Democrats regroup, begin 'new campaign'

By Carol Monaghan
and Jim Peterson
Staff Writers

DES MOINES — Democratic presidential candidates were on hand to newly test Iowa's political waters Saturday night and put an end to a turbulent week in politics that knocked former front-runner Gary Hart out of the race and the Democratic nomination wide open.

The annual steak fry and fundraiser, attended by more than 900 Democrats and a brigade of national media at the Iowa State Fairgrounds, took on new significance as the first gathering of Democratic contenders after the withdrawal of Hart's candidacy.

Candidates attending the event, including Sen. Joe Biden of Delaware, Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri, and Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois, expressed individual optimism for their campaigns on the eve of what they said was a new Democratic race.

"THIS IS THE first day of the rest of the campaign," Simon said. "It is a new day."

Simon also said he doubted any candidate would emerge as a frontrunner until after the Feb. 8 Iowa caucuses.

"I do not feel anyone will dramatically break out... it will be an even field," he said. "No one will break out until after Iowa."

Biden, at a speech for supporters at his Des Moines headquarters before the dinner, also said it was "the second day of a new campaign."

Gephardt, the only candidate to refer to Hart's withdrawal in his speech to the crowd, said it was a "tragedy."

"What happened was not just a tragedy for Gary Hart, his family and supporters," he said. "It was also a tragedy for everyone who is a part of the Democratic party."

BUT ALL FOUR candidates spoke generally of leadership and honesty during 20-minute speeches at the $15-a-plate fund-raiser dinner sponsored by the Polk County Young Democrats.

Dukakis, who told audience members to focus on his efforts to revitalize his state's economy, also said the American citizens have a right to a foreign policy that reflects American values.

"The American people don't deserve secret wars cooked up by an armchair Rambo," Dukakis said.

Simon, who admitted in his speech that his campaign was still in need of building, said Democrats should look for strong leadership from a candidate that is willing "to stand up and do what is unpopular."

Simon, the only senator to vote against last year's tax bill, said candidates' "hoopla" should not get in the way of their message. "I think we're ready in this nation for a candidate that is not a slick-packaged product but a candidate that levels with you and says these are the facts and says this is the way America has to go."

BIDEN TOLD THE crowd that Democrats must pick a winner in 1988, a year that he said will be "a watershed period" in the nation.

"Beyond making the judgment on who among us is the most qualified, you must make the judgment of who among us can win," he said. "For the Democrats cannot afford to lose in '88."

Democratic contenders not present were former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt and the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

Nearly 150 Missouri Democrats who traveled more than 200 miles to rally for Gephardt attended the fundraiser.

Biden made a reference to Gephardt's supporters in his opening remarks.

"It's good to be here with so many people from Missouri," he said. "I see this as an opportunity to campaign in two states at once tonight."

Candidates came with family, as both Gephardt and Simon appeared with their spouses and Biden with his oldest son, Beau.

Several Iowa Democratic politicians spoke in favor of candidates.

Iowa Attorney General Tom Miller, Babbitt's campaign manager, gave a speech in behalf of Babbitt.

Former Rep. Berkeley Bedell told the audience that he told Simon if he would run, Bedell would dedicate a year of his life to work for Simon's election.

Education issues mark '88 budget

DES MOINES (UPI) — For the first time in Iowa, public teachers would be guaranteed a minimum salary of $18,000 and private students would receive tuition tax credits, under a $2.4 billion budget plan the 1987 legislature sent to Gov. Terry Branstad early Sunday.

Democratic leaders said the proposal would spend less overall than the Republican governor's plan, but provide about $15 million more than he recommended for human services, including a 6.5 percent increase in Aid to Families of Dependent Children benefits.

The teacher pay section calls for $92.5 million worth of salary increases, including the first $9 million to bring all salaries to the nation's average minimum of $18,000. The rest of the funds are to be distributed by local school boards based on seniority and performance-pay programs.

Branstad said Sunday his figures show the legislature exceeded his budget plans by $25.6 million. He said the "budget gimmickry" will be costly to taxpayers and he also criticized lawmakers for cutting too much from his tourism program.

NO BUDGET ISSUE divided the Democrat-controlled legislature more than the philosophical battle over $2.9 million in tuition tax breaks for parents who send their children to private schools — a fight that raged until 3:10 a.m. Sunday when the proposal won final House approval, 51-40.

The measure was walked through the legislature by Branstad, a Roman Catholic; Senate Majority Leader Bill Hutchinson, a Democrat who represents a heavily Catholic district near Carroll; and Senate Education Committee Chairman Larry Murphy, whose wife is a private school teacher.

Critics of the tax credits said taxpayers should not subsidize private education filled with religious ideals and some Democrats distributed copies of their party platform plank stating opposition to the practice.

"This doesn't benefit everyone in the state of Iowa. But it is at the expense of all taxpayers in Iowa," Rep. John Connors, D-Des Moines, said.

BACKERS OF the tuition tax credits, limited to incomes of less than $45,000, said parents need state assistance to combat the financial burden of a private education.

The House refused the tax credits on a 47-46 vote at about 1:30 a.m., but Democrats who control the House, 58-42, called a party caucus in an effort to win approval for the plan.

Dog wash

"Bear," owned by Mary Rockafellow of Iowa City, seems to regard New Pioneer Natural Foods Cooperative's First Annual Dog Wash as a bunch of hog wash. About 50 dogs went through the clean-up Saturday afternoon, which was staged, ironically, as part of National Be Kind to Animals Week.

Covert racism on campuses puts pressure on minorities

By James Cahoy
Staff Writer

Racism is becoming an increasing problem on campuses in the United States, and the UI has not been immune to the problem, say campus minority leaders.

"There has been an increasing problem with racism on campuses throughout the country, and Iowa is no exception," UI Black Student Union President Kelvin Burton said. "There's a significant amount of racism at the University of Iowa, much of it in a covert form that students don't recognize."

Burton said he could cite several incidents of covert racism at Iowa in the past year, ranging from academic advisors discouraging black students from taking difficult majors to the lack of black faculty members at the UI.

"Racism at Iowa is unique in that it is usually a product of ignorance rather than genuine hatred," Burton said. "A lot of students don't even realize when they are doing or saying something that is racist."

UI JUNIOR DERRICK James, a black student from Chicago, agreed that racism at the UI seems to stem mostly from ignorance.

"The racism here at the university tends to be a subtle type," James said. "People don't judge you as an individual, but as part of a group."

"When I came up here, everybody would ask me how to break dance or why I didn't talk like a black man," James added. "Things like that really hurt."

This is the first in a two-part series that looks at racism on campus.

James said black people at the UI have to also cope with an unsupportive atmosphere for academic and social life.

"There are so few black people up here that it's very hard to have an active social life," James said. "It's very easy to feel lonely up here if you are black."

Burton said that one of the results of the unsupportive racial atmosphere is that many minority students either drop out of the UI or transfer to another school.

"I WOULD ASSUME the UI does not have a high retention rate for minority students," Burton said. "I think a significant number leave the university before they complete their degree."

But blacks do not appear to be the only minority group members that have to deal with racist behavior on the UI campus.

Former Associated Residence Halls president Larry Pearlman, who is Jewish, said he has been the victim of several racist attacks during his three years at the UI.

"I remember last year, when I lived in Hillcrest, people would call my roommate and I up at weird hours of the night and yell 'kike' into the phone," Pearlman said. "I've also had swastikas scribbled on my door."

Pearlman also cited professors giving tests on Jewish holidays as another example of subtle racism on the UI campus.

"I DON'T THINK the racism against Jewish people is as strong as that directed against other groups on campus because we are less visible," Pearlman said. "But there are still certain stereotypes about Jewish people that I think most students at the university have that are basically untrue, and sometimes they can be really offensive."

Latinos on the UI campus also have to cope with a certain amount of racism on campus, according to UI junior Daria Garcia.

"I remember going into Carlos O'Kelly's when they were having their Cinco de Mayo (fifth of May) celebration," Garcia said. "All the men working there were dressed up in stereotypical Mexican outfits, complete with greasypaint, huge moustaches, sombreros and exaggerated accents. It was insulting, but it's also typical of the image some people have of Mexican-Americans."

Lawmakers approve UI laser funds

By Shawn Plank
Staff Writer
and United Press International

With time running out in the legislative session Saturday, Iowa lawmakers gave final approval to a $65.6 million bonding bill to fund the proposed UI Laser Center and other university construction projects.

The bill, passed with little debate, was adopted 28-16 in the Senate and 77-11 in the House and now awaits a signature from the governor.

It authorizes the state Board of Regents to invest $25.1 million in two projects — the Laser Center and the remodeling of the Old Law Building at the UI. The law building is the new site of the UI International Center.

THE BONDING resolution was one of the many last-minute items the legislature expedited during the final hours of the session, which lasted until after 3 a.m. Sunday morning.

The resolution began its journey through the legislature on Jan. 15 when the Iowa Senate approved $25.1 million for the UI Laser Center. It has taken nearly four months to reach its current form.

"We're delighted it finally passed," UI Laser Facility Director William Stwalley said. "We're hopeful now the governor will sign it and we'll be able to go on to other things."

Branstad vetoed the original bonding proposal March 18 that would have given the regents $98.5 million in bonding authority for building and repair projects.

HE RECOMMENDED $62.6 million in bonding for the UI Laser Center and the ISU molecular biology building only. The $98.5 million prop-

See Bonding, Page 10A

The bill also provides $37.5 million for Iowa State University to build a molecular biology center and a meat irradiation facility plus four other projects considered priorities of the regents.

IN ADDITION, IT provides $3 million to the University of Northern Iowa to remodel Latham Hall for classroom and office space.

But the bill may not reach Gov. Terry Branstad for about 10 days because of the amount of legislation approved in the past week, chief aide Douglas Gross said Sunday. Branstad has 30 days to sign the bill, according to state law.

Gross added the governor is "positive" about the bonding resolution and will likely sign it.

"We worked hard with the legislature to provide the needed funds for the Laser Center and the molecular biology building," Gross said. "We're pleased the legislature succeeded in following the parameters the governor laid out."

New mom contends with 'gifts'

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Sally LeBlanc gave birth to a baby boy, then someone delivered a baby alligator to her.

Henry Eugene LeBlanc was born Saturday to Ricky and Sally LeBlanc, of Plaquemine, who had for nine years tormented friends Sammie and Heddie Carville by giving the Carville children unusual creatures for presents.

Saturday, the Carvilles returned the favor — all of them. They paraded into the hospital and dumped two baby ducks, a rabbit and a baby alligator on Sally LeBlanc's bed.

"We brought back everything (the LeBlancs) gave us in nine years," Heddie Carville said.

Well, not everything. The snake escaped Saturday before he could make his hospital visit.

4 UI underclassmen receive Stuit Awards

Four UI underclassmen received Dewey B. Stuit Awards last week for outstanding academic achievement at the UI.

Lori Fawncille Brandt, a history and religion major at the UI, has been selected to receive the Dewey B. Stuit Freshman Award, a $500 scholarship presented to a first-year honors student.

Susan Hickenbottom, a UI biochemistry and Spanish major; Mary Snyder, a UI psychology major; and Sara Schnittjer, a communications studies and German major at the UI, were named co-winners of the 1987 Dewey B. Stuit Sophomore Scholarship.

Priya Bhatia, a freshman biology major; Lyn Raue, a freshman geology major; and Thaddeus Metz, a freshman biology major, were selected as finalists for the Stuit Freshman Award.

Stuit retired in 1977 after 39 years as a UI faculty member and 28 years as dean of the College of Liberal Arts.

State cars, trucks to be auctioned May 16

A public auction of used state motor vehicles will be held in Ames, on Saturday, May 16, by the Iowa Department of Transportation.

Nearly 150 vehicles and other pieces of equipment will be auctioned off starting at 9:30 a.m. at the blue building on the southeast corner of the Iowa DOT lot south of Fourth Street.

Vehicles to be auctioned include nine four-cylinder cars, 13 four-cylinder pickups, three station wagons, 36 half-ton pickups, 17 vans and 17 trucks.

Among the vehicles to be sold are a 1981 Chevrolet Malibu with a diesel engine, four Ford Fairmonts, a 1981 Dodge D250 crew-cab pickup, a Ford F350 one-ton truck, two 1983 Ford Ranger pickups, a 1980 Ford F250 parcel delivery van and a 1968 International 2010 semi tractor.

Other items to be sold at the auction include tractors, backhoes, loaders and trailers.

Vehicles may be inspected at the DOT lot in Ames from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday, May 15, or at 7:30 to 9:30 a.m. the day of the sale.

Bidders must be at least 18 years old. Each successful bidder must present a $200 deposit. No personal or company checks will be accepted.

The UI is offering two instructional design workshops, each lasting two days, within the next month.

"Photography for Instruction" will meet two Saturdays — May 16 and June 6 — from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Ottumwa, Iowa. The course is intended to provide inexperienced photographers with a basic overview of black-and-white photographic equipment and processes.

A video workshop will introduce students to basic video production techniques through demonstration and hands-on use of video equipment. The workshop will meet from 6 to 10 p.m. Friday, May 22, and from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, May 23.

Each workshop is being offered for one semester-hour of undergraduate or graduate-level credit. Tuition for either course is $81 for undergraduate status or $103 for graduate-level status students. Undergraduates may enroll only on a satisfactory/fail basis.

Classes will be held at Southern Prairie Area Education Agency, located at the Ottumwa Industrial Airport.

To register, or for more information, call Off-Campus Courses and Programs at 800-272-6430 or 335-2575.

Summer college courses offered on TV

Iowa Public Television is offering five courses for college credit this summer beginning June 1.

"The Adult Years" explores adulthood and examines the inner lives of adults.

"The Business File" covers topics such as accounting, managing financial resources, labor and productivity. "The New Literacy: An Intro to Computers" presents an overview of what computers can do and how they operate.

"The Story of English" unravels the story of how the English language evolved and how it has attained its global influence. "Teaching Writing: A Process Approach," is designed for teachers of all grade levels, and presents the most up-to-date theories and practices on teaching writing.

For more information about summer and fall telecourses call 800-532-1290. The telecourses can be seen on KIIN-TV Channel 12 in Iowa City.

2 answer abduction charges

DES MOINES (UPI) — Two southeast-Iowa men have pleaded innocent to federal kidnapping charges in the abduction and slaying of a 12-year-old Ottumwa girl.

Donald Petary, 49, of Ottumwa, and his nephew, Andrew Six, 21, of rural Pershing entered their pleas Friday before U.S. Magistrate Ronald Longstaff.

They are scheduled to stand trial June 29.

Petary and Six also are charged with murder in the death of Kathy Allen, a mildly retarded girl who was found stabbed to death in Schuyler County, Mo., last month after she was abducted from her family's trailer home.

If convicted on the kidnapping charge, the men could face life sentences.

If they are convicted of murder in Missouri, they could be executed.

Increase in property taxes prompts farmers to appeal

By Bruce Japsen
City Editor

Johnson County farmers upset over a 12 percent increase in their property taxes may not get much satisfaction if they try to appeal their tax rate.

Members of the Johnson County Rural Taxpayers Association said they may appeal the value of their land in order to try to take advantage of declining farm values and lower the property taxes on the land.

BUT A MAN WHO KNOWS THE APPEAL process says they won't have much luck.

"Only once in a great while there is an error," Pat Harding, who was last year's Board of Appeal chairman, said. "The assessor is usually 99 percent correct."

Johnson County Assessor Jerry Musser said those who plan to appeal their taxes will be allowed to do so until May 15.

BUT JOHNSON COUNTY RURAL Taxpayers Association member Bob Arn urged any farmers who question their property taxes to appeal, saying he would like to send a message to the Johnson County Board of Supervisors and the state lawmakers because he says taxes are too high.

"Everybody in the state ought to appeal their taxes," Arn said, "rather than just a few in the county. A message will be sent if everybody would appeal because it would show taxes in this state are too high."

But Arn admitted he doubted appealing the taxes would do any good in the short term.

"Whatever you think is unfair you can appeal, but if the Board of Appeal lets too many people squawk and get away with not paying as much, they won't be able to pay for anything," Arn said.

IF FARMERS DO FILE A CLAIM, Harding said the Board of Appeal will go to the property and look it over for possible mistakes made in valuation of land, farm buildings or a home.

But Harding said the board doesn't have much control over county valuation.

"These things are controlled by the state and the state takes an overall look at land values," Harding said.

Arn advised those who plan to appeal that there is a lot of paperwork involved.

"Whatever you think is unfair, you've got to go back and keep records of what transpired with your property during the last five years," he said.

An Iowa City man was listed in stable condition at Mercy Hospital Sunday after he collided with a deer north of Iowa City while riding his motorcycle.

Dennis Moss, 51, of 330 Koser

Ave., was traveling south on Highway 1 by the entrance of National Computer Systems at about 11 p.m. Saturday when the motorcycle he was riding struck a deer, according to Iowa City police reports.

Police officers arriving at the scene found the deer had been killed in the accident.

Theft Report: More than $170 cash was stolen from an employee's purse while she was working at an Iowa City restaurant Saturday, according to Iowa City police reports.

Suellen Carmody, Bon Aire Mobile Home Lodge Lot 333, told police the $175 was taken before 6:17 p.m. Saturday while she was working at Wendy's Old Fashion Hamburgers, 1480 First Ave.

The theft was still under investigation Sunday by the Iowa City Police Department.

Report: A trombone worth $1,000 was lost by an Iowa City resident Saturday, according to Iowa City police reports.

Larry Heinz, 503 Oakwood Village, told police the trombone was missing from his car around the Market Street Quick Trip.

Tuesday Events

Lynn Landmesser of the University of Connecticut Department of Physiology and Neurobiology will speak on "Qualitative and Quantitative Matching Between Embryonic Motor Neurons and Their Target Muscles" at a physiology seminar at 9:30 a.m. in Bowen Science Building Room 5-669. Learning at Lunch will sponsor a speech by David R. Belgum, UI professor of Religion and Internal Medicine and director of Pastoral Services, on "Papua New Guinea: From the Stone Age to the Computer Age in One Generation" at 12:10 p.m. in UI Hospital's Boyd Tower West Lobby. Campus Bible Fellowship will hold its last meeting of the semester, including a slide show retrospective of the year, at 8:30 p.m. at Campus House.

Announcements for the Tomorrow column must be submitted to The Iowan by 3 p.m. two days prior to publication. For example: Notices for Friday events must be submitted by 3 p.m. Wednesday. All notices will appear in the DI one day prior to the events they announce. Notices may be sent through the mail, but be sure to mail early. All submissions must be clearly printed on a Tomorrow column blank (which appear on the classified ads page) or typewritten and triple-spaced on a full sheet of paper. Each announcement must be on a separate sheet of paper.

Announcements

Graduating Liberal Arts students will be individually recognized at the Liberal Arts Convocation on Friday, May 15, at 8 p.m. in Carver-Hawkeye Arena. Graduating students who plan to attend the convocation should wear their caps and gowns. Planning an event over break? Turn in a completed Tomorrow Blank by noon on May 13 and your over-the-break event will be listed in the Tomorrow column on Friday, May 15.

Tomorrow Policy

Announcements will not be accepted over the telephone. All submissions must include the name and phone number, which will not be published, of a contact person in case there are any questions.

Events not eligible

Notice of events where admission is charged will not be accepted. Notice of political events, except meeting announcements of recognized student groups, will not be accepted. Notices that are commercial advertisements will not be accepted. Questions regarding the Tomorrow column should be directed to the managing editor.

Du Pont calls for major domestic changes

By Carol Monaghan
Staff Writer

Republican presidential candidate Pete du Pont said major changes are needed in the country's domestic programs and told UI students Friday he is the only Republican candidate with an agenda to tackle the nation's crucial issues.

"I'm the only candidate on the Republican side that is talking about the changes that we need to make about phasing out farm subsidies, replacing welfare work and getting drugs out of our classrooms," du Pont, the former governor of Delaware and two-term U.S. Representative, said. "The other candidates are not saying anything. I think that gives me an enormous political advantage."

Du Pont, the first Republican to declare his candidacy, told a group of nearly 50 students at Dooley's Dancin and Drinkin, 18 S. Clinton St., that he does not think they and their children will have the

Pete duPont on important campaign issues

■ Welfare: DuPont says the welfare system should be scrapped and that "all able-bodied welfare recipients should be required to work."

■ Farm Policy: Outline a plan that would phase out the commodity price support system in five years and would market transition payments to farmers to smooth the changeover.

■ Foreign Policy: "We are doing the right thing in sending weapons to the Contras, to get their revolution back, their churches open and their newspapers free."

same opportunities as their parents and grandparents "unless we do some things very differently in this country."

Du PONT SAID he favors a national schooling and training bank from which anyone could borrow enough money to go to school or back to school, but the loan would be at market rates and have to be paid back by the borrower.

He also said his plan to revise social security programs would guarantee that post-baby boomers will have a retirement income. "As you know, for a young person coming out of high school today, when the baby boomers retire, their social security taxes will double, that will destroy their opportunity," du Pont said.

Du Pont proposes a National Security Program that would preserve the benefits for current retirees while allowing young workers the option of setting up IRA-type security accounts.

He criticized other Republican candidates for "only wanting to fiddle with the margins," and said he wanted to change things "100 percent."

"JACK KEMP, for example, is a candidate that is status quo on social security," du Pont said. "He is not addressing the opportunities young people need. So I think my campaign is the one that would appeal more than anyone else's to young people. Particularly since George (Bush) and Bob (Dole) are candidates of a previous generation and Jack Kemp and I are candidates of the next generation of politics."

DuPont, 52, also said he favors random drug testing for high school students.

"I was over at City High School a couple of hours ago," du Pont said. "Students were telling me it was their constitutional right to use an illegal substance."

He said the Constitution's Fourth Amendment only prohibits unreasonable search and seizures and said, if challenged in a court of law, drug testing for high schoolers would hold up just as locker searches do.

THOSE WHO did not pass the testing would not be able to receive their driver's license until age 18, he added.

The Wilmington attorney and member of the wealthy du Pont chemical manufacturing family has staked out what some GOP party members view as radical territory on issues that include government welfare, farm programs, social security and drug testing.

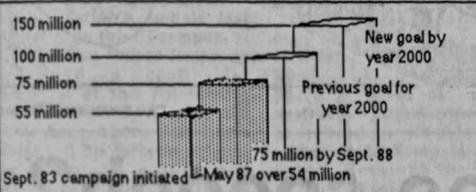

But du Pont denies that his campaign is based on high-profile, sometimes controversial issues to separate a dark horse from the Republican pack and said his agenda is based on essentially the same values as his governorship.

"YES, THERE is a strong conservative influence on the Republican party," du Pont said. "But what I'm talking about in my campaign for the presidency is essentially the same kind of things I was doing and saying as governor. And I ran perhaps the most conservative government in America for eight years. And it worked."

Bill Outlaw, press secretary for du Pont, said while the former governor's view may be controversial, at least there is no doubt where he stands.

"People may disagree on where he stands on the issues, that's true," Outlaw said. "But at least there is no doubt that he stands there. The governor is a straightforward individual. He put beef in his proposals."

Endowment drive aims at higher goal

By Scott Hauser
Staff Writer

The UI Foundation has already surpassed half of its $100 million goal, prompting Foundation and UI officials to raise the goal to $150 million by the year 2000.

"I'm pleased to announce the Iowa Endowment 2000 campaign has reached the level of $45 million to $55 million," Marvin Pomerantz, chairman of the Iowa Endowment 2000 campaign, said Friday in announcing the program's success.

Pomerantz — who last week was named president of the state Board of Regents — also announced the campaign's five-year goal is now $75 million instead of the previous $50 million to $60 million and said the updated goal of $150 million is well within the campaign's ability.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT was made official at a celebration Friday evening at Hancher Auditorium, where UI officials, alumni and campaign workers learned of the campaign's progress.

The Iowa Endowment 2000 campaign was initiated in September 1983 by UI President James O. Freedman as a way to finance endowed professorships, graduate student fellowships and a center for advanced studies at the UI.

"This is indeed a thrilling day for the University of Iowa," Freedman said of the announcement.

He said the UI currently has 22 fully endowed professorships while it had none in 1983 and has 64 fully endowed doctoral fellowships.

The endowment campaign will make the UI more competitive nationally, Freedman said, but does not mean the UI's focus is shifting from undergraduate to graduate education.

"Most of these professorships are in the undergraduate college, like Liberal Arts," he said. "This university is committed to undergraduate education in the strongest possible way."

UI FOUNDATION President and Director of the Iowa Endowment 2000 campaign Darrell D. Wyrick said much of the money is in the form of commitments and pledges.

He said 80 percent of the committed money has come from individual donations — with the largest being an anonymous donation of $5 million from an individual.

The foundation would continue to seek large gifts, but expected much of the campaign's focus would be on alumni, Wyrick said.

UI and foundation officials said they were confident the UI could achieve its new goal despite economic difficulties in Iowa.

"People have great faith and love in this university," Wyrick said. "We're optimistic because we have time to do this and because of the great love of these people to stretch."

UI Vice President of Academic Affairs Richard D. Remington, who will assume leadership of the campaign July 1 when he becomes UI interim president, said the program represents the UI's strongest commitment to economic development.

FREEDMAN ANNOUNCED last month he is stepping down as UI president to become president at Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H.

"Higher education is one of the state's few growth industries," Remington said, adding a $1 investment in higher education continues to return $3.50 in economic development for the state.

None of the campaign's money will be used for the general fund of the UI, but will only finance "people" projects, Wyrick said.

He estimated the foundation has spent about $1.5 million promoting the campaign.

The good with the bad

Iowa's state legislators wrapped up a 119-day session Sunday morning, leaving Des Moines with mixed feelings about their accomplishments. Certainly, there were pluses and minuses on this year's report card: The legislature took admirable action to protect the state's ground water, but on the other hand, Gov. Terry Branstad and the assembly failed to reach compromises on tax reform and a teenage pregnancy program.

On two important education issues, however, the legislature acted wisely. As part of a $2.4 billion budget proposal, the legislature recommended a base salary of $18,000 for the state's public school teachers and $2.9 million in tuition tax credits for parents who choose to send their children to private schools.

The decision to spend $92.5 million to increase teacher pay will bring Iowa up to the nation's average minimum salary for educators — the least the state must do to back up its oft-stated commitment to excellence in education. An $18,000 salary, while not commensurate with the amount of work and responsibility expected of today's teachers, will perhaps allow the graduates of Iowa's top-notch teacher-training programs to consider jobs in this state when they seek professional employment.

The other issue — tuition tax credits — is considerably more controversial. In fact, the move to allow the credits, which will apply to parents with incomes of less than $45,000, passed only as part of a compromise to save other human service programs in the $2.4 billion spending package.

Although some critics claim the credits constitute a subsidy of private schools, they more importantly allow parents the financial freedom to choose the type of education they wish to provide for their children. Without the credits, the high cost of private school tuition, combined with state taxes, effectively makes non-public education impossible for many low- and medium-income families. With the credits, freedom of choice can be ensured.

Blindness

The devastating picture revealed by retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard Secord in his testimony before Congress last week is all the more devastating because it revealed either a terrible moral blindness or a monumental contempt for the intelligence of the American people.

It is indeed true that honorable people can disagree on whether or not to aid any party — either the Contras or the Sandinista government — in Nicaragua. It is true that each person has the right to lobby for his policy choices. It is true that each person has the right to put money, body and soul on the line for those beliefs.

But no individual has the right to impose his/her personal beliefs on another or on society, outside of the due Constitutional process. This means that while a Christian Scientist may refuse surgery, he/she cannot refuse it to another; it means a Nazi can preach anti-Semitism, but cannot take away the rights of Jews. Society must tolerate ideas that are ugly, but only so long as they do not demand one's attention or affect one's life.

Thus, once Congress, reflecting the will of the American people and the best judgment of the majority of its members, voted to cut off aid to the Contras, President Ronald Reagan and other Contra supporters were limited in what they could do.

People like Secord could raise money for propaganda, he could lobby congressmen, he could send his money to them or enlist himself. Members of the Reagan administration could clap and cheer on the sideline as individuals. The president could call members of Congress and attempt to change their minds. As the chief foreign policy architect, he could attempt to persuade the keeper of the purse, Congress, that funding the Contras was right.

But that is not what happened. Government officials, their salaries paid out of tax money, spent their official time attempting to implement a policy rejected by Congress. In this respect, they indirectly used tax money to help the Contras — and that was illegal.

Moreover, these people — Lt. Col. Oliver North, some members of the National Security Council, the CIA and possibly even the State Department — bought government weapons at cost and sold them to private individuals with the express purpose of making a profit that could be used for an activity banned by Congress.

Reagan and his cabinet officers would thus be guilty of breaking the law if they knew profits from arms sales were being transferred to the Contras. They were certainly guilty of gross misfeasance if they did not know.

Students vs. free speech?

By Robert F. Goldberger

IN 1953, I was a student at Harvard College, determined to get decent grades even though my fellow students and I were spending much of our time in front of a TV set, riveted by the Army-McCarthy hearings. Those of us who shared the searing experience of McCarthyism are sensitized today to the strain of sharing civil liberties with those with whom we deeply disagree. But have we failed to communicate that lesson to today's students?

Over the past year, students on college campuses across the country have raised a number of issues in outraged protest against unfairness, stupidity and danger in our society. Yet the form of some of these protests is disquieting. It exhibits a narrowness of mind usually associated with totalitarian ideologies of the right or left and seems inappropriate for students who consider themselves the champions of individual freedom. It is difficult to say how widespread this phenomenon is, but it does characterize at least a vocal minority of students. Paradoxically, their strategy undercuts the academic freedom and constitutional protections they would claim to hold dear.

RECENTLY, STUDENTS HAVE demanded that the military and the Central Intelligence Agency be barred from recruiting on college campuses because they discriminate against homosexuals. The students believe that by allowing these organizations on campus, universities tacitly condone their discriminatory practices. If the military is to be barred, what other organizations should also be excluded? And who should decide? After all, there is something among the great variety of potential employers to displease almost everyone.

In writings and classroom discussions, members of the university community wrestle endlessly with moral issues and sometimes take stands on them. Yet while the university may adopt an official policy, such as not to discriminate on the basis of sexual orientation, it does not require others to do the same or bar from campus anyone who holds a different view.

This issue is sharpened by a second one that has come to the fore in recent months. "Jason" is the acronym for a project administered by a private, not-for-profit corporation that brings physicists from around the country together periodically to form a "think-tank." Its mission is to solve difficult technical problems for various government agencies — mainly weapons research for the Department of Defense.

PROTESTERS ON SEVERAL campuses recently demanded that the universities constrain their faculty from engaging in consulting work for Jason, failing to recognize that faculty are free to pursue whatever lawful activities they wish during their free time and away from campus as long as they obey university guidelines on conflicts of interest. The protesters' request for university intervention reveals a dangerous misunderstanding about the right of an employer to control the private lives of its employees — a misunderstanding that is particularly disturbing to those of us who read 1984 when that date seemed far in the future.

An even more fundamental issue is illustrated by a third example of contemporary protest. Twenty-five years ago, an era of student activism was ignited by something called the "free speech movement." But today students, and some faculty members too, seem confused about what a free society and a free university should be. Time and again, we have seen instances in which a Jeane Kirkpatrick, a Louis Farrakhan, an Alexander Haig Jr. have been shouted down and prevented from speaking on campuses. And students have demanded that the university deny the use of its facilities for such speakers.

THOSE WHO SUPPORTED such protests would adamantly deny that their actions were antagonistic to free speech or free choice. Yet a university must maintain its integrity as a world in which no idea is too outrageous to be heard. For it to be otherwise would make it the kind of place the students justly detest. That is a contradiction they somehow fail to see.

A common thread unites the efforts of the students in these three instances. Instead of using more traditional forms of political protest against discrimination in the military, against the work of the Defense Department or against the foreign policy of an ideological opponent, the students have turned to the university in the belief that it should set things right.

Apparently these students have not considered what sort of university it would be in which anyone invited onto campus had to be pre-screened for conformity with a given set of beliefs, in which the faculty's free time activities had to be monitored and approved and in which every speaker would have to hold "acceptable" views.

The expectation that those in authority will act autocratically to impose justice on the world is misplaced. The moral authority of the university is exerted through ideas and through example, not through coercion. As an institution, the university upholds the law and rejoices in the increasing protection of individual liberty that recent enforcement of the Constitution has provided for our society. But 30 years of progress in civil and human rights could be lost quickly if we forget the principles on which that progress was based.

To recall or repeat the past?

By Paul M. Seebohm

"Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it."
— Santayana

THIS IS A prophecy repeated by the older generation in cautioning the young who are deviating from tradition. For some time, society has been dealing with health matters in a manner oblivious of the past and on a course to repeat it.

Though medicine has roots as old as Hippocrates, modern medicine was in its infancy even 100 years ago. Physicians were still questioning the Koch germ theory of disease, in spite of the fact life expectancy was 40 years due to epidemics of infectious disease. The discovery of X-ray was 5 years away, as were D.D. Palmer's subluxations and nerve energy theories and asepsis was getting slow acceptance. Oserian medicine was improving diagnosis, but treatment of diseases was in infancy.

Halting scientific medical progress would leave physicians attacking today's diseases armed only with the art of medicine.

Guest Opinion

The Flexner expose in 1910 revealed an abundance of doctors inadequately educated to practice scientific medicine and experts in manipulation and symptomatic therapy.

Reforms in medical education and medical research that followed the Flexner Report are now history. The diagnostic value of imaging with physical energy, identification of micro-organisms, development of vaccines and bacteriocidal agents, perfection of aseptic surgery and synthesis of a host of rational pharmaceuticals and hormones gave a new scientific dimension to medicine.

NOT SO NEW is the art of medicine. Today's diseases may be different, but not the emotional pain and physical suffering. Empathy, counseling and other aspects of the doctor-patient relationship are no less critical to the practice of scientific medicine in 1987 than in 1887. Today's physician has the best scientific and traditional humanistic tools with which to practice.

There are those who want to curtail scientific advances to contain costs, suggesting more emphasis be placed on empathy for the terminally ill and less on operating rooms and intensive care units. It is true some medical technological breakthroughs have led to the development of expensive equipment. However, some expensive research has reduced medical care costs to zero — e.g. polio vaccine.

Knowledge about the origin of most cancers and vascular disorders of the heart (chest) brain is at the level of germ-theory a century ago. Halting scientific medical progress would leave physicians attacking today's diseases armed only with the art of medicine.

Do we need to re-prove the axiom "those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it"?

Jeff Kemp talks explains key campaign issues to UI students at a Saturday breakfast.

Candidate's son hits campus to outline policies, win votes

By Anne Halloran
Staff Writer

San Francisco 49ers quarterback Jeff Kemp attempted to score points for his father, Republican presidential candidate Jack Kemp, by speaking on his father's behalf last Saturday on the UI campus.

Alpha Tau Omega fraternity sponsored a continental breakfast at the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity house, 303 Ellis Ave., where Jeff Kemp discussed his father's policies on economic growth and reform, as well as other issues.

"I have always been interested in politics and economics," Kemp said. "It's amazing how closely I align my issues with my father's."

"DAD HAS THREE main thrusts," Kemp said, regarding the key issues in his father's campaign.

"Economic growth produces greater revenues," Kemp said. "Interest rates are still very high and the Federal Reserve has been responsible for not making the dollar stable."

According to Kemp, economic growth would be triggered by an increase in employment opportunities.

Kemp said his father's second campaign point is the importance of a strong defense system, but added his father believes a change in current policy is needed.

"Since 1972 there has been an incredibly explosive spending on defense — that's wasteful," Kemp said. "It's scary that peace is based on mutual destruction where one side has to keep up with the other."

The younger Kemp claims his father agrees with the intention of peace but wants a strong defense system to neutralize any nuclear weapons attack.

"Dad would like to have a strategic defense whether it be kinetic defense or, in the future, laser defense," Kemp said.

KEMP ALSO STRESSED the importance of the family and wants to make it clear in the educational system that the family is the "bedrock," according to his son.

"Values taught at home should not be destroyed in the schools," Kemp said.

Kemp also commented on his father's policy to reform education.

"We need to put an emphasis on basics and competition back into the school system," Kemp said.

If elected, Kemp would also reform the welfare system, his son said.

"Welfare encourages unemployment and the break-up of the family," Kemp said. "Dad's solution is to take people with an income of $14,000 or less off of income tax."

ACCORDING TO HIS son, Jack Kemp also stresses the importance of international free trade and supporting "freedom fighters for democracy," including the Contras.

Duane Marty said his fraternity sponsored the event because Jack Kemp is a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

"It would be nice to help out a brother," Marty said. Jeff Kemp said he did not expect many people to attend the event, but about 25 people participated.

"I'm impressed anyone is up this early," Kemp said at the breakfast, which started at 9 a.m.

UI looks at parking changes

By Joseph Levy
Assistant Metro Editor

A UI committee is looking at the possibility of replacing key-operated parking gates in UI lots with a more efficient, relatively foolproof system.

Members of the All-University Parking and Transportation Committee said at a meeting last week the current system of opening some private UI lots to the public on evenings may mean inadequate parking space for faculty.

UI Parking and Transportation Manager Dave Ricketts said more night classes being taught at the UI and more student-owned cars in lots may be depriving some faculty members of spaces in reserved lots at night.

Ricketts said there had been a few complaints about the parking situation by members of the faculty, but he is not sure how extensive the problem may be.

"I think it's something we'd like to address as an issue next year," he said.

ONE SOLUTION might be a card-operated gate system where drivers would be issued cards that would let them park in only certain lots at certain times of the day.

Information on what lots can be used at a particular time by a cardholder would be contained inside of the card — and not on a magnetic strip — making duplication difficult, Ricketts said.

He added this system will be tried at two UI Hospitals parking ramps on a trial basis next fall and could possibly replace the easy-to-fool key operated gates used in many UI lots.

But members of the committee brainstormed options, searching for solutions that would please both faculty and student parkers.

"I don't think either one of those (groups) can be sacrificed," committee member and UI graduate student Andy Peters said.

PETERS AND committee member Earle Stellwagen, a UI biochemistry professor, discussed variations of the key-operated system and toll parking. Stellwagen said he was concerned many individuals would not be able to afford keys for a key system.

Ricketts agreed that cost may be a problem, and said any system implemented should have maximum accessibility as a priority.

"I don't want to kick out the occasional parker," Ricketts said. "There are certain advantages to the (currently in place) shotgun approach. It serves the largest possible number of people. I don't know that any assignment method of keys would do that."

Gas well explosion forces evacuation

NEOLA, Utah — Emergency crews Sunday evacuated the tiny farming community of Neola and sealed it off because of a leaking natural gas well operated by Penzoil, officials said.

"We've had a natural gas well blow," said Fawn Minnick of the Uintah Basin Central Dispatch Center in Vernal. "It's just spilling natural gas into the atmosphere."

Penzoil spokesman Bob Harper in Houston said, "It is highly unusual for this to happen to a producing well, as opposed to an exploratory well. There is no fire now and hopefully there won't be."

No injuries were reported.

Authorities evacuated the entire town — population estimated at about 100 — and sealed off the area within a 3-mile radius from the well. The Utah Highway Patrol blocked traffic from the area 100 miles east of Salt Lake City, Minnick said.

Authorities said most of the evacuees went to homes of friends or relatives.

Ohio paper publishes new Hitler photos

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio — Previously unpublished photographs of Adolf Hitler with his inner circle at his mountain retreat near the Austrian-Germany border in the 1930s appeared Sunday in the Youngstown Vindicator.

The photographs came from a roll of film that a Youngstown man took from an abandoned house near Kufstein, Austria, about 40 miles from Obersalzberg, in May 1945 as his tank battalion made its way toward Munich, the newspaper said.

The soldier, Paul N. Romack, mailed the film home and had it developed when he returned from the war, the Vindicator said. But he stored the pictures because he said at that time, post-World War II America had no interest in the German war leader, he told the newspaper.

Romack offered the pictures to the Vindicator after reading stories recently about other rare pictures of Hitler.

Eleven of the 21 pictures on the roll were printed for the first time Sunday, the Vindicator said. Hitler is in four of the pictures. In one of them, Hitler is leading a group of people in an outing on a mountain path. In another, he stands arm-in-arm with an unidentified woman looking at a mountain vista.

In a copyright story accompanying the pictures, Charles W. Sydnor Jr., a historian of the Third Reich, said the photographs were taken by someone other than Hitler's chief photographer soon after the Nazi leader came to power.

"The overwhelming weight of the internal evidence in the photographs suggests... that they were taken in and around Hitler's residence, then still known as Haus Wachenfeld, over a period of perhaps several days during the summer of 1933 — six months after Hitler came to power," Sydnor wrote.

U.S. prison population rises 8.6 percent

WASHINGTON — The U.S. prison population increased 8.6 percent in 1986 with the Western states reporting the largest gains, the Justice Department reported Sunday.

The department's Bureau of Justice Statistics said the number of convicts in federal and state prisons reached 546,659, including 26,610 women, an increase of 8.6 percent over the 1985 total of 503,271.

Prison populations in the 13-state Western region increased by 13.9 percent, the bureau said. This compared with 8.8 percent in the Northeast, 7.7 percent in the Midwest and 6.3 percent in the South.

States with the greatest increases included Nevada, with 19.5 percent; California, 18.7 percent; Michigan and New Hampshire, 16.8 percent; and Oklahoma, 15.2 percent.

Seven states reported drops in prison populations, led by West Virginia with a 14.1 percent decrease, followed by Washington state with 4.4 percent; Montana, 1.6 percent; Iowa, 1.9 percent; North Dakota and South Dakota, 0.2 percent; and Vermont, 0.1 percent, representing a one-prisoner decline from 677 to 676.

The number of women convicts increased by 15.1 percent last year, a rate higher than that of men prisoners.

Citing overcrowded prison facilities, the bureau said state prisons last year were operating at between 127 percent and 159 percent of their capacity and that 17 states at the end of 1986 held 13,770 prisoners in local jails instead of prisons.

Hart scandal 'changed rules'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gary Hart's fall from grace because of reports of womanizing has prompted politicians to examine their professional relationships with women, a Hart supporter said Sunday.

"The sense on the floor of the Congress this week is that all rules have changed and all bets are off, that relationships are going to be changed for better or for worse and people, sadly I think, are going to hesitate in their professional relationships with women on their staffs, women who work on their campaigns," said Rep. Robert Torricelli, D-N.J.

"There's going to be a caution that is not good for getting women involved in public life."

Torricelli's was one of many assessments made on network news programs Sunday of Hart's brief campaign, which was aborted following reports he had spent time with women while his wife was away.

THERE WAS GENERAL consensus that with Hart out of the race, the battle for the Democratic nomination is wide open.

Former National Democratic Chairman Robert Strauss said on NBC's "Meet the Press" that the Democratic nomination "is wide open," but Jesse Jackson "is well ahead."

"Out of this group will come the new leadership for the next 50 years in this country and it will be a Democrat who will be the next president of this country," Strauss said.

"I think this race is wide open," said declared candidate Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., on NBC. "I think the front-runner is probably undecided."

Jackson, who has yet to announce his candidacy, disagreed on NBC that he is now the front-runner. "I'm going to keep my eyes on the prize," Jackson said. "We lost Gary Hart, unfortunately, but we have not lost his direction. . . . I would struggle to keep his direction alive."

Anonymous caller alerted newspaper to relationship

MIAMI (UPI) — The anonymous tipster whose call to The Miami Herald touched off the newspaper's investigation of Gary Hart described herself as a friend of Donna Rice and a liberal Democrat, the newspaper reported Sunday.

The caller told the Herald she blew the whistle because, "We don't need another president who lies like that."

The woman first telephoned Herald Political Editor Tom Fiedler on April 27, the day the newspaper ran a story about the Hart campaign.

"You know, you said in the paper that there were rumors that Gary Hart is a womanizer? Those aren't rumors," the caller said.

"Gary Hart is having an affair with a friend of mine," she said, leveling a charge both Hart and Rice have denied.

THE WOMAN ASKED to remain anonymous, and Fiedler told her he saw no need to learn her name if she gave him information that he could confirm independently, the newspaper said.

The woman called back about 10:30 the next morning and talked for 90 minutes.

She said she was a "liberal Democrat" but couldn't tolerate someone who would say one thing publicly and do another privately. She said the nation had just seen that happen with President Ronald Reagan and the Iranian arms sales.

She placed Hart and an "older man named Bill who reporter David Broder said on CBS that some of Hart's supporters in New Hampshire probably would work for Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, but others would split their allegiances.

said he was Hart's lawyer" — apparently referring to Bill Broadhurst — at a yacht party several weeks ago with about 50 actors, models and musicians.

"They weren't the kind of people you would think a presidential candidate would want to be around," the caller said, admitting that she was among them.

THE CALLER SAID Hart was initially attracted to her but she rebuffed him, disgusted by his demeanor, the report said, but her friend seemed fascinated by him.

"They spent a lot of time together that day, and when he left she gave him her phone number," the caller said.

Hart later called and invited the friend out on a cruise, she said. They stopped in a port overnight, but the caller didn't know where. She said her friend was enthralled with Hart and displayed pictures of them together at the port.

She offered to sell pictures of the two together, but Fiedler declined, saying the pictures would not prove anything, The Herald said.

The caller said Hart telephoned her friend from campaign stops in Georgia, Alabama and Kansas, and invited the friend to spend the coming weekend with him at his Washington townhouse, where they were to meet Friday night.

The caller suggested Fiedler talk to the friend.

Torricelli said the "strength of each of the (Democratic) candidates will be reinforced" but that much of Hart's support would go to Dukakis, Gephardt and Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware.

As for the question of morality, A.M. Rosenthal of The New York Times told NBC, "I think that the issue is not what you cover now, but how you cover it," adding, "I would never have lurked around in the bushes . . . and never would have asked a reporter to do what I wouldn't do."

Gephardt, asked if he would answer if asked if he had ever committed adultery, as Hart was, said, "I'm going to deal with it. When you run for public office in this country, especially for the presidency, you climb into a goldfish bowl."

JACKSON SAID the question put to Hart "was across the line."

But Jackson added, "When we hear these rumors and historical documentation about Jefferson, Washington, Eisenhower and Kennedy, I'm just glad we did not lose their public service on that issue alone."

Torricelli said, "I think if someone runs for president there's the understanding that every page of their life is going to be open. But, clearly in this instance the rules have changed. They were changed because Gary Hart invited it because of questions about his behavior in the past, but nevertheless, we have really turned a new corner here. . . . It has gone far and I think there is going to be a price in American politics for it."

Charles Manatt, co-chairman of the Hart Presidential Campaign Committee, said on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley" that he still believes Hart would have made a good president.

MANATT TERMED Hart's actions "reckless," but said of the media, "The stakeout and invasion of personal privacy, when you've got somebody's individual residence under scrutiny, I find that to be very offensive."

Biden, also appearing on ABC with Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., agreed with Manatt, saying the media "got a little out of hand."

Missing body clouds decision

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — Jurors who convicted Joe Hunt, founder of the Billionaire Boys Club, of killing a Beverly Hills con man now must decide whether to recommend he die for the crime even though the victim's body was never found.

When the penalty phase of Hunt's trial begins Monday, the prosecutor will argue that Hunt should be sent to San Quentin's death row to await his turn in the gas chamber.

Defense lawyers will counter that the 27-year-old Hunt, who founded an investment bank trust and social club called the Billionaire Boys Club, should live, though imprisoned for life without chance of parole.

Hunt, who lured to the BBC the sons of some of Southern California's wealthiest families, could earn the dubious distinction of becoming the first person in memory to receive a death sentence from a Los Angeles County jury in a murder case in which the victim was never recovered.

Spokesmen for the district attorney's office recalled that L. Ewing Scott was given life in prison 30 years ago for killing his wealthy wife in another celebrated Los Angeles County case in which the victim's body was not found.

ALTHOUGH A GAG order prevents the lawyers from discussing their strategies, defense lawyers Arthur Barends and Richard Chier are expected to argue Hunt's life should be spared if the body of victim Ron Levin is not found.

Conversely, Deputy District Attorney Fred Wapner may remind the jurors that in convicting Hunt three weeks ago they accepted that Levin, beyond a reasonable doubt, has been dead for nearly three years.

Wapner also may tell the jury about charges pending in Northern California against Hunt and two other BBC members, Ben Dosti and Reza Eslamnia, for the murder of Eslamnia's father, Hedayat Eslamnia.

Superior Court Judge Laurence J. Rittenband will formally decide Hunt's fate several weeks after the jury makes its recommendation.

Reagan lauds black strides

TUSKEGEE, Ala. (UPI) — President Ronald Reagan told graduating seniors at one of the nation's oldest black colleges Sunday that his administration is "moving aggressively" in "preparing the ground for black economic independence in the technological era."

On a Mother's Day swing through the South, Reagan used a commencement address at Tuskegee University to pay tribute to the strides black Americans have made in fields ranging from medicine and aviation to athletics and the arts.

Reagan's speech to some 400 graduating seniors, their families and members of the Tuskegee faculty was preceded by dedication of the General "Chappie" James Center for Aerospace Science and Health Education, named for the Tuskegee-educated aviator, the first — and only — black four-star general in the Air Force.

In his prepared remarks to the graduates, Reagan said that because of decades of racial inequality, "America often isn't aware of what it is gaining by having opened doors that were long closed" to blacks.

"IF THERE IS any lesson now being learned, it is that there is a relationship between human freedom and the progress of man," he said. "The discrimination and prohibitions suffered by minorities in this country were undoubtedly some of the greatest impediments to the forward thrust of our nation."

Reagan singled out black physicians, scientists and engineers for praise in an upbeat message delivered on the grounds of the one-time cotton plantation founded in 1881 by Booker T. Washington as an institution to provide vocational training to newly freed slaves.

Reagan painted a bright economic outlook, looking ahead to "a new era of freedom and progress." While conceding black unemployment remains "far too high," he said overall employment is up and asserted one of every seven jobs created during his presidency has gone to blacks.

"OUR ADMINISTRATION is moving aggressively in a number of fronts," Reagan said. "We have an agenda aimed not only at overcoming the problems of today, but also preparing the ground for black economic independence in the technological era we are entering."

On the campus where the nation's first black fighter pilots — the "Tuskegee Airmen" — were trained during World War II, Reagan highlighted the modern-day military, declaring the armed forces to be "one of the most successfully integrated institutions in the country — an open door of opportunity to all citizens."

Reagan, whose civil rights record has been criticized by black leaders, lauded "the outstanding leadership of individuals like Dr. Martin Luther King" in bringing about "social progress that enormously strengthened the moral foundation of the United States."

At the conclusion of his speech, Reagan was to fly to Pope Air Force Base in North Carolina for a brief appearance with comedian Bob Hope, who was taping a salute to the Air Force on its 40th birthday. Hope was also celebrating a birthday Sunday, his 84th.

Explosion ends faulty test launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — A Polaris missile test fired from a submerged British nuclear submarine malfunctioned Sunday less than two minutes after launch and was blown up by remote control in an explosion that produced a spectacular shower of flaming debris.

A second missile launched from the HMS Repulse less than two hours later was successful, officials said.

Cmdr. Walter Clark of the U.S. Naval Ordnance Test Unit based at Cape Canaveral said the first solid-fuel missile was launched at 5:45 a.m. while the Repulse was cruising submerged about 30 miles off the Florida coast.

Polaris missiles are propelled to the surface by compressed steam in the submarine's launch tube and the first stage motor ignites after it has cleared the surface.

CLARK SAID range safety officers at Patrick Air Force Base near the Kennedy Space Center radioed a self-destruct command to the climbing missile about one minute and 40 seconds after launch.

"From the data we could get, the missile strayed off course and the range had no alternative but to destroy it," he said. "In other words, the first stage motor could have continued to function but the missile would have been off course at that time and we want it to land in the impact area and not some other place."

British submarines frequently visit Cape Canaveral to carry out test firings along the Eastern Test Range, operated by the U.S. Air Force.

A witness aboard the tracking vessel USNS Range Sentinel said the 32-foot Polaris A-3 missile had disappeared into thick cloud cover when the malfunction occurred. Observers on the Range Sentinel then saw a "trail of flames" as chunks of burning propellant tumbled through the clouds and into the ocean.

65 mph interstate speed limit awaits Branstad's signature

DES MOINES (UPI) — Iowa moved one signature away from a new 65 mph speed limit on rural interstates during the weekend when the proposal won final approval in the House and was sent to Gov. Terry Branstad.

Aides to Branstad said he will sign the bill, despite a provision he opposes that says insurance companies cannot use minor speeding violations to raise policyholders' insurance rates.

"I'm sure he will sign it," said David Roederer, Branstad's top legislative liaison.

Dick Vohs, the governor's press secretary, said the state does not want to pay workers overtime to post the speed-limit signs over the weekend, but the new law could be in effect early next week.

REP. DEO KOENIGS, D-McIntire, chairman of the House Transportation Committee, said Saturday the compromise approved by the Legislature is a good one.

It includes a slightly increased schedule of fines for violations in 65 mph zones and makes no changes in the state's current seat belt law.

"Clearly, Iowans want to drive 65 and most of us believe there is no reason they should not," Koenigs said.

"We are sending two messages — yes, it is okay to drive 65, but it is not okay to drive 75," he said.

People who drive as much as 5 miles per hour over the limit in a 65 mph zone would be subject to the normal $10 fine; however, the fines become steeper as the violation becomes greater — about $3 per mile — so that 80 mph is punishable by $40. In other zones, a violation of 15 mph is subject to a $30 fine.

Sen. Joe Coleman, D-Clare, launched a petition effort to repeal the state's mandatory seat belt law in January and delayed negotiations on the new speed limit by demanding the repeal be included in the 65 mph bill.

LAWMAKERS AGREED to a bill without seat belt language when House members accepted an amendment by Sen. Wally Horn, D-Cedar Rapids, designed to prevent minor speeding violations from boosting insurance rates. Koenigs said most lawmakers opposed repealing the state's mandatory seat-belt law because it has been in effect only since Jan. 1 and should be given more time to become accepted. He said it would have been irresponsible to repeal the law.

The new 65 mph speed limit will not go into effect until new signs are posted on the interstates outside of urban areas. State transportation officials said that should not take more than one day.

Lawmakers haggle over pay increase

DES MOINES (UPI) — State lawmakers would receive a 29 percent increase in annual salary and expenses effective 1989, their first pay hike in four years, under a bill the Iowa Legislature sent to Gov. Terry Branstad.

In addition to boosting legislators' annual salaries to $16,600, the measure passed Saturday also would increase Branstad's salary about 10 percent to $70,000. It received final approval in the House on a 52-42 vote.

Critics said the pay raise is indefensible at a time the state is facing financial difficulties.

Backers of the improved salaries argued they are necessary to maintain and recruit quality candidates from a variety of financial backgrounds.

"I don't want to return to the situation we had a long time ago when the only people who could serve were ones who could afford it or were using it as a stepping stone for higher office," said Rep. Tom Jochum, D-Dubuque, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

"WE SHOULD HAVE a legislature that reflects the diversity of the state," he said.

Jochum also said he voted for the measure because lawmakers have not received a pay hike since 1985 and because the job is worth the $16,600.

"If we're going to attempt and keep quality people we are going to have to have a salary that reflects the responsibility of the job and also recognizes we have to take time away from our business or occupation," Jochum said.

House Minority Leader Del Stromer, R-Garner, said lawmakers already are paid enough.

"The increase is probably a lot more than most citizens of Iowa will receive during that same four-year period," he said.

"It also will tend to take us away from the concept of a citizens' legislature because the salary will be high enough that you probably don't need another job to make a living," Stromer said.

REP. DAVID TABOR, D-Baldwin, said he voted against the bill, but thinks legislators deserve better pay.

"I just get disgusted. In the five years I've been here we always have to turn it into such a political fiasco," Tabor said.

"We can't ever deal with it on an annual or semi-annual salary increase so every four years we always have to play catch up and it looks like we are getting a lot bigger increase," he said.

Along with the salary increase, legislators' daily expense reimbursements would climb from $50 to $73 per day.

Iowa bill reinforces civil rights

DES MOINES (UPI) — The Iowa Legislature sent Gov. Terry Branstad a measure that backers said would make Iowa one of the most progressive states in the nation when it comes to civil rights laws.

The bill, adopted Saturday 27-16 in the Senate and 57-41 in the House, would affect the elderly, the handicapped, employers and minorities.

Lawmakers said it would bring Iowa's laws on mandatory retirement in conformance with federal laws by prohibiting most public and private employers from forcing people to retire when they reach age 70.

The measure, however, would not apply to people working in policy-making positions and those who earn more than $45,000 a year. In addition, professors who have been tenured at Iowa's Board of Regents institutions would not be covered under the change.

The bill would also allow people to seek damages if they are discriminated against based on whom they associate with.

SEN. THOMAS MANN, D-Des Moines, said if, for instance, a white female tenant in an apartment complex had been visited by a black man and the landlord didn't like it and threatened to throw the woman out, the woman could sue the landlord if she could prove she was discriminated against.

Mann, also former executive director of the Iowa Civil Rights Commission, said the measure will also add new language to the code to require employers to make "reasonable accommodations" for the handicapped.

He added the bill strengthens language in the code to mandate changes be made in the workplace for the handicapped unless it would cause an "undue hardship" on the employer.

Under the measure, district courts would also be given the authority to award punitive damages in civil rights cases if the plaintiff can prove the action was a result of malice or willful disregard for the law, Mann said.

Theft may hamper Filipino elections

MANILA, Philippines (UPI)—A senior election official Sunday warned of "attempts all over the country" to steal ballots and returns when Filipinos vote Monday in the first congressional elections in 15 years.

National Election Commission Chairman Ramon Felipe said the commission expects 80 percent of the nation's 26 million voters to cast ballots and that counting will probably take at least a week.

Felipe said in a briefing that there were 84 candidates for the 24-seat Senate and 1,899 people running for the 200-member House of Representatives in the first congressional elections since ousted President Ferdinand Marcos imposed martial law in 1972.

"There will be attempts all over the country to steal the official forms, the ballots, the official returns," said Felipe. He said 5,700 ballots were stolen from the office of a provincial treasurer Saturday night in Tadian, 150 miles north of Manila.

"WE HAVE WARNED our personnel to be on the watch ... to guard these forms very well," Felipe said.

Philippine elections historically have been marred by violence and fraud, particularly under Marcos. The February fraud-marred presidential contest in February 1986 ignited the revolt that drove Marcos into exile.

But Marcos said Sunday the government of President Corason Aquino probably will "coerce and intimidate" voters

Sweep expected for Aquino

MANILA, Philippines (UPI)—The only real question to be answered by the Philippine congressional elections Monday is what opposition — if any — will emerge to challenge the highly popular President Corazon Aquino.

Aquino, who has postponed her legislative program for more than a year until it could be brought before a constitutionally elected body, has appealed at every campaign stop for a clean sweep of the reconstructed Senate by her 24 hand-picked candidates.

Her insistence is sparked by fears that many voters will fail to fill in all 24 senatorial blanks on their ballots, or even remember 24 names, leaving the last dozen seats and the balance of power up for grabs.

The peculiar voting system, in which all Senate candidates will be elected nationwide, has also magnified the importance of name recognition, enhancing the prospects of a batch of movie stars, reconstructed Marcos cronies and relatives of national figures.

NEVERTHELESS, THERE is little doubt the Aquino team will emerge in firm control of the Senate and the 200-seat House of Representatives, where seats will be filled on a district basis and local concerns weigh more heavily.

Juan Ponce Enrile, the conservative former defense minister fired by Aquino after his aides were implicated in an abortive coup, appeared set to assume the cloak of opposition leader after a slick, well-financed campaign on behalf of his Grand Alliance for

Analysis

Democracy.

Enrile, a key figure in the February 1986 events that brought Aquino to power, has seen a number of people jump to his bandwagon from the sinking ship of former president Ferdinand Marcos' New Society Movement.

Among them was Arturo Tolentino, architect of last July's comical Manila Hotel coup bid, who was given a strong chance with name recognition being his most important asset.

ENRILE HAS GAINED ground in the closing weeks of the two-month campaign by arguing the rebuilt Congress, which was disbanded by Marcos in 1972, needs a vibrant opposition to ensure the proper functioning of democracy.

Aquino replied at her final campaign appearances with scathing sarcasm, pointing to the same candidates' behavior under Marcos' martial law administration. "Since when did they become our guardians for democracy?" she asked at her last campaign rally in Manila. "Scrutinize their records, what they did before and what they are saying now. If it is different, then you should start to get nervous."

The greatest uncertainty lay in the prospects of candidates grouped around Bernabe Buscayno, who founded the communist New People's Army in 1968 and now hopes to establish a constitutional leftist opposition.

in Monday's congressional elections.

In an election eve radio news conference, Marcos said the Philippines could be ripped apart by civil war if Aquino cheated in the country's first free elections since Marcos imposed martial law in 1972.

Marcos told his supporters to "take all precautions against the very probable act on the part of the Aquino government to cheat, to bribe, to coerce and intimidate."

FELIPE SAID that in pre-election violence Sunday morning, gunmen fired into the house of Vicente Geroche, the election commission's assistant executive director for operations, but no one was injured.

Aquino's slate of candidates was expected to take firm control of the crucial Senate. Forecasts showed the best of the opposition — mostly former Marcos supporters — could expect to take six or seven seats.

The U.S.-style Congress convenes in July and is seen as the last step in restoring full democracy to the nation after 20 years of Marcos rule. Aquino spent two months campaigning for her senatorial slate.

Senate support is vital for passage of her legislative package, which she postponed pending the elections. The package is expected to include land and economic reforms — factors in subduing the 18-year-old communist insurgency.

Senate approval is also necessary to renew the treaty allowing U.S. military bases in the Philippines when it expires in 1991.

Felipe said 14 provinces and districts in the country were placed under control of the commission which will "dictate to the ... authorities how to execute their duties to ensure free, honest, clean and credible elections."

He said four military brigades were deployed in four provinces of the rebellion-torn southern island of Mindanao, site of a 14-year-old Moslem secessionist war.

Barbie trial sparks turmoil

LYON, France (UPI)—Police increased security around World War II monuments against neo-Nazi vandalism Sunday, one day before Klaus Barbie goes on trial on charges of murdering, torturing and deporting Jews and Resistance fighters as Lyon's Gestapo chief.

Former Resistance fighters and lawyers for many of the more than 60 civil parties to the case against Barbie paid homage to the thousands of Jews and Resistance fighters that Barbie was accused of ordering deported to Nazi death camps.

A Lyon police spokesman said the increased security around war monuments became necessary after about 40 "young neo-Nazis" with shaven heads spray-painted racist slogans Saturday on the walls of the offices of an Arab youth organization and scattered photos of Barbie.

"THESE INCIDENTS HAVE prompted us to increase our points of surveillance," the police spokesman said.

Barbie, 73, is going on trial four years after he was extradited from his exile home in Bolivia to face charges of the murder, torture and deportation to death camps of about 800 Jews and French Resistance fighters.

The following is a chronology of important events that led to Klaus Barbie's trial:

- November 1942: SS Lt. Klaus Barbie is posted to Lyon, center of the French Resistance, as head of Gestapo in the city.
- June 1943: Barbie arrests Jean Moulin, who had been sent by Gen. Charles de Gaulle to unify the French Resistance. Moulin dies after torture, allegedly inflicted by Barbie himself.
- 1944: Lyon is liberated. French government hunts Barbie but he is protected by the Americans and escapes to South America in 1951.
- 1952 and 1954: Barbie is convicted in French courts for war crimes, massacres and torture of Resistance fighters. He is condemned to death twice in absentia. The convictions are annulled by Sources at St. Joseph prison said Barbie, despite undergoing a prostate operation three months ago, was able and anxious to begin the trial, which is expected to last at least seven weeks.

The event, probably the last major Nazi war crimes trial, will unfold in a courthouse renovated to hold about 700 people, most of them journalists, and protected by 300 police officers.

National polls say the majority of the French want the trial to take place as a lesson against Nazi horrors — despite the ugly questions it might raise about widespread French collaboration with their Nazi occupiers.

- 1972: Nazi hunter Beate Klarsfeld, German protestant married to a French Jewish lawyer, begins campaign in Bolivia to get Barbie extradited.
- Feb. 5, 1983: Bolivia extradites Barbie to France.
- July 1985: The French investigating judge sends the case to the public prosecutor. Trial is expected in 1985.
- August 1985: Defense Justice Ministry fails to supply the official list of those deported from Montluc prison in August 1944. The trial is delayed.
- February 1987: Trial date of May 11 announced and funds released to renovate courtroom. Barbie undergoes emergency prostate operation but judged fit to stand trial.

IF CONVICTED, BARBIE faces life in the prison where he spends his days reading Homer and watching television. France banned the death penalty in 1981.

Barbie's lawyer, Jacques Verges, in addition to exposing French collaboration, intends to exploit the torture charges by pointing out France's extensive use of torture during the Algerian war.

"I will plead my client not guilty," Verges said. "I'm not saying Barbie did nothing in the struggle against the Resistance. I don't know exactly what he did. But what I do know is that he did not do what he is being accused of today."

Verges said pre-trial publicity has hurt his case, complaining that many witnesses have already told their stories to the press and that some Jewish survivors of concentration camps have been called to testify although they had nothing to do with Barbie.

"This is being prepared like a lynching," he said.

PROSECUTING LAWYERS hope to stifle Verges' attacks on the French collaboration.

To this end, Serges Klarsfeld, a French Jew who with his wife hunted down Barbie in Bolivia in 1972, released a document on Sunday he said proved that a senior French official did not help Barbie in his 1951 escape to South America out of U.S.-occupied Germany.

China blaze leaves 114 dead, guts city

BEIJING (UPI)—Thousands of troops Sunday brought under partial control a raging forest fire that has killed at least 114 people and was threatening a northeast China city. Officials said the death toll was likely to rise.

The fire, fueled by high winds spreading to dry mountain grasslands, has gutted a town that once was home to 20,000 people and has forced at least 30,000 others to flee their homes, officials said.

More than 10,000 troops, who have battled the flames for five days, have partially brought the blaze under control, the radio report said.

The blaze began Wednesday in the forest-covered Daxingan mountain range in Heilongjiang Province, about 800 miles northeast of Beijing, near the Soviet border. Winter and spring are normally times of low rainfall in northeast China.

Troops dug three ditches around Tahe and are "doing their utmost" to defend the town of 100,000 people, the broadcast said. Officials were not aware of any evacuation in Tahe.

The fire had killed at least 114 people and seriously injured 96, officials said. Many others were reported missing.

An official at the state-run China News Service said: "We expect the death toll to increase as things become clearer," he said.

Students bypass counseling despite finals-week tension

By John Bartenhagen
Staff Writer

With the onset of finals week, stress levels among UI students reach the high point of the semester.

Although many UI students suffer from test anxiety, the number of students seeking treatment through University Counseling Services has decreased in the past two weeks, UCS Counselor Carl Burns said Friday.

"As finals week draws near, the students generally take less time for other things, even helpful things like counseling," he said.

According to UCS staff psychologists, some anxiety before a test is normal and necessary for good performance. It is only when anxiety impairs performance that a problem exists.

In treating test anxiety, Burns said UCS counselors make an assessment of the individual's instances of test anxiety to determine the severity of the problem.

The next step is to introduce the student to several stress management techniques, Burns said.

"Everyone has had an experience at the blackboard where they didn't have the slightest idea of how to solve a math problem. It doesn't take too many episodes like that to ruin someone's confidence," says counselor Carl Burns.

WAYS OF REDUCING test anxiety are based on changing the student's attitude and self-image. Those methods include relaxation techniques, the use of positive imagery, cognitive coping strategies to change thoughts the student may have about an upcoming test, and improving studying techniques.

Burns said one of the most common causes of test anxiety is a feeling of incompetence.

"People tend to compare themselves to high-achieving peers," he said. "It isn't an accurate form of self-evaluation, but it's very common."

"ONE OF THE REASONS for high degrees of anxiety in math tests is that in math there is a frequent perception that there is a right answer, especially in lower-level math," Burns added. "Everyone has had an experience at the blackboard where they didn't have the slightest idea of how to solve a math problem. It doesn't take too many episodes like that to ruin someone's confidence," he said.

Some researchers believe women are more likely than men to experience test anxiety, Burns said. This is due to the way many women are socialized, rather than any differences in ability.

"Women tend to have taken less math courses by the time they reach college," Burns said. "Accordingly, not only do they have less math background, they have less confidence in the subject."

osal, Branstad said, would have left the state with too much debt.

Lawmakers said aides to Branstad pledged he will support the bill because they struck an additional $750,000 that was included when lawmakers first redrafted the bill. The funds were cut from the six projects at ISU.

Branstad also said he opposed a provision banning classified research at any of the state's universities, a proposal designed to block Star Wars research at the Laser Center.

Lawmakers said the regents will decide how to distribute the $37.5 million for the projects, which also include the development of a research park, a veterinary medicine research laboratory and improvements at industrial education buildings.

The bill also does not contain language relating to classified research, lawmakers said.

"The projects we list here are adequately funded and we're very close to what the governor had recommended," said Sen. Rich Varn, D-Solon, floor manager of the bill. "We think this is a good compromise."

Varn said the legislature's bonding bill was $3 million more than the governor recommended earlier this year. He said lawmakers added the funds for UNI, which they believe the governor ignored when he recommended the bonding projects.

Hawks lose three of four but still make playoffs

By Steve Williams
Assistant Sports Editor

The Iowa baseball team nearly gave away its chance for a Big Ten playoff berth this weekend, losing three of four games to Western Division champion Minnesota at the Iowa Baseball Diamond.

But thanks to Northwestern's 5-0 win over Illinois Sunday, the Hawkeyes will be going via the back door.

The Hawkeyes split the first of two doubleheaders with the Gophers Friday losing 4-2 and winning 6-3 behind the three home run, five RBI performance of John Kuester, who had a two-run blast in the first game as well.

But Saturday, Kuester's bat cooled and so did Iowa as Steve Fregin sealed the Big Ten title in the first game with a one-hitter and Minnesota bats collected 16 hits in the second game for a 3-0, 15-8 sweep.

IOWA, NOW 28-26 overall and 9-7 in the conference, will play Eastern Division champion Michigan at Ann Arbor in the first round of the Big Ten tournament and Minnesota will take on Purdue, the second place team in the East.

"Iowa has a good ball club and are capable of beating anyone in the conference," Minnesota Coach John Anderson said after Saturday's wins. "But today we had a combination of good pitching and good defense and that will win a lot of ball games."

Minnesota jumped on the Hawkeyes early in each of Saturday's games. In the first game, four walks by Cal Eldred and a single by Mike Halloran were enough to give the Gophers a 2-0 lead. And even though Minnesota stranded 10 runners, seven in scoring position, Iowa wasn't doing anything in its half of each inning and the first inning burst was more than enough.

"THAT WAS A heckuva of a first game," Iowa Coach Duane Banks said. "Even though Cal lost, he pitched a great game. Fregin's performance was just a little better."

Jason Jones broke up Fregin's no-hitter in the top of the fifth, sending the ball bouncing up the middle past Fregin's out-

Iowa shortstop Randy Frakes, a senior from Des Moines, takes to the outfield to bring in a fly ball, despite a collision course with teammate Luis Ramirez Saturday against Big Ten rival Minnesota.

Baseball

stretched glove. But Iowa's rally was halted one pitch later as Gary Ellis' ground ball to third ignited a 5-4-3 double play that broke the Hawkeyes' back.

The second appeared as if it would go the same way when the Gophers sent ace Mike Pavelka to the hill sporting a 0.00 ERA in Big Ten play.

But Randy Frakes sent Pavelka's ERA through the ceiling in the fourth inning with a three-run home run scoring Ellis and Brian Wujcik, making the score 5-3.

UNFORTUNATELY, WHILE Hawkeye bats were coming to life, the Hawkeyes' gloves were falling asleep. With two outs in the top of the fifth, Jay Kvasnicka hit a grounder to Jones at first. John DeJard, relieving starter Mark Dekinger, came over to cover the bag, but Jones' throw sailed past DeJard's glove and off the Iowa dugout.

Six runs later the inning was over and so were Iowa's hopes of a split.

"We wanted to be able to control our own destiny by winning one game Saturday, but we just couldn't do anything defensively," Banks said.

In all, there were five Hawkeye errors and not even Frakes' two home run and five RBI performance, nor Keith Noreen's four for five effort could bring Iowa back.

Iowa's Luis Ramirez, who led the Big Ten with a .401 average was rewarded with the Bob Oldis Memorial Most Valuable Player award between games Saturday.

Ramirez, a junior from Puerto Rico, finished the season with a .365 average overall.

Hawkeyes end Big Ten meet close to cellar

Sophomore Amy Butzer shot a final round 80 Sunday, finishing seventh overall to help the Iowa women's golf team finish seventh at the Big Ten Championships.

It was sort of a disappointment for the Hawkeyes, who were in contention for as good as fourth place after 54 holes of the 72-hole tournament at Forest Akers Golf Course in East Lansing, Mich.

Iowa was one stroke behind fourth-place Ohio State after three rounds, posting rounds of 318, 322 and 318. But a final round 331 pushed Iowa away from fourth-place hopes.

"I think part of it was a little fatigue," Iowa women's golf Coach Diane Thomason said, adding that a number of factors could have led to the seventh-place finish.

"EVERYBODY CAN DRAW their own conclusion," Thomason said.

Indiana used three golfers among the top five in scoring to win its second consecutive Big Ten Championship.

The Hoosiers had a 72-hole total of 1,211, defeating Michigan State by 30 strokes and Minnesota by 40.

Ohio State followed with 1,265 and Purdue with 1,276. Illinois placed sixth with a 1,287, followed by Iowa at 1,289, Wisconsin at 1,309 and Michigan at 1,332.

Indiana's Michele Redman carded a 76 in the final round to capture the individual medalist honors with a 297. Defending champion Sara DeKraay of Indiana and Kelly Holland of Michigan State both hit 74s in the final round to tie for second at 303.

Tracy Chapman of Indiana finished fourth with a 304 and Kate Hughes of Minnesota was fifth with a 305.

THOMASON SAID IT was a good tournament for her young Hawkeyes. Along with Butzer's consistent tournament, the Iowa mentor said Jeannine Gibson and Sarah Ward helped out the Hawkeyes.

Gibson was second for the Hawkeyes with a 72-hole score of 323. Ward, the Hawkeyes' No. 6 player who finished with a 365 overall, turned in an 83 after the first round, a score which was counted in Iowa's score.

"Everybody helped contribute," Thomason said. In team scoring, the best four of six scores are counted towards the team score in each 18-hole round. Iowa used the scores of all six of its players, including Butzer, Gibson, Ward, Kelley Brooke (330), Justean Harsh (334) and Kris Heatherly (336).

Thomason said the play over the weekend should give the Hawkeyes some inspiration for the summer, knowing that the team, made up of four freshman and two sophomores this season, could compete with the best of the Big Ten.

Certainly the chance to finish fourth gave the Hawkeyes confidence.

"We were right in the thick of things," Thomason pointed out.

Now with the spring season over the team will look to the fall season for a chance to improve themselves further.

"We can only grow after this year," a pleased Thomason said.

Iowa rallies for 7th in conference meet

By Brad Zimanek
Sports Editor

A seventh-place finish at Big Ten Championships may be a disappointment for some Hawkeye teams, but the Iowa men's tennis team moved up a few notches in the league by virtue of that performance over the weekend.

Iowa Coach Steve Houghton's team finished the weekend with a 2-2 record while defeating both Northwestern and Wisconsin — two conference schools who defeated the Hawkeyes in the regular season. Iowa's two wins also doubled its regular season total of conference wins.

"It wouldn't be something to be proud of in this athletic department, but I'm pleased with our seventh-place finish," Houghton said. "We fought back this year and played at a great tournament, about the best we could have."

SUNDAY, THE Hawkeyes easily defeated the Badgers, a team that defeated Iowa 5-4 during the season, with victories coming from Martin Aguirre, Rudy Foo, Bryan Stokstad, Jay Maltby and Scott Schaffer.

Men's Tennis

Friday, the ninth-seeded Hawkeyes started the league championships with the Wildcats and easily posted a 5-1 win.

Between those two victories were two losses, one being a 6-0 manhandling by eventual conference champion Michigan. The Wolverines did not lose one Big Ten match all year.

SATURDAY, IOWA HAD a chance to move up a bracket into the field when they faced Purdue, the fifth-seeded team coming into the tournament.

After singles play the Boilermakers and the Hawkeyes were tied 3-3 before they lost at the No. 2 and No. 3 doubles' position to lose the competition 5-3.

"We had a chance to win after it was tied 3-3 after singles because Purdue had beaten us 8-1 during the year," Iowa Assistant Coach Rob Moellering said. "We just had some tough doubles matches."

Gambol notches only victory

By Dan Millea
Staff Writer

There were few surprises at the men's Big Ten Preview track meet in Iowa City Sunday. Illinois dominated, Purdue challenged and injuries again forced Iowa to use guerrilla tactics, scoring where they could.

The meet was not scored, but the Illini would have won easily if it had been. Illinois claimed first place in seven of the 16 events and added seven more second place finishes.

Men's Track

Purdue, competing without star hurdler Rod Woodson, took four firsts and five second places. Minnesota (three firsts, one second), Iowa (one first, two seconds) and Northwestern (one first, one second) were far back of the leaders.

THE HAWKEYES, WHO have been riddled with injury problems all season, were unable to enter some events and were below full strength in others.

Once again some individual performances were encouraging, but to be fully prepared for the conference meet May Iowa freshman David Brown took a not-so-refreshing plunge after jumping an obstacle in the 3,000-meter steeplechase Saturday.

22-23 in Iowa City. Coach Ted Wheeler said he needs more healthy bodies and improvement out of those who are healthy.

"In some areas we were competitive," Wheeler said. "If you look at who we ran, even though they may not have won, they showed us that they are capable of improving before Big Tens."

Five critical people are not currently competing for the Hawkeyes. Middle distance man Paul Steele, jumper Paul Jones and sprinter Curtis Chung are all injured. Jumper Quinn Early and sprinter Robert Smith have only recently begun working out after finishing spring football last month.

ALL FIVE ARE capable of scoring for Iowa at the Big Ten meet, and Early and Chung are returning champions. But Wheeler is unsure how many of the five will be ready by May 22.

Without those five Iowa's strength lies in the weight events. Chris Gambol breezed by the competition Sunday in the shot put, throwing for 57 feet, 6½ inches. Brian Kiser of Purdue was a distant second at 49-7. Andy Flaherty of Iowa was fifth with a 45-9 toss.

The top order was reversed in the discus where Gambol's throw of 166-1 was second to Kiser's 169 foot heave. Hawkeye Scott Joens was third with a throw of 163-7½.

In the high jump, Iowa took third and fourth with Pat Meade and K.P. Lansing each going six feet, nine inches.

On the track for Iowa, Dave Brown was fifth in the 3,000 meter steeplechase in 10:28.59. St. Clair Blackman was fifth in the 400 hurdles in 54.60. Curtis Chung took fourth in the 200 dash in 22.43 and the 1,600 meter relay team of Lansing, Blackman, Andy Wiese and Louis English was second in 3:18.81.

Andretti grabs pole position despite dangerous conditions

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Mario Andretti earned his first Indianapolis 500 pole position since 1967, overcoming treacherous conditions that overshadowed Saturday's first session of time trials for the May 24 race.

Gusting winds, a high temperature of 80 and an increasingly slick track cut speeds dramatically, creating the first non-record pole speed since 1981 and contributing to a severe crash involving Jim Crawford. Only 11 cars made the field Saturday, the fewest opening-day qualifiers since nine made it in 1981.

During its second qualifying attempt, Crawford's March-Buick went out of control and slammed head-on into the first-turn wall. Crawford suffered two broken ankles and was taken to Methodist Hospital in good condition. The crash was the 14th accident at the Speedway in eight days of action.

ANDRETTI DROVE HIS Cosworth-powered Lola chassis to a four-lap qualifying average of 215.390 mph. Andretti's fastest lap was 216.320 mph, putting him on the front row along with two-time winner Rick Mears and defending champion Bobby Rahal. "The way things have been going, I was just happy to get the car in," Andretti, who won his third straight pole of the Indy car season, said. He had set an unofficial Speedway record Thursday with a practice lap of 218.234 mph.

The fastest practicing cars in the track's history could not reach top speeds because of the heat, wind and oily track. Only five drivers completed attempts before the final 90 minutes of qualifying.

"When it's sunny, the blackness of the rubber draws heat," Andretti said and also noted Saturday's winds were worse than I have ever seen for qualifying," he said.

Mears averaged 211.467 mph in a 1986 March-Cosworth that ran out of gas seconds after becoming the day's first qualifier.

FOUR-TIME WINNER A.J. Foyt, 52, was fourth-fastest in qualifying for his 30th Indy 500.

"I'm thrilled to be starting up (toward) the front," Foyt said. "It makes a big difference. I'm starting with a bunch of my old compadres who know how to race. We've raced wheel-to-wheel before. I know how they drive."

Rahal averaged 213.316 mph in his Cosworth-powered Lola during a qualifying run that included a beach ball being thrown into the infield near the fourth turn.

"It's a little disturbing to see this thing rolling around on the inside of the corner when you're going 200 mph," Rahal said. "My next time around, I saw a guy coming out to get it and when he saw me coming, he got the hell out of there."

Paper and other debris were blown around the track and added to the rough conditions qualifier Johnny Rutherford said.

"THE TRASH WAS all over the race track. The trash was worse than I have ever seen for qualifying," he said.

Mears averaged 211.467 mph in a 1986 March-Cosworth that ran out of gas seconds after becoming the day's first qualifier.

Mears qualified driving a car that had been in a garage until Friday. The March chassis replaced a Penske chassis that proved uncompetitive after a week of testing. Team owner Roger Penske brought the chassis to the Speedway Friday from his Reading, Pa., headquarters and Mears had only hours to get the car to top speeds.

Hawkeyes display power in tune-up for Big Ten meet

By Scott Wingert
Staff Writer

The Iowa women's track team had its last tune-up for the Big Ten Championships May 23-24 when they hosted the Hawkeye Outdoor Open Track Meet Saturday at the Iowa Track.

No team scores were kept for the meet, but Iowa's Alycia Simpson was a double winner, edging Iowa State's Nancy Golie in the 400-meter dash in 56.05 seconds and winning the 200 dash in 25.51.

The Hawkeyes' Roxanne Reynolds won the 100 in 12.4, and Iowa's Becki Borg captured the triple jump, leaping 37-feet 11½ inches.

The Hawkeye relays also fared well, the 1,600 relay team of Janet Wodek, Sherri Hull, Jeanne Kruckeberg and Simpson winning the event in 3:52.7, and the 4x100-meter squad of Roxanne Reynolds, Lynn McMillan, Lisa Moats and Simpson victorious in 49.3.

THE HAWKEYES' Sherri Suppelsa won the 800-meter run in 2:16.8.

Kruckeberg, a freshman, also finished second in the 1,500-meter run, losing to world-class runner Nan Davis by six seconds. It was her first meeting with Davis, the wife of ex-Iowa wrestler Barry Davis.

"I was told she (Davis) would go out slower and come in faster," Kruckeberg said. "She's a great runner. It was a little too windy for me to run a fast race. I like hot weather."

Reynolds nipped three Minnesota runners for the 100 title. She said she thinks the Hawkeyes have an excellent chance to place high as the host school in the conference meet.

"EVERYONE'S HEALTHY. That's the main thing," Reynolds said. "We should do well. Hopefully, I can make it to the finals in the Big Tens. Anything can happen when you get to the finals."

Iowa Coach Jerry Hassard was pleased with the results, citing Simpson as giving a particularly good effort.

"Simpson has anchored us in so many different events," Hassard said. "This was a good meet for us. It gave the team an opportunity to compete in a lot of close races. I thought we performed well for being off for three weeks."

In addition to the winners, Iowa's Shelley Redies set a personal best in the shot put with a 43-11½ heave. Sara Joens also threw a season high 127-1 in the javelin to capture second in that event.

"We're hoping for a first division finish in the conference meet," Hassard said. "We're looking forward to having it at home. I think this meet came at a good time for us. It brought us back to a competitive level."

Kristiansen misses record

LONDON (UPI) — Hiromi Taniguchi became the second straight Japanese man to win the London Marathon Sunday and Ingrid Kristiansen won the women's race for the third time but failed to collect a $90,000 bonus by breaking her own world best mark.

Taniguchi, also winner of the Tokyo marathon three months ago, followed his compatriot Toshihiko Seko's victory in 1986 in the world's largest marathon. He jogged along easily among a leading group of six runners for more than 20 of the race's 26 miles.

Then Taniguchi and Moroccan national record holder Nechadi El Mostafa broke away. Taniguchi, 27, pulled into the clear in the final two miles to win comfortably in two hours, nine minutes and 43 seconds — well off Briton Steve Jones' course record of 2:08.16 set two years ago.

EL MOSTAFA, improving his personal best by more than four minutes, finished second in 2:10.09. Hugh Jones of Britain — the winner in 1982 and the pace-setter for most of the race — was third in 2:10.11. In the closely-bunched group behind Taniguchi, Italian Gianni Poli — winner of the New York marathon last year — was fourth in 2:10.15 and Geir Kvernmo of Norway was fifth in 2:10.17.

Kristiansen was aiming to become the first woman to run a marathon in under 2:20. She would have earned $120,000 if she broke the mark. Instead, she finished in 2:22.48. Kristiansen and Taniguchi earned $30,000 each for winning without breaking any records.

Hawkeyes finish regular season with sweep

By Scott Wingert Staff Writer

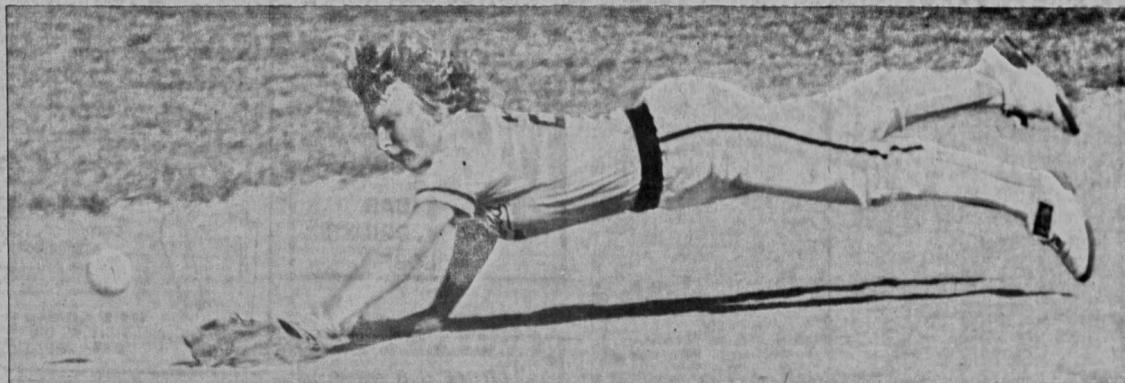

The Iowa softball squad closed out its regular season Saturday with yet another pair of dramatic finishes, squeaking out two games from Northern Illinois 4-3, 1-0.

Junior right-fielder Amy Drake smashed a triple to right-center field with two out in the bottom of the seventh inning of the second game to score sophomore shortstop Lynda Schlueter for the game's only run. Schlueter began the rally with a two-out single down the right field line.

"I was trying to be a little more patient," Drake said. "I had been swinging at balls a little too far inside and was just waiting for something up in the strike zone."

DRAKE'S SHOT MADE a winner of freshman Pam Brown, 11-7, who only yielded a two-out single to the Huskies' Laura Peterson in the top of the fifth. It was Brown's sixth victory in her last seven decisions.

"She really struggled at the beginning," Iowa Coach Ginny

Iowa shortstop Lynda Schlueter dives for a ground ball during the second game of a doubleheader Saturday against Northern Illinois.

The Hawkeyes won both contests, 4-3, 1-0, to end the season 29-24-1 while setting an Iowa record for the most wins in a season.

Softball

Parrish said. "Her defense pulled her out of some really tight spots. But she's going to be tough. For a freshman, she's done very well."

Iowa struck first in the opener when second baseman Carol Bruggeman singled home catcher Michelle Magyar in the bottom of the fourth. Magyar led off the inning with a double off the base of the fence in left-center field.

But the Huskies came storming back in their half of the fifth, scoring three runs off starter Tracy Langhurs on a leadoff walk and three consecutive base hits with two outs. Northern Illinois clung to its lead until the bottom of the seventh when the Hawkeyes started their rally.

BRUGGEMAN, WHO HAD three hits in the game, led off with a single, but was forced out at second on Jeannette Painovich's grounder to shortstop. Beth Kirchner and Cara Coughenour followed with singles, scoring Painovich and chasing starter Beth Schrader.

In the Iowa eighth, Bruggeman singled, advanced to second on an error, to third on a sacrifice and scored the winning run on Kirchner's squeeze bunt in front of the plate. The Hawkeye rally gave Langhurs her 12th victory of the year and her 31st of her four-year career.

"THE OFFENSE CAME through again," Langhurs said. "Pressure's fun. I told them it was just a game. Let's have fun. We always thought we could win."

With the victory, Iowa 29-24-1, keeps their hopes alive for a trip to the National Invitational Championship, a 16-team tournament held at Western Illinois in Macomb, Ill. After the 16 NCAA Tournament berths are announced today, the selections for that field should be known later in the day.

"I don't think we have a chance, but who knows," Parrish said. "It just depends how far they (the committee) want to go. There's some teams whose schools won't let them go because of travel or classes. We'll just have to sit back and wait."

Boston, Bird capture double-overtime win

United Press International

MILWAUKEE—Darren Daye scored four points in the second overtime and Larry Bird finished with 42 points Sunday to lead the Boston Celtics to a 138-137 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks and a 3-1 lead in their Eastern Conference semifinal series.

Daye had six points in the game, including two free throws in the second overtime to give the Celtics their 138-137 lead. The Bucks had a chance to win, but John Lucas missed a hurried shot in the final second.

After Dennis Johnson missed for the Celtics with eight seconds left, Lucas drove into the lane but lost the ball while trying to pass off. After a scramble in front of the basket, Lucas recovered the ball but his shot fell short of the basket.

Lucas' three-point shot had given the Bucks a 137-136 lead before Daye's two free throws.

Kevin McHale finished with 34 points for Boston but had to be helped off the court after the game, favoring his right leg. Terry Cummings led Milwaukee with 31 points, Sidney Moncrief had 22 and Paul Pressey 20.

The Celtics can win the best-of-seven series Wednesday night at Boston. Game 6, if necessary, will be Friday at Milwaukee and Game 7 is scheduled for Sunday in Boston.

Bird hit two three-point shots in the first overtime, the second giving Boston a 127-125 lead with 31 seconds left. Cummings hit an inside basket with 19 seconds left to tie the score 127-127. Fred Roberts missed a shot for Boston as time ran out of the first extra session.

Boston tied the score at 115-115 on two free throws by Robert Parish and a basket by Bird with 1:45 left in regulation. A drive by Dennis Johnson gave the Celtics a 117-115 lead with 1:05 left.

Danny Ainge then missed a three-pointer, but Pressey was called for traveling. With the clock winding down Johnson missed a shot and McHale was called for a loose ball foul with four seconds left in regulation.

Paul Mokeski, who had just two points on a pair of free throws in the second quarter, hit two free throws to tie the score 117-117 and send the game into overtime.

Milwaukee closed out the third period with a 10-4 run to lead 95-93 heading into the final period. Craig Hodges and Moncrief each had four points in the run for the Bucks.

The Bucks led 65-64 at halftime. Bird paced Boston with 21 first-half points. Cummings and Lucas led Milwaukee with 13 points apiece at the half. The largest lead held by either club in the game was a 20-14 advantage by Milwaukee in the opening quarter.

Boston, behind 14 points from Bird, led 32-31 after one quarter. Moncrief had 10 points and Lucas nine for Milwaukee in the first quarter.

NBA Playoffs

Detroit 89, Atlanta 88

PONTIAC, Mich. —Isiah Thomas' three-foot scoop layup with one second left Sunday gave the Detroit Pistons an 89-88 victory over the Atlanta Hawks and a 3-1 lead in their best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinal playoff series.

The Pistons can win the series Wednesday night in Game 5 at Atlanta. If not, Game 6 will be at the Pontiac Siverdome Friday night. Game 7, if necessary, would be Sunday in Atlanta.

Two Adrian Dantley free throws with 1:14 left brought Detroit within 88-87. Rick Mahorn then stripped the ball from Hawks rookie John Battle only to have Joe Dumars miss a shot at the other end.

Battle drove the lane with six seconds left but missed a leaping six-footer. Mahorn rebounded and the Pistons called timeout.

Thomas took Mahorn's inbound pass at the right of the top of the key. He dribbled down the right side, cut in at the baseline, leaped and banked his scoop shot into the net. His basket saved the Pistons from the embarrassment of blowing a nine-point fourth-quarter lead.

Battle, taking over for the slumping Glenn Rivers, scored 11 points in the final quarter to lead an Atlanta comeback. But Thomas, who led all scorers with 31 points, made the critical play for Detroit and brought the Pistons within one win of advancing to the conference finals against Boston or Milwaukee.

Dantley added 19 points for the Pistons. Mahorn had 12 and Bill Laimbeer 10.

Wilkins led Atlanta with 21 points despite a bad left calf. Battle had 19 and Antoine Carr 15. Kevin Willis scored 13 points.

A basket by Vinnie Johnson with 10:01 to play gave Detroit a 73-65 lead but Atlanta pulled within 75-74 after holding the Pistons scoreless for 3:47. The Hawks moved into an 83-83 tie on a Battle layup with 3:44 left.

Two free throws by Dominique Wilkins with 2:02 left gave Atlanta an 86-85 lead and a Battle lay-in with 1:30 left made it 88-85.

Thomas, who had an NBA playoff-record 25 points in the third quarter Friday night, scored 17 in the third period Sunday. Thomas sank a 53-foot three-pointer from beyond the half-court line at the third period buzzer to give Detroit a 69-63 lead.

Wilkins scored 10 points in the first period, marked by good defense that caused bad shots by both teams, to help Atlanta take a 19-17 lead but Detroit came back for a 40-40 halftime tie with Laimbeer's outside shooting netting him eight points.

Variety, dark sense of humor spice MFA Thesis Exhibition

By B. Gordon
Staff Writer

VARIETY is the catchword for this year's MFA Thesis Exhibition at the UI Museum of Art.

Some two dozen UI graduates from 1986 and 1987's art program are featured in the show, which includes sculpture, painting, printmaking and photography.

The works, which will be on display through May 31, range from high abstraction to functional art pieces, and draw from a wide field of aesthetic backgrounds. However, fully half of the paintings are composed around human characters and there is a marked preponderance of figurative work.

A refreshing aspect of the show is its black sense of humor. Sheresse Buzard's wood and fabric sculpture Top Dog depicts a soft grey ostrich-like alien, with tiny jingle bells for eyes. He is standing nonchalantly atop a mill whose wheel is composed of several of his fellows with bags over their heads, execution style.

And Linda Bourassa's photo essay, Appropriations: "The Way We Were" seems to start out as a complex joke. The entire work is composed of 10 panels, each panel containing two photographs and one line of the lyrics from the song Barbra Streisand made famous.

Art

The strange and wonderful thing about this piece is that, exasperating as it is because of the juxtaposition of sugary mental music with singularly unsentimental photography, Bourassa's re-use of early images of womanhood and reminiscence at the end of the essay makes a powerful statement.

Additionally, many of the photographs themselves are funny, and funnier with the words. A shot of Western Nevada Community College with the "W" askew goes with "If we had the chance to do it all again, tell me would we, could we;" and a landscape featuring an open dumpster, a radio dish antenna, and an old-fashioned farmhouse in the background is supplemented by "Could it be that it was all so simple then, or has time rewritten every line?"

AS A CATEGORY, the sculptures in the exhibit show the most innovation. The usual media are there, such as cast iron and ceramic, but they are supplemented by glass, acrylic, and posterboard.

Two notable pieces aside from Buzard's are the functional works of John Horn and Jane Lefevre. Horn's brass and clear acrylic menorah, an eight-branched candelabra used during the Jewish holiday of Hanukkah, is a stylish eye-catcher with classic lines reminiscent of a grand ballroom.

Lefevre's untitled ceramic plate provides a friendly, open expanse of desert-shaded surface. It is hard to describe the effect a well-made dish can have on a viewer, when displayed in an artistic context, as opposed to being filled with fruit and set on a livingroom table. But this simple construction is one of the highlights of the show.

The most evocative painting is Roxanne Winship's untitled pastel which, as it happens, sticks closest to a realistic style. A beautiful young woman looks thoughtfully out of the frame at the viewer as she sketches, her concentration visible in her face.

Behind her is another woman artist, looking in the opposite direction — all we can see is the back of her head. When we look to see what she is drawing, we realize with a shock that both women are drawing self-portraits. We ourselves are the reflection in the beautiful woman's mirror.
