Freedman, graduates finish career at UI

By Shawn Plank
Staff Writer

Over 1,000 UI students will graduate in at least a part of the UI educational careers this weekend as the UI graduates and honors the class of 1987 with commencement and convocation ceremonies.

But students aren't the only ones finishing UI careers. UI President James O. Freedman — who will give his 16th graduation address to the spring graduates at Saturday's commencement — is also leaving the UI after this spring.

He said his charge to the graduates will be his farewell address to the UI and its students.

Freedman announced in April that he would step down as UI president this summer to take the position of president of Dartmouth College.

"IT'S MY LAST opportunity to talk to a large group of University of Iowa students and I'm going to talk about the things I've learned here in my five years," Freedman said, but he wouldn't elaborate on his message because he wanted the graduates to be the first to hear it.

He said he continues to be impressed with UI students, whom he characterized as "extraordinarily highly motivated."

"I have no doubt that they're going to become leaders in their communities and professions," he said.

Jean Lawrence, administrative assistant to the UI registrar, said the number of spring graduates is down slightly from last year, but is about normal for the UI.

"This sounds really stupid, but I feel like you're really starting your life," UI Senior Sue Meyer said, who said she was going to take part in the ceremony.

"I get to go out into the world and see what life is really like," she said.

SHE SAID COLLEGE has been more than a place to take classes; it has been a place to learn about herself and others.

"I can't say it's helped me 1000 percent, but it's helped me grow up and be who I am."

Lawrence said individual undergraduate and professional school graduates will not be individually honored at the commencement ceremony, but would be at their respective convocations ceremonies held this weekend.

UI students face a little bit brighter job market this year,

UI Business and Liberal Arts Placement Center Director Nancy Noth said.

"So far this spring looks pretty good," she said of the placement center's success.

"Overall, the job market is not real wonderful, but it is stable," she said. "For Iowa graduates, it's a little bit brighter than last year."

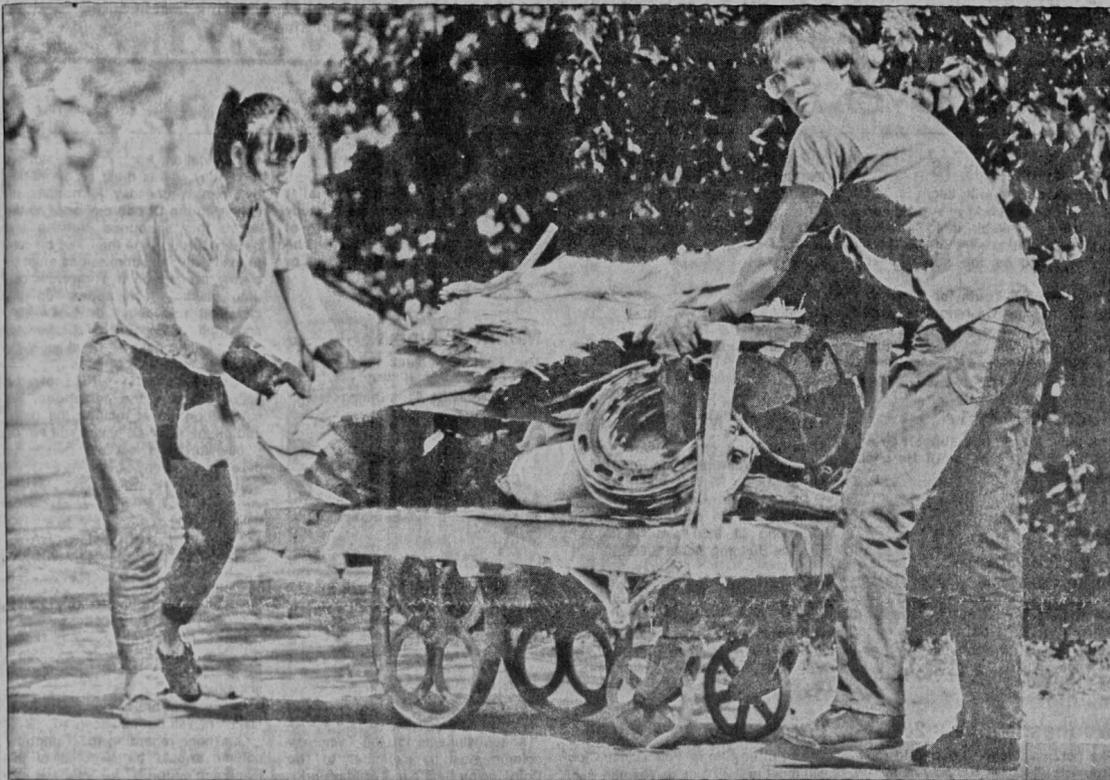

STARTING SALARY offers for college graduates is up about 3 percent to 5 percent over last year and accounting, marketing, finance, communication studies and actuarial sciences are majors that seem to be doing particularly well, she said.

She said small- to medium-sized firms are starting to show signs of increased hiring, which is a good sign for job seekers.

The commencement ceremony is Saturday at 9:30 a.m. in Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

At the ceremony, the UI will award six distinguished teacher awards, doctoral candidates will be "hooded" — a ceremony in which they receive a decorative piece of academic garb signifying their achievement — and master degrees will be awarded.

UI College of Dentistry senior Steven Nelson will speak for the students.

Art a la cart

UI junior Luisa Caldwell and graduate student Doug Barkey spent Thursday afternoon carting away art projects that students didn't claim at semester's end. Barkey said about 90 percent of the term's artwork is abandoned at the UI Art building and ends up in a nearby trash bin.

Hostage appears healthy in videotape

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — American hostage Alann Steen, whose captors in early April said was critically ill, appeared to be healthy in a videotape released Thursday in which he thanked his abductors for saving his life.

Steen, who was kidnapped Jan. 24 along with three other Beirut University College professors, looked physically fit as he read from a written statement during the four-minute videotape.

His captors said in April that Steen was critically ill and in a videotape released April 2, fellow hostage Jesse Turner said Steen was about to die "in a few hours." The captors and Turner never said what illness was afflicting Steen.

There was no indication of when the new tape, delivered Thursday to the independent An-Nahar newspaper in Moslem West Beirut, was made.

The unshaven Steen appeared to be sitting as he read the statement in a clear, low voice.

"I thank God that the Islamic Jihad Organization for the Liberation of Palestine has finally saved me through great and huge efforts that they made," Steen said on the videotape.

"They tried all possible ways in order to save me because they are Moslems."

"I DO NOT DESERVE all this, but they have their sacred ideological motives that do not allow them to let me die," he said.

Steen's wife, Virginia, called the release of the videotape "good news."

Steen implied his captors still link the release of the four professors to the release of prisoners held by Israel. The kidnapers previously have proposed a swap of the four professors for 400 Arab prisoners in Israel, or exchanging Steen for 100 prisoners.

"Remember, our issue will be always tied to the release of the prisoners in the prisons of Israel that is occupying the land of Palestine," Steen said in the tape.

Israeli officials have said they will not deal with "terrorists" holding hostages and the United States has said it is up to Israel to decide.

Observers said they believe the captors made Steen read the statement as an indirect message to the Reagan administration that further negotiations are possible.

UI pursues CIA protester charges

By Shawn Plank
Staff Writer

The group of CIA protesters who were cleared of criminal trespassing charges last week by a Johnson County magistrate court are not completely out of the woods yet.

The protesters enrolled as UI students — 17 of the 23 total protesters — now face charges from the UI for allegedly violating five sections of the 15 section UI Code of Student Life, UI Student Services Dean Peter Jones said Thursday.

The students were sent letters last week informing them that formal proceedings will take place during the summer before the start of classes in the fall.

Jones said students may face possible sanctions ranging from a letter of disciplinary warning to expulsion from the UI.

In addition, students who do not respond to correspondence concerning the hearings from the UI or refuse to attend the hearings may have their registration cancelled.

See related story..... Page 2A

"IF ALL THINGS ARE taken care of, their registration will be clear," Jones said.

The charges stem from Feb. 25, when the group was arrested by Iowa City police officers for occupying the office of UI Vice President of Academic Affairs Richard Remington. The group protested the presence of CIA recruiters interviewing students on the UI campus. UI officials testified the protesters were interfering and obstructing the UI's ability to do business.

Activist John Stonebarger, a UI staff member, who was cleared of charges last week, called the code "vague" and said it is often pressed against student protesters.

"They don't bring people in for academic hearings for tearing down goal posts," he said. "This has become part of a pat response to student protest."

STONEBARGER, who was not one of the 17 students receiving the letter from Jones, said the notice from the UI only a week after other charges were dropped makes it seem the students are being tried twice.

"Legally, it's not double jeopardy, but from the effects it has on students, it is," he said.

But Jones said it's not double jeopardy because the students live under two different jurisdictions.

The protesters have a scheduled meeting with outgoing UI President James O. Freedman May 18, in which they plan to discuss the issue of the CIA recruiting on campus.

However, one of the students, Keith Hutchinson, said discussion with UI officials on the topic rarely gets them anywhere.

"THEY SAY, 'This is our policy, take it or leave it, it's not open to discussion,'" he said.

Hutchinson also said the UI has "backed us into a little corner" because they are no longer able to discuss issues dealing directly with the CIA.

"The grounds for debate are completely cut off by rules and they're not willing to discuss the point of the whole thing," he said.

The UI, he added, which promotes open communication, is not living up to its claims.

"Free exchange of ideas, that's horseshit," Hutchinson said.

The 17 students are charged in connection with violating the following five sections of the UI Code of Student Life:

- Failing to comply with a proper order or summons of any member of the faculty or UI official.

- Intentionally disrupting the orderly processes of the UI.

- A measure prohibiting willful demonstrations within the interior of any UI building, to protect the rights and safety of others and to prevent damage to property.

- Unauthorized entry into or occupation of any UI room, building or area of campus.

- A measure prohibiting anything which seriously threatens any educational process or other legitimate function of the UI or the health and safety of any member of the academic community.

New rulers take over in Fiji coup

SUVA, Fiji (UPI) — The leader of a bloodless military coup that overthrew the Indian-dominated government announced today the formation of a ruling council comprised mostly of ministers of the ethnic-Fijian party who were voted out of office four weeks ago.

Lt. Col. Sitiveni Rabuka, in a statement broadcast more than 12 hours after he kidnapped the prime minister and 27 members of Parliament, said he would head the 15-member Council of Ministers on the South Pacific island nation.

One of the new ministers, he said, would be former Prime Minister Ratu Sir Kamisese Mara whose 17-year rule ended April 12 with the election of a coalition government dominated by ethnic Indians.

ALTHOUGH OBSERVERS said the decision indicates the involvement in the coup of Ratu Mara, who becomes minister for foreign affairs, he has denied participating in it.

Most of the new government ministers, including Ratu Mara and five other ministers of the former government, belong to the pro-Western Alliance Party of ethnic Fijians, which had ruled the nation since independence from Britain in 1970.

The new council includes 12 Fijians, two Indians and the former finance minister, Peter Stinson, who is of mixed race. Rabuka said the new Council of Ministers will hold its first meeting Friday.

The military takeover, the first in the strategic South Pacific region, came amid recent reports of increasing violence and ethnic tensions following last month's election of the Indian-dominated government.

The western South Pacific island group's population of 700,000 is nearly evenly divided between ethnic Fijians and Indians.

SOME FIJIANS, who own most of the land, have been demanding another election and guarantees that the constitution be changed to ensure Parliament always has a Fijian majority.

Rabuka, the No. 3 military commander, was accompanied by 10 masked and armed men when he burst into the House of Representatives Thursday and captured Prime Minister Timoci Bavadra and 27 government members of Parliament.

Bavadra and his supporters were under house arrest at the prime minister's official residence in Suva where they were taken Thursday night.

Rabuka suspended the constitution, dismissed leading officials, including the British governor-general, and established a ruling council. But hours after the coup there were conflicting claims over who was in control.

The island's British figurehead, Governor-General Ratu Sir Penaia Ganilau, issued a statement that he was declaring a state of emergency, although Rabuka dismissed him.

UI junior wins Robertson Scholarship

John Smith Jr., an economics major at the UI, has been awarded the James Robertson Scholarship, given annually to an outstanding UI junior honors student in the social sciences.

Smith has participated in intramural athletics, residence hall government, Mortar Board honorary society and the Johnson County Big Brother/Big Sister Program as a big brother.

He has worked on several research projects in economics, including a current project where Smith is assisting a faculty member on a book on the importance of entrepreneurship in stimulating innovation in economic growth.

UI juniors Ann Naffier, a global studies major, Kristen Reynolds, a Russian and political science major, and Maria Kramer, an anthropology major, were selected as finalists for the scholarship.

Films, video receive honors at festivals

Five films and one videotape produced last fall by five UI communications studies film students have received national honors in spring film festivals.

UI graduate student Ramon Rivera-Moret and UI senior Laurisa Stubblefield were among the top award winners in the Ann Arbor Film Festival held in Ann Arbor, Mich.

Rivera-Moret won for his film "Cha-cha-cha" and Stubblefield won for her film "Associations." Both of the films are now touring the country with the Ann Arbor Film Festival.

Rivera-Moret's film also received honors at the 1987 San Francisco Art Institute Film Festival and at the 1987 New York Independent Film Expo.

Stubblefield's film also received an award at the 1987 Big Muddy Film Festival.

"Perishable," a video produced by UI graduate student Paul Soucek, won second place in the 1987 Athens Film Festival.

Hospital school sponsoring food program

The UI Hospital School will be sponsoring the Willow Creek Neighborhood Center's Summer Food Service Program for Children June 15 through Aug. 21.

The program, which will be held at the Willow Creek Neighborhood Community Center in the Pheasant Ridge Apartments, 2626 Bartelt Road, will be providing free lunches to participants.

Children who were eligible to receive free lunches in the National School Lunch Program during the 1986-87 school year will be approved for the program.

Those interested in having a child or children take part in the Summer Food Service Program for Children should call Joan Vandenberg at the Pheasant Ridge Community Center.

High school music camp slated for June

The UI Music Camp for high school musicians in grades seven through 12 will be held on the UI campus June 14 to 26.

The camp, sponsored by the UI School of Music, provides a variety of performance experiences, including three concert bands, jazz bands, an orchestra, a chorus, a swing choir and a madrigal choir.

In addition, classes are offered in music theory, music appreciation, conducting and jazz improvisation. Private lessons are available with artist-teachers.

Housing in UI residence halls and activities, except for private lessons, are included in the $235 entrance fee. Students who attended the 1986 All-State Music Festival may deduct $10 from the tuition charge.

A limited number of partial scholarships are also available.

The application deadline for all applicants is Friday, May 22.

Press-Citizen announces new editor

Richard Thien was named managing editor of the Iowa City Press-Citizen Thursday, replacing former managing editor Lark Borden, who will move to the Gannett News Service in Washington, D.C.

Thien was the former managing editor of the Argus Leader in Sioux Falls, S.D., for six years until August 1986. This past year, he served as the visiting professional at the William Allen White School of Journalism at the University of Kansas.

Thien, 47, is a 1963 graduate of the University of Missouri at Columbia.

Students face second set of charges

By Anne Halloran
Staff Writer

When UI senior Craig Perrin pleaded guilty to a charge of criminal trespassing after the CIA on Campus protest, he did not realize that he would be charged by the UI for the same crime.

Perrin was one of two protesters who pleaded guilty to charges of criminal trespassing at Jessup Hall on Feb. 28 while protesting CIA recruitment on the UI campus.

The other 23 protesters were cleared of the charges at a jury trial last week at the Iowa City Civic Center.

The UI claims that the 17 out of the 25 protesters who are UI students violated five of 15 sections in the UI Code of Student Life.

PERRIN SAID HE received the same letter as most of the student protesters stating they had to appear at a hearing for a charge for the protest.

Perrin said there is a chance he will be suspended from the UI.

"They're not formally suspending us but the effect of their action is suspension," Perrin said. "If you have a hearing pending, your registration is suspended."

Perrin claims he knew he would be punished, but he pleaded guilty to a lesser sentence.

"I felt I was exercising my right to petition government officials, but I wasn't so sure that a jury of my peers would see it that way," Perrin said.

Perrin said he received a fine of $40, but because he didn't have enough money, he was allowed to work at a crisis center for 20 hours during the next year.

ACCORDING TO THE Iowa Code, the maximum sentence for criminal trespass is a $100 fine or a 30-day jail sentence.

"If we were found guilty in a jury trial, the penalty could have been much stiffer than it was," Perrin said.

Although he was surprised at the jury decision, Perrin said he was happy for those who were found innocent of the charge.

"I'm glad that the people of Iowa City have affirmed the fundamental right to governmental officials," Perrin said. "It's unfortunate that the university doesn't see it that way."

A UI student who was arrested on a charge of stealing a woman's motorcycle made his initial appearance Thursday in Johnson County District Court.

William Virgil Allen Jr., 19, of 320 Ellis Ave., was charged with second-degree theft after motorcycle across the intersection of Washington and Van Buren streets.

After seeing an officer, Allen yelled a profanity and jumped on the motorcycle in an attempt to drive it away, court records state.

Court records state Iowa City police officers observed Allen pushing a green Honda brand when he was questioned. Allen later told police he had taken the cycle without the woman's permission. After his admittance of guilt, the woman reported the motorcycle stolen to Iowa City police officers, court records state.

Allen was released on his own recognizance. His preliminary hearing is scheduled for June 2.

In living color

While many presidential candidates are busy outlining their ideas on foreign policy, budget reforms and possible measures to fight AIDS, at least one candidate is appealing to Americans where they live, eat and sleep. Where is this place our nation seems to spend so much quality time? In front of the television, of course. Presidential candidate Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., said Wednesday he would introduce legislation which would prohibit the unauthorized colorization of old black and white films. Gephardt's proposed Film Integrity Act of 1987, would give screenwriters and film directors the final say as to whether their films would be altered or distorted in any way, regardless of who owns the exhibition rights. If passed, this measure would seriously curtail the profit motivated actions of movie executives searching to make a quick buck by expanding the viewing audience of old movies through colorization.

Although the significance of this legislation may not be seen in the context of our domestic problems or international affairs, it is very pertinent to the millions who feel that the process of colorization grossly detracts from the viewing pleasure of many black and white classics. Imagine the impact of this proposed legislation on the millions of television viewers, (voting viewers mind you), watching their favorite classics late at night. "Hey, wasn't it that Gephardt guy who made it illegal to put that greenish-grey color on the face of everyone in this entire movie?"

The addition of color (poor color) to films which were never intended to be shown in anything but black and white is a cinematic crime equalling if not surpassing, the making of movies such as Police Academy and Friday the 13th. Jimmy Stewart may indeed have had a wonderful life, but thanks to greedy executives, we have to watch it in not so wonderful color.

More guns?

There is some good news and some bad news for President Ronald Reagan concerning the trillion dollar budget that was passed in the Senate last week by a 57-42 vote.

First the president's good news. The Senate approved the fiscal 1988 budget which would appropriate $290.5 billion for defense spending, a $7 billion dollar increase from last year. The bad news is that the only way Reagan is going to get that extra $7 billion dollars for defense is by raising taxes $18.3 billion in 1988 and $118.8 billion during the next four years.

With all the concern and attention being focused on reducing the national debt, a tax increase to pay for an increase in defense spending appears to be the only solution.

Reagan has slashed funding for numerous domestic programs, insisting that these agencies and programs must tighten their belts and do their part to reduce the world's largest debt.

However, the Defense Department has been exempted from belt tightening and budget trimming. Instead, the largest military build-up in peace time history has taken place under the Reagan administration. There is no doubt that the ability of the United States to defend itself is of utmost importance, but no nation can doubt the current military might of the United States.

Reagan has yet to submit a budget to Congress that does not propose to spend more than is allotted from the U.S. Treasury's coffers.

The Senate's approval of the defense budget increase is a politically shrewd move. Reagan is fully aware that tax increases are not popular with the American public, and there is always increased scrutiny over tax increases that are intended to cover defense spending.

It is a question of guns and butter. Reagan has already wielded the budget knife to cut the butter. If Reagan wants guns, it is the American taxpayer who will be forced to pick up the tab now... instead of putting them on the nation's credit card.

A list of things forgotten leads to trouble for writer

By Michael Humes

I've been getting a bit forgetful lately. I've been getting a bit forgetful lately. Did I already say that? Sorry. I've been getting a bit forgetful lately.

I don't know what's causing it — the crazy weather, the depletion of the ozone layer, seeing Blue Velvet twice, getting up early on Sunday mornings to watch "Rocky & Bullwinkle," or the weird phone calls I've been getting where this guy says "Listen to this, Mr. President," and then there's this peculiar yet oddly tranquilizing tone on the line. Whatever it is I don't have the razor-keen mind I once did. Here are a few of the things I've forgotten lately:

• I forgot to mark down a deposit in my numbered Swiss bank account. You'd think I could remember something like that. I mean, it's not like I get over to Zurich more than once or twice a month. But low and behold, I call up the bank to make sure I'm caught up on my Christmas Club account and my banker, Hans, tells me I have $10 million more in my account than I thought.

"Where'd that come from?" I asked. "Brunei," Hans said. "I have blue eyes, Hans," I said. "What are you talking about, Sultan?" said Hans. I had forgotten that the Swiss are more sensitive than most people realize. "Gee, sorry Hans, I didn't mean to be insultin'," I said. "My mistake, anyway. Bye."

• I forgot to write a baseball column this spring. I did pick the Cleveland Indians to win the American League East, but that didn't count. It didn't count as much of anything, as a matter of fact. So, however belatedly, I'll try to make up for it now.

In the American League East, the Red Sox won't repeat. They could have the Heimlich Maneuver performed on them by full-grown male mountain gorilla and still choke. The Blue Jays play half their games in a foreign country; if America isn't good enough for that bunch, to hell with them. George Steinbrenner hasn't done much to ruin the Yankees lately, so I'll go with my natural inclinations and with the Bombers.

In the American League West, I don't like anybody. They're a bunch of losers and play in places I wouldn't go if three squares a day, a barber who knows how to cut my hair the way I like it and several voluptuous redheads who were warm for my form were there waiting for me. I'll pick the White Sox, but only because I feel sorry for them.

As for National League East, I don't like them much, either. The Mets are even more arrogant than the Yankees, which to my mind is too much of a good thing. I'll pick the Cubs just for laughs.

In the National League West, I like the Giants. They play in a wind tunnel but they call it Candlestick Park. You couldn't light a candle in that place with both hands and the Death Star. Absurdity like that appeals to me.

Students affected by tax

By Bruce Japsen

Today is the last column I will write as city editor of The Daily Iowan. In this space I have argued that the city of Iowa City has an effect on UI students and the city's services are also for the use of UI students.

During this past academic year, valuable city services have been cut — most importantly, the Iowa City Public Library and the Iowa City Transit System. The Iowa City Council voted a $175,000 cutback to the city's bus system which will begin to take effect next month. Cutbacks include reducing midday service from hour to hourly service and combining routes, all designed to combat the $150,000 deficit the bus system faces.

In an economic agricultural ter: far banks s turers lost the person the stat "The ones fo mers, ture, Gov. T see the though going to

From the Metro Desk

IN ADDITION, IOWA CITY'S Public Library lost a request for two and one-half full-time workers, and the library is no longer open on Fridays, among other hour reductions.

All of these cutbacks were done without many UI students actively in opposition, which is too bad because Iowa City's governmental leaders could continually hammer away at services like these, and harm UI students.

They aren't doing this to be nasty, but if the students aren't going to open their mouths while these cuts are being debated, then city leaders will think nothing is wrong.

UI students are a primary revenue source for Iowa City when looking at the quantity of goods students consume each year. But UI students can't consume enough to keep the city's coffers filled.

In addition, Iowa City residents do not want to see their property taxes continually rise. Thus a committee was created — the Citizens' Committee on City Revenue — to help stop a predicted $1 million city deficit by fiscal year 1989.

Earlier this week, a property tax increase, a city sales tax or a vehicle tax were proposed as options to raise revenue.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS suggested a 1 percent sales tax increase as the best choice because of the amount of revenue it could raise. Figures released by Iowa City Manager Stephen Atkins' office state a 1 percent city sales tax, which would be tacked on to Iowa's 4 percent sales tax, would raise $2 million for Iowa City.

Atkins stated at one of the committee meetings that 6,000 to 7,000 UI students living in the dorms do not pay into community services. Meanwhile students benefit from services funded by the city that range from Domestic Violence Projects to the public library to garbage pickup.

The committee m... Looking at UI stud... and demanding money... them for the services that they use. This is fine, but if the city sales tax ever becomes a reality, UI students should demand that the city give full reinstatement to city services that UI students benefit from.

Solution to big-time athletics: Let the players earn money

By Nicholas Johnson

STEVE WILLIAM'S page-one characterization of recruiting athletes as a "crime" (The Daily Iowan, May 13) may be a trifle overstated. But he raises an important issue.

Assuming the highest morals and motives on everyone's part — university administrators, faculty, coaches and athletes — college football creates incredible conflicts of interest for everyone.

What's the players' conflict? I was asked, but declined, to play football at the University of Texas. So my last experience was with high school football at Iowa City's former University High School. But even those memories make me think it a little unrealistic to expect football players to have the strength of body and mind at day's end to light into serious academic effort. Certainly that's true for the major intercollegiate team that Iowa, under football Coach Hayden Fry's outstanding leadership, clearly is.

THE COACHES' CONFLICT? Sure it's an academic institution. Yes, the coaching staff is concerned with players' academic performance. And, right, occasionally they turn out student-athletes who become Rhodes Scholars, doctors, lawyers — and many with college degrees who might otherwise not get them. But coaches are paid to produce winning teams. That is, and must be, their top priority — as it is perceived to be by many legislators, alumni, administrators, fans and even faculty.

And the faculty? Whether academic standards are lower today than "they used to be" may provoke an argument. But surely no one questions that, in general, many student athletes are not subjected to the most rigorous courses of study and standards. I have had football players in class doing D and F work. The pressure was subtle, but present, to keep them on the playing field.

And what are the administrators to do? University of Chicago President Robert M. Hutchins simply abolished football. More might follow his lead, were it not for their not unreasonable fears of unemployment or assassination.

What's the answer? Some suggest more academic rigor be required. NCAA and Big Ten standards might require players to earn B, instead of D-plus, averages. Or players would be held to standards, but discouraged from taking courses during their athletic season. But such proposals don't eliminate the inherent conflict of interest for all of us.

SO, WHEN ALL ELSE FAILS, why not try candor? The alumni and legislature (and, by now, most faculty) want the university to provide them with entertainment — sports as well as "culture." We don't limit ourselves to university students when watching ballet, symphonies, Broadway plays or concerts at Hancher Auditorium. We get professional; we pay them professional wages; and we don't give them entrance exams or expect them to take courses.

Why not treat football that way? It wouldn't be our first effort at major enterprise. Iowa is often characterized as the nation's largest hospital-owned university. And we're about to go into the laser business.

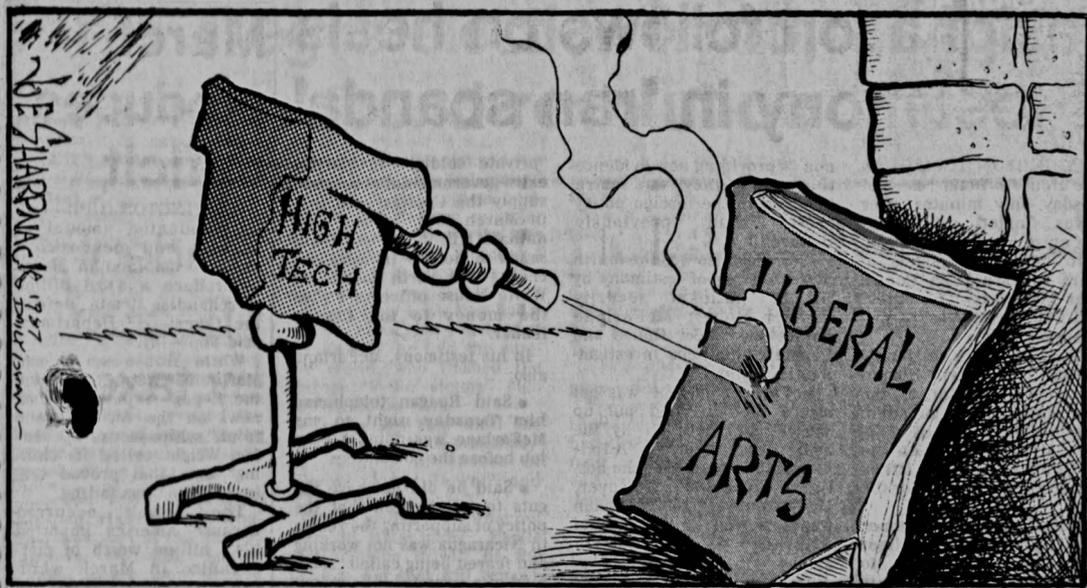

Why not buy ourselves a professional team, if that's what we want? We could keep the "Hawkeye" name. We could bid to keep the ever-popular Fry. (As a one-time Texan myself, it's nice having one guy on campus who talks regular.) We could even keep some of the players.

We would pay the players, like the professional revenue generators they are. If any want to take a course or two during off-season, fine; they can pay tuition like anyone else. But flunking out wouldn't keep them off the field. And we'd end the hypocrisy that they are nothing more than ordinary students with an extracurricular activity.

At a time when our nation is reconsidering ethical and moral values in a number of contexts, and Iowa has just been forced to take a look at an "abuse" in its own football program, perhaps it's a good time to take a look at some conflicts in the fundamentals of college football — and I don't mean blocking and tackling.

Tight funds delay UI research park

By Charlene Lee
Special to The Daily Iowan

IN AUGUST 1985, the UI drew up a lengthy proposal for the development of a university-related research park as a vehicle of economic growth in the area.

Two years later, the UI has taken few steps toward the realization of this goal and UI officials say they have experienced great frustration in the planning stages.

"The university's position is that it's broke. We don't have any money for this type of thing," UI Vice President of Educational Development and Research Duane Spriestersbach, said. "They (the state) barely give us money to pay salaries."

Spriestersbach said Gov. Terry Branstad requested a report on the feasibility of a research park near the UI following the 2nd Annual Iowa Academic Industrial Technology Conference held in February, 1985. Former North Carolina Gov. James Hunt was a guest speaker at the conference, which was attended by the presidents of the three state universities, the governor and members of the Iowa High Technology Council.

In his address, Hunt had used the Research Triangle Park — located near and affiliated with Duke University, the University of North Carolina and North Carolina State — as a primary example of university involvement in the turnaround of a state's economy.

THE IRONY IS THAT the state of North Carolina has sunk millions of dollars into Triangle Park, while the state of Iowa has made it clear that the UI must seek investors from private industry in its effort to establish a research park.

Spriestersbach pointed out that it took North Carolina 25 years to turn its research park into a successful one. The UI's proposal, he said, is a long-term one that would require the same amount of time.

However, the 68-page UI report aimed to relocate the university's Technology Innovation Center onto a park site within three years, as well as establish links between the park and the Weeg Computing Center. The report also sought the cooperation of local officials and developers in the research park's creation.

Iowa City Economic Development Coordinator Patt Cain recalls extensive discussions two years ago between UI and area officials on the development of a UI-affiliated research park in the Johnson County area.

"The university has no plans for a research park, but that doesn't mean the matter is completely dead," Cain said.

THE UI IS WAITING for a private developer to proceed with the construction of a research park site before becoming involved through research and technology transfer programs such as TIC, Spriestersbach said.

Iowa City developer Mace Braverman, president of Southgate Development, has made the most headway toward establishing a research park in the area. He has requested that the Iowa City Council rezone the 200-acre Northgate Corporate Park, located by the Hwy. 1 and Interstate-80 interchange, into a research development park zone. Such a zone would allow the site to be used for research purposes and the manufacture of prototypes developed there.

Braverman and UI officials have kept in constant contact during the past two years, but both are unsure of the extent of the UI's future involvement in the Northgate park.

"I would like them (the UI) to become involved. There is every indication that the university would like to become involved to some capacity, but I don't know if it will," Braverman said.

SPRIESTERSBACH acknowledged the UI's desire to play an active role at the Northgate park, but stressed that it would be up to Northgate to draw up a proposal for the UI's involvement. After all, he said, the UI's primary purpose is education, not economic or real estate development. "If we were all industrial entrepreneurs, why would we be here?" he commented.

Yet, the 1985 report proposed "two initiatives that will increase the institution's ability to participate in the economic development of the state: the expansion of the UI's existing Technology Innovation Center and the creation of a new, for-profit product development corporation."

A bill recently passed by the Iowa Legislature, however, may aid the UI in its search for funding for the project. Authored by Sen. Majority Leader Bill Hutchins, the bill recognizes economic development as a public purpose entitled to public funds.

It states: "Economic development is a public purpose for which the state, a city, or a county may provide grants, loans, guarantees and other financial assistance to or for the benefit of private persons."

Despite such a qualification, legislators doubt the resources are there to aid in the development of a UI-affiliated research park. "I frankly don't see large chunks of funding coming from the state," said Rep. Mary Neuhauser, D-Iowa City.

Economic woes may alter UI mission

By Dan McMillan
Editorial Page Editor

WHILE THE UI'S long-standing commitment to be a teaching institution has withstood the political upheaval of the 1960s and the steadily rising student populations of the 1970s, the economic realities of a state-wide depression in the 1980s may be the circumstances which change the UI's mission, according to some concerned UI faculty members.

Since the early 1980s, Iowa and other farm states have waged an arduous battle to save the American agricultural economy. The fight began in 1981 and 1982 when farmland prices plummeted, leaving farmers with enormous debts and no collateral to borrow against.

In an enormous domino effect, the Iowa economy — based almost entirely on agricultural production — began to falter: farmers defaulted on their loans, banks failed, farm implement manufacturers cut production, factory workers lost their jobs and moved out of state, the personal and corporate taxbases eroded, the state budget tightened.

"The past five years have not been good for anyone in agriculture. Not farmers, not states dependant on agriculture," said Dick Vohs, spokesman for Gov. Terry Branstad. "We're starting to see the light at the end of the tunnel, though, and we're confident things are going to get better."

IN THE MEANTIME, the state's universities, along with other state-funded enterprises, have felt the budget crunch. For example, the amount of money the state allocated to the UI for fiscal year 1988 was $166.5 million — the same amount it provided in 1987.

One way the UI has sought to make up for shortfalls in state funding is through winning grants from outside sources, such as the National Science Foundation and the Defense Department. From 1982 to 1986, grant funding has risen 35 percent, from $66.7 million to $89.4 million, according to records from the UI Division of Sponsored Programs.

George Woodworth, chairman of the University Research Council, said the need to seek outside funding for research has increased in recent years as the UI's operating budget has provided for fewer basic needs. However, Woodworth believes the difficult economic conditions have forced the UI faculty to become more competitive in seeking research grants. This competitiveness, Woodworth believes, has improved the university's teaching status.

Some new developments at the UI raise questions about the permanency of the UI's commitment to teaching and open research.

"The university has less money to provide, which means money for equipment and assistants has to be stretched further," Woodworth said. "But we're here to promote research. I believe we'd be a third-rate university without a vigorous research program. It's important to remember that a university with a strong research reputation attracts top-notch teaching professors."

IN ADDITION TO SEEKING grant dollars, the UI in recent years has expressed a willingness to participate in economic development ventures as a means of fostering a better state economy. In an August 1985 report, the UI issued specific proposals for economic development, including the creation of one or more research parks in the Johnson County area.

Since then, according to Derek Willard, associate vice president for educational development and research, the UI has provided consultation to businesses and granted access to university equipment and facilities. Also, one of the university's primary vehicles for economic development in Iowa — the Technology Innovation Center — helped draw Rockwell Collins, a major aerospace industry, to Johnson County, Willard said.

The increasingly close relationship between the UI and the business community has disturbed some UI faculty members who believe the trend could damage university autonomy. According to several faculty members, the emphasis on technological developments hurts the UI's ability to offer a well-rounded education to its students.

DESPITE THE RELATIVE cooperation between the UI and the business community, there have been traditional limits to the type of research activity the university has been willing to undertake. For example, all of the funding the UI receives must be unclassified, according to university policy, unless a specific exception is granted by the vice president for educational development and research in consultation with the University Research Council.

The reason for the ban on classified research, according to Willard, is that "the UI exists primarily for the expansion and dissemination of knowledge," therefore "to conduct research which would be somehow controlled or censored by someone outside the university would be inconsistent with our educational and research missions."

But some new developments at the UI raise questions about the permanency of the UI's commitment to teaching and open research. For example, the recently approved UI Laser Center is conspicuous both for its multi-million dollar price tag and its possible applications in carrying out classified research. Specifically, there is concern among some faculty, students, staff and legislators that the laser center could be used in research for classified projects.

This possibility is denied by university officials who say that the prohibition on restricted research remains unequivocal.

STILL, CONCERN ABOUT the future direction of the university, particularly its stand on research and teaching, is strong among some in the university community. Such concerns prompted the formation of the University Progressive Network, a broad-based coalition of faculty, staff and graduate students, which plans to be a forum for the discussion of university policy decisions.

One UPN member, UI Associate Professor David Rosenthal, believes the UI's 1985 report on economic development strategies was so vague on some crucial points that it could lead the university into dangerous territory. Specifically, Rosenthal questioned the report's pledge to support the establishment of a university-affiliated research park, including the offer to provide consultation services to private research firms, because it could circumvent the UI's prohibition on classified research.

"The report does not make it clear whether UI faculty can do classified research on their own time at a research park. Also, it's unclear whether the UI's prohibition on classified research would forbid some companies from becoming involved in the research park," Rosenthal said.

"The vagueness of the report is what's dangerous," Rosenthal stated. "That's how the university loses control and we're presented with a fait accompli."

Grant funding creates controversies at UI

By D.R. Miller
Special to The Daily Iowan

TODAY, MANY of the UI's faculty are engaged in research supported by grant funds. But the process of grant funding and the distribution of indirect funds interlocked with these grants are points of controversy among UI faculty.

The controversy involves millions of dollars in funding each year. For example, during this fiscal year, 1986-87, the UI will receive $55.7 million in direct costs for research and $11.2 million in indirect costs, according to grant records from the UI Office of Sponsored Programs.

Direct costs are those costs incurred during the life of the grant. Either applied or basic research, such as research supplies, equipment, salaries of the principle investigator and assistants, construction of special lab or control facilities and travel, David Cater, UI chemistry professor, said.

Indirect costs, on the other hand, go to the UI for administering the costs of grants their faculty and staff participate in, according to Cater. Such indirect costs include lighting and heating for offices, upkeep of laboratory equipment and cleaning services.

NOT ALL GRANTS have indirect costs involved. Private foundations often pay only for the direct costs of research. But since World War II, the federal government has allowed universities to charge for the cost of administering federal research grants. Today, the UI charges 30 percent to 39 percent of the total direct costs to administer federal grants. Thus, a $100,000 federal grant for research could yield a supplemental $39,000 in funds for the UI.

In theory, this supplemental money should be used for the investigator's expenses not covered by direct costs. However, in practice the money may go other places in the UI budget.

"The UI has three sources of money," Duane Spriestersbach, vice president for educational development and research, said. "It gets appropriated funds. It has tuition and it has indirect cost recovery. Those all go into the general fund of the UI and is available for distribution where ever. It may go anywhere. It's all part of a pool. "We are a community after all," Spriestersbach said.

AS A RESULT, instead of indirect funds coming back to the investigator or the home department, the money is pooled, allowing the UI to fund other academic and research activities. The Russian Department, Art Department or School of Journalism and Mass Communication may receive some of the indirect funds from grants generated in the Physics or Chemistry Departments.

Cater, a 26-year veteran of the UI Chemistry faculty, agreed the UI should be accountable for indirect costs and favors the present system, with reserventions. "Those who write grants should get the majority of the indirect costs, but since we are a community, we should share (in the funds)," Cater said.

Tight budgets have caused some other faculty members to see the direct-indirect cost issue in a different light, however. Alan Randich, UI psychology professor, has been responsible for bringing in more than $140,000 in indirect costs during his 8-year tenure at the UI.

RANDICH DOES research with rats. In order to meet new federal guidelines on animal research, a new lab facility is needed, Randich said. Also, a new fume hood is needed in his present lab to protect himself and his research assistants. But the UI has stated there is no money for these projects, he said.

"In the best of times, I believe in support (for other UI departments)," Randich said. "But when I can't get sufficient funds (from within the UI) to carry out my projects, that's different."

How well the UI markets itself to outside funding sources, the state, the private sector and the federal government is the key to the UI's success in competing in the race for grant dollars and new knowledge. However, the UI's ability to market itself to today's more technology-oriented educational system may be costing Iowans the opportunity to receive a top-notch liberal arts education.

THE GRANT FUNDS in the "hard sciences" — physics, chemistry, biology, etc. — have been easier to acquire than those in liberal arts. The Colleges of Medicine and Business have seen direct and indirect funds increase, while liberal arts has remained about the same. Grants decreased by $350,000 in one year in the College of Education. In the College of Pharmacy, the direct cost decreased, but indirect costs increased.

The reaction of the faculty to the direct-indirect cost issue is very individualized, according to Barry Markovsky, UI assistant sociology professor. Positive or negative views of the UI's handling of indirect costs depends entirely on individual perceptions.

State Department: Linders refused aid

WASHINGTON — The State Department said Thursday the Linder family spurned the help it offered after the death of Benjamin Linder last month during a raid by Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

Department spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley said a State Department officer had been in contact with the family "on several occasions" to offer assistance shortly after the April 28 killing of the American volunteer.

The officer was told the funeral arrangements were being made by the Nicaraguan Embassy in Washington. Representatives from the U.S. Embassy in Managua attended the funeral, Oakley said.

During his testimony Wednesday before the Western Hemisphere Subcommittee of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, the father, David Linder, was critical of the failure of the State Department to investigate his son's death.

Weinberger opts for 'balanced ban'

STAVANGER, Norway — U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said Thursday any agreement with the Soviets on banning missiles in Europe would be balanced by updating other Western nuclear weapons to maintain an effective deterrent.

Weinberger told reporters after the first day of the two-day spring meeting of NATO's Nuclear Planning Group he believes "everybody wants a global zero" on medium-range missiles with a range of 600 miles to 3,000 miles.

West German Defense Minister Manfred Woerner, briefing reporters separately, said military experts have warned that cutting missile arsenals in Europe will necessitate substitutes to preserve NATO's nuclear deterrent against larger Warsaw Pact conventional forces.

British Defense Minister George Younger said more sea-launched cruise missiles "would be in everybody's list of possibilities."

Murder suspects come out of hiding

POWELL, Wyo. — Two murder suspects who for five days eluded a 60-man posse in the rugged mountains east of Yellowstone National Park surrendered Thursday at the urging of relatives, including one man's grandmother, authorities said.

"From what we understand, they were out of food and they haven't had any food for three days," Park County Sheriff Dan Hodge said.

Matthew Wilder, 19, and Charles Carlos Smith, 38, reached Powell, about 50 miles northeast of the search area, early Thursday but found the car they had left behind at a residence had been impounded by police, Hodge said.

Smith and Wilder are accused in the death of ranch hand William Duplantis Jr., 27, of Houma, La. Sublette County Sheriff Jack Cain said Smith had returned to the ranch near Bondurant in western Wyoming May 5 and found Duplantis using some of the personal possessions he had left behind.

'Insider' lawyers obtain trial delay

NEW YORK — The lawyers for three Wall Street executives accused of insider trading Thursday obtained a four-day delay to study the government's surprise motion to dismiss the case to clear the way for a wider indictment.

The defendants were to have been the first brought to trial in the government's yearlong investigation into the securities fraud scandal that has rocked Wall Street.

Robert Freeman, head of arbitrage at Goldman, Sachs & Co., Richard Wigton, suspended head of Kidder, Peabody & Co.'s arbitrage operations, and Timothy Tabor, a former Kidder arbitrageur, were arrested in February and indicted in April on charges of conspiracy and securities fraud related to securities trading based on illegal insider information.

DuPont Plaza fined for safety violations

WASHINGTON — The Dupont Plaza Hotel-casino in San Juan, Puerto Rico, was fined more than half a million dollars Thursday and accused of 28 safety violations blamed for spreading the New Year's Eve arson fire that killed 97 people.

The hotel-casino operators were accused of violating the commonwealth's health and safety standards and were fined $527,400, the largest penalty ever proposed by a state or commonwealth, said John Pendergrass, head of the Occupational Health and Safety Administration.

Resignation follows on heels of testimony in Iran scandal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A White House official resigned Thursday only minutes after he was singled out at the Iran-Contra hearings for helping to deliver thousands of dollars in cash to a Contra leader by a "private soldier" in Lt. Col. Oliver North's private supply network.

Johnathan Miller, a deputy assistant to President Ronald Reagan and director of the White House office of administration, submitted his resignation 10 minutes after the Iran-Contra committees recessed their hearings for the week.

Robert Owen, 33, a former State Department consultant who was the first witness to testify with limited immunity from prosecution, said Miller helped him cash between $6,000 and $7,000 in traveler's checks in March 1985. The cash later was given to the Contra leader, whom Owen did not identify.

SUCH DIRECT HELP for the Contras by an administration official may have violated a congressional ban on U.S. support for the Contras.

The dramatic development capped a day when panel member Sen. Paul Trible, R-Va., revealed that the CIA helped finance, possibly illegally, a 1985 effort to ransom American hostages in Lebanon — providing new evidence the spy agency was more involved in the foreign policy affair than previously believed.

Thursday also was the fourth and final day of testimony by former national security adviser Robert McFarlane before the select House and Senate committees investigating the scandal.

McFarlane said he was not aware the CIA had put up $50,000 for the plan by the Drug Enforcement Administration to purchase the hostages' freedom. However, McFarlane said, the DEA plan was approved by Reagan and Attorney General Edwin Meese.

TRIBLE'S DISCLOSURE adds to growing evidence that the spy agency under William Casey was deeply engaged in the affair. Wednesday, McFarlane said he suspected North, his aide on the National Security Council, was getting directions from Casey.

The second week of hearings concluded with testimony from Gaston Sigur, assistant secretary of state for East Asian and Pacific affairs, and Robert Owen, a former State Department consultant who was the first witness to testify under immunity from prosecution.

Owen, 33, a boyish-looking

"private soldier" in North's extra-governmental network to supply the Contras, said that in March 1985, he and Johnathan Miller cashed thousands of dollars in traveler's checks that North had in his White House office safe gave the money to the Contra leader.

In his testimony, McFarlane also:

- Said Reagan telephoned him Tuesday night to say McFarlane was doing a good job before the committees.

- Said he did not have the guts to tell Reagan that the policy of supporting the rebels in Nicaragua was not working and feared being called "some kind of a commie" if he raised his objections.

House panel Chairman Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., said the hearings will resume at 10 a.m. Tuesday, and after Owen has completed his testimony the committees will hear from Contra leader Adolfo Calero.

Occasionally toying with a gold pen, McFarlane elaborated on last week's revelations by retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard Secord before the panel that DEA agents tried in 1985 to ransom for $2 million Americans held captive in anarchic Lebanon by pro-Iran extremists. The effort was unsuccessful.

March produces deficit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An unprecedented amount of imports and near-record exports combined in March to produce a $13.6 billion merchandise trade deficit, the Commerce Department said Thursday.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater testified the 19-page report, "Trade news on the foreign trade front," while House Speaker Jim Wright called it "chilling" data that proved U.S. trade policy was failing.

The deficit occurred because America imported $34.7 billion worth of merchandise in March while exporting $21.1 billion, the Commerce Department said. That export figure is the second-highest ever.

Falwell threatens shutdown of PTL

FORT MILL, S.C. (UPI) — The Rev. Jerry Falwell said Thursday that if followers of the PTL ministry do not send in $7 million by the end of the month he will shut down the whole scandal-plagued empire.

"We need the most sacrificial gift you can send," Falwell told viewers of the ministry's daily "PTL Club" television show.

"If we're going to honor our creditors, we need to raise at least that by May 31 and probably $20 million to $25 million over the next 90 days," Falwell said. "We have no alternative. We either do that or shut down."

When he took over the television ministry and Christian theme park/resort from its disgraced founder, Jim Bakker, on March 19 Falwell pledged not to "beg for money on the air."

BUT HE SAID Thursday the PTL was on its last financial legs.

"We must raise at least $7 million between today and May 31 or this entire ministry will be in dire jeopardy," Falwell told viewers. "If you don't want this ministry to continue, just ignore me. If you want this ministry's doors to stay open, you write to me today."

Falwell said the ministry owes the television stations that carry its program more than $8 million and must make significant payments on the debt by the end of the month or the programs "will cease to be on the air."

He also said the ministry owes its primary creditor, contractor Roe Messner, more than $10 million. Messner ordered his workers to board up the unfinished $27 million Heritage Grand Towers hotel at the PTL's Heritage USA resort and theme park Wednesday.

On May 7, Messner filed a $14 million lien against PTL in York County, S.C., but later withdrew it.

Enrile alleges election fraud, calls for second revolution

MANILA, Philippines (UPI)— Juan Ponce Enrile, an architect of the 1986 "people-power" revolution that swept Corazon Aquino into the presidency, told up to 20,000 supporters outside a military camp Thursday it might be time to revolt again.

Enrile, whose opposition Grand Alliance for Democracy apparatus suffered a crushing defeat in Monday's congressional elections, accused the government of cheating in the balloting and said it must be "punished" for its crimes.

Between 15,000 and 20,000 cheering right-wing enthusiasts took part in the rally on Epifanio De Los Santos Avenue, where more than 1 million people appeared last year to support an Enrile-led military revolt that drove President Ferdinand Marcos from power and catapulted Aquino into Malacanang presidential palace.

ENRILE'S organization petitioned the Supreme Court Thursday to declare a "failure of elections" and stop the counting of ballots, accusing poll officials of conspiring with the ruling party to "manipulate results."

Standing on the roof of a van with a towel wrapped around his neck in the tropical heat, the former defense minister said his party entered the May 11 congressional elections because it expected a fair contest.

"We did not know they had a plan to cheat, not Enrile, but the nation," he told the surging crowd, who flashed the Marcos "V for victory" sign and waved banners.

"Let us not stop until the cheaters have been punished," he shouted to cheers of "Down! Down! Down!" and "Cory! Cory is a cheat!"

"It was people power that put them in Malacanang," Enrile said. "Maybe it will be the same power that will remove them."

ENRILE, FIRED from the Cabinet in November after his aides were implicated in a failed coup bid, was in 26th place in the race for a 24-seat Senate after three days of an unofficial "quick count" by Namfrel, a private watchdog group.

Just one Grand Alliance for Democracy candidate, former actor Joseph Estrada, had broken the Aquino slate's hold on the top 24 spots with 49.14 percent of the ballots counted. Alliance candidates also trailed in the voting for a 200-seat House of Representatives.

A losing senatorial candidate, Lorenzo Teves, conceded defeat Thursday. In a statement carried by the official Philippine News Agency, Teves, a former senator, said, "Cory's magic worked. The people have spoken."

The official count, which began on Thursday a day late, had tallied only 75 precincts from a single southern city and had four opposition candidates leading in Senate elections.

Alliance candidates at the rally issued a manifesto demanding that Aquino halt the quick count, disavow the results, overhaul the official Commission on Elections and order new voting.

They also urged civil servants to observe a boycott of government offices by refusing to report for work.

Foreign observers have praised the elections as generally fair and orderly and commission chairman Ramon Felipe has challenged Enrile to detail his charges in a formal petition to the commission.

Peres to talk with Shultz

JERUSALEM (UPI)— Foreign Minister Shimon Peres said Thursday he will continue to push for an international conference on Middle East peace despite Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's warning that Peres has no mandate to do so.

Peres, who lost a vital Cabinet battle Wednesday over his U.S.-backed plan for an international conference, said he would travel to New York today for talks with Secretary of State George Shultz.

They will meet in New York Sunday and again in Washington before Peres is to return to Israel next Wednesday, the Foreign Ministry said.

Peres, who Wednesday demanded early elections to end the deadlock over the issue, told reporters in Jerusalem he would listen to Shultz's views on the status of the conference idea.

But the foreign minister and leader of the left-leaning Labor Party said he would not ask for U.S. support in his latest battle with Shamir's right-wing Likud bloc because it is a domestic matter.

SHULTZ WAS embarrassed this week by Labor supporters who leaked a message the secretary of state sent to Peres and Shamir saying Washington supports an international conference as a prelude to direct Arab-Israeli negotiations.

Peres said a peace conference is the only way toward direct negotiations. Because no vote was taken by the deadlocked 10-man inner Cabinet on his proposal, Peres said he will continue his efforts.

The Jerusalem Post reported Thursday that Reagan administration officials privately expressed disappointment over Peres's failure to win Cabinet endorsement for a peace conference.

South Africa expels 2 British reporters

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI)— South Africa's white-minority government ordered the expulsions Thursday of two British reporters who were reprimanded recently for filming police officers crushing a student demonstration.

The government, emboldened by right-wing support in last week's white parliamentary elections, was also said to have warned black opposition leaders that they face eviction from state housing and to have reportedly tightened enforcement of residential apartheid.

The government refused without explanation to renew work permits for award-winning British Broadcasting Corp. television reporter Michael Buerk and Peter Sharp, a correspondent for Independent Television News, officials said.

THE BRITISH REPORTERS, who were recently reprimanded by the white-minority government for filming police crushing a student demonstration in Cape Town, were ordered to leave South Africa within 10 days.

The Foreign Correspondents Association condemned the expulsions, saying the government's crackdown on reporters is "unparalleled in recent times anywhere in the world."

Steve Mufson, an American freelance journalist who has reported for Business Week magazine, was ordered expelled last week and Home Affairs Director Gerrie van Zyl said Thursday a ruling on his appeal to stay will be handed down today.

The government has launched a campaign against dissent and violations of apartheid in the wake of a white election last week that signaled support for continuation of the country's system of racial segregation and a crackdown on violence.

MORE THAN 2,300 PEOPLE have been killed in South Africa since the black uprising erupted in September 1984.

In another part of the crackdown, Winnie Mandela and three other prominent black anti-apartheid activists face eviction from state-owned houses in Soweto if rents due during an 11-month protest are not paid in 30 days, township sources said.

Soweto Nthato Motlana, chairman of the anti-government Soweto Civic Association, said authorities already have cut off electricity to his house and office.

Soweto Town Clerk Nico Malan said tenants of the township's state-owned houses owed a total of $33 million by April. Mandela, wife of jailed African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela, owes the equivalent of $325.

Anti-government activists launched the rent boycott last June to demand improvements to houses and facilities in the black township.

Chinese forces battle fire by seeding clouds

BEIJING (UPI)— Chinese authorities sent airplanes aloft Thursday to seed clouds in hopes of dumping rain on a forest fire that has killed at least 168 people, gutted four towns and left as many as 51,000 people homeless, officials said.

About 16,000 troops are battling the 9-day-old inferno that has been sweeping rugged northeastern Heilongjiang Province near the Soviet border 900 miles northeast of Beijing, the official Xinhua News Agency reported.

"Officials are not optimistic the fire will be put out soon and are worried that higher temperatures or stronger winds could spark new fires," the agency said.

Forestry Ministry spokesman Zhang Wei said aircraft began dropping silver iodide on clouds Thursday in hopes of inducing rain.

Bridge jumpers ignore risks

By Cynthia Hadish
Freelance Writer

Despite dangers due to low water levels on the Iowa River, UI students are continuing the warm-weather tradition of jumping off bridges.

Although bridge jumping is not illegal, it's not entirely safe, according to Iowa City police officer Jim Linn.

Linn said objects, such as logs, that can't be seen from the bridge may be floating beneath the surface of the water.

Another risk for bridge jumpers is not knowing the depth of the water, Linn said, as low levels increase the potential for injury.

Low river levels could present another problem for swimmers, according to Iowa City Water Superintendent Edward Brinton.

DRY SEASONS such as the current one may lead to problems with bacteria in the river, Brinton said.

In dry weather, Brinton said, algae builds up in stagnant pools and further grows with sunlight.

"Actually, the best water is when it looks dirty, because the river is moving," he said. "Higher water levels dilute the bacteria."

Cleo Kron, a consultant for the water plant, said tests are run on the river about every three hours to check chemical levels.

"There's nothing really harm-

Low river level may bring problems to drinking water

By Cynthia Hadish
Freelance Writer

Iowa's recent dry spell may cause problems with drinking water this summer, local water experts predict.

Iowa City Water Superintendent Edward Brinton said thunderstorms this summer could bring in chemicals from the soil of farms north of Iowa City.

"There's a problem with algae building up when the river level is low," Brinton said, "and thunderstorms wash fertilizers into the river from nearby farms, adding to the problem."

Iowa City Water Plant Consultant Cleo Kron agreed that agricultural chemicals could cause a problem but said the nitrate level in the river is currently at a safe level.

KRON SAID THE water plant will be testing for 35 organic chemicals as part of the Iowa water amendment, for researching safe levels of chemicals in the river.

"We usually check the water every three hours, but if it rains we check more often — about every hour," he said.

A harmless layer of natural foaming agents and detergents may be visible on the river, but Brinton said it's the bacteria that can't be seen that may cause more problems.

"There's not a problem yet," Brinton said, adding that there are ways of making the water safe for drinking.

"Activating carbon absorbs some of the chemicals," he said. "However, when chemical levels increase, it's necessary to add in more chlorine to kill it."

"This gives the water a different taste and odor that some people complain about, but the water is safe," he said.

ful in the water right now," Kron said, adding that Iowa City currently meets safety standards for drinking water.

However, he said if someone were to drink a mouthful of the river, it probably wouldn't be very good for him.

BUT STAGNANT WATER is just one of the risks involved with jumping, Joe McAllister, a UI freshman, said.

"If you're willing to jump off a bridge, a little stummy water won't hurt you," he said.

McAllister said the first time he tried bridge jumping was last November. He then tried it again this spring to "see what it was like when the water was warm."

McAllister said diving off the bridge wouldn't be advisable.

"The water is probably only 8 to 10 feet deep there (under the Hancher Footbridge), so you can't dive off or you'd break your neck," he said, adding that he touches bottom when he jumps.

"It's just good, clean fun," he said.

"Clean" isn't exactly how UI freshman Steve Jones described the experience of bridge jumping.

"You don't really taste the water," Jones said, "but just the thought of that stummy water — you try not to swallow it."

THE MOST IMPORTANT thing is to take a shower when you get out of the river, he added.

Jones said he had heard stories of shopping carts and no other items in the river, but no one in his group hit anything jumping off the Hancher footbridge.

"A guy told us he knew someone who hit his head on something and was in a wheelchair from jumping," Jones said, "but we just hit sand down there."

Both McAllister and Jones said they would probably jump off the bridge again, despite the dangers involved.

"Sure — the next hot day, I'll be out there," McAllister said.

Civil rights activist Berry dies at 77

CHICAGO (UPI) — Edwin C. "Bill" Berry, who marched with side by side with Martin Luther King Jr. when the civil rights movement focused on the city, died Wednesday. He was 77.

Berry was remembered as "a man for all seasons" by Mayor Harold Washington, whom Berry recruited to run for mayor in 1983. Berry was "ultimately responsible for my victory as mayor of Chicago," Washington recalled. He headed the mayor's transition team. The calm, self-assured Berry, who worked for 33 years with the Chicago Urban League before retiring in 1970 as its executive director, once told of his dream in a broadcast interview, "My goal... is to make it all right to be non-white in these United States," he said.

At the height of his career, Berry was almost an automatic appointment to any private or public committee that dealt with the difficult issue of race relations in Chicago. Born in Oberlin, Ohio, Nov. 11, 1910, Berry was one of five children of John A. Berry, an attorney, and his wife, Kittie. His father died when Berry was 6 years old.

BERRY ATTENDED Oberlin College on an academic scholarship and became an athletic standout in football and track. He was graduated from Duquesne University in Pittsburgh with a degree in education.

Berry entered the Urban League movement in 1937 in Pittsburgh and worked in Portland, Ore., before being named executive director of the Chicago Urban League in 1956.

"He came into town at a time when communications between city leaders and the black community were minimal," said John A. McDermott, director of Urban Affairs for Illinois Bell Telephone Company and also a civil rights activist.

Stanley Cup: Flyers versus Oilers

MONTREAL (UPI)—Defense, which carried the Montreal Canadiens to the Stanley Cup last season, cost the team a chance to repeat as champion. The Philadelphia Flyers took advantage of Canadian mistakes to earn a 4-3 victory Thursday night in Game 6 of the Wales Conference final and a trip to the Cup final. The Flyers will play the Edmonton Oilers for the Cup, a rematch of the 1985 championship won by the Oilers in five games. Glenn Anderson's one-handed pass set up a goal by Mark Messier that sparked the Edmonton Oilers to the Stanley Cup final in a 6-3 victory over the Detroit Red Wings. Wednesday's win for Edmonton was its fourth Campbell Conference title. Philadelphia and Edmonton will meet in the first game in the best-of-seven series next Wednesday at Edmonton. The Canadiens were hurt by a tired group of defenseman that made critical errors throughout Game 6 and the series against the heavy-checking Flyers.

DEFENSEMAN CHRIS Chelios was on the ice for all four Flyers goals Thursday and was caught up-ice on two of the three, giving the Flyers three-on-two and two-on-one breaks. After the defeat, Chelios left the Canadiens' dressing room quickly without talking to reporters. But Robinson, who collected a goal and an assist, knew his team's defensive breakdowns had cost it the game. "After the last game at the Forum, we didn't want to give up three-on-twos," he said.

"That's where they got their goals. You can't do that against the good teams. We made four mistakes tonight and they scored four goals." Robinson was particularly upset that his team was unable to defend a 3-1 lead it took in the second period. The Canadiens lost all three games in the series played in Montreal. "THERE IS NO reason on earth to blow a 3-1 lead in a crucial game like this," Robinson said. "We did. That was the game." Defenseman Rick Green agreed defensive lapses made the difference. "It's been that way since we started the series," he said. "When we had defensive breakdowns, they scored. After we had them 3-1, we gave them life. They plugged away and tied it up."

Hawkeyes honored; new TV deal signed

By Marc Bona

Headlining Iowa sports news this week: Three softball players were honored Thursday and Men's Athletic Director Bump Elliott has announced the 1987-88 announcers for Iowa football and basketball seasons.

The three Iowa softball players were among 13 Big Ten players named to the National Coaches' Association Midwest All-Region second team.

According to Tammy Frank, Iowa assistant women's sports information director, second baseman Carol Bruggeman, third baseman Sally Miller and centerfielder Beth Kirchner represent the Hawkeyes on the 21-player roster.

IOWA WILL LEAVE today for Macomb, Ill., to compete in the inaugural Hardee's Softball National Invitational Championship May 15-17. The Hawkeyes will play U.S. International in first-round action beginning at 4 p.m.

"I'm extremely pleased," Kirchner said of the recognition. "It's a nice way to end my senior year, I guess." Kirchner, who admitted the honor was "not really expected," said the Hawkeyes are heading into the 16-team tournament with an air of confidence.

"After looking at the brackets it looks like we can do quite well," she said. All three Hawkeyes hail from Iowa: Kirchner from Sioux City, senior Bruggeman from Charter Oak and sophomore Miller from Urbandale.

DETAILS FOR THE newly

created Hawkeye Television Network were announced this week by Elliott, including the four announcers named for Iowa football and basketball broadcasts.

Iowa retained its television rights for basketball, delayed football telecasts and coaches' shows in both sports. All events will be packaged and syndicated by Rasmussen Communications Management.

Bill Rasmussen, president of RCM, said the deal is the most extensive one-school package in college sports.

The cornerstone of the package, according to a press release issued Monday, will be live basketball coverage which will include all games not selected by the major networks and the Big Ten Network. Approximately 20 basketball games will be carried by the Hawkeye Television Network during the 1987-88 season. The announcers, listed with their respective sports and positions, are as follows:

• Gene Claussen, football, play-by-play: He has broadcast virtually every Iowa football and basketball games for KXIC since 1948. A native of Manning, Iowa, and a 1942 graduate of the UI, Claussen has several times been named the state's SportsCaster of the Year.

• Mac McCausland, basketball commentator: Currently the president of the State I-Club, McCausland has filled this role for the past two seasons for the Iowa Television Network. A native of Maquoketa, he played basketball for Iowa in the mid-1960s and received his degree in 1968.

• Larry Morgan, basketball, play-by-play: He has worked with KSO in Des Moines the past nine years where he has broadcast Drake football and basketball, Iowa Cubs and has hosted Bulldog coaches' shows. He also provided the commentary for Iowa football on KHAK last season. Morgan graduated from Kansas in 1970.

• Jim Zabel, host for the Hayden Fry and Tom Davis shows: Zabel has called every Iowa football and basketball game since 1950 for WHO in Des Moines, where he also hosts a call-in show. He also has broadcast Iowa coaches' shows since the mid-1950s. He has been a stalwart in Iowa broadcasting, covering all football bowl games and NCAA basketball tournament games. Zabel, a native of Davenport, graduated in 1946 from Iowa, where he served as sports editor of The Daily Iowan.

Mattingly's first grand slam carries Yankees over Texas

NEW YORK (UPI)—Don Mattingly broke out of a slump with his first career grand slam and Rickey Henderson and Claudell Washington also homered Thursday, helping the New York Yankees snap the Texas Rangers' four-game winning streak with a 9-1 triumph.

Dennis Rasmussen, 3-2, allowed five hits over 7 2-3 innings and struck out a season high nine to notch the victory. Cecilie Guante pitched one-third of an inning and Pat Clements hurled the final inning for the Yankees.

Texas starter Edwin Correa, 1-4, yielded seven runs on five hits and five walks in 3 1-3 innings. Henderson gave New York 1-0 lead in the first with his eighth home run of the season — his fourth as a leadoff batter. Henderson has hit 32 career leadoff home runs.

Anderson's homer, Willie Randolph walked and stole second and later scored on Washington's one-out groundout to give the Yankees a 2-0 lead.

The Yankees added a run in the second inning when Henderson was hit with a pitch, stole second and scored on Randolph's triple to right.

Washington hit his third home run of the season to give the Yankees a 4-0 lead in the third.

AL Roundup

After the Rangers scored a run in the fourth on singles by Scott Fletcher, Ruben Sierra and Pete O'Brien, Mattingly connected for his grand slam, off reliever Mike Mason, to give the Yankees a commanding lead.

New York loaded the bases off Correa on Joel Skinner's single, which broke an 0 for 13 slump, and walks to Henderson and Randolph before Mattingly snapped a 5 for 34 slump with his fourth home run of the season.

The Yankees added a run in the eighth on a double by Randolph and a single by Washington.

Orioles 4, Royals 3
BALTIMORE (UPI) — Terry Kennedy cracked a leadoff home run in the eighth inning Thursday night, giving the Baltimore Orioles a 4-3 victory over Bret Saberhagen and the Kansas City Royals.

Kennedy's fourth game-winning RBI made a winner of reliever Dave Schmidt, 4-1. Ken Dixon pitched the ninth for his second save. Saberhagen, the 1985 American League Cy Young Award winner, fell to 6-1. The Royals tied the score 3-3 in the sixth. With one out, Larry Owen doubled off the left field wall and scored on Angel Salazar's first major-league homer. Kevin Seitzer walked, took third on George Brett's single and scored on Juan Beniquez's grounder.

The Orioles took a 2-0 lead in the first. With one out, Jim Dwyer walked and Cal Ripken Jr. hit his 11th homer of the season. Baltimore made it 3-0 in the fifth. Eddie Murray singled and moved to third on a bloop single by Fred Lynn. He scored when second baseman Frank White misplayed Ray Knight's routine two-out grounder.

Chicago 4, Cleveland 3
CHICAGO (UPI) — Carlton Fisk singled home Donnie Hill from second base with one out in the ninth inning Thursday night, giving the Chicago White Sox a 4-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Hill drew a leadoff walk off Rich Yett, 1-2, and Ozzie Guillen sacrificed. Ernie Camacho relieved and Fisk singled between third and short, scoring Hill to make a winner of Bobby Thigpen, 2-2.

Trailing 3-2 in the eighth, Chicago tied the score. Daryl Boston led off with a single, stole second and scored on Greg Walker's two-out single.

After catching a fly ball and colliding with teammate ball to the infield while in a seated position, Andy Barry Bonds, the Pirates' Johnny Ray throws the Van Slyke blows a bubble while watching the play.

Pirate batting surge keep Padres sliding

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Jim Morrison, R.J. Reynolds and Mike LaValliere produced run-scoring singles in a three-run third inning Thursday night, leading the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 10-3 victory over the San Diego Padres.

The decision dropped San Diego's record to 8-28, worst in the majors. The Padres have lost three in a row and nine of their last 11 games. The victory was Pittsburgh's fourth straight and sixth in a row at home.

Brian Fisher, making his second major-league start after 126 career relief appearances, pitched six innings to even his record at 1-1. Rookie John Smiley pitched three innings to record his first major-league save. Eric Show, 1-4, took the loss.

With two out in the third, Johnny Ray reached on an error by Show. Sid Bream walked and Morrison singled home Ray. Reynolds singled in Bream and LaValliere then singled to right, scoring Morrison and giving Pittsburgh a 4-3 lead.

The Pirates scored five runs in the seventh. Ray and Bream singled and Lance McCullers relieved Show. Morrison was hit by a pitch, loading the bases. Reynolds then hit a smash to first baseman Carmelo Martinez, who couldn't handle the ball for an error, allowing Ray to come home to make the score 5-3. LaValliere followed with a two-run single, scoring Bream and Morrison.

Rafael Belliard then delivered an RBI single to right, scoring Reynolds to make it 8-5. Smiley's first major-league hit, a double to right field, scored LaValliere with the ninth run.

The Padres had scored three runs in the top of the third to take a 3-1 lead. With one out, Stan Jefferson reached on an infield single and scored on a triple down the right-field line by Joey Cora. Tony Gwynn slammed a book-rule double over the left-center field fence to score Cora. Gwynn then moved to third on a balk by Fisher. After Martinez grounded out, John Kruk doubled to center, driving in Gwynn to make the score 3-1.

The Pirates took a 1-0 lead in the first without a hit. Barry Bonds walked, stole second and advanced to third on a flyball. Bonds scored on a groundout to second by Ray. Pittsburgh increased its lead to 10-3 in the eighth. Bream led off with a triple off Storm Davis, the Padres' third pitcher. One out later, Bream scored on a groundout to second by Reynolds.

Phillies 5, Braves 4
PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Mike Schmidt hit his 507th career homer and Jeff Stone singled home the tie-breaking run Thursday night, giving the Philadelphia Phillies a 5-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

The home run left Schmidt four behind Hall of Famer Mel Ott, who is 13th on the all-time list with 511.

Greg Gross, hitting for Phillies starter Kevin Gross, 2-4, led off the seventh inning with a bloop single to center, was sacrificed to second by Milt Thompson and scored on Stone's single to right off starter Rick Mahler, 2-5.

Kevin Gross gave his seven hits in seven innings, while walking four and striking out one, to win his second straight decision. Steve Bedrosian hurled two innings for his fourth save.

The Phillies tied the score 4-4 on Schmidt's two-run homer with two out in the fifth. The home run was the 12th of the season for Schmidt.

The Braves had taken a 4-2 lead in the fourth on Ozzie Virgil's second solo home run of the game and his 10th home run of the season.

Virgil gave Atlanta a 1-0 lead in the second with his first homer and the Braves built their lead to 3-0 in the third. Ken Oberkfell's sacrifice fly scored Albert Hall, who had walked, and Gerald Perry singled home Dion Jarry, who had singled.

The Phillies closed to 3-2 in the bottom of third. Thompson led off with a ground-rule double and scored on a one-out home run by Juan Samuel, his sixth home run of the season and fifth in his last five games.

Reds 10, Expos 9
MONTREAL (UPI) — Lloyd McClendon capped a five-run ninth inning with a two-run, pinch-hit single Thursday night, lifting the Cincinnati Reds to a 10-9 victory over the Montreal Expos.

The Expos entered the inning with a 9-5 lead before reaching reliever Andy McGaffigan for three runs and Randy St. Claire for two.

Indy Notebook

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Notes, quotes and anecdotes from the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

When Al Unser Sr. climbed into an Indy car for the first time this season, he knew he had the fans behind him.

"Go Big Al. Win No. 4. Come on Al, do it Al," came the cries from spectators as the three-time Indy winner watched the car being prepared to practice. Owner Roger Penske, who will again sponsor three drivers trying to get in the race, got a message too.

"Hey Roger, Al's our man. He's No. 1," and later, noting the bad luck Penske has had with his specially designed chassis, a spectator hollered, "I hear Penske is in real trouble."

Like father, like son

Al Unser Sr. would like nothing better than to win the race this year, after starting the month without a ride. If that doesn't happen, he would like to see his son, Al Jr., take the checkered flag.

"I wish I could take my knowledge and give it to my boy with my youth. Mario would say the same thing," Unser said, citing Mario Andretti and his son Michael, the other father-son driving opponents at Indy this month.

Good Old Days

A.J. Foyt remembers the first time he qualified for the Indianapolis 500 as he prepares to start his 30th race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

"It's a hell of a difference," he said. "Then I wore a T-shirt and an old cloth helmet. Now I really I did wear a T-shirt though. I look back on some of those pictures in the qualifying line sitting there. It's a little different today."

Indy Chairman

The chairman of this year's 500 Festival Parade and festivities is Mario Vazquez-Riana, president of the Pan American Sports Organization. PASO is the hemispheric group that puts on the Pan American Games, to be held this August in Indianapolis.

Win at Boston Garden renews Bucks' drive

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — With a victory Friday night, the Milwaukee Bucks would get another chance to accomplish the improbable — beating the Celtics in Boston Garden.

The Bucks stayed alive in the Eastern Conference semifinals with a 129-124 victory Wednesday night at Boston Garden to cut the Celtics' lead to 3-2 in the best-of-seven series. Milwaukee had lost 10 straight games at the Garden, and the Celtics had won 79 of their last 80 on the fabled parquet floor, including 33 straight.

Game 6 is set for Friday night at the Milwaukee Arena. If the Bucks win, Game 7 will be played Sunday at Boston. If the Celtics win, they will host the Detroit Pistons Sunday in Game 1 of the Eastern Conference final.

Only four teams have ever rallied from a 3-1 deficit to win a best-of-seven series in the NBA.

The Bucks have beaten the Celtics four times in five games this season at home, including a 126-121 overtime victory in Game 3. Boston's lone victory in Milwaukee was a 138-137 double-overtime triumph in Game 4.

"We didn't want to go back to Milwaukee," Celtics guard Dennis Johnson said. "It's no secret. Milwaukee is a great town, but we didn't want to go back."

The Celtics received a crucial setback in their already-thin frontcourt when Robert Parish, who had 30 points and 16 rebounds Wednesday night, suffered a sprained ankle with about four minutes left. A team spokesman said Thursday Parish would not play in Game 6 and would be on a day-to-day basis after that.

has not played in the series because of a hairline fracture in his right ankle and forward Kevin McHale has been hobbled with an ankle injury. Parish's injury could prove especially costly because the smaller Bucks have been driving effectively to the basket during the series.

"They are very athletic, very quick and very aggressive going to the basket

NBA names Person Rookie of the Year

NEW YORK (UPI)—Forward Chuck Person, who led Indianapolis in scoring and helped the Pacers to their first playoff berth in six years, Thursday was named the NBA's Rookie of the Year.

Person, who averaged 18.8 points per game, was an overwhelming choice to win the Eddie Gottlieb Trophy in voting by 78 media members around the league. Person received 10 votes with Cleveland guard Ron Harper receiving the other 10.

Person, who is 6-foot-8 and 220 pounds, was the fourth selection in the 1986 draft after averaging 18.3 points per game during his career at Auburn. He replaced injured Clark Kellogg as a starter early in the season and led the club in minutes (36 per game) and three-point goals (49), and ranked second in rebounds (8.3) and assists (3.6).

"I DIDN'T HAVE any doubts I could play in this league," Person said. "I felt that once the people saw me play, they'd come to like me and enjoy what they see. This is Big Ten country and they don't follow Auburn basketball.

"They might have known Charles Barkley and Bo Jackson, but Chuck Person was like someone in Moscow to them." Person, who was named after Chuck Connors — star of the old television show "The Rifleman" and a one-time Boston Celtic — won over the Pacers fans and league rivals with his outstanding all-around play.

"He does everything well — he hustles and gives you everything he's got, and he's a great kid, too," Chicago Coach Doug Collins said.

Indianapolis' Chuck Person Thursday was named NBA Rookie of the Year. Person led the Pacers to the Playoffs for the first time in 6 years.

'Success' holds steady at box offices

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Universal's The Secret of My Success, featuring Michael J. Fox, continued its box-office success last week as the nation's most popular motion picture.

Fox, of television's Family Ties, stars in the tale of an ambitious country kid's exploits in the corporate kingdom, which earned $3.8 million last week for a five-week total of $38.3 million.

Bruce Willis, of television's Moonlighting, also demonstrated the growing power of small-screen stars to attract fans to the big screen.

Tri-Star's Blind Date, which features Willis and Kim Basinger, crept from the No. 3 to the No. 2 position with receipts of $1.9 million. In seven weeks of release the movie has earned $33.2 million.

Creepshow 2, a compilation of Stephen King horror stories, traded places with Blind Date, slipping to the No. 3 position. The New World release garnered receipts of $1.8 million for a two-week total of $6.2 million.

Tri-Star's Gardens of Stone, was the top debut of the week. Directed by Francis Coppola, the movie tells a tale of the war at home during the Vietnam era through the eyes of an elite unit stationed at the National Cemetery in Arlington, Va.

In its first week of release, Gardens of Stone earned $1.6 million.

Michael J. Fox and Helen Slater

continued its trek in the top 10 but slipped a notch to the No. 8 spot.

The Orion release, which follows a platoon of soldiers through the jungles of Vietnam, earned $1.2 million last week for a 21-week total of $125.8 million.

Extreme Prejudice, featuring Nick Nolte, posted the greatest drop — from No. 4 to No. 9 — during the week. The Tri-Star release earned $1.2 million for a three-week total of $8.3 million.

Raising Arizona, a Joel and Ethan Coen motion picture, rounded out the top 10 with earnings of $1.1 million. The 20th Century Fox comedy has earned $15 million in nine weeks.

The top 10, last week's gross, total gross, weeks in release:

1. The Secret of My Success, $3.8 million, $38.3 million, 5 weeks.
2. Blind Date, $1.9 million, $33.2 million, 7 weeks.
3. Creepshow 2, $1.8 million, $6.2 million, 2 weeks.
4. Gardens of Stone, $1.6 million, $1.6 million, 1 week.
5. Hot Pursuit, $1.5 million, $1.5 million, 1 week.
6. Project X, $1.3 million, $11.7 million, 4 weeks.
7. Lethal Weapon, $1.3 million, $55.1 million, 10 weeks.
8. Platoon, $1.2 million, $125.8 million, 21 weeks.
9. Extreme Prejudice, $1.2 million, $8.3 million, 3 weeks.
10. Raising Arizona, $1.1 million, $15 million, 9 weeks.

Film

On a lighter note, Paramount's Hot Pursuit, debuted in the No. 5 spot with earnings of $1.5 million. The comedy, a pickup from RKO Pictures, spotlights the efforts of a college student trying to catch up with his girlfriend and her vacationing family.

Project X, from 20th Century Fox, dropped a notch to the No. 6 spot with earnings of $1.3 million. The comedy has earned $11.7 million in four weeks.

Warner Bros. Lethal Weapon dropped a notch to the No. 7 spot with receipts of $1.3 million. Featuring Mel Gibson and Danny Glover as police partners, the action movie has earned $55.1 million.

'Walking Distance' journeys through everyday sorrows

By Teresa Heger
Arts/entertainment Editor

WALKING Distance by Marian Thurm is a deceptively simple novel. The narration is to the point. The characters are straightforward. The plot is practically non-existent.

But this simplicity, as it culminates, works to create a work of intricate emotional depth.

Walking Distance evolves around a young housewife, Laura. She is carefree, content to edit magazine stories at home and watch her young daughter, Mia. Her life is settled and comfortable.

ENTER DAVID, a marriage counselor dying from cancer who has been watching Laura every day as she walks Mia to school. When he introduces himself and confesses his growing infatuation with her, Laura responds with sympathy. Soon they are having an affair.

tance is that nothing is as simple as it seems. Laura feels guilt for loving David and betraying her husband, whom she still loves. She also feels the despair of David's impending death. David, in turn, feels anger toward his wife and son for their refusal to accept his cancer.

Thurm's clear narrative also avoids the trap of sentimentality that writers often trip into while writing about death in general — and cancer in specific. Walking Distance is not another Sunshine on My Shoulder. It is not a tear-jerker; David's eventual death is never even described. The closest Thurm comes to sentimentality is when Laura goes to visit David at the hospital. The realism of the scene — Laura's obvious embarrassment and his total lack of "saintly" behavior (after snapping at her he asks her to leave) — undercuts any trite sentiment.

OTHER CHARACTERS add to the strength of Thurm's narrative. The problems that Laura's grandmother, Sophie, encounters when she remarries are both touching and humorous. At one point Sophie leaves her husband — but first she dumps all of his clothes in the garbage cans outside their huge apartment complex. The couple eventually makes up, but his clothes have long since been snatched away by vagrants.

So much for the honeymoon pajamas.

Walking Distance is a mild and entertaining book. Thurm does a fine job of developing complex characters who live in a believable world of mundane — and inescapable — circumstances.

Smith's 'Happy Hours' offers unhappy reading experience

By Teresa Heger
Arts/entertainment Editor

THE BLURB on the jacket of Gary Smith's first novel declares "Happy Hours is a fresh twining of two immortal themes, love and liquor."

With a tease like that on the cover, who can resist?

Unfortunately, these two "immortal themes" are sadly underdeveloped. Happy Hours is a aimless work that barely explores love and only shallowly dives into the problems (benefits?) of liquor.

The novel evolves around two characters, Willy and Vee. Willy's first encounter with liquor and love comes as him well-ginned father kisses him before bed. Lonely Vee discovers alcohol when her baby sitter roams behind the bar for sip or two.

THE NOVEL TAKES off from there. Each chapter, alternating between the perspectives of Vee and Willy, explores new adventures in liquor. Love is usually only a side issue. The one-dimensional characters stumble through one drunken haze to another. Willy goes on sprees with his alcoholic roommate; Vee puts on a front of hard drinking to earn attention.

Happy Hours major problem is that its stance is unclear. Is alcohol good or bad? Is it good only when consumed in moderation — or only when consumed in excess? Even as Willy and Vee drool through one bottle of wine after another, the novel wanders through one point to another.

Sure, Willy hurts himself while he's drinking. He can't manage sex. He's kicked out of bars. He gets tattooed and catches hepatitis.

ON THE OTHER hand, he has a great time. Smith offers no alternative for that fun; even love pales in comparison. It's hard to blast the use of liquor if the alternative is dullness. Perhaps Smith is simply preaching moderation, but his message, whatever it is, is lost long before the book is through.

Smith's prose style also leaves a lot to be desired. His voice, and the voices of his characters, is choppy and monosyllabic. The characters are blaring stereotypes Vee and Willy are yuppies; their friends are drunkards. Their parents are emotionless, bitter '50s couples.

Happy Hours is shallow novel; neither subject matter nor prose style save it from mundaneness.
