Lawmakers call for new embassy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The new U.S. Embassy in Moscow is riddled with spy equipment and must be torn down, and the Soviets should pay the millions of dollars required for its replacement, two lawmakers just back from Moscow said Wednesday.

Reps. Dan Mica, D-Fla., and Olympia Snowe, R-Maine, told a news conference just minutes after returning to Washington that during their inspection of the facility this week, "we saw evidence" of espionage equipment.

"Based on what I know today, it would have to be torn down," Mica said, and Snowe agreed, adding that the Soviets should pay for a new U.S. Embassy.

"They did the damage. They should pay for it," Snowe said. "They should be held responsible or accountable." Snowe and Mica have said

Shultz 'upset' as spy scandal spreads

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The sex-for-secrets scandal spread Wednesday to the U.S. consulate in Leningrad and back to 1981 with the arrest of a Marine suspected of espionage while assigned as a guard there six years ago, the Pentagon said.

Sgt. John Joseph Weirick, 26, of Eureka, Calif., was arrested Tuesday at the Marine Corps Air Station at Tustin, Calif., and was confined to the brig at Camp Pendleton, Calif., on suspicion of spying and contacts with Soviet women while at the consulate, Pentagon spokesman Robert Sims said.

The sergeant, who is married, has not been charged with a crime. He will be transferred to the Marine base at Quantico, Va., where three other Marine suspects are being held, Sims said. Two of them have been charged with espionage.

Sims also said Staff Sgt. Robert Stufflebeam, 24, of Bloomington, Ill., was formally charged Tuesday on three counts of failing to report his contact with a Soviet woman in Moscow in July, September and October 1985.

Stufflebeam, the deputy commander of the guard detachment, was freed from the Quantico brig by a military magistrate Monday because of insufficient reasons to hold him as an espionage suspect. He has been confined to the base.

In another development Wednesday, Secretary of State George Shultz said "we're damned upset" about Soviet snooping at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow and the scandal will "cast a heavy shadow" over his meetings in the Soviet capital next week.

Shultz, expressing shock at the spy affair, took responsibility through the capped a day of calls from congressional leaders for tougher security at U.S. diplomatic posts around the globe as a result of the Marines' sex-for-secrets scandal.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, called for an indefinite suspension of building new posts in Soviet-bloc countries and China until the State Department submits a plan for spy-free construction.

The United States wants to build new stations in Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, East Germany and Hungary. On the new building in Moscow, Lugar noted that he issued a report Oct. 20 saying the embassy was from the start open to security problems because the Soviets insisted the building be constructed from a Soviet design and with Soviet builders.

during their tour that $140 million may be needed to restore the security of the embassy. Asked if the Soviets should pay cash or pay for a new building, Snowe said, "Either way would be fine" — but she did not say how it would be collected. "I think, frankly, what has happened, is we're going to have to tear down the building," she said. Mica said he could not describe what "evidence" he saw because the data, provided by U.S. technical experts, was classified. But he called on the administration to release the information. "IF THE RUSSIANS put it there and the Russians know about it... as soon as possible, the American public should be allowed to know what we know," he said. The news conference at Dulles International Airport

'5-year' plan on the increase

By Anjanette Brush

Many UI students are spending more than the customary eight semesters working to complete their undergraduate degrees, according to a study recently conducted by the UI Liberal Arts Student Association which reported only 40 percent of UI students are able to graduate in four years.

The economy, student indecision and over-crowded courses contribute to the lengthening of the traditional four-year liberal arts education, a phenomenon UI Vice President for Academic Affairs Richard Remington says is not unique to the UI.

"More and more students are taking longer and longer to get their degree," Remington said. "It's something that we are seeing nationwide."

WEAK ECONOMIC conditions, cuts in student financial aid and rising tuition rates are forcing an increasing number of students to get full- or part-time jobs to help fund their education, Remington said. Many of these students enroll only part-time in classes, he added, therefore taking more time to finish.

Restricted access to courses also contributes to the amount of time required before a student can graduate, Remington said. Some required courses in high demand are not always offered, forcing students to wait to register for them.

"It can be difficult to get into courses when there is crowding and a shortage of instructors," Remington said. "Availability of courses is difficult when budgeting is not what it needs to be."

ANOTHER FACTOR in the length of a student's collegiate career is the selection of a major, Remington said. Students studying in one program often decide to start over in another, prolonging the time they will have to spend at the UI, he said.

"A larger number of students are coming here not sure of their major," Remington said. "It's hard to make that decision the first day you arrive.

Students want to get a feel for the university and are willing to take longer in getting their degree to be sure they're in a field that's right for them."

While he said there is little that can be done about economic and budgeting factors keeping students in school longer, Remington acknowledged a proposal made last year by members in LASA and the UI Collegiate Associations Council "would be worth looking into."

UI sophomore Melissa Zymboly, a LASA congresswoman who worked on the study, said that proposal would involve the UI offering more courses that would award four semester hours of credit instead of three.

"As it stands now, a student needs an average of five courses per semester to graduate in four years," Zymboly said. "What is proposed is more classes worth four semester hours."

Zymboly said by re-evaluating courses and assigning them greater credit value, students would need fewer classes to obtain the required semester hours.

UI pay lags in Big Ten despite hike

By Scott Hauser

According to a report issued by the American Association of University Professors this week, salaries for the nation's university professors increased this academic year by 3.5 percent over last year, the largest jump in 15 years.

While the report said the average salary of $46,300 for a UI full professor is above the national average of $45,520, UI officials urged caution in interpreting the report as evidence of improved salary conditions at the UI.

"The comparisons you need to make are with universities comparable to ours," said UI Vice President for Academic Affairs and Dean of Faculties Richard Remington.

He said comparing a major research university like the UI to many other of the nation's universities and colleges — many of which have only undergraduate programs — "is like comparing apples and oranges."

REMINGTON SAID average salaries at the UI are higher than the study's average because salaries for faculty in the health sciences, law and other professional colleges are higher than average, raising the UI's mean.

The report compared salaries for full, associate, and assistant professors, and instructors at 1,900 colleges and universities across the nation, Iris Molotsky, spokeswoman for the association said.

The nation's average salary for the four ranks is $35,470, while the UI's average for the four is $38,900, she said.

Remington said UI salaries increased 5.5 percent in the 1986-87 year over the 1985-86 level. The UI administration has asked for a 13 percent increase for the upcoming year, he added.

UI Professor Michael Brody, president of the UI Faculty Council, said UI faculty salaries continue to be in "very, very serious trouble."

HE SAID THE UI continues to be ranked at the bottom of the Big Ten Conference in comparable salaries.

"We don't need to be compared to all schools nationwide," he said, adding the UI's salary structure is not comparable with the UI's academic competition.

Citing a report presented to the state Board of Regents at its December 1986 meeting, Brody said the UI also ranks last among its competitors.

Firemen drop efforts to end pipeline blaze

By James Cahoy
Staff Writer

Firefighters and Mid America Pipe Line Co. officials have decided to forego any attempts to extinguish the blaze at the Mid America storage facility 5 miles east of Iowa City, a decision that could mean the fire will burn for 10 to 12 more days.

The fire, which began when a propane gas mixture in an underground storage facility was ignited by a spark from an malfunctioning engine on an air compressor, has been burning since Saturday.

"The fire... has remained stable and unchanged for approximately three days, is being safely contained within the terminal area and does not pose a hazard to people or property outside the 100-150 foot area immediately adjacent to the fire," officials said at a press conference Wednesday.

"AT THIS TIME, however, the company and fire officials do not intend to make any attempt to put out the fire," officials said, adding that there may be some future attempt to extinguish the fire while firefighters and Johnson County sheriff's deputies continue to monitor the fire.

"The fire has diminished considerably since it began," Mid America Assistant Manager for Engineering Ralph Ball said. "This seemed like the safest way to do things."

West Branch Fire Chief Dick Stoolman, who continues to head the effort to control the fire, said the problem is not in putting out the fire.

"We could put out the fire anytime," Stoolman said. "We just can't contain the fuel vapor, and so we can't put out the fire."

COMPANY OFFICIALS say if the fire is put out now, pressure from the rising gas would cause the liquid fuel in the tank to ignite.

Ralph Ball

"It wouldn't do us any good to put the fire out at this time," Ball said. "As the gas burns, the pressure in the tank will go down, so it makes more sense to let it burn."

Ball said once the fire is put out, it will take about 12 to 14 hours to replace the damaged equipment and restore the plant to working order.

Estimates indicate the fire will cost Mid America Pipe Line Co. more than $1 million.

In addition to damage to the plant and loss of fuel, Mid America officials say they will reimburse all evacuated families for their total expenses, and will also pay the costs of the fire departments involved with fighting the blaze.

Johnson County Sheriff Gary Hughes said the five families who remained evacuated because of the fire have been advised they can go home, but only one had as of Wednesday.

Hughes also said that American Legion Road, which leads to the plant, will remain closed for the duration of the fire.

AIDS in Iowa spreads, awareness doesn't

By Anne Kevlin
Special to The Daily Iowan

At first, the disease hides itself within the body, but in time, its victims wear a hollow mask of pain and suffering. There is no cure — there are only increasing numbers of victims. More than 33,000 cases of AIDS have been reported in this country, according to the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta. More than 19,000 people have died from AIDS, and experts estimate another 1.5 million Americans carry the deadly virus.

In Iowa, 49 AIDS cases have been reported, according to David Fries of the Iowa State Department of Health. Students and faculty members at the UI have also been diagnosed with the disease, Joel Gray, resident adviser for the UI's Gay People's Union and a nurse at UI Hospitals, said. AIDS can be contracted in different ways, but it is through sexual intercourse that AIDS snares most of its sufferers. And on college campuses, sexual activity and sexual freedom is frequent.

"COLLEGE-AGED PEOPLE

The Daily Iowan/Jeffrey Sedam

This story is one in a series examining AIDS and its impact on the UI.

Action Center, said. "This is a very vulnerable population. The seriousness of (AIDS) is a reality, and people need to face it."

Perhaps what is most frightening about AIDS is the way it spreads, often without the knowledge of its victims. In many cases, symptoms of AIDS don't appear for four or more years. During this time, victims may unwittingly infect others, possibly through sexual contact, while showing no signs of illness, according to the Centers for Disease Control.

CHANCES OF THIS type of infection at the UI seem likely, Ralph Knudson of the UI Family Practice Center, said. "Certainly, we have people in the community who (carry the AIDS virus), who are not aware of it, most of whom are gay, some of whom are having heterosexual relations as well," he said.

"It's pretty conceivable," Knudson added, "that a female could pick up the virus with a bisexual male, and then give it to the plain old everyday heterosexual college guy."

What makes the UI population especially prone to the transmission of the AIDS virus is the amount of sexual activity among students. The more sexual partners an individual has, the greater the chance of infection, according to pamphlets published by the U.S. Public Health Service.

"CERTAINLY, SEXUAL contact is prevalent on a college campus," Chuck Fallis of Centers for Disease Control said.

"Casual, one-night stands are an issue," Howard Ruppel, a sexologist who teaches a course in human sexuality at the UI, said.

UI senior Dan Delleman agrees. "I would say there are a lot of one-night stands. A lot of people are just getting away from home, and they can have people spend the night, and that happens."

Residence halls, sororities and fraternities are frequent "pick-up" sites, according to students.

"It goes on a lot in the dorms," UI freshman Linda Bonifazi, who lives in Burge Residence Hall, said.

Senior Beth Stein, a member of a sorority, said some members of greek houses frequently have "a lot of different sexual partners," whom they meet at greek parties or exchanges.

"There are men in fraternities who sleep with other men, and then at the exchanges they sleep with women, too," Gray said. "You're talking about an age group who are starting to experiment with drugs, with sex."

EVEN THE THREAT of AIDS hasn't deterred sexual activity at the UI.

"The students are being very naive about the problem," Gray said, adding that some students don't feel endangered by AIDS and that is a dangerous attitude.

"I think there's still a lot of misinformation, and a lot of ignorance," Mary Khowassah, acting director of Student Health Services, agreed.

Delleman said he does think about the risk. "But I think, just like everyone else, that it wouldn't happen to me," he said.

Buckley said students don't understand that the disease affects heterosexuals as well as homosexuals.

"It is not a 'gay' disease — it is a disease of the whole population," she said. "If you are having sex, you are at risk."

Gerald Stone, director of University Counseling Services, said there is also a denial that AIDS exists locally.

"I think one of the problems here at (the University of Iowa) is that it's seen as happening somewhere else," he said.

But cases of AIDS concentrated in coastal cities like New York, Los Angeles and Miami are moving into the Midwest, according to Gray.

"It's not going to jump back in the ocean," he said. "Where's it going to go? It's going to move inward."

AIDS awakens new outlook in one man

By Anne Kevlin
Special to The Daily Iowan

The Iowa River is racing, muddy under a blue April sky, and trees on the bluffs are threatening to break out in green at any time.

It's a view that has often inspired UI music Professor Kerry Grippe. From the living room of his A-frame house in Coralville, Grippe has watched the seasons change for seven years.

"It's a beautiful day," he says. But this day, like most days, Grippe stays indoors, weakened by the disease that will inevitably take his life: AIDS.

In the evening, friends will convince him that he should return, once again, to the hospital where he can be treated for tuberculosis, one of his illnesses resulting from AIDS. But now, Grippe talks about the disease that is destroying his immune system.

ALMOST TWO YEARS ago Grippe tested positive for antibodies to the AIDS virus, meaning the virus was dormant in his body. Last fall, he came down with a severe case of pneumonia that put him in the hospital, and indicated he was an AIDS victim.

No one has ever recovered from AIDS, but that fact has not completely discouraged Grippe. AIDS has been a positive experience, he says.

"In many ways, it's been good for me. It has forced me to re-evaluate my life, and it has taught me a lot, and helped me grow," the 38-year-old said.

One way he has grown, Grippe said, is spiritually. Through this "tremendous spiritual awakening," he developed an acceptance of his mortality.

"The breakthrough came in January, when I really did see that I might die," Grippe said. "I've really developed an acceptance of dying."

IN HIGH SCHOOL and college, Grippe said he started his search for "spiritual" meaning, eventually becoming disillusioned with organized religion.

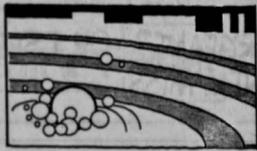

"I grew up a Catholic, and then gradually discovered the church didn't have answers for me," he said. "For me, it's too restricting."

During one hospital stay in January, Grippe said he had a near-death experience in which he felt his body was moving forward through space. The experience was enjoyable, and he wanted it to continue, but he heard a voice say, "No, it's too soon."

Grippe said the incident helped him face death.

"When the time comes, I can accept it." Another positive effect of having AIDS is the support Grippe has received from family, friends, students and co-workers, most of whom are aware he has AIDS.

MARYLYN SOMVILLE, director of the UI School of Music, said she had "the same reaction I would have had if any faculty member came down with any serious illness." Somville added she was "unhappy that anyone's career would be interrupted" by a disease. "My whole family has changed," he adds. Most of his family members are in Arkansas, but Grippe said they visit frequently, and sometimes he visits them.

GRIPPE ALSO remains close with his ex-wife, Bev, who lives in California. The two were married when they lived in Arkansas, but jobs in different cities separated them and eventually they got a divorce. Grippe says he is bisexual, a fact that Bev was aware of when she married him. They have been separated for too long to have any worries that she might have contracted AIDS from him, Grippe said.

Since becoming an AIDS victim, Grippe has contracted pneumonia, food poisoning and tuberculosis. His weakened immune system has made the illnesses more severe and more difficult to get over than normal. Although some people incorrectly assume AIDS can be contracted by being in the same room with him, Grippe is at greater risk of catching infections from his visitors.

Grippe said the care he has received from hospitals has been good for the most part, but after some bad experiences he tries to stay at home rather than in any hospital unless a stay is absolutely required.

"IT'S MUCH NICER here. The food's better," he said.

A pianist, Grippe says he lacks the energy to play anymore. Instead, he has been writing poetry which he hopes to someday publish. He is usually too weak to do the things he wants to do.

"All the month of February, I had to rest... I had to force myself to rest," he said. "It's been difficult for me to not feel guilty about lying around all day."

AIDS has changed Grippe's lifestyle, but he says it is changing society as well.

"To some extent, the disease is trying to tell society, 'You must change.'"

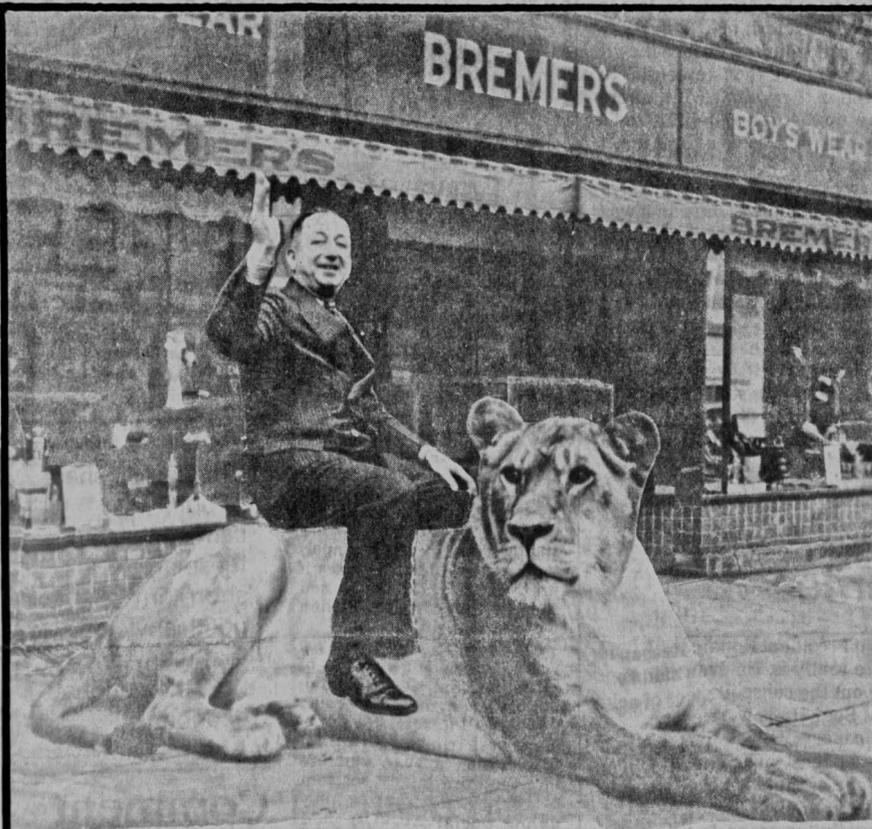

Grippe disputes the notion that AIDS is a form of punishment for homosexuals.

"GOD'S NOT like that," he said. "God is perfect love, and he would never do anything like that."

Grippe said he is fighting to stay alive so others may learn from his experience.

"(AIDS is) going to affect everyone, and everybody's going to be touched somehow," he said. "My advice is safe sex and education."

AIDS in society is "going to force people to re-evaluate their priorities and what they have, what's important to them," he added.

Harry Bremer went to Johannesburg, South Africa in the middle 30's to visit his sister. He returned with two lion cubs that were caged in the Bremer carriage house at 1036 Woodlawn.

In later years Iowa Citians enjoyed the lions at the City Park Zoo.

A wise decision

In any business, job security tends to be a touchy subject and changes in job review policy often meet with all the enthusiasm that would greet a cut in salary. This is especially true in the world of university administration, where the job market is keenly competitive.

The UI Faculty Senate, however, braved opposition from some UI colleges Tuesday and voted in favor of limiting administrative positions to specific, renewable terms.

According to UI Professor of English Don Marshall, the proposal doesn't necessarily mean all administrators will see their jobs come up for grabs every few years. "Our first assumption — our working assumption — when we appoint a department head is that at periodic, stated intervals we will be asked to consider with an open mind whether this person should be replaced," he says.

The senate's vote in favor of such periodic review is wise. All workers, whether a file clerk or a university president, need some sort of procedure to ensure they'll get the feedback on job performance that's essential to maintaining a smooth operation. Periodic review offers a planned, systematic way to discuss a department's progress, to look at what needs improvement and to set goals for continued excellence.

Set, agreed-upon job review also provides a safety valve for the removal of a substandard administrator in a way that doesn't necessitate job-endangering whistleblowing by others in the department.

The resolution now goes back to the UI Faculty Council for clarification as to exactly which administrators and colleges the term policy would cover.

Although some colleges oppose the measure the faculty panels should resist the pressure to exempt some colleges or departments. Much is at stake here: the quality of the education and research opportunities offered by the UI, and the excellence of its administrative staff.

Wasted worries

It's reassuring to know that President Ronald Reagan is worried about acid rain. He really is. He even said so.

"We continue to worry about the consequences of acid rain," Reagan said Sunday. See? He is worried.

Well, now that Reagan's concern is well-documented, everyone can rest easy — at least everyone who is a chief executive officer for one of the Midwest's smokestack industries.

Acid rain is a form of air pollution generated when the burning of fossil fuels releases sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxide into the atmosphere. When the acidic solution returns to earth in the form of rain, snow or small particles, lakes, rivers, plants and even humans can be adversely affected. Most commonly, Canada and New England bear the brunt of acid rainfall because the prevailing winds carry the toxic substance from factories in the Midwest to the Northeast.

In his 24-hour meeting with Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney last weekend, Reagan was pressed on the acid rain issue, but refused to commit the United States to a program to reduce acid rain by 50 percent by the early 1990s.

Instead, the president promised to discuss the possibility of making such an agreement. Also, he proposed further research into the problem of acid rain, including a $2.5 billion plan to develop a method to burn coal cleanly.

Very nice. But research has been going on for years while steps to protect the ecosystem have been nonexistent. At this point, the problem is well-defined and so are the solutions. Factories must reduce their emissions of sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxide if acid rain is to be stopped.

To pledge the United States to a "discussion of possibilities" is only to delay the necessary action. Clearly, saving smokestack industries the time and money it would take to clean up their emissions is secondary to saving the environment. But worrying about it won't help much.

Tax increase: a harsh reality

By Vic Fazio

IT'S TIME to talk sense about the federal deficit, even if the prescription doesn't make us feel good. We need to restrain spending but, equally important, we need to raise taxes if we want to cut the deficit and re-establish a firm foundation for the economy.

It took 39 presidents and 200 years to accumulate a debt of $1 trillion. But since 1981, the national debt has more than doubled. Interest payments alone have tripled, to a total of $140 billion a year, and are now the third largest segment of our budget, ranking only below Social Security and defense expenditures.

It's a tragic waste made even more galling by the fact that we increasingly pay this debt to foreign investors in Tokyo, Hamburg, Geneva and Riyadh who have been bailing us out by buying federal securities.

CONGRESS' RECORD of fiscal restraint is often overlooked and understated. While spending in general has risen sharply under President Ronald Reagan to a record high, Congress has cut domestic programs by $300 billion since 1981 and finally slowed the relentless growth in defense spending in 1986. Many Americans don't know that Congress has reduced the president's budget requests by more than $25 billion over the Antitax rhetoric has won its share of political campaigns, but these are short-term political victories that ultimately hurt the national economy.

Comment

last six years.

But the deficits remain. Slower economic growth and huge tax cuts have caused us to outspend our income.

The president has advocated a constitutional amendment to balance the budget in each of his seven years in office. Yet he has never submitted such a budget and still can't tell us when the books will balance.

Reagan has also said he opposes taxes, but his own fiscal 1988 budget calls for $23 billion in new taxes. They are called user fees, asset sales, increased receipts, revenue enhancements and off-setting collections — a crafty use of semantics to make it appear that the president is not contradicting himself.

THE MOST EQUITABLE way to substantially reduce the deficit is to delay reductions in the top tax bracket for upper-income taxpayers. But given opposition from the president and key members of Congress to any changes in the new tax code, we are left with federal excise taxes, a broad-based energy tax, including perhaps an oil import fee, and further closing of tax loopholes. Given these limited options, the resulting nickel and dime approach to the deficit problem falls short.

New taxes are never going to be popular. Antitax rhetoric has won its share of political campaigns, but these are short-term political victories that ultimately hurt the national economy. They don't deserve to be perpetuated and enshrined in public policy. When told the truth, Americans will rise to the challenge and not pass on the debt to their children.

Just look to North Dakota, where the president campaigned last fall for a Republican senator on Reagan's traditional anti-government, anti-tax rhetoric. But just two weeks ago, the people of North Dakota, one of the most economically distressed states, plowed through a snow storm to vote themselves a tax increase.

NORTH DAKOTANS didn't really want to raise taxes. But they wanted a well-managed government, and they met the need to reduce the state's deficit while insuring sufficient funds to provide a decent education for their children. They believed they were making a sound investment.

The president must join Congress in facing the fiscal facts so that together we can insure economic security. This year he proposed a number of initiatives, including new scientific research centers, a space station and a nuclear particle accelerator. Many of these merit the consideration of Congress, yet the funds to pay for them are nowhere to be found in the president's budget projections.

I think we are ready to listen to concrete proposals to arrest illiteracy, to lower infant death rates and increase our international competitiveness. Americans are prepared to make personal sacrifices to achieve these goals.

Years ago, Ronald Reagan, then governor, told Californians that his feet were set in concrete on a similar tax issue. Eventually, to bipartisan approval, he announced with his typical good humor: "I think the sound you hear is the concrete cracking around my feet." Our country needs the president to join that spirit of compromise once again.

Home teachers lacking faith

Are children kept at home to shield them from the world?

By Thomas Gustafson

RECENTLY in the news there has been much concerning home schooling in the state of Iowa. Quite frankly, I am thoroughly disgusted with the notion that Gov. Terry Branstad has come out in public support of relaxing the laws of Iowa to allow such a form of education for our young people. Has our governor decided that we should now become a state of the mindless, instead of a state of minds?

Proponents of the home education bill claim that home-educated children perform better on scholastic achievement tests and are better adjusted than children who go to public school. Yet, the studies that these people quote appear to be propaganda, at the very best. Furthermore, their claim that home-educated children do better than the national average proves nothing unless they can show that their children would have performed worse in a public school.

IT IS ALSO inconceivable that all of these parents who want to home teach are capable teachers in all fields of study. What home schooling will provide for its child victims is an education from the perspective of one or two adults, a necessarily narrow-minded education lacking greatly in the variety needed for a well-rounded education. And what are the chances and/or possibilities of these children attending college — or do these parents intend to confer college degrees on their children, as well?

It appears that these allegedly concerned and religious parents who want to school their children at home have already demonstrated their lack of faith in both their religion and their children.

They don't have faith in their religion — instead, they feel it is necessary to hide their children from all opinions opposing their beliefs. They also have lost faith in their children, in that that don't trust them to maintain the beliefs they have tried to instill in them. In short, they want to keep their children at home in a paranoid fear of the outside world. Is this faith? Will this breed healthy, well-adjusted children?

INSTEAD OF condemning Iowa's public school system, which is among the best in the nation, these people should be trying to enhance it through their involvement. Why not let the teachers, who are trained to do so, teach? Then, parents may supplement their children's education with training in their religion at home, after school.

It is my contention that the only thing that will result from legislation allowing home schooling will be that Iowa will become the breeding ground for religious fanatics. It is also quite clear that these people's intolerance to views other than their own is nothing more than an extreme form of prejudice that manifests itself in the guise of fundamentalist religion.

The new legislation that is proposed to allow this form of education is nothing more than Branstad wanting to popularize himself with the fundamentalists. It is also illustrative of Branstad's lack of commitment to developing Iowa's educational system. Instead of trying to pass legislation to appease his newfound friends, Branstad should be trying harder to improve what we already have.

City group may lobby for local cash infusion

Stephen Atkins

By Bruce Japsen
City Editor

The Citizens' Committee on Iowa City Revenues may consider lobbying state legislators as a way of producing more money for Iowa City.

The 15 members of the committee learned from Iowa City Manager Stephen Atkins Tuesday night at their first meeting that the city's current programs don't allow for expansion of public services in the future.

"Right now we're fine, but we have to begin looking three or four years down the road,"

Atkins said. "Lobbying usually takes time, so if we lobby we must begin immediately." Committee members seemed to favor lobbying because Iowa City is limited by the state in its ability to produce local revenues.

"IT APPEARS members of the committee are interested in lobbying the state and it's certainly worth a shot," said David Leshtz, a committee member and social worker for Johnson County Human Services.

Fellow committee member Ann Bovbjerg agreed.

"The time to lobby is now," Bovbjerg said. "People have to start educating the legislators."

Other than increasing property taxes, Iowa City is limited in what local tax option measures it can take to produce more revenue because of the state, Atkins said.

"We can continue to use property taxes, but we are limited by the state in how far we can go with that," Atkins said. "Iowa's very, very limited in regard to taxes."

Members of the committee said they would like to lobby the state to encourage additional tax options.

OTHER STATES, such as Illinois, are not as strict in their local tax options, said Atkins, who less than a year ago was the city manager for Schaumburg, Ill.

In Evanston, Ill., for example, several options are offered, Atkins said.

"If it moves, they tax it," Atkins said. "They have a sales tax, a drink tax, an amusement tax..."

But Iowa offers its cities only two local tax options.

The state allows for a local option sales tax that would be implemented on goods and services sold at retail price in Iowa City. The retailer would be responsible for collecting the tax and giving the proceeds to the state.

The local option sales tax would be in addition to existing Iowa's existing 4 percent sales tax. The tax is allowed only on those goods and services which are subject to state sales and services tax.

The only other alternative allowed by the state would be for a local vehicle option tax which would allow cities or counties to impose a tax on vehicles registered in their jurisdiction.

Residents voice opposition to historic preservation site

By Carol Monaghan
Staff Writer

Fifty-five people were on hand Wednesday evening for a heated discussion concerning the North Side Residential Historic District at an informal joint meeting of the Iowa City Planning and Zoning Commission and the Historic Preservation Commission.

If the Iowa City Council approves the district, changes to the exterior of structures substantial enough to require a building permit would have to be reviewed by the Historic Preservation Commission.

The district boundaries currently include a 24-block area, including north Dubuque, Linn, Gilbert, Van Buren and Johnson streets.

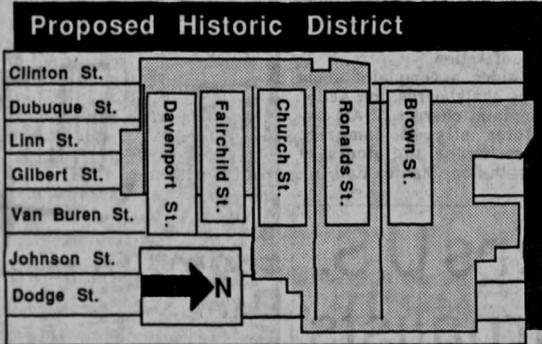

Most of the 55 audience members voiced opposition to the district.

"I DON'T WANT another quasi-governmental body to tell me what to do with my house," Lyle Siddell, of 409 Ronald St., said.

"It seems to me the area is extremely large with many non-historical buildings and many objectors within its boundaries," said Iva Hilleman, who owns property in the proposed district.

The historic commission would review exterior changes that would require a permit, Karin Franklin, Iowa City senior planner, said. The plans would be examined for compatibility with the existing structure and surrounding area.

If the commission found the plans totally contrary to the historic district, it would have the power to deny the property owner a building permit, Franklin said.

"I THINK THERE is some confusion here about what historic preservation and neighborhood preservation means," Connie Champion, a member of the historic commission, said. "Historic preservation doesn't deal with mansions, but everyday living."

If a building permit was denied, the property owner could appeal the decision to the council.

But there were audience members in favor of the site.

Those in favor often said they were grateful for the protection the site would provide from "intrusions," such as modern apartment buildings.

"There is a quality of life argument for the district," a North Side resident said. "The town is growing fast, and we are not against development. We are asking for development to be along planned and orderly lines."

REPRESENTATIVES of several fraternities on north Dubuque Street attended the meeting to voice objection to the historic site.

"What do we need to do to change your minds," a representative from Kappa Sigma fraternity asked. "If the commissions have made up their minds, I believe this meeting was a waste of time."

But Tom Scott, chairman of the planning and zoning commission, said he could not say how the commission would vote at its April 16 meeting. He said while the majority of the residents at Wednesday's meeting seemed opposed to the district, a series of earlier planning meetings revealed only six people who voiced opposition.

"The best we can do is to attempt to get a flavor of what the majority of the residents want," Scott said.

Action, ASAP hit with election fines

By Scott Hauser
Staff Writer

The UI Student Senate Elections Board voted Wednesday to fine the defeated Action Party $290 and the Allied Student Advocacy Party $29 for election rules violations during last month's senate election campaign.

Both parties' candidates were fined $1 each for violating election board rules prohibiting writing campaign messages on university classrooms, elections board Chairman Jerry Miller said.

In addition, the board also voted to fine the candidates $9 each for a 3-count violation of section 21 of the elections board rules requiring that campaign literature be submitted to the board prior to distribution, Miller said.

EACH ACTION candidate was fined $10, and each ASAP candidate was fined $1, Miller said.

Prior to running in a Student Senate election, all candidates must post a $25 bond. The fines will be deducted from the bond amount, Miller said.

He said candidates could pick up the remainder of their bond money today in the UI

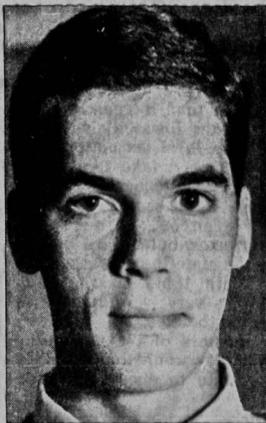

Joe Hansen

Office of Campus Programs.

Action presidential candidate Mike Gainer, who filed a 6-count complaint about ASAP campaigning practices during the last week of the campaign, said the board's ruling gives "the green light" to improper campaigning.

"It just exemplifies the biasedness of the election board," he said. "It very appropriately caps off a very poorly run campaign."

HE SAID HE thought both

parties should have been fined equally.

UI Student Senate President Joe Hansen, ASAP's presidential candidate, said it's time to put election complaints behind.

"I feel like, look, the campaign is settled, let's get this over with," he said, adding he thought the ASAP fine was a token to appease the Action candidates.

Gainer said he realized that any decision the board made would be after the fact, but said he wanted to make sure the "record is correct."

In their complaint, the Action party accused the ASAP party of violating elections board rules during the last week of the campaign.

The board does not rule on complaints of campaign impropriety during the last week of the campaign unless the action is expected to affect the outcome of the campaign.

IN A MEMO submitted with the complaint, Action candidates note:

"We understand, in light of the actions taken by the elections board against Action last week, that bringing these charges up against ASAP may seem like sour grapes on our part. In fact, all seven charges are very serious ones, in which ASAP committed blatant violations of UI Election Board policy, especially with their distribution of literature in the residence halls and blatant lying to the public about a statement made by the president of Action."

Besides a complaint about using chalkboards, the Action complaint charges ASAP candidates slipped campaign fliers under the doors of seventh floor Stanley Hall.

UI disabled cut off from Union access

By Anjanette Brush
Staff Writer

Noise and dust aren't the only problematic results of Union renovation, according to some UI students who have discovered the construction is also creating difficulties in accessibility for the disabled.

UI Collegiate Associations Council President Mike Reck said he became aware of limited access at the Union for the disabled when he was a participant in a special DISABILITY Awareness Days activity last week. Reck spent a day in a wheelchair in order to gain an understanding of what life at the UI is like for the disabled.

Reck said he found disabled access to the Union — which is through the loading dock in the rear of the Union — both difficult and demeaning.

"IT'S NOT THE fault of the Union administration," Reck said. "The contractors need to be more aware of the needs of disabled students. One of the goals of the renovation was to improve accessibility for the disabled, and it's important not to lose that while the actual renovation is going on."

Eric Sanders, chairman of the UI Liberal Arts Student Association Minority Affairs Committee, said disabled students are currently cut off from regular access to the Union because of the construction and the lack of signs with adequate information about available entrances for the wheelchair-bound.

"We question whether all wheelchair-bound persons are aware that they can still get into the Union," Sanders said. "Obviously if you're not aware, you might have a hard time getting in."

SANDERS ALSO SAID the entrance ramp and lift on the north patio lead to very heavy doors which might be difficult for a disabled person to open.

Union Director Jean Kendall attributed the restricted accessibility to construction progress falling behind schedule. The north entrance, which had a wheelchair ramp, was closed before the east entrance, which will have a wheelchair ramp, was completed, she said. This left only the loading dock as a wheelchair entrance.

"We installed a temporary ramp and lift that comes onto the Wheelroom patio," Kendall said. "It isn't the best solution, but for a month it's the only solution. We simply can't get access through the area that's not completed."

Kendall also said more signs indicating wheelchair entrances are being put up, while the old ones are being replaced with larger ones.

"The situation is unfortunate, but we're trying to keep ahead of changes that occur," Kendall said. "We appreciate the fact that the students are our eyes and ears when something we think will work doesn't."

Reck, saying both Kendall and UI Vice President for Student Services Philip Hubbard have been responsive to student concern, added he and the other CAC and LASA members plan to discuss what they see as further problems.

Telecast joins U.S., Soviet journalists

By Scott Hauser
Staff Writer

Despite a new emphasis on "glasnost" — or openness — in Soviet journalism, understanding between the United States and the U.S.S.R. remains sporadic with an emphasis on spies and stereotypes, Soviet reporters said in an international teleconference shown live at the UI in Lindquist Center Room 301 Wednesday morning.

"What I've always been impressed with is how you always manage to find a controversial topic and a hot one," Alexander Shalnev of Izvestia said when asked if Soviet journalists are covering the reported security breach at the American embassy complex in Moscow.

SPEAKING IN Moscow as part of an intercontinental video hookup with San Francisco, Boston and Tblisi — the capital of Soviet Georgia — and 50 downlink stations across the United States, American and Soviet journalists and students discussed the roles each plays in the countries' relations.

ABC Anchorman Peter Jennings, moderator for the U.S. panel, and Soviet State Television and Radio Commentator Vladimir Pozner, moderator for the Soviet panel, tried to steer the discussion away from specific coverage questions, but the two panels traded subtle barbs about how each country's journalists cover the news.

When asked if the Soviet press is covering the security compromise, Shalnev said he would leave such coverage to the Americans, adding "I'm amazed at how spy mania always erupts before a major international development."

U.S. SECRETARY of State George Schultz is scheduled to arrive in Moscow Monday for meetings with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

In an opening video statement, Jennings said, "Journalists help to shape the impressions people in each country have of each other."

Shalnev, along with Tblisi TV commentator Tengiz Sulkanishvili and Literary Gazette writer Yurii Tschechikhin comprised the Soviet panel, tried to dispel the notion that Soviet journalists are only propaganda units of the Soviet government.

"Any view that we express, you consider the view of the Soviet government," he said. "That's the problem. Very often we express our own point of view."

Cable News Network correspondent Stuart Loory asked the Soviet panelists if they are willing and able to investigate corruption in the highest levels of Soviet government.

While saying, "There are no forbidden subjects" in the U.S.S.R., Tschechikhin and Sulkanishvili said they have seen no information warranting an investigation.

Attitudes, medicines change therapy for mental patients

By Justine Todd
Special to The Daily Iowan

Since the introduction of anti-psychotic and anti-depressant drugs in the 1960s and 70s, mental institutions have experienced a major revolution.

The days of chains on the wall and strap-in beds are gone. Drug therapy and new attitudes toward mental illnesses make long stays in mental hospitals almost obsolete, and most hospitals have a quick turnaround in patients.

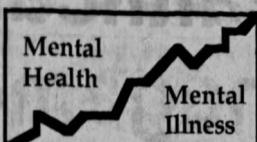

In 1950, the Mental Health Institute in Mount Pleasant, Iowa, housed 1,350 patients suffering from various forms of mental illness. In 1986, 795 patients were admitted and 780 were discharged, James Brooks, clinical director of the institute, said.

DICK SKAGGS, director of the Adult Psychiatric Department, said the institute has been running at full capacity of 165 patients for the past year.

"We keep one position open for emergencies and we've notified the communities we serve that the waiting list for voluntary admissions is in effect," Skaggs said.

The Iowa Civil Commitment Law, enacted in 1976, has prompted new attitudes toward the mentally ill.

The Commitment Law states only those diagnosed as mentally ill who pose a serious threat to themselves or others can be committed. Once the commitment procedure begins, the patient has a right to a lawyer, a medical examination and a hearing to determine the validity of the charges.

This is the third installment of a series examining mental health.

People just aren't being locked up or shut away anymore, Skaggs said. Each patient, if determined to be competent, maintains all civil and legal rights, including retaining a driver's license, the right to vote, marry and sign legal documents. Each patient is also appointed a patient advocate by the court.

THE ADVOCATE, assigned to the patient as an independent representative, receives copies of the patient's court records. Advocates may perform simple services such as bringing the patient clothes or cigarettes or they may investigate patient allegations of mistreatment.

Skaggs said he encourages the patients to contact their advocates any time they feel a need.

"On several occasions when the patient hasn't had the money to contact his advocate, we've made the contact for him," he said.

Last year, advocates brought 13 charges of mistreatment against the Mount Pleasant institute, 11 of which were dismissed. The remaining two were taken care of immediately, Skaggs said.

"An organization like this tends to take on a life of its own," he said. "We appreciate the advocate system as an outside check that helps us do our job better."

VIRGINIA WOLFE, a Scott County advocate representing 25 patients at Mount Pleasant, said she sees her job as being for the patient rather than against the staff.

"Most of the staff here are giving 110 percent," she said. "The problems here are primarily with the conditions of the institute, which is overcrowded and understaffed. If the staff didn't have to work in conditions like these their efforts to provide excellent patient care would go a lot further."

"We need more public education so people will be aware of the difficulties of providing proper patient care under these conditions," Wolfe said.

Speaker: Ads distort images

By Monica Seigel
University Editor

The ever-powerful, nearly always misleading images — especially those of women — presented in American advertising are as "inescapable as the pollution in the air," media critic Jean Kilbourne told a capacity crowd at Phillips Hall Wednesday night.

"Every individual feels personally exempt from the effects of advertising," Kilbourne said. "But advertising is the most powerful education source in our society."

Kilbourne's presentation — sponsored by the UI Liberal Arts Student Association — focused on false images in advertising.

"Advertising sells normalcy — whatever that is," she said. "Ads distort reality to reflect only a dominant point of view of society."

THIS DISTORTION of reality gives advertising a "mythological role" in our culture, Kilbourne said. She added that ads portray Americans as always young, beautiful, heterosexual, part of a nuclear family and healthy, which isn't always accurate.

"There are no disabled people — physically or mentally disabled — presented in advertising," she said, "unless you count the housewives who talk to the little man in their toilet bowls. So much for reality."

Kilbourne, who spent the majority of her hour-long presentation showing and discussing sample slides of advertisements, said a primary danger of advertising is its power to trivialize important issues, especially women's issues such as rape, domestic violence, equality and pornography, by casually portraying scenes of violence and submission of women.

SIMILARLY, advertising contributes to both physiological and psychological human problems, Kilbourne said, citing data reporting more than one-third of all college women have serious eating disorders, a number she says can be attributed to the crazed obsessiveness with thinness propagated by the advertising industry.

Kilbourne — before receiving a standing ovation — made a plea to her audience to become aware and educated about advertising's images and work to change them.

LASA Speaker Committee Chairwoman Tiffany Stimson said she was especially pleased by the turnout for Kilbourne.

"I never dreamed we'd have this many people show up," she said. "All our work paid off."

Scandal

"chain of command" for security lapses in which Soviet KGB agents were allegedly allowed access to the most sensitive areas of the embassy by Marine guards enticed with sexual affairs.

"THE PERSON IN charge is the ambassador. The ambassador reports to me. So I am responsible," said Shultz, himself a former Marine.

Shultz said it appears KGB agents "have had access to highly classified areas of our embassy, our sovereign property."

"Somehow or other, however much you may realize that they are constantly trying to compromise us, the reality of it is a shock. Expected though their efforts may be, it certainly distresses me and it distresses us all," he said.

Shultz dismissed Soviet allegations the scandal is being trumped up by the United States to sabotage the chances for success of his talks in Moscow, which are expected to center on arms control.

Congress's raise blocks homeless bill

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Emergency legislation to authorize $423.1 million for the homeless stalled Wednesday in a Senate fight over whether to repeal the recent pay raise for members of Congress and top administration officials.

Senate leaders had hoped to quickly push through the measure, but Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., — an ardent opponent of the pay increase — tried to attach an amendment to rescind the raises, which took effect last month.

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia said attaching the language to the homeless bill would be a "killer amendment" that would only serve to hold up aid for the homeless because it would never be accepted by the House.

"We've gone over this matter and we've gone over this matter and we've gone over this matter," Byrd said. "To hold this as a killer amendment gun pressed to the temple of the homeless relief legislation . . . is going too far."

On a 70-30 vote, however, the Senate rejected a maneuver by Byrd to gut Humphrey's amendment.

Earthquake shakes up Nicaraguans

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — A strong earthquake in the Pacific Ocean shook Nicaragua and El Salvador Wednesday, sending panicked residents running into the streets. There were no immediate reports of damage or injuries, officials said.

The tremor, centered about 60 miles southwest of the Nicaraguan capital of Managua, was recorded by earthquake monitors in Golden, Colo., at a preliminary magnitude of 6.2 on the Richter scale, a U.S. Geological Survey spokesman said.

The quake struck at 11:43 a.m. and was felt in Nicaragua, El Salvador and northern Costa Rica. The Nicaraguan Territorial Studies Institute reported the quake, but had no information on its magnitude. A temblor measuring 6.0 can cause severe damage.

In San Salvador, a temblor registering 4.0 on the Richter scale shook the capital shortly before noon, a spokesman at the National Seismological Institute said.

Afghan storm kills 70 Soviet troops

NEW DELHI, India — A massive snowstorm last week buried a Soviet military base on the strategic Salang Highway in northern Afghanistan, killing 70 Soviet troops, a Western diplomat said Wednesday.

The diplomat and another Western envoy also said 15,000 Soviet troops were stationed around Kandahar to block supplies to Moslem rebels inside the battle-torn southern city.

Western analysts estimate Moscow maintains more than 110,000 troops in Afghanistan to help the Afghan army fight the guerrillas, who are backed by the United States, China and Iran.

"Soviet soldiers used artillery to blast the snow which blocked the road," he said. The diplomat gave no further details.

The Salang Highway is the only roadway linking the Soviet border with Kabul.

Harvard prof's body washes ashore

WINTHROP, Mass. — The body of Lawrence Kohlberg, a noted Harvard University psychologist whose theories revolutionized an entire profession, has washed ashore, ending speculation about his 2 1/2-month disappearance.

Authorities used dental records Tuesday to identify Kohlberg's body, which was found Monday across from the Cottage Park Yacht Club, police said.

Kohlberg, 59, of Cambridge, an internationally known author and professor of human moral development, disappeared Jan. 17.

Police said the case was under investigation and officials had not determined if Kohlberg committed suicide by walking into the Atlantic Ocean.

Police found Kohlberg's car on Winthrop Street four days after his fiancée, Ann Higgins, reported him missing to Harvard police. Authorities found his jacket and a wallet containing about $100 in cash in the car.

Policeman aims at rat, shoots himself

DETROIT — An off-duty Detroit police officer shot himself in the shoulder while trying to kill a rat he said attacked him in his garage.

The gunshots brought about 10 patrol cars speeding to Joel P. Johnson's west side home shortly before 2 p.m. Tuesday, police said.

Johnson, 23, told fellow officers he was inside his garage when the rat jumped on his arm and he couldn't shake it off. He said he fired his gun at the rat, but hit himself instead.

Johnson, assigned to the 4th Precinct, was admitted to Mount Carmel Mercy Hospital. The rat escaped unharmed.

FBI alerted to North in early memo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — FBI Director William Webster testified Wednesday that he was worried Lt. Col. Oliver North was running an unauthorized "freewheeling" operation for a long time before the Iran arms scandal was disclosed.

At confirmation hearings to be director of the CIA, Webster also said he was alerted by an internal memo 25 days before the scandal broke that North was suspected of illegal activities that might result in an investigation by a special prosecutor.

At a daylong hearing before the Senate Intelligence Committee, Webster disclosed he had received an FBI memo Oct. 30, 1986, recommending information be withheld from North because he "might be involved in a future criminal probe by a special prosecutor" examining U.S. activities in Central America.

Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., chairman of the panel, said he was disturbed that Webster did not tell the committee earlier about the memo, but he said there was nothing "sinister" about it.

"I would have preferred that it had been volunteered at an earlier time," said Boren, adding that the committee was not told about the memo until Tuesday by the special prosecutor investigating the secret sale of U.S. arms to Iran and the alleged diversion of profits to the Nicaraguan Contras.

THE HEARING WAS scheduled to continue this afternoon, but lawmakers said they saw no obstacle to Webster's confirmation to replace William Casey, who resigned in February after undergoing surgery for a cancerous brain tumor. The spy agency and Casey, a key figure in the Iran-Contra scandal, have come under criticism for the CIA's role in the affair.

Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, the panel's vice chairman, said he wanted to pin Webster down on exactly when he would notify Congress after a covert operation began. Under the law, the president must notify lawmakers in advance unless there are unusual circumstances. But in the case of the Iran arms scandal, Congress was not informed for nearly 11 months after the operation was launched.

WEBSTER acknowledged under questioning that he had forgotten about the Oct. 30 memo, when he and Attorney General Edwin Meese initially decided there was no reason to launch a criminal probe last Nov. 21 into the covert sale of weapons to Iran.

The memo made no mention of the Iran arms end of the scandal — the events that triggered Meese's original late November investigation at the White House.

"He was a very gung-ho person, very tunnel-visioned," Webster said of North.

Asked if there were concerns about whether North was acting within his authority, Webster responded:

"I think there was some anxiety on our part to be sure that that was the case. . . There were just some general concerns that something foolhardy might take place without the proper scrutiny by others who might have a more balanced judgment."

Panel will see Reagan diaries

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional investigators have reached an agreement with the White House to see excerpts from nearly three years of President Ronald Reagan's diaries related to the Iran-Contra affair, it was announced Wednesday.

Ronald Reagan

Leaders of the House select panel probing the affair also announced the committee voted to grant limited immunity for two more witnesses, and the congressional committees have reached agreement on the format for their joint hearings, which begin next month.

"I have confidence we will see those items that are relevant to our investigation. We have a good agreement here," said Rep. Dick Cheney, R-Wyo., ranking Republican on the House panel.

Cheney said Reagan was within his rights to withhold the diaries. He called the agreement unprecedented and lauded Reagan for his cooperation with congressional investigators.

Reagan's diaries from Jan. 1, 1984, through Dec. 19, 1986, looking for entries that mention Nicaragua, Iran and related matters.

The excerpts will not be copied, but Inouye said congressional investigators will be able to take notes.

If Reagan decides to keep certain excerpts from Congress, members of the investigating committees will be aware of the action but will have no recourse, said Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., vice chairman of the Senate panel.

"I THINK IT IS important that in the course of our investigation, in our effort to lay out for the public what transpired in the Iranian matter, that we not trash the office of the president — not just Ronald Reagan's presidency, but future presidents," said Cheney, a former White House chief of staff.

He said the panels will have access to the excerpts in a "matter of weeks."

Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., chairman of the committee looking into the sale of U.S. arms to Iran and the diversion of profits to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels, turned aside suggestions that the White House will be able to censor the excerpts.

"THE ALTERNATIVE is we won't get access to anything," Hamilton said.

The Tower Commission, which issued a scathing assessment of the Iran initiative in late February, also had access to Reagan's diaries. Rudman and Inouye said the congressional committees' review of the president's notes will be "much greater in scope" than the review by the Tower Commission.

Hamilton would not reveal the names of the two people who were voted limited immunity by his panel but they are believed to be secretaries who worked with retired Maj. Gen. Richard Secord, a key figure in the affair.

House panel OKs SDI weapon money

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House committee voted Wednesday to endorse the narrow interpretation of Star Wars research permitted under a key treaty, but it agreed to provide extra money for a disputed Strategic Defense Initiative weapon.

The Armed Services Committee passed 45-6 a $305.7 billion Pentagon budget. Chairman Les Aspin, D-Wis., later predicted the SDI weapon would be knocked out on the House floor, where the bill is due May 4.

Before the bill hits the floor, however, members will have to go back and slash out as much as $18 billion to bring it in line with the budget resolution on government operations.

The panel also voted to give the administration the 21 extra MX missiles it wants despite problems with a crucial guidance system component, and refused to pressure the Pentagon to work on a SDI system that could be ready for deployment by 1993.

THE MIXED ARMS control signals — a restrictive treaty reading but extra money for research on a "space-based kinetic kill vehicle" — will be sorted out in floor debate when arms control advocates make a promised attack on SDI elements, SALT II treaty adherence, nuclear testing and other issues.

On a vote of 25-24, the panel sided with Aspin over Rep. Jim Courter, R-N.J., on the interpretation of the 1972 ABM Treaty. Aspin earlier inserted language in the bill restricting SDI work to the narrow interpretation of the treaty, and it was Courter's effort to wipe out that restriction that failed.

Aspin said later his victory was a sign it was "a very strong amendment in terms of having moderate support for it and... the (traditionally conservative) committee is changing a little bit."

Despite his loss to Aspin on the ABM treaty, Courter was successful in restoring $267 million Democrats managed to cut out of the kinetic kill vehicle research program. The weapon, intended to knock out rising missiles before they spew out their warheads, is the key that conservatives look to as the prime candidate for early deployment of a partial SDI system.

But Courter lost 27-22 in a bid to direct the Pentagon to start development and testing of a system to be ready for deployment by 1993.

In another major action, the committee voted 29-21 to override a subcommittee and buy the 21 MX missiles the administration sought. The subcommittee recommended 12 missiles.

English lord discovers long-lost GI in prison

CARTHAGE, N.C. (UPI) — The search for a World War II GI who carved his initials on an English lord's tree and befriended a homeless waif in ruined Berlin has ended in a murderer's cell in a piney-woods prison.

The "R J US ARMY 1944" on a dying beech at Ragley Hall, the 6,000-acre estate of the Marquess of Hertford, is Robert Johnson — serving a 120-year term for murdering four of his five children.

Lord Hertford began the search for "R J" so he could give him the carved section of the tree when it is cut down on his London estate. He said Wednesday he regretted Johnson's situation but would send him the carving anyway.

"After all," Hertford said, "the great thing is this chap was on our side during the war."

Johnson, who is eligible for parole in 1992, entered the Moore County Prison Unit in Carthage in 1972 for fatally beating four of his five children in a wooded area near his home in Wilmington, N.C., prison officials said Wednesday.

IN THE 1971 CRIME, Johnson drove his five children — ages 3 to 11 — to a rural mill road, took them out of the car one by one and beat them on the head with a tire tool, Turner said.

Margaret Cootes of Portsmouth, England, made the link between Johnson and Hertford after reading a newspaper article about Hertford's quest.

Cootes, who had been corresponding with Johnson for 42 years, met the American soldier when he picked her off the streets of Berlin, and set up her adoption by a British family.

Divers probe wreck of capsized ferry

ZEEBRUGGE, Belgium (UPI) — Divers located 123 bodies in the wreck of the British ferry Herald of Free Enterprise, raising the known death toll to 184 in one of Europe's worst peacetime disasters, authorities said Wednesday.

The search of the auto ferry, which capsized and sank March 6 with more than 500 people aboard, was suspended at midnight because of the danger to divers working in submerged portions of the vessel.

"Skin diving into a chaotic mass including hundreds of tons of mud and sand and razor-sharp debris from splintered partitions would be suicide," said a Belgian Navy diver, who indicated the recovery of more bodies might have to wait until the lower portion of the ship was pumped dry.

Such an operation might take "a couple of weeks," said salvage director Capt. Hans Walenkemp of the Dutch company Smit Tak, because of the time it would take to make the vessel watertight.

AN UNKNOWN NUMBER of bodies are believed to remain in the submerged lower portion of the vessel.

Divers reached the ship Tuesday after salvage crews righted it in an eight-hour winching operation.

At a news conference Wednesday, rescue officials announced 123 bodies had been recovered or located. Added to the 61 victims whose deaths already were known, the new discoveries raised the known death toll to 184, West Flanders Provincial Gov. Etienne Vanneste said.

Recovery crews spoke of nightmarish conditions inside the three passenger decks now above water.

COMMANDER Jack Burkett, chief of the British diving team working with Belgian divers, said the scene was "total devastation."

"All internal bulkheads were gone. Bodies were everywhere under debris. The whole thing was covered with mud and oil. It was a horrific environment. There is nothing left really," he said.

The 7,000-ton car ferry capsized outside Zeebrugge harbor en route to Dover, England, with 543 people on board. The cause has not yet been established, but some investigators have speculated the ferry might have set sail with its front loading doors still open.

Tass: Defector faced 'sadistic' treatment

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union said Wednesday the GI defector given asylum last week, Pvt. Wade E. Roberts, arrived in the country complaining of "sadistic" treatment by his sergeant.

Although a dispatch from the Tass news agency — entitled "I was given a chance to be a man" — said his defection was mainly a political act because of his dislike of American values, it singled out a Master Sgt. Taylor.

The Supreme Soviet, the nominal parliament, gave asylum to Roberts and his West German companion, Petra Neumann, last week, saying he had fled political persecution.

The U.S. Army earlier said the 22-year-old AWOL soldier was from San Bernardino, Calif.

"OUR DECISION is not treason," Roberts said. "I love my countrymen. But people must realize all the horror of social injustice and of crying violations of human rights in which my country is stuck."

Tass said Roberts was unable to find work in the two years after he finished school, could not afford higher education and "saw crowds of depressed people who did not have either food or shelter."

He had no choice but to join the Army where "he went through arbitrary actions in their most debased forms," Tass said. "Commanders there get sadistic satisfaction from insults, ill-treatment and physical abuse."

THE UNOFFICIAL U.S. Army newspaper Stars and Stripes said Monday that Roberts had gone absent without leave March 2 and was listed as a deserter a month later.

Soldiers in his battalion told the newspaper they handled sensitive equipment but would not elaborate. They said Roberts had talked about leaving after he was given 30 days restriction and extra duty.

"They were destroying him as a person and they were even ready to put him behind bars," Roberts' companion said. "There was no escape for him in the West."

"But we knew that there is a country in the world where they respect human dignity, where everyone can have a job and be himself," Neuman was quoted as saying. "This is the Soviet Union."

Augusta set for Masters tourney

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — The Masters, which last year produced what will likely become one of golf's most enduring legends, begins Thursday with all the traditional trappings that make up the first major championship of the season.

Year after year, the rolling terrain of the Augusta National Club produces golfing memories, but the players, fans and officials who have gathered for the 51st Masters know it has a long way to go to top what happened here 12 months ago.

With the sun shining at its brightest and with a Who's Who of golf contesting for the top prize, Jack Nicklaus shot a 65 on Masters Sunday last year to win his 20th major title.

"I don't think it's probable for that (kind of excitement) to happen again," Masters Chairman Hord Hardin said on the eve of the tournament created by golfing immortal Bob Jones.

NICKLAUS WILL OPEN defense of his title Thursday at 11:29 a.m. CDT when he leaves the first tee of the Augusta National in the company of U.S. Amateur champion Buddy Alexander.

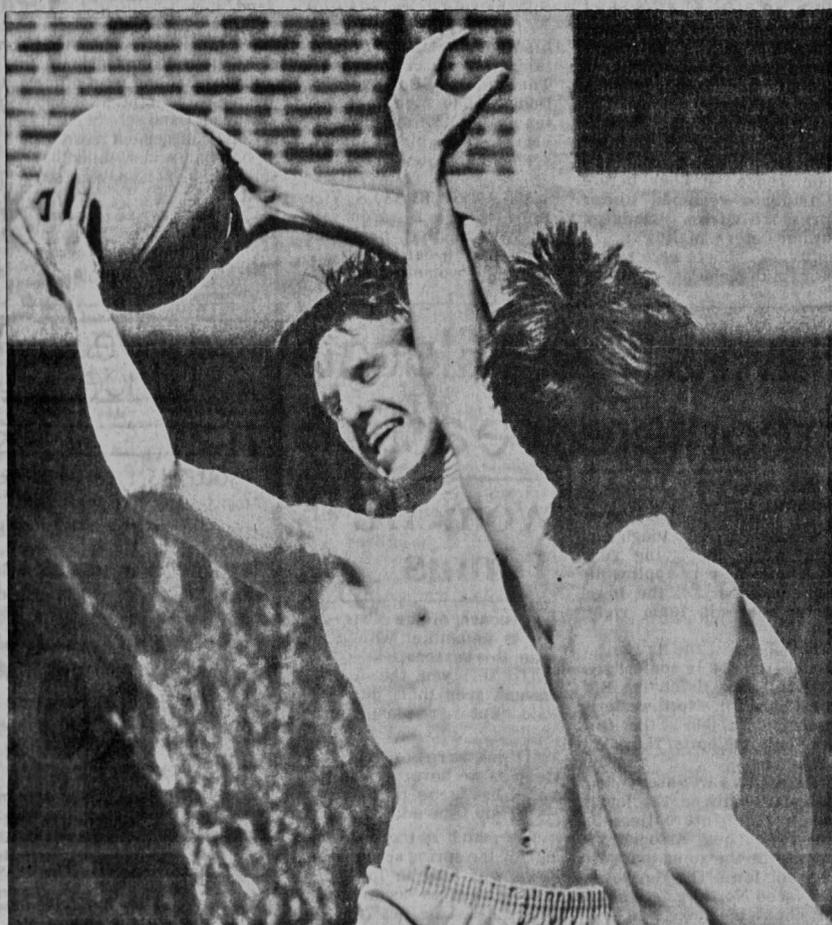

It will be the fifth competitive appearance of the year for the 47-year-old Nicklaus, who has reduced his 1987 schedule but who will continue to participate in the major events as long as he thinks he is capable of winning one.

"If I played every week, I would be bored when I got to the majors," Nicklaus said. "I've got to find a level which allows me to be excited when I get to the majors."

"Even if I don't play competitively as much as I used to, I don't think I'll forget how to play golf."

The Masters officially opens at 7:30 a.m. Thursday with an honorary threesome of Gene Sarazen, 85, Sam Snead, 74, and Byron Nelson, 75, hitting the first balls. Nelson, a two-time winner of the Masters, will take part in the ceremonial opening for the first time and join his old friends for nine holes of play.

BOB MURPHY, playing in the tournament for the first time in a decade thanks to his victory in the Canadian Open last year, will strike the first competitive shot at 7:45 a.m., and the last pairing will begin play at 1:14 p.m.

Poor hitting hurts Hawkeyes in double loss to Iowa State

By Scott Wingert
Staff Writer

Iowa State shortstop Karen Brenner outlegged Linda Schlueter's relay to the plate in the bottom of the sixth inning to score the game's only run and complete a 5-1, 1-0 sweep of the Iowa Hawkeyes in women's softball Wednesday.

The Hawkeyes threatened in the top of the seventh when first-baseman Kara Coughenour walked, advanced to second on a sacrifice and to third on a passed ball. With two out, Cyclone pitching stalwart Kelli Alberts came on in relief to get designated hitter Michelle Magyar to fly to left for the final out.

Softball

"I'm really disappointed about tonight," Iowa Coach Ginny Parrish said. "I've never seen such a pitiful offensive display. We played right into their hands all night."

IN THE FIRST GAME, the Cyclones broke a 1-1 deadlock in the fifth when third-baseman Monica Chapman doubled off losing pitcher Cris Barry. After a walk, two wild pitches and singles by Amber Maststler and Jenny Condon, Tracy Langhurst came on in relief of Barry. After a single by Brenner, Langhurst got Laufer to hit into a double play and retire the side. "Our pitchers did not throw well," Parrish said. "We didn't make any errors in the field, but never tested their defense either."

Alberts tossed a four-hitter in the first game to record her 12th victory in 16 outings. The Big Eight Pitcher of the Week did not strike out any batters but constantly fooled the Hawkeyes with her location.

"We know the hitting is there," Parrish said. "We hit the ball but did nothing with it. There were too many fly balls which made for easy putouts."

Iowa State raised their mark to 17-9 while the Hawkeyes fell to 14-11-1. Parrish said she will be interested to see how her squad reacts to two disappointing losses.

"After tonight, I really have no idea," Parrish said. "I do know we are going to have to get back to putting the ball in play offensively."

The Hawkeyes next action is Friday and Saturday when they play host to the Indiana Hoosiers for four games at the Iowa Softball Complex.

Davis eyes tournament for Big Ten

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — Iowa coach Tom Davis said Wednesday he believes most Big Ten coaches favor establishing a post-season conference basketball tournament even though Indiana proved a national title is possible without it.

Speaking at a news conference, Davis also said he favors retention of the three-point goal in college basketball at the current 19-foot-9-inch distance, but opposes NCAA rule changes cutting the number of scholarships and assistant coaches next season.

Davis said a sizable majority of the Big Ten coaches support the post-season tournament idea if the 18-game conference schedule can be pared down to 14 or 16 games. The most notable exception being Indiana coach Bobby Knight.

"Coaches use that as a trial run, it's like an off-Broadway or something," Davis said of the post-season tourney. "When you fail, your team comes back that next week and plays far better than they did when they lost. So you win both ways, you win if you win and you win if you lose because it motivates you to go beyond."

THE ISSUE IS expected to come up at the April 20 coaches meeting, but Davis said he doubts a post-season tournament would be approved for next year, but could be instated by the 1988-1989 season.

"You could do it next year if you really wanted to bad enough, but I don't think there's enough pressure yet within the league to go to it that quickly," Davis said. "I think it will be awhile away, but I don't think there's any question it's going to happen."

The Iowa coach, who ended his first Big Ten campaign with a school-record 30-5 mark in advancing to the NCAA West Regional, said a Big Ten tournament would be "a kick" for the players and the fans, would prepare teams for NCAA competition and would help coaches in recruiting top high school athletes.

"I think that if you ask athletic directors or other people, they'd say it's going to make a lot of money," Davis added. "I don't have much doubt that it would sell out the Hoosier-dome or the Metrodome."

Iowa coaches to compete on television

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — Iowa basketball coach Tom Davis said Wednesday he did not believe his decision to sign an advertising contract with Teleconnect Co. opposite a similar pact Hawkeye football coach Hayden Fry has with a competing firm would touch off long-distance telephone wars among UI sports fans.

"That's a good question, though," Davis said, who recently signed a 16-month contract with the Cedar Rapids telephone firm to appear in advertisements and make public appearances for the company. "I'm going to have to talk to him about that."

Fry works as a spokesman for Mid-American long-distance telephone company of Omaha, Neb., which competes directly with Teleconnect for long-distance customers in Iowa.

The top five long-distance telephone companies in Iowa are American Telephone & Telegraph, Teleconnect, MCI, Mid-American and US-Sprint, according to the Iowa Utility Board.

"IT WOULD ATTRACT a lot of people — the most people probably in the history of a conference post-season tournament, that's how strong I think the Big Ten is in terms of interest," he said, adding that he expected interest and competition within the league to be even greater in the 1987-88 season.

Another advantage of the league tournament is that it sustains interest and intensity among teams not in the hunt for the Big Ten title, knowing how they finish will affect their seedings in the post-season format.

On the three-point goal, Davis said he favors keeping the rule in effect at the current distance to give defenses another year to adjust to it.

Pena sees refreshing change with St. Louis

CHICAGO (UPI) — Tony Pena flashed a characteristically wide grin on his face when asked how long it would take him to adjust to a new team.

"About five seconds," smiled Pena.

The four-time all-star catcher had just completed the first game with his new team, the St. Louis Cardinals, and had come away a winner Tuesday. After more than seven seasons with a Pittsburgh Pirate team that often was on the debit side it was a refreshing change for the 29-year old reliever.

"The people over here like me and I like them. I know what (St. Louis manager) Whitey (Herzog) expects from me and I know what I can do," Pena said.

Pena didn't get a hit in his first game with the Cardinals but did score a run and stole a base. His ability to steal bases fits in perfectly with a team that has led the majors for the past two years in stolen bases.

"I'll just do whatever I can do. I think I'll fit in just fine," Pena said.

ST. LOUIS ACQUIRED the right-handed hitting catcher at the end of spring training in exchange for outfielder Andy Van Slyke and catcher Mike Lavalliere. St. Louis is counting on Pena to catch between 120 and 140 games, about the same number he caught with the Pirates.

"I'm used to it. I'm durable. Growing up in the Dominican Republic it was always hot so I got used to the heat," Pena said, referring to what are usually steamy summers in St. Louis. "The heat has never bothered me. I'm always in good condition."

Pena admitted he wasn't thinking he would be traded from an organization he had been so close to since he came up in the majors in 1980.

"No one expects to get traded. I wasn't looking forward to it," Pena said. "I'm looking forward to going back to Pittsburgh. I know that team real well and I know that I can help beat them now."

THE CARDINALS go to Pittsburgh for a four-game road series this weekend before returning home for their home opener next week against Montreal.

Pena has already received raves from members of the St. Louis pitching staff for the way he has handled the Cardinal hurlers.

"Tony called a good game for me," St. Louis left-hander John Tudor said. "He's going to help this club."

Reliever Bill Dawley, who hurled four innings of one-hit relief in St. Louis' opening day 9-3 win over the Cubs, echoed Tudor.

Hawks devastate Wartburg; readies for Illinois weekend

By Steve Williams
Assistant Sports Editor

If Wednesday's game against Wartburg is any indication of Iowa's diamond chances against Big Ten rival Illinois, this weekend's action should be worth watching.

Led by Randy Frakes and Luis Ramirez, the Hawkeyes banged out 15 hits on their way to a 20-1 pasting of the Wartburg Knights at the Iowa baseball diamond.

Both Frakes and Ramirez turned in perfect 3-3 efforts including five RBI each. Frakes won the hitter-of-the-day award however with two triples and a single in comparison with Ramirez' triple and two singles.

Meanwhile, freshman John DeJarld picked up his second win against no losses, coming in to relieve starter Brian Kennedy in the fourth. Even though DeJarld wound up giving Wartburg its only run of the game, starter Brian Kennedy had not gone four innings which is necessary in being credited with a win.

Only three starters continued to play beyond the fourth inning for Iowa Coach Duane Banks, who elected to pass out the playing time equally in Iowa's most lopsided win of the season.

"I WANTED TO get the starters out of there and use other people but we just didn't have that many innings," Banks said.

"I was very surprised with our team's performance today," Banks added. "I wasn't sure if we could come out with the same intensity we had shown earlier in the week but everyone played hard and did a great job the entire way."

Things got out of hand early for Wartburg as starter Brett Grings walked six of his first seven batters. Grings looked as though he would get out of the inning when Bill Heinz hit into double play, to score lead-off hitter Frakes, but Grings sandwiched two more free passes around Ramirez' triple and nine runs later the game was practically over.

Other assailants in the Hawkeyes line-up were Bryan Luedtke with a triple, a single and two RBI, Bart Givens with two doubles and an RBI, and Heinz, who belted his seventh homerun of the season, which keeps Iowa at No. 1 in the nation with homeruns per game.

EVEN WITH THE lack of competition Wednesday, Banks tried to keep his team in it, and the Hawkeyes responded with four more runs in the second and seven in the third before the Iowa skipper finally called off the dogs.

"This was an important game for us because we have a tough double-header with Illinois this weekend," Banks said. "I told the team not to worry about the score or who they were playing and they did just that today."

With the win, Iowa moves to 12-13 on the year with four games against the Fighting Illini looming over the weekend horizon.

Tentative starters for this weekend's action will be Allen Rath, Calvin Eldrid, Ron Grif-fith and Mark Dekinger.

Dodgers' Campanis resigns

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Los Angeles Dodgers Vice President Al Campanis' outrageous statements about the lack of blacks in baseball management reflect widespread racism in the sport's front offices, civil rights leaders and former players said Wednesday.

Officials with the NAACP and the American Civil Liberties Union held a news conference an hour before Campanis resigned under pressure from Dodgers owner Peter O'Malley.

"Blacks should be hired in key management positions and there is no justification for their exclusion," Raymond Johnson Jr., president of the NAACP's Los Angeles chapter, said.

After learning about Campanis' resignation, Johnson said, "My question now is whether the Los Angeles Dodgers and other baseball teams will immediately begin to place blacks in management positions."

ATLANTA BRAVES Vice President Hank Aaron said in Atlanta that prejudice continued to bar black players from promotion to management and said Campanis would have been aware of that problem if he did not have "his head buried in the sand."

"I draw the conclusion that baseball is still somewhat prejudiced in hiring blacks as managers and front-office people," the all-time home run leader and sole black in a top management position in baseball said. "I think that any blind person can see that."

Campanis started the storm of controversy by his comments on the ABC program "Nightline" Monday night.

Campanis was asked by host Ted Koppel if he thought racial prejudice still existed in baseball and replied, "No, I don't believe it's prejudice. I truly believe that they may not have some of the necessities to be, let's say, a field manager, or perhaps a general manager."

During the news conference, Johnson challenged Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth and O'Malley to establish an aggressive affirmative action hiring program in major-league baseball.

Hawks host Wildcats in conference action

By Marc Bona
Staff Writer

The saying, "The tough get going when the going gets tough" may be very applicable to the members of the Iowa women's tennis team right now.

That's because the Hawkeyes (12-4 overall, 2-0 in conference play) will host defending Big Ten Champion Northwestern Wildcats (13-2, 3-0) at the Kinrick Stadium Courts, Thursday at 2:30 p.m.

The Wildcats, who are ranked sixth nationally in the latest poll by the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches' Association, may just be the going that gets tough for Iowa. The Hawkeyes have faced Northwestern eight times but have never won.

"They're (Northwestern) the toughest in the Big Ten," Iowa Assistant Coach Kelly Morrison said. "They're the defending (conference) champs who always go to nationals. They're right up there with USC."

"We played USC and we got beat by them, but we stayed right with them. That gave the girls confidence to do well against (Northwestern)," Morrison said.

SANDY CLIFTON, eighth-

Women's Tennis

year coach of the 'Cats, says she is unfamiliar with Iowa's team this season.

"To tell you the truth, I haven't seen them play," she said. "But we're playing pretty well."

"I think we're probably not as deep as we have been in past years, but we're pretty strong at the top," she added.

The match is the only time during the spring season when Iowa will play in Iowa City. The Hawkeyes usually play their home matches in Cedar Rapids' Westfield Tennis Club.

"It will be nice (to be home)," Morrison said. "Hopefully we'll have some more spectators. The girls will be excited." Iowa Interim Coach Micki Schillig, who is expecting "a lot of good tennis," says the Wildcats will be a challenge for the Hawkeyes.

"They'll be very tough," she said. "But we're the underdogs with nothing to lose and everything to gain."

Pitino named Coach of the Year

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Coach Rick Pitino of Providence College, who led the Friars to their first appearance in the Final Four since 1973, has been named the 1986-87 College Basketball Coach of the Year by The Sporting News.

Pitino's team won the NCAA Southeast Regional in Louisville, Ky., last month.

Pitino, who coached formerly at Boston University and was an assistant coach with the New York Knicks of the NBA, arrived at Providence two years ago and instituted a five-year plan to revive the floundering basketball program.

Armstrong, Marble get Pan-Am bid

Iowa's B.J. Armstrong and Roy Marble will both be taking their shot at making a spot on the Pan-American team for 1988, Iowa Coach Davis announced on Wednesday.

The games will be held August 7-23 in Indianapolis and Marble said the players who make the team will probably have the best chance of making the Olympic the following year.

Iowa's two all stars will travel to Colorado Springs, Colo., where they will compete for one of the 12 spots on the roster May 14-19. Louisville's Denny Crum will be Coach of the team.

Cowboy kicker bargains with district attorney

DENTON, Texas (UPI) — Dallas Cowboys placekicker Rafael Septien pleaded guilty Wednesday to indecency with a child and was placed on 10 years probation and fined $2,000.

Septien, accused of fondling a neighbor's 10-year-old child in December, had been indicted on charges of aggravated sexual assault but entered a guilty plea to the lesser indecency charge as part of a plea-bargain arrangement, J.W. Johnson of the Denton County district attorney's office said.

Johnson said Septien was granted deferred probation, which means that if he lives up to all the terms imposed by probation officers, he can petition the court in 10 years to have the case removed from his record.

SEPTIEN ENTERED THE PLEA before District Judge John Narsutis, who had been scheduled to try him on the sexual abuse charge, a first-degree felony punishable by up to 99 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The veteran NFL kicker had maintained his innocence to the charge, which prosecutors said occurred Dec. 27 in the Denton County suburb of The Colony.

Cowboys president Tex Schramm issued a terse, one-line statement Wednesday, saying, "The matter has been resolved by the court. Septien is still a member of the football team."

Septien, 33, a native of Mexico City, is a 10-year NFL veteran from Southwest Louisiana. He is the Cowboys' leading career scorer with 874 points.

In other football news, former Houston Oilers quarterback Dan Pastorini was charged with public intoxication and assault on fighting with police officers in Houston Wednesday.

Oscars boost movie sales

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The 59th Annual Academy Awards boosted the box-office receipts of Oliver Stone's Platoon, winner of four Oscars, as well as the nominated Hannah and Her Sisters and Children of a Lesser God.

Platoon picked up 20 percent over its previous week, adding four theaters in the bargain. No. 1 was Police Academy 4, a juvenile comedy sequel of a crop of wacky rookie cops breaking more laws and endangering more citizens than all the cons in Sing Sing.

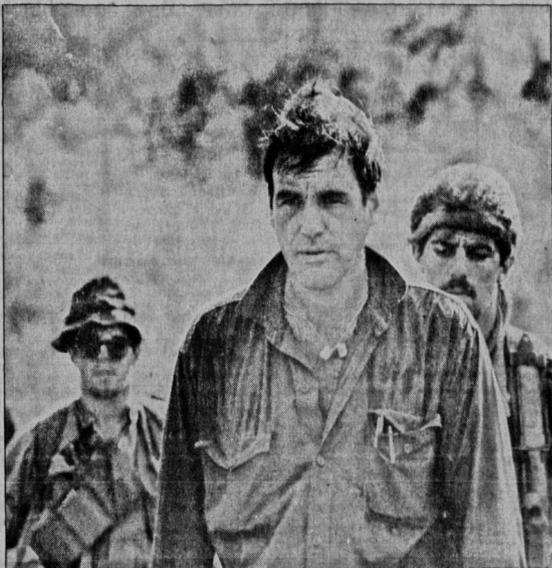

Blind Date, the Bruce Willis comedy about a businessman and his nightmare assignation with a tipsy lady (played by Kim Basinger), slipped from No. 1 the previous week to No. 2.

LETHAL WEAPON, starring Mel Gibson and Danny Glover as a pair of disenchanted but effective narks, dropped from No. 2 to No. 4 with a gross of $4.6 million despite the addition of 12 theaters.

Tin Men, the wild and woolly Danny DeVito-Richard Dreyfuss comedy about a pair of feuding aluminum siding salesman, dropped a click to No. 5 with a gross of $2.4 million.

Whoopi Goldberg's Burglar nose-dived 30 percent in its third week, grossing a tepid $2 million for a total of $11.6 million, dropping 33 theaters in the process. It was No. 6.

Children of a Lesser God, abetted by Marlee Matlin's Oscar win for best actress, jumped an impressive 143 percent over the previous week — playing in only 460 theaters.

So far this year all films have garnered $883.2 million compared with $803.6 million in 1986.

NBC climbs to 25th victory

NEW YORK (UPI) — NBC claimed its 25th prime-time victory of the 28-week-old season, with "The Cosby Show" and "Family Ties" leading the pack, but the big news last week was over at ABC.

The "Moonlighting" episode in which Cybill Shepherd and Bruce Willis finally slipped between the bedsheets scored record ratings and helped give ABC its third second-place finish of the season.

Enough people watched to give "Moonlighting" its highest rating and share ever and put it at No. 3 for the week. ABC had five shows in the top 10, three of them with all-time high ratings.

The debut of "Max Headroom," a futuristic action-adventure series, was ABC's highest rated, regularly scheduled program to air in the 10 p.m. Tuesday time slot this season. The combination of the 59th annual Academy Awards with the Barbara Walters Special helped ABC win Monday night by nearly 10 ratings points.

Television

ALL IN ALL, it was ABC's best week of the season.

For the week ending April 5, NBC won with a 16.7 rating and 26 share, ABC had a 15.8 rating and 25 share and CBS had a 15.2 rating and 24 share, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co.

In news, "CBS Evening News" with Dan Rather won the week with a 12.8 rating and 23 share. "NBC Nightly News" with Tom Brokaw had a 12.4 rating and 22 share and "ABC World News Tonight" with Peter Jennings had a 10.9 rating and 19 share.

NBC leads the season-to-date ratings with a 17.9 rating and 28 share. CBS has a 16.0 rating and 25 share and ABC has a 14.2 rating and 22 share.

Each ratings point represents about 874,000 households and a share is the percentage of operating sets tuned to a particular show.

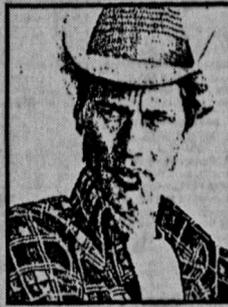

Winner of the week: ABC Entertainment, which has been fiddling with its schedule and coming up with some quality new shows like "Mariah" and "Max Headroom."

Loser of the week: CBS Entertainment, which is not accustomed to the No. 3 spot.

The top prime-time shows for the week ending April 5, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co., were:

1. "The Cosby Show" (NBC)
2. "Family Ties" (NBC)
3. "Moonlighting" (ABC)
4. "Cheers" (NBC)
5. "Academy Awards" (ABC)
6. "Growing Pains" (ABC)
7. "Murder, She Wrote" (CBS)
8. "Who's the Boss?" (ABC)
9. "Barbara Walters Special" (ABC)
10. "Golden Girls" (NBC)

STUDENT FOOTBALL TICKET SALES TO BEGIN APRIL 13

Students may order their 1987 Football Season Tickets beginning April 13 at the Athletic Ticket Office in Carver-Hawkeye Arena. The cost of the tickets are $35.00 per student and $80.00 per student guest ticket. Student season tickets are good for all five home games of the 1987 football season. Student guest tickets are available on a limited basis; all students ordering these tickets may not be accommodated, but will receive a refund for their order at fall pickup. Priority buying is from April 13 thru May 8, and this is the only time that guest tickets may be ordered. Athletic Ticket Office hours are 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday thru Friday. Students may pickup their tickets beginning September 9. Please read the student tickets policy before placing your order.

STUDENT FOOTBALL POLICY - 1987

1. A student may purchase one season ticket at the student price of $35.00. A guest ticket may be ordered at the public price of $80.00. A limited number of guest tickets will be available; therefore, all students ordering these may not receive them. The guest ticket will not be available after May 8, the deadline for student priority. Office hours are 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Monday through Friday.
2. Students will receive priority based on the number of consecutive years they have applied for or purchased football tickets at The University of Iowa. There will be no loss in priority for off-campus programs or a bona fide illness. An individual who misses two or more consecutive seasons for reasons other than the above will lose all priority.
3. In order for a student to receive their priority for football he/she must order sometime during the period of April 13 to May 8, 1987. These orders will be filled according to priority established. Any order placed after May 8 will be filled as if the order had zero priority. Students ordering after the priority period will also accrue a year of buying credit toward their priority purchase of tickets in the following years.
4. Individuals may order season tickets for a group no larger than eight. If all group members are not present when the order is placed, the members who are not present must provide either their personal check with current and summer address thereon or cash and their ID number to the person placing the order. One student may not write a personal check in payment for another student's tickets.
5. The lowest priority within a group will determine the location of the entire block of tickets for that group. That is, all students within a group will carry the lowest priority of any member in that group. If certain priorities are denied student or guest tickets, anyone with higher priority requesting seating with this group will also be denied tickets.
6. Student season tickets will continue on sale on a non-priority basis after May 8 and will remain on sale through Friday, September 4 if still available.
7. Each student must pick up their own ticket in the fall. The student must present their own student ID with current registration (Fall 1987) sticker and picture ID at the time of pickup. Student pickup will begin Wednesday, September 9.
8. Students may cancel their football season ticket order and receive a full refund up until the Friday before the first home game. After that date, refunds will be issued only for the portion of the games remaining to be played. No cancellations or refund requests will be honored after the student ticket has been picked up and signed for. All requests for refunds must be made in writing to the Athletic Ticket Office. Please provide your full name, ID number and an address for the mailing of your refund check.
9. A student ticket, to be valid, must be accompanied by a University of Iowa ID with current (Fall 1987) registration sticker and a picture ID. A student ticket may be used by the original purchaser or by any other University of Iowa student, but the original purchaser will be held liable for any violations of the student ticket policy. If a non-student is found using a student's ticket, the student forfeits all future student ticket privileges. The penalty for a violation of the University policy involving the ID and ticket will be the loss of the use of the ticket for two games. DUPLICATE TICKETS CANNOT BE ISSUED FOR LOST OR STOLEN STUDENT TICKETS.
10. Everyone, regardless of age, is required to have a valid ticket for admittance to all University of Iowa football games. This includes infants in arms.

UI dancers in 'For Dreams Remembered'

Concert blends varied styles of dance

By Suzy Price
Staff Writer

Dance

WHAT makes dance so rich is the vast palette of styles that are illustrated in the show," Judy Allen, chairwoman of the UI Dance Department, said. If this is true, tonight and Saturday's UI Dance Department concert will provide every color in the rainbow.

The show consists of five dance pieces that incorporate ballet and modern, leotards and motley, Strauss and Glass. Two of the pieces, For Dreams Remembered and Once Upon a Time, were written by UI graduate students as part of their thesis work.

BETWEEN THESE TWO works are three shorter pieces, Boomerang by David Berkey, Memories of a Child's Love by Jodi Vestal and Community by Carol Horwitz.

For Dreams Remembered by Michael O'Connor, is an exploration of form and movement within the confines of classical ballet. The eight dancers (including the choreographer) create a variety of moods and images, sometimes dancing together and then breaking apart. At one stage pairs of dancers copy each other's patterns and shapes creating a rhythmic form of hypnosis. There are no characterized individuals or prima ballerinas — simply a chorus of movements.

The closing piece, Once Upon a Time by Shirley Nelson, is at the other end of the spectrum. It is loud, quirky, funny and has a definite story line. This updated fairy tale is an amalgamation of "Cinderella" and "Beauty and the Beast" done in a melodramatic pantomime form with multi-colored costumes and exaggerated actions.

something that would be accessible to all. "Purists might say that movement should speak for itself but I do not want to communicate with just 5 percent of the audience, or to make dance seem horribly difficult. It should be fun," she said.

THERE IS, however, a more serious message behind the buffoonery. Choreographer Nelson sees her work as the story of a woman's development. "There are so many stories about little boys coming of age, it's time we looked at little girls," she said.

The familiar Cinderella tale is retold up to the point where the heroine is about to marry her prince — then things begin to take a slightly different turn.

The piece opens with the introduction of Cinderella, her unpleasant family and the inevitable handsome prince. The story is reinforced through the imaginative use of color slides and titles projected onto a back drop. The music includes a live female singer, Tibetan Bells and The Pretenders and the dance styles are equally varied.

NELSON WANTED to create

Boomerang is an energetic, abstract piece performed by members of the UI Dancers to Go company. Community is set in a world of ragged jesters and sunsets. Both explore humans' primitive feelings and energies.

Allen said she feels it is important that students have an opportunity to showcase their work. "I don't want the department to be labeled as representing just one type of dance. I would like people to know that when they come they will experience a wide range of feelings."

The concert will take place at 8 tonight and at 6:30 and 9 p.m. Saturday at the North Hall Space/Place.

'Police Academy 4' imitates predecessors: a comic bust

By Jeff Rynott
Staff Writer

PLATOON. Hannah and Her Sisters. Children Of A Lesser God. Police Academy 4: Citizens On Patrol.

Guess which one of these films doesn't belong.

And hey, surprise, it is a stupid film. Police Academy 4 is the latest installment in the film series about misfit cops you would not want as friends, let alone subjects for a motion picture. Granted, this film is not supposed to be high cinema, but it is not even low cinema. It just lays on the screen, daring the viewer to find something funny in it. The biggest laugh comes from the usher as he takes your ticket.

THE INTRICATE PLOT of Police Academy 4 once again weaves around the misadventures of Mahoney, Hightower, Tackleberry, Zed and the rest of the gang as they try to run a citizens' watch training program in Commandant Lassard's district. In an amazing plot twist, an evil cop (Capt. Harris, the same villain from the original, lamentable Police Academy) is out to ruin our heroes' program and keep well-meaning but idiotic citizens out of police business.

Of course, the villainous Harris has other motives for trying to foil the project. He hates our heroes. He is also concerned with stopping that foremost public menace and social problem of our era — yes, you guessed it — skateboarders, two of whom have been inducted into the program.

What happens? Well, 95th thing funny. Police Academy 4 commits not only the sin of not having a sense of humor, but it is also amazingly boring. It uses all the jokes found earlier in the series, which were old and not funny in the first place. It follows the same plot/lack of plot as in the other films. There is nothing remotely original in the movie.

The Police Academy back in action

ONE OF THE biggest jokes involves moving a man in a portable toilet to the 50 yard line of a football game. Ha! Ha!

Or gluing a megaphone to Capt. Harris' mouth. Ho! Ho!

And in case you don't get the punch line at first, the film beats you over the head with it until you do. There is not even a sense of comic timing.

Steve Guttenberg (Mahoney) should be ashamed to still be doing this material after landing decent roles in much better Hollywood fare (Diner, Cocoon, Short Circuit). Michael Winslow makes funny noises, Bubba Smith looks intimidating, and "Bobcat" Goldthwait and Tim Kazurinsky can only hope their participation in the series will not set their careers back permanently.

THE MOST COMMON excuse for college students in going to see fare of this mentality level is that it gives their overtaxed minds a break. You don't need to waste your money on this film, however much your brain hurts. Most of these jokes can be performed at home anyway — just call your roommates "dickhead," "moron," or "piss-ant," practice putting in your dorm room and pour liquids and food all over yourself while acting as though you had just come from a lobotomy appointment.

If you somehow feel you must see this film, wait until it comes to cable TV. The other installments have taken up permanent residency there, so chances are you won't miss it.

Simpson shines in first novel

By Teresa Heger
Art/entertainment Editor

Anywhere But Here, a first novel by Mona Simpson, is stylistically fascinating. Simpson leaps from generation to generation, from one voice to another, without ever losing the natural flow of her story.

Anywhere But Here is told, for the most part, from the view of an adolescent girl, Ann, traveling with her mother, Adele, to California. Adele's hope — or so she declares — is to win fame for Ann, to have her become a child star.

Ann is cynical and witty; her outlook on both her mother's behavior and her own is cutting. As her mother becomes more and more eccentric and desperate in her attempts to land and hold a job, a man or even an apartment, Ann fights to create (and maintain) her own personality.

SIMPSON NOT only deals with the lives of Ann and Adele, she also explores the problems of Adele's mother and sister. The effect is broad-reaching — Simpson, through the use of memories, scans three generations.

Lillian and Carol, Adele's mother and sister, are women whose lives are formed by chance and tragedy.

Simpson's greatest talent seems to be her ability to characterize, her skill at sketching emotions and reactions. Her characters are real; their feelings toward each other are believable and compelling. Simpson's first novel is hopefully a sign of equally fine works to come.

Arby's & Baseball: America's Favorite Pastimes

Arby's, an official sponsor of Major League Baseball and makers of America's number one Roast Beef, is continuing a tradition by honoring the RBI leaders in both the National and American leagues — with the Arby's RBI Award.

Arby's: The Seasoned Pro That Knows the Score

Attention, all Baseball fans! Our roast beef is lower in fat and calories than the typical fast-food hamburger — with a taste beyond compare! Arby's: your box seat ticket for a pre- or post-game treat!

Continuing A Tradition

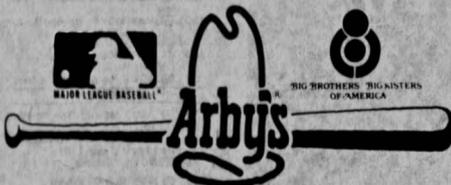

Hank Aaron Leads the RBI Team

Hank Aaron, Baseball's All-Time RBI Champion, with 2,297 RBIs in his 23 Major League seasons, and part of the Arby's team, had this to say about Arby's RBI Award, "This award is for coming through when it counts, for being a team player. And with cooperation from Arby's, that is being brought to the forefront."

Arby's and Big Brothers/Big Sisters

Arby's goes to bat for Big Brothers/Big Sisters of America by presenting $1,000 for every RBI knocked in by Major League Baseball RBI champs — In 1986, Mike Schmidt of the Philadelphia Phillies teamed up with Joe Carter of the Cleveland Indians for a combined RBI total of 240. In turn, Big Brothers/Big Sisters received a check in the amount of $240,000 from Arby's! Arby's, Baseball and kids: A natural!

Exhibit looks at modern African art

By Suzy Price
Staff Writer

PEOPLE who still believe that African art consists of masks and chicken feathers need to remove their heads from the sand and go to the Africa Art exhibition in the Iowa International Center this week.

There are no masks but there are batiks, clothes, musical instruments and leather objects from more than 20 countries. The exhibition is aiming to show the modern as well as the traditional aspects of the art, according to organizer Jeremie Sawadogo.

"MASKS ARE religious objects and have no more place in a museum than a Bible does," said Sawadogo. The functional aspect of African art which includes pipes, clothes and shoes is emphasized.

"Masks are only for the elite. Every one can weave and make bracelets and these are things we can sell," he said. "We want to show people the art they will see when they go to Africa."

The exhibits have been donated by some of the 60 African UI students. Visitors will also be able to try traditional drinks such as ginger tea and listen to tapes of African music.

Sawadogo has grander plans for next year when he hopes to get nearby universities and the African embassies involved.

"It is important that we work together to promote our countries," he said.

The exhibition is part of the UI Africa Association's celebration week which also features an Africa day celebration with a fashion show and food at Wesley House, 120 N. Dubuque St., on Saturday from 4 to 9 p.m. There will be a lecture on apartheid at Phillips Hall Room 100 Friday at 6:30 p.m. and another on African development in the same room on April 17 at 7 p.m.

The art exhibition will be on display today and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Iowa International Center, Jefferson Building Room 204.
