Center stirs questions, controversy

Administrators: Lasers light way for new UI era

By Shawn Plank
Staff Writer

This is the first story in a five-day series on the proposed UI Laser Center

Nobel Prizes, international prominence and a bright economic future for the state of Iowa are touted by UI administrators as benefits that may result if a new center for laser science and engineering is built at the UI.

The proposed center, estimated to cost about $33 million to build and equip, is one of the most ambitious projects undertaken in the UI's 140-year history. Officials hope to combine the UI's traditional role of teaching and research with improving Iowa's lagging economy.

"Every scientist we speak to who is knowledgeable in this area tells us that the field of light is the field of the future," UI President James O. Freedman said, unveiling the plan to the state Board of Regents last October. "Nobel Prizes will be awarded in work in laser science in the next 10 years."

Freedman has also said, "We aspire to nothing less than world leadership in an emerging area of 21st century science."

IN THE PAST six months, "laser" has become Iowa's buzzword. The state has wagered $1.5 million from Iowa Lottery coffers that lasers will help solve the state's farm economic crisis. The center has been endorsed by the Iowa Legislature and Gov. Terry Branstad. A package to fund university building projects, including $24.4 million to build the UI Laser Center, is expected to be approved before the legislative session ends May 1.

WHILE ADMINISTRATORS aim toward world leadership in lasers, internationally renowned astronomer James Van Allen, UI Physics and Astronomy Professor Emeritus, offers a few cautions. He called administrators selling the laser project "hyperbolic" in their expectations.

"It's too late to be in the leadership field," he said. "There's no way we can come anywhere close, but we can be good."

Other universities and private labs, such as Bell Labs and Hughes Aircraft, have a big jump on the UI, he added.

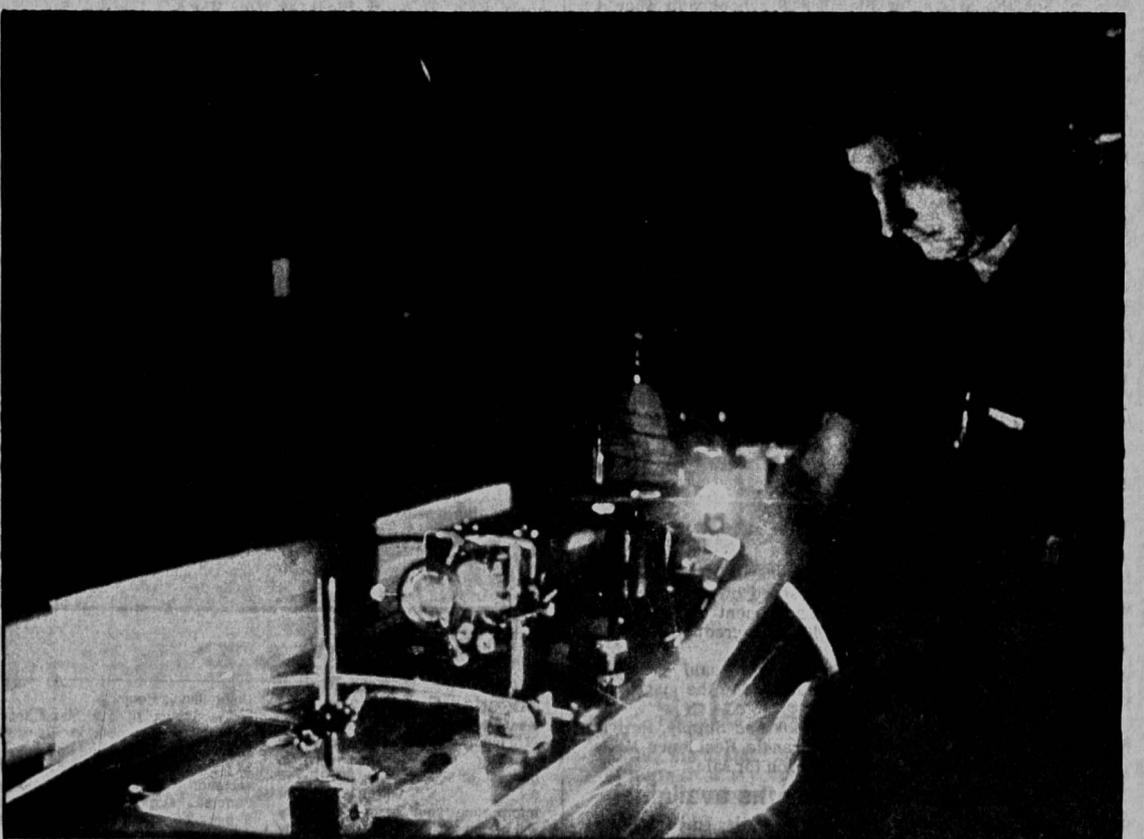

"There's no way we can get into that league," Van Allen said.

Yet UI Laser Facility Director William Stwalley says the UI ranks among the nation's elite laser research centers.

STWALLEY IDENTIFIED the top six institutions as the UI; the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, Mass.; Stanford University, Stanford, Calif.; the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N.C.; Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.; and the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia.

But the executive editor of a national magazine aimed at laser users in research and industry did not rank the UI in his top five list. Lewis Holmes, executive editor of the Massachusetts-based Laser Focus magazine, listed Stanford; MIT; the University of Rochester, Rochester, N.Y.; the University of Alabama, Huntsville, Ala.; and the University of Arizona, Tucson, Ariz., as the top university laser research centers.

UI Laser Facility Director William Stwalley has become nationally known in the laser science field for his work with the "tools of the future." UI administrators hope a new $25 million center will secure world leadership for the UI in the emerging laser technology field.

Facility will draw 3 top scientists

By Shawn Plank
Staff Writer

The three "world-class" laser scientists coming to the UI will sign on the dotted line as soon as Gov. Terry Branstad approves the funding package for the proposed UI Laser Center, UI Educational Development and Research Associate Dean Charles Mason said.

But the scientists will not move to Iowa City until the building is complete, a process that could take two years or more, Mason added.

UI officials will not disclose the names of the three scientists until after they are signed on with the school.

But The Daily Iowan has learned the scientists are Willie Phillips, a physicist at the National Bureau of Standards in Washington, D.C.; Ara Mooradian, professor of engineering at Lincoln Laboratories in Lexington, Mass.; and Richard Van Duyn, professor of chemistry at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill.

THE PACKAGE FUNDING the laser center will likely be debated this week in the Iowa Legislature, Sen. Rich Varn, D-Solon, said. The governor, however, may not receive the approved version of the bonding proposal from the Democrat-controlled legislature until near the end of their session, around May 1.

The amount of equipment the three scientists have at their current laboratories would be impossible to move into the already cramped UI Laser Facility, Mason said.

The three, who have helped the UI formulate plans for the laser center and laser science educational programs, are excited to begin working in the proposed UI center, Mason said.

"They don't have an interdisciplinary program where they are," he said.

PHILLIPS, FROM the National Bureau of Standards, specializes in applied physics and electrical engineering. The bureau is a division of the U.S. Department of Commerce. It provides a basis for U.S. measurements and standards to provide reliable data for the government.

Mooradian, a native Canadian, has also been associated with

Employers predict wage hike effects

By Carol Monaghan
Staff Writer

If a legislative proposal to raise the national hourly minimum wage pushes through Congress this session, Iowa City may feel its effects through higher costs to the consumer and a more competitive work force, local employers say.

The federal hourly minimum wage has been frozen at $3.35 per hour for six years. But Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the Senate Labor Committee has submitted legislation that would raise the minimum wage to $4.41 an hour over a period of three years.

"I think it would be a fair statement to say that Sen. Edward Kennedy has made raising the minimum wage a No. 1 labor priority," Robert Martin, manager of human resources development, U.S. Chamber of Commerce, said, adding that "the bill also has a great deal of support among the labor movement."

A BILL THAT supports raising the minimum wage had just passed through its first set of hearings last week in the House of Representatives, Martin said.

But local employers who rely on minimum wage-workers said a higher minimum wage could affect their business.

Tim Welu, manager of Burger King, 124 S. Dubuque St., said a higher minimum wage would probably mean higher sandwich prices.

"It would affect the prices of our food a lot," Welu said. "It takes a certain number of people to run our service, so that would not change. Instead, we would pass the price increase along to the consumer. We can't absorb the cost ourselves."

Not only would the higher minimum wage alter Iowa City employees' wages, Welu said, but the wage hike would affect workers who produce the products used to put together the sandwiches.

"THE FOOD COSTS to put together our products and the stuff we use to carton it, the paper, et cetera, would also go up," he said.

A local retail store manager said a higher minimum wage may mean the employer will demand a more experienced worker.

"A lot of jobs for young kids may not be there," a downtown store manager, who wished to remain unidentified, said. "A higher minimum wage brings people out of the workforce that weren't in the workforce before."

But he said a wage hike would not affect the number of people hired nor change store prices.

"We still have to run the store, sharpen our pencils and figure how we can be more productive," he said. "But when people say prices will go up, that is not necessarily so."

But just how a higher federal minimum wage would affect local employment is a gray area to several area job service officials.

"I HAVE MIXED thoughts and mixed reactions on how a higher minimum wage would affect employment," Tom Bullington, manager of Job Service of Iowa, 1810 Lower Muscatine Road, said.

Bullington said he has heard some reaction from business people who feel it would curtail hiring by employers who do pay the minimum wage.

"Already there is the tendency for more employers to

1 missing after boat capsizes

Divers using scuba equipment will continue searching the Iowa River today for an Amana, Iowa, man who was missing and presumed dead after a Saturday boating mishap.

According to a Johnson County Sheriff's Department report, 36-year-old Alvin Bernard Schulte fell off a boat he was piloting on the Iowa River near the Johnson County-Iowa County line late Saturday afternoon.

Two passengers on the boat, reported to be Schulte's sons, flagged down another boat after the incident. People on the second boat reported the accident at approximately 6:30 p.m.

Iowa and Johnson County Sheriff's deputies were joined in the search by divers from Iowa County and firefighters from the nearby towns of Oxford, North Liberty, Hills and Coralville.

According to Johnson County Sheriff Gary Hughes, rapid current and large amounts of brush and debris in the water hampered efforts to find Schulte. Workers searched the river near Oxford, Iowa, until about 1:30 a.m. Sunday and again after daybreak. Efforts will resume at dawn today.

Sheriff's deputies reported Schulte was not wearing a life preserver.

A penguin, a cat and a Pulitzer Prize

By Christopher G. Wessling
News Editor

Buoyed by the antics of a plump penguin and a drug-addicted cat, Berke Breathed was awarded the Pulitzer Prize in editorial cartooning Thursday for his comic strip, Bloom County.

"It was absolutely a surprise," said Breathed, a one-time Iowa City resident. "I think maybe the committee was looking at a bunch of comic strips that looked the same, and then happened to see some Sunday color strips of Bloom County. Who knows? It was genuinely unexpected."

Breathed, speaking from the Bahai Mar Hotel and Yachting Club in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where he docks his 54-foot boat, the Penguin Lust, said the most surprising aspect of winning the prize was that Bloom County was honored on its first submission to the Pulitzer committee.

"I THOUGHT they had given it (the Pulitzer) to someone else because it took so long before I found out," he said. "No one really believed it at first because this was the first year we submitted it. I feel pretty good."

Breathed began his cartooning career in 1977 with the Daily Texan, the student newspaper of the University of Texas at Austin. He came to Iowa City in 1981 with a girlfriend.

At that time, Bloom County was in its infancy, appearing in about 90 newspapers. But the strip's popularity grew quickly, expanding to more than 400 papers by March 1983.

"It just kind of took off right away," he said the 29-year-old. "It really didn't take it too long to get going."

By the time Breathed left Iowa City for Albuquerque, N.M., two years later, the strip had matured into a popular daily feature.

Syndicated by The Washington Post Writers Group, Opus and his pals now appear in more than 1,100 newspapers across the United States, including The Daily Iowan.

College of Medicine plans research show

Information on 124 health research projects at the UI College of Medicine — ranging from a report on using monoclonal antibodies against cancer to a report on the effects of juvenile courts on delinquent youth — will be on display April 23 and 24 in the Bowen Science Building.

The 12th annual event is open to the public. It is intended to highlight the progress and goals of the UI medical college and provide a unique opportunity for scientific exchange among colleagues, faculty, students, fellows and staff members, UI Radiology Professor Peter Kirchner said.

Researchers will be present to explain their projects and answer questions Thursday, April 23 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Friday, April 24 from 9 a.m. to noon.

Other projects to be displayed include studies on diabetes control, aerobic exercise and the cardiovascular system, hypertension, chronic pain, total knee replacement and the changes that take place in the body during shock.

Four projects by Iowa State University researchers will also be displayed.

Earthwords, the original UI undergraduate creative arts magazine, is now available for purchase.

The 80-page magazine, co-sponsored by UI Associated Residence Halls and the UI Department of Residence Services, features works by 40 undergraduate writers and artists.

Melissa Goldman, Earthwords editor, said a record number of people offered submissions to the magazine, making selection difficult.

The Union Bookstore, Iowa Book and Supply, Prairie Lights and the Burge and Quadrangle Residence Halls stores have copies of the publication for sale.

Spriestersbach may stay on at UI post for another year

By Joseph Levy
Assistant Metro Editor

Duane Spriestersbach will remain UI Vice President for Educational Development and Research one more year if UI President James O. Freedman has his way.

Spriestersbach was asked by Freedman last week to postpone his retirement and to continue at his post through June 1988. According to Freedman, the president was having difficulty finding a successor.

"We were not yet ready to identify the successor," Freedman said Sunday.

Spriestersbach had planned to retire June 30 of this year. UI policy says all faculty and staff members shall retire no later than June 30 following their 70th birthday.

"I WAS READY to quit,"

Spriestersbach said. "It's time for a change."

But the UI vice president said he decided to stick it out one more year because, "I was asked to," he said.

"I am honored to know that the university community feels that my continued service can be helpful," he added.

Freedman said Spriestersbach's age will not adversely affect his performance. "Spree has all of the energy of a 35-year-old," he said, adding the UI should feel indebted to Spriestersbach for deciding to stay an extra year. "He is making a very great personal sacrifice."

Freedman's request that an exception be made for Spriestersbach in the UI mandatory retirement policy will be addressed by the state Board of Regents in their meeting this week.

THE REGENTS WILL probably also name an interim UI president this week, as Freedman announced last week he will be assuming the presidency of Dartmouth College this summer.

Although UI Vice President for Academic Affairs Richard Remington was the leading candidate for the temporary position early last week, Freedman didn't count out Spriestersbach for the job.

"That's up to the Board of Regents," he said.

Spriestersbach served as interim president of the UI from 1981 to 1982 after Willard Boyd resigned and before Freedman arrived at the UI, but he said he was glad Remington was being considered.

"It was not something I sought," he said.

Law student files grievance

By Monica Seigel
University Editor and United Press International

A formal grievance has been filed with the UI Office of Academic Affairs against UI College of Law Professor Paul Neuhauser, a third-year law student said Sunday.

The student, who declined to be identified, said he issued a complaint to UI Vice President of Academic Affairs Richard Remington charging Neuhauser, who has not yet submitted grades for his fall-semester corporate law course, with violating UI Codes of Ethics and Academic Responsibility.

"Section 20.292a of the University Operations Manual states that a faculty member has an obligation to evaluate student performance. For the past three and one-half months, Professor Neuhauser has failed to provide any evaluation of his students' work and is therefore in violation of (this code)," the complaint states.

"THE MANUAL FURTHER provides that a faculty member owes to the student and to the university a fair evaluation of the student's work," the complaint continues. "A fair evaluation means a reasonable one, and it is certainly not reasonable to force students to wait such a lengthy period to receive their grades."

The student said Neuhauser's failure to submit the grades has made it impossible to determine class rankings for second and third-year law students.

"Class rank is what counts when you're going for the clerkships," he said.

Neuhauser said Sunday he has no excuses for his tardiness.

"I have some explanations, but no excuses, nor will I make up any," Neuhauser said. "They're just late; that's all there is to it."

He said medication he has been taking for a heart ailment has caused him to tire easily, making the task of grading the essay examinations he administered Dec. 12 difficult. He also said his mother died recently, and he is teaching an extra class this semester.

"ALL THOSE THINGS can add up and make some jobs just about impossible to finish," he said.

Under UI policy regarding delinquent grades, Neuhauser's paycheck has been withheld since February, but that has not accelerated his progress. The tenured professor earns more than $46,000 a year, College of Law Dean William Hines said.

Neuhauser's grades were also delinquent last year, Hines said, but not for as long a period. He said the problem has not gone unnoticed by the university.

Bracelets help remember the missing

By Suzy Price
Staff Writer

Colorful bracelets, handwoven by Guatemalan refugees, are a new symbol for individuals concerned about human rights violations in the Central American country.

About 500 bracelets have been sold in Iowa City in the past year and a half, while about 5,000 have been sold in the United States as a whole.

"It's an important grassroots way to inform people," Mike Henry, director of the Latin American Human Rights center in Iowa City, said.

Guatemala is, according to one of its journalists, fast becoming a nation of orphans. In the past 30 years, 100,000 people have been killed there, and 40,000 people have disappeared without trace.

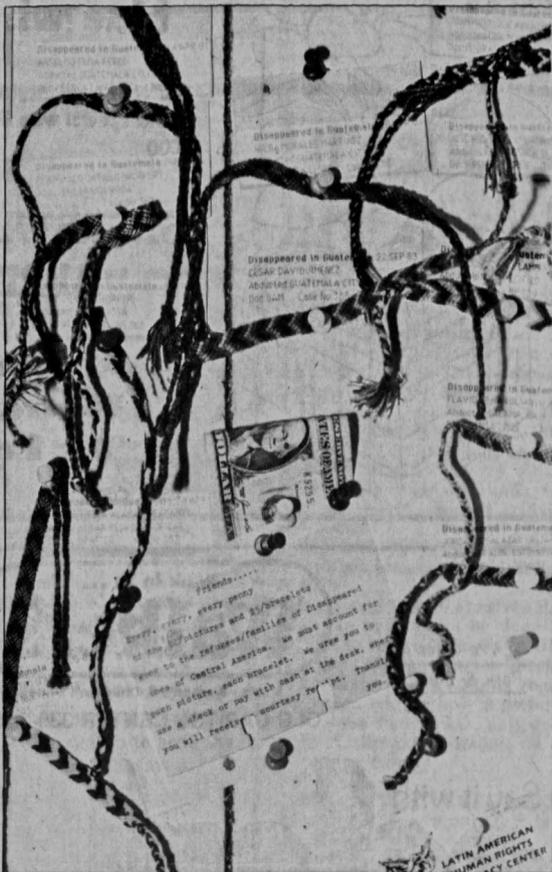

Henry, who recently visited the country, said the disappearing is a way of keeping people under control through fear.

"A CAR CAN draw up at any time and take you away," Henry said. "The person disappears and the family does not know whether they are alive or dead. They do not have a body to grieve over."

The bracelet idea was derived from those worn during the Vietnam war with the names of POWs on them.

The Guatemalan bracelets project has been organized by the international campaign to "free individuals disappeared in Guatemala" or Finding, a group based in Shorewood, Wis., that tries to raise money for and awareness of the abducted Guatemalan people and their families.

Anyone in Guatemala runs the risk of disappearing, the British Parliamentary Human Rights Group reported in 1984.

Handwoven Guatemalan bracelets and cards identifying missing persons from that country, adorn a bulletin board in Haunted Bookshop On-The-Creek, 520 Washington St. The bracelets, made by Guatemalan refugees, are a way to inform and remind people of human rights violations in the Central American country. In the course of 30 years, an estimated 100,000 people have died, and an additional 40,000 have disappeared without a trace. "This is genocide," says Mike Henry. "There are no political prisoners, you are either alive or dead. Gross violations of human rights happen all the time, especially against the indigenous Indian population."

The Daily Iowan/Todd Mizener

It described how people are dragged from their homes or off the street by heavily armed members of the security forces dressed in civilian clothes who often use cars with no numbered license plates. They are rarely seen again and many mutilated bodies are found in unmarked graves.

THE 40,000 PEOPLE who "have been disappeared" as Finding calls it, include men, women and children of all ages and walks of life. Most frequent victims include trade unionists, teachers, students and urban workers. Refugees from the mountains and real or suspect guerrilla sympathizers who give themselves up under the government amnesty are also victims. A group of families working in Guatemala called Grupo de Apoyo Mutuo was formed in June 1984 by relatives of people who had been disappeared. The group now numbers about 2,000 families. GAM advertises in newspapers, lobbies government and military authorities and visits hospitals, morgues and detention centers for information.

Locally, Henry has tried to get UI students and local residents involved in the effort through selling bracelets.

THE BRACELETS cost $5, with $1 given to the refugees in Mexico who made them and the remaining four to the GAM.

The bracelets can be purchased in Iowa City from Henry or at the Haunted Bookshop On-The-Creek, 520 Washington St.

Anyone who buys a bracelet also gets a card with the name of a missing person, where and when they disappeared, and who documented it.

The official response by the Guatemalan government to inquiries about the disappearings is that the disappeared are out of the country or with the guerrillas. The unofficial response consists of threats not to continue the protests.

"THIS IS GENOCIDE," Henry said. "There are no political prisoners, you are either alive or dead. Gross violations of human rights happen all the time, especially against the indigenous Indian population."

The United States recognizes Guatemala as a democracy because it has a civilian government and supposedly free voting. A CIA-aided coup in 1954 overthrew the reformist government and a succession of dictatorships followed. Guatemala has several important resources including oil, nickel and coffee.

"We protect the multi-nationals with huge investments and provide military aid," Henry said. "They say it is in the national interest, that means the economic interest."

Nesbitt slams bill to lift fireworks ban

IOWA CITY (UPI) — Fireworks should not be legalized in Iowa, but if they are made legal, the state should levy a tax on them to pay for the treatment of people injured or burned by their use, a UI professor said during the weekend.

John Nesbitt, chairman of the UI's Leisure Studies Department and a professor of therapeutic recreation, said Iowans' safety should not be threatened by the state's desire to make money from the sale of fireworks.

Nesbitt said he has been involved in the rehabilitation of disabled people and fears the injuries fireworks can cause. He said he hopes his formation of the Committee Against Fireworks in Iowa will draw attention to the fact that fireworks can be deadly.

THE IOWA HOUSE has approved and the Senate is considering a bill to legalize the sale and use of federal Class "C" fireworks by Iowans 16 years and older during late June and early July each year. The bill would cover Black Cats, Roman candles and lady-fingers.

Nesbitt said if the bill passes, he will hold legislators who supported it responsible for any injuries resulting from the use of fireworks. He said he will go so far as to term all fireworks-related injuries "Jay injuries" after Rep. Daniel Jay, D-Centerville, who wants the measure enacted.

Jay and other proponents of the bill have said it will aid economic development in southern Iowa because many Iowans near the Missouri state line drive south to purchase fireworks.

Proponents also have said fireworks rank relatively low on lists of injuries compiled by the Consumer Product Safety Commission, and the state will take additional precautions, such as banning the sale of fireworks in tents.

Nesbitt said he disagrees with those contentions because statistics he obtained from the commission indicate 10,265 accidents involving fireworks in the United States in 1985 were serious enough to require hospitalization.

Blacks integrate, break greek barrier

By Diane Hawkins
Special to The Daily Iowan

Some UI black students seeking involvement in greek social organizations are challenging racial barriers by pledging predominantly white chapters instead of the eight black chapters on campus.

Kevin Lindsey, a UI senior and member of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, said he likes proving he can be successful in a white fraternity. "I would like to be a successful leader," Lindsey said. "I wanted to break the barrier between whites and blacks in a fraternity together."

Pam White, a UI sophomore, said she joined Gamma Phi Beta because she was not separated from any of the members of the sorority.

"I'M NOT WITH a group of 'white girls', I am with a group of friends," she said. "Gamma Phi Beta offered sisterhood, getting involved at Iowa and new friends."

White's parents were both active in black greek organizations, but left it up to her to pick the sorority of her choice. White pledged Gamma Phi Beta as a freshman during summer rush.

"I was kind of scared because other blacks were not in the sororities already, but I went through and liked it," White said. "I don't look at them as 'black' and 'white' sororities — just sororities."

Vickie Pallas, a freshman member of Gamma Phi Beta, said White's race doesn't make her different.

"She's no different, to me, than any other person," Pallas said. "She's the closest person to me in my house. She's my best friend as well as my sorority sister. I think everyone in the house loves her just as much as I do."

BRADLEY THOMAS, a UI junior, joined Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity as a freshman.

"I went through rush and some of the white fraternities looked at me as a 'token' or simply 'black', however, Lambda Chi Alpha looked at me as a person," he said. "At times I have regrets not being in a black fraternity. When I go to their parties and events I feel a part of them but I wish I could be a part of their organization."

Thomas said white fraternities are strong, but there are blacks who are not aware of the black fraternal organizations.

"There should be one black representative from each fraternity or sorority to make blacks aware of their organizations during rush," he said. "I believe there would be a higher percentage of blacks interested."

MALCOLM McCURRY, a freshman, said he wasn't really exposed to black organizations on campus, but he doesn't regret his decision to pledge Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity.

"I feel more comfortable around white people," McCurry said. "I have few things in common with most blacks, like music taste and other activities."

Ray Grant, academic counselor at Special Support Services, said he feels it's good for blacks to ignore racial barriers in choosing greek chapters.

"It prepares them to relate with different races and it gives them different perspectives. The more perspectives you have the more advantages you will have in a diverse society as such," he said. "If blacks are in the white fraternities and sororities, they can turn other blacks onto it. Each time a black does something new and different we enhance our own race."

Just over 2 percent of the UI's 29,000 on-campus students are black, Paul Shang, director of Special Support Services, said.

KGB official makes spy accusations

MOSCOW — A senior KGB official acknowledged Sunday that Western intelligence agencies, including the CIA, have recruited Soviet citizens to betray their country and disclose valuable state secrets.

Col. Gennadi Ageev, deputy chairman of the Soviet intelligence and security agency, said in a rare interview with the trade union newspaper Trud that the CIA managed to obtain the information by bribing high-level Soviet officials.

Ageev also said Western intelligence services managed to bug several Soviet scientific institutions and communications networks with highly sophisticated equipment smuggled into the country.

He said the Soviet Academy of Sciences, the main government scientific research institute, was the Western spy agencies' No. 1 target.

Woman will become U.N. agency head

UNITED NATIONS — A Pakistani expert on family planning is to be named the first woman to head a United Nations agency, U.N. officials said Sunday.

The appointment of Nafis Sadik, 58, to head the U.N. Fund for Population Activities will be announced today, the officials said.

Sadik is currently the third-highest ranking official at the controversial agency whose funding from the United States was cut off last year because of its policy toward abortion.

The appointment will end a race that has transpired since last month's death of the agency's former head.

Last wild California condor captured

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. — The last California condor known to be living in the wild was captured Sunday by conservationists in a program to rebuild the dying species.

Known as AC-9, the condor was trapped in a net while feeding on a calf's carcass set out as bait, Joseph Dowhan, head of the condor recovery team of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, said.

"A veterinarian with the team of biologists who captured the bird pronounced it to be in good condition," Dowhan said.

The 7-year-old giant vulture was taken to the San Diego Wild Animal Park, where scientists hope to rebuild the condor population by breeding it with female condors at the park, he said.

The California condor once ranged over much of the West until pesticides and a shrinking habitat threatened its extinction.

Island resort angry over seeping trash

GRAND ISLE, La. — Resort island officials expressed fears Sunday that gusty offshore weather could suddenly solve a waste firm's problem of where to dump 3,000 tons of rotting New York garbage stacked on a barge in the Gulf.

The barge laden with compacted bales of garbage — including discarded syringes, bedpans and other medical waste from the Town of Islip, N.Y. — remained moored Sunday to a Conoco Oil Company drilling platform 16 miles south of Grand Isle.

Lechate — a black putrid substance composed of water from rain and wave action percolating through the garbage — is seeping from the barge at a rate of about a gallon an hour, and samples show it contains medical waste, said Dale Givens, assistant secretary of the Department of Environmental Quality.

Reward offered for stolen Monet piece

DES MOINES — A $17,500 reward is being offered for information leading to the safe return of a painting by French impressionist Claude Monet that was stolen from the Fisher Community Center in Marshalltown, Iowa, last month, the painting's insurer said.

The Des Moines office of the St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance Co., which insured the $175,000 painting, said during the weekend that the reward, being offered by the Fisher Governor Foundation of Marshalltown, is contingent upon the painting's being returned without damage or alteration.

Argentine officers end holdout at base

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — President Raul Alfonsin said Sunday that rebellious officers who had been holding out for three days at a military base have agreed to surrender and "will be arrested and taken before justice."

Alfonsin, who flew Sunday to the Campo de Mayo military base near Buenos Aires to negotiate personally with the 50 to 150 rebels, returned to the capital and told a delirious rally estimated at 400,000 people that the rebels "have surrendered their position."

"Happy Easter!" Alfonsin said from the balcony of the Casa Rosada in delivering the news that he had ended the worst crisis of his three-year-old civilian government. "The house is in order and there was no bloodshed."

A MILITARY SOURCE said Alfonsin personally conferred at the rebel-held infantry school in the Campo de Mayo garrison with rebel leader Lt. Col. Aldo Rico, a 42-year-old veteran of the Falkland Islands war.

The whereabouts of Rico were not known and it was unclear whether the rebel officers had been taken into custody.

Alfonsin earlier had urged crowds who had gathered near the Campo de Mayo, 15 miles from Buenos Aires, to clear away from the installation to allow military movements there.

Gen. Ernesto Alais, commander of the loyalist 2nd Army forces that had camped near the rebel-held school, approached the rebel area in a jeep and urged demonstrators there to leave so he could send in his own troops.

The soldiers holding the school have said they are not opposed to Alfonsin, but demanded the resignation of army Chief of Staff Hector Rios Erenu and the end of human rights trials against military officers accused of murdering and torturing some 9,000 political prisoners who disappeared in the 1970s.

ALAIS MOVED HIS troops to within gunfire range of the rebel infantry school Sunday, but said, "I have faith that this will be solved without having to shoot."

The loyalist 2nd Army forces advanced Saturday night from a staging area in the cities of Zarate and Campana to a sector of the sprawling Campo de Mayo base that remained loyal to the government.

The officers' rebellion began Wednesday in an airborne infantry unit in Cordoba, when Maj. Ernesto Barreiro refused a court summons to testify in a human rights case and holed up with about 80 supporters refusing arrest.

The Cordoba uprising ended Thursday when Barreiro fled and his supporters fled. But the Campo de Mayo unit rebelled Friday, beginning the three-day standoff.

All the nation's major political leaders Sunday signed a document pledging them to use "all their means possible" to defend Argentina's democracy. President Ronald Reagan and the Soviet Union also expressed support Sunday for Alfonsin.

Saul Ubaldini, leader of the General Labor Confederation, called a 14-hour general strike beginning Monday morning to repudiate the military uprising.

South Korean students riot outside memorial

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — Some 1,500 students, chanting "bring down the military dictatorship" and "drive out the Americans," clashed with riot police Sunday outside a memorial for 200 students killed in a 1960 nationwide uprising that toppled the government.

The violent protest occurred outside the "April 19th Tomb" in northern Seoul, where the fallen students are buried and annual memorials are held by students, the opposition and the government.

The afternoon student rally culminated a weeklong series of demonstrations commemorating "Student Uprising Week" when the government of Syngman Rhee was toppled in 1960.

WITNESSES SAID some 200 protesters were arrested and several students were harshly beaten by baton-wielding police. No official estimates on the size of the crowd, arrests or injuries were immediately available.

Earlier in the day, families of the fallen students held picnics next to the funeral mounds.

At the same time, opposition and government lawmakers came separately to pay their respects at the memorial, with each side using the occasion to plead their political agenda.

Immediately after the two-hour rally ended, a core of some 1,500 students began marching around the memorial grounds, shouting anti-government slogans.

U.S., Japan trade diplomats in effort to reduce tensions

TOKYO (UPI)—Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone and President Ronald Reagan exchanged envoys Sunday for a week of high-level talks on both sides of the Pacific amid heightened trade tensions between the economic super-powers.

Former Japanese Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe, carrying a personal letter from Nakasone to Reagan, flew to Washington hours before U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter arrived at a U.S. military base outside Tokyo.

Abe, a ranking official in Nakasone's ruling Liberal Democratic Party, was scheduled to meet with Reagan, administration officials and congressional leaders during his weeklong visit.

Nakasone dispatched Abe as his special envoy to pave the way for his own visit later this month to Washington and to appeal for the withdrawal of U.S. trade sanctions on $300 million worth of Japanese imports.

THE JAPANESE government said it will challenge the U.S. sanctions introduced Friday in retaliation for Tokyo's alleged violation of a 1986 trade accord on semiconductors, but stopped short of taking immediate counter-measures.

With a threat of a trade war looming, Abe said prior to his departure he would try "to restore mutual trust" between the two countries.

During his visit, Abe will also brief American leaders on a $35 billion package of measures designed to stimulate Japan's economy and open its markets to more imports.

While the Japanese envoy attempts to defuse U.S. anger over Japan's trade policies, the visiting Reagan administration official, Yeutter, will attend two trade conferences and press for greater U.S. access to Japanese markets.

Among the chief U.S. demands are American participation in a $6.5 billion airport project in western Japan and in a new telecommunications firm, along with opening Japanese markets to U.S. supercomputers and agricultural goods.

YEUTTER WAS TO give a key speech today on the second day of a conference of Japanese and American political and business leaders in a seaside resort near Tokyo.

Japan's Minister of International Trade and Industry Hajime Tamura was expected to urge Yeutter to lift the U.S. trade sanctions and present him with data to prove Japan's position it had not violated the 1986 accord.

Following the mid-week talks, Yeutter will travel to central west Japan for a four-way trade conference beginning Friday among ministers from the United States, Western Europe, Canada and Japan.

Leading newspapers Sunday criticized the United States for imposing its first punitive trade sanctions against Japan since World War II, but also urged Tokyo to reconsider its export-oriented policies.

Israelis repel attack by Palestinian squad

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI)—Israeli soldiers intercepted a Palestinian "terrorist squad" on a hostage-taking mission near a border kibbutz, killing all three intruders, and helicopters later retaliated against a Palestinian base, the military said.

Two Israeli soldiers were killed by the intruders, who sneaked through a hole cut in a fence along Israel's northern border with Lebanon early Sunday, a spokesman for the Israeli Defense Forces said.

"In a brief exchange at short range, all members of the terrorist squad were killed. Two IDF soldiers were also killed," said the spokesman, who added the "terrorists" had intended to take Israeli hostages.

"Personal weapons, several (U.S.-made) LAW (anti-tank) missiles, flak jackets, grenades and water were found next to the terrorists' bodies," said the IDF spokesman, who said they were members of Yasser Arafat's mainstream Al Fatah faction of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

THERE WAS NO immediate comment from the PLO on the clash in Israel.

Several hours later the IDF said its helicopters attacked a one-story building used as a base for launching "terrorist operations" on Israel, returned safely to base and reported scoring "accurate hits."

The IDF did not identify which group uses the building on the outskirts of the Rashidiyeh Palestinian refugee camp near the southern Lebanese port of Tyre, 13 miles north of the border with Israel.

Militia sources in Tyre confirmed the Israeli air raid, saying four helicopters fired rockets at Palestinian targets in Rashidiyeh, wounding several people.

A spokesman for the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine said the Israeli rockets hit a four-story civilian building on the outskirts of Rashidiyeh, killing one person and wounding three.

A SPOKESMAN FOR the powerful Shiite Moslem Amal militia, which has forces surrounding the camp, said Amal anti-aircraft batteries opened fire on the Israeli helicopters and stopped them from "achieving their goal."

Military sources in Israel said the early morning raid near the kibbutz was believed to be the worst case of Palestinian "terrorist" infiltration into the Jewish state in more than five years.

The "terrorist squad" apparently hoped to provide a PLO victory for today's meeting of the Palestine National Council in Algiers, the IDF spokesman said. Arafat is pushing for hardline PLO splinter groups to reunite with Al Fatah at the meeting of the Palestinian parliament-in-exile.

Election underway in Vietnam

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI)— Voters went to the polls Sunday across Vietnam in elections seen as part of a campaign to revitalize the economy and to replace the aged hardliners who presided over five decades of war and revolution.

The elections for the 496-seat National Assembly and local people's councils were expected to be the most democratic in 12 years of communist rule, following a shakeup in electoral rules and a purge of the Communist Party.

The government reported a 50 percent turnout in many districts, and Radio Hanoi said more than 1.7 million voters "enthusiastically flocked" to polling sites in the capital.

Among the changes party leaders have said were implemented to make the elections more democratic are:

- A larger number of candidates for voters to choose from. About 800 candidates were nominated for the assembly, up from about 600 in 1981, the last time elections were held.
- The breakup of electoral districts to make candidates more accountable to a smaller constituency.

Robertson: 'I don't trust the Soviets'

DAVENPORT (UPI)—Television evangelist Pat Robertson said during the weekend he is distrustful of the Soviets and is leery of signing a proposed arms control agreement that would eliminate medium-range nuclear weapons in Europe.

"I don't trust the Soviets," Robertson said at a news conference following a speech to about 700 Iowans at a pre-Easter prayer breakfast Saturday. "I am wary of an agreement which comes about because of weakness."

"The president right now is politically weakened and the thrust toward an arms agreement from weakness is not wise," said Robertson, who plans to announce his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination as soon as he gathers petitions signed by 3 million Americans.

THE FORMER HOST of cable television's "700 Club" said he supports the provision of the latest arms control proposal calling for on-site verification that the Soviets have withdrawn their medium-range missiles from Europe, but he said the Russians will have a definite edge if the treaty is ever scuttled.

"Keep in mind that once we take the Pershing and cruise missiles from Europe, we will never get them back again. It will be politically impossible Pat Robertson never to put them back in place," he said.

Robertson also said he believes any arms control pact with the Russians must be linked to a relaxation of Soviet human rights violations, but he said President Ronald Reagan allowed himself to get backed in the corner.

"The President proposed a zero nuclear theater in Europe and the Russians have called him on it," Robertson said. "And so frankly, I don't see that we have any choice at this point in time but to make an agreement and it's going to lead the Soviets to overwhelming conventional superiority in Europe."

Missiles in Alaska may wreck pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet and American arms control experts said Sunday the placement of U.S. missiles in Alaska could be a bone of contention in what is believed to be the best chance yet of a superpower arms agreement.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, also said he was worried by the proposals.

Aspin appeared Sunday on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley" along with Soviet Ambassador Viktor Karpov and presidential adviser Paul Nitze.

One proposal discussed on the program would allow the Soviets to maintain 100 medium-range missiles in Asia and the Americans to keep 100 in the United States.

Asked if the Soviets would object to the United States placing its 100 missiles in Alaska, Karpov said, "Yes. Sure. The situation now is that no medium-range missiles of the Soviet Union are deployed in a way to reach United States territory, even Alaska."

Nitze said, "It's important for us not to give up the right to have them in Alaska."

House Parents create a family.

by Traci Auble

On May 13, 1984 the Alpha Chi Omega house took on a new addition. Not a room, or a pet or even a pledge class, but a "house father."

Margaret and Lawrence Jensen were married on the decks of Alpha Chi after their children from previous marriages aided in their courtship.

"I had already been the house mother for a year while dating Lawrence. Our kids (in West Branch) were best of friends and started cooking up dinner parties," Mrs. Jensen said. "Then they'd leave us alone in the room; they were so obvious it was funny."

Happily married for three years, Mr. Jensen had a lot to do a lot of adjusting. He owns an 82-acre farm in West Branch and is used to the quiet life, he said. He now spends most of the time at the Alpha Chi house and takes care of his farm on weekends.

"Coming off the farm I was a little hesitant, but now I enjoy the activity at the sorority," he said. "The girls are considerate and thoughtful; they really go out of their way for me."

At Alpha Chi the houseparents are known as Mrs. J. and Papa J. — nicknames which stuck several years ago. The girls said they like having Papa J. around.

"I love Papa J! He's like a grandfather to us," Kim Petri said.

"He participates in rush, takes care of the plants and fixes whatever he can around the house," Stacy Rubin said. "And he always has a smile for us."

Mrs. Jensen said she wasn't sure if house corporation would allow her to keep her job while being married, but they were in favor of it. In her first marriage she had always been active with young people and said that was the reason she applied for house mother.

"If you're used to young people you miss it when they are not around," she said. "This keeps me young and it isn't really a job, but a way of life. If I thought of it as a job I'd take my weekends off."

While in her college years at the UI, Mrs. Jensen had a different view of sororities than she does now.

"I thought they were a bunch of rich little girls who party all the time," she said. "That's not true though; they study hard and I feel everyone who leaves this house will be a leader in her community because each has many responsibilities here."

Mr. Jensen said he enjoys being around the girls also, but he still keeps a social life outside of the house. Although he didn't attend college, he worked for Campus Mail for 25 years and said he has become good friends with many professors. He also spends time at the senior citizen's center in both Iowa City and West Branch to see friends he grew up with.

Mrs. Jensen said he like to play his fiddle but usually only plays at Christmastime. She also considers him a real gentleman.

"He's very thoughtful and always buys me candy and sends flowers for special occasions. One time he insulted me and the girls said he owed me flowers and candy so he bought me yellow roses and a box of chocolates," she said.

The girls said Papa J. is a nice addition to the house and "house parents" are something they like having unique to Alpha Chi.

"I can't imagine not having Papa J. around," Petri said. "He and Mrs. J. are like grandparents to us."

The men of Alpha Sigma Phi are currently 25 members strong. President Darren Vermost said they are technically a colony and must meet certain obligations in order to become a chapter and receive their charter. These obligations include scholarship, philanthropy, financial, social and membership.

Their members have been working hard participating in Greek Week, Delta Gamma Anchor Splash, and intramurals. They initiated their own philanthropy by sponsoring a Back to School Bash at the Fieldhouse to raise money for the Iowa City Food Bank.

The men of Alpha Tau Omega have met all their requirements to become installed as a chapter. Their petition was sent to their national organization and has recently been approved. The men of Alpha Tau Omega are now waiting to be initiated and receive their charter.

President, Duane Marty said that it has been difficult for their fifty members to disperse information because they do not have a central meeting place like most other fraternities on campus. Although they do not have a chapter house, several of their members do live in the same apartment complex. "We are always looking to build or buy," Marty said.

Currently, the men of Alpha Tau Omega are keeping busy "trying to act as any other Greek house on campus," Marty said. Greek Week Olympics director, Bev Haas, congratulated the ATO's on their first place finish at Olympics and was thrilled with their enthusiasm and participation.

Sigma Alpha Mu came to campus three years ago, but is going strong with 60 members. Former president, David Kaz said, "We had problems getting recognized, but we held together and Brotherhood is on the rise within the Greek system as colonies seek charter membership at the University of Iowa.

"When there's nothing to lose by trying and a heck of a lot to gain if successful, by all means try." This motto unifies the members of Sigma Lambda Beta, the First National Hispanic Fraternity in the United States. This fraternity was first established here in Iowa City, and presently has 21 members. Sigma Lambda Beta also recognizes three additional colonies at Western Illinois University, Illinois State University, and in Puerto Rico.

President, Juan Jose "Pepe" Rojas Cardona described their main function as promoting the Hispanic population through means of civic, social, and cultural education. Members focus their attention on educating elementary and high school students about hispanic culture, emphasizing the importance of academics.

Pepe said the members are in the process of writing their constitution and by-laws this semester, in an effort to get their feet on the ground, and are looking forward to getting involved with other houses in the fall.

Positive attitudes and mandatory participation reign high among the 13 members of Alpha Epsilon Pi in an effort to make their recolonization successful. These efforts were recognized when they teamed up with the women of Sigma Delta Tau for Greek Week Follies and earned a first place in their division.

"Things haven't been real easy," said president Alan Hochman. "We were constantly chasing our tails; we weren't prepared for rush last year. This year, we are prepared and know what to expect."

proved to the campus we were worth keeping. We were referred to as just an interest group."

Members actively participated in Greek Week, Homecoming, and intramurals. They are presently preparing for their philanthropy, "Bounce for Beats," in which participants will bounce basketballs for 48 hours in support of the American Heart Association.

In the fall, Sigma Alpha Mu will be reviewed by IFC, at which time they will be eligible for complete recognition and acknowledgement. Until then, they will remain a colony.

"We want to be a more active part of the Greek system," said Jaret Goforth, president of the Theta Xi fraternity. With 55 members, Goforth commented, "We're stable and still growing." Their biggest focus is rush and they are hoping to reach a total of 70 members.

They were recently commended for their number one scholarship program, implemented by Tom Tyler. The fraternity has also been busy participating in intramurals and won the Zeta Hoop and Holler.

Theta Xi sponsored a Rock-a-Like contest to benefit Multiple Sclerosis. "We would like to do a co-philanthropy with a more established house," Goforth added.

Interfraternity Council President, Larry O'Brien, said he is impressed with the interest national fraternal organizations have towards establishing new chapters on campus. He also said the Greek system is strong, but trouble stems from the fact that housing is difficult to obtain. O'Brien maintains that members of these fraternities deserve to be recognized, "it takes a special breed and a lot of work."

All of the houses thanked Mary Petersen for her never-ending support, guidance, and advice.

While in her college years at the UI, Mrs. Jensen had a different view of sororities than she does now.

Homecoming '87 - looking ahead

by Christy Weiderholdt

Although this semester is yet to be completed, when we arrive back in the Fall for classes a big event will be upon us, HOMECOMING '87. The Homecoming Executive Council is hard at work already to make the big event one of great success. The dates for Homecoming are October 21st through the 24th. Some of the traditional events will happen, including of course, the coronation ceremony, crowning the king and queen of the week. This will take place on Wednesday the 21st. Thursday's festivities include a pep rally, Old Capitol entertainment, and the fireworks at the riverfront. Friday the 23rd includes Old Capitol entertainment, and the parade. Saturday the 24th, game day, Iowa versus Purdue. As the dates get closer upon us more events will be brought out. The Homecoming theme is being decided upon and will be announced as soon as it is available.

Wrap-up on Riverfest

by John Luetjen

As the school year begins to draw to a close, students at the U of I take part in a huge celebration of Spring as the annual Riverfest Week takes place. Running from April 19th to the 26th, Riverfest this year promises to be one of the best ever.

Once again this year, the Greek System is taking an active part in the Riverfest celebration. A few different philanthropies are being held in conjunction with Riverfest as well as the different activities and contests that the fraternities and sororities are getting involved with.

Acacia Fraternity, along with the women of Alpha Delta Pi, are again hosting A Taste of Iowa City. This all day event runs on Sunday, April 26th, and will take place at the Union Field. Taste of Iowa City will feature culinary delights of many of the Iowa City restaurants. There is sure to be plenty of good food and the money goes to a good cause as the proceeds are donated to the Shriner's Burn Centers.

Sigma Alpha Mu will also be holding their Bounce for Beats philanthropy. Besides their marathon dribbling session, they will be hosting a 3-on-3 basketball tournament that will run from the 22nd to the 26th. There is a $15 entry fee per team with $100 first prize for the winners. You can also enter the raffle to win a trip for 2 to Las Vegas. Anyone interested in getting involved can contact Brett Kessler at 354-0630 or 354-8060.

IFC and Panhel will also be holding the All-Greek Twister philanthropy. This huge twister contest will be held to the theme "Let's Do The Twist!" and every house is encouraged to get involved. Teams will be made up of 3 players and there is a tentative limit of 5 teams per house. The entrance fee is $10 per team and the money raised will be donated to the Iowa Farm Scholarship Fund in the name of the Greek system at the University of Iowa. The contest will take place on April 26th at the Union Field. For more information contact Ann McKay at 338-7937 or 338-8666.

There are also many activities sponsored by Riverfest that Greeks will be taking part in. On the Afternoon of Friday the 24th there will be an Olympic Games competition at the Union Field. Events to be featured include lifesaver/toothpick pass, an old clothes relay, egg toss, tug-of-war, bat races, and many more. There will also be a lot of food and beverages served and the whole event promises to be a great FAC.

Two events will take place on Saturday the 25th. The first of these is the car push. Teams of 4 members will race against each other to determine the winner. Prizes will be awarded to the winning teams.

The big event of the weekend will be the Hydrorace. This race will feature non-motorized boats of original design. Basically, this will be an anything-goes contest to make your way up the river and back again. Fraternities are encouraged to team up with a sorority and enter a raft. Check-in time for the race will be at 1:30 and the race will begin and end at the boat dock. This event promises to be a good time for both the spectators and anyone else involved.

Riverfest is a great way to celebrate Spring at the University of Iowa. Besides all of the events mentioned there will be more food and beverages, live music and entertainment, the Riverrun and an overall good time in the spring sunshine.

Alcohol and liability - a growing problem

by Tara Link

As the laws stricken and liability increases, students in and out of the Greek system are being forced to restructure parties and drinking habits.

New alcohol education programs are being suggested to students for their protection against law suits and accidental deaths caused by drunk driving.

"We need to take a preventative approach toward alcohol education," Kurt Faubion of Health Iowa said, "If people really have an idea of what's going on they can make a personal and responsible choice for themselves."

Faubion explained that Greeks traditionally have been a social organization and alcohol is a social beverage. However, "it's not only in Greek houses, but in the rest of society that perpetuates the problems," he added, "we find social activities around drinking."

Although this campus has been lucky, many other campuses, including Texas, have been faced with several cases leading to strong rules and laws being passed, Faubion explained.

"They never lose the risk of paying out of their own pocket or having to go to jail being held look at responsibilities as hosts or hostesses," he said.

A spokesperson in the video stated that a chapter cannot sell alcohol or beer under legal guides, and if someone serves it, only those who can legally drink are to be allowed. Monitors must be present.

Faubion recalled a judge at the Mifca Mafca Leadership Conference saying, when juries hear an alcohol related case, there's a 99 percent assurance of a conviction. "There's not much defense in alcohol related cases," he said.

Chapter officers can get in trouble if a minor gets in an accident and goes back to the host of the party. "They can be charged with contributing to the delinquency of minors," he said.

"The best liability protection is by being educated - knowing the affects of alcohol and knowing when it gets out of hand," he said.

"We need to look at and change some policies of our parties," Faubion added. Nationwide programs are already actively working to redesign social and alcohol policies on campuses.

Besides organizations such as MADD and SADD, Project GAMMA (Greeks Advocating Mature Management of Alcohol) is being promoted by Bacchus, for the United States, Inc., an international student group promoting

Lasers

$1.5 million in Iowa Lottery funds, matched by grants from the UI Foundation, to endow three chairs in laser science. Three of the nation's leading laser researchers have been identified by UI administrators but have promised to come only if the center is complete. The three would come from separate fields — physics, chemistry and engineering — all of which are involved in laser research.

But attracting topflight scientists to the UI is not enough to guarantee a sound economic future, Robert Waller, former business school dean at the University of Northern Iowa, said. He has accused the UI of lacking plans to translate research into the cold cash of economic development and jobs for Iowans.

"You don't put a bunch of scientists in the lab and turn them loose in terms of products and employment," he said.

THE THREE ENDOWED professors will join the eight existing UI laser faculty members in the proposed 82,000 square-foot building. A total of 12 junior faculty members are expected to be appointed as the center's needs expand. Officials hope the center attracts $5 million in research grants annually.

Stwalley said the center will also provide doctoral programs in laser science and engineering, something not offered at leading laser science labs around the country.

Freedman, who resigned as UI president last week to accept the presidency at Dartmouth College in New Hampshire, has said the new facility will give Iowa a boost, both economically and educationally.

"No university has yet established an interdisciplinary laser program that combines teaching, research and outreach in the way that we propose," Freedman said.

Programs could include physics and laser science or electrical and laser engineering, Stwalley said.

THE DEMAND FOR trained laser scientists and engineers is tremendous and Stwalley said graduates from UI programs could go to work for companies like Bell Labs, IBM, Xerox, General Motors or General Electric immediately.

"There are lots of places looking for people trained in that area," he said.

Although undergraduate programs will not be taught at the center initially, Stwalley said courses to undergraduates will be available. A general laser science course for undergraduates at the UI was offered for the first time this spring. The course is taught by Stwalley with 11 UI faculty from seven different departments presenting lectures on their field of expertise.

THE UI LASER facility, established in 1979, has drawn outside businesses to the center to do specialized work with lasers and to tap the knowledge of the UI's scientists.

UI laser scientists work as "technical advisers" on such projects, Stwalley said. The UI has worked with companies such as Dow Corning in Midland, Mich., on optical information storage. The system uses lasers and discs, similar to musical compact discs, to store written information, like a library's card catalog.

UI laser scientists have also consulted with companies in Cedar Rapids and Dubuque on the proper laser to use in decorative woodcarving. They have also worked with a Keota, Iowa, company on improving the chances of fertility in cattle by splitting the cow's embryo.

Tomorrow: Lasers and their applications — what they do and what the UI says they will do for Iowa.

cut their permanent work force and go part time," he said.

Part-time employees do not receive benefits or time and a half pay for overtime, so hiring part-time instead of full-time employees is considered to be a cost-saving measure for the employer, Bullington said.

Steward Schuldt, UI acting personnel director at Eastlawn Personnel Services, said the change would not affect the hiring of any merit system employees, whose starting wages are already well above minimum wage.

BLUE COLLAR workers begin at $5.57 per hour, while technical area and clerical workers' starting wages are $5.14 an hour, Schuldt said.

But Cindy Timmerman, director of student employment at UI Student Financial Aid, said she is unsure of whether a hike in the minimum wage would affect the number of students hired.

"It's certainly logical it would have an impact on the budget of employers," Timmerman said.

UI student employees start out above minimum wage at $3.50 per hour, Timmerman said. About 9,000 students are part-time workers at the UI, while about 1,400 are employed through work-study programs, she added.

tured in Bloom County as the Bloom Boarding House is the gothic-like mansion at 935 E. College St., home to the ever-pudgy Opus.

But it's another building Breathed remembers when asked to recall his best Iowa City memories.

"Going to the public library at 8 o'clock and checking out a few records," he said. "It's really considered one of the best libraries in the country."

Deanne Wortman, an assistant in the Iowa City Public Library children's room, remembered Breathed as "a very heavy library user."

"He used the reference desk a lot," said Wortman, who was stationed at that desk when Breathed was a library regular. "He would ask a lot of questions on current events, and very soon we'd see bits and pieces of our answers show up in his strip. It was something we looked forward to."

"I REMEMBER ONE time after he moved he called the library long-distance from Los Angeles with a reference question, and I asked him, 'Why don't you just go to the library there?' He said the people just weren't as nice, and besides, the Iowa City library was better. So we found the answer to his question and called him back collect. He paid for the whole thing," Wortman said.

"I guess he just found it (the library) a very comfortable place," she said. "I'm a little prejudiced, but it is a good library. We go to great lengths to help someone out when they need something."

Wortman first encountered Breathed in 1983 when she was coordinating a series of children's programs for the library. A cartoonist herself, Wortman decided "cartooning would be a natural" subject.

REFERRED TO Breathed by a mutual friend, Wortman contacted the cartoonist and asked if he would participate in a children's workshop. Breathed agreed, and the results are on an hourlong videocassette in the library.

"He was real congenial," Wortman recalled. "He was a handsome young man, very assured of himself. He was stylish — I don't know if you'd say he was flamboyant, but he was stylish in the way he dressed. He was very friendly."

Breathed, who lives in Evergreen, Colo., when he isn't aboard the Penguin Lust, said aspiring cartoonists have to "get published and work daily. That's what it takes. That's what I did."

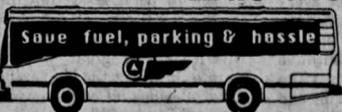

And although he ascended from the ranks of aspiring artists some time ago, Breathed is realistic when it comes to financial windfalls.

The benefactor of the $1,000 cash award Breathed received for his hard work? The Penguin Lust, of course.

"I think I'll just fill up my boat with gas," Breathed said with a laugh.

Quarterbacks shine in spring game

Quarterback Chuck Hartlieb lets a pass go just before sophomore linebacker Melvin Foster is able to wrestle him to the ground during the second quarter of Saturday's spring football game in Kinnick Stadium. Hartlieb was 12 for 23 for a 155 yards on the afternoon.

Decisions, decisions. That's what Iowa football Coach Hayden Fry and his coaching staff have to make a lot of before opening the 1987 season Aug. 30 at the Kickoff Classic against Tennessee in East Rutherford, N.J.

An estimated crowd of 42,000 watched the annual spring game at Kinnick Stadium Saturday and got a peek at what will make up Fry's ninth team at Iowa.

The black team, made up of mostly first-string players, defeated the white team, 46-7.

"I was very impressed with the overall aggressiveness of both the offensive teams," Fry said.

THE AGGRESSIVE play showed all over the field, starting in the first quarter as quarterback Tom Poholsky threaded a six-yard bullet to wide receiver Jim Mauro for the first score of the game for the black team.

The white team, in its lone score, used a six-yard toss from quarterback Chuck Hartlieb to Peter Marciano.

After fifth-year senior Rick Bayless motored with a four-yard run to open the scoring in the second quarter, sophomore quarterback Dan McGwire got into the action with a one-yard sneak to make the score 21-7.

One of the Hawkeyes' biggest questions marks is at quarterback where Poholsky, Hartlieb and McGwire all appear to have equal chances at the No. 1 starting position.

"We've all had a great spring — all three of us," McGwire said. "It's going to be tough for the coaches."

POHOLSKY SAID there is little animosity between the three quarterbacks. There's even a little joking going on between the trio of candidates.

"It's a real healthy competition between the three of us," Poholsky said.

Hartlieb said he was pleased with how the coaching staff was giving each player equal time to show their skills.

But, pointed out Hartlieb, it doesn't really matter who is named No. 1 signal caller at the opening of the fall season but rather which gets the call for the opening game.

Fry said he was looking at how each quarterback played with

THE BATTLE FOR top running back also has the Hawkeyes coaching staff in a query with returning 1,000-yard gainer Rick Bayless and Kevin Harmon battling for the top spot.

Bayless had 13 rushes for 57 yards and four catches for 74 yards for the black team.

Meanwhile, Harmon, who took a one-yard run in for the final score of the first half, rushed for both sides, carrying 10 times for 51 yards on 10 carries and catching six passes for 59 yards.

In the third quarter, Harmon provided some excitement, breaking away for a 24-yard touchdown pass from Hartlieb.

Fifth-year senior Quinn Early, who scored the last touchdown of the game on a five-yard touchdown reception from Poholsky in the fourth quarter, was one player a little embarrassed with a dropped catch.

EARLY SAID HE lost in the sun what would have been about a 75-yard pass from McGwire.

"I was really surprised when Dan threw it because I was about 50 yards down the field," Early said, adding that when he tried to adjust to the pass, he tried to lean back and catch it. Instead the ball hit Early in the facemask and fell incomplete, much to the "ahs" of the crowd.

The Iowa black team scored twice more in the fourth quarter, once on a 37-yard field goal from Rob Houghtlin and second on a safety to end the game.

Haight miffed by Harmon case

Former Hawkeye Mike Haight, now a lineman with the NFL's New York Jets, is surprised to hear allegations about former teammate Ronnie Harmon who allegedly accepted $54,000 to sign with an agent during his junior year.

"It doesn't make me happy, but there's so much hearsay that you just don't know what to believe," Haight, who was in town Saturday to watch his brother Dave play in the spring game, said. "I was pretty close to Ronnie, I was one of the very few seniors that was pretty close to him. I don't think he would do it, but you never know. I myself don't think he would do something like that, especially sell out his teammates for dropping balls and stuff like that."

HAIGHT CONTINUED: "I've heard so many people; I hate them for that. People don't have the proof. It's just like going into court — you've got to have the proof before you're guilty. $54,000, I don't know. You never know."

Haight continued: "He (Harmon) did wear good clothes and stuff, but I drove around on a new motorcycle and stuff like that too, and maybe people thought I got a couple thousand dollars. I didn't. I worked in the offseason. I earned that kind of stuff. You can ask anybody around. Maybe you can ask anybody about Ronnie Harmon, too. Maybe he went out and earned money for that moped and those gold chains and whatever else he had."

Haight also was impressed with his brother's performance after he recorded six solo tackles in the heat at Kinnick Stadium.

"HE DID AWESOME," the elder brother said. "I was watching him the whole time. I was extremely proud that he got captain this year... seems like everything he does, he does better than myself."

While Iowa's spring football game has ended, the quarterback questions have not.

All three Iowa passers — Tom Poholsky, Dan McGwire and Chuck Hartlieb — saw action in the spring game Saturday, and all left Iowa Coach Hayden Fry pleased.

"The quarterback situation/decision evidently is going to be tougher than maybe we

Hawks split series with Northwestern

By Steve Williams

With the Big Ten season half over, only one thing is clear. The Iowa baseball team will not finish in the cellar for the second straight year.

Led by strong pitching performances from Mark Boland and Cal Eldred, the Hawkeyes split a four-game series with Northwestern in Evanston, Ill., and at 5-3 in the conference seem to be in good position for a shot at the top.

Iowa lost the opener of each doubleheader 3-1 and 8-2 but came back to take the night-caps 3-2 and 5-0 behind the one-hit pitching of Eldred who recorded his first Big Ten victory.

The Wildcats meanwhile stand at 3-5 at the midway point and will need sweeps of their last two opponents for a hope at the Big Ten's Western Division crown.

"WE GAVE A LOT of young players, and in pressure situations like this, they just can't carry us," Northwestern Coach Larry Cochell said. "We had our chances to do better than we did and we just gave a couple runs away. And you've got to make the big plays in order to win."

Iowa, a team known for its productivity at the plate, never got the explosion it was looking for. The Hawkeyes were limited to 14 hits in the first three games, all of them singles and didn't get an extra-base hit until the second game on Sunday when Luis Ramirez stroked a double.

Brian Butz soon followed with two doubles as well, including the game winner which scored Jason Jones. Jones later added one of his own while Bill Heinz stroked his ninth home run of the season to help Iowa to its most lopsided win of the weekend.

"NORTHWESTERN IS a lot like us in that they have several young players," Iowa Coach Duane Banks said. "We just got some good pitching when we needed it. I was especially pleased with Eldred's performance."

The 17-16 Hawkeyes will host St. Ambrose on Tuesday and Western Illinois on Wednesday at the Iowa Baseball Diamond. Iowa will also travel to Lawrence, Kan., for a three-game series with the Jayhawks.

Parrish misses out on sweep

By Dan Millea
 Staff Writer

The Hawkeye softball team came within a whisker of completing a key Big Ten sweep of Minnesota at the Iowa Softball Complex Saturday, but a big fourth inning lifted the Gophers to a 4-3 win in the final game.

Iowa, now 10-4 in the conference, won twice on Friday, 4-3 and 6-3, and took the opener Saturday 4-0. A sweep seemed likely in the fourth game when the Hawkeyes took an early 3-0 lead, but Minnesota (3-9) scored all four of its runs and knocked two Iowa pitchers out of the game in the fourth.

"We should have had it," Iowa Coach Ginny Parrish said of the near sweep. "Usually the Big Ten race will go down to the last weekend, so every loss hurts, but we're sitting in real good shape."

In the third inning, the Hawkeyes padded the lead when Beth Kirchner reached first on an error and moved to third on a pair of infield ground-outs by Coughenour and Drake. Kirchner then scored on a Sally Miller single to give Iowa a 3-0 lead.

But in the fourth inning Minnesota's Sarah Winslow started a huge rally with an infield single off Iowa starter Cristen Barry. Winslow scored when teammate Patricia Johnson smacked a line drive double to the fence in left center. An infield single from Barb Drake knocked Barry out of the game with runners on first and second and no outs.

TRACY LANGHURST relieved Barry and got a quick out just one hit the rest of the way, but it wasn't enough as Cray held Iowa hitless in the final four innings.

"WE ONLY HAD TWO hits in the game," Parrish said of the loss. "We hit the ball hard, but they made some good plays. I don't think (Cray) was overpowering. We should have hit her a lot better."

With Brown smothering Minnesota's offense, Iowa had less trouble in the opener Saturday. Like the Gophers, the Hawkeyes did all their damage in one inning, scoring four runs in the bottom of the fifth, including two on a single to left center by Michelle Magyar.

The Hawkeyes now trail Northwestern (9-1), which swept four games from Michigan State over the weekend, by three games in the loss column.

Despite the tough loss on Saturday, Parrish said she remains confident of her team's title chances heading into a crucial doubleheader with the Wildcats Tuesday in Evanston, Ill.

"I'm real comfortable. I know we can beat (Northwestern ace Lisa) Ishikawa," Parrish said. "I'm not worried about that. From what I saw when we played them here last week, I think we're a better team. I think we're a better hitting team and a better defensive team."

Brown, who also picked up a win in relief Friday, allowed

Hawkeyes corral seven titles

By Dan Millea
Staff Writer

The Iowa men's track team had an encouraging day in a three-team non-scoring meet in Coralville, Saturday, grabbing seven first place spots in 15 events.

Minnesota claimed six firsts and unattached runners pocketed the other two. Northern Iowa, the third competitor, had a rough day with no first places and just two second place finishes.

The Hawkeyes dominated the field. Paul Jones won the triple jump going 47 feet 1/2 inch. Pat Miller and Mike Means competing unattached finished second third. Miller jumped 41-3 and Meade 40-3.

Scott Joens and Chris Gambol placed first and second in the discus. Joens threw for 166-2 1/2 and Gambol was second with a 158-9 toss. But Gambol captured the shot put title, by nearly 10 feet, heaving the shot 58-9 1/4.

PAUL JONES TOOK another first place with a leap of 23-6 1/2 in the long jump.

Other Iowa first place winners were Curtis Chung, who ran the 100 meters in 11.14, Paul Steele, who ran a 52:22 in the 400 intermediate hurdles and the mile relay team of K.P. Lansing, St. Clair Blackman, Louis English and Paul Steele, which finished six seconds ahead of Minnesota in 3:21.94.

Former Iowa runner Kenny Williams, running unattached, took home one first and one second place, clocking a 22 flat 200 meter dash for the win and an 11.31 100 for second.

Other Hawkeye place winners were: Dave Brown, third in the 3000-meter steeplechase (10:10.06); Sean Corrigan, third in the 1500 meters (3:57.79); Barry Holmes, second in the 400 meters (53.26); St. Clair Blackman, second in the 800 meters (1:53.78); Louis English, third in the 800 meters (1:54.84); Ed Meade, third in the 200 meters (24.3); Mike Tripplett, second in the 400 intermediate hurdles (58.36).

Kruckeberg wins Kansas Relays' title

By Robert Mann
Staff Writer

When Iowa's Jeanne Kruckeberg won the 1,500-meter run at the Kansas Relays this past weekend, she became just the third Hawkeye to win an event at that prestigious event.

By running the 1,500 in four minutes, 23.44 seconds, Kruckeberg joined former Iowa all-Americans Nan Doak and Penny O'Brien with Kansas Relays titles.

"We've done well at the relays, but we have only had three winners in the past," Iowa Coach Jerry Hassard said.

team turned in another strong performance as it eclipsed the nine minute mark with a second place finish behind winner Nebraska.

For the Hawkeyes, Sherri Suppelsa, Kim Schneckloth, Kruckeberg and Janet Wodek ran the race in 8:56.25 seconds. Nebraska finished in 8:53.10.

IOWA'S ALCYIA SIMPSON advanced to the finals in the 400-meter, where she came in eighth in 55.7.

"She had a good weekend," Hassard said. "I was happy to see her in the finals in a good field."

Simpson was also on the sprint medley relay which finished fourth. Also on that squad are Roxanne Reynolds, Wodek, Simpson and Kruckeberg.

Schneckloth and Suppelsa finished right behind one another in the 1,500, as Schneckloth came in sixth in 4:39.3 and Suppelsa finished seventh in 4:40.8.

Two other Hawkeyes finished seventh and eighth, with Becki Borg leaping 38 feet, nine inches in the triple jump and Lynn McMillan jumping 37-10.

In other field events, Iowa's Traci Claussen tied for seventh in the high jump by clearing 5-6, and Shelley Redies reached the finals in the discus, finishing eighth with a throw of 135-2.

Wodek also competed in the 800-meter, although she failed to advance to the finals. Doyle, competing in the 5,000-meter, did not place.

Several members of the Hawkeyes squad travel to another well-known meet this next week when they travel to Des Moines to compete in the Drake Relays.

game by defensive tackle Joe Schuster.

While the game was mostly dominated by offense, Fry said he was also impressed with the defense — especially the first team secondary.

"I THOUGHT THEY broke for the ball aggressively. They did a great job of tackling," Fry said, pointing to strong safety Keaton Smiley, freshman redshirt Merton Hanks, senior Anthony Wright and Dwight Sistrunk.

And on the standout defensive line was nose tackle and also named as one of the captains, Dave Haight. The senior from Dyersville, Iowa, came out in the second half to tear up the offense as he recorded three straight tackles, including two straight sacks.

"That crazy Dave Haight. He just destroys everything. I'm glad he's on our team," Fry said. "Dave Haight's a tremendous football player."

Fry said the Hawkeyes are inexperienced at several positions. Many spots in the line-up are still not set. And even if a player is named No. 1 at the start of the fall practice, there's no guarantee of having the same position for the first game.

Haight

anticipated," Fry said. "We had them all on the same line, but some of the performances today were really exceptional. And I'm really happy about the progress of all the quarterbacks."

FRY SAID OFFENSIVE coaches Bill Snyder and Carl Jackson will make the final decision concerning the No. 1 quarterback spot.

Fry said while the velocity of McGwire's passes is "tremendous," the passes are easy to catch. "Because he keeps the nose of the ball up, it's very easy to catch, it's very soft ... Man, does he have an arm? He's a joy to watch, I'll tell you."

The 6-foot-3 California native was proud of himself and his teammates.

"We all did pretty well,"

McGwire said. "I went out there and threw the ball pretty well."

McGwire, who said he wished he had been redshirted last season, said everybody's chances at quarterback are equal.

"WE'VE ALL PLAYED basically equal this spring," he said. "We've all had great springs. I don't think no one has really stood out. I think all three of us are capable of taking the No. 1 spot. It's just up to the coaches. Whoever they pick is who they pick and I'm not worried about it because they know who's the No. 1 guy."

As a senior, Chuck Hartlieb is the elder statesman of the trio. He said the competition between the quarterbacks is equal.

"You think if you sit out and looked at it, it'd be awfully intense, but I think all three of us have a great attitude in that all we do is worry about ourselves, try to improve every day and we're not really looking at the other guy," he said. "At least that's the way I am about it. I'm just worried about myself. The other guys being around me doing well pushes me that much harder. The competition's been good, and it's been intense but not to the point where it's separated us."

IOWA NOTES

Boston field aims for de Castella

BOSTON (UPI)—Because the Boston Marathon has attracted the strongest men's field since the 1984 Olympics, today's runners will be watching each other instead of the time.

"This will be a race of respect rather than a race of time," said former world-record holder Steve Jones. "I think the winner will only have a medium-good time because the runners will be keeping an eye on each other."

Defending champion Rob de Castella set a course record of two hours seven minutes 51 seconds last year, but said

"this year will be very, very different because this is now a championship-quality type field. You are not competing against time but against the other runners.

"MENTALLY YOU MUST BE very, very alert and know what the opposition is doing and what their strengths and weaknesses are, in case that becomes important," he said.

Along with Jones and de Castella, the elite of the men's race includes Juma Ikangaa of Tanzania, the 1986 winner at Tokyo; Toshihiko Seko of Japan, winner of the Chicago and London marathons last year; and Ireland's John Treacy, silver medalist in the 1984 Olympic marathon.

"Obviously it's a great field, and what really excites me is the competition," Treacy said. "The best marathoners usually only gather for Olympics or world championships.

"Now, for once, it's outside the major games," Jones said, "and there isn't the pressure of running for your country. One of the things I've always wanted to do was run against the best, and I guess Boston is the right place for it. Outside of the Olympics or world championships, this is the best field you'll ever assemble."

ROSA MOTA OF PORTUGAL is the heavy favorite in the women's field, which does not have the starry array of the men's. Olympic gold medalist Joan Benoit Samuelson, who withdrew two weeks ago when a muscle in her leg was slow to heal, also picks the 5-foot-1, 99-pound Mota.

"I think Rosa has done her homework and she's built for this course. I can't see anyone beating her," said Samuelson, who is expecting her first child in October but had high hopes of competing at Boston.

"I haven't run a marathon since 1985 and I was hoping this would be the year," she said.

The likeliest challengers to Mota are Canada's Jacqueline Gareau, the 1980 Boston winner, and Lisa Larsen-Weidenbach, the 1985 winner here.

"I have my race strategy," Gareau said. "I will pace myself. In a marathon, you have to be patient and with the hills (along the Boston course) you might kill yourself early."

Thomason's crew ends Ohio tourney in 10th

By Eric J. Hess
Assistant Sports Editor

The Iowa women's golf team played consistent rounds of 322-322-323 in finishing 10th place out of 14 teams at the Lady Buckeye Invitational over the weekend.

However, the Hawkeyes had to get past a few adversaries before playing the first round on Saturday.

Iowa Coach Diane Thomason said when the team left for Buckeyeland in Columbus, Ohio, at the Scarlet Course, the troubles began.

The team made it to the plane in Cedar Rapids just in time for takeoff, but the team's luggage was left behind.

So while Thomason and her crew waited for their luggage late Friday, the team had to buy golf shoes so to be able to walk off the course and prepare as normal for the tournament.

"IT JUST BECAME a comedy of errors," Thomason said. "But the improved play of a few of the Hawkeyes had the Iowa coach pleased. Indiana won the tournament with an 886. Host Ohio State placed second with a 902, followed by Minnesota, Michigan State, Iowa State, Northern Illinois, Kansas, Western Kentucky, Bowling Green, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois State, and DePauw.

Women's Golf

Freshman Kelley Brooke led the Hawkeyes with 78-80-79 rounds for a top Iowa score of 237.

DI Staff

Iowa basketball players Kevin Gamble and Roy Marble were selected Friday as co-Most Valuable Players at the Johnson County I-Club Basketball Banquet.

Gamble, a senior from Springfield, Ill., averaged 11.9 points and 4.5 rebounds per contest. Gamble helped lead the Hawkeyes to a 30-5 season and last second victories at Ohio State and versus Oklahoma in the semifinals of the NCAA's West Regional.

Marble, a sophomore from Flint, Mich., was the Hawkeyes' leading scorer averaging 14.9 points per contest and 5.1 rebounds. Marble was second, behind point guard B.J. Armstrong, on the team with 97 assists.

Men's Basketball

MARBLE THIS SEASON won tournament MVP at the Great Alaska Shootout, Amana-Hawkeye Classic and the Antater Classic.

Senior forward Brad Lohaus was named the Hawkeyes most improved player during the 1986-87 season. Lohaus was Iowa's leading rebounder, pulling down 268 rebounds during the season while averaging 11.3 points per game.

Redshirt freshman Les Jensen and Armstrong both shared team academic honors at Friday's banquet.

Iowa City musicians take to the streets

By Craig Sterrett
Special to The Daily Iowan

SPRING brings culture outdoors in Iowa City, and street musicians on the downtown pedestrian mall are a part of that culture.

"I wouldn't even classify Iowa City as a regular Iowa town," Pat Proud, who sometimes plays his saxophone near the fountain by the downtown Holiday Inn, said. "You can do things here that you can't do in other Iowa towns. If I were to do this in my hometown I'd probably get things thrown at me or get thrown in jail," the Clinton, Iowa, native said.

"Iowa City is an oasis for culture in the Midwest," agreed Bill Leighly, a folk singer who plays harmonica and guitar downtown.

Geoff Pope, a street guitarist/singer who also plays downtown on some weekends, said people playing instruments add to the excitement of being downtown.

"I THINK HEARING the sax or guitar is an emotional lift," Pope said.

Proud started making money as an outdoor musician on the Pentacrest about a year and a half ago.

"When I started playing I didn't even realize you could make money at this," says Pat Proud.

"He made between $10 and $30 an hour last summer playing in his jazz improvisational style, he said, adding that on the night following the 1985 Iowa-Michigan football game, he made $120 in about two hours.

"Everybody throws just a little bit of money, just loose change, so people don't believe how much I can make," Proud said.

Although he was able to live for a year on the money made on the street, Proud said he would still be out playing on the street if he didn't make any money.

LEIGHLY SAID he could make anywhere from $10 a night to the $80 he made the night of the 1986 Iowa-Iowa State football game playing Bob Dylan and other popular folk music, as well as some of his own stuff.

But Leighly's not in it for the money, either.

"I do it just to have an audience. Sometimes I don't even open my case," Leighly said.

Pope and Proud met last summer while playing solo downtown, and have since played together downtown and for paid performances.

Together they play some songs Pope has written himself along with music from groups like Crosby, Stills and Nash and the Beatles.

Their styles fit really well together in both personality and music, Pope said. Their music is mainly improvisational, and their meeting and jamming was spontaneous, he said.

"That's the spirit of jazz — improvisation," Pope said.

PROUD BEGAN playing the saxophone 10 years ago, learning to play through school lessons and high school jazz band. He became interested in outdoor acoustics after hearing about San Francisco saxophonist, Sonny Rollins.

Proud said he enjoys playing in outdoor areas that have good natural acoustics. He has played in rock quarries in the Clinton area, which he said were like "natural Hanchers" — big outdoor amphitheaters with outstanding acoustics. Because of their unique sound, he also enjoys playing under Iowa City's bridges.

The musicians play downtown not only because so many people pass by, but also because the acoustics in the area are phenomenal, Pope said.

"The 'V' formed by the outer walls of the jewelry store (Josephson's Jewelers) cuts the wind and then the sound echoes off the Holiday Inn," he said.

Besides the natural acoustics, money, enjoyment and freedom he gets out of it, Proud said there is one other major reason he plays his sax downtown — to meet people.

"I was actually hoping to find a girlfriend," Proud said. "I found her and I've been playing better ever since."

Sitar concert enthralls Hancher crowd

RAVI SHANKAR is one of the few musicians who can mesmerize his audience by simply tuning his instrument. He sat cross-legged on the carpets of the Hancher Auditorium stage Friday evening, plucking his sitar and winding knobs while a fascinated audience watched.

When he was satisfied, Shankar put a cloth on the gourd of the sitar (an Indian instrument somewhat like a long-necked lute), rested his elbow on it and began to play. The first piece was an evening raga, a melody, called "Shankara." The mood of the raga is traditionally linked to the season or time it is played, and all three ragas that Shankar performed were evening ragas.

SHANKAR PLAYED sitar against the background droning of the tanpura, a four-stringed instrument that acts as a pitch pipe. The raga was slow and mournful, perhaps regretting the passing of day. Single notes on the sitar were bent and vibrated until they faded.

The second evening raga was called "Jhinjoti." Shankar was joined by his son, Shubho Shankar, on sitar and Kumar Bose on the tabla drums. The fast sitar notes spilled out over each other, sometimes played in time with the two tabla drums and then against. The two sitars played together; the top, main strings were plucked and the lower, sympathetic strings were strummed to produce the full, rich sound associated with Indian music.

The drumming was like a patter of rain, sometimes broken by deeper thunder. As the rhythm became faster Shankar snapped the strings hard and the melody became easier for Western ears to follow. When the first half was over, Ravi slipped on his sandals, salaamed the audience and left.

DURING THE SECOND half, Shankar played the sitar gently so that the quivering notes were like waves falling on the shore. The tabla joined in with a slow, controlled beat.

The raga grew faster and included a frenzied tabla solo. The enthusiastic audience tried to applaud, but Shankar held them off. The drumming rose in a crescendo of rhythm that the ear could not follow.

The concert ended with a form of question and answer. The sitars and tabla played notes and rhythms to each other to copy and expand upon, forming a musical conversation.

In A Passage to India the mystic, Godbole, sings an evening raga to his British visitors. E.M. Forster calls it "the song of an unknown bird," capturing the spirit of Shankar's playing perfectly.
