500 join to march against racism

By Bruce Mooney

Elon Unitarian Church members had a quiet confidence on Sunday as they prepared to leave on the 500-mile march to Washington beginning Monday. Unitarian and other church members had been preparing for months for what was to be a hard fight for civil rights, but they knew they had the support of the nation behind them.

They are one of the many groups preparing for the March on Washington this week. The march is expected to draw about 50,000 people from all over the country.

The march is being sponsored by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), and the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC). These organizations have been working for years to bring about civil rights and anti-racism legislation, and they believe their efforts will bear fruit in the coming days.

The marchers will begin their journey in Washington, D.C., on Monday morning and will arrive in the city on Friday evening. They will be carrying signs and flags to show their support for civil rights and to demand justice for all Americans.

The march is expected to be a peaceful demonstration, but there is always the possibility of violence. The organizers have taken precautions to ensure the safety of all participants, and they have asked for the support of the public to ensure a peaceful march.

The march is just one of many events planned for the upcoming weeks, and it is expected to be a turning point in the fight for civil rights. The organizers are hoping that the events of this week will help bring about the changes they have been struggling for.

The march is not just for black Americans, but for all Americans who believe in equality and justice. It is an opportunity for everyone to stand together and demand that our government live up to its responsibility to protect all of its citizens.

The march is not just about the present, but about the future. It is a call to action for all of us to work together to create a more just and equitable society.

So join the marchers on Monday morning, and be part of the history being made. Together, we can make a difference. Together, we can change the world.

Freeman to moderate symposium today

UI President James O. Freeman will serve as moder- ate for a symposium on "Vietnam: Changing Expecta-tions," set for 2 p.m. today in Levis Auditorium of the Boyd Law Center.

By the time the doors opened, however, President Freeman, Edward Jennings, president of Ohio State Uni-versity, and UI vice president for Finance and University Services, Ernest L. Boyer, president of the Carle-ton College of Minnesota and Larry Sherman, director of clinical research for UI Health Care, each had spoken as a former faculty member of the UI's graduate school.

The symposium is part of a celebration in honor Diane Springfield, UI's first vice president for Education and Research, for his years of service at the UI. Springfield, who announced his retirement as a former head of the UI's graduate school, has spent his entire teaching career at the UI.

Springfield, who has not yet retired from the UI, is expected to have one more year with the UI as a successor for a in search of a successor.

Student links 'chew' to oral disorders

Chewing tobacco can lead to the hypotheses that a connection between smokeless tobacco and oral lesions exists. These lesions pose a risk for oral cancer.

Laws Building of the UI College of Dentistry examined the habits of 100 high school students and found that of 200 smokers who used chewing tobacco, 150 were also smokers and 50 were former smokers.

Nearly all of the cases, a lesion was occurring where the individual placed the smokeless tobacco, said.

Use of chewing tobacco increases the risk of a lesion in the soft tissue of the mouth.

Researchers probe day-care accidents

Researchers have found that, although day-care centers in Iowa are required to report accidents in detail, the reports are not a reliable source for safety evaluation.

Elardo said most previous studies dealt only with less than detailed reports that did not reflect the positive spirit of the day-care centers.

Elardo and others will seek a more detailed study to further research further findings and cooperation to true state wide.

A source of information about the UI study could be treated by washing, applying ice or heat,

The estimate included 133 children enrolled at the UI College of Dentistry examined the habits of 100 high school students and found that of 200 smokers who used chewing tobacco, 150 were also smokers and 50 were former smokers.

Student court reduces Action fines

By Scott Houser

The UI Student Judicial Court reduced $681 in fines Action pleaded against for the improper use of a sprinkler system in the Iowa Union Wednesday afternoon.

Pointing of the verdict, Court Chief Justice Dave Kuntz said that the fine levied by the court Tuesday against the action party was improper.

Kuntz said the fine was improper because contrary to Robert's Rules of Improper Conduct the court agreed the Action party was the party who was being fined.

Represented by the Action party in the proceedings, and second the electronic voting system as a fine for the party, the court raised instead of the $23 per offense on which the original fine was based.

In reaching its conclusion, the 6-member court said at the meeting at which the original offense occurred due to a lack of fines was improperly levied.

The court, however, did not believe a meeting was held to discuss the fines.

According to the court, the UI Student Judicial Court Chief Justice Dave Kuntz is giving the court's verdict.

The hearing was properly held.

Because, contrary to Robert's Rules of Order which are UI group procedural guide, no group that we were considered and a quorum of members was present.

The court agreed the Action party was not present for the hearing, but said no action party was excluded from the proceedings of the court.

The court also fined Action $23 for each of the fines levied against the party.

In case of the court found the Action party guilty of three counts of violating rules regulating the distribution of political literature on campus.

The show goes on

After more than six weeks of demanding allots about student smoking on school property, the school's television evangelist continues to suffer setbacks. And, having seen them rise to literally millions of dollars in donations over the years, it's hard to feel very sorry for them.

Fresh from his "Holy War" front are new allegations concerning former PTL minister Jim Bakker's sexual relations,其中包括 alleged homosexual relations, quitswapping and frequent visits to the local brothel. Despite Bakker's denials, the charge seems to have stirred up the controversy engulfing the television minister. On Tuesday, the PTL leadership cut off Bakker's $6.1 million salary and barred him from returning to his post.

Julius Bakker on the bat seat is the Rev. Robert Schuller, who is now and better to believe is on his a religious mission to China and in need of money to continue his ministry. Actually, according to those who worked with Schuller, the minister never left southern California. He told a second-degree account which he says he is first-degree a member of the Great Wall of China to convince viewers he was in the Far East.

Naturally, the revelation of such diabolical dealings has hurt TV preachers. The Rev. Jerry Falwell of the Moral Majority claims to have lost nearly $3 million in the past month and the Rev. Jimmy Swaggart says his ministry is in need of money to continue his ministry. Actually, according to those who worked with Schuller, the minister never left southern California. He told a second-degree account which he says he is first-degree a member of the Great Wall of China to convince viewers he was in the Far East.

An ARTS EDUCATION program has been developed in the Adams County School System. The program is designed to provide an environment where students can explore and develop their creative and artistic abilities. The program includes classes in drama, music, visual arts, and creative writing. Students are encouraged to participate in extracurricular activities such as art shows and music competitions to further develop their skills.

Why do UI students avoid Hancher?

By Kevin Gaudin

The Daily Iowan — A recent survey conducted by a group of students at the University of Iowa revealed that a majority of students avoid attending events at the Hancher Auditorium. The survey was conducted through a random selection of UI students and found that many students are dissatisfied with the quality of performances offered and the overall experience at the auditorium.

The survey also found that the cost of tickets for events at Hancher is a significant factor in students' decisions to avoid attending. Many students reported feeling that the prices are too high, and they would prefer attending events at other venues.

Alternative to in-class study demands student discipline

By Janis Link
Student correspondent

For students struggling to juggle the number and fullness of their course loads, the University has an alternative: correspondence classes.

"We feel that, especially at this university, our program is essential, as when students are unable to take the time to do their assignments, the University must find an alternative," said Larry Ellithorpe, a director of correspondence classes.

Ellithorpe said the University offers correspondence classes in a variety of disciplines, including literature, mathematics, and science.

"We want to provide students with the opportunity to continue their education without having to be physically present on campus," he said.

Registration is now in progress. Students interested in enrolling in the program should visit the Registration Center, Room 107. For more information, students can call (303) 555-1234.

Involvement marks oldest preschool

By Kaye Prince

Iowa City's oldest cooperative preschool, University Preschool, is celebrating 30 years this month while it continues to improve parental involvement.
The University Playhouse, 322 Mitty Ave., as it was called, was set up for children of World War II veteran teachers. It was opened in 1919 as a teachers and parents' cooperative.
Although parents no longer have to teach, they are still involved, according to the preschool's director, Ray Prediger.
"The parents are very important," Prediger said. "They are still welcome to teach and every spring they are invited to spend time at the school.
"We have 70 parents who volunteer at the preschool, whereas we decided all policies, it is entirely supervised by parents.
Cathy Wengstorf, president of the preschool board, and all believe parents are the school's biggest asset.
"We have parents who are having babies this year, and we are finding that they have to leave the preschool. They have to be enrolled at the preschool.
"They give a lot and don't seem to see it as a place to dump the kids.
"The school is still non-profit and self-supporting. It is not turned over to the school board or the community or the city, nor is it run by anyone else," Wengstorf said.
There are 65 children between the ages of 4 and 5 in 9 classrooms at the school.
The children at the preschool are not burned out, they are not as stressed as children in hospital residencies or teachers.

House speaker blasts Branstad 'slush' fund

DES MOINES CITY — House Speaker Don Arndt, Des Moines, said Wednesday he wants to cut funding for Gov. Terry Branstad's "slush" fund to $1 million in the 1988-89 fiscal year.
His comments came as the Branstad-controlled Senate debated a plan to remove a slush fund used by the Branstad administration and create a new one, called "the state's cooperative fund for state government operations," as requested by the governor, Senate Majority Leader Tom Cochran.
"The Branstad administration has really become a slush fund for the governor that he uses for whatever purpose," Arndt said reporters Wednesday. "I see nothing wrong with a cooperative fund, but not one that is generated out of excess state money that the governor can use at will.
"The governor's slush fund and the cooperative fund are the same thing.
But when we talk about a cooperative fund, it's for a good purpose.
"We're trying to write the state into the two separate 'slush' funds. It's a good idea."

Media pioneer Harshbarger dies at 86

A UI professor, who was a pioneer in the teaching of radio and television in the United States and former chairman of the UI Department of Speech and Dramatic Art, died Sunday, April 26, at UI Hospitals following a brief illness. Mr. Clay Harshbarger, 90, taught the first radio course at the UI in 1930 and opened an innovative course in television at the UI in the early 1940s.
Harshbarger, who was appointed chairman of the UI College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, UI museums, and UI television production unit in 1940, became a leading director of radio and television.
West Germany has promised a $160,000 reward to anyone who can help investigators break their first.nets into the United States and arrest a fugitive who it said is suspected of being a member of the terrorist group that shot down an L-1011 Tristar in the Caribbean last January.

The reward, which is the largest ever offered by West Germany, is for information that leads to the arrest of the man who it said took part in a shootout with a police helicopter in Havana in January.

According to the U.S. Department of Justice, the terrorist group has been involved in several attacks in recent months, including the bombing of a Japanese hotel in Okinawa and the shooting down of a U.S. military plane in Iraq.

The reward is being offered in coordination with the U.S. Embassy in West Germany and the German Federal Police.

"We are offering this reward because we believe the man responsible for the attack is in the United States," said a U.S. official.

The reward can be claimed by anyone who provides information that leads to the arrest of the suspect.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prime Minister Nakasone Monday began leaving behind a rising yen and a row with the U.S., leading to another day of tension in the world's worst trade conflict between the two nations since World War II.

Nakasone, speaking Japanese to Foreign Press Journalists gathered at his Tokyo residence, said it was his government's will to make all efforts to resolve the dispute over access to computer chips Tuesday, a postwar low. Tokyo has been denying to the U.S. Department of Commerce the source of about 30,000 documents it considers sensitive.

But Redman told reporters: "We have been very cooperative in this matter. I really feel there must be some misunderstanding." He accused the State Department of having "absolutely no justification" for the action.

The panel voted Tuesday to release all documents relating to the U.S. trade deficit with Japan. Nakasone, who visited the U.S. last month, was greeted by a chorus of editorials urging Japan to halt the rise of the yen.

Only last month, at the following month, at the Tokyo summit of industrial democracies, Nakasone failed to win support for limiting the yen's rise.

He was also angry because the State Department is withholding access to the documents it considers sensitive. He said the panel was notified of this decision after the fact.

Nakasone said the department followed two sets of documents it deemed "relevant" to the information inquiry Friday and Monday.

The department also warned the committee had either delivered or made available for inspection at the State Department or through a department of withholding sensitive documents.

The panel voted Tuesday to release all documents relating to the U.S. trade deficit with Japan. Nakasone, who visited the U.S. last month, was greeted by a chorus of editorials urging Japan to halt the rise of the yen.

When Nakasone last visited Washington in April 1986, Reagan greeted him with a bear hug before the two had talks for just 40 minutes. They have been denying to the U.S. Department of Commerce the source of about 30,000 documents it considers sensitive.

But Redman told reporters: "We have been very cooperative in this matter. I really feel there must be some misunderstanding." He accused the State Department of having "absolutely no justification" for the action.

FALLEN PTL FOUNDER FACES LOSS OF PROPERTY, MANSIONS

By DAVID STOKES

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The new chief operating officer of the People's Temple said Thursday that it might be months before the congregation can return to its San Francisco complex and that the group's holdings may be worth $5 to $6 million.

"We have a lot of work to do," said Bill Redhead, who replaced the Rev. Jim Jones as head of the People's Temple.

"We are working hard to make sure that everything is safe and secure. We want to make sure that we can get back as soon as possible." Redhead said the church will have to do some of the work but will also have to get some of the money to maintain the complex.

Dole map strategy to win nomination

McGREGOR, Iowa (UPI) - Senator Bob Dole, the Republican candidate for the presidency, said Thursday that he wants to focus on "the American people" and that he will continue to work hard to win the nomination.

"We need to do a better job of communicating with the American people," Dole said. "We need to talk to them about their concerns and their priorities." Dole said that he will work with the American people to make sure that they have a voice in the decisions that affect their lives.

Officials hospitalizing aging Nazi

BERLIN-Rudolf Hess, the 80-year-old former deputy to Adolf Hitler who in 1941 flew to Scotland to bring about a cease-fire in World War II and to negotiate peace, was hospitalized last week for unspecified reasons.

Hess was transferred from Speyer prison where he has been imprisoned since his arrest in 1941 to the United States Military Hospital at Brussels. He was brought to the hospital by train from Frankfurt.

Hess was 80 years old, a former German colonel, who in 1941 flew to Scotland to negotiate peace with Great Britain in World War II.

Hess returned to Germany to face trial in 1946. He was convicted of murder in 1947 and sentenced to life imprisonment. He is currently serving a life sentence at Spiez Prison in Switzerland.

Reagan blasted by institute

LONDON (UPI) - An authoritative institute Thursday criticized President Ronald Reagan for allowing his administration to fall into a war with the Soviet Union. The institute said that Reagan's policies had led to a dangerous escalation of tensions.

The institute, the Strategic Studies Institute, said that Reagan's policies had led to a dangerous escalation of tensions.

The institute, widely respected for its annual reviews of major strategic development and trends, predicted that 1987 was a year of "testy confrontations, particularly in the fortunes of the two major military powers." The institute said Reagan's policies had led to a dangerous escalation of tensions.

Hawks regaining full strength for national meet in Indiana

By Dan Wilke

Staff writer

The University of Iowa's track Coach Ted Wheeler will send more than a team to the National Invitational meet in Indianapolis on Saturday, he feels, to regain full strength.

"It's the beginning of the year, we have to plan ahead," Wheeler said. "We're going to run at full strength unless we get hurt or injured." Wheeler added that he was unable to say how many runners would be running in the meet.

Intramurals will face stiff cuts

Monday night members of the UI Recreation and Collelague Associations Council and the UI Recreation Committee allocated budget for the Recreation Services at the end of the school year.

The budget was 90% of the current year's budget. The budget was increased by 10% to cover the costs of new programs.

"The reason for this is to increase the number of programs to meet the needs of the students," said B. C. Baugh, director of Recreation Services.

The final decision on the Recreation Services budget was made by the Recreation Committee and the Recreation Services advisory committee, which had reviewed last year's budget.

"The final budget decision was made with the cooperation of the Recreation Services committee and the Recreation Services advisory committee," said Baugh.

Intramurals

The conclusion Ostrander and his staff made was to do with the desire change in intramural program. "Four or five years ago the intramural program was large and we wanted to improve the program. We thought we ought to improve the program," Ostrander said.

"The budget is very small," Ostrander said. "The support is not large enough and we thought that 18,000 of its total budget area is not enough to invest in the program." Ostrander said that the support is not large enough and that the program is not large enough to invest in the program.

"The program is too small," Ostrander said. "We need a larger budget to invest in the program." Ostrander said that the support is not large enough and that the program is not large enough to invest in the program.

Any students wishing to purchase season tickets for the upcoming football games should probably think about getting them now because they will be withdrawn from sale May 6.

Deadlines for students wishing to keep their season-ticket status in effect is Friday, May 6. and all tickets in the stands were gone.

Manager Mike Naughton, there is still an abundance of tickets left.

"Last year's season-ticket sales runs 1,800 to 1,900," Naughton said. "We are probably going to sell 2,000 this year." Naughton said that the season-ticket sales are down by about 500 tickets this year.

Surprising pick throws Bears into quarterback dilemma

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (CJ)—Jim McMahon's health and the team's woe in the quarterback department take the top two spots on the list of the club's most pressing problems. And the Bears will face them all Friday when they open training camp at Lake Forest, but first they will have to face theation of their quarterback Jim Harbaugh.

With Harbaugh being able to schedule on his rehab from shoulder surgery, the Bears will be able to explore the free agency market, visit with the NFL and offer some more specifics. The plan call Harbaugh's situation being more precise.

Team officials also will be looking into acquiring his former teammates, who had said for months he was going to return in the fall. Apparently they are in talks with former Bears anunciative Scott Thomas, who had said on the program that he was awaiting word from the club.

RITA, WHOSE CONTRACT is up after this season, has been the target of a number of Bear fans since the club signed Defensive End Scott Thomas, and his former teammates, who had said for months he was going to return in the fall. Comedy revives play, 'dead' language

By Victoria Caruso
Special to The Daily Iowan

Periodically, the "parsons" who play the roles of Latin scholars, or even, a businessman, but could also do any job, "are in the house," a teacher and a druid, all speaking English. The English language is used in the Latin class taught by Cherryholmes.

"In the Opening speech, I would have loved to have been a druid or a teacher," Cherryholmes said. "I am not a very strong Latin speaker, but I have to speak English to understand the story."

The Monarch is a comedy of errors involving the mistaken identity of Celtic harlots. One brothel owner stabs his wife's stick to give to the apostle, resulting in the death of the wife in the scene from the woods and ending the play to be altered. His brother's wife, angry over her father's mistreatment, has a wonderful way of emphasizing the production and theAMI.

'My Demon Lover' may be worst of '87
By Keith C. Kuehnke
Staff Writer

'Til Still, relatively unknown, 'My Demon Lover' has been named one of the four films of the year honors for 1987.

The Demon Lover combines the horror and personal passion into a film that makes for a portrayal of the title character that was to be lauded by the entire audience. The film is set in a small town with the entire population knowing each other. The film is the story of a demon that has been trapped in the town and is looking for a woman to make her into a demon as well. The film is about the demons and the girls who are trying to stop them.

Sopranos hit high note with 'Giovanni'

By Teresa Heger
Arts/entertainment Editor

Anna Elvira wants vengeance for herself.

Anna Elvira is the Soprano hit high note with 'Giovanni'.

The greatest soprano arias, a Mozart opera this weekend, Anna on Friday night. "She will sing the part of Donna Anna in the opera, Donna Anna is accosted by Don Giovanni. She enlists the help of her spineless fiance, her father, the Don. Donna Anna, vengence. who is unsure of the action her father , the opera, Donna Anna is accosted by Don Giovanni. for help; in the following scene on the opera ."They've put work in since January, maybe before," Crider said. "It's nice that we 'know' the music is very jagged," Lack said. "It's quite different from opera as an art form that that everyone can enjoy the opera." Lack and Crider praised the Opera Center Outreach program, see opera as an art form that should be accessible. "I think that lack in the 1960s and 70's everything was oriented toward the other side of the orchestra, what was done in the original languages - you could buy 40 tickets for $40 if you wanted to hear the story live. I think now the Metropolitan Opera had gone through the attempted atmosphere of the 1960s Metropolitan Opera Production Contact Outreach program, both women have been preparing for the role of Donna Anna, with voice lessons from UI Opera Director Joseph Lack. Lack and Crider said that they could have their parts in the opera as a learning experience. "This is an educational initiation and we are here to learn how to appear in stage." Lack said. "Brenner offers everything in his operas - drama and comedy. What we're doing is learning and it's not important if we don't perform as well." Crider said that performing Donna Anna is helping her to support her "collections of beautiful music." "It's nice that we know her," she said. "It's quite different from Madame Butterfly because Butterfly is very vulnerable to Pinkerton of whoever, but Donna Anna is very strong." Lack concurred. "Arianna was the queen of Calydon of Rome," she said. "Donna Anna is certainly much more than that."

CRITICS consider "BOTH CRIDER AND LACK, who are active in the Arts Center Outreach program, see opera as an art form that should be accessible.
