Aug. 3. Cullivan and another man allegedly sexually abused the woman while she was drugged.

Court records state on Aug. 14 Cullivan and the other man threatened to expose photographs that were taken while she was drugged to the woman's boyfriend if she didn't engage in further sex acts with the men. The photos showed the woman engaging in sexual acts with the men.

On Aug. 17, three men, including Cullivan, took the woman at gunpoint to 2611 Lakeside Apts. to sexually abuse her. The gun was furnished by Cullivan, court records state.

An Iowa City man who was arrested on a charge of telling a witness of his fifth-degree theft he would "kill her" made his initial appearance Friday in Johnson County District Court.

Mark D. Jones, 21, of 332 Ellis Ave. Apt. 32, was charged with tampering with a witness after threatening the woman March 30 at her apartment and an Iowa City bar.

Court records state Jones was charged with fifth-degree theft Feb. 7. Jones made verbal threats and harassed the main witness to the theft, chasing her to her apartment, court records state.

Jones allegedly telephoned the witness and told her roommate that the witness would be in the hospital if she pursued charges. Jones also told the witness he would "kill her" if she went to the trial, court records state.

Jones was released on his own recognizance. His preliminary hearing is scheduled for April 22.

An Iowa City man was sentenced to six months in a state institution Thursday in Johnson County District Court after he attempted to steal a car last fall.

Michael Owen Maxey, 25, of 1515 Ridge St., was charged with second-degree theft after the Sept. 7 incident at 1015 Kirkwood Ave.

Maxey was given credit of 112 days previously served. Court records state Maxey was attempting to steal a 1977 Buick Coupe brand car when he was apprehended by the car owner. Maxey attempted to elude the owner but was caught at Pickard Street and Kirkwood Court.

Maxey was also charged with possession of marijuana after Iowa City police officers found the substance after it dropped out of Maxey's underwear during a search at the Johnson County Jail.

Maxey's appeal bonds are set at $5,000 for the theft charge and $2,000 for the possession charge.

A man who suffered multiple injuries after he fell about 20 feet from a tree in downtown Iowa City was listed in fair condition Sunday at UI Hospitals.

Matthew Stoeckel, 22, Dubuque, was not fully conscious when treated for head injuries early Sunday at Dubuque and Washington streets before being transported to UI hospitals at about 1:30 a.m., according to Johnson County Ambulance Service reports.

"He was climbing up the tree and after he reached the top the branch broke off and he fell on his head or shoulder," said Don Stierman, 720 Walnut St., a witness to the incident.

No charges had been filed Sunday afternoon against Stoeckel, according to Iowa City police reports.

Accident Report: A UI wrestler who won a national championship last month was arrested on a charge of reckless driving Friday morning after the car he was driving struck a parked car in the 1300 block of Sunset Street, according to Iowa City police reports.

Royce Alger, of 223 Carver-Hawkeye Arena, was arrested on a charge of striking an unattended vehicle when the Lincoln Continental he was driving struck a car, forcing it into a third car, which was pushed into a fourth vehicle.

Alger's vehicle struck a car owned by Steve Martin, 1305 Sunset St., which struck a car owned by Michael Peterson, of 1305 Sunset St., which struck the vehicle owned by Leonard Keating of Charter Oak, Iowa.

Theft Report: A car window was smashed and a radar detector worth $300 was taken from the vehicle while it was parked at an Iowa City shopping center Saturday, according to Iowa City police reports.

Ray Novick, 306 Mullen Ave., told police his Whistler brand radar detector was taken at about noon while his car was parked at the Eastdale Plaza 1700 First Ave.

Judge dismisses fake license case

By Anne Halloran
Staff Writer

A recent case involving a UI freshman who was charged last December with falsifying public documents was thrown out of Johnson County District Court because the student claims he was not making phony driver's licenses, but rather license forms.

"What I did was very generic," David Ortega, 19, 1315 Levee Residence Hall said. "It's not a license. It was a form."

Ortega was charged by UI Campus Security after a Burge employee called officers Dec. 5 and told them Ortega was using a computer to make the driver's licenses. When officers arrived, they found Ortega with 10 forms printed out on his computer that appeared to be Oregon driver's licenses.

But Ortega claims he was not guilty of making fake driver's licenses because the forms were not filled out.

"It's kind of like a shoplifter who put something in their purse," Ortega said. "It's not shoplifting until they walk out of the store."

JOHNSON COUNTY District Judge Paul K. Kilburg agreed.

Kilburg, the judge presiding at Ortega's trial, decided to dismiss the case because he felt Ortega did not forge driver's licenses.

"A forged driver's license is a forged driver's license and that's a felony," Kilburg said. "But blank motor vehicle license forms do not fit under the category of what was being charged."

Kilburg argued in his decision that in order to be charged with falsifying a driver's license, the license must be completed and the blanks be filled in with information.

Court records state an examination of the materials printed by Ortega does not reflect a completed driver's license.

Kilburg said that a public document also has to have an impact upon the public and the forms Ortega made could not do this.

According to Kilburg, Ortega did not commit a felony but if he had filled in the blanks and sold them for people to use, he or the person using the fake driver's license would be committing a felony.

"THAT'S THE problem," Kilburg said. "You touch these things, you've got yourself a problem."

Kilburg said the sentence for falsifying legal documents could be up to five years in prison.

But Ortega claims he was not making the licenses to sell them.

"It was not an intent to sell the license," Ortega said.

Ortega's case seemed to interest many in Iowa.

Heat hampers probe of blast

BURLINGTON — Firefighters continued to battle small fires smoldering in the wake of a giant grain elevator explosion that rocked this river town of about 30,000 Friday.

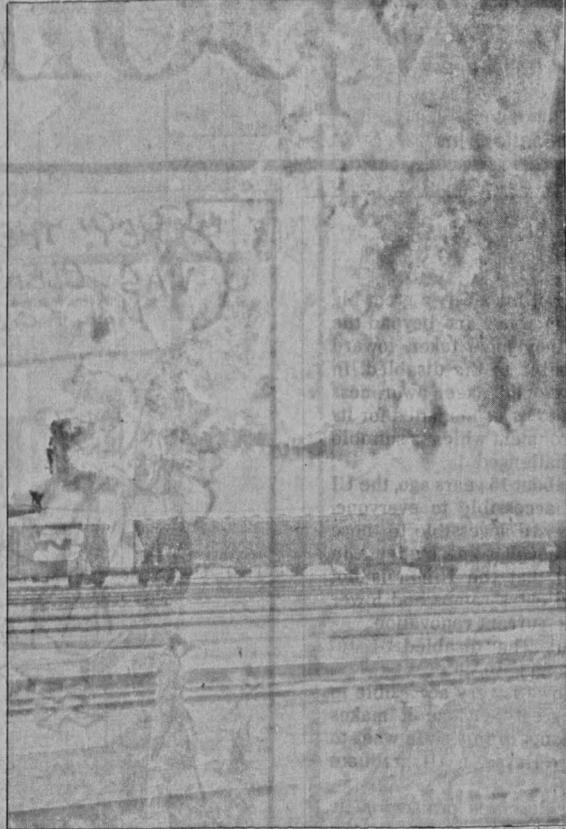

Firefighters said the site near what was once the 12-story Archer Daniels Midland Co. elevator was still too hot Sunday to inspect the debris for the cause of the blast that sent a fireball hundreds of feet into the air, shattered windows at downtown businesses and injured five people.

"A bulldozer was used to spread the rubble around," Burlington Fire Department Capt. Larry Werner said Sunday. "We haven't established a cause, but they are going to start interviewing some people."

FIREFIGHTERS SAID the heat from the blaze was so intense it buckled railroad tracks 200 feet away and blistered the paint on fire trucks.

State Fire Marshal Jim Dunn said he will be looking at the cause of a small fire that witnesses spotted a few minutes before the explosion ripped through a silo at 10:43 a.m. Friday, blowing the top off the bin and igniting a large wooden storage building. Some officials claim the fire may have started from grain dust inside the elevator.

Elevator manager Jerome Kersten, the only one seriously injured in the blast, remained in stable condition with burns at Burlington Medical Center Sunday.

Flames leap from the Burlington ADM grain elevator Friday. The fire touched off an explosion at the plant Friday morning.

Burlington's Main Street was open for business Saturday and store owners reported hundreds of sightseers were on hand to view the damage to the riverside elevator and the storefronts where hundreds of windows were blown out by the explosion's shock waves.

Boards replaced large plate glass windows in many businesses and crews continued to clean up shards of glass from the street and sidewalks.

A damage estimate was not available.

"GLASS COMPANIES sure are busy," Werner said. "They'd be a good investment. It'll probably weeks before they're through replacing windows."

Local radio stations in Burlington have been flooded with advertisements from window companies requesting business.

Meanwhile residents of this town were breathing a sigh of relief that no one was killed following the explosion that threw burning debris hundreds of yards, starting several small fires on neighboring buildings and houses.

A thick cloud of smoke from the blaze could be seen on National Weather Service radar 75 miles northeast in Moline, Ill.

A 10-BLOCK AREA in downtown Burlington had to be evacuated after the blast. Many were worried that railroad cars filled with anhydrous ammonia parked on tracks near the elevator would explode.

ADM officials had no comment on the blast. An ADM official was scheduled to speak at a Saturday afternoon news conference but failed to arrive.

ADM officials said earlier the million-bushel elevator was not full.

Physicians benefit from CPR policy

By John Bartenhagen
Staff Writer

The UI Hospitals policy on artificial resuscitation for terminal patients is both "appropriate medically and helpful legally" because it establishes an advance mode of treatment so physicians are not forced to make snap decisions, UI Internal Medicine professor Richard Kerber said Friday.

Kerber spoke Friday on the ethics of CPR — cardiopulmonary resuscitation — and said all hospitals need to adopt an official policy to follow when dealing with resuscitation of terminal patients.

"As chairman of a CPR committee, one too frequent complaint I receive is that a patient should not have been resuscitated," Kerber said.

The current UI Hospitals policy is based on informing and involving family members in the decision-making process regarding a patient's treatment status, he said.

KERBER SAID THE first step physicians must take in deciding whether to resuscitate a terminal patient is to make certain the patient does indeed have a terminal, incurable disease and would not survive more than a few days after successful resuscitation.

Once identified, the condition and status of a patient being considered for resuscitation is discussed with family members and, if possible, the patient, Kerber said.

"Sometimes people are reluctant to bring up the subject of non-resuscitation," he said. "But when we approach them with the idea, they are often grateful because they have already thought of it."

There is sometimes disagreement among family members, but the conflict is usually resolved once those involved are informed of their options, Kerber said.

"FAMILIES ARE occasionally unable to reach an agreement," he said. "But the general approach is, when in doubt — resuscitate."

Janie Georgou, critical care nurse at UI Hospitals, said a lack of knowledge about the cardiopulmonary resuscitation procedure can affect the family's decision.

"I think the media plays a major role in patient and family reactions," Georgou said. "When people turn on the TV and see CPR portrayed as this horrible process, it scares them."

Kerber said the UI Hospitals have a success rate of about 60 percent in resuscitating over 200 cardiac arrest patients yearly.

Equal access

Let's give the UI and the city of Iowa City a great big pat on the back. Both have gone above and beyond the call of duty with the leaps they have taken toward making this community accessible to the disabled. In recent years, Iowa City has developed a keen awareness about disabilities and deserves to be commended for its efforts in constructing an environment which is suitable for those who are physically challenged.

Due to pressure by students about 15 years ago, the UI began to make its buildings accessible to everyone. Today all university buildings are accessible to those with physical disabilities. Although some students in wheelchairs have complained that the Union is not easily accessible, plans to add extra ramps and lower elevator buttons are part of the current renovation.

Mainly positive comments are what disabled UI students are saying about conditions here.

"Overall, the University of Iowa is very accessible to handicapped people. That's great because it makes handicapped high school students in this state want to come study here," said Casey Hayse, a UI graduate student with cerebral palsy.

The city of Iowa City also deserves praise for its commitment to making facilities accessible to the handicapped. The Iowa State Code requires all parking lots and ramps with more than 48 spaces to reserve 0.6 percent for handicapped. Iowa City has increased that to 2 percent for lots within the city limits. In addition, all city sidewalks have sloped entrances which allow wheelchair riders to travel independently.

Although most places in Iowa City are accessible for disabled, there is still some room for improvement. There are some local businesses, such as The Tycoon IC, Dooley's Dancin & Drinkin and the basement of Iowa Book and Supply Co., which still are not totally accessible to everyone. These and all establishments which are not accessible to the disabled should be encouraged to become so by patrons who take their money to businesses which are open to everyone.

A lingering problem

Unlike most 30-day media wonders, the AIDS issue has not faded into obscurity. Indeed, attention given to the problem of acquired immune deficiency syndrome seems to be increasing. The reasons why, unfortunately, are clear: The epidemic is growing and political issues are intruding into what ought to be a medical problem.

The spread is potentially devastating. By the next decade, some experts foresee a nine-fold increase among the homosexual population and a 20-fold increase among the heterosexual population. Into this dangerous situation, demagogues put forth their own paranoid, ideological goals and agendas.

Those on the right-wing attack Surgeon General C. Everett Koop, a bona fide conservative, because his medical training superceded his conservative agenda. That is, he faced reality and told the public, if you can't be chaste, be careful and use condoms. Moreover, in an effort to save children, he is willing to tell them the same thing.

Liberals, fearful that the right will turn the nation into a Soviet gulag in their effort to root out the "sinners" and the disease, have too often failed to face the fact that just encouraging people to be tested and to change their behavior won't work. People never seem to believe that their plane will crash.

The only hope of controlling the spread of AIDS is to require education and public service announcements in the schools and the media, and to make it illegal to discriminate in jobs, housing or insurance on the basis of homosexuality or AIDS (without a clear health connection). With such legal protection for victims and potential victims, and with a clear mandate for education, the medical profession could act on the problem as a public health issue alone.

They could try education and counseling. They could, if it became necessary, require testing and perhaps quarantine for those who refuse to inform potential sex partners of infection. They could act as doctors without worrying they were also fingering people who would then be threatened by squads of terrified citizens bent on vigilante action.

As the situation stands now, the potential is only for prejudice, discrimination, fear and the further spread of the disease.

The bad news about cancer Manufacturers try to protect against jury decisions

By Paul Brodeur

THE BAD NEWS is that more than one out of every four Americans is developing cancer in his or her lifetime. Better news is that every cancer has a cause. Most often these causes come from outside of us: what we eat, drink and smoke; where we live and work. Thus, we know that cancer can be prevented.

But there's more bad news. One of the strongest measures we have to fight cancer and other environmental disease is under massive assault. This assault is being mounted against the concept of strict liability by the manufacturers of cancer-producing chemicals and toxic substances, and by their insurance carriers. It is being carried out in the Congress and in various state legislatures.

Under our present laws of strict liability, a manufacturer is required to test his product and to guarantee that it will not pose a threat to the safety and health of those who consume it or use it. If safety cannot be guaranteed, the manufacturer is required to place a warning label on the product. "Do not swallow," it may read. "Keep out of the reach of children," etc.

TODAY, THE manufacturers of toxic chemicals and their insurers are trying to weaken federal and state product-

Today, the manufacturers of toxic chemicals and their insurers are trying to weaken federal and state product-liability laws under the guise of tort reform.

Comment

liability laws under the guise of tort reform. Among other things, industry wants to prevent juries from awarding punitive damages for outrageous and reckless misconduct. Since a corporation cannot be put in jail, it can only be punished for misconduct by the awarding of punitive damages, which are intended to deter future misconduct and are not insurable. But the corporations of this nation want to be above the law.

What reason do the manufacturers and their insurers give? They say that juries are awarding excessive damages. They say that juries are "morally flaccid," that jurors have gone "berserk."

Yet who are these irresponsible jurors whose wings the manufacturers and their insurance carriers so desperately want to clip? The answer lies in the Pogo equation. "We have met the enemy," Pogo says, "and he is us."

THIS IS BECAUSE jurors are plucked at random from the voter registration lists in every state and federal jurisdiction, and therefore they are truly us. The manufacturers and their insurers are claiming that we must be protected from juries. What they are really saying is that we must be protected from ourselves.

This is Orwellian doublethink. Isn't it interesting that such doublethink comes hard on the heels of the greatest and most successful toxic tort litigation in the history of world jurisprudence — the asbestos litigation? During this litigation, jurors from one end of the country to the other have applied the laws of strict liability against asbestos manufacturers. Some of these manufacturers and their insurers not only knew for more than half a century that asbestos workers were dying premature deaths from asbestos disease, but conspired to prevent knowledge of this situation from reaching the American people.

THE MANUFACTURERS of toxic chemicals correctly view the asbestos litigation as a precedent. They know that the millions of gallons of unlabeled cancer-producing waste they have dumped into landfills across the nation are contaminating water supplies. Their insurance carriers know that they are at risk for the disease that is now developing because of this indiscriminate dumping, and they want desperately to avoid that risk.

The companies would like to institute a no-fault system for environmental disease like the ones that have been devised to deal with dented automobile fenders. This, of course, will free them from being judged by free and independent-minded men and women. As a first step, all they have to do is convince us that the problem is not their reckless misconduct but crazy jurors and a tort system gone berserk.

If we give up our precious common-law rights, we will in effect issue the manufacturers of toxic chemicals and hazardous substances a license to inflict disease. Will we then one day exclaim, wide-eyed as Pogo, that we issued them the license and, lo and behold, the victims were ourselves and our children?

Paul Brodeur, a staff writer for The New Yorker, is the author of several books on the asbestos hazard. Copyright 1987, The New York Times.

The hazard of elderly drivers

By Kathy Hinson Breed

Despite a last-minute "go out and vote no for the gipper" plea from President Ronald Reagan, the Senate last week overrode his veto of an $88 billion highway bill and gave states the option to hike rural interstate speed limits to 65 mph. The following day workers hit New Mexico highways to post signs announcing the higher limit. Iowa may soon follow suit.

Opponents of the bill predict we'll pay for the privilege with a jump in highway death tolls: higher speeds, more accidents, more of them fatal. And the fatalities most likely will increase. However, there's a greater, yet less-talked about, safety threat than driving 65 mph: Drivers 65 years of age and older.

No one can argue that aging means, eventually, diminishment of capabilities crucial to safe driving. The elderly face slowing reflexes, oftentimes have diminished eyesight and may be taking several medications for the infirmities associated with advanced age.

OF COURSE, everyone can dredge up a story about a neighbor or a relative or old Uncle Joe who's in his 70s and "still sharp as a tack." Fine. If old Uncle Joe can drive without posing a threat to those sharing the road, he should be allowed to drive.

But many, many elderly drivers are just as incapacitated as someone who stopped off for a few martinis on the way home from the office.

For instance, there's the man in his 70s — heavily medicated — who drove his car straight into the rear end of a car driven by my sister-in-law. He then got out of his car and demanded to know why she was "just poking along." She was stopped at a red light.

She now has chronic back and neck pain that surgery and weeks of physical therapy have not eradicated.

Or there's the 79-year-old man who made a left turn over my brother.

AFTER THREE MONTHS of hospitalization, months in a full-leg cast and on crutches, Doug now has a limp that will stay with him the rest of his life. His leg was so badly broken that the crushed bone healed an inch shorter than it had been.

And since these two incidents, I've talked to many others who have a similar experience to recount — tales of spending night after night in a hospital room with a friend or loved one whose days are measured by the hours between doses of pain medication because an elderly driver didn't see the oncoming car in time or didn't see the stop sign.

So why is nothing done about those whose advanced age makes them dangerous drivers?

People hate the idea of inconveniencing or "being mean" to old people. The elderly need to get around too, they argue. Who will drive them to the doctor or to church?

AND LEGISLATORS KNOW that the elderly as a block traditionally have high voter turnout and don't want to alienate them.

But the fact remains that unsafe driving is unsafe whether the person behind the wheel is inebriated or elderly.

Beginning at age 65, all drivers should be subject to a yearly driving skills and eyesight test. Those who fail should have face revocation of their privileges — and driving is a privilege, not a right.

Along with this measure, plans to provide for those who lose their licenses must be instituted: more and better public transit, incentives for private driving services, neighborhood assistance networks.

I'm not saying it would be easy, or cheap, or popular. But it is necessary. Age may excuse some things, but it doesn't give anyone the right to injure or kill another human being.

Daily Iowan Acting Editor Kathy Hinson Breed will write a column for the Viewpoints page every other Monday.

and a spark ignited the gas mixture, which in turn burned through a valve gasket, Prescott said.

Firefighters from the Johnson County area were positioned about 1,500 feet from the source of the fire Sunday. The closest anyone could get to the fire was 70 feet, Stoolman said, adding that water was being sprayed on the 60-foot wide dome containing liquid fertilizer located about 100 feet away to prevent it from catching fire as well.

Firefighters at the plant were attempting to freeze the pipe leading to the storage facility 700 feet below ground containing an ethane-propane-natural gas mixture by pumping water into the shaft. Company officials hope the water will freeze when it hits the propane vapors given off by the mixture, which have a temperature of 65 degrees below zero, and stop the fumes from fueling the fire.

Prescott also said Mid America was flying in clamps from Houston, Texas, to secure the valves in order to release pressure in the pipe if the freezing effort works.

U.S. Highway 6 east of Iowa City and American Legion Road, which had been blocked off to restrict access to the blaze, both reopened late Sunday.

"The biggest problem I have is that, of course, it's illegal," said a UI student who lives off-campus and had played the game, but declined further identification.

"I'm not sure what you would call it — extortion, gambling, or whatever — but I know it's against the law," he said.

Some UI students said the game seems to have run its course, while others said it seems to be going strong.

ALL THE PARTICIPANTS said the game is particularly strong in the residence halls and the Greek system.

A quick phone survey of UI dorms found players in every hall.

UI Dean of Student Services Phillip Jones said he had not heard of the game before Sunday.

"Are you sure people are being foolish enough to do this?" he asked.

Jones said the game violates university policies if it is a violation of the UI's solicitation rule, but said the game could be considered the same as a bet between two friends.

"There are no university regulations that say you can't give someone your money," he said.

Gas fire causes mass evacuation

By James Cahoy
Staff Writer

While many UI students watched in awe as the Iowa City horizon was lit up by the Mid America Pipe Line Co. plant fire, at least 250 people were confronted with the prospect of being left homeless for a night by the blaze.

For safety reasons, Johnson County Sheriff Gary Hughes ordered the evacuation of a 2.5-mile radius around the plant on Saturday. About 250 residents in the area, which also included parts of Cedar and Muscatine counties, were evacuated to local hotels, houses and churches.

Included in the evacuation was the entire town of Downey, 10 miles east of Iowa City, and parts of rural Iowa City.

Most of the evacuees returned to their homes Sunday after the evacuation area was reduced to a 1-mile radius around the plant. But about 4 families who live within the 1-mile radius were not allowed to return to their homes as of Sunday night.

JOYCE AMLONG, whose home is located only about 1 1/2 miles from the site of the fire, was forced to leave her home by sheriff's deputies when the fire began. She was one of the first people to see the fire and said it sounded like a train.

"It was really strange," Amlong said. "I heard a really long, sustained noise, a strong vibration, only I knew it was something more because it hurt my ears. Then I looked out and saw the flames shooting up."

But many of those who were evacuated only saw the fire from afar. Kay Litton, a resident of Bon Homme trailer park located about 2 miles from the site, was driving from Cedar Rapids with her daughter when she heard about the fire.

"We could see it coming back to Iowa City," Litton said. "That's when we decided to come here. We've got a friend in the fire department who says if one of the storage tanks decided to blow, it would take a pretty good radius of the surrounding area with it."

LITTON, WHO spent Saturday night at a motel, said she was not really concerned over what the fire might do to her home.

"I'm not worried about what may happen, I just don't plan on going home and sleeping with gas all around me," Litton said Saturday night. "All I'm worried about with our trailer is it might break some glass."

Laser

Oakdale, he added, is the home of specialized research units and isolated research areas for UI faculty.

"What is not out there are academic departments and programs," Ellis said.

The proposed laser center was slated for the Union parking lot area because it is close to the Chemistry-Botany Building, where some of the faculty will hold positions.

If the UI Laser Center were constructed at the Union site, all 290 parking spaces would be lost during construction. Temporary parking would have replaced spaces lost during construction.

About 115 parking spaces would have been recovered in the Union lot after construction of the laser center was complete. A proposed chilled water plant, serving the laser center and the Chemistry-Botany Building, would have incorporated more than 200 permanent spaces.

BUT YANNEY SAID the lot was essential to the Union and parking a few blocks away from the Union would be a hardship to many, including women walking alone at night.

Yanney said both students and faculty she talked to "unanimously" opposed the recommended site. UI Student Senate Joe Hansen said he rarely heard louder opposition to a UI issue.

"Other than financial aid and tuition increases, I've never heard more unanimous dissatisfaction with the idea of placing the laser facility immediately north of the Union," he said.

Guest dies in Philippines hotel fire

MANILA, Philippines — Fires erupted less than an hour apart in a six-floor hotel and an outdoor cafe in Manila's tourist district Sunday night, killing at least one person in the hotel, firefighters said.

Hundreds of tourists, go-go dancers, hotel guests and apartment dwellers fled into the streets of the downtown Ermita district as fire swept through the open-air Raymond's fast food cafe followed by a blaze at Aurelio's Hotel one block away.

As fire raged across the fifth and sixth floor of the hotel, a receptionist in the lobby told reporters all of the estimated 140 guests were safe. After the report, one body was found in a hallway.

It was the first major hotel fire in the capital since Feb. 13, 1985, when a blaze destroyed the luxury Regent of Manila, killing 25 people, including five Americans, during a spate of fires that former President Ferdinand Marcos had blamed on subversives.

Separatists killed while holding bomb

TAFALLA, Spain — Two suspected Basque separatists were killed and a third was seriously injured Sunday when a bomb they were handling exploded, officials said.

The three men apparently were preparing to place the 13-pound bomb in a nearby French automobile dealership when it went off accidentally, police said.

Since a crackdown by France against Basque activists, supporters have bombed dozens of French automobile showrooms and other French-owned businesses in Spain. Last July, France began returning exiled Basque activists wanted by police to Spain.

A government spokesman in the provincial capital of Pamplona identified the dead men as Alfonso Yoldi and Emiliano Iturri. The wounded man is Martin Perez, member of the Echari town council and of a small radical Basque political party, authorities said.

2 crewmen drown on Lake Michigan

GARY, Ind. — Two crew members of a dredge being towed on Lake Michigan about 3 miles north of Gary were presumed drowned after the dredge capsized early Sunday, the U.S. Coast Guard said.

A tug was towing the dredge and a scow in heavy weather at about 12:20 a.m. Sunday when the dredge began to take on water and the craft capsized, a Coast Guard spokesman said.

The Coast Guard searched for the men Sunday but the search was called off later in the day. The Coast Guard declined to release the names of the possible drowning victims.

The dredge was owned by the C-Way Construction Co., the Coast Guard said.

Search begins for escaped prisoners

PHOENIX — Authorities searched Sunday for three escaped inmates of a Colorado jail, one of them a twice-convicted murderer who vowed to "go on a killing spree" if he ever broke out of prison, police said.

The three men escaped at about 10:30 p.m. Saturday through a wall vent at the Douglas County Jail in Castle Rock, Colo., Phoenix police Sgt. Ken Johnson said. "All three are considered armed and dangerous," he said.

The inmates were identified as Anthony Adair Brobst, 33, Peter George Hild, 24, and Johnny Cisneros, 35.

Brobst has been sentenced to 40 years in prison for killing a motorist who gave him a ride in Colorado following another murder in Arizona, Johnson said.

Johnson said Brobst told Colorado authorities he would "go on a killing spree should he ever get out of custody."

Marine Corps looks into grade faking

DETROIT — The Marine Corps is investigating the source of five faked transcripts from a Detroit high school that were used to help young men qualify for the corps.

The Detroit News, in a copyright story Sunday, said it obtained transcripts that turned out to be fabricated. School officials confirmed the report.

Marine Corps recruiting officials viewed the five transcripts and said all five young men had been accepted into the Marine Corps. Four are in boot camp in California, and one was dropped six weeks after he began training.

According to computer records, four of the students took only basic courses, including swimming, auto repair and band. The transcripts given the Marines show the students taking such courses as economics, French and chemistry.

Kemp begins quest for '88 nomination

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Jack Kemp of New York will cap more than a year of planning today and formally announce his bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

The campaign by the 51-year-old conservative lawmaker is a seemingly uphill struggle, but Kemp hopes to beat the odds by broadening the GOP's base and appealing to traditionally Democratic voters, such as minorities and the working class.

However, even though the nine-term House member and former professional football quarterback has been frequently mentioned as a candidate, he has done poorly in the polls, usually running well behind Vice President George Bush and Senate Republican Minority Leader Robert Dole of Kansas.

Even if he captures the nomination, history shows an even tougher task in the general election. Not since James Garfield in 1880 has a House member gone directly to the White House.

BUT KEMP IS convinced he can win and his strategists argue that history shows it is even more difficult for a sitting vice president to become president.

He calls himself a "progressive conservative," pointing to legislation he has sponsored with minority lawmakers on such issues as housing and urban enterprise zones, and said he is certain he can convince those people to vote Republican.

"For 16 or 17 years now I've been fighting for a view of America and the cause of Western defense that I think is important for the post-Reagan era, particularly in my party," Kemp said in an interview last week.

"I think the president gave us a new beginning. I want to see that cause go forward," he added. "I think I can best develop the base of the Republican Party by attracting blue-collar, working families and minorities and young people."

Dukakis emphasizes Iowa's campaign role

DES MOINES (UPI) — Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis said Sunday he needs to do well in Iowa to show the people of New Hampshire his candidacy is national in scope.

The Democratic governor topped his three-day swing across the first-in-the-nation caucus state with a lucrative stop in Des Moines. A gathering of nearly 100 supporters presented him with $5,000 in contributions.

Presidential candidates must receive $5,000 in individual contributions of $250 or less in 20 different states to qualify for federal matching funds.

Dukakis is also riding high from a Friday poll in the Boston Globe showing him three percentage points ahead of former Colorado Sen. Gary Hart in the governor's neighboring New Hampshire.

But Dukakis said he is skeptical of early polls, having been burned by commanding leads in the past. "The response in New Hampshire has been terrific, but it's still very early," he said.

DUKAKIS SAID THE early tests in the small states of Iowa and New Hampshire are critical to his chances of becoming the Democratic nominee.

"I don't believe their importance is blown out of proportion. We are expected to campaign in them very intensively and I think it will make me a better candidate and a better president if I win," he said.

His intense schedule has already started in Iowa. This weekend he stumped in Dubuque, Waterloo and New Hampton.

Dukakis said while Iowa is suffering from a sluggish farm economy, he recognizes that the right kind of leadership could capitalize on the state's strong points.

"Iowa has so many strengths that, with help from Washington, could lead to a bright future," he said.

His staff said he plans to return to the state every other week between now and next February. "I'm very excited and very encouraged. It's a wide-open race," Dukakis said.

Bugging reports plague U.S. as embassy troubles mount

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Ronald Reagan, responding to a report that the new U.S. embassy in Moscow already contains Soviet bugging devices, said Sunday if the situation cannot be remedied, "we obviously wouldn't move in."

Speaking in Ottawa, where he arrived for a 24-hour summit with Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, Reagan said the United States has known for several years that the embassy was being bugged.

The New York Times, quoting unnamed government officials, reported Sunday that security problems date back to a 1972 decision to build much of the embassy with prefabricated modules made at a Soviet site not open to U.S. inspection.

"I know steps are being taken to secure the embassy," Reagan told reporters during a photo opportunity at Rideau Hall, where he was meeting with Mulroney. "There is a technology to determine whether the facility has been bugged."

"I KNOW THAT'S been a problem for several years at the new building, and I know that steps are constantly being taken by our people, so I can't tell you what the situation is right now, but obviously if there is no way to change that around we obviously wouldn't move in, would we," he said.

Secretary of State George Shultz is scheduled to leave Saturday for a series of talks with Kremlin leaders and questions have been raised whether his discussions would escape detection.

When asked about the possibility of Shultz's conversations being compromised, the president responded, "I think he can take care of himself."

An administration official said Sunday aboard Air Force One that former defense secretary James Schlesinger was making a study of the embassy building at the request of Shultz and he will be going to Moscow soon.

ALSO SUNDAY, a lawyer for a Marine embassy guard in Moscow accused of espionage called the charges "fabrications" and said that the guards were encouraged to "relieve their tensions" with Soviet women.

Michael V. Stuhff, attorney for Sgt. Clayton Lonetree, said Lonetree gave the agents "obsolete fire escape plans" hoping to gain the confidence of a Soviet agent named "Uncle Sasha," Stuhff said.

"Clayton Lonetree believed that if he obtained the confidence of 'Uncle Sasha' he would be able to bring in the person behind him," Stuhff said. "He had a desire to distinguish himself, to go above and beyond the call of duty."

Lawmakers: POW data not forwarded

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Pentagon and National Security Council officials have for years failed to forward important information to President Ronald Reagan indicating that Americans are being held captive in Southeast Asia, two Republican congressmen charged Sunday.

Rep. John Rowland, R-Conn., and Rep. Bob Smith, R-N.H., expressed frustration that the practice was continuing even though Smith had advised Reagan last year that he was not receiving important evidence on possible American prisoners of war.

"The Defense Intelligence Agency just automatically tries to refute refugee reports," said Rowland, who has reviewed classified reports of live Americans and received numerous DIA briefings on the subject.

"It's part of a pattern of poor management at the White House," Smith said in a separate interview. "NSC officials have felt the president didn't need to know important details."

THE NSC MONITORS DIA analyses of refugee reports and advises the president on the findings.

Pentagon spokesman Keith Schneider acknowledged past problems with DIA analysis of POW reports but said that increased staffing and computer capability were producing "a more comprehensive evaluation of reports."

But he said, "Any suggestion that evidence is being withheld from the president is totally without foundation and categorically untrue."

An NSC spokesman did not respond to several requests for comment.

Smith, Rowland and some other Republican congressmen say that credible refugee reports of American POWs suggest that at least a few dozen Americans are being held captive in Vietnam and Laos.

THE ADMINISTRATION'S position is that it investigates fully every report received.

A Pentagon task force, headed by former DIA director Eugene Tighe, found in October that administration officials were not deliberately covering up evidence of American POWs but were doing a poor job of analyzing evidence.

Former congressman William Hendon, R-N.C., said he resigned a previous post as a POW consultant to the Pentagon in 1983 after national security adviser Robert McFarlane refused to act on what Hendon considered a persuasive report from a North Vietnamese refugee.

The refugee told U.S. officials that in 1978 and 1982 he saw several American captives at a prison compound on 17 Ly Nam De Street in Hanoi, Hendon said. Ex-Marine POW Robert Garwood also has said that he saw American captives at the same address in 1978.

1 dies in tour bus accident

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (UPI)—A double-deck tour bus carrying 66 passengers slammed into a low bridge overpass, shearing off the top of the vehicle, killing one person and injuring 33 others, authorities said Sunday.

The driver, who was among those injured, tried to pass under the stone archway in the right lane Saturday night instead of the center lane where the clearance is higher, said Lt. David Stover of the U.S. Park Service.

The impact peeled off the roof and the bus came to a halt 25 feet on the other side of the underpass on the George Washington Memorial Parkway.

Most of those injured were riding on the top deck of the green tour bus, Fairfax County police said.

ONE PASSENGER, whose name was not released pending notification of next of kin, died of head injuries at 4:50 a.m. Sunday at Washington Hospital Center, said spokeswoman Wanda Daughtry.

Stover reported 33 other injuries in the accident. But officials at four Washington and Northern Virginia hospitals said they treated 32 passengers from the accident, including the driver of the "Spirit of '76" tour bus.

A Thruway authority worker looks on Sunday as a section of the Interstate 90 bridge over Schoharie Creek falls into the water. A tractor-trailer and several cars plummeted into the creek. United Press International

Rain-flooded creek causes New York bridge collapse

FONDA, N.Y. (UPI) — A 200-foot section of the New York Thruway collapsed Sunday, plunging at least two vehicles 80 feet into a rain-flooded creek below, officials said. The bridge apparently had been washed out by the swift current.

There was no immediate word on any casualties. Divers were on the scene but could not search the Schoharie Creek because its current was too swift, state police Maj. Edward Vanderwall said. Part of one car was barely visible in the swirling creek.

"Nothing like this has ever happened on the Thruway. It's as bad as you can imagine," Thruway Authority spokesman Arthur D'Isabel said.

D'Isabel quoted witnesses as saying several cars and a tractor-trailer plunged from the Schoharie Bridge, 40 miles northwest of Albany, into the deep, rain-swollen creek when the pavement crumbled, but these accounts could not be confirmed.

IN WASHINGTON, Claude Harris of the National Transportation Safety Board said later that state police confirmed at least two vehicles had fallen into the creek from the Interstate 90 span.

Gov. Mario Cuomo, who was flown to the scene by helicopter, was asked if there was any word on the cause of the collapse. "One would speculate that the force of the river is so extraordinary that it worked some power on the base of the piers," the governor said.

State police agreed that the heavy rains appeared to have washed out the bridge. Vanderwall said Schoharie Creek, a tributary of the Mohawk river, had risen 10 feet above the flood stage.

Vanderwall said the bridge was examined earlier Sunday when two smaller bridges over the creek were closed by flooding. He said he had considered closing the larger bridge, but added, that "there was no reason to."

CUOMO SAID Thruway official told him the bridge had undergone extensive maintenance two years ago.

The state mobilized three helicopters, two shore search teams and 40 or 50 rescue workers to search for missing vehicles and victims, Vanderwall said.

The central, 200-foot-long section of the 500-foot bridge collapsed at 10:50 a.m., sending all four lanes into the swirling waters 80 feet below. Still visible in the stream were sections of pavement and green metallic girder wreckage trapped against a pier.

One automobile, possibly a Cadillac, was seen in the creek. A witness said he saw the cab of a truck bobbing in the rushing water.

As Cuomo watched, surrounded by emergency teams and the state commissioners, a free-standing central pier collapsed into the muddy creek, sending a dull boom reverberating across the waters. There were no injuries in the pier collapse.

Czech visit delayed by Gorbachev cold

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (UPI) — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, said to be suffering from a "slight cold," Sunday unexpectedly postponed his first official visit to Czechoslovakia, where the Communist Party is divided on implementing his reforms.

Czechoslovak Deputy Foreign Minister Milan Narozny said the Gorbachev visit, set to begin Monday, was rescheduled for later this week because the Soviet leader had a "slight cold."

Asked if the postponement was related to Prague's apparent reluctance to implement Gorbachev's political and economic reforms, Narozny laughed and said, "Everyone gets colds from time to time."

In Moscow, initial reports from the official news agency Tass said Gorbachev's visit was postponed because "he contracted a slight cold" but dropped references to his health in later dispatches.

THE OFFICIAL Czechoslovak news agency CTK said the visit "will take place in the second half of the week after a mutual agreement of the two sides."

Western sources said Gorbachev is expected to arrive Wednesday or Thursday.

The West German newspaper Bild, in its Monday editions, said the trip was postponed because of a dispute between Czech officials and Gorbachev over his wish to meet with Alexander Dubcek, the Czech leader ousted in 1968 for trying to implement reforms similar to the Soviet leader's.

The newspaper, quoting "reliable sources" in Moscow, said Gorbachev does not intend to reinstate Dubcek, who works as an accountant on a state farm, but instead will use the visit to signal the earnestness of his reforms.

Bild also reported Gorbachev wants longtime Foreign Minister Boguslav Choupek, 62, to replace 74-year-old Gustav Husak as government and Communist Party leader because the former is a liberal who could implement the Gorbachev policy of "glasnost" or openness.

AN OPEN DEBATE has been under way in the Czech Communist Party since January between hardliners and pragmatists over how far to take reform. The only major change has been an economic experiment involving a handful of factories whose managers are being given more autonomy.

There had been rumors earlier that Gorbachev might delay the visit because reform was not moving along fast enough in Czechoslovakia, but Western diplomats were reluctant to reject the official explanation.

Shiite militia lifts siege of camps

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Shiite Amal militiamen agreed Sunday to lift a 5-month-old siege of three Palestinian camps in Lebanon that brought many refugees to the edge of starvation, militia leaders said.

Amal leaders reached agreement with the pro-Syrian Palestine Salvation Front during a two-hour, Syrian-mediated meeting in west Beirut to end months of fighting that has come to be known as the "Camps War."

The Amal leaders issued a statement saying the siege of the Burj Al Barajneh and Shatila camps in south Beirut and the Al Rashidiyeh camp in southern Lebanon would be lifted and that a cease-fire would go into effect at 8 a.m. today.

POLICE REPORTED scattered gunfire at the camps more than an hour after the cease-fire was announced.

It was the first cease-fire since Syria sent 7,000 troops to Moslem west Beirut on Feb. 22 to end three years of militia rule, and came as foreign ministers of Arab League countries were meeting in Tunisia to try to stop the fighting.

The Amal statement said

Brig. Ghazi Kenaan, commander of the Syrian troops in west Beirut, was present at the meeting and the agreement was reached in response to instructions by Syrian President Hafez Assad.

Backers of Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization were not represented at the meeting. Arafat has previously accused Syria of backing the Amal militiamen in their war of attrition on the camps.

Amal imposed the siege last November, saying the camps provided a cover for PLO fighters expelled from Lebanon during Israel's 1982 invasion to return.

There are about 38,000 Palestinians in the three camps, and food supplies dropped so low at one point in late January that residents were reportedly reduced to eating dogs and rats.

Early Sunday, fighting broke out around Shatila and Burj Al Barajneh after Amal allowed Kuwaiti-funded relief supplies into Burj Al Barajneh.

Palestinian sources said three civilians were wounded.

If you want to get ahead in college, it helps if you choose a brilliant roommate. Like a Macintosh™ personal computer. And now there are two models from which you can choose.

First, there's the Macintosh Plus—now widely accepted by students at colleges and universities all across the country.

It comes with one 800K disk drive and a full megabyte of memory (which is expandable to four).

For those of you who need even more power, there's the Macintosh SE.

It comes with all of the above. As well as a built-in 20-megabyte hard disk, for storing up to 10,000 pages. Or if you prefer, you can add a second built-in 800K floppy drive.

The SE also gives you a choice of two new keyboards, one with function keys for special applications.

And it has an internal expansion slot so you can add new power without performing major surgery. Like a card that lets you share information over a campus-wide network. Or another that lets you run MS-DOS programs.

With either Macintosh, you'll be able to take advantage of the latest, most advanced software.

Like idea processors that outline your thoughts. Word processors for writing, editing and checking your spelling. And communications programs that give you 24-hour access to valuable information.

So no matter which model you decide on—you'll be able to work much faster, better and smarter.

No two ways about it.

The power to be your best.

Sugar Ray faces logic and Hagler

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — In an attempt to defy history, Sugar Ray Leonard must defy logic as well.

Logic says Leonard can only negate Marvin Hagler's brute force with footspeed and combinations. Against Hagler, they will not be enough.

Leonard must show a different brand of speed. He needs upper-body quickness and counter-punching to offset Hagler's relentless attack. The challenger better not come to dance.

"He's not going to run from the guy," Angelo Dundee, Leonard's tactician, said. "Boxing (as opposed to slugging) is not running. It's using your noodle."

Hagler, however, will be looking to use Leonard's noodle for a punching bag. If Leonard does not — or cannot — run, he must fight the defensive gem of his life.

"IT'S NOT A TRADE show," Janks Morton, Leonard's trainer, said. "The idea is to hit and not get hit."

To do that, Leonard will use lateral movement — slipping, feinting, spinning — to exploit what he feels is Hagler's weakness: balance. The strategy also necessitates holding, the tactic James "Bonecrusher" Smith used to negate Mike Tyson's power, and turn their recent bout into a yawner.

What Leonard does in close quarters will determine the outcome. In moving up to 160 pounds, Leonard has gained punching power, and is counting on it to do what no other fighter has been able to accomplish: stop Hagler.

"He's gonna lick Hagler, that's the surprise," Dundee said. "If he need be, he can stand and punch with Hagler. Because Hagler is not a puncher, he's a tactician. He tries to incapacitate."

THAT'S PRECISELY what

Ray Leonard

Leonard will try. Hagler has shown a tendency to bleed above both eyes, and Leonard will use the scars of past cuts as targets. Cutting Hagler, his greatest hope for winning, also poses Leonard's greatest danger. Hagler fights most effectively once hurt. His own blood incites him to mayhem. Leonard must be able to weather a wounded Hagler and, in a 20-foot ring, that does not mean finding a place to hide. Leonard must bloody Hagler, then befuddle him.

Leonard has briefly displayed the tactic once before. In his second fight against Roberto Duran, Leonard had his opponent frustrated by the fourth round. Leonard then abandoned flashy footwork. So total was his confidence in his skill, he stood flat-footed before Duran, feinting with head and shoulders, presenting and then withdrawing his head as a target before Duran could deliver a blow.

Completely frustrated, Duran became the recipient of Leonard's flashing gloves. Even as a welterweight, Leonard was a deceptively devastating puncher.

Hawks go for throat, win four

By Eric J. Hess
Assistant Sports Editor

A small sign in the dugout at the Iowa Softball Complex with the letters "GFTT" reminds Hawkeyes players exactly how they should be playing.

The letters GFTT stand for "Go for the throat," a symbol of how the Hawkeyes defeated the Michigan State Spartans in four straight games to open the Big Ten season.

"I wouldn't trade one of my kids for anybody in the world," Iowa softball Coach Ginny Parrish said after the Hawkeyes had completed a four-game sweep at the Complex.

Going for the throat was exactly what the Hawkeyes did, dominating the Spartans 2-1 in 10 innings, 5-0, 3-2 and 7-0.

"I DIDN'T REALLY see a weakness in any part of the game," Parrish complemented of her conference-pace-setting Hawkeyes.

It was the aggressive nature of the team and the consistency of Iowa which impressed Parrish.

"I was just telling them that's one of the things that makes a difference between a good team and a bad team," she said.

In the first of four games, the Hawkeyes and Spartans went to the 10th-inning tiebreaker in which the player who made the last out in the previous inning was placed on second base.

Iowa pitcher Tracy Langhurst and the Hawkeye defense shut down the Spartans attempt to score.

"We didn't get the clutch hit," Michigan State Coach Gloria Beckford said.

Beckford said the pitching was fairly even, but the timely hits didn't come the Spartans' way. Michigan State left 13 runners on base in the first game.

BUT THE IOWA offense was not to be denied.

Deadlocked 1-1, right fielder Amy Drake was placed on second place. She scored as a Jeanette Painovich sacrifice bunt was thrown away by Spartan third baseman Lesley Keyton.

The second game of Friday's

Iowa's Jeanette Painovich slides unchallenged into third base Saturday during the last of a four-game home stand against Michigan State. The Hawkeyes won all four conference contests.

Softball

action was called because of darkness at the Complex, but the Hawkeyes scored five runs in fifth to give the Hawkeyes a safe advantage before returning to the game.

The five-run outburst opened with two out as the Hawkeyes blasted four straight hits at one time, including a three-run double from catcher Michelle Magyar.

Parrish said it was especially helpful to the Hawkeyes to go home from the suspended game with a five-run lead instead of a tie game. But the pitching performance of junior pitcher Cris Barry, who evened her season record to 3-3 and hurled her first shutout of 1987, was even more helpful.

After finishing off the Spartans in game two, the Hawkeyes kept rolling. Back-to-back doubles by Traci Gilmore and Painovich propelled the Hawkeyes to a two-run second inning.

A fourth-inning RBI by Painovich drove home Magyar, which later proved to be the winning run.

In the fourth game, Iowa blew out the Spartans with a seven-run, 11-hit assault.

In other Big Ten action over the weekend, the Indiana Hoosiers swept four league games against one of last year's tri-champions Minnesota — 10-0, 10-4, 2-1 and 6-0.

Rings cost Iowa league title

By Brad Zimaneck

A mid-meet slump on the still rings Friday in Ann Arbor, Mich., cost the Iowa men's gymnastics team its second consecutive Big Ten title and placed the Hawkeyes second to conference champion Ohio State.

The Buckeyes, the only conference team to defeat Iowa this season, won the title with a 279.80 score. Iowa scored 279.25 and was followed by Minnesota (279.15), Illinois (278.95), Michigan State (271.40), Michigan (267.50) and Wisconsin (265.60). Big Ten members Indiana, Purdue and Northwestern do not to field men's gymnastics squads.

"We did a good job, but I'm not entirely pleased because we might have won the meet," Iowa Coach Tom Dunn said. "We had a cycle of rough spots that would have made the difference."

THE KEY ROUGH spot on the rings was partially caused by the absence of specialist Kurt Kurnstedt, a second-place conference finisher a year ago on the event, who injured himself in warm-ups. Without Kurnstedt the Hawkeyes scored only 45.15 points on the event.

Iowa rebounded the rest of the meet to score 46.55 on the vault, 46.80 on the parallel bars and 47.15 on the horizontal bar but were unable to catch the Buckeyes.

"I think we definitely could have won the meet but we didn't," Iowa gymnast Joe Short, the 1987 Big Ten pommel horse champion, said. "It was disappointing. It showed up during the middle of the meet and we came back a little. But it wasn't enough."

The Hawkeyes did manage to stay in front of Minnesota and Illinois — by less than half a point — which pleased Dunn because it may have insured the Hawkeyes of a spot in the 1987 NCAA Championships to be held in Los Angeles April 23-25.

In the all-around competition, Iowa's Ron Nasti came back from a poor start in Friday's optional to finish third overall with a 108.30 score. Minnesota's Collin Godkin ran away with the all-around title, scoring 113.15. Illinois' David Romero placed second ahead of Nasti in 108.90.

Iowa's Lenny Lucarello placed ninth in the all-around with 102.95 score and freshmen Jeff Dow and Keith Cousino finished 13th and 17th.

Hawkeyes other than Short who placed in the event finals include: Nasti, third on the floor exercise (9.50); Chris Stanicek, a tie for fourth on the floor exercise (9.45); Joe Thome, a tie for sixth on the pommel horse (9.30); Nasti, second on the vault (9.45); Stanicek, a tie for fourth on the vault (9.40); Thome, third on the parallel bars (9.50); Dow, sixth on the parallel bars 9.25; Lucarello, fourth on the horizontal bar (9.50) and Dow, fifth place on the horizontal bar (9.35).

Career-high score vaults Short to pommel horse crown

By Brad Zimaneck

Iowa gymnast Joe Short stepped up to the pommel horse Saturday in Ann Arbor, Mich., knowing he had one chance to accomplish something he had waited four years for — a Big Ten event championship.

The senior specialist from New Lenox, Ill., made the best of his opportunity. Short scored a career-high 9.85 to outdistance Minnesota all-American Steve Braun, who earlier recorded a 9.75 to take the lead on the event.

"I felt pretty good during the routine and everything was going pretty well and then everybody (on the team) started going nuts," Short said. "Then I thought I had the title."

"JOE JUST DID a fantastic job and I'm real happy about that," Iowa Coach Tom Dunn said. "It just get tougher and tougher every year to win a Big Ten title."

Short has known how tough it is for at least two years.

In 1985, Short finished fifth at the Big Ten meet scoring a 9.50 and in 1986 he placed second, to Ohio State's Steve Bradley, with a 9.60.

"It's definitely been a goal of my mine," Short said.

Short's score of 9.85 is also only .05 off the Iowa school record of 9.90 set by Joe Leo in 1984.

Short, a senior business

Joe Short

major, will have only one more opportunity to knock Leo out of the Hawkeye record books — at the NCAA Championships April 23-25 in Los Angeles.

"I think I will have a good chance to make the finals. It depends because there are a lot of people, who if they hit, have the potential," Short said. "The guy who is ranked No. 1 in the country now on the horse is a gymnast from Cal State-Fullerton, who came over from China. He has hit 9.95 and is supposed to be something else."

An NCAA title isn't the only thing Short is shooting for in the month of April. A top six finish in his last routine as a Hawkeye would make Short an all-American, the first Iowa all-American on the horse since 1974.

Hawkeyes struggle in Diamond opener

By Steve Williams
Assistant Sports Editor

After struggling through the first month of its season on the road, the Iowa baseball team returned home hoping to fatten up on some inferior competition, namely Quincy College, a Division II team with a 2-13 record.

But if Saturday's 4-5, 7-6 split at the Iowa Baseball Diamond is any indication of the Hawkeyes' future, Coach Duane Banks is in for another long season.

Iowa struggled at the plate all afternoon, banging out 16 hits against sub-par pitching and stranding 16 runners, 13 in scoring position.

From the mound, the Hawkeyes weren't much better as Banks' pitchers gave up 10 walks and 15 hits, which was enough to keep Quincy in both of the afternoon's contests.

"UP UNTIL TODAY, we were playing pretty good baseball," a disheartened Banks said after the game. "We just played at the level of our competition and with the Big Ten season just a week away, we have a long ways to go and no time to get there."

Banks did see a couple rays of hope Saturday in pitcher Ron Griffith who struck out six in relief to gain the win for Iowa in the second game, and first baseman Jason Jones who pounded out three hits in seven tries, including a double and a triple and three RBIs.

But it wasn't enough to appease Banks who, with one of his youngest teams in recent years, will have to generate some kind of enthusiasm if the Hawkeyes are to better their last place finish in the Big Ten a year ago.

"WE'RE REALLY struggling right now," Banks said. "We've got some players with the potential to be good, but they're just not performing. We'll just have to go out and get after these teams now or it is going to be a long season."

Iowa jumped on top of Quincy early in both games, only to see their leads fade each time.

In the first game, Bill Heinz doubled to score Randy Frakes and give the Hawkeyes a 1-0 lead, but in their next turn at bat, the Quincy Hawks came up with four runs off five hits, including a double by Von Edgar and a triple by Dave McDevitt.

Iowa closed the gap with two runs in the bottom of the third but never regained the lead, enabling Quincy to win its third game of the year.

The Hawkeyes did send their record to 8-14, though, defeating Northwest Missouri State Sunday in a doubleheader at Maryville, Mo.

Reds-Montreal square off in 'opener'

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Baseball's traditional opener takes place Monday about 90 minutes later than its actual opener.

The Cincinnati Reds, who for years owned the right to the first pitch of the season, are scheduled to play the Montreal Expos at 1:05 p.m. That's 90 minutes after the Cleveland Indians are scheduled to start in Toronto against the Blue Jays.

Nevertheless, the Reds are expected to challenge for the National League's West Division title. Montreal, on the other hand, enters the season without three of its most productive players and must struggle to finish higher than fourth in the East.

Tom Browning, 14-13 a year ago, is scheduled to face the Expos' Floyd Youmans, 13-12. The game is a sellout.

The National Weather Service is predicting partly cloudy skies with temperatures in the 50-degree range, although Reds spokesman Jon Braude said he has heard one forecast calling for temperatures closer to 40 degrees.

If the latter prediction holds, fans attending the game might want to keep in mind an idea from Opening Day 1956.

On April 17 of that year, the temperature at Crosley Field was 44 degrees when the first pitch was thrown, and snow was falling by the third inning. Fans brought scrapwood and built fires in the right field bleachers.

A cloud of a different type loomed over Monday's game — the possibility of a strike by umpires. League representatives met over the weekend with Richie Phillips, attorney for the umpires, trying to avoid the fourth strike in the last 10 years. If the umpires do walk out, minor league and local umpires will work the games.

Boilermakers, Illinois dump Hawkeyes

After building a 12-4 preseason record, the Iowa men's tennis team hit a brick wall in its Big Ten opener Saturday against Purdue, losing 8-1, and again Sunday against Illinois, 7-2.

Jay Maltby was the only singles player to win Sunday as he defeated Hector Ortiz at the No. 5 spot, and Iowa's No. 3 doubles team of Martin Aguirre-Scott Shafer defeated Illinois' Scott Greenberg-Manny Vlasco 7-6, 7-6.

Men's Tennis

In other action No. 1 Mark

Long (Ill.) defeated Aguirre 6-2, 6-3; No. 2 Mike Meyer (Ill.) defeated Dave Novak 6-2, 6-3; No. 3 Bill Howie (Ill.) defeated Rudy Foo 6-2, 6-4; No. 4 Gary Pearne (Ill.) defeated Bryan Stokstad 6-2, 6-4; and No. 6 Greenberg (Ill.) defeated Shafer 7-5, 6-7, 6-3.

IN DOUBLES NO. 1 Meyer-Howie defeated Novak-Stokstad 6-3, 7-5; and No. 2 Long-Pearne defeated Foo-

Maltby 7-5, 6-1. The lone Iowa winner Saturday was at the No. 6 spot where Shafer defeated Keith Butterfield 7-6, 6-3.

"We didn't play as well as I had hoped," Iowa Coach Steve Houghton said. "We played poorly against Purdue, with the exception of Scott Shafer. Of the three Iowa wins over the weekend, Shafer was a part of two of them."

Iowa falls shy of goals, but still finishes 18th

By Steve Williams
Assistant Sports Editor

Iowa's men's swimmers finished this season of near misses Saturday with a disappointing 18th place finish in the NCAA Swimming and Diving Championships in Austin, Texas.

The Hawkeyes, who have struggled with an inexperienced line-up all year, finished with 53 points, three points back of Iowa State and will be looking for much better things in the upcoming season.

Iowa loses only one NCAA qualifier from this year's team in Ed Lower. Diver Glen Galemmo and backstrokers Mark Meers and Ole Vold stand as the other Hawkeyes which will be lost to graduation.

AND WITH A SOLID nucleus of John Davey, Dan Dumford, Erik Bacon and Steve Grams returning to the Hawkeyes' line-up, a 1988 Big Ten title is a possibility.

"We had some high goals set for ourselves, and we fell a little short of them," Iowa Coach Glenn Patton said. "We lost to a very good Michigan team this year at home in dual meet competition as well as in the Big Ten and NCAA Championships. But we feel that we will have a good enough team returning next year that we can make up the ground that separates our two teams."

Men's Swimming

But while Patton never anticipated a top 10 finish, he was frustrated to finish in behind Iowa State (17th) and Louisiana State (8th), two teams Iowa beat earlier in the year. "Both teams had great meets from their top athletes, and you need that in a meet of this caliber," Patton said. "We had some good performances, but we weren't consistent and that hurt us in the overall total."

INCONSISTENCY hurt Iowa's Davey over the weekend. After turning in a sub-par performance in the 200-yard individual medley Thursday, the junior from Middle-Thursday, England, came back Friday with a fourth place time of three minutes, 49.65 seconds in the 400 individual medley. Davey also teamed with Dumford, Bacon and Gavin Lilly in the 800-yard freestyle relay to finish 13th.

Inconsistency was not a part of Dumford's vocabulary over the weekend, however, as the 6-foot-8 sophomore recorded all-American performances in the 100-yard freestyle, finishing 12th with a 44.84 as well as teaming up with Grams, Lower and John Linxwiler to take 11th in the 400 freestyle relay.

Hawkeyes rest in non-scoring home meet

By Robert Mann
Staff Writer

With many of its athletes taking the weekend off for training or with injuries, the Iowa women's track team was able to turn in just three first place performances on the Iowa track complex Saturday.

Iowa Coach Jerry Hassard said, however, that the number of first- or second-place finishers was not his top concern going into the non-scoring meet.

"We were resting some people with minor injuries," Hassard said. "We also laid two or three people off in the distance area to rest them. This meet was not a primary focus for most of our athletes, so other schools were shooting for us."

HASSARD SAID middle- and long-distance runners Jeanne Kruckeberg and Renee Doyle participated in fewer events than they usually do, while sprinters Davera Taylor, Alycia Simpson, Sherri Hull and Senta Hawkins did not run at all.

Middle-distance runners Janet Wodek and Sherri Suppelsa were withheld for training reasons, and jumper Lisa Moats also missed the meet, nursing an injury.

In terms of top finishers, Drake ran away with the meet with six No. 1 performances, followed by Northeast Missouri and Western Illinois with three each and Northern Iowa with one.

Bradley and Marquette, the other two universities taking part in the first Iowa Open of the outdoor season, failed to place anyone in the No. 1 position.

Kruckeberg was entered in the 1,500-meter run and finished well ahead of the rest of the field in 4 minutes, 28.5 seconds. Doyle came in second in 4:40.5.

EVEN WITH different runners shifted around or not running at all, there was a bright spot for Iowa as some performances in the field events began to improve.

Sara Joens just missed placing in two events as she finished fourth in both the javelin, with a throw of 37.52 meters, and the discus, with a toss of 41.28 meters. Shelley Redies placed third in the shot put with a toss of 12.78 meters.

Traci Claussen finished fourth in the high jump by clearing 5 feet, 4 1/4 inches, and Becki Borg finished fourth in the long jump with a 5.32-meter jump.

Although some runners were resting Saturday, Lynn McMillan was working hard as she finished strong in three events.

McMillan won the triple jump with a leap of 11.55 meters, just .02 meters ahead of teammate and second-place finisher Borg.

McMILLAN ALSO finished second in the high jump by clearing the bar at 5-6 1/4. The leap was the same as winner Karen Smith from Northern Iowa, but Smith won the event with fewer misses. In the 100 hurdles, McMillan finished fourth with a time of 15.44.

Iowa's Kim Schneckloth held off Darsi Evans from Northern Iowa to win the 800 in 2:15.67.

Roxanne Reynolds was the only healthy Hawkeye sprinter to reach the finals as she placed second to Roshawn Brooks of Drake in the 100. Reynolds ran the sprint in 12.46 while Brooks finished in 12.15.

Spartans, Wolverines swept as Iowa opens Big Ten play

By Marc Bona
Staff Writer

After an eight-day layoff, the Iowa women's tennis team resumed play this weekend, kicking off the Big Ten season with wins against Michigan and Michigan State at the Westfield Tennis Club in Cedar Rapids.

The Hawkeyes (2-0 in conference play, 12-4 overall), defeated Michigan State Sunday, 5-4, and the Wolverines on Saturday, 6-3.

"They were both good matches," Iowa interim Coach Micki Schillig said. "They (Iowa) played real well. They were aggressive; they were really intense because it was their first two Big Ten matches."

"I FEEL DRAINED after two matches. They were both so close, and it came down to the last doubles match (Sunday)."

The Hawkeyes won with a team effort as Schillig was pleased with performances all around.

"Pennie (Wohlford) won both of her matches and played real well. Michele (Conlon) played really well against Michigan State. Pat (Leary) had a good match against Michigan. Everybody had at least one good match," Schillig said.

"Liz (Canzoneri) played really well too. She won Saturday but lost Sunday in a close one. And Madeleine Willard played outstanding," Schillig said.

Schillig, who took over the reigns during midseason for Iowa Coach Charley Darley, who declared an emergency medical leave, knows what to expect from her players: wins. But she doesn't know what Iowa's opponents will throw — or rather hit — at the Hawkeyes.

"I FEEL LIKE I'M going into every match kind of blind," she said. "But I'm not afraid of anybody because I haven't seen them."

But for now Schillig goes by what her players and Iowa Assistant Coach Kelly Morrison tell her about Iowa's opponents. And, so far, it's working.

"They all have to pull together," Schillig said. "It doesn't matter what position they play. A point is a point, and it doesn't matter where it comes from. It's just a matter of getting the win."

With the victory over Michigan State, Iowa avenged an 8-1 loss last year to the Spartans and evened the record between the two clubs at four wins apiece. Iowa's overall record with Michigan now stands at 2-5.

The Hawkeyes will face Northwestern, April 7, in Iowa's last home match of the season. The Hawkeyes will then go on the road to face six conference opponents before the Big Ten Championships, May 1-3, at Ohio State.

Schillig will stick with the line-up that has been doing the job for the Hawkeyes: No. 1, Conlon; No. 2, Wohlford; No. 3, Canzoneri; No. 4, Madeleine Willard; No. 5, Leary; and No. 6, Kim Martin.

"It would be nice to have Robin (sophomore Gerstein, who is out with a leg injury) in here because it would give us more depth than we already have," Schillig said. "You just have to make with what you have."

Hawks set for Sooner Invite

By Eric J. Hess
Assistant Sports Editor

The Iowa women's golf team will try to get on track — or rather consistently on the fairway — when it travels to Norman, Okla., for the Sooner Invitational.

The Hawkeyes, who just returned from a pair of below-par performances in two tournaments in Florida, open action today at the two-day, 54-hole tournament which features 12 other teams at The Trails.

Iowa Coach Diane Thomason said the Hawkeyes would work on the short game before testing out the Sooner course.

Women's Golf

The Hawkeyes will go with the same line-up of Amy Butzer, Jeannine Gibson, Kelley Brooke, Kris Heatherly and Justean Harsh. The best four scores out of five players will count for each team.

HARSH ALSO SAID it was the short game, something that is difficult to practice indoors, which set back the Hawkeyes. And coming off the tee has been one of the team's strong points.

"All of us have been pretty strong," Harsh said, pointing out the common strength the Hawkeye golfers share.

Thomason said it was not windy Sunday which makes it a whole different golf course.

"They're not getting good lies in the fairway," she said. Thomason also said the course features slim fairways and a lot of out of bounds.

"If the wind stays down, that'll be helpful," Thomason continued.

Iowa will face a mixed bag of teams at the tourney. Among the teams scheduled to appear are Michigan State, Iowa State, Kansas, Nebraska, Kansas State and host Oklahoma.

An Iowa gymnast performs on the balance beam during Iowa's last meet of the season against the Illinois-Chicago Flames.

Iowa ends season on a positive note

By Cathy Cronin
Staff Writer

To the beat of Janet Jackson's "Control" the Iowa women's gymnastics team kicked off their last home meet against Illinois-Chicago this Saturday.

And control is exactly what it came down to for Iowa Coach Diana Chapela's Hawkeyes to defeat the Flames by a score of 175.35-170.25.

The two teams last met on March 14 in Chicago where the Hawkeyes again came out with a win by a 8.65 points.

"Nobody took it for granted that we would win. It's not over until it's over," Chapela said. "You can't control the outcome. It takes 100 percent effort and control of the performances. The outcome takes care of itself."

INTENDED TO BE a special meet, regardless of the outcome, Saturday marked the end of competitive careers of Iowa seniors Joni Goldwasser, Kim Lunberg and Chris Newmann.

One day prior to the meet senior Kim Lunberg suffered from a sprained ankle and just when, according to Chapela, she was looking her very best on the beam ever.

"The injury was incredibly

Women's Gymnastics

disappointing personally," Chapela added. "I was really looking forward to her going out."

Taking over for Lundberg was the heroine of the team, freshman Julie McClure from Northbrook, Ill. With a valiant effort McClure accepted the challenge and scored the extra points on beam that could have possibly cost the meet for Iowa.

"Julie was in a situation where her tough-minded competitive drive pulled her through today," Chapela said. "She came out with a 9.0 on floor."

THE FLOOR EXERCISE competition was the only one in which the Hawkeyes finished second. Illinois-Chicago's Missy Miner scored a 9.4 and Iowa's Jennifer DuBois trailed her by .05.

Tying for first place on vault with a 9.15 were Iowa's Kirsten Worchester and DuBois. This helped set a new Iowa school record for a 45.4 on vault.

Hawkeyes take seventh at Purdue Invitational

By Mike Trilk
Staff Writer

The Iowa men's golf team fought off blustery first day weather and charged back to a seventh-place finish at the Purdue Invitational Golf Tournament Saturday and Sunday.

The Hawkeyes fired a first-day score of 333 as all five Iowa golfers failed to break 80. On Sunday, weather conditions calmed and the Hawkeyes responded by carving a 299 score.

"Yesterday the weather made the course damn near unplayable," Purdue Coach Joe Campbell said about Saturday's weather.

Miami of Ohio won the tournament with a 616 total while Illinois finished one stroke back at 617. Host school Purdue was third in the 16 team tournament, carding a 622 score.

Men's Golf

Miami's Mark Burr won the Individual Medalist Award after firing a 75 in Saturday's miserable weather and bettering that score by two with a 73 on Sunday for a 148 total. Five golfers finished tied for second at 150.

Chris Kramer was the low man for Iowa with rounds of 81 and 74 for a 155 total. Other Iowa scores were Bob Kollsmith 82-76, 158; Steve Riley 88-75, 163; David Holmes 87-74, 161 and Jeff Schmid 83-78, 161.

Iowa returns to action on Tuesday when bragging rights in the state of Iowa will be on the line at the Big Four meet at Des Moines.

Collaborative dance can't hold interest

By B. Gordon
Staff Writer

DOUGLAS WOOD'S I Works collaborative dance, MCMLXXXVI, "and they spoke in diverse tongues" has a risky and interesting premise. It explores the mass news media in this country as an image of Babel, and questions the benefit — even the validity — of the constant influx of world information into our daily lives.

Unfortunately, a good idea does not art make. I Works' performance Saturday night in MacBride Hall maintained a high interest level for a total of about 15 minutes, but was more than an hour long.

Wood's opening section, danced to a Gregorian-like chanting of the chapter in Genesis concerning Babel, was filled with images of people helping each other to help themselves. Then a dancer came on stage, waving folded newspapers and began tossing them around.

THE OTHER DANCERS opened the newspapers and, as the music dispersed into several overlapping tapes of speech played by "ghetto-blasters" throughout the hall, a woman in a grey wig came onstage to begin a 45-minute broadcast of the top stories of 1986 and 1987.

A 20-foot video screen

David Berkey, James Moore

descended at the back of the stage, which projected various images such as dancers duplicating the movements of the live dancers onstage, interviews with local citizens about the news events of last year, and dances choreographed in the snow outside a farmhouse.

On top of all this, an actress came onstage purporting to be a time-traveling reporter from "The People Are One" news network, and danced around the stage doing monologues about the sinking of the Titanic and the building of the Berlin Wall.

The combined effect of all this information was entertaining for about three minutes, which is a very long time to be amused by such an overload. Afterwards, what became interesting to this viewer was the degree to which it was possible to tune out what was going on.

I HARDLY heard the news broadcast or the taped vocalizations; I watched the video screen with the same kind of zombie-like, nullified fascination as I would if this was the 20th MTV pseudo-concert video in a row that I'd seen.

But the real problem with the execution of Wood's socially conscious intentions was that the high ratio of meaningless information to artistic pleasure only served to trivialize the connections Wood was trying to make. The idea of the Time Traveler was especially distracting, sinking the entire production down to the level of bad sci-fi.

The only place recorded sound, video and live movement came together was in a section danced to a reading of T.S. Eliot's "Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock." Wood provided a fluidly moving solo dance that was beautifully photographed by Jane Champion, and the live choreography complemented the onscreen feeling. Even that, however, was too long to sustain and needed another element of inspiration after the first five minutes.

UI students 'play' at acting

By Jill Lauritzen
Staff Writer

IF all the world is a stage, then what are you doing in the audience?

That's the slogan the student-run theater group West Side Players uses when recruiting new actors and actresses.

The group will be performing its second play ever, Devil May Care, Tuesday and Wednesday night at 8 in Slater Residence Hall lounge. Admission is free.

West Side Players, composed of about 20 people, was created by resident assistants Julie Helling and Beth Thorson last semester as an educational program.

"AS RAs, WE'RE required to do an educational program. I had this idea in the back of my head for a while since I had done this in high school," Helling said. "I met Beth at the end of (RA) workshop and we both thought, 'Hey, this could really work out.'"

Helling and Thorson took care of all the organization and publicity for West Side Players. Last semester they performed their first play, Neil Simon's The Good Doctor, with great success, Helling said.

"We weren't sure what we'd get (for an audience)," she said. "We expected about 20 to 30 people and ended up having over 70. It was packed."

West Side Players was originally created for those interested in acting who lived on the west side of the Iowa River. Now any residence hall student may perform with the group.

Devil May Care was written by UI student Dan Gurler, who is also the general manager for West Side Players.

THIS IS GURLER'S first play, but the theatre arts major has high hopes for becoming a playwright and hopes this kicks it off.

"I wrote the play especially for West Side Players," Gurler said. "We had some kind of a play in mind, so I decided to write it myself and cast everyone in it."

"It's pretty good," he said. "It's kind of a rush, but it's worth the price of admission."

Gurler said he originally got involved with West Side Players before he was a theatre arts major in order to be able to perform.

"I liked being in plays in high school and I couldn't audition for plays here (at the UI) because I was never around the Theatre Building where all the announcements are posted for auditions. For a person who loves it (to act) and who's not in theatre arts, it's perfect."

Devil May Care is about a deal Lucifer makes with his son over whether or not his son can buy a soul from someone on Earth. The son eventually gets one — but then he falls in love with it. Can there be love in hell?

MARILEE KIES plays the part of Olivia, whose soul Lucifer's son falls in love with. Kies said the play is "really funny."

"There's some really cute interplay between the characters," she said. "If you need a break from studying, this is really humorous."

Helling also said the play is very funny.

"Dan (Gurler) has been outstanding with how he's written the play," Helling said. "It's hilarious, fast-moving — we could use the support. It should be a great time."

Art of pre-Nazi era studied

By Kim Wilson
Special to The Daily Iowan

THE popular culture of the Weimar Republic in pre-Nazi Germany is noted for its utilization of art and mass media to convey political messages.

Specific examples of such propagandized art forms were analyzed in "The Weimar Republic and Popular Culture," a three-day conference held this past weekend at the UI.

The Weimar Republic was established as a social democracy in 1918. In principle, it was democratic, providing for universal suffrage and some workers' reforms. Little was done, however, to take money or power from the former ruling classes. By 1925, the old class structure had returned, leaving the working class frustrated and betrayed.

Photography, then a technical innovation, was often used to project these feelings, mainly because photographs were easy to print and circulate.

UI JOURNALISM professor Karin Becker said in her speech "When Photographs Become News" that news photos were also part of a new artistic realism. While not always as bluntly political as a written essay, they provided a fuller picture of the subject than other journalistic forms.

Stefen Lorant, former editor of the Munich Illustrated Press and Picture Post magazines, demonstrated how he used photographs to speak for the proletariat and to fight the rise of Hitler.

As editor, Lorant designed his layouts to project a certain tone, "the way a composer would put together a symphony," he said. His book on the Weimar Republic, The World Before Hitler, will be available in September. Lorant often used the work of artists George Grosz and John Heartfield. Professor Rudolf Kuenzli of the UI Comparative Literature department went into further detail about their significance, saying that they "used art as a means for radical cultural analysis."

MASS MEDIA was also used to add impact to the spectacle of proletariat theater. David Bathrick of the University of Wisconsin-Madison discussed how directors like Erwin Piscator used posters and newspapers to supplement the revolutionary messages of many plays of the period.

Some of the more popular media, namely radio and film, did not enjoy the same degree of freedom of expression. According to Winfried Lerg of the University of Muenster, Germany, each radio program was indirectly censored by required government licensing. Programming was also inhibited by the fact that radio was not conducive to literary genres employed by other media.

Both of the presentations analyzing film dealt with the issue of modifying content to articulate a political message. Patrice Petro of the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee discussed the way censors tailored the film The Joyless Street to repress feminism.

Eric Rentschler of the University of California-Irvine argued that the purpose of the film The Blue Light was to further the Nazi ideal of sacrificing individuals for the sake of the greater whole.

QUESTION #4.

WHEN SHOULD THE COLLEGE STUDENT CALL FAMILY AND FRIENDS?

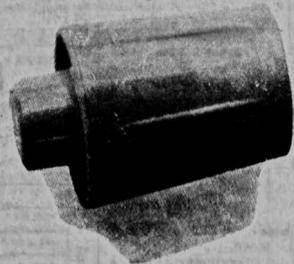

- During weekends until 5 pm Sunday, and from 11 pm to 8 am Sunday through Friday, to save over 50% off AT&T's weekday out-of-state rates.
- The minute your bank statement reveals a negative $60 balance.
- Between 5 pm and 11 pm, Sunday through Friday, to save 38% off AT&T's weekday out-of-state rate.
- With AT&T, any time you want a clear long distance connection.
- When you hear they've removed the mysterious "Venetian Blind" ritual from your fraternity initiation.

You've just aced the calculus exam that you'd been dreading like the plague. Your date last night told you she had an "out-of-body" experience. Your roommate's joined a new cult that worships luncheon meats.

When you're away at school, there are a million reasons to stay in touch with the people you miss. And there's no easier way to do it than with AT&T Long Distance Service.

Between our discount calling periods and our everyday high quality service, the best time to call with AT&T Long Distance Service is any time you want to say "Hello," or "Guess what?" or "You won't believe this, but..."
