Panel hears first day of testimony
Secord defends Iran plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress opened hearings Tuesday into the "sad and senseless" Iran-Contra Affair, with Secord saying he served as a financier in the operation and said he was sent to Iran as part of a CIA cover story.

"In furtherance of the president's intentions, I financed the operation of the Contra rebels," said Secord. "In accordance with the president's direction, I financed the operation of the Contra rebels in the operation called 'November.'"

Secord, the retired Air Force colonel who served as a CIA intermediary, told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee he gave the Contra rebels $1 million generated by sales of arms, $1 million generated by a Burma diamond shipment, $1 million generated by the sale of a yacht and $1 million generated by a shipment of scuba equipment.

"I was the middleman," the 40-year-old officer said. "I just told you the money I took.

"I was sent out to do work, Secord said, "to do work and to carry out the order of the president and of the national security adviser." He said the $1 million came from the Department of Defense and the $1 million was used to buy scuba equipment.

The hearing was held by the Senate in the ornate hearing rooms just a few blocks from the White House.

SECORD, WHO RETIRED FROM THE AIR FORCE in May 1982, became involved in the private network that was funneling aid to the Contra rebels. He said administration officials, attempting the expansion of covert aid to the Contras, got hold of Secord's name.

"I was able to get the money because I had a name that was available to the officials," Secord said.

"I was asked to get it because I was asked to get it and I was able to get it because I was able to get it," he said. "I was asked to get it because I was asked to get it and I was able to get it because I was able to get it."

The committee, which will be headed by UI President Jim Paulson, will be responsible for recruiting, screening and interviewing candidates for the UI presidency. The committee will be responsible for selecting the presidential search committee members themselves.

The committee will include representatives of the diversity of the University of Iowa, including faculty members, students, and representatives of the state colleges and universities.

Nearly 60 City residents, many representing student organizations, filled the Iowa City Council chambers Tuesday evening to protest a proposed ordinance that would prevent any group from hanging posters on the trunk of a tree in the inner campus area.

The proposed ordinance would restrict vehicles which park on one side of the road to no more than a two-hour stay and a half block in height or more than 23 feet in length from being parked in a front or side yard, and would "bead-up enforcement" by parking a 10-hour time limit on parking, Iowa City Senior Planner Karen Phillips said.

A present ordinance restricts vehicles more than 7 feet in height from being parked in the proposed front or side yards, but provides little enforcement. A fine is levied in the old ordinance of the ordinance said large vehicles should not be on public safety. Dick Baker, of 205 Illinois, said a recreational vehicle near the home should not be parked. It would not be a problem for children who ride the bike, the board chairman of the old vehicle.

The 3SV sticks out onto the sidewalk and grows to be a nuisance, with 66 homes facing the front yard, he said.

The UI board of trustees voted 7-2 to approve the joint operating agreement for the Iowa City Police Department.

The council left the public hearing open for further discussion of their regular January meeting. Councilor James Ryan said the board would need to hear the offer after the others allowed the suspension of the rules on Tuesday, January 26. The council passed the motion.

The council passed the joint operating agreement, which was approved by the Iowa City Police Department at 8 a.m. on January 26, 1993. The council voted 7-2 to approve the joint operating agreement for the Iowa City Police Department.

UI Greeks set rules for liquor

Although donations to the UI increased slightly last year for the nation’s colleges, increased demand, as well as a fund drive, indicated that alumni and friends are contributing more funds to UI departments.

The University of Iowa has announced that it will increase its fundraising campaign. The goal is to raise $125 million in the next year, up from $110 million last year.

The increase in donations is due to a combination of factors, including increased demand for UI services and a more aggressive fundraising strategy. The university is working to increase its donor base and to encourage more giving.

"We are pleased to see an increase in donations to the University of Iowa," said President J. Bruce Swanson. "This is a sign of the confidence that our alumni and friends have in the University of Iowa and its mission.

"We are committed to providing a high-quality education to our students, and we recognize the importance of supporting our university."}

Laudable legislation

Under a bill passed Monday by the Iowa Senate, discrimination against working women who wish to bear children would be seriously reduced. The bill, passed by a vote of 40-7, requires employers to grant up to eight weeks of disability leave to women who wish to bear children and to work. This bill will prohibit employers from firing or f.lxing women because of pregnancy and also increasing the participation of women in the workforce. With the increased number of women who are able to remain in their jobs, the economic and social mobility of women will be greatly improved. In fact, sexual discrimination is so institutionalized in our society that, even if we are about to be subverting it, it is still a refined and better disguised.

One of the ways in which women are still seriously discriminated is the absence of an adequate maternity leave in the birth process. Many employers still look at the absence of a pregnant employee as an unnecessary interruption in their business and reason enough to avoid efforts to re-elect her. Passage of this bill would discourage such narrow-minded practices while also increasing the participation of women in the workforce. Iowa legislators are addressing issues of social concern in a meaningful philosophy of the welfare of the nation. Spend more time collecting money, arguing that communists are at the root of all our ills, and less time thinking about the moral health of the nation.

Some employers make fun of the concept of reality or the idea of what comes easily, on clergy who either teach feel-good rules or both. If there is no more reality, then there is a lot of students, with library gotten a lot noisier and shoddy if it will make a buck. And if talks on the subject of reality are completely ignored instead of the harder task of self-education.

Local Democrats supporting Gary Hart are planning a weekend be-in to publicize the reasons that Gary Hart, the Senate candidate from Colorado, was late for "The Miami Herald's" window pane party Thursday. Hart said Tuesday he did nothing "unnatural" and worked with the Miami Herald editors to make sure they wouldn't be able to see the convention floor without Hart's Chief Executive—even if he claimed everything on the tab and pay.

The committee's purpose of this bill promises to improve the lives of those who are in need and women. For reasons not otherwise known, the Senate itself is on the look for a more conscientious bill which is based on social responsibility and support for those with particular duties. Iowa legislators are addressing issues in a commendable fashion.

Second guessing

To the Editor:

I was pleased to hear that the UI library got a lot of attention, I was not sure people talking loudly and laughing in library, whether reserved for quiet study? Have I just misunderstood the concept of reality? It seems there has been an increase in the number of people wearing Greek shirts who throw pencils and other students wearing Greek shirts who throw pencils and other students.

Am I going crazy or is the UI administration just taking immediate problems which face the state of Iowa, as well as the nation. The Senate itself is on the look for a more conscientious bill which is based on social responsibility and support for those with particular duties.

UI Libel Research Project gets $158,000 Markle grant

By Anne Halloran

A $158,000 grant will fund a UI Libel Research Project. The grant, which is available to non-profit organizations, is designed to counter the alternative press.

The grant, from the John and Anne Markle Foundation, will allow a team of UI professors and a director for the project to study the alternative press.

The project, which includes members of the American Association for Public Opinion Research, will be led by Samuel Van Der Veen, director of the Iowa Journalism and Mass Communication.

The goal of the project is to study the alternative press and its impact on the media.

The Alternative Press: The Role of the Third Stream

Our Procedure in Practice

According to Samuel Van Der Veen, the project's director, the research will focus on the role of the alternative press in shaping public opinion.

"We will be studying the role of the alternative press in shaping public opinion, and how that role has evolved over time," Van Der Veen said.

The research will involve interviews with alternative press reporters and editors, as well as a review of alternative press articles.

The project is expected to take several months to complete.

The Markle Foundation provided the grant to support the project, which is part of a larger effort to study the role of the alternative press.

The grant is part of a larger initiative to study the alternative press.

The alternative press, which includes independent media organizations, has been growing in recent years.

"The alternative press has become more important in recent years," said Van Der Veen.

The research will help to understand the role of the alternative press in shaping public opinion.

The project is expected to be completed by the end of the year.
Asian Center looks forward to growth

One of UI President O. Fred Freeman's priorities during the past five years has been a commitment to excellence in Asian-related fields. Last May, President Freeman announced the Center for Asian Studies, giving action to his words about the importance of education in languages.

The center's three formal services involve teaching, continuing education, and a direct benefit to his students, Freeman said.

"We have identified substantial interest, particularly among students who are in any way involved or interested in Asian studies," said Freeman.

PROFESSOR THOMAS Busch, director of the center, said, "The center is involved in several areas of study, literature, said Freedman's primary function is to examine in an information exchange for people at the UI and Faculty of Asian studies in Japan so that they can exchange and learn from each other.

In the past five years, the center has bought several titles and more than a dozen books to the library.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House on Friday night passed a $303.3 billion Pentagon spending bill Tuesday that will become the focal point for nearly two weeks of major control debates in the Senate.

House Speaker Tip O'Neill and the Democratic leadership are being blamed for the Senate's reluctance to act on the measure.

The Senate is expected to take up the measure Tuesday, and the two chambers are expected to reconcile their differences later this week.

Rodino: Iraqi scam similar to Watergate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., who led House impeachment hearings against President Richard Nixon, compared the Iraqi Contra scandal to Watergate Tuesday, saying Iraq has been "steamed from the chief executive's misdirection of the American people." Rep. James Oberstar, D-Minn., who led the House Agriculture Committee's impeachment hearings that prompted Nixon's resignation in 1974, said at the opening of congressional hearings Tuesday that the White House's "true offenses" were similar to those in Watergate, a botched political break-in and cover-up.

"Rodino said, based on his own examination of "the considerable body of evi­dence," that the Iraq Contra hearings would "be an affirmation of the rule of law." But Rodino, who has been known to make hyperbolic statements, has not yet indicated who he believes should be held accountable.

Rodino said the_ip, which he called a "shameful," allowed the "most monstrous" war criminals to run free.

But now, Rodino said, based on the evidence of the inquiry, "the American people, and the only issue of law, are, in the end, the public's cause."" He added that Rodino, who has been known to make hyperbolic statements, has not yet indicated who he believes should be held accountable.

Network hassles begin with hearings coverage

NEW YORK (AP) — Amer­icans get a taste of the media's impact on national television Tuesday, but what the American public may not realize is how widespread and pervasive the effect of media coverage can be.

One morning, a few minutes before the scheduled start of ABC News' "Good Morning America," NBC's "Today Show" and CBS' "Morning Show," the networks were interrupted by a report on the activities of the Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

The report, which was aired on all three networks, was part of a series of reports on the Contras that have been aired regularly since the Reagan administration began its support for the rebels in 1981.

Appeals court stops anti-smoking rule

WASHINGTON (AF) — An appeals court stopped smoking under the new anti-smoking law passed by Congress until the court rules on whether the law is constitutional.

The United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit ruled Tuesday that the FCC's decision to roll back the ban on tobacco advertising was an unconstitutional infringement on the First Amendment rights of the media.

The court also said the FCC's decision was based on a "false premise" that the ban was necessary to protect the public health.

Illegal aliens test new laws

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Postal Board of Governors Tuesday on plans to boost the price of mailing a first-class letter - now at 25 cents - to 30 cents next year.

The board, in its monthly meeting said the Postal Reorganization Act of 1970 which created the 25-cent stamp had anticipated an increase in the cost of labor, health, retirement and general operations.

At a news conference outside Postal Service head­quarters, William Biller, head of the American Postal Workers Union and Vincent Sacco, a representa­ tion of Letter Carriers pressed the board of the need for a "rational" increase.

"We want to make it a test case to see if the amnesty program is going to attract newcomers for people for their political aims," Marroquin said.

In Los Angeles, where more than a quarter of an estimated 110,000 illegal aliens in the city live, Postal Commissioner Harry Ward said the legal front was going to be the IRS has done its job well.

"The board has done everything to avoid confusion - mail-in applic­ations, frequent inspections, appointments in advance. It's just not a realistic situation. It's very important to treat them well, we'd say," said.

INS passed out 60,000 applica­ tions in the Los Angeles area last week, but most of those who showed up today were only to get forms and then left.

Postal board OKs 3-cent stamp hike

"I think this is not great news," said board Chairman John Griesemer, noting that a 3-cent stamp is now in good financial shape, the hike is needed to offset anticipated increases in the cost of labor, health, retirement and gen­eral operations.

Geneva (UPI)-The United Nations' announced agreement Tuesday to establish a new U.S.-Soviet accord to emerge from the 70-nation nuclear arms talks. President Ronald Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev agreed at that time on the need for establishing a new framework of talks to lead to a comprehensive nuclear arms treaty.

IN WASHINGTON, White House spokesman Martin Fleischer said the administration welcomes the agreement, which will reduce the risk of conflict between the United States and the Soviet Union, particularly nuclear conflict that might result from accidents, mistinception or miscalculations.

The agreement, according to the State Department, will not be used in the kind of crisis where the Red Line is employed. The risk centers over the 1983 use of shorter-range and medium-range missiles or anti-missile systems.

In addition to the negotiations on the U.S.-Soviet Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty, the draft agreement will be referred to Reagan and Gorbachev for final approval.

But state Department officials said the discussions would now be used to trade information on arms control and testing issues.

The agreement was designed as a practical measure that would lead to a more lasting conflict.

Jackson ready to picket owners

NEW YORK (UPI) - Civil rights leader Jesse Jackson was among the first to encourage a return to work by miners striking for higher wages in West Virginia and Colorado.

Jackson, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, said he would visit the miners soon. Jackson said it was the miners' rights to picket for better working conditions.

He said he would discuss the mining industry's problems with the miners and others.

"We're going to bring the mining companies to the table," Jackson said.

In an interview with the Associated Press, Jackson said the miners' rights to picket for better working conditions should be respected. Jackson said the miners have the right to strike for better working conditions.

He said he would work with the miners and others to bring the mining companies to the table.

Chicago shut down by Welch, but maintain lead in NL East

United Press International

CHICAGO — Bob Welch induced a seventh-inning hitless parade Tuesday and the Chicago White Sox blanked the White Sox 2-0 in the second game of a doubleheader.

Welch (4-3), making his first major league appearance in almost two years, pitched a two-hitter, allowing only one baserunner. He struck out six in 6 1/3 innings, then retired White Sox second baseman Joe Ricipk in the ninth.

Kicker’s dream shot falls a little bit short

Only 10 seconds left on the clock. It’s fourth down and long, and Larry Byers is sent in to punt. The punter starts a game-winning drive by driving the ball down the field. The ball is up.

"One, two, three!" was the signal for the punt, and Larry did the job beautifully. The punt was good to be true.

Larry had a difficult week. He started playing football around the age of 15. Larry believed he could be a successful punter and football player.

Larry wanted to excel at football, but he also wanted to get his degree.

"I knew I wanted to go to college," Larry said. "But I also knew I wanted to be successful on the football field."

Larry said he learned a lot from playing football. He learned how to persevere and how to work hard.

"When I was growing up, I learned that if you work hard and don't give up, you can achieve your goals," Larry said.

Larry did not have a lot of success in college, but he learned a lot from the experience. He learned that hard work pays off.

Larry Byers was a member of the NCAA national championship team in 1988. He was a key player in the team's success.

John Byers, the editor of the NCAA newsletter, said, "Larry was a great punter and a great person. He will be missed by the NCAA community."

would watch, and sometimes the Goliath, padded and helmeted, would pound down on my helmet. Hundreds of times we would have the entire coverage of Kansas State to ourselves.

Vivid imagination would sometimes violate my deep concentration. An enemy coach would arrive, and I would find myself on the edge of the field, suddenly aware of the sounds of underlying meaning.

"That's the beauty of college football," Levy said. "You can pretend it's not happening, but it's always there."

On a warm April day, Joseph Levy walked on the field at Kinnick Stadium, Iowa City, Iowa.

"I held a card," Levy said. "I was right. No one would have dared to say I was right."

But when all was said and done, Levy realized he had made the right choice.

"It was too good to be true," Levy said. "But I knew it was true."
